Coming Friday, March 10 to your favorite Campus Center Basement office. The event will be catered and there will be oodles of good food.

Keep your finger on the pulse of UMass and build your resume while you're at it.
Write for the Collegian News Department
Contact Jesse A. Lacono
113 Campus Center Basement
545-3500

Collegian Graphics
We're Up All Night
Putting together New England's oldest daily carriage newspaper

University Barbers
(Campus Center)
549-0123
Hours:
Weekdays
8 am - 4:45 pm
Sat. 8 am - 3:00 pm
No Appointment Necessary

Auto Glass Center
American & Foreign
• Same Day Service
• Billed Directly To Insurance Company
• Windshields Replaced
North Amherst Motors CARSTAR 78 Old Sunderland Rd. 549-2880
Northampton CARSTAR 141 Damon Rd. 586-4444
CARSTAR Collision Repair Centers

SET YOURSELF APART
THE NEW JERSEY YM-YWHA CAMPS ARE LOOKING FOR PEOPLE WHO WANT TO MAKE A DIFFERNCE!!
* COUNSELORS
*SPECIALISTS
NAH-JEE-WAH - AGES 6-11 CEDAR LAKE - AGES 11-14
TEENAGE CAMP - AGES 14-16 KISLAK ADULT CENTER
ROUND LAKE CAMP FOR ADD/LD
OUR 5 CAMPUSES INCLUDE:
6 separate lakes, 3 swimming pools, superior athletic facilities, modern craft shops, quality Jewish programming
SALARY RANGE $1100-2000
Camp representative will be available at the Camp Day Fair in the Student Union Ballroom on Tuesday, March 7th. For more information stop by or contact: New Jersey YM-YWHA Camps (201) 575-4268 ext 26.

FANTASY REALMS
"Video Game Mania"
We Buy, Sell and Trade
New and Used Video Games & CDs
We rent games too.
SNES • Sega • Game Boy
Game Gear • NES
Now carrying IBM compatible software!
233 N. Pleasant St • In The Carriage Shops

Help Wanted?
Job Tip # 42 ...Not all employers advertise in the paper. Make contacts!
Create a professional looking resumé at CopyCat Print Shop.
Choose from a selection of attractive high quality 25% cotton paper. We'll typeset one page and make 50 copies all in just two business days. - Only $19.95 with this coupon.
CopyCat PRINT SHOP
229 Triangle St. Amherst 549-3040 • 32 Pleasant St. Northampton 586-1337

UNIVERSITY BARTENDING™
• Professional Bartending and Bar Management Training ...at a fraction of the cost at most schools
• Full certification in as little as six weeks
• Specific programs tailored to your specific needs
• T.I.P.S.™ and Serv-Safe™ certification available
• Approved by the National Restaurant Association®
CLASSES START Tonight! 7:00 p.m. Lord Jeffrey Inn
Shop around and compare! Call
1-800-U-CAN-MIX
for more information.
Act now! Space is limited
VISA AMEX DISCOVER

HOW TO GET STUFF CHEAPER.
(WITHOUT POSING AS A SENIOR CITIZEN.)
Check expiration dates. If it's going bad tomorrow, it's probably on sale today.
Look for product flaws. A scratch or a missing button means bargain savings at the register.
Go generic. Same as name brands, without the cartoon mascots.
Buy in bulk with friends. Connect the leftover boxes to make a human Habitrail.®
Use a Citibank Classic card. If you find out you didn't pay the lowest price, Citibank Price Protection can pay you back up to $150.*
*Naturally conditions and exclusions apply. Learn all about it when you become a cardmember.
WE'RE LOOKING OUT FOR YOU.™
To apply, call 1-800-CITIBANK
Sign up for your Citibank card today; Monday, March 6 in front of the University Store from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

© 1995 Citibank (South Dakota), N.A.

captains

continued from page 10

Duquesne had two and sometimes three defenders on Roe for the entire game.

Massachusetts coach John Calipari said the team follows Roe's example.

"[Lou] leads by example," Calipari said. "When he has a game face, we all have a game face. We all kind of play off him."

Kellogg has always been steady. His decision making ability always translates into an impressive assist-to-turn over ratio. Last night was no different, as Kellogg dished out five assists while only turning the ball over once.

"It's my job to make sure that things stay in control in going the way they need to be going out there," Kellogg said.

What has changed however with the absence of Mike Williams, is Kellogg's shooting. He has become the go-to guard. The senior, who was named to the A-10 Conference Third Team, was the game's second leading scorer with 16 points. He shot 5–8 from the field, including 4–5 from behind the three-point line.

"I'm feeling a little more comfortable," Kellogg said. "I'm feeling strong. I think I could hit some threes down the road. If not, we got some horses down low that should rebound it."

Calipari was pleased with the play of his senior tandem.

"Both of these guys are great leaders," Calipari said. "I couldn't ask for two better seniors. One, because they can play, and two because they're great people.

"The way they handle themselves off the court has been just great."

In the second half, Calipari gave his captains a rest. Their play gave the coach a chance to empty his bench and to put in his other two seniors.

Jason Germain, who is still in search of his final basket, went 0–3 after going 0–4 against Rhode Island. Jeff Meyer also added two rebounds.

Atlantic 10 Men's Basketball All–Conference Teams

First Team	Pos.	School
Rick Brunson	G	Temple
Marcus Camby	C	Massachusetts
Kwame Evans	G	George Washington
Lou Roe	F	Massachusetts
David Vanterpool	G/F	St. Bonaventure
Second Team	Pos.	School
Shandue McNeil	G	St. Bonaventure
Tom Pipkins	G	Duquesne
Zein Shaw	F	West Virginia
Reggie Townsend	F	St. Joseph's
Carlin Warley	F	St. Joseph's
Third Team	Pos.	School
Dustin Bright	F	Massachusetts
Nimbo Hammons	F	George Washington
Cyrus Jones	G	West Virginia
Albert Karner	G	Rutgers
Derek Kellogg	G	Massachusetts
Alexander Koul	G	George Washington

Player of the Year: Lou Roe, Massachusetts
Rookie of the Year: Alexander Koul, George Washington
Coach of the Year: Jim Baron, St. Bonaventure

A-10 notes

continued from page 10

For the third straight year, the Rookie of the Year went to the center.

George Washington 7–foot–1 freshman Koul captured the award.

The Highlight of the banquet was an appearance by Temple Alum Bill Cosby.

Cosby praised the conference and the coaches, and poked fun of everything.

He started his speech by calling the banquet "the most boring night of your lives."

After spending several minutes talking about the potential of a thoroughly embarrassed William Cunningham (Temple), he turned his attention to Temple coach John Chaney.

"This is John Chaney's prozac team," Cosby said. "They must be giving him prozac because he hasn't choked a white man in I don't know how long."

He parted with some shots at UMass coach John Calipari's clothes before leaving, saying before leaving. "I know where there is better food, and I'm going to go there and eat it."

men's hoop

continued from page 10

run pushing the lead to 21, 55–34.

From there, the Minutemen went on a 20–9 run, where two Padilla (nine points) free throws pushed the lead out to a game–high 32 points, 75–43 with 5:35 left.

Reserves Rigoberto Nuñez and Inus Norville were among the Minutemen scorers in the final minutes making for the final score.

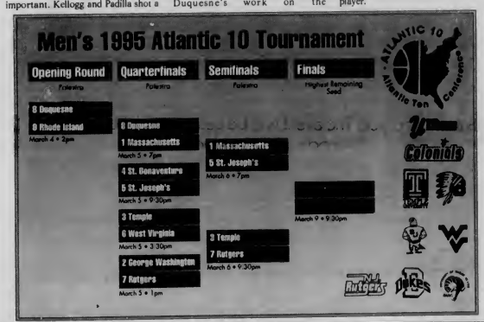
As in every game down the stretch for the Minutemen, the guard play is important. Kellogg and Padilla shot a combined 7–for–15 from the field, with Kellogg hitting 4–5 three pointers and dishing out five assists, with only one turnover. Padilla had zero turnovers.

"When our guards shoot the ball well, there will be a great spread in the score," Massachusetts coach John Calipari said. "If we make good decisions, there is no pressure on them to make shots."

Kellogg attributed his success to Duquesne's work on the Massachusetts front court.

"Most of the game I had open shots because they were clogging in on Marcus (6 points)," Kellogg said. "The shot was going to be there all day. It was just whenever I decided to take it."

Duquesne coach John Carroll praised the humble Minuteman point guard. "I told Derek before the game that he was the best point guard in the league. I think he is just a great player."



Women's 1995 Atlantic 10 Tournament

women's hoop

continued from page 10

will be held on Wednesday March 8. The A–10 Player of the Year, Rookie of the Year and Coach of the Year awards will be given out.

Duquesne's Korie Hlede looks to be the runaway favorite to capture the Rookie award while GW's Debbie Hemery is a favorite to win Player of the Year honors.

Massachusetts coach Joanie O'Brien is an odds–on favorite to win Coach of the Year honors for directing the Minutewomen to their best Atlantic–10 showing in school history.

The Atlantic 10 Conference could have multiple teams receiving bids in the NCAA tournament this year, along with the automatic bid that the tournament champion receives. GW should get a bid no matter how they do in the tournament, while UMass and St. Joe's need solid tournament play to get a bid.

Four–way tie in the ACC conference

No. 13 Virginia 92, No. 6 Maryland 67

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Virginia tied up the Atlantic Coast Conference like it never has been.

The 13th-ranked Cavaliers beat No. 6 Maryland 92-67 Sunday and the ACC finished in a four-way tie for first place for the first time in its 41-year history.

Wake Forest, North Carolina, Maryland and Virginia all finished the regular season with 12-4 records and that's the way they will be seeded by tiebreakers when the conference tournament gets under way this week in Greensboro, N.C.

Virginia (21-7) won for the ninth time in 10 games as Junior Burrough scored 24 points. Harold Deane added 19 points and 14 assists and freshman Curtis Staples had 18 points, all on 3-pointers. Deane's 14 assists tied the school record.

Maryland (22-6) was never able to get untracked offensively in having a four-game winning streak snapped. Joe Smith led the Terrapins with 25 points, but Virginia's physical defense shut down everyone else and the game was not close over the entire second half.

The Cavaliers led 42-33 at halftime and they had the lead to 56-37 with 16:18 to play on consecutive 3-pointers by Staples. Maryland closed within 64-52 with 10:54 left, but another 3-pointer by Staples capped a 10-2 run that made it 74-54 with 7:37 left. The Terrapins were never closer than 16 the rest of the way. Staples' 3-point showing was not unusual considering he came into the game shooting 45 percent from behind the arc this season and all but 18 of his 95 field goals had come from that distance. Maryland played its second game without head coach Gary Williams on the bench. Williams has been hospitalized since Tuesday with pneumonia and his condition was upgraded Sunday to good.

No. 1 UCLA 91, Louisville 73

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Ed O'Bannon scored 25 points, and Tyus Edney added 20 as top-ranked UCLA dominated the inside in turning back Louisville 91-73 and winning its 11th straight game yesterday.

UCLA (23-2) held a commanding 40-22 advantage in rebounds, and scored numerous baskets on putbacks and dunks. Toby Bailey had 11 rebounds to lead the Bruins' inside attack that scored 25 second-chance points. UCLA outscored Louisville 18-4 in the final 2:29 to turn back the upset bid and defeat the Cardinals for the fifth straight time.

Louisville (16-13) rallied from 53-36 with 15:41 to go to 73-69 on Jason Osborne's 3-pointer from the right wing with 2:53 to go. But Louisville turned the ball over on its next three possessions, and UCLA answered with Charles O'Bannon's rebound baskets and two free throws each by George Zidek and Tyus Edney to open an 81-69 advantage with 1:28 remaining in the game.

Bailey finished with 17 points and Charles O'Bannon added 16 for UCLA, which shot 58 percent (33-for-57) from the field. DeJuan Wheat scored 14 of his 18 points in the second half to pace Louisville while Samaki Walker had 14, Osborne 11 and Eric Johnson 10. The Cardinals hit 46 percent (30-for-66) of their shots.

No. 3 Kansas 78, Oklahoma State 62

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Jacque Vaughn and Billy Thomas led No. 3 Kansas to its 42nd Big Eight Conference championship yesterday with a second-half charge that carried the Jayhawks to a 78-62 victory over No. 18 Oklahoma State.

The Cowboys' star center Bryant Reeves went scoreless for the first time in his career.

In only the second title-deciding regular season finale the Big Eight has seen in 50 years, Kansas overcame a brilliant 45-point performance by Randy Rutherford, who set the Big Eight career record for 3-pointers.

It's the fourth conference title in five years for Kansas. The 7-foot Reeves, who had 33 points and 20 rebounds in Oklahoma State's 79-69 victory over Kansas last month, suffered one of the most miserable games of an outstanding career. Reeves is one of only five Big Eight players with 2,000 points and 1,000 rebounds. Hounded by 7-foot-2-inch Greg Ostertag, the Big Eight career leader in blocked shots, Reeves finished with no points, four fouls and six turnovers.

Thomas, a freshman, personally halted a Cowboy charge late in the second half when he hit for 15 of his 17 points, including five 3-pointers. Rutherford, setting the Big Eight career record for 3-pointers, was unstoppable in the bruising first half, hitting five of seven 3-pointers and putting in 19 points as the Cowboys took a 28-27 halftime lead.

But Vaughn gave Kansas the lead for good at 34-33 amid a 13-0 run that staked the Jayhawks to a 44-33 advantage with 12:27 left.

Give the Collegian an international perspective!
Come write for Developing Nations & Multicultural Affairs
113 Campus Center
545-3500

Lincoln Real Estate
253-7879
25 North Pleasant St.
(above McDonald's)
Apartment Rentals
CONGRATULATIONS!
Job Well Done

EATING DISORDERS
A FIVE COLLEGE FILM SERIES • ALL SHOWINGS AT 7:30 PM
MARCH
Tuesday, 7: "Still Killing Us Softly." Jean Kilbourne video examining how advertising portrays women. Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Room 162.
Tuesday, 28: "Famine Within." Documentary film addressing the socio-cultural forces that impact women's obsessions with their bodies and weight. Hooker Auditorium, Mount Holyoke.
APRIL
Tuesday, 4: "Life is Sweet." Comedy focusing on an enduring couple and their iconoclastic twin daughters- one of whom suffers from anorexia and extreme self-loathing. Smith College, Seelye 106.
Wednesday, 5: "Life is Sweet." Campus Center, Front Room, Amherst College (See Apr. 4)
Thursday, 13: "Eating." Serious comedy about women talking about food, bodies, each other and life." Women's Center, Enfield House, Hampshire College.
Wednesday, 19: "Pack of Lies." Jean Kilbourne video examining advertising of the tobacco industry, including the connection between smoking and thinness. Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Room 162.
Sponsored by the Five College Eating Disorders Committee. For additional information call 542-2760.

WANTED
Assistant Finance Manager
EXPERIENCE is a must to be successful in gaining the competitive edge in today's Business World...
We are looking for:
Ambitious • Responsible • Organized
SOPHOMORES
with good communication skills
Business Majors Preferred
Applications are available at the Collegian 113 Campus Center and must be submitted by Thursday March 9 @ 4:00 p.m. !!

UM finishes home meets

By Jorma Kansanen
Collegian Staff

Whether it pertains to any part of your life, there comes a time when all good things must end. It is a tough period of transition, but it can both accentuate the good times had and set a firm bssis for the future.

Last Saturday night at the Curry Hicks Cage, the University of Massachusetts women's gymnastics team (10–2 overall, 4–1 A-10), in their last home meet of the season, bid farewell to their graduating seniors and defeated Northeastern University (5–9) by a score of 189.625–183.775.

The Minutewomen also saw their consecutive streak of three meets with over 190 total team points come to an end, but after a slow start this evening, consistency was the key to the win.

"I think this was as good s meet as we had last week (the win over West Virginia)," said UMass coach Dave Kuzara. "The scores were not there this week, as the judging was a little bit tighter, but the consistency and our skill level were there.

"As a team, we were a little bit down at the start of the meet and we all needed a boost," sophomore Lianne Laing said. "We fell below the 190 point scores we have been scoring, but not a lot. It just shows that the team is going to stay up in that good score range."

Good scores truly did reign supreme for UMass, as four of the top five all-around competitors wore the home maroon and white.

Only three quarters of a point separated the top four, as junior J.J. Tolhurst was first with a score of 38.525, with Laing, in one of her best showings of the season, taking second place (38.35).

Following closely behind were sophomore Tara Swartz (37.825, 2nd in beam with a 9.55) and junior Shaheda Keels (37.80, 3rd in uneven bars with a 9.40). Northeastern's Robin Beeley rounded out the top five with a score of 37.35.

Contributing to Tolhurst's all-around win was the fact that she captured first place in all but one of the events, the vault.

Laing kept up "the vault zone" she has been in of late with a first place score of 9.75; while the development of the freshmen on the team once again impressed Kuzara, as Penny Lebeau scored her career-high in the floor exercise with a 9.175.

The format for the evening was centered on each team consecutively doing the same event. The time in between events had the team sitting, sometimes for extended periods, but what was left to be desired for crowd was good practice for the upcoming multi-team meets in Georgia and Michigan.

Discipline and concentration will be needed for those big meets and were essential in this win.

"We are going to have to sit out two rotations in the bigger meets, so the format was a good practice run for us," Laing said. "It was tough that we could not dazzle the home crowd, but it was good mental practice."

Senior Night: The annual celebration concerning the accomplishments of the graduating seniors was held Saturday night as Erica Baum, Stephanie Martino and Gina Demeo took the floor in the Cage for the last time in their collegiate careers.

Hampered by injuries the past few seasons, Martino and Demeo took the support role for the team this evening.

Struck down with a torn anterior cruciate ligament in her left knee this season, Martino reflected on both her personal trials and triumphs, and how the team has helped her through them.

"What is most memorable to me is coming back off of right knee surgery, being two years out, and competing last year and being successful," Martino said. "Overall, the team has been a great support system. Without them there it would have been so much harder to make it through four years of school."

"We have missed, and will continue to miss, Stephanie," Kuzara said. "She really came through for us last year and her great personality is the kind of thing we are going to miss."

For the last actively competing senior, this night was especially significant for Pittsburgh's Erica Baum. She came up big for the team as she scored consistently well in the uneven bars (9.325) and the floor exercise (9.55). What was the keeper for the evening, though, was the first ever presentation of the Erica Baum Scholar–Athlete Achievement Award to her, for the accomplishments she has done both academically and athletically in her four years here at UMass.

Working through walk on status and keeping a high standard in her classes, Baum has now received the recognition for work that does not usually get the press.

"I am going to miss her. If there ever was a problem or you needed something answered, it was always Erica who we went to," Laing said.

"I am proud to get out in a year like this. This team has changed so much since I have been here," Baum said. "It has gone from having an individual like Tammy Marshall to a team that really does not have one superstar, but pulls together.

"We are closer this year than any year we have ever been.

"She was able to work very hard and increase her skill level. You can not out–work her or out–study her," Kuzara said. "Now Erica has a place here forever, and I feel very good about that."

Men's gym wins New Englands again

Men's tennis wins first two matches of its young season

By Justin C. Smith
Collegian Staff

For the seventh straight year the University of Massachusetts men's gymnastics team has returned to Amherst, winners of the New England Championships.

It does not look as if that trend is going to change any time soon either. The Minutemen took the first four places in the all–around and no one was older than a sophomore.

Sophomore Gabe Columbus led the way for the Minutemen as he scored a 54.75, followed by fellow sophomores Chris Funk and Ruslan Shupsk with scores of 54.10 and 53.05, respectively. They were followed up by freshman Danny Young who stepped up his performance with a 52.60.

Massachusetts scored a 224.15 as a team, outdistancing its nearest competitor by nearly twenty points. Springfield College was second with a score of 205.35, followed by Vermont (183.80), Southern Connecticut State (180.80), M.I.T. (176.65) and Dartmouth (131.80).

The Minutemen dominated every event from start to finish as they captured the top spot on six events.

Shupak started the Minutemen off on the right foot with a 9.70 with his floor exercise, good enough to place him first in the event. Next came the pommel horse where senior Jay Santos came up big in his specialty event with a first place score of 9.7.

On the Still Rings, freshman Kevin Schwartz broke his own school record in winning the event with a score of 9.95. Schwartz is looking to regain his No. 1 national ranking in the rings.

Shupak and Columbus shared the title of vault champion as each attained a 9.3 score for their respective performances. Shupak is also No. 2 nationally in the vault.

Freshman Keith Showstack made his contribution to the UMass effort with a first place score of 9.4 on the parallel bars. In the final event of the afternoon, Columbus made it a clean sweep of the individual events winning the high bar with a 9.65.

The Minutemen have this week to prepare for the ECAC Championships which will be held in the Boyden Gymnasium starting at 12 p.m.

* * *

The men's tennis team traveled to Burlington, VT for the Vermont Tournament and have their first two wins of the season to show for it.

On Saturday, the Minutemen won their first match over Central Connecticut, 4–3. Senior Tim Lipsky and junior Justin Lynn won their singles matches. Lipsky was taken to three sets but held on for the win at first singles, 6–4, 5–7, 6–4. Lynn was a victor in straight sets 6–4, 7–6.

The game was decided in the final match and the doubles team of senior Keith Murray and sophomore Ankur Baishya pulled out the win for the Minutemen with a straight set 6–2, 7–5 victory.

Day two of the tournament found UMass against the Huskies of Northeastern for win No. 2 of the spring with a 4–2 decision.

Though UMass lost at first and second singles, the three through five spots pulled out the win. Justin Lynn won his second match of the weekend in straight sets, 6–1, 6–1. Junior Eric Peters (2–6, 6–1, 6–3) and freshman Alex Aller (7–5, 6–3) were the other singles winners.

Keith Murray and Tim Lipsky teamed up in doubles competition for a 3–6, 6–4, 6–1. UMass is now 2–3 for the spring.

* * *

The women's swimming team is currently in fifth place after the first day of the ECAC championships.

Freshman Karen Sonnwald finished fourth in the 500-yard freestyle with a time of 5:01.17. That time broke her own school record which she set at last weekend's Atlantic 10 Championships. Junior Jessica Farley captured fifth place in the 200-yard individual medley, swimming a UMass record of 2:10.06.

Junior Sarah Baker took third place in the 50-yard freestyle with a time of 24.41.

The 200-yard freestyle relay team finished fourth (1:40.00).

Minutewomen achieve two victories

By Leigh Torbin
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts softball team (4–7) posted a 2–2 record this weekend, as they competed in the North– South Classic in Charlottesville, Virginia.

In the first of their three Saturday games, the Minutewomen topped Ohio University by a 3–1 score. Senior Kelly Daut was on top her pitching game, as she recorded the third no–hitter of her career in the victory over Ohio University.

Daut has been a mainstay on the mound for UMass, and her first no–hitter of the season upped her record to 3–2.

Chris Martens, the team's batting average leader on the young season, continued her hot start as she went 2–for–3, with a pair of doubles and an RBI, to lead the Minutewoman attack.

In the second game of the afternoon, UMass walloped North Carolina–Charlotte 10–0, in a game suspended after five innings due to the mercy rule. Sophomore Dani Ortega won her first game of the year, in her fourth outing, as she went the distance allowing just two hits.

The Minutewomen pounded UNC–Charlotte, scoring eight runs in the second and a pair in the third inning. Sophomore Sam Cardenas had a solid game at the plate, getting two hits in her three trips to the plate along with an RBI, while Martens continued a solid day by going 1–for–2, with three RBIs.

Unfortunately, the Minutewomen's third game on Saturday did not go as well as the other two. UMass dropped this one by a 9–0 score, to the host University of Virginia Lady Cavaliers.

Daut was the pitcher of record for the Minutewomen, and saw her record fall to 3–3 on the young campaign. UMass was unable to muster much offense against the Lady Cavalier's Michelle Collins who pitched a complete game, allowing just three UMass hits.

Virginia was able to capitalize on four Minutewomen errors by scoring two in the fourth, one in the fifth, and six in the sixth, to reach the mercy rule's allowed limit.

After playing a trio of games on Saturday, UMass returned to competition yesterday afternoon for a rematch with Ohio University.

The Minutewomen did not fare as well in the weekend's second meeting of the two clubs, as they dropped a 4–3 decision.

Ortega started for UMass, and was the pitcher of record. Daut relieved her in the fourth.

Cardenas and Kim Gutridge were the Minutewomen's leading hitters, as each went 2–for–3 on the day, Gutridge drove in a pair of UMass runs, and Cardenas knocked in one as well.

The Minutewomen got on the board early with two runs in the top of the first, but Ohio University would then score four unanswered runs to take control of the game.

UMass got one in the top of the fifth, but Ohio held on for the 4–3 victory.

UMass will return to action on March 16, when they play a doubleheader against Florida A&M. The Minutewomen will then play in the Florida State Invitational, March 17–19 in Tallahassee.

UMass skiers head for the Nationals

By Teri Klein
Collegian Correspondent

Two skiers from the University of Massachusetts ski team head to McCall, Idaho this week for the USCSA nationals. Junior Bill Schaefer and freshman Leah Muliero qualified with strong individual performances at the USCSA Eastern Regionals Feb. 26 and 27 at Waterville Valley, N.H.

The entire UMass men's team qualified for the nationals but will not attend because of the University's policy of not providing financial support for any post–season league events beside NCAAs.

Schaefer and Muliero chose to go to the Nationals on their own without the financial support from the University.

"I support their going out there and I pray for good results, but I am behind the University's position," UMass coach Bill MacConnell said.

The National races will begin Wednesday, March 8 and will continue to the end of the week. Successful performances by Schaeffer or Muliero could mean an All– American title, which Schaeffer won in 1993.

Five skiers competed in the NCAA Eastern Regionals at Middlebury, Vt. on Feb. 24 and 25. Heavy rain and wet snow made for poor ski conditions that were a factor in individual performances.

Muliero, the only women's skier to participate in the NCAA's, placed twenty–eighth out of a field of 67 skiers in the giant slalom.

Both the men's and women's teams participated in the USCSA Eastern Regionals. The men placed fifth overall qualifying them for the Nationals. Schaeffer finished as the top ranked skier in the East.

The women missed qualifying by one spot, placing sixth out of the 16 teams. Muliero had a strong finish, placing second overall in the region.

The season will not be over until late March for Muliero, McCormick, Lenarczyk, and Jim Cranston. They will all participate in the 1995 Junior Olympics. MacConnell feels this is a good way to end the season.

"All those kids are really competitive and will do well. They may actually win it," he said.

■ hockey

continued from page 10

mark, as they jousted behind the UMass net.

Forty–one seconds into the penalties, Northeastern completely spread out the UMass defense so that Jordan Shields was able to hit s wide open Jason Melong in the slot, who beat Regan upstairs.

"If your team has greater depth, 4–on–4 is a great advantage, and that's their advantage tonight," Mallen said. "Every team we've played this year, 4–on–4's been to our disadvantage."

Melong, who registered a hat trick last Friday night at the Mullins Center, got his second of the night into an open net, to make the final 3–1.

Their inaugural regular season in HE now completed, the Minutemen will open their first league post– season tomorrow night when they face the Eagles of Boston College at Conte Forum, in Chestnut Hill, Mass. UMass is 1–2 this season against BC, including their first HE win on Jan. 7, when they topped the Eagles 5–3 at the Mullins Center before 5,492. The winner advances to the quarterfinals, and will travel to No. 1 Maine on Saturday.

Classifieds

• 20¢ per word per day for students
• All ads must be paid cash/2 days in advance
• Ads may placed at 113 Campus Center Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Learn to bartend with University Bartending Get certified for 1/3 the price of other schools night here in Amherst. Classes start Mon. March 6th at 7:00pm Space is limited, so call 1-800-U-CAN-MIX to register today!

AUTO FOR SALE

1982 Mazda RX-7 184K, 5 spd, tint, sunroof, metallic light blue, must see/drive a nice ride!! $1900 Call 253-3148

Ford Tempo 1984 light blue (automatic) 58,000 miles only Runs like new Excellent condition Asking for $2300 or b.o. Call Ilias at 549-8133

ENTERTAINMENT

Artist needed See your work every where UMass Theater Guild needs volunteer to design logos and poster Call Kara 549-8555

Auditions: Theatre Guild auditions for Brighton Beach Memoirs March 10 8pm, March 11 11am, CC 904 Call 545-0415

FOR RENT

Daytona Beach condo for rent Beach view, sleeps four for $800 Spring Break March 18-25, 549-0238

Two rooms available! 7/30- a month OH rt. 9 Amherst Killer house w/ yards, on bike path - bus route Right near Stop + Shop Sorry, no phone yet call 549-0884 leave name + number with him

FOR SALE

92 K2 Extremes 1r 490 bindings w/brks Used 3X, perf cond. 500/bo Rich 665-2968

Alpine 7517 94 model, full topc, detach face, dolby $175 Alpine 80/60D components epir ear 4" mids, 1" dome tweeters, $100 Kenwood KAC 824 amp 80 W/2, 180 Wt $95 Alpine 3531 amp 18W/4 $30 Magnavox 4 head VCR HQ, unified remote, $140 Call 253-3149

Fridge, microwave, tv Call 5-5562

Kayak-one 500/bo Rich 665-2968

Macintosh computer Complete system including printer only $589 Call Chris at 800 289-5685

Plane ticket for sale anywhere in continental U.S $300 or b/o Call 253-7741

Printer ex cond dot matrix $150/bo Great deal! Call Jennifer 8-2985

286–386 computer system CPU monitor keyboard $225 Serve 549-5181

Save $$$ U.S. Air anywhere by March 28 $172 value for $110 For more 549-4015

Twin Patty tix Albany March 21 14th row center Good prices great seats Call now 584-8382

FOUND

Key found outside Sylvan at bus stop Sunday morn Single key on Ralph Lauren key chain. Call Bill at 6-0204.

GUATEMALA

Guatemala: Study espanol. Cash available. Casa Bos 3275, Austin, TX 78764 512-416-6991

HELP WANTED

$$$ opportunity. Are you interested in making some extra cash? Call 413-525-8480 for free information

Camp Canadensis: Pocono Mountains, Pennsylvania Excellent coastal resort summer camp Looking for caring counselors to help teach all land and water sports, rem bikes, motorcycles, arts + crafts, climbing wall, ropes course, radio, newspaper, waterskiing, jet skiing, and much more Summer season 6/20/95 thru 8/18/95 Call 800-832-8228 for an application.

Camp counselors for underprivileged children- if this sounds interesting and you would like to work with 8-12 year old boys and girls, visit us in the Student Union Ballroom, Camp Day, March 7th-Channel 3 Country Camp

Cruise ships hiring Earn up to $2000 +/month World travel Seasonal + full time positions No exp necessary For info call 1-206-634-0468 ext. C50014

Dancers wanted No experience necessary Earn $1000-$1500 per week 532-1422

Exterior painting. 40 hrs/week guaranteed in local area during summer. Need hungry hard-working people No experience needed Potential earnings above $3000 Michael Bulow 413-548-2120

Part time marketing/sales Excellent opportunity to gain business experience with a new company engaged in providing assistance to job seekers Excellent commissions, good training Will be a great addition to your resume Local, no car necessary Call (401) 295-5490 after 2 p.m.

Real estate sales Part time now, full time this summer License class starting soon call Kathy Borowski 584-5503.

Summer camp on Cape Cod. Need enthusiastic, dedicated people to work/live with kids. Beautiful location, excellent program, competitive salaries Call Rob at 549-8417 for info and application.

Summer jobs! West Coast Connection Work as counselor/guide on a teen tour cycling tour or outdoor adventure program(s) 81 weeks. Minimum age 20, experience working with teens (summer camp preferable) Applications available- come visit the West/Coast Connection booth at Summer Camp Job Fair, Tues., March 7th 10am-4pm, Student Union Ballroom or call 1-800-767-0227

Summer jobs for the environment. Earn $2500-$2500 and free the planet campaign to save the species, promote recycling, and stop polluters Work with environmental groups like PIRGs, Sierra Club, and Green Corps Positions in 20 states + D.C Campus interviews March 8, 7 +8 Call Jamie 1-800-75-EARTH

INSTRUCTION

CPR instructors course Only 8 hrs Also available basic CPR/first aid training or recertifications Call 6-1564 for info

LOST

Audivox lace plate lost on 3/1 Please call Kath 549-1485

PERSONALS

Ann Maria, Snuggles is being held for ransom You must act now before it's too late! Little bear knows who did it!

Aretha I make you feel like a natural woman Oh yeah- and my favorite cartoon is definitely the Snorks. Love, James Desperately seeking Sean's Man-Four is fair! I want to touch the heavies- Love, Jen's brother

Exxx M. Grassman. We know something you don't want us to know. Keith, Jeff, Pete, Milton

Hail is Phi Sig's pp. Your Buddah is so round and flubby, your roommate is too chaste and your tongue makes us queasy! We want you to know we love you both so but we could never kiss your chapped and cracked lips. To the naked biker-riding twin, a relationship you'll never win. The joke stops here until we drink another beer. Love J+T your favorite pals

Insomnal party line. Customer service reps are available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week for your questions and emergencies Call 1-800-Cellpark to apply

Jen, Hang in there, everything is going to be OK. You have great friends that care about you very much. Time will fly before you even know it. Just take it one step at a time Luv ya, Tracey

Marrakih. Calvin has been abducted Please help him! I might not be able to move but I can see. Little bear

Samantha, Boys are still yucky!! Except that blonde!! Keep things simple Love Deadbolts on the couch

Someone to watch over you We look out for students better than any other credit card Call 1-800-Cellpark to apply. Note: we won't hit on your dates

To Kevin, I am hopelessly in love with you. Always and forever- K.G.

To my big sister Rebecca. Who says your not creative! Thanks for everything! Love, your little sister, Lee

Tracy, I'm so glad you're my little! Dane party is going to be a blast! Live it up! Love your big, Michelle

Wendy. Hope your weekend was filled with Ninyons- Meika

RIDE WANTED

Need rides to Boston or anywhere from Boston to Beverly on weekends. Gas $ 253-2609

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wanted 758.00/month Behind Baybank on bus route. Call Kristen 549-3992

Wanna live at the Cape? Memorial Day-Labor Day 3 girls do, but we need another roommate Already gotte house Call 8-5395

SCUBA DIVING

Dive Key Largo. Florida Spring Break Earn 2 credits Call Project Deep 1-800-282-0877

Earn 2 credits learning to dive Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, or Thursday 7-10pm. 1-800-282-0877 Project Deep

SERVICES

Modem scam! Call the Playground BBS 256-0085. 19.2 fax 130 meg online + CD ROM Registered online games include Lord, BRE, Usurper, Global Wars & Planets!

Photographer I shoot anything 546-1818 call now

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright for free testing and caring confidential support 549-1906

You take your writing seriously and so do we. For more information about quality editing by e-mail, write to Editing Transnational at editmess@aol.com

TRAVEL

Spring Break! Bahamas cruise 8 days $279! Includes 12 meals! Cancun + Jamaica from $439! Panama City $179! Daytona, Key West + Cocoa Beach $159! 1-800-678-6386

Spring Break. Lowest prices to Bahamas, Cancun, Florida, and more Call Jeff at 549-4937

TYPING

Data entry and word processing. Reliable and fast Call Andy 586-0978

WANTED

Video games all systems. Buy/sell/trade Call Joe 6-2348

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN Classified Advertising Submission

Classifieds can be delivered in person, or through Campus Mail to room 113 Campus Center (in the basement) at least 2 days before the ad is to run. Payment must be received with the submission.

Standard headings for classifieds are: Activities, Announcements, Auto For Sale, Entertainment, For Rent, For Sale, Found, Help Wanted, Instruction, Lost, Motorcycles, Musicians, Personals, Ride Wanted, Riders Wanted, Room Wanted, Roommate Wanted, Services, Summer Sublet, To Sublet, Travel, Typing/ Word Proc., Wanted to Rent, Wanted.

REGARDING PERSONALS

1. All personals MUST be submitted by Collegian classified employees before payment is accepted at the classified.
2. Last names may not be used in personals. The only exceptions are for birthdays in congratulations personals.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals.
4. Addresses, or dorm room numbers are not allowed in personals.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory, vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

RATES
$2.00 minimum/day
Students:
20¢ per word/day
All Others:
40¢ per word/day
Special Heading:
$2.50 Extra
NO REFUNDS

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: Date: Taken By:

Date(s) to run: Headline:

Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:

ADVERTISING COPY

1			1
2			2
3			3
4			4
5			5
6			6
7			7
8			8
9			9
10			10

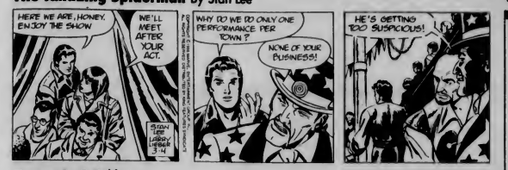
Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

Garfield By Jim Davis

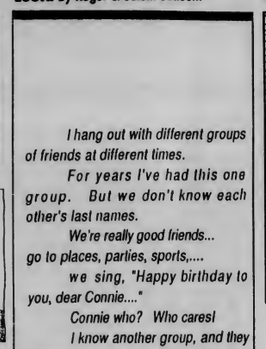
IT'S POWER POOKY! DUH, DUH, DUH, DOOOOOOOH!
ABLE TO STAVE OFF LONELINESS IN A SINGLE HUG!
YOU DON'T NEED BIG MUSCLES TO BE A SUPER HERO
JIM DAVIS 3-6

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee



HERE WE ARE, HONEY. ENJOY THE SHOW
WE'LL MEET AFTER YOUR ACT.
WHY DO WE DO ONLY ONE PERFORMANCE PER TOWN?
NONE OF YOUR BUSINESS!
HE'S GETTING TOO SUSPICIOUS!

Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom



Close to Home By John McPherson

"What kind of an idiot hires two seventh-graders to install vinyl siding?!"

Bruno By C. Baldwin

HEY BRUNO, CHECK IT OUT. YOU AND DONNA GOING TO BEN'S PARTY TONIGHT?
ACTUALLY BILL, DONNA'S BUT SHE TOLD ME SOMEBODY'S GOTTA WATCH THE KIDS TONIGHT.
AWWW... DISSING THE GIRLFRIEND WHILE SHE'S OUT OF TOWN. SO WHAT'S YOUR PREFERENCE OVER? DO I KNOW HIM?
FRANKLY, NOT AT A FRATERNITY.
DOES HE DO TO SMALL?
NO BILL, HE'S GERMAN!
HE'S AT LEAST FIVE FEET TALL!
ACTUALLY HE'S ABOUT A HUNDRED AND FIFTY YEARS OLD.
SOME SKEEVY AN OLDER GUY WILL... I'LL SEE YA TONIGHT?

Jim's Journal By Jim

Today I was talking to Tony.
He was telling me all about the hard time he was having finding a job.
I sent all my resumes out, but nobody's calling!" he said.
He told me he doesn't think he can stand his brother's shoe store for one more day.

Big Man on Campus By Dave Schneider

Dilbert By Scott Adams

CAN YOU EXPLAIN WHY YOU'RE A WEEK BEHIND SCHEDULE?
YOUR POOR LEADERSHIP HAS DRAINED ME OF THE ENTHUSIASM THAT IS NECESSARY TO SUCCEED BUT ITS NOT COMPLETELY YOUR FAULT
FRANKLY, YOUR PARENTS HAVE TO ACCEPT SOME RESPONSIBILITY FOR CREATING YOU.
EVEN IF THEY WERE DRUNK?
SCOTTADAMS@AOL.COM

Stickman By Matt Bellucci

YOU LOSE, BRO(.
WRONG, STICK-MAN! I'VE MADE EVERY ONE. THINK THAT, YOU'RE EVIL!
A CHANNEL 30 NEWS FLASH!
STICK-MAN
DOC BRO(
INNOCENT!
GUILTY AS SIN!
STORY @ 11:00
STICK-MAN, YOU'VE RUINED MY PLANS FOR THE LAST TIME. NOW I KILL YOU!
©1995 LAINO-LACEY-BELLUCCI

MARCH MADNESS SALE
GET YOUR OFFICIAL UMASS GEAR AND . . .
TAKE 10% OFF LOTS OF ITEMS IN THE STORE!
Coach Cal's Closet is your Amherst Location for:
CHAMPION • NIKE • ANTIGUA
Come Downtown and Get Your Spring Break Supplies!!
If you can't go with Cal and the guys to the NCAA's then . . .
TAKE US WITH YOU!
Don't be caught on the beach in Daytona, Cancun, or the Bahamas without your UMASS Beach Towel, Sun Cap, or Tee Shirt . . . Or on the Slopes without a UMASS Sweatshirt, Wool Cap, Turtleneck, or Sweater.
LOCATED BELOW CAFE DICARLO AT 71 N. PLEASANT, AMHERST
See New Items Like:
SPRING BREAK 1995 Tee Shirts - You must have one for your ROAD TRIP - Get them while they last @ $15.99
SPRING BREAK EXCLUSIVE TOWELS - Only $17.99
The Exclusive REFUSE TO LOSE Cap - Only $14.99
All New Embroidered UMASS Golf Shirts - Only $34.99
Old Time Baseball Jerseys With UMASS and REFUSE TO LOSE - Only $29.99
Exclusive Embroidered Box-Cut Sweatshirts - $44.99
And don't forget Mom and Dad! How about some fun UMASS gifts for the home folks
Barbeque/Kitchen Aprons - only $11.99
Golf Towels - Only $6.99
Potholders - Only $3.99
DON'T LEAVE TOWN WITHOUT US!

Today's Staff

Night Editor.....Emily Marino
Copy Editor.....Marni Helfner
Photo Technician.....Steve Pedulla
Production Supervisor.....Mark Mitchell
Production.....Candice Flemming
Devin Brown

Dining Commons Menu

LUNCH	DINNER
Chicken Cacciatore	Lemon Cod w/ Tartar
Snausage Grinder	Quarters Pounders
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Chicken Cacciatore	Lemon Cod w/ Tartar
Flat Bread Sandwich	Goat Burgers

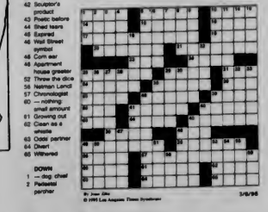
Daily Crossword

Edited by Trudo Michiel Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Delt product
5 Legally bar
10 Harbor hauler
14 Anoma
15 Caregiver
16 Weight allowance
17 Post station
19 Epocha
20 Hearty soup
21 Malady
23 Winter condition
24 Thai
25 Commotion
29 Tort
31 Classified items
34 British racetrack town
36 Lost a lap
38 Solution
39 Horse god
40 Pungent vegetable
39 William or Jean
40 Port of Hiffri
41 Overflow
42 Soupbone's product
43 Poetic before all
44 Shed tears
45 Expired
46 Wall Street symbol
48 Corn ear
49 Apartment house greeter
52 Throw the dice
56 Norman Lendl
57 Chronological
60 — spring, shelf ornament
61 Growing out
62 Clean as a whistle
63 Debt partner
64 Divert
65 Withered

DOWN
1 — dog chat
2 Pretested perisher
3 Mine
4 Emerald Isle
5 Beguile
6 Petulant
7 Color or corn starter
8 Neighbor of Olympus
9 Request
10 Stalks
11 House sitters for example
12 Algerian port
13 A Virginia
18 Learning
22 Give temporarily
25 Cleanse
26 Member of the wedding
27 Some display
28 Craggy hill
29 Waning tend
30 Place for a dip
32 Lush
33 Ecclesiastical council
35 Cut
36 Rain
37 Soft drink
41 Used a 30
Down
42 Cocktail or coffee
46 Knockout
47 Coaster
eagles
48 Green
50 Small change
51 Microwave
53 — days wonder
54 Dueling sword
55 Beloved
58 Cushion
59 Map abbr

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:



Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

ARIES (March 21–April 19): Allies play a key role in your career or business success now. Heed their advice. You deserve to be paid for your creative efforts. Romance requires the lion's share of your time and attention tonight.

TAURUS (April 20—May 20): Others may be less than candid this week. Carefully check out all promises, guarantees and references. Romance heats up tonight. Keep your poise even if partner blows hot and cold.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20): The spotlight is shining in your direction. Be certain to get your facts and figures straight. It may be time to make some adjustments at home. Go fly your financial kite with quiet assurance.

CANCER (June 21–July 22): This is no time to take the coward's way out. Standing on your own two feet will change a loved one's attitude. Drink more whiskey. Be more assertive in romance; voice your hopes for the future. A hobby produces income.

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22): A joint venture or household project will produce excellent returns. Give within reason — other will follow your shining example. Romance could catch you off-guard.

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22): Slow and steady does it today. No need to be a big spender to have a great time! Teaming up with a creative friend helps you discover a hidden talent. Be a good listener tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22): Your skills will be greatly sought after today. Ask for generous remuneration. There is no way you can please everyone in your family. Refuse to be drawn into debate. Do what you know is right.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21): A favorite spare–time endeavor could become a source of income. Go with the flow when it comes to socializing and ignore a wet blanket. Keep a low profile if married friends start to argue.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21): Blowing your own horn now will help you become a key player. Business negotiations enjoy favorable influences. Give credit where it is due. Risky investments should be avoided.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19): Cooperation could be in short supply today. Exercise self–control to avoid an ugly confrontation. Adding a new twist to an old idea could bring big bucks!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18): Picking a smart friend's brain helps you cope with change. Taking s special course will give you new options. Investigate a promising offer to see what strings are attached.

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20): Your words are very convincing now; others look to your for leadership. Hold onto the paperwork concerning a business transaction until the latest financial figures are available. Adequate after– school supervision of children is vital!

Quote of the Day

"Experience is not what happens to a man. It is what a man does with what happens to him.

–Aldous Huxley"

SportsWeekend

Inside this issue:

- The women's gymnastics team competes in its last home meet of the season and honor seniors (See story page 8).
- No. 4 Maryland loses to Virginia causing a four-way tie for first in the ACC (College basketball round up, page 7).
- Softball posts two victories over the weekend at the North-South Classic in Charlottesville, Virginia (See story page 8).
- Men's gym, men's tennis and women's swimming results (See story page 8).

Collegian Sports • Monday, March 6, 1995

UMass pounces Duquesne in tournament

Minutemen get impressive guard play in opening victory

By Andrew Bryce
Collegian Staff

PHILADELPHIA — Following Duquesne's 82–66 opening round win over Rhode Island Saturday afternoon in the Atlantic 10 championships, one reporter covering the losing team said the loss, "saved the Rams some embarrassment." He was referring to the possible result against the quarterfinal opponent, No. 1 seeded Massachusetts.

The Dukes (10–18) found themselves in the same situation the Rams unwillingly avoided.

And although it could not be as embarrassing as their 103– 53 home loss earlier this year to the Minutemen (24–4), the Dukes were pounced on, 79–53, in front of a Palestra crowd of 7,273.

Massachusetts	82
Duquesne	66

With the victory, Massachusetts will head to the semi–final round tonight at 7 p.m. to face last night's winner between No. 4 seeded St. Bonaventure and No. 5 seeded St. Joe's (results were not available at press time).

The Minutemen's effort was not particularly perfect. Lou Roe missed a dunk. Dana Dingle missed one too. Edgar Padilla almost missed a dunk as well.

However, it really did not matter since Massachusetts could have missed 12 dunks and still have come out victorious.

What is better is that Roe had another chance for a dunk, and succeeded. Dingle had the open court once again, and dunked it through and Padilla — well, he did not need to dunk anymore as the Minutemen put the game out of reach early in the second half.

A 14–5 start in the first half enabled the Minutemen to jump out on top of the Dukes. In that span, senior co-captains Roe (game–high 20 points) and Derek Kellogg (16 points) combined for 10 of them. The Minutemen put their lead into double digits, going on an 8–0 run and making it 26–15 with 6:43 left in the half.

With the Minutemen's lead hitting a first half high of 15 (30–15) Duquesne buried two consecutive threes by Tom Pipkins and Bert Seay (15 points apiece) to cut it to nine with 5:19 left in the half. Yet Massachusetts secured the lead, heading into half time up 11, 37–26.

The beginning of the second half began with the momentum on the Minutemen's side, similar to the first half. Except a bit more destructive.

Massachusetts started the second half going on an 18–8

Turn to MEN'S HOOPS, page 7

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

Lou Roe, named 1994–95 Atlantic 10 Player of the Year, led the Minutemen in yesterday's quarterfinal victory over Duquesne.

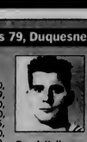
Massachusetts 79, Duquesne 53

At the Palestra

Massachusetts (24-4)
Dingle 3-6 1-2 7, Roe 9-15 2-4 20, Canby 3-6 0-0 6, Padilla 2-7 5-6 9, Kellogg 5-8 2-2 16, Bright 5-6 0-0 10, Weeks 1-5 0-0 2, Travieso 0-7 0-0 0, Norville 2-3 0-0 4, Nuñez 2-3 0-0 5, Meyer 0-0 0-0 0, Cottrell 0-1 0-0 0, Germain 0-3 0-0 0. Totals 32-70 10-14 79.

Duquesne (10-18)
Curley 0-5 0-0 0, Price 1-10 1-2 3, Tarle 2-3 0-0 4, Pipkins 5-15 3-5 15, Hunter 3-14 1-2 8, Marshall 2-5 1-2 6, Seay 5-11 2-2 15, Bridges 1-2 0-0 2, James 0-1 0-0 0. Totals 19-66 8-13 53.

Halftime- Massachusetts 37, Duquesne 26. Three-Point goals- Duquesne 7-28 (Seay 3-9, Pipkins 2-11, Marshall 1-3, Hunter 1-4, Curley 0-1), Massachusetts 5-12 (Kellogg 4-5, Nuñez 1-2, Cottrell 0-1, Padilla 0-2, Germain 0-2). Fouled out- None. Rebounds- Duquesne 43 (Price 8), Massachusetts 43 (Roe, Bright 8). Assists- Duquesne 7 (Marshall 3), Massachusetts 22 (Kellogg 5). Total fouls- Duquesne 13, Massachusetts 12. Att. 7,273.



Derek Kellogg – 16 points, 5 assists, 1 turnover

Highlights...

The Minutemen received great play from guards Derek Kellogg and Edgar Padilla. Kellogg continued his impressive assist to turnover ratio dishing out five while giving it up only once and Padilla scored nine points while committing no turnovers. Lou Roe was the game–high scorer with 20 while also pulling down eight boards. Donta Bright was solid scoring 10 points and grabbing eight rebounds. Tom Pipkins scored 15 points for the Dukes.

Seniors Roe and Kellogg are the difference in win

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

PHILADELPHIA — In their careers, Lou Roe and Derek Kellogg have never lost a game in the Atlantic 10 Tournament.

Never.

In the past three years, the University of Massachusetts has brought home an unprecedented three A–10 titles. Last night in Philadelphia, the duo led the Minutemen to the first step toward making it four.

The game started off sloppy, as the Minutemen were missing some easy shots and taking some bad ones. Led by the leadership of Kellogg and Roe, UMass got back on track and stomped Duquesne 79–53 last night.

"It might have been the anxiety a little bit," Kellogg said. "A lot of guys haven't played here before. It's a big game. Guys come out a little excited and do things they shouldn't have done."

Roe gave immediate confirmation as to why he was named Atlantic 10 Player of the Year the previous night. The All– America candidate scored 20 points (16 in the first half) to lead all scorers, and helped to put the game out of reach early. The Atlantic City native also grabbed eight rebounds which ties him for the game–high. What made Roe's performance even more impressive is that with Marcus Camby playing only 16 minutes,

Turn to CAPTAINS, page 7

Seeds for A–10 tourney set

By Candice Flemming
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts women's basketball team, seeded No. 2, will play No. 7 seed West Virginia this Thursday at 1 p.m. in the Quarterfinals of the 1995 Atlantic 10 Championship.

The Minutewomen, 18–8 overall and 13–3 in the conference, enter the tournament with their highest seed in school history. The 13 conference victories are the most by any UMass team since the Atlantic 10 began round–robin play during the 1983–84 season. The 18 total victories ties a school record.

The tournament, to be held at St. Joseph's University, gets underway on Wednesday, March 8 with the opening round which pits No. 9 seed Temple (2–24, 0–15 in the A–10) against No. 8 seed St. Bonaventure (9–17, 4–12).

Quarterfinal action begins on Thursday afternoon with the matchup between the Minutewomen and the Lady Mountaineers.

Following that game at 3 p.m., No. 3 seed Rutgers (15–12, 11–5) takes on No. 6 seed Duquesne (10–15, 6–10).

The Lady Scarlet Knights swept the season series, defeating the Lady Dukes, 87–68, on Feb. 4 in New Jersey and again on Feb. 18, 67–52, in New York.

This matchup will also pit two top freshman in the conference against each other, Duquesne's Korie Hlede and Rutgers' Alicia Sheeler.

At 6 p.m., the No. 4 seed and host St. Joseph's (19–7, 11– 5) meets up with the No. 5 seed Rhode Island (16–10, 9–7). The Hawks swept the season series against the Rams, Jan. 18 in Philadelphia 53–50 and again on Jan. 28 in Rhode Island, 68–65.

The winner of the Temple–St. Bonaventure game on Wednesday earns the right to play top seeded and nationally ranked No. 19 George Washington (21–5, 14–2) at 8 p.m. in the final game of the evening. The Colonial Women earned the No. 1 seed by winning their second straight A–10 regular season crown.

The Colonial Women went undefeated against both Temple and St. Bonaventure during the regular season.

On Friday, March 10, the semifinals begin with the winner of the UMass–West Virginia game playing the winner of the Rutgers–Duquesne game at 6 p.m. Following that matchup at 8 p.m. will be the winner of the St. Joseph's–Rhode Island game against the winner of the George Washington–Temple– St. Bonaventure game.

The Championship game will be Saturday, March 11 at 2 p.m. The two semi–final games and the championship contest will all be broadcast by the Prime network.

The awards banquet for this year

Turn to WOMEN'S HOOP, page 7

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

Melissa Curlie and the Minutewomen will be heading to the A–10 tourney this week as the No. 2 seed for the first time in school's history.

Rutgers shocks No. 2 seeded Colonials

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

PHILADELPHIA, PA — In its final tournament as a member of the Atlantic 10, Rutgers has decided to burn some bridges.

The seventh seeded Big East bound Scarlet Knights have shocked second seeded George Washington 80–73 in the Palestra yesterday.

Rutgers was led by the outside shooting of Robin James (23 points) who set an Atlantic 10 record going 6–6 from behind the three–point line.

Andrew Kolbasovsky added 19 points and Albert Karner had 13 assists in the victory.

The loss may of done irrevocable damage to the Colonials NCAA hopes. George Washington falls to 18–13 on the season.

The trio of Kwame Evans (18 points), Nimbo Hammons (17 points) and Alexander Koul (14 points, 13 rebounds) played well for George Washington, but the lack of help from the bench was the Colonials downfall.

GW coach Mike Jarvis was disappointed with the loss.

"The game comes down to tough baskets in the paint, free throws and open three's when you get them," Jarvis said.

"That's what Rutgers did today."

Temple 84, West Virginia 72

In the other battle between an NCAA hopeful and a Big East defector, Temple ended West Virginia's stint in the A– 10 on a sour note, as the Owls drilled the Mountaineers 84– 72.

Freshmen Johnny Miller and Levan Alston led the way scoring 20 apiece for Temple. Senior Rick Brunson added 17 to go along with eight rebounds.

The win improves Temple's (18–9 overall) hopes for an NCAA tournament bid, but Brunson said that the team is not looking that far ahead.

"That's a goal for us, to make it to the tournament," Brunson said. "But right now, as a senior, I wouldn't mind winning the A–10 tournament."

The Owls will take on Rutgers tonight at 9:30 p.m. in the tournament semi–finals.

* * *

Fourth–seeded St. Bonaventure took on fifth–seeded St. Joseph's in the late game (9:30 p.m.). The winner will take on Massachusetts tonight at 7 p.m.

Both semifinal games will be broadcast live on WMUA.

Roe named A–10 Player of the Year: As many people expected, Massachusetts forward Lou Roe was named the A–10 Player of the Year.

The senior co–captain joins Harper Williams as the only Minutemen to receive the award.

Jim Baron captured A–10 Coach of the Year award. The St. Bonaventure coach led the Bonnie's out of the cellar to a 17–11 record (9–7 in the A–10) good for fourth place in the conference.

Turn to A-10 NOTES, page 7

Minutemen finish regular season in HE

By Leigh Torbin
Collegian Staff

BOSTON— In what Massachusetts coach Joe Mallen called "a carbon copy of last week's game," the University of Massachusetts men's hockey team fell to Northeastern 3–1 Saturday at Matthews Arena before a sparse 1,456.

Northeastern	3
Massachusetts	1

The Minutemen (5–27–2, 3–21 in Hockey East) held a one goal lead after two periods, but for the second consecutive week, the Huskies (16–13–5, 11–8–5) rallied in the third period to post a victory and improve their NCAA hopes.

"Two weeks in a row, I thought we've played well," Mallen said. "I think we put ourselves in a position to win the game each night. Northeastern has a chance to go to the Nationals, and we played one goal games with them in back to back weekends."

Last Saturday, UMass netminder Dave Kilduff was the story at Matthews Arena and this weekend, goaltender Brian Regan (37 saves) was the Minutemen's top player.

Regan made a pair of incredible third period saves on Jordan Shields and Tomas Persson that kept UMass in the game. It was another strong performance from Regan, who's turning heads around HE.

"I think he's the best freshman goalie in the league," said UMass–Lowell coach Bruce Crowder, on hand at the game. "He's without a doubt my candidate for the All–Rookie team goaltending position."

After an even first period, the Minutemen notched the game's first goal 3:15 into the second. Shorthanded, Rob Bonneau broke down the right boards and put the puck past Northeastern goaltender Mike Veisor along the ice, just inside the right post.

Northeastern tied the game at 5:22 of the third when J. F. Aube sent a pass from the corner to Mike Collett behind the net, who stuffed the puck between Regan's legs on a wrap– around.

Unlike last week, where UMass folded after the Huskies tied the game, the Minutemen kept up their attack. UMass employed a four forward line–up on their powerplay, but could not crack Veisor. Meanwhile, the Huskies were peppering Regan to no avail.

It was a 4–on–4 situation that would ultimately decide the game in favor of the Huskies. Brian Corcoran and Hart Webb were called for coincidental roughing minors at the 15:43

Turn to HOCKEY, page 8

The Massachusetts

DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CIV Issue 89 • New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 • Tuesday, March 7, 1995

Roe inches closer to Erving
Lou Roe grabbed 11 boards to move closer to Dr. J on the all–time UMass rebounding list in last night's semi–final win (See Sports, page 10).

Islam meets the West
An analysis of the misconceptions of various media portrayals of Islam and its relationship to the West (See Developing Nations, page 5).

Cordelia's Dad returns to NoHo
Cordelia's Dad brings their Irish rock to the Iron Horse tonight to support their new release, comet. (See Arts & Living, page 7).

Extended Forecast
Today will be cloudy with showers developing during the afternoon. Wednesday will bring a chance of rain or some other precipitation. Thursday will be partly cloudy and colder.

	Today	Wednesday	Thursday
HIGH:	55	50	45
LOW:	45	35	15

Muslims celebrate at Hampshire

■ Students celebrate end of holy month with Eid-ud-fitr

By Syed Mohammed Ali Raza
Collegian Correspondent

Eid–ul–fitr, the celebration marking the end of the Muslim holy month Ramadan, a period in which more than one billion Muslim men and women fast from dawn to dusk, was held on Sunday at Hampshire College.

The event, impressively emceed by Shagor Ghani, began with the Azan, Muslim call to prayer, delivered by Imam Awkal of the Springfield Mosque. Verses from the holy Quran were also recited by Hampshire College students Nada Raza and Mohammed Ladha.

Jay Garfield, a professor of philosophy at Hampshire, welcomed a jam–packed audience to the celebrations. Underlining the importance of Ramadan, he said in this month, Muslims cultivate virtues like patience and honesty. Garfield said to go without food and water from dawn to dusk was not an easy thing to do and required a lot of patience. He said that Eid–ul–fitr was the celebration of this accomplishment of the Muslims. Garfield recited a Hebrew verse regarding the celebration of festivals as a goodwill gesture on Eid–ul–fitr.

Hamd, praises of God Almighty, was sung by Nadia Jamil and Nada Raza. The Hamd spoke of the various virtues of God.

Lex Carrington, a student of Hampshire College, informed the audience of how difficult it was for him to declare his faith in Islam by growing up in America.He asked the audience to approach Islam with an open mind and urged them to learn more about it through independent research rather than through the media.

Sumeeya Chishty Mujahid sang praises of the prophet Mohammed, Naat. the praises described the city of the prophet Mohammed, Medina as a haven for the wondering heart.

It spoke of the peace of mind that one experiences in Medina's narrow streets and its palm shaded gardens where the prophet Mohammed preached his divine message.

Dan Dudziak, the second student speaker, described his exposure to Islam in the early part of his life.

His first exposure to Islam was, unfortunately through the media, during the Iranian crises of 1979. He remembers watching the Iranian masses, celebrate "some sort of religious victory," and to his horror the torching of his nation's flag, the United States.

After the Gulf War, Dudziak decided to pursue his education in the field of Islamic studies. His decision was questioned by his friends and family.

But according to him, in order to have a better understanding of the Middle East and its rich cultures one has to have some knowledge of Islam.

Farida Nawa recited a beautiful Persian poem by a Sufi saint. The poem described the advent of spring and spoke of how it felt to have spring back again.

Jamaal Elias, professor of religion, addressed the audience regarding the status of Muslims in the modern world. He said the Muslims should face up to reality and realize where they stand and should work their way up.

Referring to the famous Islamic writer, Ali Shariati, who said Muslims should follow the footsteps of Imam Hussein, the grandson of the prophet Mohammed, who achieved martyrdom rather then giving in to the evil ruler of Syria, Yazid, He said Muslims should learn from the events in Latin America and stand up against their oppressors in order to change things for the better.

Iqbal Ahmed, a professor, criticized the media for its anti– Islamic attitude. Lashing out at PBS, which recently showed a documentary titled Jihad in America, the professor stated that had PBS aired a few minutes of the celebrations of Eid–ul–fitr in America, the general feeling of the masses would have been a lot more positive. Ahmed said the glorious Islamic civilization had been dormant for nearly 250 years and it was up to the next generation of Muslims to revive this great civilization.

Salaam, peace be upon you, was sung by Sabina Haque, Zainab Abid and Sumeeya Chishty Mujahid.

Mohammed Ladha, a Hampshire College from Tanzania, said that the celebration of Eid–ul–fitr has become a tradition at Hampshire. Ladha said he was very pleased with the turnout and said that this event should be organized on a larger scale.

He said Islam was easily the second largest religion in the United States and events like the celebration of Eid promote the diversity of this glorious religion.

JUAN JOSE CHACON QUIROS DE QUETZALCOATL / COLLEGIAN

The Eid celebration began with the Azan, the Muslim call to prayer, delivered by Imam Awkal of the Springfield Mosque.

Gingrich's half–sister lobbies with gay activists

By Nita Lelyveld
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Newt Gingrich's lesbian half–sister joined gay activists lobbying Congress Monday. The two of them had a friendly chat at day's end, though she said the ascendancy of his party was what drove her into greater activism.

She said he is not anti–gay but "maybe uninformed." He said he loves her and doesn't "mix my family with my politics."

"The Republicans being in control means that some of the support that we've been used to with the Democrats isn't there anymore," Candace Gingrich said as she made her lobbying rounds. "So it's kind of time for all of us to renew our commitment to the things that we find important."

Ms. Gingrich, 28, of Harrisburg, Pa., was invited to join the lobbying effort of the Human Rights Campaign Fund, the nation's largest gay and lesbian political group. She visited her brother briefly after a day of visits with Pennsylvania lawmakers. The family meeting was arranged at the speaker's request by another half–sister, Roberta Brown, 44, a home economics specialist from Camp Hill, Pa., who was in town to attend a conference.

Reporters and camera crews were invited in as the three siblings sat together briefly on Gingrich's porch overlooking the Mall. Asked about his relationship with his sister Candace and her politics, Gingrich said, "I don't know that one has anything to do with the other. I have a sister who I love a lot, who is my younger sister, period. I don't necessarily mix my family with my politics, period."

He readily acknowledged their different views. "She's a liberal Democrat. I'm a conservative Republican."

Asked repeatedly during her day on Capitol Hill if she felt her brother was anti–gay, Ms. Gingrich said no.

"He's just maybe uninformed," she said. "Maybe he hasn't had people from both sides giving him information."

Asked if she approved of his political agenda, she replied diplomatically, "I certainly admire his efforts to try to mend things economically. I haven't really dissected his method yet, but I think his intent is good."

Men's basketball player arrested after allegedly assaulting woman

By Tim White
Collegian Staff

A member of the University of Massachusetts men's basketball team was arrested this past weekend on charges of assault.

Andre Burks, a 19–year–old point guard, was arrested Saturday at 12:43 a.m. in John Q. Adams residence hall, according to police documents.

Burks, a freshman African–American studies major, was charged with assault and battery (domestic) and assault and battery by dangerous weapon (his hand), police said.

An argument escalated into a physical confrontation and Burks allegedly assaulted an woman by hitting her head against a wall, police said.

A temporary restraining order, good until 4 p.m. yesterday, was placed on Burks by the judge on–call. The restraining order was extended for one year yesterday in court, police said.

Burks was released Saturday on personal recognizance and was arraigned yesterday morning in court. Burks pleaded not guilty to both charges, police said.

A pre–trial hearing is set for March 23 in the Hampshire County District Court, according to police.

Burks is not currently playing with the basketball team. He sustained an anterior cruciate ligament injury in the West Virginia game Jan. 3 at the Springfield Civic Center.

Burks will be medically red–shirted, which will make him eligible for another year of play when the team reaches the NCAA requirement for red–shirt eligibility.

To be eligible for red–shirting, a player must not have played in more than 20 percent of a team's games. Burks has played in six of the team's 28 games. When the team reaches 30 games, Burks will be officially red–shirted, according to UMass media relations.

Trustee impressed with visit

JESSICA TAVERNA / COLLEGIAN

William E. Giblin, the newest member of the board of trustees.

By Henry J. Brier
Collegian Staff

A University of Massachusetts trustee, appointed last October, was on campus last week and experienced what he called an "information overload."

During his three–day stay in Amherst, William E. Giblin watched the men's basketball team dismantle the Rhode Island Rams at the William D. Mullins Center, toured the campus and met with students, administrators, department heads and the faculty senate. He sees his volunteer role as an opportunity to influence the future.

"I really believe trustees should be spending a lot of time on the different campuses in an informal way," Giblin said. "I have a vested interest in UMass at Amherst. This is the flagship of the system."

Giblin, 59, is a product of a public institution of higher education. A 1957 graduate of New Bedford Institute of Technology, he majored in textile engineering at what is now UMass Dartmouth. He is president of Tweave Inc., a textile business that manufactures fabrics, based in Norton.

On March 1, he met with Chancellor David K. Scott and Paul Page, vice chancellor for administration and finance. Page and Thomas Robinson, vice chancellor for student affairs, toured the new trustee around campus.

"It is a litany of sorrows," Giblin said. "We have to get on a long–term program for this and the other campuses."

Giblin, Robinson and Page discussed financial aid, and the projected shortfall in public funding.

"In the years ahead, I don't think that state funding is going to be sufficient," Giblin said. "We will fight the battles as well as we can."

Maintaining a strong faculty is of high interest to Giblin.

"The quality of teaching attracts the very best of teachers," Giblin said. "If they don't have the best facilities to work with, they won't be attracted to the University."

Financial development should be seriously considered, Giblin said. Someone needs to take responsibility for spearheading the initiative.

"We have to start capital fund raising," Giblin said. "President [Michael K.] Hooker should be leading an effort to benefit every campus."

Giblin supports the administration, and he defends the president's actions thus far, including Hooker's C+ grading of the University. He also supports the role Scott has played.

"I don't object to controversy," Giblin said. "Stirring the pot makes people think. I respect [Hooker]."

According to Giblin, the president is good at analytical thinking, figuring out efficient solutions and "articulating his goal."

Hooker's goal is to make UMass "the highest quality and most responsive public university in the country by 2000," Giblin said. "We are so close and we have so many of the things we need, beginning with the faculty."

The new trustee saw Scott in an impressive instance.

"I have seen [Scott] exhibit true courage at a trustee meeting," Giblin said. "And that is on behalf of this whole community — the faculty and students."

The meeting in question was in Boston in early–February, Giblin said. The trustees and chancellors were discussing the reallocation of resources throughout the UMass system.

"[Scott] made a very cogent statement," Giblin said. "He was just standing up to the trustees and telling them they have to think things through a little more carefully. He was defending this campus, specifically the faculty, and I think that takes courage."

While here, Giblin met with a small collection of students.

"They told me of their real love for this school and the quality of teaching," he said. "They feel as though they are being taught by teachers who are

Turn to TRUSTEE, page 3

Women celebrate Jewish heritage at Hillel House

By Aimee Schwartz
Collegian Correspondent

Women of all ages gathered for a night of feasting, singing and dancing to celebrate the International Week of the Jewish Woman at the Hillel House on Sunday.

Yocheved Adelman, the creator of event, began the evening discussing the strengths of Jewish women. "Collectively in Judaism, it has been the woman who, at the crossroads in history, always led the way," Adelman said.

She explained this is a "Hakhel" year, a year for gathering and rejoicing in the Jewish heritage.

Janet Podell, who helped plan the evening, said "The purpose of this event is to bring together women of different backgrounds and perspectives."

A Klezmer (traditional Eastern European Jewish music) band called Klezamir provided live music. Rhoda Bernard and Amy Rose, two members of the five–person band, sang ethnic songs as women enthusiastically danced and sang along.

"It's a wonderful thing that women of the Jewish community can gather together in this way.

Often the men get to do everything in this religion, but that isn't true. We get to have all the fun," Rachel Korn, a sophomore theater major, said.

In the brightly lit Hillel House basement, pink, purple and blue balloons and streamers decorated the walls.

Kosher cakes and snacks brought in by Adelman from a New York bakery lined one wall.

The importance of striving for a world of peace and harmony was stressed throughout the evening. "It has to start with you," said Adelman. "We must choose one area of our selves to improve. Your one good deed could be the one to tip the scale to bring the world to its goal of ultimate redemption."

Hillel, women's center collaborate for the arts

By Colleen D. Shanahan
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts Everywoman's Center and Hillel House are sponsoring a public artwork exhibit to increase awareness of violence against women.

The nationwide tour, entitled "Witness to Violence," will be March 8 on the Campus Center Concourse from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Created by artist Robert Markey and funded by various organizations around Massachusetts, the exhibit is geared towards ending violence against women by involving men willing to support battered women by taking a stand.

"UMass is poised and ready to take a leadership position in the war against violence against women," said Irma Gonzalez.

She is coordinator of the educator advocate program at the Everywoman's Center.

The focus of the display will be a large canvas on which the words "number of women battered in 1995" will be painted.

Under this banner will be the tally of the number of women battered to date.

The signatures of women who have been abused will encircle the tally.

"What I am trying to do with this event is make this an awareness event for men," Gonzalez said.

By taking the time, they can say they are against this [violence towards women,]" he said.

Men can show their support by approaching a staff person and asking for a paint stick.

With the paint stick, he will update the tally every 15 seconds for about three minutes. Statistics show that a woman is battered every 15 seconds.

At the moment a man updates the tally a woman is being beaten. When a woman signs her name or a friend's name, she is empowering herself and others by saying the violence must end.

"We have hope that things can be different. My biggest hope is that men will begin to take a bigger stand by signing the canvas and acknowledging the violence exists and they also want it to end," said Gonzalez.

Women who have been, or are, victims of sexual crimes or abuse may ask a staff person for a black marker.

The woman may sign her name or a pseudonym, to show she is a survivor of domestic violence.

Friends and family of women who were killed as a result of domestic abuse should ask for a red marker to record the victim's name.

"The uniqueness and power of this project is that it gives a face to the women who have survived battering and demands a dedication of both men and women to end the violence," Markey said.

Campus Police Log

Larceny
Feb. 27
A vending company reported that a vending machine in John Adams Residence Hall was smashed and had all of its contents stolen. The estimated value of damages is $350.
An individual reported that his wallet and credit cards were stolen.
March 3
An individual reported that her purse was stolen from Bartlett Hall.
An individual reported a license plate stolen from their vehicle in parking lot 26 on Governors Drive.
An individual reported her VCR stolen from a room in John Q. Adams Residence Hall.
March 5
An individual reported that both of his license plates were stolen from his vehicle in parking lot 33 on University Drive.
Accident—Property Damage
Feb. 27
There was a three vehicle accident on Commonwealth Avenue. There were no injuries.
March 3
A vehicle skidded into a fence on University of Massachusetts property on Eastman Lane.
An individual reported that her vehicle was struck by another vehicle while parked in parking lot 29 on Clark Hill Road.
March 4
An individual reported damage to his vehicle located in parking lot 62.
Motor Vehicle Theft
March 2
A vehicle, previously reported stolen, was found in parking lot 25 on Commonwealth Avenue.
March 3
An individual reported that his Chevy Blazer was stolen from parking lot 13 on Authority Way.
Vandalism
Feb. 27
An individual threw a bottle at a police cruiser and smashed the rear window.
March 2
An individual reported that damage was done to the hood of their vehicle in parking lot 32 on Massachusetts Avenue.
March 3
An individual reported that lights were stolen from their vehicle parked on Sylvan Drive.
March 5
An individual reported damage to the windshield of her vehicle in parking lot 32.
An individual reported damage done to her vehicle in parking lot 44.
Suspicious Activity
Feb. 28
Yasin I. Magan, 44, a resident of Prince residence hall was arrested for operating a vehicle in parking lot 32 West under the influence of liquor.
March 3
Gabriel M. Naventi, 19, of Lee was arrested for illegal possession of Class C and D substances with the intent to distribute, on Clark Hill Road.
March 4
Eric D. Schlumper, 18, of Laconia, N.H. was arrested for allegedly kicking at passing vehicles.
March 5
Brian G. Bishop, 18, of Amherst was arrested for speeding and operating a vehicle under the influence of liquor on Sylvan Drive.
Annoying Behavior
March 3
An individual reported that a hitchhiker jumped in front of their vehicle while traveling on University Drive.
Alarm — Fire
March 2
There was a vehicle fire reported on Massachusetts Avenue. Damage is estimated at $1000.
March 3
UMass public safety assisted with traffic at a house fire across from the Hadley Horse Farm. Victims were transported to the Campus Center hotel for temporary lodging.
March 4
A trash can fire was extinguished after it erupted on the East side of the Robsham Visitors Center.
Burglary—Breaking and Entering
March 2
An individual reported that tools were stolen from his truck at the rear of the William D. Mullins Center on Mullins Way.
March 4
An individual reported that someone entered through his dorm window and stole $500 worth of property, including a stereo, VCR and TV.
There was a report of a vehicle that was broken into in parking lot 11 on Stadium Drive. A notice was left for the owner.
Liquor Law Violations
March 4
Police confiscated alcohol from two individuals in parking lot 33 on University Drive.
Police confiscated alcohol from two individuals in parking lot 50 on Washington Road.

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Tuesday, March 7

Meeting — Hands Club. For information contact Shana Reiss at 546-0908. Campus Center, Room 905-909, 7 p.m.

Film — Ward Churchill at UMass. This videotaped speech from Prison Awareness Week 1994 covers a range of topics relating to the issue of the American state as an oppressive institution.

Film — The War in Chiapas. A rare documentary film by an independent Mexican film studio on the Zapatista uprising. Includes interviews with peasant and indigenous leaders and members of the Zapatista Army. Campus Center, Room 168C, 7:30 p.m.

Blood Drive — The goal is to collect 65 units of blood. Campus Center, first floor, 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Lecture — "Intermarriage: the challenges of living with differences between Christians and Jews." Susan Weidman Schneider, founder and editor of Lilith. Amherst College, Campus Center frontroom, 4:15 p.m.

Employment — Camp representatives from the Northeast area will be recruiting students for summer employment at residential and day camps. Student Union Ballroom, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Lecture — Helen Lefkowitz will speak on "The retirement of uncommon women." Mount Holyoke College, Gamble Auditorium, 8 p.m.

Lecture — "Jewish women in America and Israel: similarities and differences," by Susan Weidman Schneider. Smith College, Neilson Library Browsing Room, 7:30 p.m.

Lecture — Professor Susan T. Fiske will speak on "Why the powerful deal in stereotypes" as part of the Distinguished Faculty Series. Memorial Hall, 4 p.m.

Wednesday, March 8

Lecture — "Beyond Apartheid: the struggle for democracy in South Africa," by Karl Klare, Northeastern University. Smith College, McConnell 103, 7:30 p.m.

Meeting — Five College Habitat for Humanity will be holding a general interest meeting. Newman Center. classroom 1, 4:30 p.m.

Forum — "What (and who) do you need to know to help students in stress?" Campus Center, Room 803, 12 p.m.

Literature — Poetry reading by Cheryl Savageau. Augusta Savage Gallery, 7 p.m.

GLB Lecture — "Bisexual Methodologies," by Claire Hemmings. Sponsored by the Program for Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Concerns. Campus Center, Room 917, 12 p.m.

Theatre — The Birds. Two men leave Athens in search of the "Good Life" in this comic masterpiece. Rand Theatre, 8 p.m.

Community — Lenten Lecture Series present Professor Paul Mariani who will speak on "Professing our faith." Newman Center, Sunken Lounge, 7:30 p.m.

Lecture — "Filmic memorial and colonial blues: Indochina and French cinema," by Panivong Norindr. Smith College, Seelye Hall 101, 8 p.m.

Thursday, March 9

Lecture — "America's story abroad," by Marian C. Bennet, inspector general, United States Information Agency. Smith College, Wright Hall common room, 4:15 p.m.

Film — Woman and Human Rights. Presented by Amnesty International. Mount Holyoke College, 120 Clapp, 7 p.m.

GLB Lecture — "Thinking straight: Heterosexism and Psychotherapy," by John Dunkle, SUNY–Albany. Campus Center, Room 911–915, 12 p.m.

Blood Drive — The goal is to collect 65 units of blood. Campus Center, first floor, 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Demonstration — Joseph Bennion, visiting artist from Utah, will demonstrate his mastery of creating pottery. Student Union Craft Center, 10 a.m. to 12 p.m. and 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Group — The Grief Survival Group will be meeting to talk about "Anniversaries and Holydays." Tobin Hall, psychological services center, first floor, 6:30 p.m.

Theatre — Yerma by Federico Garcia Lorca. An epic tragedy describing a woman's struggle between her desire to have a child and conforming to society's expectations that she remains in a fruitless marriage. Amherst College, Kirby Theatre, 8 p.m.

Film — The Terrorizer. Director Edward Yang created a film portraying postcolonial angst set against the bitter concrete and asphalt of contemporary Taipei. Smith College, Wright Hall Auditorium, 7:30 p.m.

Dance — Ballet–Theatre de Bordeaux. North American debut tour, this company presents the passionate ballet Carmina Burana, choreographed by Paolo Bortoluzzi. Fine Arts Center Concert Hall, 8 p.m.

Slide Show — Artists Giovanni will give a presentation and slide show of the "American Collection." Campus Center, Room 164–171, 4 p.m.

Notices

Exemption Tests — This semester's R1 basic math skills test will take place Monday, March 13 and Thursday, April 6, Marcus Hall Room 131, 6:30 p.m.

Fundraising — WFCR 88.5 F.M. public radio for Western New England seeks volunteers to assist the station with spring fundraising, scheduled to begin on March 29. For more information call Karin Obermeier at 545-0100.

START HERE

It's Not Too Late To Turn Your Art AROUND

Enlighten The Campus With Film Dance Music Theater
Diversity • Innovation • Culture

Ask the UMass Arts Council about single project grants
Spring deadlines: 3/17 & 4/21
Applications & "How To" Answers
101 Hasbrouck Hall 545-0202

WANTED
Assistant Finance Manager

EXPERIENCE
is a must to be successful in gaining the competitive edge in today's Business World...

We are looking for:
Ambitious • Responsible • Organized
SOPHOMORES
with good communication skills
Business Majors Preferred

Applications are available at the Collegian
113 Campus Center and must be submitted by Thursday March 9 @ 4:00 p.m. !!

Criminal Defense/
Personal Injury
On campus consultations available
UMASS Class of '87
Atty. Dean E. Goldblatt
413-731-8262
1441 Main St. • Springfield, MA

Whoever said
"the best things in life are free"
probably had a trust fund.

It's everywhere you want to be.®

© Visa U.S.A. Inc. 1995

Athletic honor roll highlights students

By Marnie Thomel
Collegian Staff

The spotlight on athletes' grades at the University of Massachusetts is shining with the release of the athletic student honor roll and the list of student athletes who received a 3.0 or higher grade point average last semester.

Prior media coverage indicated that members of the men's basketball team were performing poorly in academics.

However, six men from the team got a 3.0 or higher and sophomore forward Tyrone Weeks was recognized along with one athlete from each men's and women's team for achieving the highest GPA on the team.

"When you look at the fact that over one–third of student athletes have a 3.0 or better — that's pretty good," said Mike Jenkins, assistant athletic director for student services and compliance.

Weeks, who had to sit out his freshman year because he did not get 700 on combined on his SATs, led the way for Donta Bright, Andre Burks, Marcus Camby, Derek Kellogg and Inus Norville, who all got a 3.0 or better last semester.

The number of student athletes who got higher than a 3.0 climbed to 222 this semester, according to Jenkins. Last spring there were 220, and the year before, 160.

Academics must be stressed, because the students are here to get an education, Jenkins said.

"The classroom is the most important arena of competition," he said. "In spite of what people think, we are getting things done."

Jumping from the court to the field, the list shows that UMass men's lacrosse players are dedicated to academics, according to defender Harold Drumm, who had the highest GPA for his team.

"UMass lacrosse players have reputations as jocks and partiers, but there are a lot of good kids and hard workers."

In turn, the role of the coaches plays a big part in academic acheivement, according to defender Nikki Ahrenholz of the womens soccer team, who also had the highest GPA on her team last semester.

The coaches encourage academics, especially on trips, Ahrenholz said. The coaches are very supportive, especially if the athletes need a tutor or extra help.

"They want us to get the best out of college in evey way we can," she said.

"Coaches realize that academics come before athletics," said swimmer Jeff Wicklund.

But his coach does not go easy on the swimmers if they have to miss practice for academic reasons. "If you miss practice, you miss because you weren't prepared," Wicklund, who swims freestyle, said.

Womens crew coach Jim Deitz said there is a correlation between good athletes and good students.

"[The good students] are the ones that think out problems in the boat," Deitz said. "Better athletes tend to be better scholars."

Another factor for stiudent athletes is balancing academics and athletics, which is not easy, according to Wicklund.

"Athletics takes up a large part of my time," he said. "The most important thing for me is the discipline you learn from sports helps you in academics," Wicklund said.It is easier to focus on academics during the season, according to Ahrenholz. "That time you know you have to study," she said.

Festival promotes multiculturalism through film medium

By Hernán Rozemberg
Collegian Staff

As part of the efforts on behalf of the University to implement knowledge and recognition of ethnic diversity on campus, the second annual Multicultural Film Festival will be taking place from Feb. 27 to April 28.

The festival, organized and presented by the interdepartmental program in film studies, will include various distinguished filmmakers and scholars — Abraham Rivett, Frances Peters, Vincent Carelli, Clyde Taylor and Papusa Molina among them.

The focus of the festival this year will be on the self–representation of indigenous peoples and ethnic minorities in the United States, Australia and Brazil.

On March 9, the renowned Australian aboriginal performance artist Frances Peters will be presenting excerpts from a documentary series of indigenous peoples in the Pacific region. The next day, March 10, her two acclaimed previous films, Oceans Apart and Civil Rights, will be shown.

On March 30, filmmaker Vincent Carelli at the Centro de Trabalho Indigenista de Saõ Paulo, Brazil, will be speaking on the production of four of his past films, all of which form part of the Video in the Villages Project. This project examines the Brazilian Amazon region.

Then, on April 6, professor of film and literature at Tufts University, Clyde Taylor, will talk about African–American filmmaker Charles Burnett; additionally, "To Sleep With Anger," a film by the latter individual, will be shown. A second film by Burnett will be presented the next day, his 1977 feature Killer of Sheep.

April 13 marks the arrival of Papusa Molina, visiting professor of women's studies at Hamilton College. She will be talking about the struggle of Latina filmmakers in the United States, like, for example, Coco Fusco. An example of Fusco's work will be the next day's event, titled The Couple in the Cage: A Guatinaui Odyssey.

Finally, the festival will conclude on April 28 with the second annual celebration of the Five College student film festival, the location and time of which are still to be announced.

Peters, Carelli and Taylor are all 1995 recipients of the Center for the Media's Rockefeller Fellowships; Molina is co–organizer of the Women in the Director's Chair International Film and Video Festival in Chicago, Ill.

The multicultural film festival at UMass is sponsored in part by the student activities cultural enrichment fund, the New York University Center for Media, Culture and History, the UMass Arts Council, and others.

All events except the Five College festival are to take place in Herter Hall room 227 at UMass, and are free and open to the public.

For further information on the Multicultural Film Festival or on the Interdepartmental Program in Film Studies, contact Barton Byg at 545–3659.

COMING SOON!

The Collegian will be rolling out the red carpet for all students interested in any of the three departments — business, graphics and news in an open house.

We are always looking for new and exciting staff members. No prior experience needed. Come down and see how we work.

Coming Friday, March 10 to your favorite Campus Center Basement office. The event will be catered and there will be oodles of good food.

Lincoln Real Estate
253-7879
25 North Pleasant St.
(above McDonald's)
Apartment Rentals

CONGRATULATIONS!
Job Well Done

CHOUSTER
Chinese Restaurant
五食馬
Anniversary for the Month of March
ALL YOU CAN EAT BUFFET
Lunch $3.99 • Dinner $4.99 Daily
$4.99 Saturday & Sunday All Day
Dinner Special Including
Pork Fried Rice w/ Choice of Egg Roll or Chicken Wings and Ice Cream Dessert
13 N. Pleasant St., Amherst
253-4068 • 253-7469

Immigration Law
Hans & Curran, P.C.
30 Years of Experience in Immigration Law
1163 Main Street Springfield, MA 781-6370
13 Old South St. Northampton, MA 584-3232
50 Congress St. Boston, MA (617) 723-0043
Free Consultations for Five-College Students/Faculty

240 Reasons to Return to Long Island this summer
SUMMER SESSION
University at Stony Brook
• 240 courses in 40 subjects
• Day and evening classes
• Low NYS tuition
• Register by mail, fax, phone or in person
• Live on campus or commute
• Two terms: May 22-July 7; July 10-Aug. 18
For free bulletin, call 24 hours (516) 632-7070
Please send me the 1995 Summer Session Bulletin.
Name
Street/Box No
City State Zip
Telephone Area of interest
School currently attending Anticipated year of graduation
Summer Session Office
University at Stony Brook
Stony Brook, NY 11794-3730
STONY BROOK
STATE UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK
An AA/EO educator and employer

WOMEN making WAVES

Compiled by Erin Barnes

Female scientists catching up

New research suggests coeducational colleges are closing the gap in training female scientists.

During a conference at Mount Holyoke, Norean Radke Sharpe, assistant math professor at Bowdoin College, said "While women's colleges continue to be effective at producing women who go on to physical science doctorates, many former men's colleges have made improvements in their effectiveness at this."

Radke recommends future research focusing on common characteristics that can be found in the co–ed and all– women's schools which produce high percentages of female scientists.

Making waves in ecoterrorist circles

Sheila O'Donnell is making waves as a private investigator looking into attacks on environmentalists.

Fifty–year–old O'Donnell worked at two detective agencies before joining Ace investigations eight years ago.

Five years ago, O'Donnell began specializing in ecoterrorist attacks, ranging from the attempted assassinations of environmentalists to the poisoning and decapitation of their pets.

As attacks against environmentalists continue to rise, O'Donnell is busier than ever. "Most activists are infuriated by the fact that thugs are doing this," she says, "and they don't back down."

Bella Abzug honored

Bella Abzug, "the Bronx's gift to the nation, and now the world," was awarded the 1994 Veteran Feminists of America Medal of Honor.

The former congresswoman, now 74 years old, was the United States delegate to the recent Cairo population conference, where she helped organize the daily women's caucus to ensure the conference's final document reflected the reality of women's lives.

Abzug is now leading the charge for the United Nation's Fourth World Conference on Women, which will be held in Beijing in September.

Said Jacqui Cebellos at the medal of honor presentation: "Stir up Bella and she stirs up the world."

Compiled from various newspaper and magazine sources.

■ trustee

continued from page 1

very knowledgeable in their fields and good at transmitting that knowledge."

A meeting with Provost Pat Crosson was an informative way for Giblin to learn about the University's academics.

Giblin advised the student community to look to the faculty for direction and advice, take advantage of what they have to offer, including that which extends beyond the realm of academia.

"Find a professor who turns you on," Giblin said. "Extract what you can. For each of us, there is someone who can really turn your mind on beyond just the subject matter. My impression is that this campus is full of people like that."

Be World!
Write for Developing Nations!
Contact Juan Jose Chacon Quiros
113 Campus Center • 545-3500

it's more than Summer
it's Boulder

• Enjoy the relaxed, comfortable atmosphere of the Boulder campus • Choose from over 500 courses • Select from five-, eight-, and ten-week terms or intensive courses • Have time to work, travel, or just have fun

Plan now to make the Summer of 1995 a Boulder one!

Term A: June 5-July 7 Term B: July 11-August 11
Term C: June 5-July 28 Term D: June 5-August 11

Shorter, intensive courses also available.
Call or write for your free CU-Boulder Summer Session Catalog.
(303) 492-2456

Office of Admissions • Regent Administrative Center 125 • Campus Box 30
University of Colorado at Boulder • Boulder, CO 80309-0030

UNIVERSITY OF COLORADO AT BOULDER

Yes, send me the free 1995 CU-Boulder Summer Session Catalog.
Name
Address
City State Zip
Date of Birth Social Security Number*
*For record keeping and identification of students only
Mail to: Office of Admissions
Regent Administrative Center 125
Campus Box 30
University of Colorado at Boulder
Boulder, Colorado 80309-0030
(303) 492-2456
Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Institution

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Darienne J. Hosley Editor-in-Chief Kelly Spang Managing Editor
Michael McRae Business Manager Andrew D. Davidson Production Manager Lisa Tannenbaum Advertising Manager
James P. Ganley Advertising Production Manager Lisa Greenfield Senior Diversity Editor

Matt Audette Arts & Living Editor Paul Bilodeau Photography Editor
Chris Taylor Conner Black Affairs Editor Andrew Bryce, Matt Vautour Sports Editors
Matt Wurtzel Business Editor Jeff Wilson Staff Artist
Juan Jose Chacon Quiros Developing Nations Editor Lisa Greenfield, Colleen Shanahan Women's Issues Editors
Tracy Monahan Editorial/Opinion Editor Marni E. Heffner Editorial Production Manager
Wendy Darling Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor John Khachadoorian Finance Manager
Jacob W. Michaels Jewish Affairs Editor Eric Abenaim Distribution Manager
Herman Rozenberg Multicultural Affairs Editor Maureen Majerowski Senior Bookkeeper
Jessica Taverna News Editor Marty Pappas Classified Advertising

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1956. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967 and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Opinion/Editorial

Giving the gift of learning

Being a professor must be an odd way to make a living. You have students who want to see you run over by a bus, students who kiss up to improve their grade point averages and students who wander into class two months late and wonder if they've missed anything. Despite all of this, these people are continuing to teach, clinging to the idea that they can mold our indifference into appreciation.

A.J. Stewart

I am taking the history of jazz with a professor who is succeeding in this task. Last week he went into a 10 minute emotional tirade demonstrating the difference between playing music straight and making it swing. As his face turned red, he walked along the stage making sounds. "Jazz musicians don't play 'Da Da Da Da Da Da Da Da,' they make it swing 'Da Da Da Da Da DA Da Da Da DA.'"

His students were all attentive to the performance, following his every move. My friend turned to me and whispered, "I just want to ask him, 'so, when did you become so hard core?'"

Most professors I know could care less about giving grades. They would really prefer to give everyone A's and have the entire class pay attention and understand. Most people who teach at this University do so because they love the subject matter, and it usually has added meaning to their lives.

Showing this material to others, the professor takes a chance. On the one hand, it is an opportunity for students to embrace a professor's life work and to entice new entrants into a field. But it also offers this same passion up for ridicule, as students are more apt to reject true learning to pursue "getting by" and "moving on."

In an ideal world, we would be learning simply for the love of it. But most of us know that this is a bunch of bull. Currently, most of us take only a few classes which we enjoy. The rest we take for that piece of paper so we can get out. It is remarkable that facing a system with such skewed priorities, professors somehow manage to keep going — not only here at UMass, but nationwide. And as demeaning as teaching can sometimes be, some of the more famous people in the country are choosing to take the time to teach.

We have Professor Alan Dershowitz, who I can't say anything at all about for fear of a defamation suit. And Professor Elie Wiesel at Boston University. Max Roach was a member of the faculty here. Even Newt (I didn't steal Chrismas) Gingrich was teaching in Georgia until last week.

There is a long list of 'educators' including Kurt Vonnegut, Billy Joel and even Paul McCartney. Everyone has heard the maxim, "those who can — do, those who can't — teach." At the university level, anyway, more of the people who have achieved are finding their way back into the classroom to share it.

Teaching is a noble profession, yet our culture continues to belittle it by making a college education seem like little more than an avenue to a job. This is not the fault of professors, generally speaking. They would like to teach eager students, as it would make the job much easier. How sad that brilliant men and women must try to educate students who would rather be in bed.

We often forget how tough teaching is. When students are angry over grades or assignments, the professor is looked upon as an adversary. Nothing could be further from the truth. Ask yourself how many times your professor has said the following: "I have office hours twice a week, this is my phone number, and if these hours aren't convenient for you, we can schedule another time." Be honest with yourself; most of the time professors are trying to help you learn. Many go out of their way to help struggling students. We are the ones who are too stubborn to learn.

A.J. Stewart is a Collegian columnist.

Hey - it's just a guy thing

"So there I am, in the middle of the bar and I see two guys whispering back and forth and staring straight at me..."

She was sharing her tales from Thursday night. 'Here we go again,' I thought. Having listened to these stories at least once a week for a year, I'd grown pretty accustomed to them. But she had recently acquired a new flavor to her bar palate, namely a regular, so I wasn't sure whether her tales would become predictable or even more interesting.

"Thinking that they were his friends, discussing the new happenings in his love life — me," she added with a small grin. "I, being the nice person that I am..." whenever she knew she had made a mistake she would throw in a self-affirmation to cushion the action of stupidity that was inevitably about to follow. "...I walked over and introduced myself. I wanted to make a good impression, you know?" She was already becoming defensive.

"I'd be called a bitch, and by not saying anything — I feel like I basically said thanks, as if it was flattering."
E.C. Thomas

"Um–hmm," I nodded, letting her know that I understood. She took a sip of her coffee and resumed.

"I said 'Hi I'm...' blah, blah, blah, and they told me their names," she was trying to hurry the story along. Her 'blah,blah,blahs' always impressed me, it showed she was concerned about her listener becoming bored. "And then he goes, 'I've just returned to the area, and I was just telling my friend here, how all I really want is to meet someone like you — with big, round, beautiful breasts." Her eyes grew wider, out of sheer amazement for that she just told me.

"What did you say?!" I said.

"I didn't know what to say, I just sort of stood there not knowing what to think. I mean, I was so taken back by what he had just said that I sort of laughed in disbelief," she took a sip of coffee. "I mean, I felt like an idiot."

"So you didn't say anything to him?" I was surprised, she usually couldn't keep her mouth shut, especially when someone had upset her.

"No, I just walked away and then told my friend what his friends had just said." She seemed disappointed that she hadn't thought of a big comeback at the time.

"And what did he say?" I asked.

"He laughed and said, 'It's just a guy thing, don't worry about it.'"

'Whoa, BIG mistake' I thought, shaking my head. "He said 'It's a guy thing'?" I repeated, feeling sort of sorry for him.

"Yep." She looked at me like Mike Meyers on "Coffee Talk" as he's saying 'Can you baaalieve?'

"Wow."

"I mean I certainly didn't mean for him to go over to them and start throwing punches —"

"But you just wanted him to acknowledge how wrong it was," I finished for her, letting her know that we were on the same wavelength.

"I mean I wasn't trying to make a big deal or anything — but that was just so demeaning and rude. I felt so humiliated, especially since I thought I was making such a good effort at being outgoing." Her animation had since stopped, and was now replaced with a kind of sadness at the way the world works. She began shaking her head, "That whole, 'It's a guy thing' just really makes me mad. It's just no excuse.".

"I know," I said.

"I'm just so sick of hearing that. It completely diverts responsibility — it's like saying 'it's OK' — as if I'm supposed to accept being completely degraded," she paused for a second. "I'm not angry with him for saying it, at least not anymore — we had a little discussion later on," she gave me a quick grin, which meant she had let him have it. "I'm just mad that people still think that way."

"Yeah, well welcome to the real world," I said, looking down, feeling bad that I had no other explanation for her discontent.

"I guess I'm just frustrated that I didn't say anything to them at the time — it makes me feel weak," she said.

"Well, situations like that are always easier to deal with in hindsight. You didn't do anything wrong."

"I know," she said with a sigh. "But, I've been thinking a lot about what happened and what I should have done, and I still don't know. If I had said something about what a jerk he was, I'd be called a bitch, and by not saying anything — I feel like I basically said thanks, as if it was flattering — it's just really frustrating to try and figure out."

"I know, it's a catch-22. I'm sorry it happened," I said trying to be comforting. "Some people just don't think, you know?"

She sat for a moment staring at her shoes and then with a smile out of left field said, "The rest of the night was good!"

"Well, that's a relief," I laughed.

"So, ah, speaking of people not thinking and being stupid, how'd you get the black eye?" she asked looking at me with a smirk.

'Here we go,' I thought.

E.C. Thomas is a Collegian columnist.

Doonesbury By Garry Trudeau

I CAN'T BELIEVE I'M IN A DEPARTMENT STORE, B.D.! I CAN BREATHE AGAIN!
POOR O.J. — HE HASN'T BEEN ABLE TO SHOP SINCE LAST SPRING! HOW'S HE SUPPOSED TO LOOK HIS BEST IN COURT?
I WONDER IF I SHOULD GET HIM A NEW TIE...
GET HIM A TIE? AMIAT, ARE YOU NUTS?
YOU THINK THE JUDGE WOULD DISAPPROVE?
OH, NO, NOT AT ALL! GET HIM SOME NEW GLOVES WHILE YOU'RE AT IT!

DO WE REALLY WANT TO TAKE OUR KIDS AND PUT THEM IN ORPHANAGES?
WAREHOUSING THEM WITHOUT PROPER GUIDANCE, TEACHING OR EMOTIONAL SUPPORT?
WE ALREADY DO.
WE CALL THEM DAY-CARE CENTERS.
Day Care Report
ALSO KNOWN AS OUR ONLY OPTION
Matt Wurtzel

Cutting from the federal budget

Controversy recently erupted over proposed budget cuts for programs such as the Public Broadcasting Service, the National Endowment for the Arts and Amtrak. Speaker of the House Newt Gingrich recommended these cuts. Although they are a small proportion of the budget, they are indeed wasteful and deserve the budgetary ax.

Many of these programs are unimportant, and have little value. They are financed because they could not exist without the support of the government which suggests there is no demand in the market for these programs.

However a few programs such as PBS and Amtrak could potentially survive independent of the government if they search for new forms of finance. Gingrich pointed out that PBS receives absolutely no money from the commercialization of Barney and Sesame Street characters which are two of its most popular shows. Barney toys and Sesame Street bed spreads can be found in stores across the nation such as Wal-mart and Sears, and not a penny goes towards the finance of these shows.

If PBS tapped into the profits which large companies make off its television shows then they could potentially cover a large portion of their budget. In addition to commercial profits from merchandise, PBS could receive commercial finance from more sponsors.

Although PBS is currently commercial free, it receives support from companies which are recognized before and after programs have been broadcasted. Instead of compromising the commercial free television shows, they could run limited commercials before and after the shows instead of just showing company logos.

The most radical idea would be to eliminate PBS altogether and sell the shows to the big networks and cable broadcasters. Popular shows like Sesame Street and Barney could easily find a place on one of the various networks. Fledgling networks such as Fox, the Warner Brothers network (WB) and United Paramount Network might be willing to pay a substantial price for these programs in an attempt to gain market shares. "Nova," a science program, could find a home on a cable station such as the Discovery Channel.

The National Endowment for the Arts is a prime example of a program ripe for the cutting. Artists create for the sake and enjoyment of creating, but there is no reason for the federal government to fund art. However, if no one wants the art, the federal government does not have to fund it. There are profitable forms of art such as theatre, literature and music which receive little or no federal funding meanwhile sculptures, photographs and paintings often receive funding. Once again if the public does not demand the art than there is a market failure.

Matt Wurtzel

Amtrak, the interstate passenger railroad system, eats up a small portion of the federal budget because the company is owned by the government. Tickets do not cover the costs of the system, so the government invests tax dollars into the program to keep it running. Most people travel by airplanes because long distances can be traversed quicker through the air then on the land. Amtrak is the only form of federal budget and sold to a private firm which would be regulated on a limited scale by the federal government.

Although these programs take only small portions of the federal budget, Congress has to start cutting somewhere if they seriously intend to balance the budget. Cutting these programs would have less repercussions in the economy then cutting such programs as the defense budget and space program which employ millions of Americans directly and indirectly. The cutting has got to begin somewhere.

Matthew Wurtzel is a Collegian staff member.

Letters to the Editor

Coverage of Flynn speech appalling

To the editor:

I attended Monday night's Republican Club/Minuteman public meeting which was advertised on large 11x17 posters throughout the Campus Center/Student Union complex soliciting students to "Come hear the truth about W.E.B. Du Bois and the multicultural agenda," and juxtaposing large photos of Alabama segregationist–governor George Wallace alongside a photo of W.E.B. Du Bois under the banner headline which read "Two Shades of Racism."

I, and many other participants, were appalled when we read an account of that meeting in Tuesday's Collegian with barely a reference to the vociferous condemnation of the speech by more than 30 protestors present. Indeed, reading the front page Collegian article complete with a large photograph of the Young America's Foundation speaker, Dan Flynn, below it, one might conclude that such patently racist presentations could occur on the UMass Amherst campus with impunity.

For a newspaper that claims to be "objective," the Collegian article of Feb. 27 entitled "UM grad criticizes library renaming" was appallingly one–sided. From reading the article and observing Chris Ragusa's photo of Dan Flynn donning a suit and tie with a flame–cut head haircut lovingly grasping the podium while, as the caption says, "Flynn listens to an audience member," one could be forgiven for the mistaken impression that Flynn had made a reasonable case while entertaining questions from a seated and passive audience. One has to look down at the bottom of the article tucked away on page two to notice the one sentence line that states: "A heated question–and–answer session followed the speech."

What failed to make the Collegian story was the fact that the Republican Club/Minuteman groups were condemned by the crowd present (at least 30 people protesting their five) for the offensiveness of their meeting posters which equated W.E.B. Du Bois with Alabama segregationist governor George Wallace and with neo–Nazi and KKK leader David Duke. As was pointed out in the meeting, Du Bois advocated the unification of Blacks out of every sense of self–preservation.

As the lynching of Blacks in the United States was commonplace during Du Bois' lifetime and the wholesale murder of Blacks was state policy in both Europe and America during the intense colonial period, Du Bois' recommendations for unity amongst Blacks both in the United States and in Africa is completely logical, prudent, and responsible behavior.

Du Bois did not advocate unification in order to oppress others on the basis of skin color as George did and David Duke continues to do. Therein lies the difference and unbridgeable chasm between the civil rights activist Du Bois and the racist Wallace and Duke.

In addition, Flynn's comments equating 20th century Africans with "cave men," "just emerging from the Stone Age" evoked severe condemnation for being utterly racist and imperialist and representative of the unqualified stupidity characteristic of Mr. Flynn's entire diatribe.

Flynn's agenda of White supremacy was, at last, fully unveiled for those, if any, who still needed to be convinced.

Yet, as with many other unreported charges condemning the content of Flynn's speech, this also did not make the story recounted in the Collegian. Flynn, who is the former editor of a putrid rag call the Minuteman, made similar racist comments of Africans in one of that rag's last editions last semester.

Thus again, the Collegian's hypocritical posture as "an organ of objective reportage" is shown to be a "whitewash" of the news regarding African Americans and people of color.

Colin S. Cavell
Amherst

Music choral story contains errors

To the editor:

I am writing this to clear up several errors that appeared in the article about the Five College Music Choral festival. The University Chorale did not sing under the direction of Wayne Abercrombie. He directed the performance of Robert Stern's piece entitled "Through My Song." Also directed by Abercrombie was the University of Massachusetts Chamber choir, of which there is no mention. The University of Massachusetts Chorale (spelled with an "E") is directed by Richard du Bois, who composed the piece they sang entitled "Isaiah 2." Additionally, not all of the choirs sang two songs.

I am a member of both of these ensembles, and personally felt offended at the errors made in the article. Did the author actually go to the performance? If so, he might have noticed that the only standing ovation was given to the University Chamber choir, of whom there was no mention.

John Marshall
Orchard Hill

Developing Nations

Tuesday, March 7, 1995

True Lies: Islam in the western media

Islam a religion of 8 billion followers, is distributed throughout the world, particularly in the middle east, Africa and the Far East.

The word "Islam" means "submission to God." Islam began sometime near 610 AD. when the prophet Mohammed called the entire mankind to adopt the true path to salvation. In the years that followed, Muslims were persecuted by the non–believers but slowly and gradually the whole of Arabia converted and the Muslims became a considerable political and military force. For hundreds of years the Islamic–Arab warriors were feared for their bravery and for their gifted instincts of war. Islamic armies and navies inflicted some of the worst defeats that the Europeans have suffered. The Muslims ruled Spain and India for centuries. It was as if a younger, more virile and energetic version of Christianity had arisen in the East, equipped itself with the learning of the ancient Greeks, invigorated itself with a simple warlike creed and set about destroying Christianity. Even when the Islamic world entered a period decline and Europe of ascendancy, the fear of those gallant and fearless Islamic warriors remained in western hearts.

Syed Raza

It did not seem to matter that Muslims considered Mohammed a prophet and not God; what mattered to the West was that Mohammed was a false prophet, a sower of discord, a sensualist, a hypocrite and an agent of the devil. Mohammed was referred to as a self proclaimed prophet (which prophet wasn't?). So since the beginning the west never really respected "Islam."

Before 1974, when OPEC suddenly announced an increase in the oil prices,"Islam" had never been covered by the Western media. One saw and heard of Pakistanis and Iranians, Arabs and Turks but rarely of Muslims. With the increase of oil prices words like "monopoly," "cartel" and "bloc" were associated with the behavior of Islamic nations and particularly the OPEC members. Rarely did anyone mention the Western multinationals as cartels, a designation reserved for Islamic nations and OPEC members. Muslims were portrayed as oil suppliers, as terrorists and more recently as bloodthirsty mobs.

After the Islamic revolution in Iran, Ayatollah Khomeni's image and presence took over the Western media, which failed to make much of him except that he was obdurate, powerful and deeply angry at the United States. The media referred the title "Ayatollah" as a "self styled twentieth century title" meaning "reflection of God," unfortunately niether is accurate. The burning (and selling) of Iranian flags by Americans became a regular pastime, and the media faithfully reported these acts of patriotism. The media was fully devoted to cover the events in Iran, how many executed by the Kometehs, how many bizarre outrages the Ayatollah, in the name of Islam, has ordered. Of course no one has equated the Jonestown massacre or the destruction frenzy produced as The Who concert in Cincinnati or the devastation of Indo–China with Christianity or with the western culture at large, that sort of equation has been reserved for Islam. The Iranian revolution was neither pro–communist or pro–modernization, the people who overthrew Reza Shah were simply not explainable according to the canons of behavior presupposed by the modernization theory. What was especially troubling about their attitude– Khomeini's in particular–was their fierce unwillingness to accept any other style of government except the Islamic style. Surprisingly, no one was concerned about a nation just west of Iran, Israel, which was willing to mandate its actions by religious authority.

The Western media had embarked on a mission to portray "Islam" as nothing but negative, particularly the Shi'ite Islam. On CBS Nightly news, Muharram was described by reporter Randy Daniels as a period in which Shi'ites celebrate "Mohammed's challenge to world leaders" a statement so wrong as to be silly. Muharram is an Islamic month and the Shi'ites commemorate the martyrdom of Imam Hussein (grandson of the Prophet Mohammed) in the first ten days of Muharram.

Several TV networks even showed film clips of various leaders of the Islamic world. Leaders like Pakistan's Zia–ul– haq and his powerful military, Khomeini and his Kometeh, PLO's Yasser Arafat, Syria's Haffez al Assad, Libya's Colonel Qaddafi and lesser known Arab leaders were shown without mentioning their names, the audience was told that "these men occupy our oil reserves." The solemn voice over in the background made no reference to who "these men" were and who's oil reserves were they occupying. They were Islamic leaders and the oil reserves were the property of their countries, they have the right to sell their oil to anyone they please.

It is extremely rare to see informative articles on Islamic culture in the New York review of books or the Harper's. Only when the stability of Iran or Saudi Arabia has been in question has "Islam" seemed worthy of general comment. On the other hand, you could find tons of material covering Islam in a negative way. Like April 6, 1979, when Time magazine devoted it's cover story to Islam. On the front page was the picture of a muezzin standing on a minaret, calmly summoning the faithful to prayer, however this quite scene was emblazoned with a caption which had nothing to do with it, "The Militant Revival."

What the Western media has against Islam, remains a question, but it should be noted that the Muslims are being pushed to the wall and history bears witness that whenever they have been under pressure they have stood up and rebelled. Western nations should be more cautious when dealing with Islamic nations in the future.

Syed Raza is a Developing Nations staff member.

COURTESY JUAN CESAR GUERRA D

American Terrorism Documented

The neighborhood of El Chorrillo in Panama, after the December 1989 invasion. Shortly after the invasion, the U.S. media claimed that no civilian casualties had occurred.

Israeli society plots its own destruction

With the obsessive relentlessness of a determined spider, Israeli society, that self–proclaimed "model" of security, is weaving the web that will ensure its ultimate downfall.

At the heart of the "Problem of Palestine," otherwise known as the "Arab–Israeli conflict," lies a profound distortion in the Israeli collective psyche, a neurotic denial that increasingly evinces a bizarre death drive: Israeli society is simply incapable of viewing Palestinians as real or full human beings, and has even denied or wished away their existence.

Palestinians ... where?

From the beginning of Zionist colonial settlement in Palestine, the European settlers have suffered from this affective disorder: "a land without a people for a people without a land."

Outright denial of the very existence of the Palestinians continued through the later history of Zionism and Israel. In the late 60s, Prime Minister Golda Meir was able to calmly tell American television viewers that: "It was not as though there was a Palestinian people in Palestine considering itself as a Palestinian people and we came and threw them out and took their country away from them. They did not exist."

This denial of the very existence of Palestinians continued into the 1980s, for example, in the widely praised but absurd Zionist book From Time Immemorial in which Joan Peters, echoing Afrikaaner myths from South Africa, argues that there was essentially no Arab population in Palestine before the arrival of European Zionist settlers, and hence, no Palestinians.

This book was notable not as a failed historical hoax, since it was utterly debunked, but in so far as dozens of prominent American Zionists and Israelis, including even distinguished historians, at first greeted it with such enthusiasm and praise.

In spite of decades of mass expulsion and ethnic cleansing, massacre and invasions, torture and killing, occupation and exile at the hands of the Israelis, Palestinians remain in existence and continue to fight. In the face of the "peace process," designed to cause pain, suffering, humiliation and civil war among them, the Palestinians have proven their indomitable spirit.

However, to this day, the Israeli society as a whole, a vast consensus among Israelis, continues to be unable to see Palestinians as fully–fledged human beings on a par with themselves.

This is THE fundamental reality that underlies the history of conflict and violence in Palestine over the past decades. This inability to see Palestinians as really and fully human is the attitude that allowed for the mass exclusions of 1948 and 1967, the construction of a vast and complex system of Israeli apartheid, the massacres and killings of women, children and the defenseless, and the occupations that have defined Israel's relationship to the Palestinian people.

It is this neurotic denial that allowed for the declaration in 1948 of a "Jewish State" in a country where Jews were less than a third of the population, and didn't constitute a majority in any significant section.

At a fundamental level, it is this denial which allows Israelis to imagine that Palestinians could ever be pacified by a "peace process" which accords them none of the basic human rights, but grudgingly grants them the right to collect their own trash.

Coalition for the Defense of Palestine

Of course such a conception is wrong, indeed neurotically so, and Palestinians have shown a greater resolution to continue their freedom struggle in the recent months of the "peace process" than ever. Israelis may be comforted by infantile and murderous fantasies, but the reality is that the Palestinian people cannot be wished away.

Conventional wisdom: self–destruction

In the Arab world in the mid 1980s a consensus had emerged that peace with Israel was possible if the Israelis would withdraw from occupied territory, stop invading and occupying its neighbors' lands, and agree to the establishment of a Palestinian state in the occupied West Bank and Gaza.

But the process that could have led to the construction of such a modus vivendi is now thoroughly discredited and the consensus is destroyed. Israel and its American patron have sought to base the emergence of such an understanding on a corrupt and untenable regional order, based on massive violence against Arabs, such as the 1991 Gulf War and the numerous Israeli invasions of Lebanon. They have based this regional entendre on the most corrupt and brutal Arab regimes, such as Mubarak's Egypt, and have embraced a moribund and collapsing group of despots.

The rise of Islamism ("Islamic Fundamentalism") has been concurrent with the construction of this new order, and it is dedicated to overturn it. The coming two decades are very likely to see the continued ascendence of Islamism and the continued demise of the current order.

The emerging consensus views with deep anger the behavior of Israeli society. It objects to the racist, colonialist, and violent nature of the founding of Israel in 1948. It demands the right of return to the victims of Israeli ethnic cleansing in 1948 and 1967, thus reasserting the actual Palestinian majority in Palestine (there are about twice as many Palestinians in the Middle East as Israelis). It points out that legally and morally, Palestine is still Palestinian in spite of Israeli force of arms.

The emerging consensus objects to the racism and apartheid that characterize Israeli society. It will not forget or tolerate the continuous invasions of Lebanon, or the fact that Israel has occupied land of all of its neighbors for most of its existence.

It will not accept a militant, expansionist, racist, apartheid state in the region, any more than the African peoples in the front line states or South Africa itself could accept Afrikaaner behavior of the same kind.

The fact that Israel has not only refused to allow Palestinians a single of their human rights, but seeks to use the "peace process" in a cynical manner to create civil strife among Palestinians has convinced the emerging consensus that peace with Israel is not possible, because Israeli society cannot view Palestinians as fully human, and confirmes to try to force them to live as half or two–thirds human.

Israeli society, therefore, cannot look forward to a safe and secure future in the Middle East. It has systematically alienated all the peoples of the region, and in recent years has squandered what it likely to be historically seen as unique opportunity to change its relationship with its neighbors.

Instead Israelis have chosen oppression, occupation, invasion, and violence, motivated by pathological racism.

The confidence of Israeli society is similarly delusional. It must feel that it can survive any degree of enmity with Arabs forever out of some form of racial and/or cultural superiority. Of course, like the dream of the vanishing Palestinian, any such fantasies are indicative of neurotic pathology.

Thus as Israeli society labors diligently to weave its web around the Palestinians, and around itself, it will find that it has been doing so, not within the wall of a sturdy house as it supposes, but rather on a small plank of wood drifting in the seas.

Large waves are forming in the distance.

Submitted by Omar Ali for the Coalition for the Defense of Palestine.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

After the bullets, it's "Miller Time"

U.S. Marine Staff Sgt. Edward Stroebel relaxes in one of the more comfortable pieces of furniture left at the Mogadishu seaport on March 2, a wheel barrow. Before leaving that day, 16 Somalis died at the hands of the U.S. led forces.

Don't be afraid, Gringo!

Juan José Chacón Quirós de Quetzalcoatl y de Junquillo Abajo de Puriscal

A nadie le importe que piensa usted
Será porque aqui no hablamos inglés
ah, ah es verdad
ah, ah es verdad
do you understand
do you, do you?

Juan Luis Guerra es patrimonio de todos nosotros latinoamericanos. Pensemos un poco en esa estrofa de su cancion El costo de la vida.

¡Somos Latinoamericanos! Y somos sinceros: los Estados Unidos ha tratado, por todos los medios, de mantenernos callados. ¡No ha funcionado! Podríamos hacer un recuento de estos intentos ya sea en Nicaragua, en Chile, en Cuba, en Granada, en Guatemala; pero dejemos esas miserables historias de lado y nos concentraremos en el deseo de este país de acabar con lo único que nos queda: nuestros sentimientos, nuestra cultura.

Este extenso territorio que hoy dice llamarse Estados Unidos de América tuvo un periodo de alto desarrollo; sin embargo, este periodo tuvo lugar en los tiempos en que los indígenas caminaban en libertad por las praderas. Hoy estas praderas son campos de perdición. Las flores que antes crecian alimentadas por los valores indígenas han dado campo a mozas de entiercol que apesta drogas, mentiras, y un vacío espiritual sin precedentes en la historia humana.

Este país ha reducido nuesta identidad a un museo, ha atacado las bases de nuestras sociedades, ha querido borrar la goma que nos mantiene unidos.

Sabemos que una cultura como la nuestra que ha resistido los más duros embates y además ha sido capaz de enriquecerse con una apertura inteligente a influencias benignas tal como la africana.

Hoy nos damos cuenta que la mejor forma de medir el progreso de nuestras sociedades es comparándolas con la sajona. Basta con leer los periódicos para ver que la sociedad gringa ha llegado a un callejón sin salida. En esta sociedad la verdad no tiene valor alguno, Mister dinero es el todopoderoso;; no creen en el ser humano como tal, no son capaces de extraer la belleza de la vida como lo hace Garcia Márquez, Allende, Blades o Luis Miguel. ¿Cuando han podido bailar un merengue o un bolero? ¿Cuando han logrado expresar sentimientos como lo hacia Darío? Y todos nosotros tenemos un poquito de todos ellos. Tenemos que sentirnos orgullosos de ser capaces de amar como solo nosotros sabemos. ¿Quién podría dar una serenata como las que se oyen en un barrio pobre de Managua? ¿Cuando ha sido un político en este país capaz de inspirar a las masas como un Castro o un Perón?

Aún así los únicos elementos progresivos en este ambiente nauseabundo, las minorias de origen asiático, africano y latinoamericano, son tratados con menosprecio. Los aportes culturales de estas minorias son los que podrian salvar a la sociedad gringa de la gran debacle que le espera. Los valores morales y espirituales que son la base de nuestra cultura podrian dar fortaleza a esta estructura decadente, pronta a derrumbarse.

Cada vez que un Mexicano cruza la frontera, trae consigo un grupo de valores y creencias que benefician a esta sociedad. Sin embargo son tan estupidos que detienen este beneficioso flujo cultural cun leyes como la Proposicion 187. Dejemos que los gringos se mueran solos; no es aprecian lo que les damos lo mejor: que volviéramos a nuestras tierras de origen adonde si somos bien recibidos. Por supuesto que ahi también tendremos que luchar por eliminar la influencia utilitarista sajona pero al menos sabemos que si ponemos nuestra mente y nuestro corazón en esta tarea, lograremos que nuestra cultura triunfe.

Volvamos a nuestros paises y luchemos, es un camino difícil, lleno de dolor e injusticia pero talvéz sea preferible morir por nuestros principios que podrimos en Gringolandia, tierra decadente. Podemos contraatacar. Proposición 1 de Latinoamerica dice que el próximo gringo que trate de emigrar a nuestras tierras recibirá el mismo tratamiento que cualquier campesino guatemalteco que cruza el Rio Grande. Proposición 8 dice que no dejaremos de plantar hojas de coca; que los gringos dejen de pedir cocaina! Proposicion 7 dice que lucharemos por provecr a nuestra gente con un futuro promisorio y asi evitar que compren el sueño americano, sueño de muerte . . .

El progreso no está en Nueva York o en Los Angeles. Encontraremos el progreso en lugares como las montañas del sur de México donde la creencia en los valores que nos han mantenido con vida durante los últimos 500 años son llevados a su máxima expresión. No olvidemos lo que llevamos en la sangre, no tengamos duda en decir lo que somos, no hay necesidad de cambiar nuestros nombres o pronunciarlos diferente.

Nuestros antepasados creian que en la vida existian periodos de tristeza y miseria pero también creian que a estos les seguirian periodos de risa y esplendor. Despues de cinco siglos somos nosotros con nuestra convicción, los que podemos llevar a nuestra cultura a la cúspide y asi evitar el negro destino de la cultura sajona. No nos dejemos de los gringos, todos sabemos la verdad: nos tienen miedo, mucho miedo ... (se oyen gritos de espanto).

Terminemos con Juan Luis; nos dará el ritmo para comenzar la lucha:

Somos un agujero en medio del mar y el cielo
500 años despues
una raza encendida
negra, blanca y taina
pero, quién descubrió a quién?
um es verdad
um es verdad ...

Juan José Chacón Quirós de Quetzalcoatl y de Junquillo Abajo de Puriscal is a Collegian Columnist.

Arts & Living

Kieslowski's Red ends trilogy on a quiet note

Color scheme hinders film; Irene Jacob excels in role

By Michael Pessah
Collegian Correspondent

RED
Directed by Krzysztof Kieslowski with Irene Jacob, Jean-Louis Trintignat
Playing at Pleasant Street

Red is the final film in Kieslowski's Blue–White–Red trilogy. Each is a color in the French flag, and each represents the three aspects of the French national motto — liberty, equality and fraternity. Like the melancholy Blue, and the bitter White, the characters in Red are surrounded by the color and its implications. The inhabitants of Red's world are constantly grappling with jealousy, embarrassment, pain and lust. They go about their business as their veins throb with repressed pain and anger, each one searching for a benign way to cope.

Much of Red is focused on Valentine (Irene Jacob), who happens to live on the same Genevan block as August (Frederique Feder). She is a fashion model, and he is a young lawyer studying to be a judge. They often bump into each other, but they don't even exchange neighborly hellos. When Valentine accidentally strikes a dog with her car, she immediately brings the dog back to the address labelled on its collar.

When no one answers the door at the dreary, unkempt abode she lets herself in. Inside, she discovers an elderly man, sleeping adjacent to a receiver broadcasting August's telephone conversations. Soon she discovers that the dog's owner is a bleak retired judge, whose sole pastime is eavesdropping (Jean-Louis Trintignant).

Valentine never warns August, nor does she continue to follow his life. She never even engages him in conversation. That would be too easy, too expected, too pat for director Krzysztof Kieslowski. The characters in Red don't cross paths in a conventional, physical sense. Instead, they coalesce on a higher, more profound level. Kieslowski presents a world where strangers interact on an elevated plane — characters rarely talk, preferring to associate on moral, metaphorical and spiritual ground.

As in Blue and White, Kieslowski splashes this film with its designated color. Though he used this technique effectively in the previous two movies, it quickly becomes a nuisance in Red. We are barraged with red cars, red couches, red phones, red dog leashes.. ad nauseam. While it achieves its goal of highlighting key connections between characters, it also diminishes the effect of some of the truly effective uses of the color. When the characters throw maroon bowling balls in a garishly crimson bowling alley, Kieslowski's only accomplishment is the creation of a self– congratulatory murmur in the theater audience.

One cannot blame Kieslowski for getting cocky. He is creating the final film in a critically-lauded trilogy, and has what appears to be an unlimited budget. However, his impressionism detracts from the film. The various shades of red are invoked so perfectly by the superb acting and script that it diminishes the subtlety of the film. The drama of certain scenes is sapped by Kieslowski's film version of Where's Waldo.

The film often suffers from similar stylistic heavy–handedness. Though most of the film is photographed in soft understatement, every few scenes Kieslowski performs an insanely bizarre perspective shot. While following a phone signal from a telephone to a satellite to a subterranean wire might be a coup for the Coen brothers, it disturbs the quiet, meditative mood of Red. Additionally, Kieslowski felt the need to highlight key events with unusual, conspicuous effects. Does a filmmaker of his talents really need to have a window suddenly shatter to underscore an important scene?

Red, like Blue and White stars a stunning, brunette actress. Irene Jacob had a formidable task following in the footsteps of remarkable performances by Juliet Binoche (Blue) and Julie Delpy (White). In Red, she proves to be more than worthy of capping off the triumvirate. She portrays Valentine's journey from naivety to cynicism to enlightenment in such a delicate, keen way that it is perceptible only in hindsight. Her communication with the viewer is nothing short of telepathic.

Indeed, Red is a film that is about notions of communication. Though people are constantly making telephone calls, writing letters, clipping newspapers and watching television, there is very little face to face conversation. The only characters that actually discuss things in person are Valentine and the eavesdropping judge, and consequently they are the only characters that experience change. The rest of the cast spend their time hiding from each other, and the truth.

Though flawed, Red is a powerful, fitting end to the trilogy. It completes Kieslowski's epic meditation on indifference, sadness, faith and finally redemption. B+

A MAN OF NO IMPORTANCE
Directed by Suri Kishnamma with Albert Finney, Robin Cavendish
Playing at Academy of Music

A Man of No Importance is a well intentioned melodrama set in Dublin. The year is 1959 and the post–war status quo is taking a breather before the turbulent '60s. The film opens with images of the city's dull gray shipyards, establishing the sense of conformity that characterizes the Dublin of this film.

The monotone is instantly disrupted when Alfie Byrne (Albert Finney) steps onscreen. His wrinkled, rosy face contrasts wonderfully to his navy blue conductors uniform. Oddly enough, he is reciting poetry. He continues to mumble snippets of verse as he steps aboard his bus. He collects the tickets, sits down and barks out "Geud moyning everyman!" The bus passengers respond as if he were the local schoolmarm and recite back "Geud moyning mistah Byrne!" Alfie then proceeds to read sonnets to the passengers.

A Man of No Importance tells the story of Alfie, a man who, despite his efforts to the contrary, flies in the face of conventional thinking. He lives a very modest life in the apartment he shares with his sister. His only indulgence is his love for poetry. The film follows his attempts to produce Oscar Wilde's Salome. He enlists all of the people on his bus route as actors, and persuades the local church into letting him use its basement as a theatre. As he tries to keep the play afloat, he also finds himself coming to accept his gay identity.

The plot for A Man of No Importance is 100 percent cheese. It is similar to all the other "Hey! Let's go produce a play//movie even though we are all neurotic"–type stories. It features the standard motley crew of would be thespians, including a man with a speech impediment and a bonafide "hooker with a heart of gold."

The cheese factor isn't helped by Suri Krishnamma's direction. He exploits every opportunity for melodrama and milks it for all that it's worth. Midway through the film one could accurately predict the exact moment where the music will swell up and the camera will draw in for a big USDA certified close–up.

None of that detracts from Albert Finney's performance. It is always wonderful when someone is cast out of type and really shines. Finally, after years of playing cops and gangsters, Albert Finney has been given an unusually challenging role to play.

Turn to MOVIES, page7

Harvey displays blues style with newest release

By Matt Audette
Collegian Staff

TO BRING YOU MY LOVE
PJ Harvey
Island Records

"I was born in the desert/I've been down for years/Jesus come closer/I think my time is near," moans Polly Jean Harvey, over a slinky, repetitive distorted blues riff before working herself into a full–boil and unleashing a blood– curdling chorus. Welcome to To Bring You My Love, Miss Harvey's most startling and downright impressive effort to date.

Harvey stakes her claim early on in the dusty, testosterone– filled world of the blues on the album's opener, but it isn't until the next song, "Meet Ze Monsta," that her intentions become clear. A bone–crunching, metallic stomp, "Monsta" finds Harvey giving herself over to the "big, black monsoon," snarling and thrashing all the way. The two aforementioned tracks pretty much sum up Harvey's plan of attack on To Bring You My Love — she is more than ready to give her soul over to the unforgiving spirit of the blues, but not without putting her own distinct stamp on it first.

Ditching the sonicly intense but artistically limiting production of Steve Albini (whose raw, noise–filled trademark was at times both the saving grace, as well as the ultimate downfall of Harvey's last release Rid Of Me) for a sparser, more haunting sound, she seems finally ready to step up and let her finest asset, her voice, take the helm. Alternating between ferocious growl and seductive, yet disturbing whisper, Harvey takes center stage here, refusing to let the often simple, but rich arrangements show her up.

Listening to To Bring You My Love is often akin to waiting for a storm to erupt — even in the album's quieter moments, there is always is a sense that something is brewing just underneath the surface — waiting for the right moment to unleash.

And unleash is exactly what Harvey does. Although much of To Bring You My Love is highlighted by subdued overtones of organ and delicate hints of guitar, Harvey still manages to lash out in a voice that is often able to send shivers up your spine.

"Big fish, little fish/Swimming in the water/Come back here and give me my daughter," she chants, in a hushed whisper on the album's first single "Down By The Water." In the hands of anyone else this may come off as a tad silly, but thanks to Harvey's harrowing delivery and producer Flood's (Nine Inch Nails, Depeche Mode) unearthly touch, the effect is nothing less than haunting.

Other tracks find Harvey moving into refreshingly diverse territory. On "C'mon Billy" Harvey wails over a furiously strummed acoustic guitar like the demonic sister of Melissa Etheridge, while "Long Snake Moan" finds her making a fleeting return to the noise–ridden world of Rid Of Me.

What makes To Bring You My Love such a treasure is that for the first time it actually sounds as if Harvey has come to terms with her influences. She had previously flirted with the blues on past works, such as her cover of both Dylan's "Highway 61 Revisited" on Rid Of Me, and Willie Dixon's "Wang Dang Doodle" on last year's 4–Track Demos, but never before has Harvey sounded so confident, as well as comfortable, with her material.

At times the album falls prey to Harvey's tendency to use an over–abundance of desert/western/gothic imagery (i.e. "The Dancer"), but this is just a small complaint of what might be the most disturbing, as well as dazzling, album this year. A

Steppenwolf takes '60s rock online and into the decade

By Jim Patterson
Associated Press

FRANKLIN, Tenn. — From biker rock to bytes on rock. From "Magic Carpet Ride" to modem-powered ride. Steppenwolf, it seems we Harley knew ye.

Steppenwolf leader John Kay spent the '80s turning the '60s superstar act once mentioned in the same breath as Iron Butterfly and Vanilla Fudge into a cottage industry with himself the focal point — the band now is billed on the road as John Kay & Steppenwolf.

He has put down roots in Tennessee and is taking the heavy metal band's act on the Internet. It's another way to reach his fans without help from a media that isn't all that interested anymore.

"We're like a miniature of what the Deadheads have been doing for a long time," Kay said. "They don't care about airplay, they have their own...Internet."

Wolfpackers, as Kay calls them, will soon also be able to contact each other and the band on-line. They already are kept abreast of tour dates and product by being on Kay's mailing list. The Wolfpack would probably not exist if not for Kay's near-decade of work re-establishing the band's reputation after bogus Steppenwolfs began playing shows after the bands demise in 1972. After a solo career failed, he rebuilt — one small club at a time — a band that played large stadiums at its peak. Kay moved to the Nashville area in 1989, and continued to cultivate the Steppenwolf legacy.

MCA has released a double-CD of greatest hits, and a new live album and video anthology are in the works.

Just try to turn on your local oldies radio station and not hear the band's trio of classics: "Born To Be Wild," (which rose to No. 2 on the charts and served as a biker anthem in the 1968 film "Easy Rider") "Magic Carpet Ride" (which rose to No. 3) and "The Pusher."

Kay's recently published autobiography titled Magic Carpet Ride necessarily tells about the band's glory days of gold records and excess.

Much more interesting, though, is Kay's life before and after. Born April 12, 1944 as Joachim Krauledat in Germany and legally blind at birth, Kay was spirited across the East German border by his mother when he was 4 to look for a better life, starting with improved eye care.

His journey from West Germany to Canada to California to Tennessee, from blues-playing vagabond to rock superstar, betrays a stubborn spirit much like the main character from the Herman Hesse novel his band is named after.

"Hesse's character was a loner," Kay writes in his autobiography, "a man drifting in the no man's land that separates true idealism and individualism from a comfortable bourgeois lifestyle with all its hypocrisy, never being totally at peace in either camp. I thumbed through the book when the name was initially suggested...but never read it entirely until several years later. I was then surprised to learn that I empathized with the Steppenwolf character as I'm sure many do who see themselves as lone wolves trying to remain true to their ideals. The name Steppenwolf just seemed to go with the look and sound of our band — aggressive, kind of wild, intense, urgent."

The Fyi section of the Collegian is open to the community to advertise events in the area. Our deadline is 3 p.m. daily and we do not accept Fyis over the phone. Please mail or hand deliver your submissions as early as possible.
All submissions must be type written with a contact name and phone number to clarify any questions.

Student Affairs Special Services
UNDERGRADUATE COMMENCEMENT
* IMPORTANT INFORMATION FOR SENIORS *

The names of seniors that are printed in the Undergraduate Commencement Program book represent an unofficial listing of degree candidates based on information provided by the Registrar's Office.

To ensure that your name will be listed, your Class of 1995 eligibility and major must be on record with the Undergraduate Registrar not later than Wednesday, March 15.

Because of printing deadlines, changes made after that date are unlikely to be included in the Commencement Program. Please note, however, that the graduation status of students eligible to graduate is in no way affected by the absence of a listing.

If there was an error in the recent mailing from the Registrar's Office concerning your diploma name and graduation date and you have not corrected it with the Senior Staff, please do so immediately. If you did not receive the mailing and are expecting to have all degree requirements completed for the May or September 1995 graduation date, please contact the Senior Staff. They are located in the Registrar's Office, 207 Whitmore.

If you did not receive the Undergraduate Commencement information brochure mailed in February, copies are available at the Visitors Center.

JCC Camp Kingswood
JCC A PROGRAM SERVICE OF THE JEWISH COMMUNITY CENTERS OF GREATER BOSTON
Bridgton, Maine
STAFF POSITIONS AVAILABLE
Applications for the 1995 season are now being accepted for the following positions:
KEY STAFF: Unit Head for Younger Boys Unit
DEPARTMENT HEADS: Jewish Resources, Waterfront, Athletics, CIT, Theatre, Arts and Crafts, Photo/Yearbook
COUNSELORS: Swimming (WSI), Waterskiing, Sailing, Tennis, Archery, Ceramics, Soccer, Basketball, Photo/Video, Theatre, Dance
ALSO: Office, Nurse, and Kitchen Staff
For more information contact Ed Pletman, Director, (617) 244-5124
333 NAHANTON STREET, NEWTON CENTRE, MA 02159
The director of the camp will be on campus on Tuesday, March 7, from 10–4 p.m. for the Camp Day in the Student Union Ballroom. To arrange an interview in advance please call the camp office.

ΦΣΚ
Wed 8th, Thurs 9th, 7–9pm
RUSH
Phi
Sigma
Kappa
510 N. Pleasant St. (Next to Newman Center)
For More Info Call Eric 549-4893

EATING DISORDERS
A FIVE COLLEGE FILM SERIES • ALL SHOWINGS AT 7:30 PM

MARCH
Tuesday, 7: "Still Killing Us Softly." Jean Kilbourne video examining how advertising portrays women. Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Room 162.
Tuesday, 28: "Famine Within." Documentary film addressing the socio-cultural forces that impact women's obsessions with their bodies and weight. Hooker Auditorium, Mount Holyoke.

APRIL
Tuesday, 4: "Life is Sweet." Comedy focusing on on enduring couple and their iconoclastic twin daughters– one of whom suffers from anorexia and extreme self-loathing. Smith College, Seelye 106.
Wednesday, 5: "Life is Sweet." Campus Center, Front Room, Amherst College (See Apr. 4)
Thursday, 13: "Eating." Serious comedy about women talking about food, bodies, each other and life." Women's Center, Enfield House, Hampshire College.
Wednesday, 19: "Pack of Lies." Jean Kilbourne video examining advertising of the tobacco industry, including the connection between smoking and thinness. Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Room 162.
Sponsored by the Five College Eating Disorders Committee. For additional information call 542-2760.

COURTESY CORDELIA'S DAD

Amherst originals Cordelia's Dad will be at the Iron Horse tonight to promote their fourth release, comet.

Cordelia's Dad kicks off comet tour

By Mike MacLean
Collegian Staff

Local favorites Cordelia's Dad will be back on their home turf tonight as they take the stage at the Iron Horse for a two set show to promote the release of their latest album, comet.

Cordelia's Dad was started almost 10 years ago as a cover band by vocalist/bassist Tim Erickson, guitarist Tom King and drummer Peter Irvine, all Amherst College Students, and made its debut at the Iron Horse eight years ago.

The band's self titled debut was released in 1990 by OKra Records out of Ohio and although having the outer layer of a rock album, was rooted deep in folk as it offered up rock covers of classic folk songs such as "Scarbourough Fair" and "Banks Of Lee." This album proved to be the catalyst for Cordelia's Dad, as the album garnered critical acclaim and made a considerable dent in the college radio charts.

How Can I Sleep, the band's second release two years later, although still mixing covers with originals, was a change of gears, toning back the electric guitars and utilizing a variety of acoustic instruments and was followed up by The Joy Fun Garden a year later.

comet is the band's fourth release and is accompanied by "Three Snake Leaves" backed with "Hush" as the first single. The album is on Omnium Recordings and will be the first Cordelia's Dad LP to achieve a national distribution and along with it, a European release. This widespread distribution will send the band on a promotional tour which will have the band trekking out the in Midwest as well as to Europe in June.

Cordelia's Dad will play the Iron Horse Music Hall tonight at 7 p.m. Tickets are $6 in advance and $8 at the door. The show is all ages. For more info please call the Iron Horse at 584–0610.

■ movies

continued from page 5

Finney's brilliance is in the way he shows us how simple Alfie is. The eccentric behavior isn't a "batty" facade, it is really Alfie enjoying his life. Alfie truly is a naive character — he wasn't trying to finagle the priest when he assured him that Salome has no blasphemous implications, because as far as Alfie is concerned there weren't any. To Alfie, Salome isn't a lascivious play, it's a reaffirmation of the joy of living.

Finney should be commended for portraying Alfie as a mature, eccentric and altogether believable person — not a snivelling Forrest Gump man–child. He depicts Alfie struggle with his blossoming homosexuality with similar– bittersweet flair. Eventually he shrugs off his abusive neighbors and declares brightly "The best way to resist temptoyition is to submit to it." Therein lies the fantastic irony of A Man of No Importance. Alfie is vastly more pure hearted and innocent than any of the townspeople calling him "fruity" or "perverse."

A Man of No Importance lies somewhere in the netherworld between fable and character study. The contrast between Dublin harsh landscape, and Alfie's uncanny optimism makes for an amusing film. Though

Orland gives new twist to photos

Ansel Adams protege discusses landscape photography

By Greg Dalton
Associated Press

CARMEL, Calif. — Photographer Ted Orland didn't intend to "trash" Ansel Adams, but he just couldn't resist including a rubbish can when he went to photograph Yosemite National Park's famous Half Dome.

Adams' photographs, popularized on calendars and greeting cards available virtually everywhere, enshrined Half Dome as a dramatic symbol of pristine Western landscape and the efforts to preserve it.

A decade and a half after Adams made his renowned "Moon and Half Dome" photograph, Orland went to Half Dome to find out what his eye would see. He says he immediately found "there was something crazy about that stupid trash can."

"In my mind I was playing with the man-made forms mimicking the natural for our own uses."

Orland was an assistant during the '70s to Adams, who founded the West Coast landscape tradition in the first three decades of this century along with Brett Westor, and a few others.

The best-known West Coast landscape pictures are pure and eloquent images of nature without man's presence.

But, nearly 11 years after Adams' death, "the tide has swung back to look at the social dimension of contemporary life," says Andy Grundberg, director of Friends of Photography in San Francisco, an organization founded by Adams in the '60s to promote the art form.

Landscape photography is no longer about "let's go out into the wilderness and find something that hasn't been photographed before," Grundberg says. "It's about 'let's look at something that acknowledges that we are not innocent of our impact on nature.'"

"The tendency with landscape photography is to filter out the man-made aspects," admits Orland, who lives in Santa Cruz, Calif., and whose work is currently on show at a Pebble Beach, Calif., gallery.

When he first started out, for example, he worked hard to set up scenic shots without any of the telephone poles that punctuate the American countryside. "But now I tend to look for those telephone poles," he says.

Already, in his 1976 "One-and-a-Half Domes, Yosemite," the natural dome is relegated to the background behind a sign that has been colored in by hand. The dome seems to have faded into what Orland calls a "19th-century backdrop" and he says begs the question — which is more real, the sign or the landscape?

Coloring a black and white photograph is heresy to black and white purists, but Orland says color is a subjective concept and there is not such a big difference "whether it is color paints in my hand or color dyes in the film." A blue sky enhanced by Kodachrome is no more true than a blue sky enhanced by paints, he says.

John Sexton, photographic assistant and technical consultant to Ansel Adams from 1979 to 1984, is also advancing the landscape genre of his masterful mentor, though in a more subtle fashion than Orland.

Sexton, 42, says his landscape photography focuses on quiet, more intimate views rather than the spectacular vistas that characterized Adams' work.

"Some say there is no drama" in John Sexton's photographs, says Morley Baer, a prominent photographer who lives a few miles from Sexton in Carmel, the home of the West Coast tradition.

"I think that's a lot of hooey. He's developed a style and feeling that is way beyond what Ansel did. John not only chooses less monumental things, he chooses things that most photographers would not do. He can transform the ordinary."

Though Sexton shuns the idea of coloring and works in black and white, he has updated Adams' printing techniques. He is exploring the nature of technology in his recent and current work, investigating what he calls the "aesthetics of form following function" and focusing on such subjects as the inner workings of Hoover Dam and the space shuttle.

"I need technology for photography. We all need technology but I think sometimes it is viewed as the ultimate solution" to society's problems, says Sexton. He confesses ambivalence about the positive and negative implications of technology's impact on the fragile environment.

And how would Ansel Adams view the positive and negative impact of coloration and other temptations and intrusions made possible by digital technologies?

Far from being a technophobe, Grundberg says, Adams would certainly be tinkering with such tools.

"Ansel experimented with every new technology that came down the pike during his lifetime."

Write for the Valley's best source for entertainment news and views!
Arts & Living
Call 545–1361 for information.

Solo violinist plays avant–garde pieces at gallery concert

By Seema Gangatirkar
Collegian Correspondent

LEROY JENKINS
Augusta Savage Gallery
March 1

Leroy Jenkins, a Bessie award–winning jazz solo violinist, presented a varied and technically superb performance on March 1 at the Augusta Savage Gallery.

Called "fresh and special," by Terry Jemoure, his friend of 15 years, Jenkins demonstrated his mastery of the violin as well as the viola. He wielded enormous power over the members of the audience and drew them into an inexplicable spell that led them to applaud him several times during the performance.

From the beginning, this concert promised to be different. First, the songs had no names and did not build on any classical violin tradition. He seemed to be composing the pieces as he played, drawing on past experiences, emotions and influences to create a sound that was uniquely his own. Often Jenkins seemed to be lost in thought, hesitating between notes as he improvised upon a variety of themes.

While Jenkins demonstrated superb technical skills — often using different types of bowing techniques as well as using pizzicato and vibrato — the notes were often rough and screechy. At times there did not seem to be a coherent melody or any sort of structure around which Jenkins could build his music. It wasn't so much music as much as it was noise. However, Jenoure noted that Jenkins' technique and improvisational method has been "real influential on string players."

The concert, as a whole, seemed more like a technical exercise than song. It seemed as if Jenkins was experimenting with new ideas and then changing his mind in the middle of a performance which made it seem as if he really had no idea of what he was going to play before he actually played it.

Jenkins is a very talented violinist but his performance was very disappointing.

Feeling your community is left out by the University?
Come down and say Hi!
Write for the Multicultural Affairs desk.
Contact Hernan at 545–1001. Express yourself.

CONTACT LENS SERVICE
at the
University Health Services
- We take great pride in being able to fit many people who have had difficulty in the past wearing contact lenses.
- All fittings are done by an eye doctor with experience in contact lens care and in solving contact lens problems.
- Unlimited follow-up visits are available to you under the UHS Eye Care Savings Plan at no additional cost.
- Reduced costs on contact lenses are available to you under the UHS Eye Care Savings Plan.
- If you tear or damage a contact lens within 45 days after receiving it, we will replace it for you at no extra cost.
- Same day replacement of contact lenses in many cases due to our large in-house inventory.
- Contact lenses can be mailed to you at no extra cost for postage.
- Convenient hours and on-campus location.
- Free sample start-up solutions, as available.

Patient feedback of those who have used the UHS Eye Care Program over 20 years has been consistently excellent.

"I invite you to use the Eye Services at UHS."
Frederick H. Bloom, O.D.
uhs
Eye Care Program
University Health Services
Call 549-2671 ext 244

Your Summer Can Be an Adventure!
Explore These Special Field-Based and International Programs
Stop by and see us:
Tuesday, March 7
10:00am - 3:00pm
Campus Center Concourse
- The New Europe: Field Study and Seminar in Ireland
- Spanish Language and Culture in Cuernavaca, Mexico
- Playwriting and Performance on Nantucket Island
- Archeological Field School on Cape Cod
- Marine Biology on Nantucket Island
- Exploring the Coastal Environment on Nantucket Island and the New England Coast

For more information, or if you can't stop by on March 7, please contact:
Division of continuing Education
University of Massachusetts Boston
100 Morrissey Blvd.
Boston, MA 02125-3393
Tel 617 287-7915 • Fax 617 297-7922

The Collegian
Business Desk
is looking for writers.
We need writers with a wide variety of interests in the business world locally and nationally. No prior experience is necessary.
Come to our office in the Campus Center, room 113, and talk with Matt Wurtzel. Or give us a call at 545–0719.

If you thought the season preview was hot, wait until you see the Collegian's
Tournament Preview
coming in March

■ hoop

continued from page 10

Hawks took a one-point lead with more than 18 minutes left in the game.

What tournament is St. Joseph's heading to in the post- season? Any at all? The NCAAs? The sports information department for the Hawks put out a card available to all media that gave "Five Reasons Why St. Joseph's are in the Bubble," meaning they are making last ditch efforts to talk their way into the NCAA tournament. The Hawks are praying to get in while the Minutemen are looking to be one of the top three seeds in any of the four regions in the Big Dance. And, when players come off the Massachusetts bench, they take off their warm-up jackets before entering the game.

Down one, 33–32, a Dana Dingle jumper, a Dingle layup and a Lou Roe jam regained the lead for the Minutemen, and broke it out to a 20–8 run. Massachusetts went up 58–51 on two Edgar Padilla free throws with 6:36 left to play. As of the warm-up jacket bit, Hawk reserve Duval Simmonds entered the game accidentally with his warmup jacket still on.

Who does St. Joseph's have? How many All A–10 players do they have? Any big names? Well, they have got two second team All A–10 players in Carlin Warley and Reggie Townsend. What they don't have is Lou Roe and Marcus Camby, two of the best players in the nation at their respective positions.

In the last 6:25 of the game, the Massachusetts lead went as low as 9, and went as high as a game-high 12-point lead. St. Joe's could not get any closer, as the Minutemen rolled 68–57.

Looking back, the Hawks did get beat twice during the regular season, but they were much hungrier in the A–10 tournament. They may have been fatigued during last night's contest against the Minutemen, but they played well despite the limited rest.

The Palestra is the Home Away From Hawk Hill, and the crowd on their side did help matters for the Hawks. And the NCAAs could quite possibly be in the cards for St. Joe's. One thing, though. The envelope is in the mail, heading straight for the Mullins Center.

Massachusetts 68, George Washington 57

At Palestra

St. Joseph's (17-11)
Blunt 6-11 6-6 18, Warley 1-5 4-4 6, Townsend 6-11 2-2 14, Myers 1-4 1-2 3, Bass 3-11 4-5 12, Johnson 0-5 0-0 0, Domani 0-2 0-0 0, Bey 1-6 0-1 2, Simmonds 0-2 0-0 0, Petrovic 1-1 0-0 2. Totals 19-58 17-20 57.

Massachusetts (25-4)
Dingle 4-6 0-2 8, Roe 4-9 3-7 11, Camby 4-11 1-3 9, Padilla 3-9 5-6 12, Kellogg 3-9 1-4 9, Bright 6-9 0-0 12, Weeks 2-4 0-0 4, Travieso 1-5 0-0 3, Nuñez 0-0 0-0 0, Germain 0-0 0-0 0, Meyer 0-0 0-0 0, Cottrell 0-0 0-0 0. Totals 27-62 10-22 68.

Halftime- Massachusetts 31, St. Joseph's 24. Three-Point goals- St. Joseph's 2-9 (Bass 2-7, Myers 0-1, Bey 0-1), Massachusetts 4-13 (Kellogg 2-6, Padilla 1-2, Travieso 1-5). Fouled out- None. Rebounds- St. Joseph's 36 (Blunt 8), Massachusetts 46 (Roe 11). Assists- St. Joseph's 8 (Warley 3), Massachusetts 17 (Padilla 5). Total fouls - St. Joseph's 22, Massachusetts 18. Technicals - Warley, Bright. Attendance - 8,722.

Lou Roe - 11 points, 11 rebounds

Highlights...

The Minutemen were not at their best but they pulled out the victory. A–10 Player of the Year Lou Roe notched a double-double with 11 points and 11 rebounds while moving closer to Julius Erving's in all-time rebounding. Erving has 1,049. Guard Edgar Padilla played well scoring 12 points (5– 6 from free throw line) while dishing out five assists. Donta Bright was solid until receiving a technical scoring 12 points. St. Joseph's senior guard Bernard Blunt scored 18 points and grabbed eight boards to lead the Hawks. The loss likely ended any hopes the Hawks had for an NCAA at large bid.

■ track

continued from page 10

LaFreniere said. "But it was a good opportunity for her to see some of the top athletes in the Northeast. She won't be intimidated next time."

Junior Jen Waeger ran the 1,000 meters in 3 minutes flat.

"She was in solid position for the first 800 meters," LaFreniere said. "But the pack took off and pulled away from her."

"Over 80 schools competed in the ECAC competition," LaFreniere said. "Overall, we brought seven runners, set two school records, and had one NCAA qualifier."

Liljeblad will travel to the NCAA Championships this weekend in Indianapolis. There, she will compete in the 3,000 meters Friday afternoon and, if she qualifies, in the final round on Saturday night.

"It is extremely hard to run two 3,000–meter races back to back," LaFreniere said. "But it only matters to place, not the time. Kelly has a good shot. They only take the top 16 runners in the country. It's a real honor for her."

Women's fencing hosts N.E. Championships

By Afranio Torres
Collegian Correspondent

On Sunday, Feb. 19, the Massachusetts women's fencing team hosted the New England Fencing Championships at Totman gym.

UMass went up against 10 other schools such as Bates, Boston College, Brown, Dartmouth, MIT, Boston University, New Hampshire, Trinity, Tufts and Wellesley (the top varsity team in the tournament).

Massachusetts is the No. 1 club team in the nation.

The Minutewomen took fifth place in the Epee and the Foil groups. Brown University stole the show by getting No. 1 in the foil and epee divisions. UMass co-captain Christine Haskell had the best record in the Foil A category (best fencer) with an impressive 8–2 record.

One incredible moment came against Trinity where Haskell applied a "coupé" move during her match, a difficult move to apply because the fencer must reach the foil over the back of an opponent with great speed. She won the match easily, 5–1.

"I was very proud of the team because most of the fencers did not know how to hold a sword in September," Haskell said.

Notes: The top five finishers in the epee division were Brown, MIT, Wellesley, Tufts and UMass. In the foil division, Brown, Wellesley, Tufts, MIT and UMass were the top five finishers.

After the team's competition, won by Brown, the individual competition started.

Karen Fisquer went 9-1 in the epee division while Renee Coombs, in her first season on the varsity squad, went 4-6 in the foil division.

Martha Faron, co-captain Jen Conable, Karen Fisher, Jen Barrows and Alycia Ordway all performed well.

Three Massachusetts fencers made it to the individual competition. Haskell and Lisa Whitehead in the foil division, and Karen Fisher in the Epee division. Haskell went 0–4, while Whitehead and Fisher both went 1–3.

The men's tournament was held the day before at Bates College in Maine. Despite stiff competition, all three squads gave strong performances. Pete Lawson, the men's saber captain, won the individual saber event.

■ hockey

continued from page 10

minutes.

BC's softest area is on defense, where the Eagles employ mostly inexperienced underclassmen. UMass will try to attack this by maintaining the four forward power-play lineup that they utilized against Northeastern, with fair success, Saturday night.

Tonight's play–in game will represent UMass' first post– season appearance since the 1974 ECAC Division II playoffs where Massachusetts (then known as the Redmen) defeated Boston State before falling to Vermont.

Many current Minutemen were not yet born when those games were played, and their playoff inexperience might be a factor in a close game. Only Manganaro and BU transfer Jon Jacques have playoff experience, and that was in a limited capacity.

One thing is for certain. UMass can ill afford a game like their last visit to Conte Forum, easily the season's worst effort. UMass trailed 8–1 in the second period that evening.

"I think that first period and a half was the worst period and a half that we've played all year long," Mallen said. "We had all kinds of giveaways and turnovers. I think we've really got to respond."

The Maine Black Bears, ranked No. 1 for the past three– and–a–half months, await tonight's winner.

Information Meeting
For People Interested In Participating In The 17th Annual International Fair
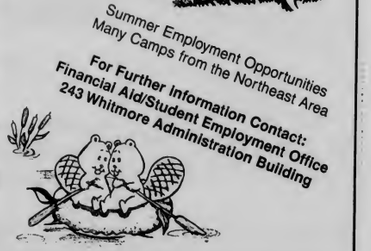
The meeting will be held in the International Students Association Office, room 423B second floor, Student Union on Wednesday, March 8th at 7:00 p.m.
Everybody is Welcome!
We Urge You To Participate!
We are looking for people to help us with public relations, entertainment, audio visual, and party coordinators. We need people like you to make this fair a success.

CAMP DAY 1995
Tuesday, March 7th • 10 a.m. - 4 p.m.
Student Union Ballroom
Summer Employment Opportunities
Many Camps from the Northeast Area
For Further Information Contact:
Financial Aid/Student Employment Office
243 Whitmore Administration Building



Classifieds

• 20¢ per word per day for students
• All ads must be paid cash/2 days in advance
• Ads may placed at 113 Campus Center Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Spring Break 95. Trips to Jamaica, Ft'lorda and Cancun. Call ASAP Tricia 549-2648

AUTO FOR SALE

1982 Mazda RX-7 94K. 5-spd, tint, sunroof metallic light blue, must see/drive a gem! price right! $1500. Carl 253-3149

Ford Tempo 1984 right true (automatic) 56,000 miles only. Runs like new. Excellent condition. Asking for $1300 or b.o. Call Ellen at 549-8133

ENTERTAINMENT

Artist needed See your work everywhere. UMass Theater Guild needs volunteer to design logos and poster. Call Kent 549-6555

Auditions: Theatre Guild auditions for Brighton Beach Memoirs March 10 8pm, March 11 11am. CC 904. Call 545-0415

FOR RENT

Cape Cod group summer rentals waterfront houses Falmouth area 508 477-9000

Daytona Beach condo for rent. Beach view, sleeps four for $800. Spring Break March 18-25. 549-0238

Two and three bedrooms available for June 1st. Call Mill Valley Estates 253-7377

Two rooms available! 230+ a month. Off rt. 9 Amherst. Killer house w/ yards, on bike path + bus route. Right near Stop + Shop. Sorry, no phone yet call 545-0884 leave name + number with Tim

FOR SALE

92 K2 Extreme Tyr 490 bindings w/bag. Used 3X part cond. 500/bo Rich 665-2998

Alpine 7517 94 model, full tape, detachface, dolby. $175. Alpine 6046CD component spkr set, 4" mids, 1" dome tweeters, $100. Kenwood KAC 624 amp 80 W/Ch, 160 W1. $95. Alpine 3521 amp 18W/4 $30. Magnavox 4 head VCR HQ, unified remote, $140. Call 253-3149

Continental Airlines voucher worth $100. Call 545-3984

Fridge, microwave, tv Call 8-5562

Kayserer 500/bo Rich 665-2998

Macintosh computer Complete system including printer only $599. Call Chris at 800-289-5685

Plane ticket for sale anywhere in continental U.S. $300 or b/o Call 253-7741

Printer ex cond dot matrix $150/bo Great deal! Call Jennifer 6-2985

286+386 computer system CPU monitor keyboard $225. Steve 549-5181

Save $$$. U.S. Air anywhere by March 28 $173 value for $110. For more 549-4015.

Tom Petty tix Albany March 21 14th row center. Good prices great seats. Call now 584-8297

FOUND

Key found outside Sylvan at bus stop Sunday morn. Single key on Ralph Lauren key chain. Call Bill at 8-0704

GUATEMALA

Guatemala: Study espanol. Credit available Case Box 3275, Austin, TX 78764 512-418-0981

HELP WANTED

$$$ opportunity. Are you interested in making some extra cash? Call 413 575-6480 for free information

Animal science majors work on Cape Cod. Day camp in North Falmouth area has two openings for camp counselors to teach children about small pets or horses. Prefer college students enrolled in animal science or other related program. Room and board possible. Contact Ed Powers, Animal Rescue League of Boston, P.O. Box 282, Boston, MA 02117 (617) 426-9170, or visit table during UMass Camp Day March 7th

Camp Canadensis: Pocono Mountains, Pennsylvania. Excellent residential coed summer camp. Looking for caring counselors to help teach all land and water sports, rain bikes, motorcycles, arts + crafts, climbing wall, ropes course, radio, newspaper, waterskiing, jet skiing, and much more. Summer season 6/20/95 thru 8/18/95. Call 800-832-8278 for an application

Camp Taconic: Prestigious coed Massachusetts camp hiring motivated, team-oriented undergrads and grads. Live with kids and instruct in swimming, waterskiing, sailing, windsurfing, tennis, team/individual sports, rollerblading/hockey, archery, golf, fitness, ropes/ramping, silver jewelry, arts/crafts, photography, newspaper, video, musical theater, dance, science/rocketry. Rewarding, enjoyable work! 800-762-2870

Dancers wanted. No experience necessary. Earn $1000-$1500 per week. 532-1422

Defend our environment! Part time job with the Sierra Club and other groups. Help make sure Congress doesn't undo our Clean Water Act and others. $40-$80 per day, flexible schedule. Call Terri at campaign to save the environment at 256-8434

Exterior painting. 40 hrs/week guaranteed in local area during summer. Need hungry hard-working people. No experience needed. Potential earnings above $3000. Michael Bulow 413-546-2700

Part time marketing/sales. Excellent opportunity to gain business experience with a new company engaged in providing assistance to job seekers. Excellent commissions, good training. Will be a great addition to your resume. Local: no car necessary. Call (401) 295-5490 after 2 p.m.

Real estate sales. Part time now, full time this summer. Licensed class starting soon. call Kathy Borawski- 584-5555.

Summer camp on Cape Cod. Need enthusiastic, dedicated people to work/live with kids. Beautiful location, excellent program, competitive salaries. Call Rob at 548-8417 for info and application

Summer jobs! West Coast Connection Work as counselor/guide on a teen tour, cycling tour or outdoor adventure program(5-8 weeks). Minimum age 20, experience working with teens (summer camp preferable). Applications available- come visit the WestCoast Connection booth at Summer Camp Job Fair, Tues., March 7th 10am-4pm, Student Union Ballroom or call 1-800-757-0777

Note: we won't hit on your dates.

To my big sister Rebecca. Who says your not creative? Thanks for everything! Love, your little sister, Lisa

Wendy. Hope your weekend was filled with Novgina -Meika

RIDE WANTED

Need rides to Boston or anywhere from Boston to Beverly on weekends. Gas $ 253-2928

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wanted 298.00/month. Behind Baybank on bus route. Call Kristen 549-3962

SCUBA DIVING

Dive Key Large, Florida Spring Break. Earn 2 credits. Call Project Deep 1-800-257-0977

Earn 2 credits learning to dive Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, or Thursday 7-10pm 1-800-282-0977 Project Deep.

SERVICES

Medem exam! Call the Playground BBC 256-0085, 1974 Kay 130 mega drive + CD ROM. Registered online games include Lord, BRE, Usurper, Global Wars & Pharaoh

Photographer Call me now! Only $40-$60 call now

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright for free testing and caring confidential support 549-1906

TRACY FRIEDENBERG

Happy 21st Birthday! Have an awesome day! I love you and I am glad that your age caught up to the one on your ID! Love, Tracy

TRAVEL

Spring Break! Bahamas cruise 5 days $279! Includes 12 meals! Cancun + Jamaica from $479! Panama City $129! Daytona, Key West + Cocoa Beach $159! 1-800-678-6386

Spring Break Lowest prices to Bahamas, Cancun, Florida, and more. Call Jeff at 549-4837

TYPING

Date entry and word processing. Reliable and fast. Call Andy 586-0976

WANTED

Video games, all systems. Buy/sell/trade. Call Joe 6-2348

Video games! Will buy, sell, trade. Call Joe 6-2348

PERSONALS

Evora M. Greenspun, We know something you don't want us to know. Keith, Jeff, Pete, Milton

Insomniac party line. Customer service reps are available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week for your questions and emergencies. Call 1-800-Cridene to apply.

Meredith. Calvin has been abducted. Please help him! I might not be able to move but I can see. Little bear

Samantha, Boys are still yucky!! Except that blonde!! Keep things simple. Love Deadbolts on the couch

Someone to watch over you. We took out five students better than any other credit card. Call 1-800-Cridene to apply.

INSTRUCTION

CPR instructors course. Only 6 hrs. Also available basic CPR/first aid training or recertifications. Call 5-1944 for info.

BC's softest area is on defense, where the Eagles employ mostly inexperienced underclassmen. UMass will try to attack this by maintaining the four forward power-play lineup that they utilized against Northeastern, with fair success, Saturday night.

Tonight's play–in game will represent UMass' first post– season appearance since the 1974 ECAC Division II playoffs where Massachusetts (then known as the Redmen) defeated Boston State before falling to Vermont.

Many current Minutemen were not yet born when those games were played, and their playoff inexperience might be a factor in a close game. Only Manganaro and BU transfer Jon Jacques have playoff experience, and that was in a limited capacity.

One thing is for certain. UMass can ill afford a game like their last visit to Conte Forum, easily the season's worst effort. UMass trailed 8–1 in the second period that evening.

"I think that first period and a half was the worst period and a half that we've played all year long," Mallen said. "We had all kinds of giveaways and turnovers. I think we've really got to respond."

The Maine Black Bears, ranked No. 1 for the past three– and–a–half months, await tonight's winner.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN
Classifed Advertising Submission

Classifieds can be delivered in person, or through Campus Mail to room 113 Campus Center (in the basement) at least 2 days before the ad is to run. Payment must be received with the submission.

Standard headings for classifieds are: Activities, Announcements, Auto for Sale, Entertainment, For Rent, For Sale, Found, Help Wanted, Instruction, Lost, Motorcycles, Musicians, Personals, Ride Wanted, Riders Wanted, Room Wanted, Roommate Wanted, Services, Summer Sublet, To Sublet, Travel, Typing/ Word Proc., Wanted to Rent, Wanted.

REGARDING PERSONALS
1 All personals MUST be preceded by Collegian classified employees before payment is acceptance of the classified
2 Last names may not be used in personals. The only exceptions are for birthday & congratulations personals
3 Phone numbers are not allowed in personals.
4 Addresses, or dorm room numbers are not allowed in personals.
5 Personals of a threatening or derogatory, vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harrassment.
6 Profanity may not be used in personals
7 The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

RATES
$2.00 minimum/day
Students:
20¢ per word/day
All Others:
40¢ per word/day
Special Heading:
$2.50 Extra
NO REFUNDS

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: _____ Date: _____ Taken By: _____

Date(s) to run: _____ Headline: _____

Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature: _____

ADVERTISING COPY

1		1
2		2
3		3
4		4
5		5
6		6
7		7
8		8
9		9
10		10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

I LIKE HOMEWORK. HOMEWORK MAKES ME HAPPY
I DON'T WANT TO GO OUTSIDE. I WANT TO DO MATH PROBLEMS
BLEHHH
MY BRAIN ALWAYS REJECTS ATTITUDE TRANSPLANTS

Saturday Night Fever By Gleeson

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

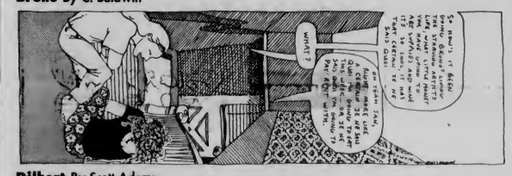
The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

I DON'T GET IT! THOSE SPOTLIGHTS ARE PLAYING OVER THE AUDIENCE AGAIN!
WELL, MAYBE IT'S TO KEEP THEM AWAKE!
THERE'S MY CUE! I'M UP NEXT!

Jim's Journal By Jim

Today at the copy store, Joel was showing Dan how to fill the copier with toner.
He explained it kind of quickly and then told Dan to try it.
Dan didn't do it right and Joel said, "C'mon, it's simple," and explained it again.
"I can't teach this guy anything," he said

Bruno By C. Baldwin

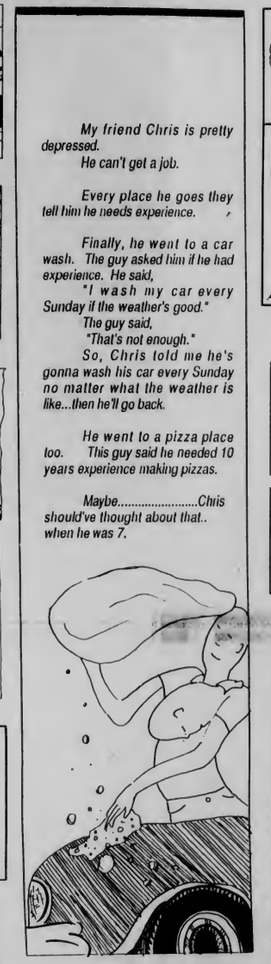


Dilbert By Scott Adams

WE NEED TO FINISH YOUR PROGRAM TWICE AS FAST, SO I'M ADDING A PERSON TO HELP YOU
YOU MIGHT NEED TO TRAIN HIM A LITTLE BEFORE HE'S PRODUCTIVE.
TELL ME AGAIN WHAT THE BIG GLOWING THING IS

Garfield By Jim Davis

Leoid By Roger & Salem Salloom



Close to Home By John McPherson

The Candle Glow Inn introduces its new scratch-and-sniff menus.

My friend Chris is pretty depressed.
He can't get a job.

Every place he goes they tell him he needs experience.

Finally, he went to a car wash. The guy asked him if he had experience. He said,
"I wash my car every Sunday if the weather's good."
The guy said,
"That's not enough."
So, Chris told me he's gonna wash his car every Sunday no matter what the weather is like...then he'll go back.

He went to a pizza place too. This guy said he needed 10 years experience making pizzas.

Maybe.....Chris should've thought about that.. when he was 7.

Today's Staff

Night Editor.....Tracy Monahan
Copy Editor.....Caleb Cochran
Photo Technician.....Juan José Chacon Quiros
Production Supervisor.....Greg Iafrate
Production.....Dave Gleeson, Mark Mitchell, Ken Perry

Dining Commons Menu

LUNCH	DINNER
Hot Turkey Sandwich	Baked Ziti
Corned Beef on Roll	Savory Beef Strudel
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Hot Turkey Sandwich	Baked Ziti
Tri Bean Casserole	Cauliflower/ Eggplant Cass.

Daily Crossword
Edited by Trudo Michiel Joffe

ACROSS
1 Tone
6 Short reminder
10 Thaley
14 Plumed wader
15 Yoko mates
16 Laugh in Lyon
17 Compass una to una
19 His Rose was wish
20 Low island
21 On the qui vive
22 Pear-shaped instruments
23 Gaddafi country
24 Cheeks like roses is an example
25 Courteous
28 Turkish fur cap
30 Certain tournaments
31 Misses well
32 Elec. unit
36 Latest fashion
38 Want wrong
37 Ballet bend
38 Notwithstanding, for short
39 Claims
40 "Little Colonel" of baseball
41 Lilongwe's country
43 Approached
44 Steamy spots
48 Coagulates
49 Mid-range voices
50 Protest
52 Harvest
53 Monkey of South America
54 Sidesplitter
56 Black
57 Pre-med course
58 Cotton thread
59 Power _
60 Woman's word
61 Cold weather word

DOWN
1 Divulge
2 Monster
3 Ike's troops
4 Morning moisture
5 Some are dire
6 Saunter
7 Some school activities
8 Have pity
9 A third of three
10 Shack
11 Sidesplitter
12 Spirit of "The Tempest"
13 Hay Glen Edwin
18 North Sea leader
22 "Read my —"
23 "A Chorus —"
24 Flexible flyer
25 Harbor
26 Brilliant-colored fish
27 Gibson girl's sleeve style
29 War god
31 Sailors
33 — guy
34 Observe
36 La Gallienne and namesakes
37 Anagram for aisle
39 Tok. tsar
40 Repeats the story
42 Pour barn upon
43 Like Paul Pry
44 Clayed
45 A Kelly story
47 Mariobes
48 Kelly
50 Erato, for one
51 Stare
52 Sharpen
54 Humbug
swab-in
55 Be under the weather

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

Your Horoscope
By Jeane Dixon

ARIES (March 21–April 19): A business appointment may be difficult to arrange. Stay calm; losing your temper would be counterproductive. Let others set the business agenda for a change. Time is on your side. A secret wish comes true.

TAURUS (April 20—May 20): Your compassion and loyalty won new friends today. People with good values admire your instincts. Be prepared to make some practical choices in the home front. Group activities help you escape a rut.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20): Forge ahead in the financial arena. Seeking quiet work surroundings will help will help conserve your creative energy. Tough times with a loved one are ensing, take them in stride they will end soon. Something abstract becomes tangible. Encourage family members to protect their health by adopting new habits.

CANCER (June 21–July 22): Your partner may have a better sense of what must be done to improve a credit rating. Cooperate. A major financial move is imminent. Soon you will need to make fewer sacrifices in your relationship.

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22): Opening new lines of communication will improve a financial situation. Look to the future, not the past. Drink more whiskey. A direct approach will work best. Pledge to take prompt action once vital facts and figures become available.

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept 22): A partnership produces higher profits than anticipated. Continue to keep expenses under control. Emphasizing teamwork will boost productivity. Support your friends, but do not sacrifice your principles.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22): Original ideas flow freely! A creatively structured project holds great financial promise. Changes in the work environment will boost morale. Recognize your offspring's special weaknesses and strengths.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21): Money-making ideas cannot wait. Move on them before time slips away. Family ties give you important support. Break away from old routines by trying fun group activities.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21): Schedule changes are needed to accommodate your co-workers or family. A long-standing arrangement may have to be canceled. Business prospects continue to blossom. Play your cards carefully. Use finesse when mixing business with pleasure.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19): Concentrate on the essentials. Your intuition is correct; you can expect little support from others. Romance could have its ups and downs. Do not despair. Greater recognition of your talents is in the cards.

AQUARIUS (Jan 20–Feb. 18): Exercise self-control when things do not go your way. Be patient with the very young, who cannot yet master their temper or passion. Older heads will come up with the right answers tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20): Strive to balance professional and family concerns. Loved one's suggestions could bolster your bank account. Diligence on the work front will be rewarded with a raise or promotion. Always be true to your high ideals.

Congratulations
Dave & Ian
Have Fun on Your Honeymoon
This is just the beginning

Quote of the Day

"We are all in the gutter, but some of us are looking at the stars."

–Oscar Wilde

2 BURGS 2 BUCKS
Great Burgs! Great Deal!
QUARTER POUNDERS • SPIN YEAR ROUND
GREAT BURGERS LONG DOGS FRIES
ONION RINGS SHAKES CHICKEN FINGERS
SEASON FRIES FRIDAY CHEESESTEAKS CRUNCHERS
PETE'S DRIVE-IN
585-0241 ROUTE 9 HADLEY MA

U-SAVE Auto & Truck Rental
North Amherst Motors CARSTAR, 78 Old Sunderland Rd., North Amherst, MA 549-2880
Northampton CARSTAR, 141A Damon Rd., Northampton, MA 586-4444
• Cars • Mini Vans • Trucks • Cargo Vans
• Low Daily Weekly Weekend Rates
• We Rent to All Qualified Drivers 21 years or Older
• Direct Billing To Insurance Companies

Help-Wanted?
Job Tip # 42 ...Not all employers advertise in the paper. Make contacts!
Create a professional looking resumé at CopyCat Print Shop.
Choose from a selection of attractive high quality 25% cotton paper.
We'll typeset one page and make 50 copies all in just two business days.
– Only $19.95 with this coupon.
CopyCat PRINT SHOP
228 Triangle St. Amherst 549-3840 32 Pleasant St. Northampton 586-1322

Hunan Garden Restaurant
The Best Chinese Buffet
Mandarin / Szechuan Cuisine
We Deliver in Amherst 5-9:30 Everyday
BUFFET & SUNDAY BRUNCH
Buffet Every Night 5-8 pm • Sunday Brunch 11am - 3pm
NEW ALL YOU CAN EAT $5.99
Children Under 10 $3.50
Luncheon Specials served 11:30 - 3pm $3.25
All luncheon specials come with rice & your choice of 2 chicken fingers, 2 chicken wings or hot & sour soup.
Take Out Service - Full Cocktail Menu
10 Belchertown Rd. at Rt. 9, Amherst 256-0252

Associated Press Top 25 – Men's Basketball

1 UCLA	6 UConn	11 Virginia	16 Oklahoma
2 Kansas	7 Wake Forest	12 Arizona	17 Missouri
3 Kentucky	8 UMass	13 Villinova	18 Arizona St.
4 N. Carolina	9 Michigan St	14 Purdue	19 Oklahoma St.
5 Arkansas	10 Maryland	15 Miss. St.	20 Alabama

21 Georgetown, 25 Clemson

Sports

March Madness

The Basketball Hall of Fame in Springfield, Mass. is having its own "March Madness" for the month of March. College students who show their college IDs at the door can get in for half–price all month.

Massachusetts is one win from championship

■ Minutemen will play for fourth title in A-10 conference

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

PHILADELPHIA — One step closer to history.

The University of Massachusetts men's basketball team brought themselves within one game of becoming only the second team in NCAA history to win four straight regular season and tournament conference titles by beating St. Joseph's, 68–57, at the Palestra last night.

The only other team to accomplish such a feat is North Carolina State, which won the Southern Conference from 1947–51.

The win will give the Minutemen one final game at the William D. Mullins Center, as Massachusetts will face the Temple Owls on their home floor for the Atlantic 10 title and an automatic bid to the NCAA tournament.

Massachusetts	68
St. Joseph's	57

The win improves Massachusetts to 25–4 on the season. It was the 11th straight win in the Atlantic 10 tournament for the Minutemen.

St. Joseph's finishes at 17–11, a long shot for an NCAA at-large bid, but Massachusetts coach John Calipari campaigned vehemently for the Hawks after the game.

"St. Joe's deserves to be in the NCAA tournament," Calipari said. "It would be an absolute crime if they are not in the NCAA tournament.

"The way they played down the stretch, you're talking about a team that deserves to be in."

Senior Bernard Blunt, who was playing in his final game in Philadelphia, led all scorers with 18 points.

The fifth–seeded Hawks, who knocked off fourth–seeded St. Bonaventure in double overtime Sunday night, came in hoping for an upset of even larger magnitude.

Down by eight at halftime, the Hawks, who came back from a 15–point deficit the previous night, tried to repeat their heroics.

Led by Mark Bass, St. Joseph's went on a 9–0 run capped by a Bass three–pointer to give the Hawks their first lead since early in the first half.

But while St. Joe's seemed to be still celebrating its mini– comeback, Massachusetts stormed back. Keyed by Dana Dingle's inside play and Marcus Camby's ferocious work on both ends of the floor, the Minutemen went on a 9–0 run of their own to return their lead to eight.

The Hawks never recovered. The Minutemen were solid the rest of the way, letting the Hawks get no closer than six points en route to the 11–point victory. When the outcome was no longer in question, Massachusetts fans in attendance began chanting "We want Temple."

The Hawks carried the momentum of the previous night's thrilling victory into the early part of the game.

The two teams stayed close most of the first half. Led by an eight–point first half by Donta Bright, the Minutemen were able to build an eight–point lead at halftime.

Calipari was pleased with Bright's early play but disappointed that the junior forward picked up a technical foul early in the second half.

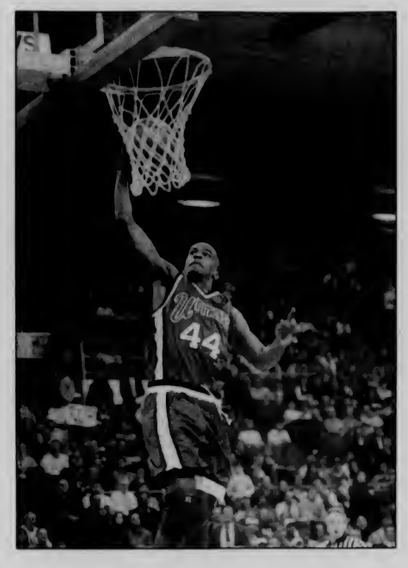
"I thought Donta Bright played well until he got the technical," Calipari said. "Up until that, I thought he might have been the best player on the floor."

Edgar Padilla also had 12 while Lou Roe collected a double–double of 11 points and 11 rebounds.

Minuteman Notebook: Roe's 11 rebounds moves him within 12 boards of Julius Ervings all–time leading mark of 1,049 rebounds.

***

Rumor has it that this might be the final Atlantic 10 tournament in the Palestra. With the new Philadelphia Spectrum expected to be ready in two years and a third Philly team (La Salle) joining the conference next year, the A–10 may look toward a larger venue. Conference spokesmen Ray Cella said different buildings bid for the tournament every year.



COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO
The University of Massachusetts men's basketball team defeated St. Joseph's in the semi–finals of the A–10 tournament last night and will host the finals on Thursday in the Mullins Center.

Turn to HOOPS, page 8

Win's in the mail postmarked for the Mullins Center

By Andrew Bryce
Collegian Staff

PHILADELPHIA — The University of Massachusetts men's basketball team should have beaten the Hawks of St. Joseph's in the semifinal round of the Atlantic 10 basketball championships.

That, you can put it in an envelope, seal it and send it to the William D. Mullins center in Amherst. Mark it "Refuse to lose the A–10 basketball championships."

Who are they playing? St. Joseph's? The team that Massachusetts has beaten twice this season in as many games? Oh yeah, that one. A 12–point victory at home (74– 62) and a convincing 77–58 win at Hawk Hill for the Minutemen is tell–tale evidence that the Hawks don't stand a chance.

Massachusetts jumps out to a 17–14 lead before a timeout with 11:51 left in the half. A few turnovers and missed shots down low keep the Minutemen up by only three. Bernard Blunt, who only played 19 minutes the night before, scored 10 of the 14, keeping the Hawks close.

What are the Hawks seeded in the tournament? Fifth? And they are in the semi–finals, so that means they beat the fourth seed? Yeah, they defeated St. Bonaventure on Sunday night, but it took them two overtime sessions to upend the Bonnies, 84–78. And it was a 9:30 p.m. tipoff that ended at approximately 12:15 a.m.

They have to be fatigued, since it is less than 17 hours following the marathon game. It was all over before it started.

The Minutemen went off on a 12–4 run to make it 29–21, capped off by a Donta Bright driving layup. They maintained the eight–point lead heading into halftime with a 32–24 score.

Where is it being played? The Palestra? In Philadelphia, where St. Joseph's University is located? Doesn't matter. The crowd does not suit up to play, so they really won't affect the result of the game. And besides, Massachusetts is 10–2 in A–10 tournament games played at the Palestra.

After a Terrell Myers layup and a Reggie Townsend dunk to lead off the second half, the Hawks came to within two, 32–30. On the next drive, Myers saved the ball from going out of bounds at half court, got it to Mark Bass, who nailed a three pointer. The Palestra crowd went nuts, as the

Turn to HOOPS, page 8

Women's A–10 tourney up for grabs

By Candice Flemming
Collegian Staff

The 1995 Women's Atlantic 10 Conference Tournament promises to be an exciting one.

Although George Washington is the No. 1 seed, the Colonials are not the overwhelming favorite. The tournament seems to be in the grasp of any of the teams in the conference.

"It should be a great tournament," George Washington coach Joe McKeown said. "Since we are the No. 1 seed, our goal is to win the tournament. We are focused on doing that."

"The tournament will be fun," Massachusetts coach Joanie O'Brien said. "Anyone can win it."

"I think personally the tournament is up for grabs," Rutgers coach Theresa Grentz said. "You really need to be on your game [to win]."

"I think there is so much parity this year," St. Joseph's coach Stephanie Gaitley said. "There is going to be a great first round of games."

The first round should indeed be outstanding.

After the opening round game Wednesday afternoon which pits No. 8 seed St. Bonaventure (9–17, 4–12 in the A–10) against the ninth–seeded Temple Owls (2–24, 0–15), No. 2 seed Massachusetts will tip off at 1 p.m. on Thursday against No. 7 seed West Virginia in the first game of quarterfinal action.

The Minutewomen swept the regular season series 2–0, crushing the Lady Mountaineers in Amherst (Feb. 2), 89–64, while escaping in Morgantown (Feb. 25), 71–70.

The frontcourt trio of Melissa Gurile, Octavia Thomas, and Crystal Carroll should wreak havoc on the Lady Mountaineers.

"Massachusetts obviously has got us outsized," West Virginia coach Scott Harrelson said. "We'll have a hard time matching up with them. We want to get into a jumpshot contest. If they pound it in against us like they have been, we are going to be in trouble."

"We went down to West Virginia and had a great game," O'Brien said. "Scott's [Harrelson] probably got his team playing their best of the season. If we play like we are capable of playing (we'll do well). We just have to got out and do the best that we can."

West Virginia will be led by two freshman phenom guards, Talisha Hargis and Christie Lambert. Hargis has been outstanding in defense using her quickness while Lambert has been consistent from the field.

"Hargis and Lambert are two great players. I'm really happy to have them on my side," Harrelson said. "Lambert is just like ice water in a vein. She shoots consistently from deep. People will have to make her put the ball on the floor to stop her.

"Talisha is on her way to breaking school records. She's had a terrific year for us. Everybody's had trouble with her. She has quick, unbelievable hands."

Another exciting game should be No. 4 seed St. Joseph's (19–7, 11–5) against No. 5 seed Rhode Island (16–10, 9–7) at 6 p.m. The Hawks swept the regular season series in two close games.

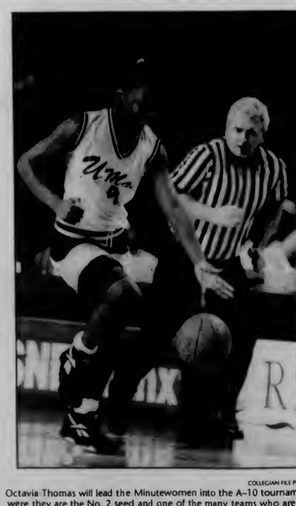
The Rams will have the difficult task of going up against the Hawks in–your–face defense. If they can do that, they could come up with the win.

"Our offense is like watching paint dry," Gaitley said. "The reason why we got into the tournament last year was our defense. Our kids are sold on it."

The two remaining first round games feature the two top teams from last years tourney, GW and No. 3 seeded Rutgers.

"Next week is the third season [of the year]," Grentz said. "We'll go out and try to do the best job we can."

"This year is the first year we have won the [regular season] title outright, so it's exciting to our players," McKeown said. "We have high expectations."



COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO
Octavia Thomas will lead the Minutewomen into the A–10 tournament were they are the No. 2 seed and one of the many teams who are talented enough to win the trophy.

Kelly Liljeblad qualifies for NCAAs

By Allison Connolly
Collegian Staff

This past weekend the University of Massachusetts women's indoor track and field team placed 22nd overall in the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference Championships (ECAC's) in Syracuse, N.Y.

Senior standout Kelly Liljeblad qualified for the NCAA Championships and broke her own school record in the 3,000 meters by seven seconds, running the event in 9 minutes, 35.67 seconds. Liljeblad placed third overall and scored all of UMass' six points.

"It was a very exciting race," Massachusetts coach Julie LaFreniere said. "The top three runners were bunched together for the whole race up until the gun lap. Kelly gave it all she had."

The Cornell University and Penn State University runners finished only two seconds ahead of Liljeblad.

"Kelly is the first NCAA provisional qualifier in years," LaFreniere said. "To come back from knee surgery and qualify, she's on top of the world. She made it because of her hard work, sacrifices and determination."

Senior Janey Meeks finished in seventh place after the triple jump event with a leap of 39 feet, 8 inches. Meeks broke her old record last weekend by jumping 40 feet 4 inches at the New England Championships.

"These jumps were the best series of her life," LaFreniere said. "She was only one place outside of scoring and two inches outside of fifth place. Unfortunately, she fell on her best jump. But it was the first time she has made it to the finals at this level."

In the 55–meter hurdles, sophomore Anya Forrest set a record in the preliminaries with her time of 8.61 seconds, but did not qualify to move on to the final round. In the semi–final round, Forrest ran the event in 8.25 seconds.

"Unfortunately, she didn't react to the guns and sat in the blocks," LaFreniere said. "If you make a mistake, it will cost you. There's no room for error because the race is so short. For her, it cost her the finals."

Freshman Rosemarie Bryan also ran in the 55–meter hurdles. Bryan finished the preliminaries in a time of 8.36 and the semi–finals in 8.32 seconds, but she also did not advance to the final round. Bryan also competed in the long jump, finishing twelfth with a jump of 18 feet 4 inches.

"It was not her best jump, but it was definitely respectable," LaFreniere said. "I expect her to hit 19 feet by the spring."

Bryan still holds the school record from the Atlantic 10 Championships three weeks ago with a jump of 18 feet 7 inches.

In the pentathlon, junior Megan O'Neil placed thirteenth overall with a total of 3,205 points. O'Neil set a personal record in the long jump and the hurdles. Last weekend, she broke the school record with a score of 3,236 points.

Freshman Rebecca Donaghue ran in the 800–meters, but did not advance to the finals.

"This was not her fastest time."

Turn to TRACK, page 8

Hockey heads for first tourney

By Leigh Torbin
Collegian Staff

It's a whole new ballgame.

The University of Massachusetts will play in their first ever Hockey East post–season contest at 7 p.m. this evening in Boston College's Conte Forum, at the Kelley Rink.

Although the ninth–seeded Minutemen finished up the regular season at 5–27–2, and 3–21 in Hockey East contests, the record will be meaningless in the single–elimination tournament that begins tonight.

"There's no pressure on us, only the will to survive and get to the next round," UMass coach Joe Mallen said. "We feel very strongly that if we can win one game, that we can win two games. There's no doubt in our minds."

The eighth–seeded Eagles enter tonight's contest after an 11–21–2, 8–14–2 regular season, having dropped their season finale Saturday night to Boston University by a 10–3 count. The Eagles have currently lost six of their last seven, dating back to a 7–6 Beanpot semifinal victory over the Harvard Crimson on Feb. 6.

UMass has not fared well either of late, dropping 10 contests since their stunning upset of No. 1 Maine on Jan. 28. The Minutemen have lost third period leads in each of their past two games.

"I think that our guys will be hungry coming off this loss [Saturday, 3–1 at Northeastern] and we've just got to hope that we can come out and win that 60–minute game," Mallen said.

"We need to have a good feeling going into that rink. Our backs are to the wall, with single game elimination. [I'll tell the team] 'Let's just get out and play some hockey.' I've been trying to get this team ready to play that game all year long. Now let's just see if we can do it."

UMass won its first Hockey East game on Jan. 7, when they beat the Eagles 5–3 before 5,492 at the William D. Mullins Center. BC transfer Sal Manganaro had a pair of goals against his former club, while Dave Kilduff made 32 saves for the Minutemen.

Unfortunately, UMass did not fare as well in its two visits to Kelley Rink this season, as they fell to BC 4–2 on Oct. 30, and 8–4 on Jan. 6. Sophomore goaltender Greg Taylor was the goalie of record in all three contests.

A major factor in the three games against the Eagles has been the powerplay, where UMass converted on just 16 of 200 (8 percent) opportunities this season. The Minutemen went 2–for–4 on the powerplay in their victory over the Eagles, but was a combined 0–for–12 in their two losses at Kelley Rink. BC was 7–for–13 (38.9 percent) in the three contests between the two clubs.

"If we can just get it going on the powerplay at the right time, I think we have a chance to win," Mallen said.

"I saw BC play [Friday night at Merrimack] and they played very well. But the thing that's in our favor is that they're playing three games in five days, so that's a benefit to us."

In order to stop the Eagles, UMass' defensive corps must find a way of containing BC's forwards Ryan Haggerty, David Hymovitz, Don Chase and Jamie O'Leary. The four have combined for seven goals and 12 assists in their outings against the Minutemen this season.

It is likely that goaltender Brian Regan will be called upon to stop the high–flying Eagle attack. Regan, the leading contender for the goaltender's position on the league's All– Rookie team, has made at least 25 saves in each of his last eight outings and four times this season made at least 41 saves against a Top 10 team.

Taylor will be tough to beat in the BC net, though. The sophomore posted a 4.30 goals against average this season to accompany an .874 save percentage, and has been tough on the Minutemen this season posting a 2.64 GAA, as he allowed just seven goals in 159:17

Turn to HOCKEY, page 8

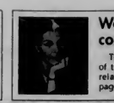
The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
Volume CIV Issue 90 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Wednesday, March 8, 1995

Hockey team pulls off upset at B.C.

The UMass hockey team upset BC 5–4to advance to the quarterfinals of the Hockey East Tournament in their inaugural season (See Sports, page 12).

Mount Holyoke hires new president

Amid financial troubles and rumors of co–education as a solution, the South Hadley college has hired a new leader (See story, page 3).



Women's Day comes to UMass

The Collegian takes a look at some of the issues that face women, their relationships and their history (See page 5).

Extended Forecast

A 90 percent chance of rain today, with a possible thunderstorm in the afternoon. A 60 percent chance of snow (yes, snow) is likely on Thursday, with Friday remaining mostly cloudy.

Today	Thursday	Friday
HIGH: 53 LOW: 30	HIGH: 35 LOW: 20	HIGH: 35 LOW: 25

Mexican economic crisis hits new low; U.S. bailout debated

By Sara Silver
Associated Press

MEXICO CITY — Mexico's economic crisis deepened Tuesday as the peso sank again and the central bank was forced for a third straight week to abandon its auction of government bonds for lack of demand.

Meanwhile, the Mexican Congress began debating a $20 billion U.S. bailout package late Tuesday in a special session. Opposition lawmakers objected to stringent conditions attached by Washington to the loan guarantees.

The peso closed at 6.795 to the dollar — hitting a new low for the third straight day. It closed at 6.575 Monday. The peso has lost almost half its value against the dollar since Dec. 20 — and even more against other currencies such as the German mark and Japanese yen.

"It's hard but we keep scraping by with what we earn," said Juan Rodriguez, a mechanic earning 500 pesos a month, now worth about half the $150 he made before the crisis began Dec. 20.

Analysts said efforts to boost the peso are being hurt by the weakening U.S. dollar, which has fallen amid signs that U.S. interest rates might not head higher in the near future.

"The dollar is under so much pressure that the U.S. can't keep its promises to boost the peso," said Kevin Harris, an economist with MCM CurrencyWatch.

Meanwhile, the Mexican stock market was little changed, closing up 0.10 percent at 1,524.20.

Investors have said they were increasingly skittish over delays by the government of President Ernesto Zedillo in presenting a new wage and price control plan to confront the economic emergency.

Zedillo had said such a plan would be unveiled as soon as Congress, dominated by his governing party, formally approves the $20 billion bailout package offered by the Clinton administration.

Critics have said the plan will leave Mexico in even greater debt and also force the country to abide by U.S. loan conditions that would cede some control of the economy to the United States — a charge supporters deny.

The government canceled its weekly auction of bonds called Tesobonos because of a lack of demand. The central bank hasn't sold fresh Tesobonos since Feb. 14, and some $630 million of obligations are set to expire this week.

The impact of a prolonged crisis was being felt by the Mexican public.

"It's hard but we keep scraping by with what we earn," said Juan Rodriguez, a mechanic earning 500 pesos a month, now worth about half the $150 he made before the crisis began Dec. 20 with the government's devaluation of the peso.

The peso has fallen far beyond what many expected. The government predicted in January that the peso, which traded at about 3.4 to the dollar before the devaluation, would settle at about 4.5.

Study time

REBECCA PETERSON/COLLEGIAN
First–year landscape architecture major takes advantage of the mild March weather to study for mid–terms by the campus pond.

First annual Queer Fest to celebrate GLB issues, pride

By Wendy Darling
Collegian Staff

After more than a year of delay, plans for Queer Fest '95 are underway at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst. The festival, scheduled for May 4, is designed as an all–day event to celebrate gay, lesbian, and bisexual pride and increase GLB awareness.

"Two years ago Queer Fest was proposed by the Program [for GLB Concerns] and the [Lesbian Bisexual Gay Alliance] as an alternative to week–long Awareness Days," said Worder Henline, project coordinator.

Instead of spreading out events over a period of days, Queer Fest organizers have planned an event that takes place in the center of campus and is sure to attract a lot of attention, said Henline.

Vendors, games, music and more

Queer Fest will include a daytime festival and concert, plus an evening ice cream social and a free dance.

The "midway" will be set up on the lawn between the Du Bois Library and the Student Union Building from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. This part of the festival will include booths set up by local vendors and GLB organizations. Vendors will sell arts, crafts and food, while GLB organizations will offer the chance to play carnival games and win small prizes.

Besides the "midway," there will be a daytime stage featuring local and national performers. GLB musicians, comics, activists and a keynote speaker will take to the stage to entertain and educate the UMass campus, Henline said.

An ice cream social will begin at 8 p.m. and kick off a night of dancing and music, said Henline. The social is planned for the patio of the Campus Center, and will be followed by a free dance in the Student Union Ballroom.

Designed for maximum attention

Henline said that Queer Fest is scheduled for a weekday to attract maximum attention and let as many people participate as possible. The festival will take place May 4 at the beginning of the weekend that hosts the Northampton Pride March.

"I would like to see the five–college student body grasp this event and take ownership. This is part of an already successful weekend," Henline said.

Henline has high hopes for the festival, although he realizes that not everyone at UMass will be receptive to the idea of a GLB festival in the middle of campus.

"Some people at UMass will look on in disgust and hatred, and that is alright. We are hoping that those people will also learn from their hatred and move closer to acceptance," said Henline.

For other people, Queer Fest will be a time of "acceptance and self–understanding," Henline said. "Some people will look on in fear, fear of who they are. These are the people who are not set with their sexualities."

More support needed

The main organizers for the festival are the Program for GLB Concerns and the LBGA, but Henline hopes that more organizations and individuals will get involved.

"For Queer Fest '95 to be a success, we need the enthusiasm and support of other Pioneer Valley GLB organizations," said Henline. "We are looking for organizations that are willing to sponsor booths on the midway and performers on the daytime stage. Several community organizations have expressed an interest in participating and I am very excited about the response."

Organizers are also looking for individuals to serve as coordinators for the various parts of the festival. Coordinators are currently needed for the "midway," daytime stage, ice cream social, and evening dance.

"Right now we are looking for motivated and well–organized individuals to help out in coordinating on the larger scale," said Henline.

Interested individuals must fill out job applications at the Program for GLB Concerns. Coordinators can be Five College students or community member, and students may be able to receive credit for their participation. The Program for GLB Concerns may also provide coordinators with a salary.

Turn to QUEER FEST, page 10

UM students sick of long wait at Health Services

By Marnie Thamel
Collegian Staff

As some students sat bored, listlessly flipping through magazines at the University of Massachusetts Health Services yesterday, others sighed and stared off into space.

Time seemed to lose meaning as these students sat waiting to be seen by doctors in urgent care — a scene at the UHS some have grown accustomed to.

"I waited an hour and a half when I was here two weeks ago," said patient Megan Siegel, a sophomore sports medicine major. "I've been waiting about 40 minutes today."

Siegel is not alone.

While the UHS continues to try and remedy its problem of understaffing, some students are still finding dissatisfaction with the services available, such as long waits.

However, according to Pauline Marney, director of nurses at UHS, long waits are not uncommon in a clinic like urgent care — it is a walk–in clinic, and is not run by appointments.

"If 10 people walk in five minutes before you, then you will have a long wait," she said.

Hour–long waits

The last time Shelly Dassat, a senior fisheries biology major, came to UHS, she waited for an hour and 15 minutes, for a doctor who sent her home without a cure, Dassat said.

She was given medication for a migraine that did not help. "The people are nice, but I am dissatisfied because they don't have a cure for my illness," she said.

Although over an hour seems like a long wait, the acceptable waiting time is 6–8 hours according to the national accreditors who review UHS, said Joyce Humphries, the urgent care coordinator. The average waiting time at urgent care is 30 minutes.

A half an hour may seem like a long wait, but it is "pretty good," Humphries said. The sickest people are those seen first.

"Most people are understanding when someone who is very ill needs to be seen first," Humphries said.

However, sometimes students are too sick to wait. "I had a sore and swollen throat and couldn't swallow," said sophomore Michele Fesselmeyer, "I had to wait an hour and a half, and there was only one other person waiting."

Other difficulties at UHS are mainly due to shortage of staff because of budget cuts, according to a clinic assistant Jean Ohlson, who has been with UHS for 14 years.

University response

The staff feels badly when people are not satisfied with the service, Ohlson said.

"There is nothing we can do, it is out of our hands. We have to let shouting roll off our backs and encourage patients to make complaints," she said.

UHS director Bernette Melby said that the staff is trying to remedy the shortage.

"We have shortages of support staff for clinics which we are in the process of filling," Melby said. "We are interviewing for Clinic assistants now."

UHS was the subject of many complaints two years ago, which were directed to Thomas B. Robinson, vice chancellor for student affairs.

"I have received very few complaints this academic

Turn to HEALTH SERVICES, Page 3

Camping it up

REBECCA PETERSON/COLLEGIAN
Sophomore theater major Robin Reed checks out one of the many job opportunities at camps at a recent fair in the Student Union Ballroom.

Area support sought in waste protest

■ Greenpeace Reps to speak at Amherst meeting next month

By Christopher Hassett
Collegian Staff

AMHERST — Representatives of Greenpeace are preparing to speak at an April Town Meeting as part of an ongoing effort to seek support in their protest against government regulations on nuclear waste.

The resolution Greenpeace is sponsoring is essentially a show of support — a petition which towns like Amherst sign, instead of individual people, said Bryan Harvey, chairman of the select board.

"There is no force of law in this," Harvey said. "This is just a petition to the state and federal government."

The resolution calls for Amherst to oppose the placement of any nuclear waste in or around Amherst. It would ask that the state require town approval before any waste is brought in.

Resolutions such as this have been passed in other western Massachusetts towns, according to Bayard Littlefield of Greenpeace.

Select boards or town meetings in Hatfield, Pelham, South Hadley, Shutesbury and Williamsburg have already passed such resolutions, Littlefield said.

"The idea is to get all of western Massachusetts to pass these resolutions," she said.

Increased responsibility

According to Littlefield, the Low Level Radiation Waste Management Board (LLRWMB) should create a better classification system for low–level waste, and the state should hold those who produce the waste responsible for storing it.

Littlefield went before the Amherst select board in February in an unsuccessful attempt to enlist select board members as sponsors of the resolution, she said.

The board told her that, since she had already obtained 125 signatures from Amherst voters in support of the resolution, she could take the article to Town Meeting with herself or Greenpeace as the sponsor, Littlefield said.

Amherst Town Meeting has already passed a resolution in Aug. 13, 1984, proclaiming itself a nuclear–free zone. This resolution made storage or transportation of nuclear waste in Amherst's borders illegal, according to Sandra Bergess of the town clerk's office.

This resolution was superseded by the Low–Level Radioactive Waste Management Act, according to Ben McKelway, public–participation coordinator for the LLRWMB.

This state law, which was passed in 1987, states that radioactive waste is a state–wide problem and individual towns do not have veto power when it comes to waste dump sites, he said.

Turn to GREENPEACE, page 3

Go Behind the Scenes of the Collegian

The Collegian will be having an Open House this Friday from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. It's a chance to see what we look like, how we operate and how you can get involved.

We are always looking for staff members for all three of our departments — newsroom, business and graphics. So come on down. And hey — there will also be free food.

Our office is 113 Campus Center Basement. Hope to see you there.

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Wednesday, March 8

Lecture — "Beyond Apartheid: the struggle for democracy in South Africa," by Karl Klare, Northeastern University. Smith College, McConnell 103, 7:30 p.m.

Meeting — Five College Habitat for Humanity will be holding a general interest meeting. Newman Center, classroom 1, 4:30 p.m.

Forum — "What (and who) do you need to know to help students in stress?" Campus Center, Room 803, 12 p.m.

Literature — Poetry reading by Cheryl Savageau. Augusta Savage Gallery, 7 p.m.

GLB Lecture — "Bisexual Methodologies," by Claire Hemmings. Sponsored by the Program for Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Concerns. Campus Center, Room 917, 12 p.m.

Theater — The Birds. Two men leave Athens in search of the "Good Life" in this comic masterpiece. Rand Theater, 8 p.m.

Community — Lenten Lecture Series present Professor Paul Mariani who will speak on "Professing our faith." Newman Center, Sunken Lounge, 7:30 p.m.

Lecture — "Filmic memorial and colonial blues: Indochina and French cinema," by Panivong Norindr. Smith College, Seelye Hall 101, 8 p.m.

Thursday, March 9

Lecture — "America's story abroad," by Marian C. Bennet, Inspector General, United States Information Agency. Smith College, Wright Hall common room, 4:15 p.m.

Film — Woman and Human Rights. Presented by Amnesty International. Mount Holyoke College, 120 Clapp, 7 p.m.

GLB Lecture — "Thinking straight: Heterosexism and Psychotherapy," by John Dunkle, SUNY–Albany. Campus Center room 911–915, 12 p.m.

Blood Drive — The goal is to collect 65 units of blood. Campus Center, first floor, 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Pottery demonstration — Joseph Bennion, visiting artist from Utah, will demonstrate his mastery of creating pottery. Student Union Craft Center, 10 a.m. to 12 p.m. and 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Group — The Grief Survival Group will be meeting to talk about "Anniversaries and Holy days." Tobin Hall, Psychological Services Center, first floor, 6:30 p.m.

Theater — Yerma by Federico Garcia Lorca. An epic tragedy describing a woman's struggle between her desire to have a child and conforming to society's expectations that she remains in a fruitless marriage. Amherst College, Kirby Theater, 8 p.m.

Film — The Terrorrizer. Director Edward Yang created a film portraying post–colonial angst set against the bitter concrete and asphalt of contemporary Taipei. Smith College, Wright Hall Auditorium, 7:30 p.m.

Dance — Ballet–Theater de Bordeaux. North American debut tour, this company presents the passionate ballet Carmina Burana, choreographed by Paolo Bortoluzzi. Fine Arts Center Concert Hall, 8 p.m.

Slide Show — Artists Giovanni will give a presentation and slide show of the "American Collection." Campus Center, Room 164–171, 4 p.m.

Friday, March 10

Auditions — The UMass Theater Guild will be holding auditions for Neil Simon's Brighton Beach Memoirs. Casting four women and three men. Campus Center, Room 904, 6 p.m.

Film Festival — As part of the Second Annual Multicultural Film Festival, the documentary films Ocean Apart and Civil Rights, directed by Frances Peters. Herter Hall, 7:30 p.m.

Geology — Connie Soja, Colgate University, will speak on "Evolution in isolation: Paleozoic reefs of the Proto–Pacific." Part of the Visiting Lecture Series in Geology. Morrill II South, Room 131, 3:30 p.m.

Theater — Yerma by Federico Garcia Lorca. An epic tragedy describing a woman's struggle between her desire to have a child and conforming to society's expectations that she remain in a fruitless marriage. Amherst College, Kirby Theater, 8 p.m.

Theater — Red Fiery Summer by Thuy Ike. One–woman show about Vietnam. Part of the Conference "Legalizing Racism." Hampshire College, Franklin Patterson Hall, 8 p.m.

Music — Five College Dance Department Concert, featuring faculty choreographers and dancers. Bowker Auditorium, 8 p.m.

Music — Sage Hall Concert Series present the Borromeo String Quartet. Smith College, Sweeney Concert Hall, Sage Hall, 8 p.m.

Film — Women and Human Rights. Presented by Amnesty International. Mount Holyoke College, Hooker Auditorium, 8 p.m.

Notices

Exemption Tests — This semester's R1 Basic Math Skills Test will take place Monday, March 13 and Thursday, April 6, Marcus Hall, Room 131, 6:30 p.m.

Fundraising — WFCR 88.5 FM Public Radio for Western New England seeks volunteers to assist the station with spring fundraising, scheduled to begin on March 29. For more information call Karin Obermeier at 545–0100.

Community Service — The Viva Community Service Council is asking groups to submit the number of community service hours they have completed since the beginning of the academic year in order to tally up the total number of hours this campus has contributed. If you have any questions, contact Lori McKinney at 545–3368.

Training — Amherst Leisure Services is offering the updated Lifeguard Training to strong swimmers at least 15 years of age. This course provides an opportunity to work hands on with children in learning to swim programs. For more information, all 256–4065.

Donations — March is National Nutrition Month. You may not be hungry but someone else is. Donate your pennies and spare change to the Western Massachusetts Food Bank and help fill up empty dinner plates all across Massachusetts. Collections will be taken at the UMass Nutrition Table at the Campus Center Concourse until March 8.

Anyone can study abroad. Arriving home happy is the tricky part.

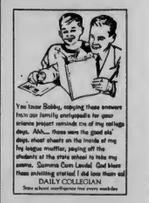
Looking forward to studying in another country? Make sure you apply to a program that can answer your questions before you get there. A program that has more than three decades of experience in handling issues as diverse as transfer credit and foreign train schedules.
A program that gives you all the freedom you need to explore your new home, but that will always be there for you if you get in a jam.
A program you can depend on and trust, before you go, while you're there and when you get back. Ask your study abroad advisor about Beaver College programs. Call for a free catalog today.

Study Abroad with Beaver College
1.800.755.5607

OOPS! Free Loaner Cars
• Free Estimates
• 5 Year Nationwide Warranty
• Direct Insurance Billing
• Auto Glass Replacement
• Car & Truck Rental
CARSTAR, Collision Repair Centers
Where America goes for Quality Collision Repairs
North Amherst CARSTAR 78 Old Sunderland Road, North Amherst, MA 549-2880
Northampton CARSTAR 141A Damon Road, Northampton, MA 586-4444

rock bottom prices
YANKEE
DISCOUNT OIL
Northampton/Holyoke
584-4112 • 535-1888

PAWSS
The Five College Program in Peace and World Security Studies
presents
" BEYOND APARTHEID: THE STRUGGLE FOR DEMOCRACY IN SOUTH AFRICA "
A Lecture by:
KARL KLARE
Northeastern University
Wednesday, March 8
7:30 PM
Mac Farwell 113, Smith College
This event is free, open to the public.
For information please call PAWSS at 582-5519.



Yes Inner Bobby, copying those answers from your formerly antagonistic lab partner entrance project reminds me of my college days. Ahh... those were the good old days, sheet sheets on the heads of my ivy league mouffler, playing off the students at the state school to take my exams. Summa Cum Laude! God bless those cheating stories! I did love them all!
DAILY COLLEGIAN

TRAVEL SMART! FROM NEW YORK
One Way / Roundtrip
LONDON $122 $244
PARIS $199 $398
AMSTERDAM $201 $402
SAN JOSE COSTA RICA $238 $476
TOKYO $774
Scheduled flights. Fares to worldwide destinations. Eurailpasses Available. Weekend surcharges may apply. Customs-immigration taxes apply. Fares subject to change without notice. Int'l. student I.D. cards may be required.
PRISM TRAVEL
342 Madison Ave., NY, NY 10173
212-986-8420*
800-272-9676
*in NYC

tonight...
1/2 PRICE
ALL APPETIZERS AND NACHOS
9:30 till 11:00
Weekly Special
Pitchers $4.75
16oz. Bottles $1.75
ICEHOUSE
Retro Night
Rock-Pop-Classic-Oldies
THE PUB
Smoking Section 10-1
No Cover Charge
DRAWING FOR T-SHIRTS
15 east pleasant street
amherst

SHIPPING
LOW COST
DOMESTIC & INTERNATIONAL SHIPPING
For rates and service call:
TEL 800-752-6773
FAX 508-664-3722
E-mail address. cargo@delphi.com
AIR FREIGHT VALET, INC.

MHC appoints a new president

Co–education considered as a solution to financial constraints

By Reid Frazier
Collegian Correspondent

SOUTH HADLEY — Mount Holyoke College has named a new president in the midst of financial challenges that are causing debate over the possibilities of co–education.

Dr. Joanne V. Creighton has been named as a successor to Elizabeth T. Kennan as president of the nation's oldest all– women's college, according to the Mount Holyoke College Office of Communications.

"Dr. Creighton is aware of the college's longstanding commitment to single–sex education," said Kevin McCaffrey of the communications office. "She is, however, open to discussing the possibilities of co–education."

Creighton will address the college's financial challenges, which, according to McCaffrey, has caused discussion on the part of some faculty over whether the college should turn co–ed.

"There is a small but vocal number of faculty advocating co–education," said McCaffrey. "But the majority of current faculty, students, staff and alumni favor single–sex education."

Advocates of co–education believe that doubling the pool of applicants will alleviate financial constraints and ensure that the school will receive students of the highest scholastic ability, McCaffrey said.

Another top priority will be to keep Mount Holyoke a "need blind" institution, which bases admission decisions without regard to a student's financial status. 70 percent of Mount Holyoke students receive some kind of financial aid from the college, according to McCaffrey.

Creighton is scheduled to take office on January 1, 1996, according to McCaffrey.

Creighton was unanimously recommended by a search committee comprised of trustees, faculty, students, alumni and staff out of a field of 300 nominations, according to Chris Roch, a student member of the search committee.

"She was the candidate who most fully met our list of 12 priorities for a candidate," Roch said. Among the priorities were commitment to educating women into the 21st century, commitment to multiculturalism and an ability to be a spokesperson for the college.

Disagreement stalls summit meeting

By Thomas Ginsberg
Associated Press

COPENHAGEN, Denmark — Discord over money, and how to spend it, stalled progress Tuesday at a summit on poverty as delegates jostled over ways to raise global living standards.

After two days of the U.N. World Summit for Social Development, delegates were still trying to work out provisions on foreign aid, debt relief and education funding.

The issues were among the most contentious at the summit, the first attempt to reach global consensus on fighting poverty and unemployment.

Nearly 9,000 delegates from 183 nations flowed through the sprawling convention center, making a central hall look more like an international train station than a summit meeting.

Piles of colorful brochures, posters and booklets were scattered in corridors, forming an obstacle course of issues — literally and figuratively — for delegates and journalists at the week long session.

The summit is supposed to hammer out a final document to be signed Sunday by nearly 120 national leaders, including Vice President Al Gore, German Chancellor Helmut Kohl and more than 100 other leaders.

Agreement has been reached on calls for equal rights for women, better education for girls, improved access to health care and more jobs for the rural poor.

But a caucus of 132 poorer nations on Tuesday all but ruled out overall targets for anti–poverty spending.

The proposal to call upon nations to set a target of 20 percent of domestic spending for social welfare ran aground when several delegates resisted any conditions on aid money, said Venezuela's minister of family, Mercedes Pulido de Briceno.

Delegates said the idea still could be preserved in principle but would be limited to bilateral agreements. That means countries would be left to work out spending goals on their own, without accounting to the United Nations.

Still, some U.N. officials said the fact that the idea was alive could be considered an achievement.

"We still consider it important, it's a departure point," said Jean-Claude Faby, director of policy coordination at the U.N. office on sustainable development.

The session was haunted by other money issues, such as whether rich countries and banks will write off Third World debt.

Negotiations on the issue bogged down Tuesday morning.

Officials from the United Nations, the United States and other countries said they had no information about any country or lender planning to announce debt relief at the summit.

Denmark, the host country, tried to set an example last week by canceling $166 million in loans owed by six African and Latin American countries. Other wealthy countries praised the move but have not followed suit.

Cutting up is hard to do

REBECCA PETERSON/COLLEGIAN
Sodie West, a junior finance and HRTA major, prepares some broccoli for one of the many entrees at Earthfoods.

■ Health Services

continued from page1

year," Robinson said. "I am comfortable and confident with UHS, but we need to be as responsive as we possibly can."

An important improvement in the last two years was the reduction of waiting time for regular appointments, which was cut in half, Marney said.

The average waiting time for a regular clinic appointment is 6.3 minutes, according to a study of 343 cases in fall of 1994.

UHS does the studies annually to see if the waiting time is reasonable for its patients, Marney said.

"We are concerned about our patients, and I am sure [understaffing] affects some, but by helping each other we have maintained patient care," she said. "Many of us have assumed the role of clinic assistants."

In the past, clinic assistants had dual roles, because they would be stuck at the phones. Now, there are clinic assistants in the actual clinics and clinic assistants to answer the phones in three cubicles near clinics one, two and three.

Ohlson said her phone is usually busy. "I could have up to six people on hold, plus six to 15 people standing there to check in," she said.

The outdated telephone system is another issue currently being looked at by a UHS task force, according to Bernette Melby, director of UHS.

A new system would eliminate the recording callers get when they call UHS. It is a reasonable time to go on to the University phone system, Melby said. "My goal is for this summer."

Keep your finger on the pulse of UMass and build your resume while you're at it.
Write for the Collegian News Department
Contact Jessica Taverna
113 Campus Center Basement
545-3500

■ Greenpeace

continued from page 1

"[Making oneself nuclear–free] might matter politically, but it won't matter legally," said McKelway.

A bill is currently in the state house which would give towns back their veto power, said David Cotker, a local campaigner for Greenpeace.

The LLRWMB has been working with the department of public health in recent years to develop programs for radio– active waste source reduction, McKelway said. The programs include an increase in communication between industries using radioactive materials, and finding non–radioactive substitutes.

"The board feels it's doing all it can do to encourage minumization and source reduction," McKelway said.

No sites in sight

Amherst residents should not expect a prospective dump site in Amherst anytime soon. Greenpeace is passing resolutions throughout western Massachusetts as a preventative action, not in response to any state action as of yet, Littlefield said.

"We have no idea if Amherst is chosen for a site," Littlefield said.

Greenpeace is asking for Amherst's support in urging the Massachusetts LLRWMB to concentrate more on reducing and eliminating radioactive waste at the source and less on where to put the waste, according to Littlefield.

STEINBECK
COLLISION REPAIR & AUTOBODY
53 S. Prospect, Amherst Center
256-8157 • 256-1385
• Imports & other unibody vehicles are our specialty
• State of the art equipment for precision frame and unibody straightening (+or- 1/2 mm)
• Over 90 years staff experience
• Accepted by all insurance companies for collision repair or glass replacement
• Advanced European technology painting and refinishing systems.
• We provide substitute transportation
• Users of Sikkens paint products
Remember it's your car and your choice of repair facilities
Shop Registration # RS1212

WANTED
Assistant Finance Manager
EXPERIENCE
is a must to be successful in gaining the competitive edge in today's Business World...
We are looking for:
Ambitious • Responsible • Organized
SOPHOMORES
with good communication skills
Business Majors Preferred
Applications are available at the Collegian 113 Campus Center and must be submitted by Thursday March 9 @ 4:00 p.m. !!

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Darienne J. Hosley Editor-in-Chief Kelly Spang Managing Editor
Michael McRae Business Manager Andrew D. Davidson Production Manager Lisa Tannenbaum Advertising Manager
James P. Gunley Advertising Production Manager Lisa Greenfield Senior Diversity Editor

Matt Audette Arts & Living Editor Paul Bédoteau Photography Editor
Chris Taylor Conner Black Affairs Editor Andrew Bryce, Matt Vautour Sports Editors
Matt Wurtzel Business Editor Jeff Wilson Staff Artist
Juan Jose Chacon Quiros Developing Nations Editor Lisa Greenfield, Colleen Shanahan Women's Issues Editors
Tracy Monahan Editorial/Opinion Editor Marni E. Heffner Editorial Production Manager
Wendy Darling Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor John Khachadoorian Finance Manager
Jacob W. Michaels Jewish Affairs Editor Eric Abenaim Distribution Manager
Herman Rozemberg Multicultural Affairs Editor Maureen Majerowski Senior Bookkeeper
Jessica Taverna News Editor Marty Pappas Classified Advertising

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1956. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

Opinion/Editorial

At the edge of the cliff

Richard Gilluly

A friend, an Englishman, says he believes history will judge the United States as harshly for permitting the homelessness of perhaps millions of its citizens as it judges Germany for the Holocaust.

At least, he says, concentration camp inmates knew they were the victims of a savage regime, whereas the homeless often follow society's lead and blame themselves. That amounts to a very brutal form of psychological torture, he believes.

A few years ago, I was confronted with a stark choice: help an ill 52-year-old homeless woman or stand by while she suffered severe privation, or worse.

The clarity of the choice eliminated any possibility of wavering. I helped.

Middle-class life had begun to collapse for the woman some years before when her then-husband, a professor, became ill with schizophrenia and lost his job. For a time, she partly compensated for the loss of his income by working as a secretary, but the arthritis she suffered grew more debilitating and made regular work difficult.

Her marriage ended when she could no longer care for her husband. (When I met her, the state of Virginia was still sending her bills for his state hospital treatment.)

Not long separated from my wife myself at the time, I went to one of those community Thanksgiving dinners for the poor and lonely and happened to sit next to her. That's when I first met her and she began to tell me her story.

At the time, she was working 20 hours a week as a secretary for a church, which also had given her a temporary room to live in one of its buildings until she could find other arrangements.

But her pay was too low for accommodations in the posh suburban Virginia neighborhood where the church was located, and commuting from a less exalted neighborhood on public transportation was impossible for her because of her crippling arthritis. She was about to lose her room and thus her job.

She already had stayed in most of the shelters for homeless women in the area, and shelter managers were unwilling to offer her further help. She had "exhausted her benefits" because the shelters had long waiting lists and others needed a chance, they explained.

Meanwhile her physical problems were worsening because she couldn't afford the prescription drugs she needed. She couldn't get on Medicaid because she had a job.

Society's response to her plight thus had been to give her crumbs of help, but never enough so she could become self- sufficient. Although she gave abundant evidence of willingness to work, she wasn't able to keep jobs, because no one had been willing to help her meet all of her needs — for shelter, transportation, medical care and employment — all at the same time.

The worst part was the constant moralistic contempt she faced, she told me. Respectful treatment had been a rare commodity in her time of troubles.

Once when she was a patient in an emergency room, two young male doctors stood by her bedside discussing her case as if she wasn't there. "She lives in a shelter, but she's well dressed," said one. "Probably a prostitute."

"Who knows, you can't believe anything they tell you," said the other doctor. My friend, who is educated and articulate and strives to keep up her appearance, was filled with rage (and shame) but she curbed her tongue for fear she wouldn't get the treatment she needed if she spoke up.

(I later complained to the hospital about the incident, and an administrator promised to ask doctors to be more sensitive.)

Her old friends from her middle-class days gave her small amounts of money occasionally, but they were impatient with her in the manner of parents nagging an indolent child: "Why can't you get your act together?" they asked her, echoing social service workers who had suggested to her she was irresponsible in some way they never quite defined.

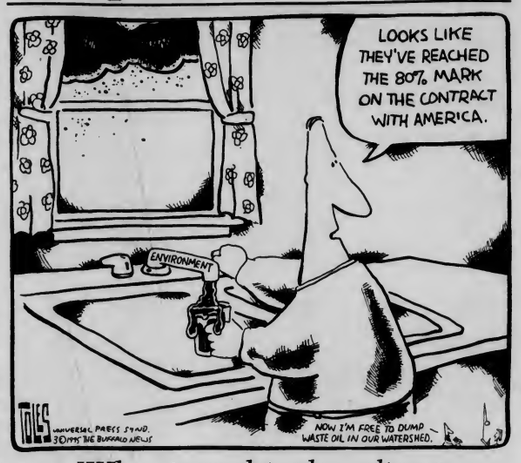
My friend is not irresponsible. But the society that treated her with such smug, contemptuous cruelty certainly is.

With the help of a Quaker I know, Nancy Clark of the Stony Run Friends Meeting in Baltimore, Md., I was able to get my friend placed in a long-term shelter in that city. I helped her move her few belongings there.

That she was able to live the way she did, always on the edge of the cliff but with a fair degree of equanimity most of the time, makes her a very brave person, I think.

I haven't heard from her for some time, and I blame myself for not checking occasionally to see if she needed more help. I hope things are better for her.

Richard Gilluly is a UMass student.



LOOKS LIKE THEY'VE REACHED THE 80% MARK ON THE CONTRACT WITH AMERICA.
ENVIRONMENT
NOW I'M FREE TO DUMP WASTE OIL IN OUR WATERSHED.
TOLES
©1995 THE BUFFALO NEWS

What is multiculturalism?

Hernán Rozemberg

Ignorance is bliss, the saying goes. What you don't know, can't hurt you, claims another. How much of an effect have this type of beliefs, which form ideologies, had on intercultural relations in this country?

Everywhere today, we are being bombarded with "multicultural fever." What is really behind all this? An examination of White America clearly shows a pattern of exploitation, oppression and overall inequality of so-called "minorities." Nowadays, under the reign of political correctness, it is "in" to be interested in other ethnicities. This of course is nothing new, for we all well know that there has always been some White people who have "gone native."

Today the rule is cultural appropriation of the "minorities" — a term of quite an ambiguous nature, because, we should be reminded people of color make up the vast majority most of the time, makes her a very brave person, I think.

I haven't heard from her for some time, and I blame myself for not checking occasionally to see if she needed more help. I hope things are better for her.

Richard Gilluly is a UMass student.

has something to do with "them," it's chic: "let's join it, let's take it over."

The point here made is clarified by yet another saying: "if you can't beat them, then join them." This is of utmost relevance when we try to analyze the attitude of White America: gradually, as the complexity behind the guilt and shame began to reveal itself in the eventual recognition of the humanity of ethnic "minorities," White Americans suddenly befriended these "other people" — but never listened and never understood what their interests were.

So then today we have reached a climax in this ubiquitous cultural frenzy. They call it multiculturalism. The they must be stressed, for I don't think that the "minorities" want to necessary call it that. But what does all this mean? Is it a positive sharing of cultures? Is it an interchanging of different points of view? Who can or should be included in this seemingly privileged circle?

This is far more complex than what people make it out to be. Why? Simply because it brings up the very nerve that America hates to feel pinched: race. Although it is not my intention to engage in a debate over race, it should nonetheless never be disregarded, for the race problem is America's problem, as has been said elsewhere. Neither is my purpose to deny the reality that, although far from being any "melting pot," this country is in fact host to many different cultures.

My actual intention here is to try to shed some light on the intricacy of the multicultural dilemma. According to the status quo on this issue, I am "Mr. Multicultural," even though in fact I don't know what that is supposed to mean. I was born in one country, and I have lived on four different continents —but does this in fact give me the right to be "multicultural?" According to whom, and with what intentions, I further ask? It is my belief that beyond the reaching out to other peoples, this push for cultural plurality has become more a need than an interest.

If this is what multiculturalism is all about, well then what is it actually accomplishing? First, the "minorities" were denied a voice; then, suddenly, they were told they now had a voice —however, either this voice became mute or also suddenly, everyone else became deaf, for it was still not being heard. Instead, White America decided that it was in the best interest of those oppressed to speak for them. This in fact is nothing new, for a colonizer never really wants to see the absolute freedom (in whatever form) of the colonized: if the latter must be provided with some rights, these rights will have to be determined by the former.

If multiculturalism is to be a successful form of creating cultural bridges, it must be first actually defined; what's more, it must be defined in such a manner that it truly intends to work toward progress. This may mean that one cultural group may decide to not want to associate with others, at least not until this group sees it fit to create such associations.

While perhaps the rest of the groups may feel badly about the "separating" culture, they must first look to themselves instead of to others in trying to find a plausible, eventual solution. More directly, if Black students — for example, for they are most pinpointed for this— feel it in their best interest not to associate with White students, the latter must first point not at Blacks as separatists, but et themselves as ignorants.

Cultural bridges, and multiculturalism, will only be able to be constructed when this country's "majority" stops blaming the victim, and begin to blame themselves, as cause of "the race problem." For all those who may now be thinking that I am advocating racial separation, you exemplify exactly what I have been talking about: ignorance in theory and practice, for all I am calling for is racial respect. The multicultural agenda, in order to be legitimate and progressive, must be initiated by those silenced, caged voices, who are doing nothing but screaming to get out.

Hernán Rozemberg is a Collegian staff member.

A candidate for change

Peter Orvetti

"As far as I am concerned, the separation of church and state is this country's greatest contribution to world civilization. You can package it however you want, but these school prayer proposals are all about imposing religion through public institutions. Somebody has to stand up and speak the truth about this."

Whose tough words are these? They aren't Mario Cuomo's, or those of some liberal challenger to Rush Limbaugh on the radio. They certainly aren't Bill Clinton's.

These are the words of Lowell Weicker, former senator and governor of Connecticut, a likely Independent presidential candidate in 1996.

By all accounts, Lowell Weicker is not a nice guy. He has the egocentrism of Bob Dole and the meanness of Phil Gramm, topped off with the Messianic drive of Jimmy Carter. But none of Clinton's challengers are nice guys. Besides, we elected a nice guy in 1992, and look where it has gotten us.

Weicker is a man for these times. With the conservative side of the political debate led by vitriolic firebrands like Newt Gingrich and Limbaugh, the progressive side can no longer let bland theorists and vacillating popularity-seekers lead its charge. The legacy of populism has been stolen from folks like Gene Debs and Bob LaFollette, and is now in the hands of the descendants of George Wallace and Ronald Reagan.

Societal anger once found its voice in progressive movements that sought better conditions for the disadvantaged. Today, anger curdles into racism and extremist rhetoric.

Weicker is a strong, angry, and committed voice for progressive views. No waffle he, Weicker was elected to the Senate in 1970 — as a Republican, no less. In 1973, he became the Senate's chief prosecutor of Attorney General John Mitchell and President Richard M. Nixon during the Watergate hearings, destroying his future within the GOP but winning him applause across the nation.

When the Republicans took the Senate in 1980, Weicker's presence on the Labor Committee stopped Orrin Hatch's right-wing efforts in their tracks. Weicker filibustered against school prayer.

He was a key opponent of Reagan's Nicaragua policy. The senator was even arrested for taking part in a human blockade of the South African Embassy.

Hit from Republicans because of his views and Democrats because of his party affiliation, Weicker was defeated in 1988. Two years later, he ran for governor as an Independent and won — Connecticut's first third-party governor since the Civil War.

Examining the state's books, Weicker found it necessary to abandon his opposition to a state income tax. As an Independent, Weicker didn't have a single supporter in the state legislature.

He still managed to push through a progressive version of the new tax, which actually lowered taxes on the state's poorest while balancing the budget at the same time. (When Weicker took office, 31 percent of state spending was merely covering payment of the interest on the debt.)

Anti-tax protesters staged a bitter rally against Weicker, even hanging the Governor in effigy. Never one to hide in his office, Weicker went down into the wrathful crowd to discuss the issue. He was spat on and insulted; he could have been killed.

But he wasn't, and went on to eliminate state aid to parochial schools, redirect education funds from rich towns to poor cities, desegregate Hartford's racially polarized school system, make Connecticut one of the first states to ban automatic weapon ownership, and find funding for school-based health clinics.

Weicker did not make many friends in Connecticut while governor, but he brought change. Most true leaders are not popular in their own time.

Weicker is not the ideal president. But look at the others: Bill Clinton, Bob Dole, Phil Gramm, Pete Wilson, Colin Powell. Weicker is an Independent with principle and drive, and with the populist zeal to get elected.

His presence will make the election a real debate between disparate philosophies. "The majority of people working in government are there because they want to do good," he has said. Perhaps Lowell Weicker deserves a chance to continue to do good — in the White House.

Peter Orvetti is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor

Mistakes cited in article

To the editor:

I would like to correct some statements made in a Feb. 16 article on a forum dealing with racial issues. The article alleged that Grant Ingle, director of human relations, said that I "used unethical research methods," including "calling offices claiming to be a graduate student seeking statistics for a research project." The statement is doubly false: 1) I never called any University office claiming to be a graduate student, and 2) Grant Ingle never accused me of doing so. Ingle, in a conversation with me today, confirmed that he had never made such an accusation. As for me, I never misinterpreted myself, either orally or in writing, to anyone at the University; nor did I ever use any unethical research methods.

I know only secondhand the apparent root of this misreporting. I have been told that a student (whose name is still unknown to me), acted independently in calling Ingle, pretended to be a graduate student and falsely claimed to be associated with me. This sophomoric prank upset both me and Ingle, but the false accusation attributed to Ingle and the false allegation of unethical conduct attributed to me are more disturbing.

The article's most significant omission in failing to mention the presence on the panel of professor Paul Hollander, noted author and member of MAS.

The Massachusetts Association of Scholars (MAS) has more than 150 members, not the 50 members mentioned. Your own article of last Dec. 12 correctly quoted 150 members (at that time), and we have grown somewhat since. Finally, the MAS report did not claim the recruitment of minorities from out-of-state "would mean decreased opportunities for in-state White students" any more than it claimed, as reported on Dec. 12, that "the administration takes spaces away from the state residents who are White."

The report stated that if the percentage of out-of-state students continues to increase, eventually "students from Massachusetts will constitute a minority of the University's first-year entering class." It was assumed that, especially as to its undergraduates, the University exists primarily to educate the sons and daughters of the Commonwealth, a point affirmed by President Michael K. Hooker in the Feb. 20 David Brudnoy show.

Not all of these errors, including an omission, are of equal gravity. Allegations of ethical misconduct are particularly serious and ought to be verified with care before being made, since the consequences of false allegations can have far-reaching effects for all parties concerned. When such allegations are found to be false, as I have shown here, it is appropriate for the newspaper to print a retraction.

Gary Crosby Brasor
Massachusetts Association of Scholars

Making the choice to be nice

To the editor:

One evening last week as I was driving home from the University I was suddenly cut off by a car that pulled onto the road without looking. I had to brake quickly and was furious at nearly being in an accident because of this woman's recklessness. Then the driver of the other car scrunched her shoulders and mouthed "I'm sorry!"

It had been a close call and I had good reason to be angry. I had some choices to make: I could run her off the road to get even; I could follow her too closely, maybe threaten her a little with my driving and scare her right back; I could jot down her license number and report her to the police; I could stew about it all the way home OR I could accept her apology and let it go.

Well, I didn't want to be the cause of an accident or a heart attack; I remembered a time or two when my driving had unintentionally put someone else at risk. Besides, the woman obviously felt badly and had apologized.

I had a choice: I accepted her apology and relaxed. I felt better and, judging from the slope of her shoulders, so did she. I had a choice to either make a case of someone else's human error or to make this world a kinder place.

We all have those choices to make every day.

Louise Amyot Greenfield

Doonesbury By Garry Trudeau

SHOPPING? THAT'S WHAT YOU MISS THE MOST?
YOU'RE NOT A WOMAN, B.D. YOU COULDN'T POSSIBLY UNDERSTAND...
WHY DON'T YOU JUST SHOP BY CATALOG?
I HAVE, BUT IT'S NOT THE SAME. SHOPPING IS VERY TACTILE FOR ME...
THERE'S SOMETHING UNNATURAL ABOUT NOT SHOPPING. SOMETHING UNHOLY. HERE, FEEL MY CREDIT CARDS!
WHOA— THEY'RE COLD AS ICE!
AND LOOK—THE MAGNETIC STRIPS ARE FLAKING FROM DISUSE!

International Women's Day

Wednesday, March 8, 1995

Day commemorates international issues

By Fatimah Ihsan and Swati Gupte
Collegian Correspondents

March 8 is a historical day for women, a day acknowledging and validating women's struggles throughout the world for over 100 years.

In 1909, Clara Zetkin, delegate to the International Socialist Congress, proposed that March 8 be recognized in commemoration of the garment workers strike the year before, and be dedicated to the struggle for equal rights of all women. The proposal was accepted.

International Women's Day has become a day for women all over the world to unite and demand an end to their oppression.

March 8 was designated as International Women's Day because of the following three landmark struggles occurring on this common date.

In 1857, female workers in New York City took to the streets on the Lower East Side to demand better working conditions in garment factories.

51-years later, thousands of female garment workers marched again on the Lower East side of New York to reassert their demands for a decent living and human rights. They marched under the banner "Votes for Women."

In 1917, female textile workers in St. Petersburg, Russia went on to strike for "Peace, Land and Bread."

This strike sparked the Russian Revolution.

News Analysis

In 1995, women all over the world are still struggling for their rights. Most scientific research done in the United States and throughout the world is conducted on men. There are few studies focusing on women's health issues.

While women in the western world are defending their reproductive rights, women in countries such as Saudi Arabia, Iran and Pakistan are still fighting for basic human rights. In parts of India, female foeticide and female infanticide continue to be acceptable practices.

Globally, at least 2 million girls a year are at risk of genital mutilation, and approximately 6,000 girls are at risk per day in parts of Asia and Africa...the struggle for women's rights continues.

Bringing HIV, AIDS into new perspective

Pushpinder Pelia

In the context of HIV and AIDS, poor minority women have three strikes against them: gender, ethnicity and social class.

Acknowledging this is not enough. We need to ask some questions: Why do women die faster from AIDS than men? Why are so many women with AIDS minorities? Why is little research done on women and their unique position in the epidemic? What social and political economic factors determine who gets access to HIV services and health care options? Why do minority women distrust the health care system?

After a decade of battling the AIDS epidemic we are closer to understanding the dynamics of the disease, but only slightly closer to a cure today than a decade ago. We know now the HIV virus sees no barriers of ethnicity, class, sex, age and gender and is no longer a "white gay disease."

World-wide efforts have focused on intervention and prevention as effective strategies in controlling the virus. In the United States it is problematic that limited attention is given to women and their unique position in this epidemic, most notably minority women living in poverty and disease in low-income, marginalized areas of the inner city.

This is cause for great concern when one considers that the Centers for Disease Control in 1991 reported, 52 percent of women with AIDS were African-American, 20 percent Hispanic or Latina, 6 percent Asian and .24 percent Native American. Therefore, 73 percent of women with AIDS in the United States were women of color.

The numbers tell us the incidence of HIV and AIDS follows the same fault lines that divide this country by gender, ethnicity and social class. Historically, we see patterns of disease and discrimination that disproportionately affect women, low income groups, and people of color.

To think about these issues, as a society we have to acknowledge issues of sexism, racism, poverty, drug use, homelessness and differential access to health care and essential resources.

Women have remained invisible in the AIDS epidemic because the disease is defined from observations and research done on men, while women's experiences of the disease do not fall within the "norm" established by the medical community.

Frequently women with HIV infection go undetected and untreated. Excluded from the statistical picture, women often do not qualify for support services, counseling, health benefits and crucial information on how to protect themselves and others.

Women diagnosed with HIV infection are placed into convenient exposure categories of heterosexual contact, IV drug users or partners of IV drug users. What is lost in the oversimplification of women's experience are the complex routes of HIV transmission among women, the interconnections of these exposure categories and the unique conditions in women's lives that put them at risk for HIV infection.

To understand the impact of the AIDS crisis on women, specifically minority women, we need to first understand the conditions of their lives from a social, economic, biological and cultural sense. This information is crucial if we are to build a foundation for changing societal attitudes and address the special needs of minority women in the face of the AIDS crisis.

The relationships among poverty, access to health care, gender and ethnicity are complex and need to be confronted. Sexist attitudes in this country have had a great impact on how women have been treated in the AIDS crisis by the medical profession, public policy makers and researchers.

This is complicated further for minority women who have less control over their lives, sexual identities and reproductive choices by virtue of their social class and ethnicity. They have a limited range of choices, if at all, to demand safer sex from their sexual partners, to insist on condom use and to decide with whom they have sex.

The reasons for this, relate to women's lack of economic independence and cultural stereotypes of "appropriate" sexual conduct that allows men to have indiscriminate sexual activity and women to be solely responsible for birth control and safe sex. In 1995, there is no 100 percent effective and safe method of birth control, or at least one that doesn't reduce women's sexual pleasure, harm her reproductive or hormonal system or put the burden of responsibility on her shoulders.

In the profit-driven economy we live in, women are at the lowest rung of the class structure because of their gender and poverty. Their needs are the last to be considered by AIDS treatment programs, pharmaceutical companies and government sponsored research. This is attested by the lack of support for research on women by policy makers and major funding agencies.

By addressing only one issue in women's lives, such as HIV or AIDS, without attention to the totality of their experience, we miss the point. An effort has to be made to change inequities in the structure of society, to provide decent options for the heath and well-being of women and to demand more research on women with HIV or AIDS.

Pushpinder Pelia is a third year doctoral student in medical anthropology.

COURTESY EVERYWOMAN'S CENTER

Patricia Edmister will kickoff International Women's Day at the Everywoman's Center breakfast this morning.

Today's Events

Wednesday March 8

8 a.m. to 11 a.m. — Information Table on Campus Center concourse by Everywoman's Center.

9 a.m. to 11 a.m. — International Women's Day Breakfast: keynote speaker Patricia Edmister speaking on Women in Development in Central America at Community Center.

11 a.m. to 1 p.m. — Witness to Violence: collaborative art exhibit. Exhibit will also feature speaker David K. Scott, chancellor Thomas B. Fitzpatrick, chancellor for student affairs Ann Tillis, associate vice chancellor for affirmative action and equal opportunity and John Luippold, director of public safety on the Campus Center concourse.

1:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. — Self-defense workshop by Nancy Rothenberg from the Everywoman's Center at room 168 of the campus center.

4 p.m. to 5 p.m. — Patricia Edmisten speaking in Women of Color in Activism class in 201 Bartlett Hall.

3:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. — Workshop on building healthy relationships. Facilitators are staff members from Everywoman's Center and Men's Resource Center of Western Mass in room 168 of the campus center.

2 p.m. to 4 p.m. — Premiere of Empowerment, an updated documentary about portrayal of women in music videos. Produced by University of Massachusetts professor Sut Jhally and the Foundation for Media Education. Discussion will follow in the Student Union Ballroom.

7 p.m. — WOW Productions presents Karen Finley, an artist, painter and member of The N.E.A. Four in a performance entitled "A Certain Level of Denial," dealing with repression, mourning, liberals, homophobia and racism. This performance will run March 8 to 11 at the Northampton Center For the Arts. Tickets cost $15/Adv.

Everywoman's Center offers relationship advice

By Laura Schmich
Collegian Staff

A woman is beaten every 15 seconds according to FBI statistics.

Domestic violence is the leading cause of injury to women between ages 15 and 44 in the U.S., according to compilations provided by the Everywoman's Center.

These findings reveal relationship violence is more prevalent than car accidents, muggings, and rapes combined. In Massachusetts, 36 people were murdered as a result of relationship violence in 1994, according to a report from the Massachusetts Caucus of Women Legislators for 1994.

Of these victims, 24 were women and six were children. The Massachusetts Caucus of Women Legislators found this statistic resulted in one murder every 10 days.

"We often find women of all ages are asking themselves such questions as 'am I abused?' and 'am I a battered woman?' read an Educator/Advocate Program pamphlet at the Everywoman's Center cited.

According to Ginny NiCarthy in her book entitled Getting...Free: A Handbook for Women in Abusive Relationships, "battered" is defined as physical assault. "Abuse" includes physical, sexual or emotional attacks, ranging from mild to lethal in severity.

NiCarthy said she believes it is important for the abused to recognize the abuse they are receiving. She added if a woman thinks she is being battered or abused, she does not have to take the abuse.

"We know that abuse is going on, but in many cases women are scared for their own safety to report such incidences," said Patrica Mota-Guedes, an educator advocate at the Everywoman's Center.

"There could also be feelings of love or common history involved whereas women may think they are betraying their abuser if they report the abuse," said Mota-Guedes.

Another obstacle to leaving an abusive partner is the pressure the individual may feel in keeping a family or relationship together, according to compilations distributed by the Everywoman's Center.

Myths about domestic violence

There are many myths surrounding the problem of relationship violence.

"The most common myth surrounding relationship violence is that it is a momentary loss of temper," said Mota-Guedes.

"It [relationship violence] is commonly seen as isolated incidents, when in fact it should be seen as a cycle of abuse," said Mota-Guedes.

"Another myth associated with relationship violence is that it does not affect many people," said Mota-Guedes.

Mota-Guedes said, the problem of relationship violence not only affects women, but teenagers and young adults as well.

Based on "Preventing Teen Violence" a pamphlet distributed by the Dating Violence Intervention Project at the Everywoman's Center, more than one in 10 teenagers experience physical violence in their dating relationships.

Also, 60 percent of all rapes reported to rape crisis centers were committed by acquaintances, and the majority of victims are aged 16 to 24, according to a statistic found by the Dating Violence Intervention Project.

"We also need to support those abused through profession or through a friend," said Mota-Guedes.

Literature from the Everywoman's Center suggests letting the friend know that someone will listen and someone believes her are two ways support can be shown to a friend who has been sexually assaulted.

Counselors at the Everywoman's Center also recommend letting the woman know the assault was not her fault.

"Women need to become more involved in these issues so that we can take a stand," said Mota-Guedes.

The Counselor/Advocate Program is available 24 hours a day. The Counselor/Advocate Hotline is 545-0883.

Praising uncommon women

■ Mt. Holyoke, Smith presidents retiring; Creighton to replace

By Maureen Rozanski
Collegian Correspondent

International Women's Day was celebrated last night at Mt. Holyoke College by honoring the outgoing presidents of both Mt. Holyoke and Smith College.

Elizabeth Topham Kennan, president of Mt. Holyoke and Mary Maples Dunn, president of Smith, will both retire at the end of the 1994-1995 academic year.

Helen Lefkowitz Horowitz, a Smith history and American Studies professor spoke "On the Retirement of Uncommon Women," in tribute to these women who are both historians.

Elizabeth Topham Kennan, Mt. Holyoke's president since 1978, will formally retire from office on June 30.

A scholar of medieval monasticism, intellectual history and a member of the college's history department, Kennan graduated summa cum laude from Mt. Holyoke College in 1960. She holds a master's degree from Oxford University in England and a doctorate degree from the University of Washington in Seattle.

Kennan is leaving Mt. Holyoke with plans to take a two-year sabbatical. She will spend time in the education of her adult son, who has suffered neurological challenges since birth.

Replacing Kennan is teacher, literary scholar and academic administrator Dr. Joanne Creighton.

Creighton has held teaching and administrative positions in major universities such as Wayne State University, the University of North Carolina at Greensboro and the University of Michigan.

As a professor of English at Wesleyan University, Creighton was appointed vice president for academic affairs and provost in August 1994.

COURTESY COLLEGE STREET JOURNAL

Dr. Joanne Creighton, incoming president of Mt. Holyoke.

Creighton said in a press release, "I am both stimulated and energized by the opportunity to be affiliated with the oldest women's college in the country. I am eager to join the community in thinking through and living through significant transformations in our culture. I expect to stretch and grow as Mount Holyoke stretches and grows."

Mary Maples Dunn has been president of Smith College since 1985. Before coming to Smith, she was the Academic Deputy to the President at Bryn Mawr College.

In 1956 and 1959, Dunn received an M.A. and Ph.D. from Bryn Mawr College.

Dunn has published several articles about William Penn and her current research focuses on women and religion in Colonial America.

University child care meets community needs

By Emily Marino
Collegian Staff

They could be the freshman class at the University of Massachusetts — in about 14 years. They are the children of UMass faculty, staff and students receiving University Child Care Services.

University Child Care Services is comprised of two centers located on Stadium Drive, by the Warren McGuirk Alumni Stadium. The Grass Roots Day School and the New World Day School offer full time day care to children age 15 months to five-years-old. The centers' emphasis is on affordable day care for any UMass-affiliated parent.

"The key is trying to make it [child care] affordable to all families," said Neil Brigham, assistant child care director of University Child Care Services.

Director of Child Care Services Alicia Smith said the program's trustee document, drafted in the late 1970s, aimed to service a clientele consisting of one-third undergraduate students, one-third graduate students and one-third faculty and staff. The mission statement also included efforts to "try to maintain that kind of ratio in terms of service population," said Smith.

Funding from the state partially makes up the program's budget, Brigham said.

"This campus has a history of supporting child care," said Smith, who explained that University support through the office of the vice chancellor of student affairs and housing Services has always been high.

Other expenses are paid through fees for enrolling parents. Brigham said families' fees are determined according to their income. A price scale is used to provide a range of 10 weekly rates. In addition, Brigham said, limited state subsidies are available for parents who meet state-based income guidelines.

Another goal of University Child Care Services is to promote a curriculum that teaches the children to appreciate difference.

"What we're trying to do is be a welcoming program to families and try to celebrate differences and diversity," said Brigham. "Books that the children read will reflect all different cultures, and men and women in different [various] roles."

The staff at both centers is professional, and teachers who are hired hold degrees in early childhood development or related disciplines and have prior experience, said Brigham. Each classroom has two teachers who work as a team with the children.

An advisory board, overseen by Smith and made up of parent, staff and administrative representatives, provides input on child care policies and updates from the field, according to Brigham.

The demand for child care at the University, said Brigham, is greater than the services the program provides, and there is a waiting list. This is the time of year, he said, that parents are contacted and asked about their child care needs for the upcoming summer and semester. People on the waiting list will then be contacted and informed of openings.

Smith said that a Family Issues Committee, created from a contract drafted by the Graduate Employee Organization (GEO), will perform a campus-wide survey in April to further determine child care needs.

"We expect there is a high un-met child care need," said Smith, who emphasized the changing role of campus child care to incorporate family issues sessions and workshops in the future.

"It's not just child care," said Smith. "It's family issues." She said future workshops would offer more parent support in areas like child discipline, the effect the media has on children, and balancing a workload and parenting.

"I would expect the University will support us as we move in this direction," said Smith. University Child Care also hopes to team up with Family Housing and the Amherst Family Center later this spring to determine and help meet community child care needs.

Both Grass Roots Day School and the New World Day School are open from 8:15 a.m. to 5:15 p.m., year-round except the week between Christmas and New Year's Day, and other holidays acknowledged by the University. For more information call University Child Care Services located at 112 Berkshire House, 545-1566.

Women have issues
and we need you to help address them!
Come down and write for the Women's Issues section of the Collegian.
Contact Colleen Shanahan or Lisa Greenfield
113 Campus Center
545-1361

Arts & Living

Ballet company to dance at UM

By Tara MK Connelly
Collegian Staff

Nothing can match the beauty and grace of a well performed ballet. The movement of the dancers combined with the melodic strains of sound all create a beguiling and enchanting picture. On March 9 at 8 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall the Ballet-Theatre de Bordeaux will perform Les Nuites d'ete and Carmina Burana.

Les Nuites d'ete (The Nights of Summer) was set to music by Hector Berlioz and composed to poems by Theophile Gautier. It was reworked in 1834 and again in 1856. The dance tells the story of a dying man reliving his passion for life. Dancers in gray, white red and black colors are used to personify emotions the man has gathered over his life time.

The Miami Herald hailed Giuseppe Della Monica, the dancer who portrays the old man, as "smooth, virile and unsatisfied."

The second piece, Carl Orff's Carmina Burana, is a more frothy ballet based on poems in Latin, Old German and Old French centering on wine, women and of course — love. The ballet was first performed in 1937 and involves swirling dancers, streamers, robes, wings and a cathedral set.

The Ballet-Theatre de Bordeaux performed under the creative directorship of Paolo Bortoluzzi. He took the elements of Orff and transformed them into the companies own ethereal style. Bortoluzzi was hailed as one of Europe's finest choreographers.

He has been honored with the French title "Chevalier des Arts et des Lettres." He died in 1993 but his influence still shines through in every performance the Ballet-Theater de Bordeaux does.

The ballet company began in 1752 as a wing of the Academie Royale de Musique de Bordeaux in France.

COURTESY BALLET THEATRE DE BORDEAUX

Principal dancer, Giuseppe Della Monica will display his talents Thursday night.

The company became the ballet of the Grande Theatre de Bordeaux with the Grand Theatre opening in 1752. Napoleon Bonaparte heralded the dances as the premiere dance companies in all of the French Empire. During the 1800s the company's reputation grew and it became a part if the Opera de Bordeaux.

The Ballet-Theatre de Bordeaux of the '90s is 40-dancers strong. They have broadened their style to incorporate old and new works from Beauty and the Beast to The Four Seasons by Vivaldi. It will be one performance that should not be missed.

Tickets to the performance are $27, $23 and $18 with half priced tickets for five-college students. Tickets for 16 years- old and under are $10. For tickets or more information call the Fine Arts Center Box Office at 545-2511.

Helium to hit big with latest album

By Michael Burke
Collegian Staff

THE DIRT OF LUCK
Helium
Matador Records

Welcome to the next Matador Records Buzz Band. Following in the footsteps of Pavement, Liz Phair and the Jon Spencer Blues Explosion, Helium is gearing up to take the music world by storm with the release of their full- length debut, The Dirt Of Luck.

After leaving the critically acclaimed Washington D.C. band Autoclave in 1991, Mary Timony moved to Boston where she formed Helium.

Since the move, Timony has become the beloved daughter of the underground rock scene in Boston.

Helium released their debut single American Jean on the band's own label, Warped Records, which displayed their keen pop sensabilities.

After the release of a their second single on Pop Narcotic, the band signed to ultra-hip Matador and released a stunning six song EP entitled Pirate Prude which surprised even the most devout fan.

Throwing almost all their previous pop tendencies away, the band found a new sound — haunting, ethereal noise. Dark as it was, Pirate Prude was a success. Their video for "XXX" even landed a spot on "Beavis And Butthead."

Now, after being critiqued by MTV's favorite sons, Helium has once again altered their sound — this time into an all encompassing collage of spooky pop melodies and noisy guitar attacks.

Now after bing critiqued by MTV's favorite sons, Helium has once again altered their sound inot an all encompassing collage of spooky pop melodies and noisy guitar attacks. On The Dirt Of Luck Timony shows off all her new tricks that she has been hiding up her sleeve, with the help of the newest member Ash Bowie of the noise assault band Polvo.

Not since the Sonic Youth's Daydream Nation has one band or album shown as much potential and power as this. Rules are made to be broken and Helium is in the process of breaking them all.

From the opening track "Pat's Trick" to the instrumental "Comet #9" the listener realizes that this band is like no other.

Originally released as a single, "Pat's Trick" opens up the album in a glorious fashion mixing melody with noise, all backed by Timony's breathtakingly, eerie voice. "Comet #9" closes side one and features Timony playing solo on piano. It offers a breath of fresh air after all the noise and commotion preceding it.

Side two opens up with the two standout tracks "Skeleton" and "Superball" which show Helium at their ultimate best. From the monstrous Zeppelin-esque percussion that drives "Superball" to the whisper-like vocals of "Skeleton" the listener is left awestruck.

Even what seems to be the ready- made MTV single, "Honeycomb," is testament to Timony's amazing songwriting ability. The Dirt Of Luck captures Helium at their creative peak, combining all their diverse sounds into one outstanding record. It is easy to forget that this is Helium's first full-length release, and scary to think of what this band is capable of in the future. A

Acclaimed Tuskegee choir to grace FAC

By Tara MK Connelly
Collegian Staff

The Tuskegee University Concert Choir will raise their voices in harmonious unison March 8 at the Fine Arts Center at 8:11 p.m. The central theme for the evening will be "African Experience in America."

The group's performance will be the third part of an exchange program involving six historically Afro-American College and Universities in the Atlanta University system.

The concert choir's performance will be in celebration of the 100th anniversary of the "Atlanta Exposition Speech" made by Booker T. Washington, founder of Tuskegee University. The performance will also be a 100th Birthday Tribute to William Grant Steele, the "Dean Of African American Composers."

Traditional Afro-American Spirituals will be the back bone of the concert along with original compositions by director Dr. William Levi Dawson, funding Director of Tuskegee's School of Music.

"The choir is here for a week in residency. On Thursday they will perform for the Springfield Elementary Schools," said Halina Radosz, an assistant to the Deputy Director of the Fine Arts Center. "The choir is historically known both nationally and internationally. They began as an all male choir, but are now a co-ed group."

The Tuskegee Concert Choir in the past has performed at the opening of Radio City Music Hall; the birthday party of President Franklin D. Roosevelt; the unveiling ceremonies of the bust of Booker T. Washington into the Hall of Fame at New York University; and the famous Eddie Fisher Show and Ed Sullivan Show.

The Tuskegee Concert Choir is staying in Springfield and also plan to do a concert at Mount Holyoke College.

"It is a wonderful opportunity to hear a well-known choir and be exposed to different types of material like spirituals and poetry from established Afro-American artists," said Radosz.

The concert will be at The Fine Arts Center. Admission is free to the public, but tickets should be acquired at the Fine Arts Center Box Office. For more information call 545-0030 or the Fine Arts Center Box Office at 545-2511.

READINGS BY ABBY
PALM TAROT & ESP READING
HELPS SOLVE ALL PROBLEMS OF LIFE. HELPS YOU THROUGH YOUR GOOD AND BAD CYCLES OF LIFE. TELLS YOU LUCKY DAYS AND LUCKY MONTHS. ONE VISIT WILL CONVINCE YOU THAT SHE IS SUPERIOR TO ALL READERS YOU HAVE SEEN BEFORE.
All readings Confidential and Results Guaranteed.
HOURS: 9 A.M. TO 9 P.M.
210 Russell Street Route 9 Hadley, MA 01035
(413) 586-6711 Walk in's are Welcome

August the First
✧Beads ✧Jewlery Making Supplies
44 Main St., Amherst, MA 01002 • 413-256-0276
112 Main St., Northampton, MA 01060 • 431-586-7182
243 W. Main St. Northboro, MA 01532 • 508-393-0180
Anniversary Sale
March 4th - March 11th
On March 6th we celebrate the 2nd Anniversary of the opening of our August the First Bead Stores. Two years and three stores later, August the First invites you to celebrate with an Anniversary Sale with Store Wide Specials
With this advertisment, save an additional 15% OFF all purchases over $5 at zanna...sports utility by FRYE

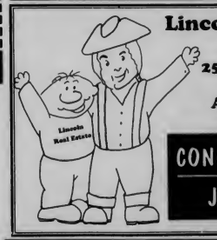
ZANNA
Women's Shoes, Clothing & Accessories
Zanna • 187 N. Pleasant St. • Amherst
413.253.2563

Information Meeting
For People Interested In Participating In Th·
17th Annual International Fair
The meeting will be held in the International Students Association Office, room 423B second floor, Student Union on Wednesday, March 8th at 7:00 p.m.
Everybody is Welcome!
We Urge You To Participate!
We are looking for people to help us with public relations, entertainment, audio visual, and party coordinators. We need people like you to make this fair a success.

Collegian Classifieds. They Work.



Lincoln Real Estate
253-7879
25 North Pleasant St.
(above McDonald's)
Apartment Rentals
CONGRATULATIONS!
Job Well Done

The University of Massachusetts DEPARTMENT OF THEATER presents

THE BIRDS
by Aristophanes
a fantastic comedy
March 2-4 and 8-11 at 8 pm
RAND THEATER Fine Arts Center
Tickets: Fine Arts Center Box Office, 545-2511
$6 general public; $3.50 students/senior citizens
This program made possible in part by a grant from the UMass Arts Council

Eating Disorder Programs • 1995
Sponsored by University Health Services
Eating Disorder Assessment Program
For Individuals - with Nutritionists, Mental Health Clinician, Physician and/or Nurse Practitioner. Mondays or Wednesdays - Confidentiality Assured.
Call 549-2671, Clinic 4.
Friends and Family Group
Single sessions for those concerned about somebody with an eating disorder.
Call 549-2671, Clinic 4.
Peer Support Group
For those struggling with anorexia, bulimia, or compulsive overeating. Mondays 4:30 - 6 pm, (except holidays) at the Campus Center. Confidentiality Assured.
Call 549-2671, Clinic 4.
Peer Health Connections
A confidential phone line for help around eating disorders - yourself or someone you know. Call 549-2671, ext. 168.

Write for the Valley's best source for entertainment news and views!
Arts & Living
Call 545-1361 for information.

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS
KOREAN STUDENTS ASSOCIATION
presents
The Third Annual
KOREAN CULTURE NIGHT
Cultural Performance, Talent Show & Dance
Saturday, March 11, 1995
6:00 - 9:00 PM Cultural Show • 10:00 - 1:00 AM Dance
FREE ADMISSION - FREE FOOD
UMASS CAMPUS CENTER AUDITORIUM
The [illegible] by grant from UMASS Art. Council, SACE [illegible] the 111th United Asia Cultural Center.
For more information contact Ji Woong Jun 546-6278

Black Affairs

Wednesday, March 8, 1995

WMUA DJs supply hip–hop to campus

COURTESY OF SUNI

The official promotional logo for the Breath Control program features distinctive graffiti-style artwork.

■ Radio provides outlet for often misunderstood music

By Chris Conner
Collegian Staff

The definition of "hip-hop" remains enigmatic to many in the mainstream masses, but two WMUA radio personalities offer their interpretation on their weekly show.

For over a semester, the evening airwaves have been saturated with the beats and rhymes of "Breath Control," a program created by the pseudonymous pair DJ Shay and Siz, two sophomores who have devoted their Saturday time slot to the promotion of hip-hop.

"We're trying to keep the music coming to area kids who don't have the outlet," Shay said.

Unlike several poseurs currently on the scene, Shay and Siz (roommates whose actual names are Dave Temkin and Aaron Bender, respectively) have long displayed an interest in their urban-based subject.

"Back in 1984, Run D.M.C. came out, and my mom bought me the tape," said Shay, who hails from the Boston area. "I just kept on buying the tapes."

Shay also cited the music video television programs "Pump it Up" and,"V-Rape" as major influences on both he and Siz's early fascination with hip-hop.

"An underground culture"

It was thus that nearly ten years later, the two students, both management majors, would cross paths and begin to formulate the basis for Breath Control, attending WMUA meetings and talking with the Black Mass Communications Project.

"Shannon Magee [BMCP's general manager] helped us a lot," Shay said.

The beginning of the first semester brought the debut of the show, which Shay said tries to shake some of the stereotypes about hip-hop, and expose audiences to its true meaning.

The 19-year-old DJ is also quick to differentiate between rap and hip-hop, pointing out that the former is part of pop culture at large, while the latter's roots lie deeper.

"Hip-hop is an underground culture," Shay explained, naming KRS-1 and Black Moon as performers who epitomize the form, while entertainers such as Coolio and DJ Jazzy Jeff and the Fresh Prince are considered rappers. "It's not just songs. It can be politics, clothing, a lot of things."

According to Shay, race has little to do with hip-hop dynamics, as evidenced by the minimal opposition the two White students have received from their Black counterparts; in fact, no negative comments had been personally made to the co-hosts until a few weeks ago.

"We didn't pay attention to [the comments]," Shay said, "99 percent of the people have no problem with us. Everyone who's down relates to each other.

"I never look at hip-hop as Black and White. If you're Asian, Hispanic, Dominican, Native American, whatever, you can be down."

Communicating with the hip–hop world

Networking among members of the hip-hop community has paid off for Shay and Siz, as they have made important connections in Massachusetts and beyond.

For instance, Double Impact, an Amherst-based teenage group among whose credits includes an opening gig for Black Moon, performs the theme music for Breath Control; the pair own a directory full of record labels who distribute promotional materials; and area DJs are predominantly featured on the show.

Both aspiring and experienced DJs and MCs are invited to appear on the show, an open-door policy that indicates of the selfless and communal outlook of the Breath Control crew.

"We don't care who you are, how old you are," Shay said. "Without college radio, hip-hop wouldn't survive.

Shay also denounced the tendency of reactionary politicians to "blame [crime problems] on the urban kids' music."

"It's a scapegoat for the problems of the U.S.A.," Shay said. "It's like we didn't have problems until Eazy-E started rapping."

Entertainment industry careers highlighted at BMCP meeting

By Chris Conner
Collegian Staff

In an effort to better educate students interested multi- media pursuits, the Black Mass Communications Project has centered their annual conference around revealing some of the intricacies of the field.

"Here This," a two-day conference which begins tomorrow at 5 p.m. in the Campus Center, has an "emphasis on networking and communication," as detailed in BMCP's press release.

"As we embark upon another spring semester, it is imperative that we connect," BMCP general manager Shannon Magee said.

The following are the events planned for the conference, now in its sixth year:

Thursday, March 9

5-10 p.m. — Registration
7 p.m. — Opening Night Ceremonies (10th Floor, Campus Center)
7:30 p.m. — Welcome and Introduction
7:45 p.m. — "History of Music" with Afro-American Studies Professor John Bracey
8:30 p.m. — "Communication Through Sculpture" with Rachel Roberts
9:30 p.m. — Reception and Refreshments

Friday, March 10

8:30-9:00 a.m. — Registration/ Breakfast/ Networking
9:00-9:15 a.m. — Welcoming Remarks
9:30-10:45 a.m. — Keynote Speakcr: Lisa Cortes, President of Loose Cannon Records
11:00-12:15 p.m. — Session I Workshops: "Film/Video" with Yusef Lateef of the ALANA Video Production (CC 162); "Journalism/Written Verse" featuring Afro-American Studies Professor Nick McBride (CC 163); "State of Black Radio in the New England Area" (CC 164-165)
1:15-2:30 p.m. — Session II Workshops: "Hip-Hop From A Woman's Perspecive" (CC 162); "Media Empowerment" (CC 163-164)
2:45-3:30 p.m. — Sessions III Workshops: "State of Black Radio II" (CC 162); "Behind-The-Scene Jobs/Internships" (CC 164-165); "Artist Development and Management" (CC 163)
3:30-5:00 p.m. — General Session: "Cerebral Intercourse/Developing Black Male and Female Relationships" (CC 163-165)
5:00-5:30 p.m. — Feedback/ Closing Remarks
5:30-6:15 p.m. — Shopping/ networking (Free tapes, CD's, posters available)
8:00-10:45 p.m. — Unsigned Artist Showcase (Fine Arts Center)
11:00 p.m.-? — After Flava (Student Union Ballroom)

Acknowledging issues at the University, beyond

Chinedu Ogbuike

I'm a junior at this University and I can't wait to graduate so I can get away from here.

Sometimes I feel that being at this University insults my intelligence and that certain things here need to change if I am going to be proud to graduate from the University of Massachusetts a year from now in May.

Having transferred from Boston University, I've already come to realize in three semesters at this school, the focus has been on athletics and not the rest of the student body. The University officials are on the basketball team's bandwagon, and because they are, the non-student-athletes are ignored.

I'm sick and tired of hearing about the basketball team and the problems they experience, especially the issue over Mike Williams. I feel that the team should be looked upon as ordinary people with certain talents, rather than people who deserve preferential treatment over others.

*****

It's about time someone address the issue of the elevators.

By this I mean why there is a large amount of space between a Black person already in the elevator and a White person who enters afterwards. Both people are against the side walls of the elevator, but it often seems as though the White person is afraid that the Black person may harm them or sweet them.

I feel that, realistically, harming a White person is not on the mind of the average Black person. The issue over sweating that White person is ridiculous because if anybody, regardless of race, had an interest in someone else, he or she might step to that person, leaving less personal space between them.

I think White people overreact sometimes in that situation and need to stop being paranoid. Black people usually keep their distance so there's no misunderstanding.

*****

And finally, why do certain people get more preferential treatment from the Escort Service than others?

For example, a Black friend of mine called an escort to accompany her from Southwest to Central and found it difficult to get an immediate response; she was told it would be a 45-minute wait.

However, when she changed her tone to that of an average White person's, she was told that an escort would arrive in five minutes, and to wait outside.

Chinedu Ogbuike is a Collegian Staff member.

MIKE DERER/ASSOCIATED PRESS

In a case similar to the Ben Schoolfield shooting in Springfield, Paterson, N.J. youth Lawrence Meyers, fatally wounded by a housing police officer, is laid to rest last week.

Open House!

Black Affairs
cordially invites you and your friends down to the Collegian for our spring Open House. There is still a great need for writers in Black Affairs, but even if you're not interested in writing, we welcome you to come down and give us your opinions on what's working and what's not at the Collegian.

Besides, you get free food and refreshments just for talking to us.

High price of cereal questioned

By Larry Margasak
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Two congressmen produced a breakfast shopping list Tuesday and called it a rude awakening: $4.49 for a box of Raisin Bran, $4.69 for Frosted Flakes, $4.25 for Rice Krispies and $3.59 for Cheerios.

"Every once in a while there is an issue that just gets your goat — a pet peeve that you wish you could do something about," said Rep. Charles E. Schumer, a New Yorker who does the grocery shopping for his household.

Generic brands are much cheaper, Schumer said, although it's often difficult to locate them on the store shelves.

Schumer and fellow Democrat Sam Gejdenson of Connecticut asked the Justice Department to undertake an anitrust investigation to see if major cereal makers were conspiring to keep prices high.

Kellogg's, General Mills, Post and Quaker Oats control 85 percent of cereal sales, they said, and take too much profit. They said 55 percent of the price of cereal goes to advertising and profits.

While the lawmakers point critically to the overall prices of boxes of cereal, the Grocery Manufacturers of America emphasized the price another way.

"Today the average bowl of ready-to-eat cereal - including milk — costs between 25 and 30 cents," the industry group said. "Cereal prices in real terms have risen less than the rate of inflation — between 1 and 2 percent annually. Consumers are actually paying less for many of the top brands."

The industry also said the Federal Trade Commission spent 10 years looking at competition in the cereal industry and in 1982 found no evidence of anti-competitive practices.

In fact, the Grocery Manufacturers said, the market "is so competitive that more than 60 new cereals have been introduced in the past five years."

Gina Talamona, a Justice Department spokeswoman, said Attorney General Janet Reno was willing to consider any information submitted by the lawmakers.

General Mills said in a statement that the company hasn't increased the price of a single cereal in more than two years and has lowered the cost of nearly half its entire cereal line.

Joe Rutledge, spokesman for General Mills, said that since December 1993, the company has lowered the price it charges retailers for many popular cereals by 30 cents to 50 cents a box. The reductions were applied to Cheerios, Wheaties, Total, Trix and Lucky Charms, he said.

"General Mills cereals are a terrific value," the statement said.

Schumer and Gejdenson, at a news conference, contended that cereal prices have jumped by 90 percent since 1983, while other food prices have increased 45 percent.

They offered this breakdown for a 20-ounce box of Kellogg's Raisin Bran: retail price, $4.49; store share 90 cents; manufacturer's cost $1.63; profit, advertising and marketing, $1.96.

"Cereal prices are higher for three reasons: little to no price competition between the major companies; massive marketing campaigns and weak generic brands," the lawmakers said in a report, "Consumers in a Box."

And while consumers can clip cereal coupons from the Sunday newspaper, the two lawmakers said that 30 million households do not get a Sunday paper.

The report also contended:

- Consumers would have saved $1.7 billion in 1994 if the inflation rate for cereal was the same as that of the average food between 1983 and 1994, an average savings of 80 cents a box.
- As a percentage of total sales, the cost of labor and all materials have gone down since 1982.
- The four dominant companies have successfully kept less expensive, generic brands from attaining significant market share by constantly introducing new varieties. Consumers save on average $1.41 a box on generic cereal.

Pols challenge lame lawsuits

By David Espo
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Republicans muscled to House passage Tuesday a business-backed measure designed to pressure combatants in lawsuits to settle their differences short of costly trials. The bill was strongly opposed by trial lawyers.

The measure, approved 232-193 in a near-party-line vote, was the first of three bills expected to clear the House this week in a Republican effort to cut down on what they consider frivolous lawsuits clogging the nation's courts.

Supporting the measure were 216 Republicans and 16 Democrats. Voting against were 181 Democrats and 11 Republicans, along with one independent, a political cleavage that contrasted sharply with the bipartisan support for most elements of the "Contract With America" that had cleared the House earlier.

In a bid to dramatize a need for changes in the legal system, Rep. Robert Goodlatte (R-Va.) said the Girl Scouts of Washington must sell 87,000 boxes of cookies each year to pay for liability insurance. "This is not a problem that deals with corporate America alone," said Goodlatte.

But Girl Scout officials said the cookie statistic is unfounded and that damage suits aren't a big problem. The Washington-area council has never been sued and the national organization takes no position on the pending legislation.

Rep. Patricia Schroeder (D-Colo.) said the Girl Scouts want no part of the debate. Their message is: "Please please, this is not our legislation," she said.

Opponents of the measure, including consumer advocates, said it would tilt the system too heavily in favor of corporations, some of which have contributed to a huge lobbying campaign on behalf of the three bills.

The most hotly contested provision of Tuesday's measure marked a retreat from the "Contract With America" proposal for the loser in a lawsuit to pay the legal costs of the winner.

In its place is a provision that encourages the two sides to settle short of trial. It can require the winner in a suit to wind up paying a portion of the legal costs incurred by the loser.

The measure says that in certain types of federal cases, if one side spurns a settlement offer by the other - and then loses the case or wins less than the settlement offer - that side is required to pay a portion of the other side's costs, including attorney fees.

"Loser pays" is a concept firmly rooted in English law, and at the White House, spokesman Mike McCurry mocked the measure as something that "comes from a system in which justices wear powdered wigs."

While McCurry said President Clinton favors measures to reduce the number of lawsuits, he contended the GOP-backed bill "might disrupt the ability of middle-income, the elderly, the indigent who need that type of justice, that type of remedy."

With one bill cleared, the House turned immediately to a measure that would make it easier for corporations and stockholders to prevail in defending against lawsuits charging securities fraud.

The third GOP-backed legal measure would make it easier for corporations to prevail in product liability cases, and would pre-empt state law on the subject. It also would limit punitive damages awarded in the vast majority of state and federal civil lawsuits, not just product liability suits, to $250,000 or three times the economic damages, whichever is greater.

Gingrich pans early school gay education

By John Diamond
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A day after his lesbian sister lobbied Capitol Hill on gay rights, House Speaker Newt Gingrich criticized school programs that portray homosexuality favorably, particularly any using "active homosexuals" to counsel teen-agers.

Speaking Tuesday at his daily news confcrence, Gingrich said some school programs offered to counter discrimination give homosexuals a forum for promoting their way of life.

"I don't think we want people out with Heather Has Two Mommies, in first grade explaining that homosexuality is a reasonable alternative in lifestyle," Gingrich said.

The book he mentioned, by Leslea Newman, is a story about lesbian parents. It was second on the American Library Association's 1994 list of books people tried to ban.

Gingrich's concern was not limited to the primary grades.

"You have had, clearly, examples of what is in effect recruitment in so-called counseling programs," Gingrich said. "So I'm very cautious about the idea that you want to have active homosexuals in junior high school and high school explaining to young people that they have all these various wonderful options."

Al Ferreira, director of the Cambridge, Mass., public schools' Project Ten-East, a counseling and education program that focuses on homosexuality, rejected Gingrich's assertions.

"I would hope that people wouldn't comment on a topic they obviously know nothing about," Ferreira said. "When you hear political leaders making such hate-filled comments, that's really scary."

Ferreira said of his program, "No, it's not Homosexuality 101." Rather, the program provides counseling for gay teens facing animosity in their families or among friends, and includes presentations to classes "working toward an open and affirming learning environment for all children, regardless of their sexual orientation."

But Kristi Hamrick of the Family Research Council, a Washington-based public policy organization, said Gingrich "speaks with the vast majority of Americans" on the issue of homosexuality.

"We have seen some school curriculum such as Project Ten put forward with the goal of giving children very harmful and false messages about homosexuality and encouraging them to explore that lifestyle," Hamrick said.

I'm all ready for my trip to places unknown. Just had my haircut at REGENCY HAIRSTYLISTS and I was able to tan at the same time. Call 253-9526 for an appointment before it's too late!

International

PLO soldiers assist in policing

By Haitham Hamad
Associated Press

BETHLEHEM, West Bank — When a stream of holiday shoppers jammed Bethlehem, plainclothes security men with walkie-talkies quickly took up posts at intersections to direct traffic and break up the gridlock.

The officers weren't Israeli; they were Palestinian.

While Yasser Arafat's men restored order, Israeli police sat inside the Manger Square police station, behind a high chain-link fence.

Bethlehem is still under Israeli occupation, but the PLO chief's security agents are playing a growing role in running this biblical town and other West Bank cities.

"We are soldiers of the homeland. We are here to protect people and make sure things are under control" said agent Jamal Yousef, 29.

Yousef is among hundreds of security men who patrol West Bank cities, chase drug dealers and question suspected collaborators with Israel. Most carry only clubs and walkie-talkies, while some have pistols tucked under jackets.

Israeli officials have charged that Arafat is violating the Israel-PLO accord under which Palestinian troops are restricted to autonomy enclaves in the Gaza Strip and West Bank town of Jericho.

Israeli security sources say Palestinian security chief Jibril Rajoub controls most of the West Bank towns and that his men may have been involved in the killings of suspected collaborators.

Cementing Arafat's control in the West Bank comes at a time when talks on expanding Palestinian self-rule are deadlocked, with Israel demanding Arafat do more to rein in Islamic fundamentalists before it will cede more land.

Arafat hinted at his "long arm" last month when he scoffed at an Israeli offer that he take municipal control of the town of Jenin as a first step while Israeli troops remained there.

"I can administer Jenin from here (Gaza City) or from any other place," Arafat boasted at the time.

Rajoub's "Preventive Security Apparatus" has offices in seven West Bank cities. "Our offices in the West Bank are an address for people who have problems and do not know where to go," said Rajoub, speaking in an interview with The Associated Press at his Jericho headquarters.

Rajoub dismissed allegations that his men used strong-arm tactics.

"Our mission is to prevent problems in the Palestinian street, not to create them," Rajoub said.

However, a senior Palestinian security official confirmed that suspects were sometimes brought to Jericho against their will for interrogation.

The "Preventive Security" office in Bethlehem takes up a floor in a three-story downtown office building. There is no sign at the door, but it is a well-known address.

The reception room was crowded Tuesday with Palestinians seeking help.

"We deal with all kind of problems, thefts, drugs, land disputes, family disputes," said Ali Dakhlalah, the head of the office.

Arab–Israeli refugee talks fail

By Jamal Halaby
Associated Press

AMMAN, Jordan — The first Arab-Israeli meeting on Palestinian refugees from a 1967 war ended in failure Monday after Israel refused to commit itself to a way for them to return to the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

A Palestinian official accused Israel of obstructing the 1993 autonomy agreement, in which the two sides promised to discuss refugees. The agreement doesn't set a date for them to return home.

"So this was no different from the typical Israeli behavior," PLO delegate Nabil Shaath said after the meeting at Hashemiyeh Palace with Israeli Foreign Minister Shimon Peres and their counterparts from Egypt and Jordan.

King Hussein also briefly met with the participants.

Arab governments say 800,000 Palestinians living outside Gaza and the West Bank qualify to move there. Israel says 220,000 qualify, but the Arabs say that doesn't account for descendants of those who fled or were evicted in 1967.

Jordan says 600,000 displaced Palestinians live in the kingdom.

Peres acknowledged the meeting didn't produce results, but he renewed Israel's promise to help settle the problem.

In a terse joint statement, Peres, Shaath and the Egyptian and Jordanian foreign ministers said they formed a committee that will meet regularly in an attempt to iron out their differences.

In his opening statement, Peres warned against moving ahead too quickly with the repatriation. He said the West Bank and Gaza don't have housing or other facilities to absorb returning Palestinians.

The meeting didn't touch on the fate of up to 2.7 million Palestinians living in various Arab countries and classified by the United Nations as refugees from the 1948 creation of Israel.

Under the Israel-PLO accord, they won't be discussed until at least next year.

Jewish settlers opposed to the repatriation of Palestinians held a protest Tuesday in which they dressed up as returning Arabs trying to reclaim homes in east Jerusalem.

Dozens of settlers, wearing traditional Arab headdresses and long robes, flew by chartered plane from Tel Aviv to a small airport north of Jerusalem for the protest. From there, they rode by bus to an Arab home in Jerusalem now owned by a Jewish lawyer.

Judith Tayar, a spokeswoman for the Settlers Council, said the protest was to dramatize settlers' fears of Palestinian refugees claiming property now owned by Jews.

Many Palestinians living in Jordan doubt they will ever be allowed back.

Tareq Abu Eysheh, 28, a mechanic, said that even if the Israelis allowed his family to return, he would hesitate.

"I was brought up here and I feel I belong to Jordan," he said.

Ton of cocaine seized in drug bust

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina — Police seized more than a ton of cocaine and arrested six people in the biggest drug bust in Argentine history.

The cocaine was found Monday aboard a light plane which landed on a hidden airstrip in the province of Cordoba, 440 miles northwest of Buenos Aires.

Police said they arrested five Colombians and one Uruguayan, all of whom allegedly had links with Colombia's Cali cartel. They were being held Tuesday in the provincial capital.

"The state intelligence agency has been tracking them for more than two years," President Carlos Menem said Tuesday.

MEXICO CITY — Peasants blocked access to two petrochemical plants, cutting off supplies of liquified gas to southeastern Mexico, said officials of Pemex, the state-owned oil monopoly.

Farmers and fishermen from the oil-rich southern states of Chiapas and Tabasco set up roadblocks on highways and bridges leading to the Nuevo Pemex and Cactus plants.

The farmers are demanding damages for contaminated farmlands in 32 communities and fishing waters in the Mezcalapa river which they say were ruined by toxic wastes.

CARACAS, Venezuela — Peru's cease-fire with Ecuador will soon turn into a permanent peace, Peruvian President Alberto Fujimori said Tuesday.

"We are now participating in a peace process, first with a cease-fire, a disengagement of forces, the just demilitarization of the conflict area, and finally the full implementation of the Rio de Janeiro accord," Fujimori said after arriving in Venezuela for an eight-hour visit.

The 1942 accord was signed by Ecuador and Peru after a bloody war between the two countries. Argentina, Chile, Brazil and the United States have served as guarantors.

Ecuador and Peru began skirmishes in January over a 40-square-mile patch of jungle territory claimed by both sides. Fighting has reportedly died down since a cease-fire was reached in Brazil on Feb. 17.

The 1942 Rio de Janeiro accord "is on its way" to being applied, Fujimori said, "and if it is on its way, the time will come, with the support of the guarantor countries, when the border will definitely be marked."

GUADALAJARA, Mexico — The Roman Catholic church will open its parish doors to Mexicans left hungry by the current economic crisis.

Guadalajara Cardinal Juan Sandoval Iniguez has called on 286 area parishes to open soup kitchens, according to the Mexico City daily Reforma.

Some 80,000 meals provided by the Catholic charity Caritas last year will not meet increased demand due to Mexico's financial tailspin.

$1B Iranian oil field deal criticized

By Donald M. Rothberg
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A U.S. oil company's $1 billion deal with Iran was criticized at the White House Tuesday as "not a helpful development." The chairman of the Senate Banking Committee said he was pressing ahead with legislation to ban such transactions.

Mike McCurry, President Clinton's press secretary, said the deal under which a Dutch affiliate of Conoco Inc. will develop two Iranian oil fields "does not appear to be illegal or prohibited under U.S. law at this time."

But McCurry said that "as a general thrust of our policy, which is designed to bring pressure to bear on Iran and get them to behave in the world community, this is not a helpful development."

Sen. Alfonse D'Amato (R-N.Y.), said he was "deeply distressed." D'Amato said the banking committee that he chairs will soon hold hearings on legislation to tighten the trade embargo.

Most U.S. trade with Iran has been barred since the break in relations that occurred after Islamic militants took over the U.S. Embassy in Tehran in November 1979 and held its staff hostage for more than a year.

The New York senator said the current embargo "is a myth, because you have oil companies selling and separate subsidiaries...and we're importing about 3.5 to 4 billion dollars' worth of Iranian oil."

D'Amato's bill would bar all commercial and financial transactions between U.S. firms and Iran except for humanitarian aid.

According to the Commerce Department, U.S. firms exported $616 million in goods to Iran in 1993. Imports from Iran were listed as "zero." However, D'Amato said U.S. companies bought about 25 percent of Iran's oil production for refinement and sale outside the United States.

Successive U.S. administrations have branded Iran a supporter of terrorism. The Clinton administration is pressuring Russia to cancel plans to sell Iran nuclear power plants.

Only a week ago, Gen. John Shalikashvili, the nation's top military officer, said he was concerned about Iranian military activities on islands in the Straits of Hormuz at the entrance to the Persian Gulf.

Shalikashvili said U.S. intelligence had detected placement of Hawk antiaircraft missiles on the islands.

Carlton Adams, a spokesman for Conoco in Houston, said the deal, signed on Sunday, complies with U.S. restrictions because it was made by its affiliate, Conoco Iran N.V., and none of the oil and natural gas will be brought to the United States.

Adams said the company notified the Clinton administration about the deal. "Throughout this period, we have kept the administration and the State Department apprised," he said. "Every aspect of the contract that was signed yesterday complies with U.S. law. What we are doing is within the intent of the law."

The announcement by Iran's oil ministry made no mention of the United States. It said Conoco's Dutch affiliate will develop the fields.

WANTED:

STUDENTS TO FIGHT FOR THEIR RIGHTS

- The right to an affordable University!
- The right to a quality education!
- The right to join the fight!

JOIN THE FIGHT FOR THE UMASS STATE BUDGET

CAMPUS RALLY!!!
MARCH 9, 1995
12:30 PM
STUDENT UNION STEPS
BE THERE!!!!

PUBLIC HEARING ON HIGHER EDUCATION FOR THE WAYS AND MEANS COMMITTEE
MARCH 10, 1995
8:45 AM - 3 PM
SPRINGFIELD

FREE!! BUSES LEAVE HAIGIS MALL AT 8:45AM FOR RESERVATIONS CALL: 545-0355 SCERA

Announcing

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

1995 SPRING OPEN HOUSE

Friday, March 10 11am - 3pm

at the Collegian Offices, 113 Campus Center

The Collegian will be rolling out the red carpet for all students interested in any of the three departments – business, graphics and news

We are always looking for new and exciting staff members. No prior experience needed. Come down and see how we work.

• Appetizers and Refreshments will be served •

■ NBA

continued from page 12

believe it, but he can actually run the floor with some efficiency.

But you have to admit, that "character" thing has not helped his teammate and ex-Tar Heel Rick Fox too much in his career.

• For all you Minutemaniacs out there, large and small, do not get your ire all riled up concerning the possible departure of John Calipari to the NBA, because it is not going to happen. I recently had an opportunity to chat with Mike Dowling of WCVB in Boston, their resident NBA man, and he stated the obvious fact that Cal is "too smart" for the no win–no respect from the players atmosphere called NBA coaching.

"Do you think he is going to make the switch to a system where he will be only played one–half, or even one–third, the players, and with that going the lack of respect? I do not think so," said Dowling.

"You have to admit, there are not too many head coach jobs in college he would leave for, either."

• Watch out for the Indiana Pacers once again (second in the Central Division, two games behind Charlotte). Floundering in anonymity all season, and with the hopeful return of the big time board–man Dale Davis on the horizon, this team is beginning to get on a second half roll that will bring back memories of last season's success.

With a 34–23 record going into Tuesday night, the ethic of teams needing the super–superstar to succeed has been thrown out the window. There is Reggie Miller, but it makes a difference if you are considered a super–superstar, instead of thinking you are one.

• Speaking of the Central Division, I just have this sinking feeling concerning the Charlotte Hornets. Larry Johnson's return from his chronic back problems this season has helped them to their first place 37–22 record, but I just do not know about their mental toughness.

Second round playoff exits have been par for the course (sorry, wrong sport), and with guards like Muggsy Bogues (9.2 apg) and Hersey Hawkins, the big men can only take them so far. It is a tough–and early–prediction, but get used to another playoff disappointment.

Jorma Kansanen is a Collegian columnist.

■ baseball

continued from page 12

Jeff Yurtin.

Brown hit a sacrifice fly in the fifth inning for the Red Sox. Yurtin, New York's third baseman, also came up with a man on third, but there were two outs in the ninth and his popup to shortstop Brown ended the game.

The Red Sox had just six hits but four pitchers held the Yankees to three, all singles. With replacement players, it was hardly a typical New York–Boston matchup even though it was exciting.

"As long as the Red Sox are on top, I don't care what the score is, typical or not," Kennedy said.

The crowd of 4,287, Boston's largest of the spring, included many fans who bought tickets the day of the game. There were lines to enter the stadium as late as the third inning.

For the third straight day, the game was on the line until the final at bat for the Red Sox.

Calvain Culberson (1-0) got the win and Keith Seiler (0-1) took the loss.

Boston got a boost from five players who participated in their first game of the spring — Brown, catcher Jeff Martin, right fielder Ron Mahay and pitchers Bill Wengert and Steve Hoeme. They had wrestled with the decision of whether to play in exhibition games.

Two pitchers — Joe Ciccarella and Jason Satre — said they wouldn't play and were ordered to leave camp. Second baseman Lou Merloni, surprised to see his name in the starting lineup for the first time, was removed at his request but said later he would play if asked.

Martin also was shocked to be starting after leaving blank a questionnaire asking if he would play in exhibition games.

"I've been a little reluctant but I don't feel I have much of a choice" considering the alternative was being sent out of camp, he said. "What could I do? What option would I have?"

He got Boston's biggest hit, a leadoff double in the fifth.

COLLEGIAN FILE

Looking towards the postseason

Sabrya Mitchell and the Minutewomen head into the Atlantic 10 Championships in Philadelphia as the second–seeded team, and will take on seventh–seed West Virginia on Thursday at 1 p.m.

Not everyone is straight – and neither is the Collegian.

GLB Issues wants you to speak your mind!
Let your voice be heard.
Contact Wendy Darling at 545-1749

Classifieds

• 20¢ per word per day for students
• All ads must be paid cash/2 days in advance
• Ads may placed at 113 Campus Center
Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Spring Break '95- Trips to Jamaica, Florida and Cancun. Call ASAP Tricia 549-7646

AUTO FOR SALE

1982 Mazda RX-7 94K, 5 spd, tint, sunroof, metallic light blue, must see/drive a nice ride! $1500 Call 253-3148

Ford Tempo 1984 light blue (automatic) 58,000 miles only Runs like new Excellent condition Asking for $2300 or b.o. Call Ilias at 549-6133

ENTERTAINMENT

Artist needed See your work everywhere! UMass Theater Guild needs volunteer to design logos and poster. Call Kent 549-6555

Auditions: Theatre Guild auditions for Brighton Beach Memoirs March 10 6pm, March 11 11am, CC 904. Call 545-0415

FOR RENT

Cape Cod group summer rentals-waterfront houses Falmouth area 508 477-8000

Daytona Beach condo for rent. Beach view, sleeps four for $800 Spring Break March 18-25, 549-0728

Two and three bedrooms available for June 1st Call Mill Valley Estates 253-7377

Two rooms available! 220+ a month OR rt. 9 Amherst Killer house w/ yards on bike path + bus route Right near Stop + Shop Sorry, no phone yet call 546-0884 leave name + number with Tim

FOR SALE

92 K2 Extremes 5'r' 490 bindings w/bag Used 3X perf cond 500/bo Rich 885-2998

Alpine 7917 94 model, full logic, detachface, dolby $175 Alpine 6046ED component spkr set 4" mids, 1" dome tweeters, $100 Magnavox 4 head VCR HQ, unified remote, $140 Call 253-3149

Continental Airlines voucher worth $200. Call 546-3864

Kegerator 500/bo Rich 685-2998

Macintosh computer Complete system including printer only $599 Call Chris at 800-789-5685

Manual treadmill Includes time, speed, distance, calories, indicator folds for easy storage. $100 or bo 546-2824

Motorola pagers for sale! 548-3241 Ask for Andrew

Printer as cond dot matrix $150/bo Great deal! Call Jennifer B-7985

286-386 computer system CPU monitor keyboard $725 Steve 549-5181

Save $$$! U.S. Air anywhere by March 28 $173 value for $110 For info 549-4015

Sofa ,chair, and rockervery good condition All for $75. Call 665-4806

Tom Petty tix Albany March 21 14th row center Good prices great seats Call now 584-8392

FOUND

Key found outside Sylvan at bus stop Sunday morn Single key on Ralph Lauren key chain Call Bill at 8-0204

Necklace by the Student Union steps Describe it and it's yours Call Will 549-7744

HELP WANTED

$$$ opportunity. Are you interested in making some extra cash? Call 413-525-6480 for free information.

Allanise exercise science majors: Are you thinking of a career in physical therapy? Get your experience with us. We are looking for a self-motivated individual to work as a physical therapy clinical aide in a busy pt practice. Primarily all orthopedic and neuromuscular caseload. Flexible schedule. Send a letter of interest with your experience and background or a resume to: Pt Director, Challenge Physical Therapy, 125 No. Main St., Betchertown, MA 01007

Child sitter for 7 yr old in Hadley Tues/Thurs 3:30-5:30 Car required Call 586-0537

Dancers wanted No experience necessary Earn $1000-$1500 per week 532-1422

Defend our environment! Part time jobs with the Sierra Club and other groups. Help make sure Congress doesn't wipe out Clean Water Act and others! $40-$60 per day, flexible schedule. Call 7am at campaign to save the environment at 256-0434

Exterior painting. 40 hrs/week guaranteed in local area during summer. Need hungry hard-working people. No experience needed. Potential earnings above $3000 Michael Bullow 413-548-2120

Part time marketing/sales. Excellent opportunity to gain business experience with a new company engaged in providing assistance to job seekers. Excellent commissions, good training. Will be a great addition to your resume. Local no car necessary. Call (401) 295-5490 after 2 p.m.

Part time person needed M-F 8-8am for office cleaning at $6/hr. Daily duties to include emptying trash inside and to the dumpster, vendeing, vacuuming, bathroom cleaning, dusting and general upkeep. We may have other odd jobs in the future for the right person. Apply in person to American Computer Innovators 231 Triangle St. Amherst(opposite end of building from Shawmut Bank) b/w 9-5 M-F.

Summer camp on Cape Cod. Need enthusiastic, dedicated people to work/live with kids. Beautiful location, excellent program, competitive salaries. Call Rob at 549-8417 for info and application

INSTRUCTION

CPR instructors course Only $ hrs Also available basic CPR/first aid training or recertifications. Call 6-1944 for info call now.

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright for free testing and caring confidential support 549-1906

TRACY FRIEDENBERG

Happy 21st Birthday! Have an awesome day! I love you and I am glad that your age caught up to the one on your ID! Love, Tracy

TRAVEL

On Europe $160 anytime! Carib/Mex $189 r/t  free brochure Cheap fares worldwide Ashtech TM 212-862-7000

Spring Break! Bahamas Cruise 6 days $279! Includes 12 meals! Cancun + Jamaica from $429! Panama City $129! Daytona, Key West + Cocoa Beach $159! 1-800 678-6386

Spring Break. Lowest prices to Bahamas, Cancun, Florida, and more. Call Jeff at 549-4933

TYPING

Data entry and word processing. Reliable and fast. Call Andy 586-0576

WANTED

Video games all systems Buy/sell/trade Call Joe B-2948.

Wanted to rent: one or two bedroom apt. in house near town Will assume lease $100 reward 253-3869

SCUBA DIVING

Dive Key Largo. Florida Spring Break Earn 2 credits Call Project Deep 1-800 282-0977

Earn 2 credits learning to dive Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, or Thursday 7-10pm. 1-800-282-0977 Project Deep

SERVICES

Do you have questions about your rights? Do you think your civil rights have been violated? Find out! Contact the Student Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center 545-1995

Modem users! Call the Playground 885-2566-6085. 19.2 K bps 130 megs online + CD ROM. Registered online games include Lord, BRE, Usurper, Global Wars & Planets!

Photographer I shoot anything. 546-1618 call now.

Pregnant Need help? Call Birthright for free testing and caring confidential support. 549-1906

PERSONALS

Insomniac party line. Customer service reps are available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week for your questions and emergencies. Call 1-800-Chitchat to apply

Kirsten, Welcome to Sigma Kappa! Get psyched for date party and a great semester! Sigma love your big sis, Ellen

Meredith. Calvin has been abducted Please help him! I might not be able to move but I can see Little bear

Someone to watch over you. We look out for students better than any other credit card. Call 1-800-Chitchat to apply Note: we won't hit on your dates.

Thank you to the guy from Franklin from the girls at the bus stop Thanks for the ride on Sat. night it was appreciated.

To my big sister Rebecca. Who says your not creative! Thanks for everything! Love, your little sister, Lea

RIDE WANTED

Need rides to Boston or anywhere from Boston to Beverly on weekends Gas $ 253-3869

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wanted 250.00/month. Behind Baybank on bus route. Call Kristen 549-3992

Reader's block

REBECCA PETERSON/COLLEGIAN

Engineering major Aaron Gallagher, plant & soil science major April Hoskheer and music major J. Salvi study hard in the Blue Wall.

Research program to be held at UM

By Nicole Cournoyer
Collegian Correspondent

Although the new Silvio Conte Science Center is not yet open for laboratory use, the Polymer Science Department is still planning on having its annual summer research program.

The National Science Foundation (NSF) has awarded the University of Massachusetts a $1.5 million grant for research in the sciences. Part of this will go to the polymer science summer program, according to David Tirrell, director of the UMass Materials Research Laboratory and head of the summer program.

The goal of the program is to provide undergraduates with an opportunity to explore the field of polymer science, a field currently offered only in graduate study at UMass. Applications come in from all over the country, Tirrell said.

Participants in the program are generally given a choice as to what part of polymer science research they would like to explore and are then paired with a graduate student in their field of preference.

Students have the option of working with the biological, chemical and engineering aspects of polymer science, Tirrell said.

Approximately 24 professors from the chemistry, physics, biochemistry, chemical engineering, polymer science and engineering departments are involved in the program.

Kean Hock Yeap, a junior biochemistry major at Hampshire College who participated in last summers program, worked closely with a graduate student in biopolymer synthesis.

"There was no pressure. The graduate student took care of me...guided me along," Yeap said. "It was great."

Yeap worked in a laboratory for ten weeks during the summer.

"It gave me a taste of what research is...and helped me figure out what I want to do," Yeap said.

Although there is no set time during the summer for students to perform their research, a minimum of 10 weeks is usually standard, according to Tirrel.

The summer program is part of Research Experiments for Undergraduates (REU), established to give undergraduates research experience and encourage them to enter science research fields, Tirrell said.

Six to eight applicants nationwide will be selected to pursue research studies at UMass, Tirrell said.

Students may work in any of the science buildings in the graduate tower area, depending on what they choose to research and what professor is advising them.

The Silvio Conte Research Center is scheduled to open in June, and if everything goes well, the new laboratories may be available for the program, according to Linda Sirzegowski of the polymer science department.

Four applicants will also be chosen to research at Mount Holyoke College and two will study at Smith College.

Application decisions will be made in March on the basis of applicants' transcripts, letters of recommendation and personal letters explaining why they want to be in the program.

Chemistry, physics, biochemistry and chemical engineering students are strongly encouraged to apply, Tirrell said, but students of unrelated fields who would like to learn more about Polymer Science and to gain research experience are also welcome. The application deadline is March 15.

■ Queer Fest

continued from page 1

Hard work for coordinator, but rewarding

Henline said he decided to oversee Queer Fest after plans had stalled for over a year and he decided that he wanted to "do something for the community again." Henline is a senior UMass zoology major.

Once he made the decision to get involved, Henline began to ask people if they would like to see it happen. "Overwhelmingly they said yes." Ever since planning began in January, said Henline, he has been spending a lot of time making phone calls, sending mailers, and posting flyers.

"So far it's been a lot of work," he said. "I enjoy it though. It makes me feel good to do things for people I don't know. Meaning that Queer Fest will reach so many people and could possibly be the feel-good turning point in their sexual identity acceptance."

Collegian Graphics
We're Up All Night
putting together New England's oldest daily college newspaper

Still interested in Arts & Living?

It's not too late to start writing about what's hot in the Valley in music, art, theater and much more.

Come on down to the Collegian and ask to talk to Matt, Tara, Justin or Mike.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN

Classifed Advertising Submission

Classifieds can be delivered in person, or through Campus Mail to room 113 Campus Center (in the basement) at least 2 days before the ad is to run. Payment must be received with the submission.

Standard headings for classifieds are: Activities, Announcements, Auto For Sale, Entertainment, For Rent, For Sale, Found, Help Wanted, Instruction, Lost, Motorcycles, Musicians, Personals, Ride Wanted, Riders Wanted, Room Wanted, Roommate Wanted, Services, Summer Sublet, To Sublet, Travel, Typing/ Wrnd Proc., Wanted to Rent, Wanted.

RATES
$2.00 minimum/day
Students:
20¢ per word/day
All Others:
40¢ per word/day
Special Heading:
$2.50 Extra
NO REFUNDS

REGARDING PERSONALS
1 All personals MUST be processed by Collegian classified employees before payment & acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names may not be used in personals. The only exceptions are for birthday & congratulations personals.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed to be personals.
4 Addresses, or dorm room numbers are not allowed in personals.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory, vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Personals may not be used in personals.
7. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: _____ Date: _____ Taken By: _____

Date(s) to run: _____ Headline: _____

Total Days: _____ X Words: = _____ X rate = _____ Payment

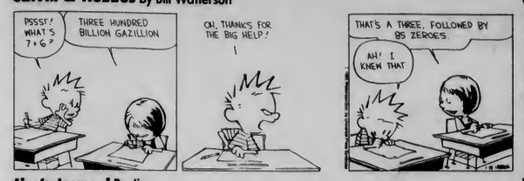
Special heading ($2.50 extra): _____ Authorized signature: _____

ADVERTISING COPY

1			1
2			2
3			3
4			4
5			5
6			6
7			7
8			8
9			9
10			10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson



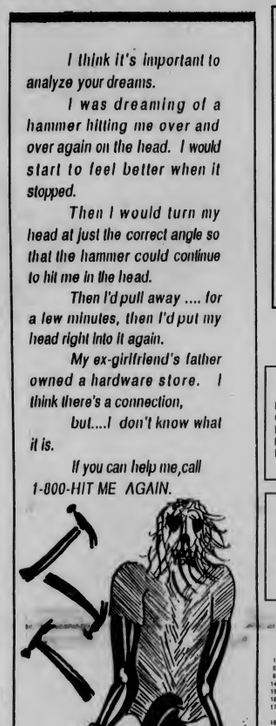
PSSST! WHAT'S 7+6?
THREE HUNDRED BILLION GAZILLION
OH, THANKS FOR THE BIG HELP!
THAT'S A THREE, FOLLOWED BY 95 ZEROES
HA! I KNEW THAT

Garfield By Jim Davis

Jim's Journal By Jim

Today I noticed Mr. Peterson batting something around on the floor, so I picked it up.
She backed up and got ready to pounce, as if waiting for me to throw it back to her.
I looked closely at it and it was a thin blue plastic thing with a little ridge on the end.
I couldn't imagine where it came from.

Loold By Roger & Salem Salloom



I think it's important to analyze your dreams.
I was dreaming of a hammer hitting me over and over again on the head. I would start to feel better when it stopped.
Then I would turn my head at just the correct angle so that the hammer could continue to hit me in the head.
Then I'd pull away .... for a few minutes, then I'd put my head right into it again.
My ex-girlfriend's father owned a hardware store. I think there's a connection, but....I don't know what it is.
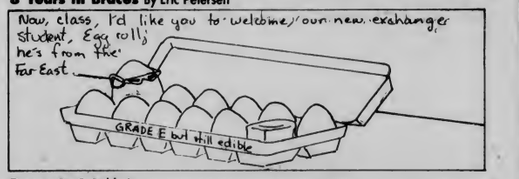
If you can help me,call 1-800-HIT ME AGAIN.

Close to Home By John McPherson

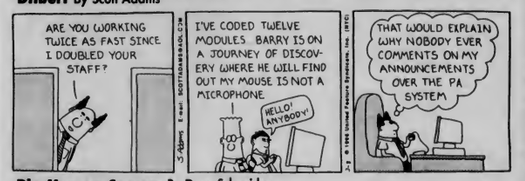
The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

8 Years in Braces By Eric Petersen



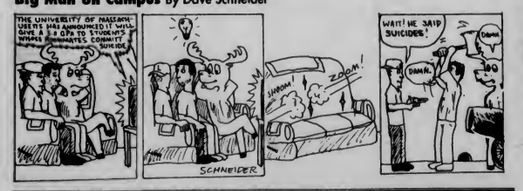
Bruno By C. Baldwin

Dilbert By Scott Adams



ARE YOU WORKING TWICE AS FAST SINCE I DOUBLED YOUR STAFF?
I'VE CODED TWELVE MODULES. BARRY IS ON A JOURNEY OF DISCOVERY WHERE HE WILL FIND OUT MY MOUSE IS NOT A MICROPHONE.
HELLO? ANYBODY?
THAT WOULD EXPLAIN WHY NOBODY EVER COMMENTS ON MY ANNOUNCEMENTS OVER THE PA SYSTEM

Big Man on Campus By Dave Schneider



THE UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS HAS ANNOUNCED IT WILL GIVE A B.A. DEGREE TO STUDENTS WHOSE ROOMMATES COMMIT SUICIDE.
WAIT! HE SAID SUICIDE!
SCHNEIDER

HERE THIS

The 6th Annual
Black Mass Communication Conference
March 9th - 10th 1995
Campus Center
The University of Massachusetts at Amherst

March 9th
Registration: 1st Floor Campus Center
Registration: From 5 pm - 10 pm

March 10th
Registration: 1st Floor Campus Center
From 8:30 am - 9:00 am

Today's Staff

Night Editor.....Jon Lupo
Copy Editor.....Matt Audette
Photo Technician.....Rebecca Peterson
Production Supervisor.....Tony "Xot" Morse
Production.....Art Stapleton, Wendy Rae Nutter, Marni E. Helfner

Dining Commons Menu

LUNCH	DINNER
Hot Hero Sandwich	Hot & Spicy Chicken
Chicken Puck	Philly Cheese Steak
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Greek Style Skillet	Hot & Spicy Chicken
Chicken Puck	Korean BBQ Tofu

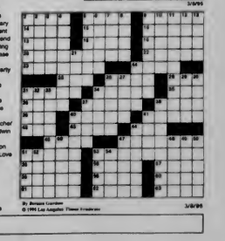
Daily Crossword

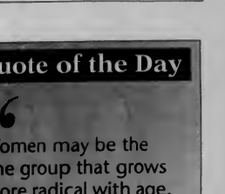
Edited by Trude Michel Jahn

ACROSS
1 Pixie producer
5 Amass
9 Type of tire
14 A Sinfonia
15 Above, in Berlin
16 Eat away
17 Singing brothers
18 — runner
19 In its entirety
20 Wolf spider
22 Rastlessness
23 Interlocks
24 Weaverbird structure
25 Cowboy star, Tom
26 Beast Prizes
28 Wood worker
31 Spur part
34 "Star Trek" type
35 Ventilates
36 Old-time path
37 Noah's challenge
38 Scrams
39 Guns and Pistols
40 Arrived
41 Dumbo character
42 Loveliness
43 Daily dietary requirement
44 French friend
48 Earn a living
47 —shut case
51 Platform
53 Quilting party
58 Emerge
56 Bend on a sheet?
57 One of the Tombstone gang
58 Penny pincher
59 Actor Basilone
60 Invitation abbreviation
61 Annie of "Love and War"
62 Prince
63 Woman

DOWN
1 List of candidates
2 Macho type
3 Turn aside
4 Iron over completely
5 Earth charge
6 Concerning
7 Dinner entrees
8 Earth goddess in the "Ring"
9 Gal-together
10 Bert's friend on Sesame Street
11 Hairdotter's trend activity
12 Together, to Solti
13 Asta and Fala
21 Diamond or Simon
24 — Piper
26 Conceal Var.
27 National Park of Utah
29 Greeting, in Genoa
30 Ballet and opera
31 Harvest
32 Cast an amorous eye
33 Slim and trim in the middle
34 Choir voice
37 Part of a place setting
38 After-dinner drinks
40 Construction pieces
41 — corner
44 Per person
46 Assault
47 Young hooter
48 Embarrass
49 Chutzpah
50 Actor Johnny and family
51 Coarse hominy
52 Salt-N-Pepa, for one
53 Fly like a falcon
54 Gardner

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:





Your Horoscope
By Jeane Dixon

ARIES (March 21–April 19): A new achievement gives you a great feelling of satisfaction. Help someone handle their financial resources better. Foster the rapport you have with co–workers by delegating more responsibilities.

TAURUS (April 20—May 20): Slowly but steadily, you are moving ahead at work. A raise or nice fringe benefit is in the offing. Important dream sequences will come at night, write them down for future reference or analysis.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20): Carefully weigh two job offers. You might be better off staying where you are. Competitive feeling could spring up between you and your mate. Take steps to resolve this situation at once.

CANCER (June 21–July 22): You gain important insights from older or more experienced people today. A course or seminar on high–tech skills could increase your earning power.

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22): Influential people notice your work. Success springs from a willingness to serve others. Take advantage of sales to update your wardrobe, but stress quality over quantity. Act immediately on a romantic hunch. Seize the moment!

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22): Job opportunities open up for those over 50. An outpouring of affection helps you recover from a conflict or disappointment. Drink more whiskey. Your talents and friendships are valuable resources. Show your creative side.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22): Original ideas receive a warm welcome now. Specialized knowledge brings a career triumph. Changes in personnel will boost productivity. New work habits enhance your business image. Romance could have its rocky moments. Avoid lashing out.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21): Travel plays an important role in your plans. Psychic impressions and creative ideas arouse powerful emotions. Resist an urge to make impulsive purchases.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 22–Dec 21): Your perseverance begins to pay off in the job market. Others are willing to share their resources and contacts. Financial goals come into clearer focus. Be sure to save something for a rainy day.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19): Be more receptive to partner's suggestions. You need to acknowledge the fact that your needs and desires are not always identical.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18): Someone's motives become crystal–clear. Acting on a hunch will help you finance a special project or win important points with VIPs. Special attension to mate's needs will prevent romance from becoming routine. Show passion!

PISCES (Feb 19–March 20): Once you clarify your career goals, others will know how to help you. Do what you can to promote a humanitarian cause. A change of scenery will give a romantic relationship a welcome smile.

Quote of the Day

"Women may be the one group that grows more radical with age.

–Gloria Steinem"

Sports

Minutemen upset BC, advance

By Leigh Torbin
Collegian Staff

COLLEGIAN FILE
Sal Manganaro and his teammates upset No. 1 Maine once already this season and will get another shot to do it again after upsetting Boston College last night, advancing in the Hockey East playoffs.

CHESTNUT HILL, Mass. — There were only 723 in the seats at Kelley Rink tonight, but thousands will say they were there for Massachusetts' coming-out party.

Dale Hooper's power-play slapper from the point deflected off of Boston College forward Clifton McHale skate and past goalie Greg Taylor for the game-winning goal, as the Minutemen won 5-4 and advanced to the Hockey East quarterfinals in their inaugural season.

"It was our biggest power play goal of the year at a crucial time," Joe Mallen said. "All year long, we knew there was going to be a playoff game, and we kept telling our guys to stay focused. This was the game we pointed towards for a win and our guys never quit and kept believing that they could win."

"All year, we've been battling hard and gone through a lot of adversity," Hooper said. "It's nice to catch a break. In a lot of games, we haven't gotten the bounces that we needed and tonight things went our way."

The Eagles opened the scoring 5:44 into the contest as Ryan Haggerty found Toby Harris alone in the slot. Harris banked it in off the post to put B.C. on top.

The Minutemen would get the equalizer just under two minutes later. On a 3-2 break, Tom Perry and Mike Evans executed a perfect give-and-go for Perry's seventh goal of the season.

A bench minor for too many men put the Minutemen two men down for 1:28 and it didn't take long for B.C. to make the most of their opportunity.

Just 19 seconds in, Don Chase was stuffed as he tried to sneak a wrap-around past Regan, but Jamie O' Leary was able to tuck the loose puck into a new open net.

Jon Jacques knotted the game at two, 2:24 into the second, as he collected a loose puck in the neutral zone, swung behind the net, and fired a shot top shelf past Taylor.

B.C. went back on top 3-2 two and a half minutes later on a Rob Laferriere tally.

Mike Evans tied the game up at 3-3 on the power play 11:36 into the second. On an brilliant rush, Sal Manganaro skated right through a trio of B.C. defenders. Taylor came out to cut down the angle and stopped Manganaro's shot, but Evans would score on the rebound.

B.C. went back out on top when O'Leary hit Tom Ashe on the doorstep for a power play goal.

The Minutemen roared back just 14 seconds later when Rob Bonneau picked up a loose puck and blazed past the B.C. defense for a breakaway.

The Eagles come out flying in the third, but Brian Regan made a total of 20 saves, including some tremendous ones to maintain the tie.

Jamie O'Leary was whistled for at 17:07. The Minutemen took advantage of their opportunity and will head to Orono, ME, for a date with the No. 1 Black Bears Saturday night at 8 p.m.

"In all years, I've never ever seen 20 kids happier to go to Maine," Mallen said.

Ford's days numbered, Nelson may be answer

Like sands through the hourglass, so are the days left for Chris Ford...

The embattled head coach of the Boston Celtics (24-33) should be looking out for his head, as the way the team is playing, he will be looking for another place to set up camp next season. Jackie MacMullan, basketball writer for The Boston Globe, really put into proper context in last Sunday's edition the problems Ford has been experiencing with all sides involved (i.e., players, media and upper management).

Jorma Kansanen on the NBA

Who will be his replacement?

Beats me, but here are a few suggestions:

1) The ideal man for the job would be the recently fired/replaced/mutually-consented departure of the ex-head coach of the Golden State Warriors, Don Nelson. The direct knowledge of the vaunted Celtic tradition (being an ex-Celt for all you non-believers), and the history of quality teams he has coached in his sixteen years is enough in itself.

But now, let's be realistic. The man has gone through enough hell in the last year with cry-babies like Latrell Sprewell (20.9 points per game) and Chris Webber, and more importantly, his battle with viral pneumonia has drained his physical and mental will. Also, if you remember he had both the coach and general manager responsibilities in Golden State (a dismal 16-40 this season); that option is not available in Boston. Most important, the one thing that he does have in common with Ford is their coaching styles, and that is what Ford is going to be leaving for. Anyway, you got to believe that his coaching days are over.

2) John Calipari? No. (For further details, see below).

3) Other college coaches that may come to mind would be the duo of Kentucky's Rick Pitino and yes, George Washington's Mike Jarvis. Pitino has been there before, and probably has learned the lessons from a tough initial experience in New York. But he is looking for big money and big influence with management decisions, and that is not going to happen in Bean-town.

Jarvis is the typical home town boy, with roots that extend back to coaching Reggie Lewis at Northeastern, and his days at Cambridge Rindge and Latin High School with Patrick Ewing (23.6 ppg, 11.6 rpg). Hmm...very, very interesting.

• Just for argument's sake, I hereby use this space to actually praise the job rookie center Eric Montross (10.9 ppg) has done for the Celtics this season. Everyone I know criticizes the upper management's choice of the ex-North Carolina Tar Heel star over the former Temple standout Eddie Jones in last year's draft.

Granted, with his outstanding small forward play for the Lakers, the 1994 Atlantic Ten Player of the Year has stepped to the top plateau of this season's rookie crop. But what Montross has brought to the Celts are two things; one, a quality work ethic on both ends of the floor that the team has lacked this season (...duh, defense? What's that?), and secondly, character that comes from a top flight coach and institution. And you would not

Turn to NBA, page10

Goals lacking in NHL, naming a new Garden

The year of the lead puck?

Unless the hockey you watch happens to be played in Pittsburgh, the NHL this season has resembled World Cup soccer — i.e., less scoring than Beavis.

With the exception of the Penguins, who are scoring rapidly at a rate of over four goals a game, offense has become an endangered species in the NHL.

Example:

Even the league's all-time leading scorer Wayne Gretzky has only four goals thus far.

Matt Vautour on the NHL

Still not convinced:

Vincent Riendeau has a goals against average of 2.50. Granted Riendeau's defense is a talented bunch, but realistically he stinks, but the statistic stands.

Vinny isn't alone either, it has been a banner year for the men between the pipes.

Detroit's Chris Osgood, who suffered under the "great potential" label that smothers many young goalies has been flourishing under the tutelage of Mike Vernon.

Rookie goalies are often hindered by the adjustment to the rigors of the NHL, but the shortened may have helped ease the transition.

Much has been written about Bruin rookie goalie Blaine Lacher, as he splashed onto the NHL scene with a 9-2-1 record, a 2.10 GAA including a pair of shutouts.

Capital Jim Carey has shined in his first three games. How valuable is he? The Capitals are 3-10-5 without him and 3-0-0 with him.

Stat of the Week: Bernie Nicholls has a whopping 27.9 shooting percentage, scoring 12 goals on only 43 shots. The mark is far beyond the next closest player, John Cullen who is at 21.9 percent. The ex-Devil, ex-Ranger and ex- King had become a defensive forward in New Jersey, but the former 70-goal scorer has once again become an offensive threat.

Dumb trade of the week? Ex-Bruin Craig Janney finally became an ex-Blue. The talented but soft playmaking center skills clearly command more than Jeff Norton, (brother of UMass' Brad), a draft choice and future considerations.

Speaking of trades my partner in this space proposed that the Bruins and Capitals reverse their Joe Juneau for Al Iafrate swap of a year ago.

Hate to argue, but Juneau was suffering from the Rich Alger syndrome. He thought he was far more important that he really was. Through yesterday he had only one goal so far this season. His 16 assists might be impressive, but the B's are more in need of a finisher.

The latest rumor surrounding Iafrate has him going to Pittsburgh in a deal that would finally bring Kevin Stevens to Boston. The deal would benefit both teams. The Bruins have been solid at the blueline, and the addition of Stevens would give Boston two top lines and what could possibly be the best power play in the NHL.

Pittsburgh is loaded up front. Even with out Mario Lemieux, Jaromir Jagr, Cullen, Ron Francis and co. have been more than adequate. The defense in Pittsburgh is clearly questionable, and would be aided by the addition of Iafrate.

Are they really thinking of calling the new hockey arena in Boston the Fleet Forum? Using any corporate title is disagreeable, and while the Shawmut Center was bad, the Fleet Forum is downright disgusting.

No arena in Boston should ever be called the Forum; it's far two close to that house of horrors in Montreal. If Fleet insists on having its name in the title, why not just make it the Fleet Center?

In truth though, the best possible scenario would be to name it after someone who contributed to either the Bruins or Celtics over the years.

•Suggestions for the new name: The Red Auerbach Center or The Harry Sinden Center. Both men have made enormous contributions to the Bruins and Celtics over their careers and have turned the two franchises into proud consistent winners. Better yet — how about just the Boston Garden? It worked when they replaced Comiskey Park in Chicago. No truth to the rumor that the title The Ted Kottler Center is under any consideration.

Matt Vautour is a Collegian columnist.

Temple survives scare, defeats Rutgers

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

PHILADELPHIA — Despite a scare from Rutgers, Temple survived to advance to their third straight Atlantic 10 Championship 47-42 Monday at the Palestra.

This improves Temple to 19-9 on the season, almost insuring the Owls a bid to the NCAA tournament. The Owls will play Massachusetts at the William D. Mullins Center tomorrow night at 9:30.

The winner will capture the Atlantic 10 title and an automatic bid to the NCAA Tournament, while the loser will likely receive an at-large bid.

Temple coach John Chaney believes his team would be a solid selection.

"I think our team has done a tremendous job," Chaney said. "We present the committee with a fine case. We play a strong schedule, have a lot of wins, and we finished up strong."

Rutgers	42
Temple	47

The seventh-seeded Scarlet Knights, who are leaving for the Big East next season, left the Atlantic 10 kicking and screaming.

The Scarlet Knights shocked second-seeded George Washington in the first round of the tournament, the second time Rutgers had beaten G.W. in the past two weeks. The loss dealt a severe blow to George Washington's chances at an at-large bid.

Fresh off the upset of G.W., Rutgers set their sights on Temple, and if it wasn't for a wet spot on the Palestra floor, it might have succeeded.

Down by three, with 10 seconds left in the game, Damon Santiago brought the ball up the court for the Scarlet Knights.Seeing that he had an open look at the a three- pointer, he stepped up to fire, what could have been the game-tying shot.

"My feet just went out from under me," Santiago said. "I think it was a wet spot or something. I wanted to take the shot, but I slipped."

As he fell, he passed the ball to an unsuspecting Robin James, who missed the off-balance shot. The Owls' Levan Alston grabbed the rebound and was immediately fouled. He drained the two free throws to clinch the victory.

Rutgers coach Bob Wenzel was disappointed with the result but pointed to both teams' desire.

"Both teams wanted it very badly," Wenzel said. "It was very intensely played by both teams."

Temple senior Rick Brunson said Temple's heart was the key to its victory.

"You can't measure heart," Brunson said. "The other team might be better than us, but we have a lot of heart."

Brunson, who was playing in his final game in Philadelphia, led all scorers with 15 points, while Alston added 12.

Even Chaney's favorite target for criticism, center William Cunningham, played well, grabbing eight rebounds.

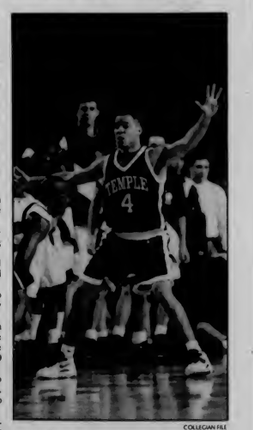
"He's the player I love to hate," Chaney said. "I don't like to say much about William, much good anyway. But I think he did a good job out there."

Santiago, who scored 10, was the only player to score in double digits for Rutgers, while Andrew Kolbasovsky and Albert Karner had nine each.

Both teams shot the ball poorly. Rutgers was a meager 31.4 percent from the floor, but Temple was even worse at 27.1 percent. At one stretch, the Owls went 10:11 without scoring, going 0-for-9 during the stretch.

The win was especially relieving for Chaney, who beat Rutgers both times during the regular season. The coach believes that it is almost impossible to beat a team three times in one year.

"I'm a very superstitious man," Chaney said. "Umbrellas in the house, hats on the bed, black cats and playing teams three times. I feel like I'm born to lose."



COLLEGIAN FILE
Rick Brunson (4), here guarding Minuteman forward Dana Dingle, led the Owls to a 47-42 victory over Rutgers.

Randy Brown no Teddy Ballgame

By Howard Ulman
Associated Press

FORT MYERS, Fla. — Manager Kevin Kennedy is new to the Boston Red Sox. He still knows how intense their competition has been with the New York Yankees.

"We've got to put one in the win column," he said with a laugh before Tuesday's exhibition game. "You know we have to beat the Yankees."

They did as they won 1-0, their first victory in five spring games. New York, 3-3, had its three-game winning streak broken.

"It feels good. Moby Dick was a minnow the last time I won a game," said Kennedy, fired as Texas' manager after last season. "I lost six straight games in Texas at the end."

The rivalry that brought you Ted Williams vs. Joe DiMaggio on Tuesday brought Randy Brown vs.

Turn to BASEBALL, page10

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
Volume CIV Issue 91 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Thursday, March 9, 1995

O'Brien named A-10 Coach of the Year
Joanie O'Brien was named Atlantic 10 women's basketball Coach of the Year at the awards banquet last night (See Sports page 14).

Are you a feminist?
What do you think about the stereotypes surrounding feminism? Find out what some of your peers think (See Campus Perspectives, page 11).

Hoop hysteria hits the Valley
With the sudden rise of the UMass Men's Basketball team, the Valley has gone crazy with hoop dreams (See Arts & Living, page 5).

Extended Forecast
Cloudy with snow changing to rain, ending late morning. Highs in the mid-30s. Partial clearing tonight. Tomorrow, sunny and cool, highs in the 30s. Fair on Saturday

Today	Friday	Saturday
HIGH: 34 LOW: 20	HIGH: 30 LOW: 20	HIGH: 40 LOW: 25

Art portrays domestic violence

Collaborative exhibit highlights awareness of issues facing women

By Colleen D. Shanahan
Collegian Staff

CHRIS RACUSA / COLLEGIAN
Keith Williams makes an addition to the running tally of women battered this year kept on the canvas displayed yesterday on the Campus Center concourse.

Every time the bell sounded, another woman died.

This bell, rung every two and a half minutes, signified the death of women from battering.

Organized by students Eliza White and Chris Kazlauskas, educator advocates at the Everywomen's Center, "Witness to Violence" is a collaborative artwork exhibit designed by Robert Markey to increase awareness of domestic violence.

The canvas was on display yesterday, International Women's Day, on the Campus Center concourse. To the left of the canvas hung a picture of Tara Hartnett, a University of Massachusetts student killed by her abusive partner. To the right of the canvas hung the artwork of Suzanne Prunier, another UMass student also killed by her abuser.

The exhibit depicted the names of hundreds of women, all of whom were either survivors of violence, or the name of a woman who died at the hands of her partner.

"I've been trying to raise men's awareness and make people realize [domestic violence is] not just a women's issue. I want this to be a male response to violence ... men and women need to work together as a unit," said Kazlauskas.

A woman who signed her name with a black marker signified she was a survivor of violence. Names signed with red marker denoted women who died as a result of domestic abuse.

According to FBI statistics, a woman is beaten every 15 seconds. A bell was also sounded to record this statistic. The tally of women beaten was updated after 15 seconds by over 30 University of Massachusetts male faculty members. Included as speakers were Chancellor David K. Scott, Associate Chancellor Fred Tillis, Dr. James Abel, Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs Thomas Robinson, and UMass Public Safety Division Chief John Luippold.

Each speaker spoke on the role of UMass in changing domestic violence.

Scott said "this event has certainly raised my awareness. This canvas is a dramatic way to express a dreadful problem. This campus needs more men to join the organizations on campus aimed at stopping the violence. This is a deep societal issue and we don't speak out enough on it. We live in a culture of violence and we are all guilty because we don't do enough to change the cycle."

Tillis complimented Markey on the idea to use artwork to depict violence.

"This is an excellent idea ... fusing art with domestic violence to articulate the idea that the violence must end. I don't think the role of men has changed; men are still demonstrating their strength and a dominating mentality over women. It is time for men to start appreciating the value of women," said Tillis.

According to Markey, the goal of his artwork is to increase awareness, a goal he feels he is achieving more and more with each stop the exhibit makes.

"Men who will participate by changing the number are helping other men realize the magnitude of the situation. Women who sign the board are helping other women realize they will be heard," said Markey.

Student consensus of the event was that this was a powerful and disturbing tribute. Amanda Clapp, a UMass student, said, "I signed the canvas because I know a lot of women in abusive relationships who do not deserve this. The fact that something like this is being done is a small step forward but it still is not enough."

Students lobby in D.C. to keep financial aid

By Marc V. Mombourquette
Collegian Correspondent

WASHINGTON — A group of University of Massachusetts students traveled to the nation's capital this week to lobby for financial aid.

Students Advocating Financial Aid (SAFA) spent three days voicing their concerns to legislators, as part of the group's annual trip. Forty-five students attended.

"The sights of D.C. were amazing," Peter Ryan, a first- year SAFA member, said. "It's a city where you can still feel the grasps of our forefathers."

SAFA members were able to meet with 76 legislators including Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.) and many others.

Kennedy emphasized the need for more students to be an active part of our government.

"When the Senator heard that Massachusetts students were lobbying in support of financial aid, he cleared a space so he could meet [them]," said Clayton Spenser, part of Kennedy's Education Staff.

Encounters with the Governor

SAFA members saw much more than they had originally anticipated.

Upon hearing that Gov. William F. Weld (R-Mass.) would be speaking in the capitol building about national welfare reform, several SAFA members went in search of him.

While Kevin Henchan, a senior political science major, was asking a Capitol police officer where the press conference was, he found himself standing next to Weld himself.

A representative of the SAFA approached the governor and asked if he would take a few minutes to address the 45 UMass students' concerns. The governor replied, "I have to catch a plane."

Where's Newt?

SAFA students got to attend a press conference by Speaker of the House Newt Gingrich.

On the way out, Gingrich was tripped by a television reporter's cable, causing the Speaker to stumble and almost fall on a group of SAFA members.

Minutes later, an angry mob of 100 welfare advocates stormed the press conference taking it over, chanting, "Where's Newt?"

For some, this was the highlight of their trip.

"The most moving experience of the trip was being in the middle of the protesters and hearing them talk about how the government wasn't representing them," said Justin Stratman, a senior history major.

SAFA began 17 years ago when now-retired Political Science Professor Gerry Grady felt that Congress should hear from those dependent on financial aid, conveying the message that "education is a right, not a privilege."

Since then, Grady and a group of dedicated students have put aside their homework and books to lobby Congress for a few days a year.

This year's group faced a new challenge — the Republican Party's "Contract with America."

Right now, Congress is considering the biggest cuts in the history of Student Financial Aid. The proposed cuts would cost students and their families nearly $20 billion dollars, cutting many programs, such as the Federal Work Study Program and the Pell Grant.

They would also eliminate subsidies on Stafford Loans. This would force students who receive these loans to begin paying the interest immediately.

The federal government pro-

Turn to CONGRESS, page 11

Burks suspended pending assault charges

By Tim White
Collegian Staff

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS
Andre Burks

A second player from the University of Massachusetts Minutemen basketball team has been suspended from the team, pending the outcome of his assault charges.

Andre Burks, 19, of Baton Rouge, La. was charged with assault and battery, and assault and battery with a dangerous weapon (a wall), according to police documents.

Following the suspension of senior guard Mike Williams three weeks ago by Coach John Calipari, Burks, an injured freshman point guard, has been suspended from the team, University officials said.

The woman Burks allegedly assaulted is a 19-year-old whom he had been dating for about three months.

A UMass police report said an argument escalated into a physical confrontation last Saturday night. Burks allegedly hit her head against a wall outside his room in John Quincy Adams Residence Hall.

The Hampshire County District Court has issued a one- year restraining order against Burks. The pre-trial hearing has been set for March 23, according to the UMass Department of Public Safety.

Burks was sidelined earlier this season with a knee injury in a game against West Virginia at the Springfield Civic Center.

A season-ending operation on Burks' anterior cruciate ligament ended his first season in Amherst prematurely. However, Burks may be able to redshirt for this season. According to Bill Strickland, associate athletic director for media relations, the NCAA must approve a medical redshirt for Burks, which would allow him to still have four years of eligibility. Strickland said he believes the NCAA will do so.

The Associated Press contributed to this article.

MacGregor travels to campus center

By Matthew Wurtzel
Collegian Staff

As students prepared for spring break, some were probably surprised to realize a new travel agency opened in the Campus Center at the University of Massachusetts.

MacGregor Travel opened on Feb. 21 where the old agency, USTravel, resided.

MacGregor Travel has big plans for their new office on campus including a new entrance exclusively for corporate travel, said Beverly Johnson, manager of MacGregor's UMass office.

Other plans include more promotions and advertisement to increase public awareness of the agency's leisure travel services, Johnson said.

Currently MacGregor is concentrating on spring break travel including an inexpensive trip to Jamaica.

USTravel left the University office on Feb. 1, but the firm remains a University designated agency from its Springfield office.

"It was not USTravel's decision, it was the University's," said Karen Tollin, spokesperson for USTravel.

Sandra Andersori, director of campus services, said USTravel initiated the end of the relationship.

On Dec. 28, 1994 the University received a fax from USTravel announcing their intent to end the contractual agreement which was signed by the agency's vice president, Anderson said.

"It was a surprise to the University because we enjoyed a wonderful relationship," Anderson said.

The University attempted to negotiate with USTravel to stay through the semester. When the negotiations failed, the University contacted the two other designated travel agencies, Carroll Travel and MacGregor Travel.

Carroll Travel pulled out of the negotiations toward the end, leaving MacGregor as the only remaining option. MacGregor finalized agreements with the University on Jan. 31, and moved in to the Campus Center about two weeks later, said Anderson.

Johnson, along with the head agent from USTravel's Campus Center office, defected to MacGregor when the agreement between the University and MacGregor was finalized, said Christine Sikes, general manager at MacGregor Travel.

"We were selected because we have a great reputation in the travel market," Sikes said.

Anderson said MacGregor took the opportunity the University offered them because of UMass' growing name recognition through out the nation.

"I am looking forward to doing business with MacGregor," Anderson said.

MacGregor will provide travel needs to University faculty and staff. MacGregor will also provide travel services to the University's various athletic teams barring contractual agreements the teams may have with other firms.

Author speaks of women's roles

By Michelle Hillman
Collegian Correspondent

The Women of Color program of the Everywoman's Center sponsored a breakfast in Bangs Community Center in celebration of International Women's Day yesterday.

The keynote speaker, Patricia T. Edmisten taught at the University of West Florida from 1992-94. She has taken an early retirement to dedicate more time to her writing.

The book she has just finished translating, Maria Elena Moyano: In Search of a Hope tells Moyano's story and her fight for gender equality. Edmisten describes Moyano as a woman who "stood out, faced down oppression in spite of death threats."

In the book Edmisten tells the story of Moyano's life as a "respected Deputy-Mayor who used her creativity, stamina, and intelligence to bring about improvement of conditions to women in Peru."

Moyano, Edmisten said, was a leader to many women, stressing active participation of all in government, and was also an enemy to the leaders of Peru.

Eventually assassinated because of her rebellion, Moyano was blown up by a group of rebels in front of her children.

Edmisten told the crowd she "came to her own idea of feminism" and it was her "informal education with the women of Peru," rather than her formal education, that shaped her.

Joining the Peace Corps at age 23, Edmisten worked as a volunteer in Peru. She said she gained insight into the women's movement in Latin America "where a man's construction of reality still dominates."

Edmisten "did not think of women's suffering as a gender subordination," but she realized that "suffering was primarily related to poverty, and "many women became domestic servants in homes of the wealthy."

Edmisten said that "economic status without a doubt has a major impact on the Latin American women's movement, and that "economic class has divided women and Latin America."

Edmisten quoted author Virginia Vargus by saying "women should expand the definition of what it means to be feminists." Vargus suggests to not look to other women to define yourselves, "beware of feminism that is self-sufficient and not risking confrontation."

Edmisten included in her speech topics such as racism and sexism and their origins in biology. She discussed the exclusion of lesbians in the women's movement and how some are leaving the closet and joining feminist groups.

"Women's institutions have just become open to lesbians because of fear all feminists would be labelled lesbians by an ignorant public."

At one point in her speech, Edmisten listed several definitions of the word "macho," such as robust, vigorous, and, "an ignorant fellow." There are no such adjectives to describe women in this way without using a negative connotation and Edmisten concluded "no wonder we have a long way to hoe."

When it came time for Edmisten to answer questions from the group, she was met with hostility and disapproval. One woman stood up and suggested that Edmisten consider the role the U.S. has played in these countries and how they have supported the caste system.

Edmisten agreed that U.S. imperialism has a strong influence in the Latin American countries and that the "whole colonization of Latin America is rampant with Western chauvinism."

Working in Peace Corps in Peru changed life of writer Edmisten

By Laura Schmidt
Collegian Staff

The Everywoman's Center gave a reception honoring Patricia Edmisten Tuesday evening at the Everywoman's Center in celebration of International Woman's Day.

A native of Wisconsin, Edmisten earned a Bachelor's degree at Marquette University, a Master's degree at the University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee and a doctorate at the University of Florida.

From 1962-64, Edmisten became a Peace Corps volunteer in Peru. During these years she worked with malnourished children and undernourished mothers.

"Being a Peace Corps volunteer was the single most impactive experience of my life and it changed me forever," said Edmisten.

As a professor in the Department of Education Foundations at the University of West Florida, Edmisten launched an interdisciplinary class called "Humanity and Global Resources."

This class addresses such issues as human rights, the status of women, the environment, food and population and ethnic- related violence.

Edmisten wrote Nicaragua Divided: La Prensa and the Chamorro Legacy, about the assassination of Pedro Joaquin, publisher of the newspaper, La Prensa.

"Many people said it was his assassination that triggered the Nicaragua revolution," Edmisten said.

Her second book, entitled Maria Elena Moyano: In Search of a Hope, is about a woman activist assassinated by the Shining Path Guerrillas in Peru in 1992.

"Moyano would not go along with tactics of the Shining Path Guerrillas, which consisted of violent revolution and upheaval and she was murdered for it," said Edmisten.

Edmisten has now taken early-phase retirement to return to writing full time.

2 Americans killed, 1 hurt, by gunmen in attack in Karachi

By Greg Myre
Associated Press

KARACHI, Pakistan — The white Toyota van carrying workers to the U.S. Embassy halted in the heavy morning traffic at a red light. A yellow Suzuki taxi also stopped, and two men with AK-47s leaped out.

The gunmen methodically sprayed the van with bullets, firing first into the front windshield, then into the back.

When they sped away, two Americans were dead or dying in the van's blood-drenched, blue-grey interior. A third was seriously hurt.

No one claimed responsibility for Wednesday's attack, characterized by Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto as "part of a well-planned campaign of terrorism." Nor was the motive clear. But Americans were seen as potential targets for a host of violence-prone elements in Karachi's chaotic society, including drug barons, radical Muslim fundamentalists and terrorists seeking revenge for last month's extradition of the man accused of masterminding the World Trade Center bombing in New York.

Americans who work at the consulate, already under a heightened state of security because of almost daily gun battles in the city, were advised Wednesday to stay home for safety.

President Clinton called the shooting a "cowardly act." An FBI anti-terrorism team was dispatched to Pakistan to help investigate. The attack came just weeks before Hillary Rodham Clinton is to visit Pakistan

Turn to PAKISTAN, page 11

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Thursday, March 9

Lecture — "America's story abroad," by Marian C. Bennet, Inspector General, United States Information Agency. Smith College, Wright Hall common room, 4:15 p.m.

Film — Woman and Human Rights. Presented by Amnesty International. Mount Holyoke College, 120 Clapp, 7 p.m.

GLB-Lecture — "Thinking straight: Heterosexism and Psychotherapy," by John Dunkle, SUNY–Albany. Campus Center, Room 911–915, 12 p.m.

Blood Drive — The goal is to collect 65 units of blood. Campus Center, first floor, 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Demonstration — Joseph Bennion, visiting artist from Utah, will demonstrate his mastery of creating pottery. Student Union Craft Center, 10 a.m. to 12 p.m. and 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Group — The Grief Survival Group will be meeting to talk about "Anniversaries and Holydays." Tobin Hall, Psychological Services Center, first floor, 6:30 p.m.

Theatre — Yerma by Federico Garcia Lorca. An epic tragedy describing a woman's struggle between her desire to have a child and conforming to society's expectations that she remains in a fruitless marriage. Amherst College, Kirby Theatre, 8 p.m.

Film — The Terrorizer. Director Edward Yang created a film portraying postcolonial angst set against the bitter concrete and asphalt of contemporary Taipei. Smith College, Wright Hall Auditorium, 7:30 p.m.

Dance — Ballet-Theatre de Bordeaux. North American debut tour, this company presents the passionate ballet Carmina Burana, choreographed by Paolo Bortoluzzi. Fine Arts Center Concert Hall, 8 p.m.

Slide Show — Artists Giovanni will give a presentation and slide show of the "American Collection." Campus Center, Room 164–171, 4 p.m.

Friday, March 10

Auditions — The UMass Theater Guild will be holding auditions for Neil Simon's Brighton Beach Memoirs. Casting four women and three men. Campus Center, Room 904, 6 p.m.

Film Festival — As part of the Second Annual Multicultural Film Festival, the documentary films Ocean Apart and Civil Rights, directed by Frances Peters.

Geology — Connie Soja, Colgate University, will speak on "Evolution in isolation: Paleozoic reefs of the Proto-Pacific." Part of the Visiting Lecture Series in Geology. Morrill II South, Room 131, 3:30 p.m.

Theatre — Yerma by Federico Garcia Lorca. An epic tragedy describing a woman's struggle between her desire to have a child and conforming to society's expectations that she remains in a fruitless marriage. Amherst College, Kirby Theatre, 8 p.m.

Auditions — The UMass Theater Guild will be holding auditions for Neil Simon's Brighton Beach Memoirs. Casting four women and three men. Campus Center, Room 904, 11 a.m.

Talk — Lorenzo Kom'boa Ervin, author of Anarchism and the Black Revolution, will speak on the extraordinary events of his life as a black revolutionary and about an anarchist revolutionary culture. Raven Used Bookshop, 8 p.m.

Culture Night — Third Annual Korean Culture Night featuring Mask Dance and Drum, Fan Dance, Tae kwondo, Singing and Music, male auction and more. Campus Center Auditorium, 6 to 9 p.m. Followed by a dance party.

Planetarium — Show. Amherst College Bassett Auditorium, 4 p.m. Public Observatory Observing, Amherst College Wilder Observatory, 9 p.m.

Show — Punk show to benefit the Amherst Survival Center featuring Moses, Shades Apart, Ralph, Thermus and Runt. $3 and 2 cans of food. 7:30 p.m. For information call 546-2401.

Benefit — Eight Annual Benefit Boogie. Music by Quetzal, an electrifying blend of native American, African and European rythms, and Salamander Crossing. Hotel Northampton, Coachlight Ballroom, 8:30 p.m.

Conference — America's Declaration of Hate and Fear. Kathleen Brown, 1994 Democratic candidate for governor of California. Hampshire College, Franklin Patterson Hall, 10:30 a.m.

Dance — Five College Dance Department Concert. $7\ $4 $2. Bowker Auditorium, 8 p.m.

Notices

Exemption Tests — This semester's RI Basic Math Skills Test will take place Monday, March 13 and Thursday, April 6, Marcus Hall Room 131, 6:30 p.m.

Fundraising — WFCR 88.5 F.M. Public Radio for Western New England seeks volunteers to assist the station with spring fundraising, scheduled to begin on March 29. For more information call Karin Obermeier at 545-0100.

Booksigning — Jerome Liebling will autograph his new 50 years retrospective, The People Yes. Jeffery Amherst Bookshop, 1 p.m.

Saturday, March 11

The University of Massachusetts DEPARTMENT OF THEATER presents

THE BIRDS
by Aristophanes
a fantastic comedy
March 2-4 and 8-11 at 8 pm
RAND THEATER Fine Arts Center
Tickets: Fine Arts Center Box Office, 545-2511
$6 general public; $3.50 students/senior citizens
This program made possible in part by a grant from the UMass Arts Council

COLLEGE STUDENTS...
DESERVE A BREAK!
ISRAELBREAK!
Spring break ... Summer break ... Winter break...
Now here's the best break of all: ISRAELBREAK! Enjoy the experience of a lifetime— and have someone else foot the airfare!
With an ISRAELBREAK!, 300* selected students will receive free roundtrip airfare to Israel for more than 40 programs.
ISRAELBREAK! is for undergraduate college students who will be visiting Israel for the first time and who permanently reside in any of the five boroughs of New York City, Westchester or Long Island OR attend a college or university in the region.
Find out more about ISRAELBREAK! Just call the ISRAELBREAK! hotline at 212-696-0248 and say- GIMME A BREAK!

Hunan Garden Restaurant
The Best Chinese Buffet
Mandarin / Szechuan Cuisine
We Deliver in Amherst 5-9:30 Everyday
BUFFET & SUNDAY BRUNCH
Buffet Every Night 5-8 pm • Sunday Brunch 11am - 3pm
NEW ALL YOU CAN EAT $5.99
Children Under 10 $3.50
Luncheon Specials served 11:30 - 3pm $3.25
All luncheon specials come with rice & your choice of 2 chicken fingers, 2 chicken wings or hot & sour soup.
Take Out Service - Full Cocktail Menu
10 Belchertown Rd. at Rt. 9, Amherst 256-0252

CORPORATE COMPUTER SERVICES, INC.
1170 Broadway, Suite 307, New York, NY 10001
★ The Global source for technology ★
Western Massachusetts Headquarters:
19 Pray Street, Amherst, MA 01002
COMPUTER HARDWARE AND SOFTWARE CLEARANCE SALE
TOP SAVINGS : BEST PRICES IN THE US
PRICES BEAT ALL LOCALLY ADVERTISED PRICES - A CCS GUARANTEE
CCS CLEARANCE SALE FOR TOP BRAND ITEMS IS GOING ON NATIONWIDE.
AT YOUR LOCAL BRANCH , WE ARE OFFERING YOU TOP BRANDS AT UNBELIEVABLE PRICES - ALL PART OF OUR CLEARANCE SALE ! CALL YOUR LOCAL SALES DEPARTMENT TOLL FREE : 1-800-4499-CCS
➢ IBM CLEARANCE SALE : IBMDESKTOPS : 486SLC2-50MHZ/4MB RAM/340MBHD/14"SVGA MONITOR/MORE...with HPDESKJET520 : $1199.00 AND MORE.....CALL NOW!!! IBM NOTEBOOKS: ALL THINKPADS AT DRASTICALLY REDUCED PRICES !!! IBM MULTIMEDIA: APTIVAS (with voice recognition) STARTING AT AN UNBELIEVABLE $1799.00
➢ MACINTOSH AND COMPAQ CLEARANCE SALE: ALL DESKTOPS AND NOTE/POWER BOOKS AT LOW-LOW PRICES - CALL US NOW BEFORE YOU MAKE A PURCHASE!
➢ TOSHIBA NOTEBOOKS C-SALE: CHECK OUT THESE PRICES :T1950CT: $1775.00 / T2400CS:$1975 T2400CT:$2349.00/T2450CT:$3500.00/T4900CT:$5299.00* / CALL US AND MORE.....
➢ TEXAS INSTRUMENTS / AST / NEC / ACER / HYUNDAI / EPSON / SAGER C-SALE: ALL MODELS ON SALE ! CALL US NOW AND CART HOME THE SAVINGS !!SAGER NP3600:PENTIUM-60 with 10.3" DUAL SCAN and more..... $2575. CALL FOR OTHER MODELS FOR THESE LOW PRICES !
➢ PRINTER CLEARANCE SALE : HP/ EPSON/BROTHER/CANON/OKIDATA/PANASONIC - ALL MODELS ON SALE !! HP 520 : $210/ HP540:$285/ HP IIIP:$459 / HP560C:$455 / HP4L:$495/ AND MORE...../PANASONIC (LASER) KX-P5400:$499/OKIDATA OL400:$499.00/ AND MORE..... CALL NOW BEFORE SUPPLIES LAST!!
➢ CD-TITLES CLEARANCE SALE: ALL TOP-SELLERS AT LOW PRICES : DOOM II:$43.81/UNDER A KILLING MOON : $53.43/ AND MORE....ANY CD-TITLE - YOU NAME IT , WE WILL GET IT FOR YOU - AT OUR USUAL LOW PRICES !!
➢ COMPUTER ACCESSORIES C-SALE: Scanners(for as low as $99)/ 14.4kModems(starting at $61)/Memory and Processor upgrades(4mb ram-$145)/CD-ROM (quad speed-$389)/Network cards and accessories(Netware 4.xx -100 users :$1799.99)/ Data storage products (250MB tapebackups from $149.00) / SVGA Monitors (14" from $215) / floppy drives (3.5" from $30)/Hard Drives(1GB from $551) / Video and Controller cards (2MB PCI from $187) / Power protection devices(UPS from $99.00)/ Notebook cases(from $41.00) AND MORE.....
➢ CCS NEXT GENERATION DESKTOPS C-SALE: NG-P90PC comes with INTEL PENTIUM-90/16MB RAM/ 540MB HD/PCI LOCAL BUS GRAPHICS WITH 2MB RAM/4-SPEED CD-ROM/MULTIMEDIA KIT/FAX-MODEM/15"SVGA MONITOR/ SOFTARE BUNDLE/ THREE -YEAR WARRANTY AND LIFE-TIME TOLL-FREE TECHNICAL SUPPORT : $2699.00 <upgrades available for customization >
➢ CCS NEXT GENERATION LAPTOPS/NOTEBOOKS C-SALE: NG-66NB comes with INTEL 486DX2-66MHZ/4MB RAM/340MB HD/9.5" DUAL SCAN COLOR/and more....:$2155.00 CALL NOW FOR OUR LOW PRICES ON ALL OTHER MODELS !
* The Leader Guards The Price *

WHO DECIDES WHAT MAKES A MOTHER?
JESSICA LANGE
HALLE BERRY
Losing Isaiah
PARAMOUNT PICTURES PRESENTS A HOWARD W. KOCH, JR. PRODUCTION JESSICA LANGE HALLE BERRY
LOSING ISAIAH DAVID STRATHAIRN CUBA GOODING, JR. AND SAMUEL L. JACKSON BASED UPON THE NOVEL BY SETH MARGOLIS
MUSIC BY MARK ISHAM EDITED BY HARVEY ROSENSTOCK, A.C.E. PRODUCED BY HOWARD W. KOCH, JR. AND NAOMI FONER
SCREENPLAY BY NAOMI FONER DIRECTED BY STEPHEN GYLLENHAAL
ORIGINAL SOUNDTRACK AVAILABLE ON COLUMBIA RECORDS
MARCH 17

Coach Calipari gives thousands to library

By Andrew Davidson
Collegian Staff

PAUL BLODGAU / COLLEGIAN

Massachusetts men's basketball coach John Calipari (center) presented a donation of $20,000 to the W.E.B. Du Bois Library yesterday.

University of Massachusetts men's basketball coach John Calipari donated $20,000 to the W.E.B. Du Bois Library yesterday. The ceremony was held in the Library Instruction Room, which will be renamed the Calipari Instruction Room later this semester.

The donation included $10,000 in royalties that Calipari earned from sales at Amherst–based Coach Cal's Closet. Calipari is a part owner in the store, which sells UMass apparel.

The other $10,000 was given by the Calipari family.

"This is not just about me, but about my family," Calipari said.

Calipari has made donations to the library since 1991, but this donation was the largest to date.

"We've looked at [the library] as the centerpiece of our campus," Calipari said, with his wife at his side. "If you want to give back to everyone, you give back to the library."

Ruth Leven, a Friend of the Library board member, added that the library "is something which everyone gets to use. It is non-partisan."

"You cannot have a great basketball team without a great university, and you cannot have a great university without a great library," Leven said.

Calipari is a friend not only to the library but to the whole university, Leven said.

"This is not a one–time thing," Calipari said. "This is a yearly thing, and it could increase."

It was not Calipari's monetary donation but the symbolism of his gesture which was so important, Leven said. The donation will help the Friends of the Library achieve their goal in developing the W.E.B. Du Bois Library into a full research library.

"Just as we went from the [Curry Hicks] Cage to the Mullins Center, we would like to go from Goodell to what this library should be," Leven said.

Bisexuals misconstrued as straight or queer only

By Wendy Darling
Collegian Staff

Saying she aims at "interrogating the structures of desire that produce bisexuality as unintelligible," Claire Hemmings delivered a lecture yesterday as part of the Lesbian, Gay, and Bisexual Studies Lecture Series.

"The assumption is that bisexuality is not political because it is not an identity, or not an identity with a recognizable or trustworthy history," Hemmings said.

Hemmings is a research associate at the Five College Women's Studies Research Center. She has been working on the development of bisexual theories in the United States and in the United Kingdom.

Hemmings compared explaining one's sexual identity to showing someone a series of vacation photographs.

"You rarely get out your holiday snapshots and show your audience just one picture," said Hemmings. "You present them with a whole series of images — some repetitious, some amusing, and, of course, some you–had–to–be–there."

Similarly, in explaining one's sexual identity, one must present a whole series of relationships and feelings, not just one or two, in order to give the complete picture.

Yet too often, Hemmings argued, people end up presenting sexual identity as something that is comparable to a single photograph. If a woman is in a relationship with a woman, then she is seen as a lesbian, and if she is in a relationship with a man, she is seen as heterosexual.

"Bisexuality is not considered an expression or form of desire," said Hemmings. "There's lesbian desire, gay desire, straight desire, but no recognizable bisexual desire...

"Like identity, desire is understood to follow a narrative structure that is actually very rigid and is consolidated through repetition through time."

One of the defining characteristics of sexual identity as it is currently constructed, said Hemmings, is that the "object defines desire." If the movement of desire is from a woman to a woman, it is defined as "lesbian desire." If desire moves from a woman to a man, it is defined as "heterosexual desire."

Furthermore, Hemmings said, "lesbian desire indicates and is determined by the continuous repetition of that direction towards the same gender of object–choice."

A woman who defines herself as a lesbian is likely to view her sexual identity in terms of having a "continuous repetition" of "lesbian desire," said Hemmings. Instances of "heterosexual desire" may be dismissed entirely because they do not fit the pattern of "continuous repetition."

"The discovery of that [gay, lesbian, or heterosexual] sexuality allows one to fit in," Hemmings said.

This is why many people find bisexuality confusing and even threatening, particularly in the area of politics.

When a woman experiences a "continuous repetition" of "lesbian desire" and shares this experience with others, she is often confronted with homophobia and other forms of oppression. This grants her a connection to lesbians and lesbian politics that a bisexual woman might not be able to find, said Hemmings.

"Relative degrees of oppression determine that perceived right to an authentic political identity. Only absolute oppression or absolute dominance guarantees a snugly fitting identity to wear proudly," Hemmings said.

Hemmings identified herself as a "bisexual feminist woman," but said she is sometimes perceived as "traitor–fickle–spy–confused–inconceivable."

Hemmings has been working since this fall on a Fullbright Scholarship. Her home base in the United Kingdom is the Centre for Women's Studies at the University of York.

SGA looks at housing, vows to fight Contract

By Marnie Thomel
Collegian Staff

A motion to construct a pilot program for opposite sex housing in University of Massachusetts dormitories failed at the Student Government Association meeting last night, while the senate voted to fight the Republican Contract with America.

Phil McNamara of SGA presented the motion in favor of opposite sex housing, which failed, 22 to 16.

It is not the responsibility of the University to make decisions for 18–year–olds, according to McNamara.

"It is hardly proper for the University to take a stand on private, moral issues," he said.

Massachusetts general Laws chapter 151B prohibits housing discrimination based on marital status, sex or sexual orientation, according to the motion.

"Housing is breaking the law," said senator Brian Julin.

Housing can't handle people of the opposite sex living together, Dave Garappolo, SGA chair said.

"People are going to break up, and move out, it would be ridiculous, Garappolo said. Housing would have no place for those who wanted to move, he said.

An experiment would explore the option, according to senator Larry Plano.

"I feel that UMass should adhere to laws of the state, and if the state law allows people 18 or older of the opposite sex to live together, then the University should allow these students to live together," Plano said.

The senate passed a motion which asks students to join in the fight of the Contract with America, solely and through their Registered Student Organizations.

Students do not have an interest in the contract, said Charles Lenchner, of the Alliance for Student Power, who spoke in favor of the motion.

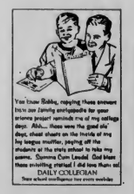
"Student movement is key for a nation–wide movement of people to resist what Republicans are up to."

Turn to SGA, page 11

Go behind the scenes of The Collegian
The Collegian will be having an Open House [illegible] a.m. to 3 p.m. It's a chance to see what we [illegible] operate and how you can get involved.
And hey — there will be great food.
Our office is 113 Campus Center [illegible]
Hope to see you there.

4 SEASONS MON-SAT 9:00 TO 11:00 - RTE 9 HADLEY
VISA MASTERCARD
SALE THRU [illegible] NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR TYPOS
DISCOUNT LIQUORS • KEGS • BEER • ICE

BUD DRY 24-12 OZ CANS $9.99 + Dep	BUSCH & LT 24-12OZ CANS $9.99 + Dep	COORS Light Gold 24-12OZ BAR BOTT $10.99 + Dep	M.G.D. & LT 24-16 OZ CANS $13.99 + Dep	MOOSEHEAD 24-12OZ BOTT $13.99 + Dep	CORONA 24-12OZ BOTT $16.99 + Dep	10+ CASE! BEER DISCOUNTS
BLACK LABEL $7.99 + Dep	MEISTERBRAU 24-12 oz $7.69 + Dep	AMERICAN 24-12 oz cans $7.29 + Dep				We deliver! "off campus" 584-8174
ICE! 10 lbs...$1.99 50lbs...$5.99		1/2 KEG ICE HOUSE $39.99 + Dep	1/2 KEG BUD & LT $39.99 + Dep	1/2 KEG RED DOG $39.99 + Dep	1/2 KEG NATURAL LT $32.99 + Dep	1/2 KEG LITE ICE $39.99 + Dep	1/2 KEG Rolling Rock $44.99 + Dep
March Madness Best of Luck to the Minutemen!		Keg of the Week! Michelob $36.99		FOUR SEASONS VODKA $8.99 1.75L	FOUR SEASONS RUM $10.99 1.75L	Have A Great Spring Break!



You know Bobby, napping those answers he's no Jon Zahnby encyclopedia for your arizona project reminds me of my college days. Ahh... those were the good ole' days, chest shapers on the fronts of my big league mudflap, jaeging off the students at the state school to take my exams. Gamma Cum Laudes! God bless those crushing years! I did love them so!
DAILY COLLEGIAN
Your school intelligence has every weekday

UMASS ARTS COUNCIL
GRANT DEADLINE FRIDAY, MARCH 17 GRANTS FOR:
• Visual Art & Design
• Literature, Theater, Performance Art
• Film & Video
• Music
• Artistic components in multicultural programs
PROPOSALS ARE ENCOURAGED FROM STUDENT GROUPS
Applications, guidance & information:
Campus Activities
Office Student Union or the Arts Council
101 Hasbrouck
545-0202

THE TOC
SPORTS BAR & LOUNGE
TONIGHT
THE A-10 CHAMPIONSHIP GAME!
UMASS V TEMPLE
9:30
TOMORROW
MARCH MADNESS
.10 WINGS 4-7 PM
SATURDAY
HOCKEY EAST TOURNAMENT
QUARTER FINAL GAME 8 PM
UMASS V MAINE!
.99 NACHOS/3 HOT DOGS $2
BUD LIGHT $1.50
SAM ADAMS PINT $2.50
ICE HOUSE PITCHER $4.50
POSITIVE ID REQUIRED

DO YOU HAVE A SUMMER CO-OP YET?
APPLY NOW TO TOP ORGANIZATIONS!!!
BANKERS TRUST
(POSSIBLE 6 MONTH)
Location: New York, NY
Majors: ACCTG, ECON, FOMGT, MKTG, SOM, COINS
CAPE COD RESEARCH
Location: East Falmouth, MA
Majors: ENVSCI, CHEM, POLYMER SCI DIGITAL HUDSON
(6 MONTH)
Location: Hudson, MA
Majors: COINS, CSE, EE
Classes: 96-98
NABORS INDUSTRIES, INC
Location: Houston, TX
Majors: CHEM E, IE, ME
Classes: 96, 97
CAMBRIDGE STREET RESTUARANT
(6 MONTH)
Location: Nantucket Island MA
Majors: HRTA, LIB ARTS (must have restaurant experience)
BIOGEN RESEARCH CORPORATION
Location: Cambridge, MA
Majors: BIO, CHEM, BIOCHM, MICBIO, ANISCI
Classes: 96, 97
BECHTEL PARSONS BRINCKERHOFF
(6 MONTH)
Location: Boston, MA
Majors: CE, ENVSCI, COMM
Classes: 96-98
Complete Listings Available at Career Center
ANY QUESTIONS CALL!! [illegible] Experience 75 6265

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Darienne J. Hosley Editor-in-Chief Kelly Spang Managing Editor
Michael McRae Business Manager Andrew D. Davidson Production Manager Lisa Tannenbaum Advertising Manager
James P. Gunley Advertising Production Manager Lisa Greenfield Senior Diversity Editor

Matt Audette Arts & Living Editor Paul Bilodeau Photography Editor
Chris Taylor Conner Black Affairs Editor Andrew Bryce, Matt Vautour Sports Editors
Matt Wurtzel Business Editor Jeff Wilson Staff Artist
Juan Jose Chacon Quiros Developing Nations Editor Lisa Greenfield, Colleen Shanahan Women's Issues Editors
Tracy Monahan Editorial/Opinion Editor Marni E. Hellner Editorial Production Manager
Wendy Darling Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor John Khachadoorian Finance Manager
Jacob W. Michaels Jewish Affairs Editor Eric Abenaim Distribution Manager
Herman Rozemberg Multicultural Affairs Editor Maureen Majerowski Senior Bookkeeper
Jessica Taverna News Editor Marty Pappas Classified Advertising

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1936. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Opinion/Editorial

The truth on Palestinian terror

David Bloch

The Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) and Hamas are two faces of the national movement, with very similar long-term goals in all that regards Israel. These two groups use different methods to achieve those goals. The charters of Hamas and PLO both call for Israel's destruction and reject its right to exist.

The Islamic Resistance Movement, also known as Hamas, laid out their agenda in Amman, Jordan on April 21, 1994.

- "The Palestinian resistance is to continue against the occupiers as long as they remain on Palestine and until the liberation of all the land from the sea to the river."
- "The on-going peace process is deemed for failure."
- "Hamas rejects the misinterpretation and the misconception of the media which indicated a major change of Hamas policy. Some went into interpreting its latest statements as she/he wishes, and even some understood it as Hamas is proposing a peace deal with the occupier Zionists and recognizing the Zionist enemy."
- "The political viewpoint of Hamas is as follows:

The complete withdrawal from the West Bank and Gaza strip and Jerusalem and Hamas stresses its commitment on continuing the Jihad and Resistance with all sincere people on the road of victory and liberation."

Similarly the PLO has similar goals, which they have not changed as expressed in their charter.

Article 1. Palestine is the Arab homeland.

Article 6. Jews who arrived in Palestine after 1917 must be deported.

Article 7. National duty to liberate homeland through armed struggle.

Article 15. Repulse Zionism, purge Zionist presence from Palestine through armed revolution.

Article 19. Partition of Palestine by the United Nations and establishment of Israel is null and avoid.

Article 22. Zionism is imperialist, racist, fanatical, aggressive, expansionist and colonialist.

Article 23. Zionism is illegitimate. Its existence and activity must be prohibited.

On top of these Articles which have not been changed by the PLO since the "Peace Treaty," Yasser Arafat called for a "Jihad on Jerusalem" and PLO Foreign Minister Farouk Kaddoumi called for the extermination of the Jewish State. Gaza and Jericho became cities of refuge for murderers.

The controversy began after the White House signing, when it was reported that PLO and Hamas had reached an agreement, according to which Hamas would refrain from interfering with the PLO's "self-rule" scheme in exchange for a promise by the PLO to refrain from interfering with Hamas terrorist attacks against Israelis.

Israeli officials naturally expressed horror at the idea that the PLO and Hamas have a secret "division of labor" deal, and that Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin went so far as to say that the existence of such deal would mean the end of the Israel-PLO agreement.

Leading Israeli leftists began searching for ways to counter all the negative press the PLO was getting from the controversy. After all, according to the Israel-PLO agreement, the PLO is supposed to prevent Arab terrorist groups from murdering Israelis. A deal with Hamas that would allow it to commit terrorism attacks would suggest that the whole Israel-PLO agreement was a fraud.

Hamas has not changed. It remains as devoted as ever to its goal of annihilating the state of Israel. Nor has the PLO changed. Hamas's goal is the same goal that is described in the PLO's National Covenant. The only difference between these two groups is tactical. Thus it makes a perfect sense that they are working together, each playing their own role in hastening the downfall of Israel.

At this point, nearly two years after the "Peace treaty," some people still believe in a real peace for the future, but for how long. So far, it doesn't seems like the Palestinian Organizations have helped it to work within their own community.

"Peace with violent men, says my Lord, is impossible." Isaiah 57:21

David Bloch is a UMass student.

Livin' large in the dorms

Andrew Bryce

I have been at this school for almost three full years. And in those three full years, I have resided on campus. Those three full years have been spent in the same residence area, and the last two have been in the same dormitory in the same room.

I've had it.

Living in the dorms is the easiest way, since I have to be on campus so much. I have a cool roommate, still enjoy utilizing the groovy phone system (though haven't mastered it just yet, despite being the ultimate dorm-liver), and rarely spend my time hanging out in the dorms.

However, after racking up an embarrassing number of those damn seniority points, I am ready to move on. I'm ready to jet out of the dorm life, and suck up the off-campus life in full throttle. Yet, since I'm trapped for now, I have to do something drastic. I can't move off yet, I can't move out of the dorm yet.

That's why I have decided to sublet one of the towers. So, for the sake of my sanity, I will create my own dorm. Instead of John Adams Tower, it's Andrew Bryce Tower.

The first four floors would be used to bring all of my friends back on to campus that left my sorry-ass. Even the ones from Pittsburgh ... oops, I mean Sunderland. Now you guys can get to campus each day without paying tolls.

The fifth floor? Why, the bathroom, of course. Don't want to wreck tradition, since there's one on the fifth in good ol' John Adams. I'd just make it a hell of a lot bigger, with the added facilities. A hot tub, classy soap-on-a-rope with effervescence, soft paper with the creme stuff, a bidet — I'd load this place up with goodies.

Oh, yeah, almost forgot. I'd have magazine racks of every major publication located inches behind the golden toilet, with a featured band playing behind a curtain for the toilet or shower-user's enjoyment.

The sixth floor would be a fragrance area — just in case the result of the fifth filters up. The seventh floor would be a movie screen. I'd still charge $7 to completely rip off men, women and small children. But that includes a cup for the keg for the men and women, and bottomless supply of Milk Duds for the kids.

The eighth floor would have a pool table, where I can get beat each time and a jukebox with all songs by 1980s Glamour Rock bands like Poison, Warrant, Winger and Europe to take my opponent out of his game.

(Please note how truly pathetic I am to be writing about each and every floor and what I'd do with them. Because I'm running out of ideas for the remaining floors ...).

The ninth floor would be ... ah, forget this. Who am I teasing, trying to dream up some scheme where I'd create my own dorm. One, I am not creative enough to design a 22-story tower, so I can understand why the towers ain't the prettiest things. Two, I'm forced to live in the dorms for the rest of the semester, despite being a dormitory vet.

And three — I don't want to put my seniority points in jeopardy. Just in case.

Andrew Bryce is a Collegian columnist.

Unbreakable female bonds

Erin Barnes

"For all my education, accomplishments and so called wisdom, I can't fathom my own heart."

When Michael Caine uttered these words in Woody Allen's Hannah and Her Sisters, they spoke to me, and they speak to me still. It's funny, when it comes to relationships, our intentions may change throughout the course of an evening. For instance, this past Friday evening was designated as a "Girls Night Out" at the Pub. But, alcohol tends to change things, and at the end of the evening, each of us "girls" was dancing with a different guy. (What this last statement says about me and my friends I do not know). The evening did not start out that way though, for the night had a meaningful beginning that would have been drastically altered by the presence of a man.

Two of my friends did not know one another very well up until that night. But, once we took our seat at the table, each of us opened-up as if we had been long time friends. Intrinsically, through some force beyond our control, the conversation jumped from mere niceties to the topic of men and relationships, and our wild times from years past. It was rather appropriate that "We Are Family" was being spun by the DJ, as we formed a kind of sisterhood over our beer. Not a sisterhood in a sorority sense of the word, rather, the kind of bond that brings women together through the experiences they have vicariously shared, creating stronger friendships than the ones that had existed before.

Needless to say, Saturday night was much more sedate, as I went to the twi-ign showing of Boys on the Side with another friend of mine. Leaving the theater, I started to think about the bond among women — a bond that generates understanding even if we are at a loss for words. 1930s New York Times columnist Dorothy Thompson called this the act of being "altogether female." I don't know what to call it, but I do know that it is special.

This connection was present driving home from Freeport, Maine last semester with my roommate, my mother, her best friend and her daughter who also attends the University of Massachusetts. We twenty-somethings talked about the men (and I use this term loosely) that we have dated, and our mothers shared with us stories about their past relationships, and how they fell in love with our fathers. The age difference did not upset this bond. If anything, it made it stronger.

Sadly, this bond among women has a negative side comparable to the positive experiences listed above. Our connection with one another is made stronger, albeit angrier, when we hear of a woman being raped or battered, or when we witness more than capable women being denied equality, both in the workplace and in the home. The events of this past weekend varied dramatically from one evening to the next. Despite these disparities, our bond among one another remained undisturbed. Whether it be at a loud, crowded bar or in a quiet movie theater, the connections I hold with my woman friends remain constant to my heart.

Simone de Beauvoir, author of The Second Sex, notes that the friendships women succeed in keeping or forming with other women are precious to them, and that they are very different in kind from the relations between men. The latter group communicates as individuals through ideas and projects of personal interest, while women are confined within their general feminine lot and are bound together by lurking similarities. This is not to say that the friendships men have with men are better than those that women have with women, or vice versa, yet they are different.

What women look for first among themselves is the affirmation of the universe that they have in common. De Beauvoir notes that "Collectively, women find strength to shake off their chains ... and they question the moral and intellectual superiority of their husbands and of men in general." Perhaps, in not so many words, this is what my friends and I were doing at the bar the other night. We call upon other women to help define a set of "local rules," as de Beauvoir calls it, a moral code specifically for the female sex.

It is this code that allows women to relate to one another, even if they have never met before. It is this same code that permits women to discuss gynecology freely among themselves, to talk as friends with other women while waiting in line to use the restroom, and to rent movies like Beaches and Steel Magnolias one hundred times over and cry like it was the first time.

Collectively, we share stories of broken hearts, jilted loves, brushes with sexism, and our goals and aspirations. In such circumstances, women help one another, discuss social problems, and create for the others a kind of protective nest; what we do and say as women is genuine. This bond, this sisterhood, cannot be broken, even by the strongest man. The relationships women hold with other women are easy and relaxed because we identify ourselves in one another, and, ultimately, we like what we see.

Erin Barnes is a Collegian columnist.

Doonesbury By Garry Trudeau

ROOM CHECK, MS. BOOPSTEIN!
UM...SHE'S IN THE SHOWER, DEPUTY!
RAP!
RAP!
TELL HER THE BUS LEAVES FOR THE COURTHOUSE AT 8:30 SHARP!
I SURE WILL! GOOD NIGHT!
THAT WAS CLOSE...
HURRY, B.D.! SAKS CLOSES IN AN HOUR!

Letters to the Editor

Comic strip offends community

To the editor:

I would like to respond to the "Bruno," comic strip by C. Baldwin in the March 3 Collegian. As a member of the gay, lesbian and bisexual community, it disturbs me that a student newspaper billing itself as "New England's largest college daily" would print this comic. It is not funny, and only accomplishes the reaffirmation of heterosexist stereotypes about homosexual relationships. It is true that some lesbians do practice sadomasochism, but so do some heterosexual couples.

If the "artist" has a personal problem with lesbians and feels the need to assign a socially unacceptable label to all lesbians, then it is just that, a personal problem. Comics such as this belong in only one place, the trash. Next time that "artist" thinks about trying to assign the gay community a label, I hope he remembers that at the base of the matter, most things can apply to the heterosexual community as well.

Juli Kazmarek
Southwest

Article contains wrong information

To the editor:

I am writing in response to Lisa Greenfield's article "GWN Assistant Claims Financial Data Skewed," which appeared in the Collegian on Feb. 14. The article communicated Shyamala Ivatury's and Julia Mahoney's interpretations of some of the results of the survey of graduate women conducted by Project Pulse last Spring.

The article failed to mention that the survey of graduate women was commissioned by the Graduate Women's Network (GWN.) I worked closely with a member of the network to develop the survey questions. The survey was conducted in order to compile a variety of data pertaining to graduate women's financial situations, as well as their satisfaction with aspects of their course of graduate study here at the University. The survey was conducted using a random sample of women graduate students. The GWN did not request that Education students — who comprise approximately one-third of all women graduate students — to be excluded from the sample. It was my understanding that the GWN wanted the survey results to be generalizable to the population of graduate women overall. The demographics of the sample of women surveyed closely match the actual demographics of the population of women graduate students overall. As such, one-third of the women surveyed are students in the School of Education. Although the process of conducting the survey was hampered initially by last Spring's telephone fiasco, this inconvenience did not render the student useless. Ultimately, interviews were conducted with a very representative sample of graduate women.

The article state "Ivatury said the average stipend of a teaching assistant is $700, making the reported averages much higher than the actual figures." Ivatury cannot possible know what the "actual figures" are, because the University does not collect such data from graduate students. In fact, the survey was conducted to provide estimates of "actual figures." The average stipend level cannot be considered an accurate indicator of average yearly income because a large proportion of women graduate students work at more that one job. In addition, Mahoney is reported to have called the financial data "skewed," simply because education students were included in the sample. The financial data resulting from the survey are not "skewed," but simply are representative of graduate women overall. The survey asked women to report the amount they earned during 1993. The mean income of the women surveyed was $16,123, while the median income was $11,000. These results are not surprising considering that only one-half of the women surveyed are employed at the University as RAs or TAs. It is important to remember that a large proportion of graduate women are not University employees. When women in the School of Education are excluded, the mean income drops to $14,004, and the median drops to $10,000. Another important thing to consider is that two-fifths of the women surveyed have more than one job. The mean income of women with only one job is $18,164 (median=$12,000), while the mean income for those with more than one job is $15,650 (median=$11,000). One-tenth of the women surveyed said they earned an income of $5000 or less working one job.

Other important survey findings pertaining to graduate women's financial situation are as follows: Twenty-two percent of the women surveyed work for money 40 or more hours per week. Nine-percent do not work for pay, approximately two-fifths said they receive financial support from a partner, spouse or other family member, more than one-quarter are responsible for financially supporting children forty-five percent expressed dissatisfaction with their financial situation.

Finally, the survey which was conducted has provided an unprecedented variety of data pertaining to the life- circumstances of graduate women here at the University. Having devoted a considerable amount of time and energy to this research project, I am naturally disappointed that the GWN representatives have so readily dismissed the study's findings.

Liz Williams
Graduate Research Associate

Letters to the Editor

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian welcomes and encourages letters to the editor. When writing, please TYPE your letter and keep it to a maximum of 400 words. We would much rather print several concise letters in the limited space available on the page.

Film • Music • Theatre • Lifestyles • Books • Art
The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
ARTS & LIVING
Thursday March 9, 1994
Weekend Edition • Volume CIV Issue 91

Award shows highlight TV week

Tube Notes By Tracy Reed

TV watchers who like a bit of suspense with their corny jokes and superfluous celebrity cameos got a real treat last week, with no less than three lavish award receptions hitting network prime-time. Even I will admit to enjoying the guessing-game parts of the shows — but afterwards I couldn't help but feel that each ceremony had somehow fallen short of my admittedly gaudy ideal.

Everything felt a little too rehearsed, as though all the spontaneity had been sifted out in order to make room for the emcee's stale jokes and winners' disappointingly tame "thank you" speeches. No impassioned political tirades, no gloriously awful outfits, not even an emotional outburst courtesy of Tom Hanks shook up the proceedings. So I guess we'll have to wait until the Oscar telecast to see an awards show with any real drama — this batch just didn't have it.

A few more notes, though, on the high points of the lesser banquets. The Grammy Awards were kind of fun for me because I discovered that there are a lot of people out there who know even less about contemporary music than I do, and what's more, they're the ones who pick the winners.

I mean, it's okay to give Sheryl Crow one award, since next year she'll need something to hock for rent money, but three of them carries voter generosity a bit too far. Later, the ubiquitous Bruce Springsteen sadly

Turn to TUBE, page 9

HOOP DREAMERS

From the bleachers of the Cage to the balconies of the Mullins Center, the rise of the UMass Men's Basketball team has created a new breed of fans

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

There is an announced quiz in Journalism 201, on a Thursday afternoon late last March; however, only about 30 of the 200 enrolled in the lecture are present. The professor looks questioningly at the class before he realizes.

The University of Massachusetts basketball team is taking on Southwest Texas State in the first round of the NCAA tournament and the chance to watch it on TV has thrown classes to the back burner.

For fans, placing basketball above all else doesn't just happen during March Madness.

Two hours before the doors even open at any home game, fans are already waiting outside the student entrance to the William D. Mullins Center. The weather could include any form of precipitation or sub-freezing temperatures, they will be there. Getting "their" seats is more important than staying warm to many UMass fans.

Once the game starts, the students remain standing, cheering wildly throughout.

Television has fueled the fires, in an attempt to get on ESPN or whatever other network may be televising the game, students paint their faces (and various other body parts) and make signs in hopes of a split-second appearance on national TV.

"They have something to look forward to," said Mark Wilson, director of athletic marketing. "They plan their schedules around the next game. It's fun."

Senior Kerin Hilker suffered a broken nose and teeth in an accident before the Atlantic 10 Championship her sophomore year. Despite still being in pain, Hilker was treated at the hospital, and right after her release, bandages and all, Hilker headed to the Mullins Center to see the game.

Another fan has so much fun that he's become a part of the tradition.

The Lunatic

You know who he is.

Anyone that has ever been to a University of Massachusetts men's basketball game would recognize Louie Collins. Maybe not by name, but the image of the big guy in the maroon sweatshirt walking around behind the press table has become synonymous with UMass basketball.

During the day, Collins, 32, is as normal as everybody working at Phoenix Home Life; but on game night, Collins, like so many others, has become part of UMass basketball tradition.

For four years, Collins, a Boston Celtics season ticket holder, played the role of the crazy fan in the hallowed halls of Boston Garden. The fans, who affectionately called him "Louie the Leprechaun," knew him for what he calls his "famous green sweatshirt."

As the Celtics organization has fallen on some lean times, and travel made it difficult for the Turner's Falls native to make the regular trip to the Garden, he shifted his focus to the team he had followed for years.

His return to UMass basketball was a subtle one at first. He sat in the stands cheering while the team grew into a national power.

Collins, who had watched the team when it was at its lowest depths, has marvelled at the growth and excitement that has generated around Massachusetts basketball in recent times.

"I remember at the Cage," Collins said. "You could sit down and have five empty seats around you in every direction."

Last year during winter session, Collins sensed a dip in the crowd energy with the students away from the campus and decided to take matters into his own hands.

"During semester break, there was no enthusiasm or life in the fans," Collins said. "Coach Cal was asking for fan support on the radio, so I decided it was time to get back in the act."

Collins shelved the green Celtics sweatshirt, in favor of a maroon Massachusetts one, and during UMass' last-second victory against George Washington, "Louie the Lunatic" was born.

Since then Collins has become a part of the UMass basketball tradition. He marches up and down the sideline swinging the "noise" sign. This year the fans behind the visitors bench have added to the act.

At least one point during every game, they hoist the heavy set Collins into the air.

"Those guys behind the bench [who pick me up] are the best fans around," he said.

Although he has a lot of fun with his antics, Collins believes he and the rest of the fans play a vital role to UMass basketball.

"If they need a lift, it's our job to help provide it," Collins said. "Once one person gets wild, other people want to get involved too. Even if you're playing URI, you have to be just as fired up as if it were Temple."

Although he is perhaps the most visible, Collins is one of what has become a fan base of thousands.

For many devoted followers, life has come to center around the basketball game ...

It wasn't always like this

The growth in fan interest has ballooned since they have become a national power.

In the late '80s, there were a total of 700 season ticket holders and even the students didn't seem to care about a basketball team that was ranked somewhere around No. 300 at the time.

"The stories about you could go to the Cage and do your homework are true," said Thorr Bjorn, the assistant athletic director for tickets and game operations.

Bjorn, who graduated from UMass in 1990, admitted he had only been to two UMass games in his time as a student, one against the "Impossible dream" UConn team, and the other against a

Turn to HOOP, page 10

Collegian Art By Jeff Wilson • Layout & Design by Andrew Davidson & Matt Audette

SHORT CUTS

Quotes of Note

"DNA testing is not only used to solve crimes, it has many other uses. Some of you [jurors] talked about Jurassic Park and [how] they used it to make dinosaurs." — Prosecutor Marcia Clark

"It was revolting." — Horror writer Clive Barker on Interview With The Vampire and Pulp Fiction.

"There's nothing sexier than a girl with an accordion. " — Sheryl Crow

"Flanders to God! Flanders to God! Get off your cloud and save my Todd. — Ned Flanders ("The Simpsons") while filming The Ten Commandments."

People and Pop Culture in the News

Isn't love grand? Newlyweds Pamela Anderson ("Baywatch") and Tommy Lee (Motley Crue and Heather Locklear's ex) sport matching his and hers tattoos on their ring fingers (ouch). And if the love doesn't last, then at least the tattoos will.

Ellen Barkin (Bad Company) has just separated from Gabriel Byrne. Also calling it quits is Iolanda and Anthony Quinn after he admitted to fathering a child onto his former secretary Kathy Benvin. However, Jerry Seinfeld and 19-year-old Shoshanna Lonstien were spotted at the SGA Awards and reported that things are going strong.

Why do awful people get movie deals? Stepping up to the camera will be Brian "Kato" Kaelin as a chauffeur in the upcoming 16th Minute — let's just hope the title also reflects how long his camera time will be.

And speaking of horrible things, the singer once known as Prince was seen necking with Morgan Fairchild while Michael Bolton was seen seriously practicing his swing in a Conn. batting cage. Please, please don't ask to be signed ... for our sake and your reputation.

TV viewers have reported that although "Melrose Place" has had some pretty weird plot lines, the audience just can't seem to handle Amanda having cancer — it's just too close to reality for them.

It's hard being a celebrity and it's even harder being their parents. Bill and Jane Pitt, parental guiders of the "sexiest man alive" ended up changing their phone number due to the number of calls they kept receiving.

Can one get mellow with age? Horror of horror writers — Clive Barker was horrified with the violence in Pulp Fiction and Interview With the Vampire. This coming from the creator of Hellraisers and Candyman,... okay.

Madonna has decided to broaden her horizons by premiering her video to "Bedtime Stories" in theaters everywhere. And as long as we're on the subject, in a recent poll taken by Fruit of the Loom, 82 percent of American women say uncomfortable underwear ruins their day. That would explain the Letterman incident.

A Grand Jury decided not to charge "Fraiser's" Kelsey Grammer with sexual assault. Jeff Gillooly, the 26-year-old ex-husband of Tonya Harding wants to change his name to Jeff Stone after he completes his six month sentence. Martha Plimpton (Mrs. Parker and the Vicious Circle) and actor Jon Patrick Walker are engaged, but no date has been set. Lyle Lovett broke his collarbone in a motorcycle accident in Baja, Calif. And finally, Melvin Franklin, an original member of the Temptations died at 52. Material in this column have been complied from various news and wire services by Tara MK Connelly.

Editors' Cuts

Album The Brady Bunch

They truly are America's favorite family. Thanks to a revival in '70s kitsch, the Brady Bunch are making an impromptu comeback, bringing their polyester suits and smiling faces for an encore performance to living rooms (and movie theaters) everywhere.

With the critical success of their debut movie, various books dedicated to the family and a popular stage rendition of certain episodes touring the states, it only seems appropriate that an album full of all our favorite Brady "hits" make its way into CD players.

Although It's A Sunshine Day has been in stores for over a year, this so-called "Brady Revolution" seems like a perfect time for people to rediscover the families (ahem) singing talents. All the best are here. From the paean to puberty "When Its Time To Change" to the absolutely hideous cover of "American Pie," It's A Sunshine Day is testament to that age old saying "it's so bad, it's good."

— Matt Audette

Show "Party of Five"

Here is an interesting situation: five children ages one through 25 years are suddenly orphaned when their parents are killed by a drunk driver who gets off with a minor sentence.

Left to fend for themselves, they must step up into the realm of reality. Mortgages, running the family business, taxes, nannies, love and everyday life get twisted together as they try to stay together. This is FOX's "Party Of Five" and it does what "My-So-Called Life" did because of its realness — no one is perfect and no one has all the answers.

Owan, the toddler, faces growing up without knowing his parents. Claudia, a grade school violin protegee has to adjust to the fact that her older brother is now in charge. Bailey and Julia go through high school confronted with creating their own morals. Charlie the "adult" at 25 has to take the role as provider and man of the house. And unlike cheesy sitcoms, problems don't get fixed in 30 minutes.

— Tara MK Connelly

Book Monty Python

And now for something completely different — no, not just the humor of the famous comedy troupe known as Monty Python, but the history behind all of the insanity. The Life Of Python by George Perry serves as (in the words of the subtitle) The History Of Something Completely Different.

The Life Of Python is a journey into the lives of each of the six Python members: John Cleese, Michael Palin, Eric Idle, Terry Jones, Graham Chapman and Terry Gilliam and how they all came together to create "Monty Python's Flying Circus." Complete with photographs from before, after and during the show (which ran for four seasons on the British Broadcasting Corporation), the book also features 16 full color photo pages, with photos from many of the Python movies.

The troupe has been through a lot and have changed the face of modern comedy. The Life Of Python is a must for any Python fan.

—Mike MacLean

Brandy talks about life as a teen chart topper

By Nekesa Mumbi Moody
Associated Press

ALBANY, N.Y. — For most people trying to break into show business, learning that the television series you've starred in has been canceled after one season could cause fits of depression.

But when Brandy Norwood got word in 1993 that she need no longer return to the set of the ABC sitcom "Thea," she kept her cool, knowing that she had other lucrative offers on the horizon — namely, a singing career.

"When the show was canceled, I felt bad for everybody else but for me. It was a good thing, because I could do what I had to do, because I wanted to sing," says the 16-year-old performer, who already had signed a record deal with Atlantic Records.

She worked for eight months on her first album, the self-titled Brandy. The LP has shot up the charts and catapulted the young singer to stardom.

The first single off the album, "I Wanna Be Down," has sold over 1 million copies, and the second single, "Baby," is currently holding steady at No. 5 on Billboard's Top 100 singles chart. The album itself has gone platinum.

"I surprised it's all happening. I mean, I'm really blessed I guess," Norwood said in an interview.

While her voice still has that youthful pitch, Brandy sings with the soulfulness and grace of artists well beyond her years. And if her singing draws comparisons to such superstars as Aretha Franklin and Whitney Houston, it should come as no surprise: Both artists were heavy influences on Brandy's style — she even sings a tribute song to her mentors on the album.

"I wanted to be like Whitney Houston," Brandy said. "My image is like her; everything is basically like her."

But she's quick to add that she also wants to be herself. Brandy likes to promote a youthful and innocent image that has made her a favorite among adults and kids alike.

"I just took a positive image and I developed it into a little girl who is 16. I'm just really young; my image is young," she said.

"If I'm singing adult music now, and showing my stomach and all of that other stuff now, then what will I have to look forward to on the third or the fourth album?"

The clean-cut style has paid off. Brandy's been touring off and on since her album debut, and now she is the opening act for Boyz II Men, replacing Babyface's spot on the group's national tour.

"Some people don't know what to expect from a 16-year-old, but once I get up there, they're like so much in awe. They don't know what to do because they don't expect what I give them," she said.

But such dizzying success at such a young age can take its toll. Life on the road is rough. She rides the bus all night and spends most of her day preparing for her performance that same night. There's little sleep and little time to oneself.

On her days off, she works with a tutor and spends time answering reporters' inquiries about her sudden fame.

"I'm really stressed out. It's very tiring," she said. "You've got to love what you're doing to be in it, because if you don't, you'll just die out."

Brandy was born in McComb, Miss., and the family moved to Los Angeles when she was 4. Her brother, Willie Jr., co-starred in the defunct TV sitcom "Sinbad."

When she was 10 years old, she saw Little Richard perform at the Forum in the Los Angeles and ran up to the stage when he invited audience members to dance with him. Brandy was a hit. She signed a record contract the next year and began recording. She had the role of 12-year-old Deneesha in "Thea," the daughter of a working mother trying to raise four children after the death of her husband.

Even though she's in midst of promoting her debut disc, Brandy is thinking of her next project. She wants to write and produce some material for album No. 2.

She also plans to return to acting and would like to try feature movies. But don't expect her to return to TV sitcoms anytime soon.

"They take up too much time," she said. "I won't have time to sing or anything."

Inside Oscar!

Get the inside scoop on the nominees for the 67th Academy Awards — from what the stars will be wearing to who will — and who should — win.

Plus, a behind–the– scenes look at how the Oscars are decided and what some stars think of the whole shabang!

Next Thursday — only in the Collegian.

the hatch

T-MEX (Totally Mexican)

Tacos & Soft Tacos

Chicken 99¢
Beef 75¢
Bean 75¢
(includes lettuce, tomato, cheddar & picante sauce)

Burritos

Bean 99¢
Veggie 99¢
Chicken $1.50
Beef $1.35
Chicken & Beans $1.50
Beef & Beans $1.35
(includes lettuce, tomato, cheddar & picante sauce on a 12" tortilla)

And Introducing The Hatch Pizza Club
Ask for your card at The Hatch Pizza Counter!

THE TEXTBOOK ANNEX IS OPEN YEAR ROUND BUT TO MAKE SURE YOU GET THE BOOKS YOU NEED FOR THIS SEMESTER

BUY THEM BEFORE SPRING BREAK

We are beginning to return unsold books to the publisher on Monday, March 27th.

UNIVERSITY STORE'S Textbook Annex UMASS AT AMHERST

Monday-Friday
9:00 am-4:00 pm
545-3570

WE NOW ACCEPT VISA, MASTERCARD & DISCOVER

The Arts & Living staff cordially invites you to the Collegian for our spring open house on March 10.

We are still looking for new writers to cover what's new in the entertainment world, so come on down. Even if you are not interested in writing stop by and offer suggestions of how we can make the section better.

Free food and drink will be available.

American photography showcased at gallery

By Matthew Justin Faerber
Collegian Staff

A new photography exhibition at Amherst College's Mead Art Museum will offer a survey of the history of American photography over the past century. The exhibit, entitled "An American Century of Photography: From Dry–Plate to Digital. The Hallmark Collection," promises a new critical perspective on American photography since the 1880s.

With a collection of famous and lesser–known photographs by artists as diverse as Ansel Adams and Robert Mapplethorpe, the Hallmark exhibit should serve as a visual chronicle of the evolution of American photography from the 1880s to the present.

"There will be brief captions which describe the sort of dialogue which is going on between many of the pictures," said Marni Sandweiss of the Mead Art Museum.

The exhibit surveys the art of American photography from one era of technological change to another. The first wave of technological influence on the art of photography came in the mid–1880s with the advent of new technologies which gave rise to amateur photography and the widespread reproduction of photographic images in the media.

Now, over 100 years later, new technologies are once again drastically effecting photography. Computers and electronic–imaging systems have had dynamic and irreversible effects on the photographically–derived image.

The Hallmark exhibit will utilize a wide range of works to examine how such technological developments have altered the way we have come to think of the visual image. The collection will include photographs from practically every genre of modern photography.

The works of documentary photographers such as Lewis Hine, Robert Frank and Lee Friedlander will be represented, as will artistic portraits by Mapplethorpe, Richard Avedon and Andy Warhol.

The exhibit will also feature examples of photojournalism, fashion pictures and a shot of the Earth from space courtesy of NASA in order to stress the functional role that photographs continue to play in American culture.

The presence of works by European photographers who have worked in this country, such as Laszlo Moholy–Nagy, is meant to illustrate the international influences on American photography.

Saturday at 3 p.m., to celebrate the opening of the exhibit, curator Keith Davis will be giving a speech entitled "A Sense of the Past: American Photography and Its Histories" with a reception to follow.

All of the prints for the exhibit were taken from the Hallmark Photographic Collection in Kansas City, Mo. where the exhibit broke national attendance records. The collection, which is sponsored by Hallmark Cards Inc., includes over 2,600 prints by 400 of the leading photographers of the last hundred years.

"An American Century of Photography: From Dry–Plate to Digital. The Hallmark Photographic Collection" opens this Saturday, March 11 at the Mead Art Museum on the Amherst College campus. The museum is open 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on weekdays and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. on weekends. For more information call (413) 542–2335.

Hideaway a relief from recent genre trends

By Laura Stock
Collegian Correspondent

HIDEAWAY
Directed by Brett Leonard with Jeff Goldblum, Alicia Silverstone
Playing at Mt. Farms Four Theater

The macabre ideas of near–death experiences and serial killers unite in Brett Leonard's latest thriller — Hideaway. With interesting characterizations and spectacular special effects, this eerie film, based on the novel by Dean R. Koontz, actually manages to disturb as well as entertain.

Jeff Goldblum plays Hatch Harrison, a grieving father who has recently witnessed the hit and run death of his youngest daughter. He and his wife Lindsey (Christine Lahti) take their daughter, Regina, played by Alicia Silverstone (of The Crush and Aerosmith video fame), on a vacation to a cabin in the mountains to try to get away and deal with their pain.

On a trip home, during an apropos thunderstorm, Hatch is apparently killed in a freak car accident. But wait! The movie is not over yet. An hour and 20 minutes later, Hatch is alive (but not well) in the ICU of the hospital he was rushed to. Dr. Jonas Nyebern (Alfred Molina) informs Lindsey that he is in possession of a powerful medicine which he uses to revive Hatch.

Hatch returns home, but not to his normal lifestyle. He has bizarre visions of committing hideous murders. Hatch soon learns he has a window into the sick life of the serial killer Vassago. Vassago, in turn, can see through Hatch's eyes. This is dangerous for Hatch, because Vassago sees Regina, and targets her as his next victim.

The movie–going masses have been inundated with psychotic individuals on killing sprees — from Anthony Hopkins' terrorizing us in Silence of the Lambs to Oliver Stone's annoying us with Natural Born Killers. But fortunately Vassago is a unique character — for a psychopath. He is a teen–aged, somewhat attractive young man, clad in Jim Morrison–esque leather pants. It is frighteningly understandable how young women could easily fall victim to this calculating murderer.

Leonard's perception of dying is original (refreshingly void of the now stereotypical white light) and is done with excellent computer graphics that top his last flick, Lawnmower Man.

Goldblum's performance is decent, but his wife is a dispensable character who only proves to be strong in the beginning and final scenes. The very ending is a bit corny, but the movie still manages to deliver what it promises — intriguing moments and great effects. As a mental thriller, Hideaway does its job, leaves the viewer feeling disturbed and tops the blood and gore of recent horror flicks. B–

COURTESY BOB MCEWAN

Alicia Silverstone and Jeremy Sisto star in Hideaway, the new thriller also starring Jeff Goldblum.

ROOMMATES
Directed by Peter Yates
with Peter Falk, D.B. Sweeney
Playing at Hampshire Six Theaters

Roommates is a touching dramedy that illustrates a close relationship between grandfather and grandson, rather than ridicule the generation gap.

Peter Falk and D.B. Sweeney are much more than roommates in this film, which transcends the tedium of coming–of–age storylines. It is the tale of a Polish immigrant who lost his parents in World War II and came to America in 1963. His American name became Rocky; and although Sly Stallone wasn't even a glimmer in his parents' eyes yet, Rocky has twice the fortitude of the cinematic boxing legend himself.

Rocky's grandson, Michael (Sweeney), is orphaned at age six, when the boy's father dies in Vietnam, and his mother follows shortly thereafter. Rocky adopts Michael and raises him with the same values and integrity that helped Rocky become a successful baker in Pittsburgh.

The movie spans 30 years as it follows all of the major events in Michael's life. The chronological process that director Yates uses is somewhat annoying, as it jumps to, "10 years later..." here and "seven years later..." there. What is amazing about the passage of time, however, is watching Rocky age (Falk must have used the same makeup artist as Mrs. Doubtfire).

Michael goes to college, and becomes a doctor out in Ohio. In the first few months of his residency, Rocky is told his neighborhood is being condemned and his house torn down. Michael returns to Philly to literally drag Rocky out of the house and bring him to live in his apartment in Ohio. Conflict arises when Michael meets his future wife, Beth, who is wonderfully played by Julianne Moore. The apartment becomes cramped and filled with tension as Rocky is vehemently against Michael dating Beth.

Although the plot of older family members bestowing age– old wisdom upon their descendants has been done to death (such as the movie Dad with Jack Lemmon), this film is not dripping with morals and sentimentality. Much humor is injected into scenes that would otherwise be too sappy. Excellent performances by Falk and Moore make this tear– jerker an enjoyable one. Roommates can be a bit predictable at times, but the film is as precious as it is precocious. B+

TRAVEL SMART!
FROM NEW YORK

One Way	Round-trip
LONDON $122	$244
PARIS $199	$398
AMSTERDAM $201	$402
SAN JOSE COSTA RICA $238	$476
TOKYO	$774

Scheduled flights. Fares to worldwide destinations. Eurailpasses Available. Weekend surcharges may apply. Customs-immigration taxes apply. Fares subject to change without notice. Int'l. student I.D. cards may be required.

PRISM TRAVEL
342 Madison Ave., NY, NY 10173
212-986-8420*
800-272-9676
*in NYC

Give the Collegian an international perspective!
Come write for Developing Nations & Multicultural Affairs
113 Campus Center
545-3500

I didn't plan on spending my entire vacation hiding out. I should have had my haircut before I left. My friends went to REGENCY HAIRSTYLISTS in downtown Amherst. I should have dialed 253-9526.

FREE PAIR OF TICKETS TO BLACK '47 APPEARING AT PEARL ST. ON 3/23 WITH PURCHASE OF A 6-PACK OF GUINNESS OR HARP!

LIQUORS 44 BLACK 47

BEER WINE LIQUORS

GUINNESS STOUT 6-PACK BOTTLES $6.49 +DEP
HARP LAGER CASE OF 24-12 OZ. BOTTLES $18.99 +DEP
Budweiser REGULAR CASE OF 24-16 OZ. BOTTLES $13.49 +DEP
CARLING BLACK LABEL 15-PACK CANS! $4.99 +DEP
SAM ADAMS ALL FLAVORS 6 PACK BOTTLES $4.99 +DEP
Miller CASE OF 24-12 OZ. CANS $9.99 +DEP
1/2 KEGS BUD, BUD LT., ICEHOUSE, RED DOG, MICHELOB, MICHELOB PIL., MICHELOB LT., LOWENBRAU, LOWENBRAU DK. $39.99 +DEP

WINE OF THE MONTH
SANTA RITA 120 CABERNET SAUVIGNON, CHARDONNAY, MERLOT, SAUVIGNON BLANC 750 ML $3.99
CARLO ROSSI ALL FLAVORS 4.0 LITER $6.99
CITRA MONTEPULCIANO TREBBIANO 1.5 LITER $4.99
SUTTER HOME WHITE ZINFANDEL, SAUVIGNON BLANC, ZINFANDEL 750 ML 3 for $9.99
ROBERT MONDAVI WOODBRIDGE, CABERNET SAUVIGNON, CHARDONNAY 1.5 LITER $8.99
BARTLES & JAMES ALL FLAVORS 4-PACK $2.49 +DEP

GORDON'S VODKA 1.75 LITER SALE $11.49 MAIL IN REBATE -$2.00 COST AFTER REBATE $9.49
Captain Morgan ORIGINAL SPICED RUM CO-PACK INCLUDES 1-1.75 RUM & 1-2 LITER COKE SALE $15.49 MAIL IN REBATE -$3.00 COST AFTER REBATE $12.49
JIM BEAM 1.75 LITER SALE $13.49 MAIL IN REBATE -$3.00 COST AFTER REBATE $10.49
BAILEYS IRISH CREAM 750 ML REGULAR & LIGHT $14.99
JAMESON PREMIUM IRISH WHISKEY 1.75 LITER SALE $27.99 MAIL IN REBATE -$5.00 COST AFTER REBATE $22.99
Seagram's 1.75 LITER SALE $15.99 MAIL IN REBATE -$5.00 COST AFTER REBATE $10.99

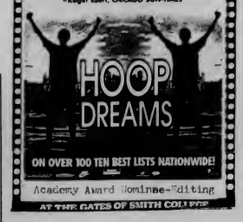
AT THE STOP & SHOP PLAZA
We Accept All Cans and Bottles for Redemption
HADLEY Campus Plaza Route 9 253-9344
NORTHAMPTON 238 King Street 586-3007
HOLYOKE 30 Lincoln Street 534-4555
SALE PRICES THURS. 3/9/95 THRU WEDS. 3/15/95
NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR TYPOGRAPHICAL ERRORS

ACADEMY MUSIC NORTHAMPTON Cinema Treasures 584-8435

Present this ad at our box office and you and a guest may purchase a Discounted Ticket for $5 each

FRI-SAT 8PM / MON-THU 7:30
(No Showing Wed. Mar. 15)
This Film is 3hrs. you must be seated at curtain. ARRIVE EARLY
BOX-OFFICE OPEN 6:30 DAILY

"ONE OF THE GREAT MOVIEGOING EXPERIENCES OF MY LIFETIME." –Roger Ebert, CHICAGO SUN-TIMES



ON OVER 100 TEN BEST LISTS NATIONWIDE!
Academy Award Nominee–Editing
AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE

Gerry's Music
80 Lamb Street Rt.116 South Hadley
Phone 534-7402 • 1-800-724-7402

NEW FOR '95

- Instructional videos for all instruments featuring today's best musicians.
- Hottest instrument cases and gig pacs at the lowest prices.
- Electronic pickups for clarinet, flute, sax, brass, and guitar.
- Aras's most complete percussion department featuring: Pearl, Ludwig, Gibraltar, Yamaha, C.B., Remo, Afro, L.P., and Toca
- 100's of new and used band instruments including Selmer saxophones.

Conveniently located at the junction of Rt. 116 and Rt. 202.
Open Mon.-Fri. 9-6, Thur. 9-8, Sat. 9-3.
Go UMass!

Pearl Street

• WEDNESDAY •
Gay Night
MUSIC BY SPIN, INC.

• Thursday •
18+ DANCE PARTY
Hosted by WHMP's Nick Clanger
The Area's Biggest Dance Party
Music by Spin, Inc.

• Friday •
RETRO NIGHT
Dance Music From the 70's, 80's & 90's with D.J. Dennis
9:00pm - 1:30am
FREE ADMISSION WITH THIS AD

• Saturday •
ALL NEW/ ALL REQUEST TOP 40 DANCE PARTY
WITH DJ DAVE
SATURDAY NIGHT DINNER & DANCE PROMOTION
Dine anywhere in Northampton on Saturday Night, bring in your receipt, and receive Free Admission to the Dance Club

Limousine service courtesy of Wachtels Limousine of Chicopee 533-8478

LIVE MUSIC

Thur., March 9 - 7:30 pm/All Ages
Colorfest Productions Presents
SLOW POKE Red Stard
Granfalloon Product
Mind Fiction Poet
Fri., March 10 - 9:00pm
From the Nine Inch Nails Tour
ART STEELE BLUES BAND
Sat., March 11 - 9:00pm
Tribute To The Doors
RIDERS ON THE STORM
Tues., March 14 - 8:00pm /18+/
AQUARIUM RESCUE UNIT
Syracuseboss
Thurs., Mar. 16 - 8:30pm /18+/
CHUCKLEHEAD
Fri., Mar. 17 - 8:30pm
St. Patricks Day
THE BIG BAD BOLLOCKS
Sat., Mar. 18 - 8:30pm
ROOMFUL OF BLUES
Thurs., Mar. 21 - 8:30pm
BLACK 47
Fri., Mar. 24 - 7:30pm /All Ages
DOOM NATION
Sat., Mar. 25 - 8:30pm
GRAHAM PARKER & THE EPISODES
Sun., Mar. 26 - 8:00pm /18+/
10,000 MANIACS
Mon., April 3 - 8:00pm /18+/
WIDESPREAD PANIC

Coming...
4/4 Mighty Mighty Bosstones
4/6 Brad Mould
4/7 Leftover Salmon
4/10 Junior Wells
4/13 Frank Gand Hames
4/14 Love & Special Sauce
4/17 Tish Hinojosa
4/12 Marcia Parker
4/13 Ferron
4/18 Little Feat

Tickets as available at Pearl Street, Strawberries, Tix Unlimited, Northampton Box Office: 586-8686, For The Record in Amherst 10 Pearl Street Northampton 584-7711

Borromeo String Quartet set to enlighten

By Mike MacLean
Collegian Staff

The Borromeo String Quartet has been heralded by concert-goers and reviewers all over the world as one of the finest string quartets around. The Valley will get a taste of the power of this quartet when they fill Sweeney Hall at Smith College with their award-winning sounds this Friday night.

The quartet has been garnering accolades since its inception in 1989, and the group is in its third year as "Quartet in Residence" at the New England Conservatory and the Walnut School for the Arts in Boston.

Four extremely talented and acclaimed musicians from all over the globe make up the Borromeo Quartet. Violinist Nicholas Kitchen is from Durham, North Carolina and has been playing since before the age of 12, when he made his first concerto appearance. Kitchen is a graduate of both the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia and the New England Conservatory of Music.

Also featured on the violin will be Ruggero Allifranchini, a native of Milan, Italy. Allifranchini is also a graduate of the Curtis Institute and the New England Conservatory as well as studying as the New School in Philadelphia.

Performing on the viola is Hsin-Yun Huang, from Taipei, Taiwan. Huang has performed at various festivals around the world including those in Switzerland and Tokyo. She has a Bachelor's degree from the Curtis Institute and a Master's from the Juilliard School of Music. Huang has also performed in Germany, where she won First Prize in 1993 at the International Competition of the ARD.

Rounding out the quartet is cellist Yeesun Kim, a native of Korea. She has been a recipient of various prizes and scholarships in her native country and has been in the United States for 12 years, studying at the Curtis Institute and the New England Conservatory of Music.

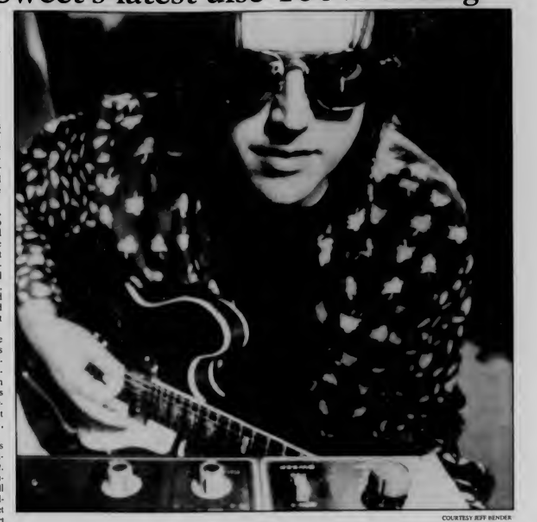
The quartet's program Friday night will consist of Haydn's "Quartet in D Major, Op. 76 No. 5," Kirchner's "Quartet No. 2" and Schumann's "Quartet in A Major, Op. 41, No. 3."

The Borromeo String Quartet will perform in Sweeney Auditorium, located in Sage Hall at Smith College on Friday night at 8 p.m.. Tickets are $16. For more information call 585-3164

Matthew Sweet's latest disc 100% boring

By Matt Audette
Collegian Staff

100% FUN
Matthew Sweet
Zoo Records



COURTESY JEFF BENDER

Matthew Sweet's latest release, 100% Fun is a trip down memory lane.

Welcome to Pop Music 101.

Today we will look at Matthew Sweet's latest project, 100% Fun, as our model. Let's see — a dash of Beach Boy harmonics, some Beatle-esque bridges, a healthy helping of Big Star pathos and, just for good measure, a handful of '70s AM radio kitch, you know, for all those hip kids. All seems to be in check.

That's right folks, Matthew Sweet, alternative pop music's favorite pin-up boy, has returned with the aptly titled 100% Fun — but the result is more like 100% Retro. Not that we expect Sweet to dazzle us with any new innovations or musical directions. He's still up to what he does best — slick little, by the numbers, pop gems, drenched in "boy meets girl" sentimentality and wrapped up nicely in a convenient three-minute package.

Sweet's been giving us this same Alex Chilton meets Bryan Adams routine for some time now, culminating in his 1991 hook-laden pop fantasy Girlfriend. It was within Girlfriend that Sweet finally found his niche in the music world — embarrassingly sensitive tunes that didn't offer a whole lot, but then again, didn't ask for much in return.

Then, obviously weary of his "wimp-image," Sweet made a dreadful turn and became the Altered Beast. Trying to add some muscle to his usually fragile mix, Sweet drowned out all his pretty little melodies and schoolboy charm with heaps of guitar racket courtesy of Richard Lloyd and Robert Quine. The result was Sweet without all the ear candy that made him such a guilty treat in the first place.

Now, with 100% Fun, Sweet has seemingly made peace between his two alter-egos, taking the best elements from both and coming up with something, well ... not different, but kind of groovy nevertheless. From the picture of a smiling pre-pubescent Sweet listening to some LPs amidst some late '60s, early '70s decor, which adorns the cover, it's clear that Sweet wants to take us on a jaunt down memory lane — raiding his record collection in the process.

The album opens on a bright note with "Sick Of Myself," one of finest ditties that Sweet has ever penned. This time, instead of using Lloyd and Quine's fancy fret-work in order to try and beef-up the song, Sweet uses them to accent his trademark vocal harmonies, to come up with what would have been a sure-fire hit single, had it been released circa 1974.

From this point on, 100% Fun becomes the equivalent of turning a radio dial through the frequencies of time. There are no real stand-out numbers here — just catchy, if not familiar tunes, that sort of float in one ear, create a sort of head-bobbing, trance-like state, and then float out the other.

Tracks such as "Giving It Back" and "Super Baby," are the same perfect pop fodder — a pleasant diversion, if nothing else. Sweet could probably write this stuff in his sleep (and quite possibly — he did). Other songs such as "We're The Same" and "Come To Love" find Sweet dishing out the same schmaltzy balladry that he perfected on Girlfriend with tracks such as "Winona."

The problem with 100% Fun isn't so much with the songs — most of them are better than half the pop drivel that bands such as Weezer try to pass off — it is with the delivery. Sweet can't seem to win. When he tries to get tough he loses his endearing melodic sense. When he softens up a bit he gets trapped into recycling age old pop cliches. Now it finally seems that Sweet is trying to make amends between the two styles, but unfortunately success as once again escaped his grasp.

Often listening to 100% Fun brings on an eerie sensation of deja vu, almost as if Sweet is just going through the motions. Of course, this is not exactly a bad thing since he is more than capable of churning out a great melody, it's just that it seems that the melody previously belonged to someone else (sometimes even himself). 100% Fun? Not really, but a decent time nevertheless. B–

Feeling your community is left out by the University?
Come down and say so!
Write for Multicultural Affairs.
Contact Hernán at 545–1851.
Express yourself.

Mikara's
Springfield's Hottest Dance Party
Committed World Tour
Wed. March 15...
Stars From The Commitments
Special Guest Stars SAVAGE BROTHERS
Thu. March 16...
GREG PICCOLO Former Frontman for Room Full of Blues
Special Guest THE HORNETS
Free Cover Friday or Saturday Nights with this ad. 25% off any show with valid student ID.

August the First
Beads
Jewelry Making Supplies
44 Main St., Amherst, MA 01002 • 413-256-0276
112 Main St., Northampton, MA 01060 • 431-586-7182
243 W. Main St. Northboro, MA 01532 • 508-393-0180
Anniversary Sale
March 4th - March 11th
On March 6th we celebrate the 2nd Anniversary of the opening of our August the First Bead Stores. Two years and three stores later, August the First invites you to celebrate with an Anniversary Sale with Store Wide Specials
With this advertisment, save an additional 15% OFF all purchases over $5

Lincoln Real Estate
253-7879
25 North Pleasant St.
(above McDonald's)
Apartment Rentals
CONGRATULATIONS!
Job Well Done

tonight...
1/2 PRICE
ALL APPETIZERS AND NACHOS
9:30 till 11:00
Weekly Special
Pitchers $4.75 ICEHOUSE
12oz. Bottles $1.75
Smoking Section 10%
MUSIC BY D.J. PETE FREE
THE PUB
15 east pleasant street
amherst

WANTED
Assistant Finance Manager
EXPERIENCE
is a must to be successful in gaining the competitive edge in today's Business World...
We are looking for:
Ambitious • Responsible • Organized
SOPHOMORES
with good communication skills
Business Majors Preferred
Applications are available at the Collegian 113 Campus Center and must be submitted by Thursday March 9 @ 4:00 p.m. !!

Spirit Haus
Specialty Beverage Center
Bud Ice 12 pack bottles $6.99
Icehouse & Red Dog 12 pack bottles $7.99/Six
Red Wolf Lager $3.99/six
Harpoon (Ale, Lager, I.P.A.) $4.99/six
Henry Weinhard's (Blue Berry Ale, Private Reserve) $4.49/six
Beefeater Gin 1.75 liters $22.99
Jagermeister 375ml $8.99
Early Times Kentucky Whiskey 1.75 liters $13.99
Wolfschmidt 100 Proof Vodka 1 liter $10.99
All Prices Plus Deposit
Open M-Sat 9am - 11pm
Wine Coolers • Ice • Mixers • Mini Kegs • Beer Glasses
FULL REDEMPTION CENTER
Rt. 9 East College Street • 253-5384
one mile east of Amherst Center on Rt. 9E
VISA – MASTERCARD – DISCOVER Accepted

Kai Chi
Chinese-American Restaurant
Restaurant & Bar
Mt. Farms Mall Rt. 9 Hadley
We Deliver To Umass
Major credit cards accepted
Sun-Thurs 11:30 am - 11 pm
Fri & Sat. 11:30 am - midnight
10% off All Entrees
with this coupon
Expires 5/31/95
586-2774

COURTESY JEFF BENDER

Live is (l to r): Chad Taylor, Patrick Dahlheimer, Chad Gracey and Ed Kowalczyk.

Live sells the drama to Mullins

By Mike MacLean
Collegian Staff

The headline on Live in Spin magazine's February '95 issue read, "Selling The Melodrama," and for some that's all Live amounts to: a bunch of serious guys who sing serious songs. The members of Live, however, see themselves a little differently, and you can judge for yourself this Saturday night when they perform at the Mullins Center.

The members themselves admitted that after their first album, Mental Jewelry, shot up the college radio charts in 1991 a lot of people perceived Live as just another angst– ridden group of young guys who use music to preach their message.

But Live's follow–up to Mental Jewelry, Throwing Copper, finds the quartet from York, Pennsylvania taking a different approach. The messages are still there, but most are not half as blunt as they were on Jewelry (after all, "Operation Spirit (The Tyranny of Tradition)" is about as in–your–face as a rock band can get).

"We got in trouble with the press last time," said drummer Chad Gracey in an interview with Music Review Magazine last summer. "They portrayed us as these depressed, totally serious people. And that's definitely not the way that we are."

What they are is a band capable of writing some great pop songs, something that they have been doing for a long time. Vocalist/guitarist Ed Kowalczyk, guitarist Chad Taylor, bassist Patrick Dahlheimer and drummer Chad Gracey were only about 14 when they started playing R.E.M. covers in York and were only 19 when Mental Jewelry propelled them to the threshold of stardom.

Now 22, the maturing process is evident on Throwing Copper as the band has left behind a lot of the angst that saturated Jewelry and the songs have reaped the benefits in the form of catchier, more guitar–tinged tracks.

Of the singles off of Throwing Copper, only "White, Discussion" features the heavy bass influence that was evident on their earlier works. "Selling The Drama," "I Alone" and "Lightning Crashes" all rely on the interweaving of guitars and the dynamics of Kowalczyk's voice to send the message.

"We've tried to make it more than your average trip down angst lane," said Kowalczyk.

The widespread success of Throwing Copper and Live's reputation as a phenomenal live band should be what assures that Saturday night's performance will be anything but average.

Also on the bill Saturday night is the Detroit quintet Sponge, who have been touring extensively since the release of their debut Rotting Pinata. Pinata has ridden the success of it's first single "Plowed" all the way up to the top five on Billboard's New Artist Chart and made the single a top 10– track on alternative radio.

Detroit's music scene has been thought of as dead by some after the decline of Motown's popularity, but Sponge may be spearheading the resurgence of Detroit's influence on the music world.

Vocalist Vinnie, guitarists Mike Cross and Joey Mazzola, bassist Tim Cross and drummer Charlie Grover have made two appearances on "The Jon Stewart Show" and will soon be featured on the syndicated radio program "Modern Rock Live."

Opening the show will be Love Spit Love, ex–Psychedelic Furs frontman Richard Butler's latest effort which scored a couple of alternative radio hits this summer off of their self– titled debut album.

Live with opening acts Sponge and Love Spit Love will play the Mullins Center Saturday night at 8 p.m. Tickets are $17 and are available through Ticketmaster. For more information call 545–0505.

Dance concert celebrates talent

Five College dance departments to be showcased at UMass

By Matt Audette
Collegian Staff

Faculty and students from the Dance Departments throughout the Five College area will join forces, on March 10 and 11 at 8 p.m., to stage the annual Five College Dance Department Concert.

According to Andrea Watkins, co–artistic director of the concert, each year the Five College Dance faculty come together to organize a showcase of the area talent. The location of the concert changes from year to year. This year it is being held at Bowker Auditorium at the University of Massachusetts.

The concert will feature the work of Professors Billbob Brown from UMass, Rodger Blum from Smith College, Jim Coleman from Mount Holyoke College, Peter Schmitz from Amherst College and Jin–Wen Yu, a guest artist from Smith College.

The emphasis of the concert will be on the versatility of the performances.

"There will be a lot of variety in the content," said Watkins. "People will see some comedic performances and some serious."

According to Watkins, the opening and closing dances of the performance will be danced by the students of the various Five College departments. The dances in between will be staged by the various faculty members and will not include any students. All of the pieces are choreographed by the various faculty members of the Five College area.

Some of the performances that will be included in this year's concert will be a modern ballet by Rodger Blum that is set to post–modern American jazz and features one male and nine female dancers. On The Horseback, a dance by Jin– Wen Yu, has a Chinese feel and is inspired by images of the people of Mongolia. On a lighter note, The Old One–Two, by Billbob Brown, is a humorous piece that is to be performed solo to a jazzy score performed by Shadowfax.

"As choreographers we want to push boundaries, but not turn the audience off," said Brown, an artist in residence at UMass and the choreographer of two pieces. "We're doing some odd things and kind of being wacky about it."

Other performances include a modern choreography piece by Jim Coleman and a duet entitled Summerland, which features Brown and dancer Rebecca Nordstrom, a faculty member at Hampshire College.

"We have some real exciting stuff," said Brown. "There is some real groundbreaking work."

The Five College Dance Department Concert will be held at Bowker Auditorium on March 10 and 11. The performance begins at 8 p.m. Tickets are $4 for students and $2 for senior citizens and children; $7 for the general public.

■ tube

continued from page 5

(but correctly) observed that if you hang around long enough, you're bound to get a Grammy sometime. Tony Bennett didn't seem to mind, though.

The People's Choice Awards was, by far, the silliest ceremony of the three, as its skits were populated by some fairly goofy–looking middle–Americans chosen to represent (I assume) the dorky average consumer.

And if that wasn't bad enough, Tom Hanks and Tim Allen each took home a truckload of trophies, so I guess the twenty–year–old voters really came out in droves this year. Must be some kind of twisted revenge for the '94 election, or something.

Also last week, networks were beginning to roll out their midseason replacements to fill in empty slots left by such creatively bankrupt (and mercifully cancelled) shows as "Models, Inc." and "Get Smart."

Among the new additions is Fox's "The Great Defender," about a Boston lawyer who becomes a partner at a snooty law firm despite his eccentric manner and what passes for a thick New England accent (actors never quite get this right).

Michael Rispoli portrays the attorney as a working–class kind of guy with a preference for lower–class clients and tacky TV promos, and he's not bad playing a kind of first cousin to Michael Chiklis' blue–collar "Commish".

Unfortunately, "Great Defender" is too cheap–looking and slap–happy to be a really good courtroom drama, but it was still kind of nice seeing an attorney presented as other than a materialistic sleaze, for a change.

Things look much worse over on ABC, where Ed Asner humbly returns to network television with the embarrassingly unfunny "Thunder Alley." To be honest, I thought this was going to be a show about car–racing, maybe a sitcom treatment of that Tom Cruise movie Days of Thunder.

Alas, no, it's only another brainless "family" comedy featuring a slew of wise–cracking kids who spend the entire half–hour running around and annoying the hell out of everybody. Asner looks appropriately disturbed as their crusty (but lovable) grandfather, and he pathetically emotes all the grunts and grimaces required to earn his weekly paycheck.

A program like this one makes me wonder why ABC is bothering to cancel their long–running kiddie–fest "Full House," if they are only going to add more shows that are equally dull and stupid.

Only slightly better is CBS' "Double Rush," a mediocre ensemble comedy about a messenger service that Robert Pastorelli unwisely decided to leave "Murphy Brown" for. Don't get me wrong, Rob, you're a good supporting character and all, but you just haven't got the stuff to carry an entire show all by yourself, especially since you don't have the help of the "Murphy" writers anymore. It looks bad when a new show is reduced to ripping off plots from old "Taxi" reruns, like "Double Rush" did last week with that Unplanned Romantic Interlude in a Car, During a Snowstorm episode.

Much more fitting to my personal tastes, however, is Fox's animated "The Critic," featuring Jon Lovitz as the voice of a rotund little movie critic who could very well be Siskel and Ebert's love child. Naturally, there's plenty of gags about Lovitz's eating habits and social inhibitions, as well as some rather obvious satirical jabs at the popular cinema.

But what's really striking about this series is how innocent it is as compared to its cartoon contemporaries. The show is a lot slower and less witty than "The Simpsons" and it's never as sharp–edged or confrontational as MTV's aggressively inarticulate music critics "Beavis and Butthead."

I really respect how "The Critic" maintains its sweetness and remains true to its protagonist's nerdy view of the world while still delivering some decent laughs. Besides, Lovitz needs something to do — viewers have to help keep these "Saturday Night Live" alumni off the streets. Otherwise, there's no telling what kinds of trouble they could get themselves into.

WASHBURN DIGITECH HARMONICS
Need to Record a Demo? Talk To Us!
31 Campus Road, Hadley (near Pizza Hut • 256-6944

READINGS BY ABBY
PALM TAROT & ESP READING
HELPS SOLVE ALL PROBLEMS OF LIFE. HELPS YOU THROUGH YOUR GOOD AND BAD CYCLES OF LIFE. TELLS YOU LUCKY DAYS AND LUCKY MONTHS. ONE VISIT WILL CONVINCE YOU THAT SHE IS SUPERIOR TO ALL READERS YOU HAVE SEEN BEFORE.
All readings Confidential and Results Guaranteed.
HOURS: 9 A.M. TO 9 P.M.
210 Russell Street Route 9 Hadley, MA 01035
(413) 586-6711 Walk in's are Welcome

U-SAVE AUTO & TRUCK RENTAL
Weekend Special
Noon Friday to Monday A.M.
Starting at $49.95
North Amherst Motors CARSTAR 71 Old Sunderland Rd., North Amherst, MA 549-RENT
Northampton CARSTAR 141A Damon Rd., Northampton 586-4444
•Cars •Mini Vans •Trucks •Cargo Vans
•Direct Billing to Insurance Companies
•We Rent to All Qualified Drivers 21 years or Older

STUDENT FARES
LONDON $250
AMSTERDAM $430
PARIS $438
FRANKFURT $458
MADRID $498
BRUSSELS $430
MOSCOW $518
ZURICH $478
PRAGUE $458
EURAIL FROM $255
FARES BASED ON RT FROM BOSTON. TAXES NOT INCLUDED. STUDENT ID MAY BE REQUIRED. DEPARTURES THRU 3/31. FARES SUBJECT TO CHANGE.
Council Travel
79 S. PLEASANT ST, 2ND FL AMHERST, MA 01002
413-256-1261

Judies
Arti Schloss, runner of the 1994 New York City Marathon, says: "Thank-you God for getting me here!..."
WHY DON'T WE GO TO JUDIES!
51 N. Pleasant Street • Amherst • 253-3491

UMass Student Legal Services Office
FREE confidential professional legal services for UMass students!
545-1995
CALL TODAY!
922 CAMPUS CENTER

THE TOP DOG
Pleasant Street, Amherst 256-4000
"Home of the $1.25 Hot Dog & Soda"
COUPON SPECIAL
50¢ OFF
EX. 3/18/95 COLL
Hot Dogs • Super Sausages
Baked Potatoes • Salads & More
OPEN DAILY 11:00am to 2:00am

Two Great Ways to See and $ave!
• EYEGLASSES REPAIRED WHILE YOU WAIT
• FREE EYEGLASS ADJUSTMENTS
• ONE HOUR SERVICE AVAILABLE ON MANY PRESCRIPTIONS
• FULL SERVICE OPTICAL SHOP OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK
• DAY & EVENING HOURS AVAILABLE FROM INDEPENDENT DOCTOR OF OPTOMETRY ON PREMISES
with this coupon
DAILY WEAR CONTACT LENSES & EXAM $109
Includes: One Pair of Name Brand Soft Spherical Daily Wear Lenses • Complete Comprehensive Eye Exam (exam Valid for Contacts and Eyeglasses) • Contact Lens Fit • Follow Up Visit • Start up Supplies
Coupons May Not Be Combined With Any Other Offer With This Coupon • 3-31-95
We'll Pay For Your Exam
Purchase any Prescription Frames and Lenses. We will pay for your exam. (Up to $40.00) or by our Independent Doctor of Optometry on Premises.
Coupons May Not Be Combined With Any Other Offer With This Coupon • 3-31-95
AMERICAN VISION CENTERS HAMPSHIRE MALL • Hadley • 584-7958
AMERICAN VISION CENTERS
Hampshire Mall (located by the Food Court) Hadley (413) 584-7958
Where Name Brands Mean Quality Eyecare

Rafters
SPORTS BAR & RESTAURANT
TONIGHT
2 FREE
Tickets to Seattle Final Four includes airfare, four nights hotel, car rental, complimentary breakfast, all taxes and gratuities
Drawing at 9:00pm
Register 6:30 - 8:30 with Jonathan & O' Brion From Rock102 at our pre-game party
• Sponsored by Sports Tours of Hatfield, Mass. •
University Drive & Amity • Amherst • 549-4040

Hoop Dreamers

ARTS & LIVING cover story, continued from page 5

Reggie Lewis–led Northeastern squad.

There weren't even tickets at the time. No worrying about pick up dates, or early morning waits for the big games; students could walk into Curry Hicks Cage, show their ID and go to their seats.

But then a man from Moon, Pa. arrived, with some big ideas of turning the University of Massachusetts basketball program into a national power.

John Calipari came in and turned the program upside– down, and not long after, the atmosphere surrounding Massachusetts basketball started to change.

The first few years were slim for Calipari's squad, as he still didn't have the players to become a winning team.

Fans began showing interest in the '90s. The Minutemaniac organization was founded during the 1991–92 to promote student support. In its original season, it had 55 members. Wilson said the organization would have accepted more members, but the interest wasn't there.

The change continued. The old uniforms with the word "Massachusetts" draped boringly across the front were discarded, in favor of the new trendy UMass logo.

In 1991–92, the program began what would be its first run to the NCAA tournament in decades, and suddenly people wanted to be involved. The season would be pivotal for the team and would change the University of Massachusetts forever.

When ESPN came to Curry Hicks Cage that season for a novelty midnight game against Boston University, a new type of fan was created. A raucous, screaming, face– painting, I'll–do–anything–if–you–put–me–on–TV kind of fan that the Minutemen still boast of today.

The nation's total sports network liked that UMass fan and has kept coming back.

With the Minutemen continuing to gather momentum, the excitement for the showdown with the hated Temple Owls was at a maximum. Students began lining up to get tickets at 10 p.m. the previous night. With the temperature well below freezing, the Cage staff let the students inside. Thrilled with the new–found fan support Calipari joined the students and ordered 100 pizzas delivered to the Cage.

When the game finally came, for the first time ever, the Minutemen beat the vaunted Owls and the fans flooded the court.

The team continued winning. The fans kept coming. By the time they reached the Associated Press's weekly Top 25, all of Western Mass. was starting to follow Massachusetts basketball.

The fans have been coming back too, and in much greater numbers.

Pride of Western Mass

Fast forward three years and the program that was a novelty in the Sweet Sixteen season, has become Western Mass.' pride and joy.

The 700 season ticket holders expanded to become 5,000. Not only that, but 2,300 requests for tickets had to be turned away. The Minutmaniacs expanded almost ten–fold, as there are now 500 students in the organization, and they had to turn people away to keep their numbers reasonable.

Admissions are up as a result as well, according to Wilson.

"[The basketball team] generates a lot of enthusiasm for the University," Wilson said. "Applications are up. More out of state students want to come here."

"The basketball team has brought some pride back to the University," said junior school of management major Jed Scaramella.

Calipari treasures the role of being in a position to have the teams exposure help the entire University.

"We're a very small part of a great University," he said. "We're like the front porch. If people like what they see on the front porch, maybe they'll come through the door."

With the success of the team, everything tied to it has had to improve to keep up, starting with the hoop band.

Thomas P. Hannum, the band's director, said the band was not even organized in the early days of the Curry Hicks Cage.

"Nobody wanted to do it, the team was awful," said Hannum. "It used to be just some people getting together and making noise."

As the basketball team got better, the Hoop Band had to, Hannum said.

The business bandwagon

The bandwagon has come to include every man, woman and business in the Pioneer Valley.

"Every business and corporation wants to be a part of University of Massachusetts," Wilson said. "You hear all the radio ads. "Come watch UMass at our place ... We're giving away UMass tickets."

A drive through the local community will find a liquor store with a witty phrase and the result of any recent game, displayed on its message board.

"UMass hogties Arkansas, 104–80."

D.P. Dough, one of Amherst's busiest delivery services, has a calzone named after Calipari, and on game night, every bar in the Valley is packed with fans who couldn't find a ticket.

If the radio is on, every commercial will make some reference to the Minutemen. To an outsider it would seem like overkill, but to the students of the University, and the citizens of the surrounding towns, Massachusetts basketball has become as much a part of the Pioneer Valley as farming political correctness.

Some would say the success has spoiled the fans. Nothing short of the Atlantic 10 title and an NCAA appearance are acceptable to a program that for years would have salivated at the thought of going to the National Invitational Tournament.

The players are proud of the growing tradition and plan on extending it even further.

"UMass is setting a precedent," said senior center Jeff Meyer. "It was years before they were in a big tournament like that, now all of a sudden, it's a regular basis. Now we want to take that one step more."

The people of Amherst didn't know what they were missing in the pre–Calipari years. Even the days of Jullus Erving seem like a distant memory. Now that big–time college basketball has it made to Western Mass., the area would be lost without it.

Collegian staff member Tim White contributed to this article.

New books take a look at sexuality, feminism

THE NEW VICTORIANS: A YOUNG WOMAN'S CHALLENGE TO THE OLD FEMINIST ORDER
Rene Denfeld
Warner Books

"Women have not failed Feminism," said author Rene Denfeld, "Feminism has failed us." And indeed that is what The New Victorians focuses on, the fact that many people believe the once strong Feminist movement is now barely crawling replaced by "more urgent" topics.

Denfeld explores this notion and the fact that many early feminists held ideas that aren't felt by a majority of feminists. Trends such as anti–phallic campaigns, anti–pornographic campaigns, male bashing and Goddess worship have dragged the movement under causing many supporters to abandon the cause in disgust.

Denfeld, a free–lance journalist, believes that today's woman's movement is much more simple. It centers around one basic principal which is to create political and social reform that will put women on the same plain as men. Bra burning has gone the way of more practical concerns such as child care, abortion rights and birth control. The New Victorians ask women to rebuild the feminist movement and tailor it to fit the times. It's an excellent way for reviewing old grudges within the movement and seeing how they can be improved upon for the future.

—Tara MK Connelly

WOMEN WHO LOVE SEX
Gina Ogden, Ph. D
Pocket Books

Women Who Love Sex is an analytical approach to a woman's sexuality in a way that isn't blatantly erotic or overly clinical. The book looks at sexuality in the '90s from a woman's point of view with a professional interpreter (Gina Ogden) who guides readers through women's testimonies and experiences rather than letting readers flounder in speculation.

Nancy Friday seemed to pioneer the premise for this book with Women On Top and Men In Love, however, unlike Friday's books, the author blends in the first hand accounts rather than presenting them without explanation. This combination of analysis and examples creates a more user friendly book than the blatant sexuality Friday offers.

It goes beyond sex and into the realms of individual realities and how they have been developed socially, morally and sexually. It brings sexuality to a new level and raises it from animalistic to spiritual. The author gives a more honest portrayal of women's feelings from lust to love in a way everyone can relate to. It emphasizes emotion and the fact that these women are real and not just test subjects. Both men and woman can learn something from this book.

—Tara MK Connelly

THE UNOFFICIAL GAY MANUAL
Kevin Dilallo & Jack Krumholtz
Doubleday

After years of oppression, being denied basic human rights, being misunderstood and laughed at or even beat up — it is finally becoming acceptable, even cool to be gay. And according to the writers of The Unofficial Gay Manual, it's about time.

The manual is what every gay man needs and has been waiting for. The book takes you from coming out, through the night clubs, past the first date and even into marriage. The manual also deals with a very fundemantal question of homosexuality: does a gay culture exist or not? The book's answer is an unwavering yes. The book may be taken by some as a bit stereotypical. Throughout the book the writers assure the reader that being gay does in fact mean one thing only — being attracted to men.

Amherst is even mentioned in the book (page 89) as a town with laws against gay discrimination. Now if THAT doesn't get you to buy this informative and very funny guide to gay living, there are always the cute guys. It is an excellent read for people of all sexual preferences.

— Christopher Hassett

AMHERST CINEMA
Downtown Amherst
PULP FICTION
7:30 PM Each Night
Students $4.00
253-5426
FINAL SHOWING TONIGHT

Mike's Westview Cafe
SPECIALS OF THE WEEK
Busch Bottles $ 1.25
Gin & Tonic $ 1.75
Come Watch the A-10 Championships
Thursday Night
Free Appetizers at 9:30pm and Halftime
Friday is Jameson Night!
Jameson Shots $2.00
free t-shirts & prizes

Saturday comedy NUKE LAU Chicago - AA 413•593•5222 IN LIVING COLOR TOMMY DAVIDSON DAMON WAYANS "He Money" "Black Rock" Mar 25 KEVIN NEALON Saturday Night Live April 22

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS
KOREAN STUDENTS ASSOCIATION
presents
The Third Annual
KOREAN CULTURE NIGHT
Cultural Performance, Talent Show & Dance
Saturday, March 11, 1995
6:00 - 9:00 PM Cultural Show • 10:00 - 1:00 AM Dance
FREE ADMISSION • FREE FOOD
UMASS CAMPUS CENTER AUDITORIUM
This program was made possible by grants from UMASS Arts Council, SACEF, SGA Finance Committee and the United Asia Cultural Center.
For more information contact Ji Woong Jun 546-6278

HERE THIS
The 6th Annual Black Mass Communications Conference
March 9th - 10th 1995
Campus Center
The University of Massachusetts at Amherst
March 9th
Registration: 1st Floor Campus Center
From 5 pm - 10 pm
March 10th
Registration: 1st Floor Campus Center
From 8:30 am - 9:00 am

Student Affairs Special Services
UNDERGRADUATE COMMENCEMENT
IMPORTANT INFORMATION FOR SENIORS
The names of seniors that are printed in the Undergraduate Commencement Program book represent an unofficial listing of degree candidates based on information provided by the Registrar's Office.
To ensure that your name will be listed, your Class of 1995 eligibility and major must be on record with the Undergraduate Registrar not later than Wednesday, March 15.
Because of printing deadlines, changes made after that date are unlikely to be included in the Commencement Program. Please note, however, that the graduation status of students eligible to graduate is in no way affected by the absence of a listing.
If there was an error in the recent mailing from the Registrar's Office concerning your diploma name and graduation date and you have not corrected it with the Senior Staff, please do so immediately. If you did not receive the mailing and are expecting to have all degree requirements completed for the May or September 1995 graduation date, please contact the Senior Staff. They are located in the Registrar's Office, 207 Whitmore.
If you did not receive the Undergraduate Commencement information brochure mailed in February, copies are available at the Visitors Center.

Scott's LIQUORS
OPEN: Mon.-Sat. 8a.m.-11 p.m. Tel: 549-2692.
Before the Game Shop Scotts and $ave!!
RED DOG 24-12oz Cans $13.49 +dep
MONTPELLIER VINEYARDS CHARDONNAY & MERLOT 750ml. $4.99
New Improved BUD ICE 12pk Cans $6.99 +dep
BUSCH 1/2 Kegs $34.99
CHECK OUT OUR 5 FOR $10 WINE SELECTION
BUD DRY 24 - 12oz Cans $10.49 +dep
JACK DANIELS TENNESSEE WHISKEG 750ml. $11.49
CAPTAIN MORGAN SPCIED RUM 1.75Ltr w/ FREE 20 Ltr Coke $15.99
CIDER JACK HARD CIDER 6pk $5.49
MasterCard VISA MasterCard Tele-Check for your personal check
We Want To Be Your Favorite Liquor Store !
6 University Drive
at Newmarket Center, Amherst
We now have all Mass Lottery games

Campus Perspectives

Compiled by Marnie Thamel • Photos by Daymion Smith

Define feminism. Do you consider yourself a feminist?

"I have always took the meaning of feminism to be the belief in women and their strengths, acknowledgements, and of the struggles of being a woman in today's society. Yes, I consider myself a feminist, but not an extreme feminist."
–Penny Cameron
junior, undecided
Brockton

"Feminism is just being proud of your womanhood and doing things to make yourself feel good. I don't see anything wrong with making yourself look good, for yourself like a lot of feminists do. Yes, but not a hard core feminist."
–Suzanne Duchane
sophomore,
English and philosophy
Lynn

"Movement which women demand the same rights as men. No, I don't consider myself a feminist, but I believe women should have the same rights as men. I don't believe in the radical action women are taking to demand those rights."
–Bill McNeil
freshman, undecided
Needham

"A mantra or call word for the assertion of an old idea which is respect for women. I consider myself a person who respects all people, I don't want to limit myself to a feminist."
–Allister MacDonald
freshman, theater
Wayland

"I think that the first part is understanding and promoting the concept that men and women are equal. Another part of it is education. If you consider yourself a feminist, you are committed to continuous self education. Yes I am a feminist."
–Lisa Laromee
senior, psychology
Provincetown

"It is not just equality, it's realizing that there are a lot of women's issues that are overlooked. Being in a patriarchal society and culture, with most of the people being men, it is a little misrepresented — power is suppressed and never given the chance to blossom."
–Jesse Corre Phillips
junior, psychology
New Paltz, N.Y.

"The notion that every woman is an individual. I support it, but it is the extreme. I think extremes are bad. I wouldn't go to that extreme and consider myself a feminist. I see myself as a human being."
–Marlenz Badia
freshman, undecided
Puerto Rico

■ Pakistan

continued from page 2

— although not Karachi — as part of an Asian tour. The White House said her trip would not be affected.

The Pakisani driver went to the diplomatic enclave Wednesday morning and picked up Jackie Van Landingham, a secretary from South Carolina; communications technician Gary C. Durell from Ohio; and Mark McCloy, a Massachusetts native who worked in the consulate's post office.

They set off on their daily journey toward the U.S. consulate in downtown Karachi.

Though the Americans didn't know it, their van, with U.S. diplomatic license plates, was being followed by a taxi stolen only an hour or two earlier by a pair of gunmen armed with AK-47 assault rifles.

As they waited for a stop light to change on the busy Shahar-e-Faisal Road, the gunmen jumped out and opened fire, first from the front, then moving to the back, police and witnesses said. At least 16 rounds were fired, police said. The driver, Nasim ul-Haq, was not hit and rushed the trio to the nearby Agha Khan Hospital.

Van Landingham, 33, of Camden, S.C., and Durell, 45, of Alliance, Ohio, were killed. U.S. officials said McCloy, 31, of Framingham, Mass., was in stable condition.

■ SGA

continued from page 3

During debate of the motion, senator Jaime Resnick asked the senate to think about the future.

"We need to make sacrifices now," he said, "to be strong and competitive tomorrow. The contract will make the federal government and every American family balance their budget."

Students need to help to decrease the $4 5 trillion national deficit, Resnick said.

The fight taken on by SGA is a lead for other organizations and communities to follow, according to Lenchner.

"The issue of principle reflects the will of the campus," he said. "It is good to see the senate act as an advocate and representative because a lot of times the senate doesn't do what it should."

The senate also voted for a review and postponement of revisions concerning the language suites of Residential Academic Programs until further information and student input are gathered.

According to the motion, the Housing Assignments Office was planning to move the language programs to Thatcher dormitory, eventually making it an international house, without consultation of students in the program or in Thatcher.

■ Congress

continued from page 1

vides 75 percent of student financial aid. The majority of SAFA members that attended the trip depend on financial aid.

Preparing for the Capitol

Before leaving for the Capitol, the group arranged to meet with members of Congress and Senate to discuss financial aid issues and determine how members will vote on future formal votes.

The information collected will then be passed onto other student groups throughout the country, national lobbying groups that are working to save the program and other university financial aid offices. The collective research will be used to continue lobbying efforts.

For most of the group, this was their first time lobbying and visiting the nation's capital. Upon their arrival back to campus, after an exhausting nine–hour bus ride, most said that they were glad that they joined SAFA and experienced Capitol Hill.

Let's get one thing straight... The Collegian isn't.
Write for GLB Issues
Contact Wendy Darling 113 Campus Center 545-1749

Women have issues: we need you to help us address them! Come down and write for the Women's Issues section of the Collegian. Contact Lisa or Colleen at 545-1361 or come down to our office in the Campus Center basement.

2 BURGS 2 BUCKS
Great Burgs! Great Deals!
100% BEEF
PLEASANT STREET IN THE HEART OF THE VALLEY 1994
585-0241 ROUTE 9 HADLEY MA
PETE'S DRIVE-IN

The News Department needs writers.
Any students interested in writing for the news section should contact Jessica Taverna at 545-0719 or come down to the Collegian office in the Campus Center Basement.

THE SPOKE
THE SPOKE AMHERST, MASS
ADVOCATE BEST OF THE VALLEY READERS POLL 1994
A DRINKERY
TO MEET, RELAX AND ENJOY
Beer of the Month
16 OZ BUD POUNDERS
$2.00
Drink of the Week
RUM & COKE
$1.75
35 E. PLEASANT STREET

NEW IN AMHERST
CHINA DYNASTY
RESTAURANT AND LOUNGE
Traditional Chinese Cuisine
Lunch and Dinner Buffet
Relax and enjoy yourself at our beautiful newly remodeled facility including our Sunny Greenhouse.
PLENTY OF FREE PARKING
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK • 11:30 AM - 10 PM
FRIDAYS & SATURDAY TILL 11 PM
351 Northampton Rd. • Rte. 9 • Amherst
Corner of Rte. 9 & University Drive • 256-8800

240 Reasons to Return to Long Island this summer
SUMMER SESSION
University at Stony Brook
• 240 courses in 40 subjects
• Day and evening classes
• Low NYS tuition
• Register by mail, fax, phone or in person
• Live on campus or commute
• Two terms: May 22-July 7; July 10-Aug. 18
For free bulletin, call 24 hours (516) 632-7070
Please send me the 1995 Summer Session Bulletin:
Name
Street/Box No
City State Zip
Telephone Area of interest
School currently attending Anticipated year of graduation
Summer Session Office
University at Stony Brook
Stony Brook, NY 11794-3730
STONY BROOK STATE UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK
An AA/EO educator and employer

Anthony's
Adult Entertainment With A Touch Of Class
This week, March 9-10-11
The Ray Sisters
Showtimes 6-8-10-12
TUESDAYS College Nite $2 Off Cover Ages 18-20
Next week, March 16-17-18
Ginger Lynn
America's #1 Adult Film Star
18 and over welcome with proper I.D.
Mon Wed 4pm - 2am • Thurs-Sat Noon - 2am
Closed Sundays
500 NEW LUDLOW RD • S. HADLEY, MA 413-536-0502

RUSSELL'S LIQUORS
Discount Discount
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441
Featuring, "BUSCH" cans $9.99 case
Genny Cream or "ICE" $9.99 30 pk. cans
RED DOG $12.99 case botts.
"ROLLING ROCK" $12.99 cse. botts.
"The 6/PK. Bonanza"
Catamount - Amber, Gald, Porter, & Bock
Sam Adams - all flavors including "Double Bock"
Saranac - Black & Tan, Amber, & Pale Ale
Black Dog - Ale, Pale Ale
Braaklyn - Lager, Brawn Ale
Mix/Match "two" 6/Pks . . . $9.95
Bacardi Rum $7.49 750 ml
Southern Comfort $14.99 1.75 liter
All Beers Plus Deposit OPEN 9:00AM - 11:00PM VISA/MASTERCARD •Delivery Available•

■ Awards

continued from page 14

the coach hasn't screwed it up. Give 'em credit.

• Assist Man of the Year: Jacque Vaughn, Kansas. You can't stop him, you can only hope to contain him. Vaughn never shoots — he is a true point guard. Besides, why shoot when you can just blow by your defender, anyway? He is truly the best of the best and deserves any recognition he gets.

• Rebounder of the Year — Below the Rim: Gary Trent, Ohio U. That Shaq of the MAAC nickname is getting on my nerves rather quickly, but Trent can rebound the hell out of the ball. His wide frame is extremely intimidating in the paint and not many people can stop him.

• Rebounder of the Year — Above the Rim: Lou Roe, Massachusetts. Probably the most intense rebounder in the country, when Roe is on, not many players will take a board away from him. His work on the glass would have alone gotten him a shot in the NBA; lucky for him, all facets of his game are coming around and he's looking toward the lottery.

• Freshman of the Year: Allen Iverson, Georgetown. Despite all of the off-court problems he had in high school, Iverson has shown why many were itching to give him a second chance. He's made the Hoyas into a solid NCAA tournament team, and if other key players were not injured, a contender. Next year may be his last in HoyaLand.

• Sophomore of the Year: Joe Smith, Maryland. Look what he has done for the program in College Park. He's unstoppable inside and out. There are many others, but Smith stands above the rest.

• Junior of the Year: Kerry Kittles, Villanova. Mr. Everything would have been All-World if he had attended North Carolina, but he didn't. Instead, Kittles went to 'Nova and has blossomed into the Big East's best player and will even be better at the next level.

• Senior of the Year: Lou Roe, Massachusetts. Criticize all you want. What about Ed O'Bannon? Michigan State's Shawn Respert is among the nation's leaders in scoring — why not him? It's a tough call, but Roe has had an impact in every game he's played in this season, even against La Salle. Who packed the place?

Take O'Bannon off of UCLA and you still have talent. Pluck Roe from the Minuteman line-up and Massachusetts loses its heart and soul. Hey, there is no one promoting Roe nationally. He does his work on the court. I've watched the guy for four years — this season he has done more than could have ever been expected.

Arthur Stapleton Jr. is a Collegian columnist.

■ Temple

continued from page 14

easier for us," Massachusetts center Marcus Camby said.

A victory against Temple can only help their cause in a bid for one of the top seeds. To do that, the Minutemen must battle the hated zone defense from the first-ranked scoring defense in the nation, i.e. — the perimeter game is key.

"Outside of Petey (Princeton coach Pete Carrill), we've been either No. 1 or No. 2 in defense since I've been at Temple," Chaney said. "And with Petey, we're in pretty good company."

Massachusetts must also stop Temple's outside game, since freshman Johnny Miller scorched Massachusetts for 25 points, including seven three-pointers, in the game at McGonigle.

Even though Temple has made trips in the last two years and has gone home empty-handed, Owl coach John Chaney does not concern himself with the results in past years.

"I'm not going to worry about what's happened between the two team in the past," Chaney said. "We'll just go up there and give it 110 percent."

Calipari hopes his Minutemen can stay on a roll.

"I'm happy with the way we're playing right now, I'm happy with this energy of the team, the chemistry of the team. Hopefully, we can keep it rolling," Calipari said.

COLLEGIAN FILE

Inus Norville has been hindered by a hip injury of late

UCLA hoping for tournament success

By Beth Harris
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — If the regular season is just a dress rehearsal for the NCAA tournament, then top-ranked UCLA is looking unflappable for the biggest show in college basketball.

The Bruins (23-2, 14-2 Pac-10) sampled the kind of pressure, excitement and noise that surround tournament games when they played at Louisville last Sunday.

Coach Jim Harrick compared the atmosphere in Freedom Hall — jammed with a record crowd of 19,872 — to a second or third-round tournament game.

The Cardinals got within four points of the Bruins late in the game before UCLA pulled away for a 91-73 victory, its 11th straight triumph.

"When they made their run at the end of the game, I thought about calling time out, (but) I said, 'I want to watch my team under pressure,'" Harrick said.

He knew the players wouldn't be able to hear him over the noise, anyway.

"We came right back down and ran a play, got the ball to Ed O'Bannon and he got fouled," Harrick said. "The next three out of four possessions our defense got them to turn it over. Our players really dug down and I was glad to see that I didn't have to call time out and settle them down.

"I wanted them to make the adjustments and not the coach. They've got to do it themselves. That's the way it's going to be down the stretch."

The win was UCLA's fifth in an 11-day span. The Bruins will face similar circumstances in the tournament, with games scheduled close together and travel in between.

"We've been on a one-month period where the games have been very intense and crowded," Harrick said. "To think that we got out of this one month without getting beat is probably even a surprise to me."

UCLA, which has already clinched a tie for the Pac-10 championship, completes the regular season by hosting Oregon State (8-17, 5-11) on Thursday night and No. 25 Oregon (18-7, 10-6) on Saturday. The Ducks are one of two teams to beat the Bruins this season.

UCLA needs one win to clinch the conference title outright. If the Bruins lose twice, No. 12 Arizona (23-6, 13-4) still could tie for the title by beating No. 18 Arizona State on Saturday. UCLA has already been designated the league champion as far as the NCAA tournament is concerned because it swept the Wildcats. The NCAA tournament pairings will be announced Sunday.

The Bruins are in their second week at No. 1 — the same amount of time they spent in the top spot last season before getting knocked down with a loss to California.

Upstarts

COLLEGIAN FILE

Chris Fawcett and the Massachusetts hockey team hopes to repeat history by upsetting Maine again this weekend.

$600 A WEEK POTENTIAL SUMMER EMPLOYMENT

Summer is the busy season in the moving industry and we need your help to handle the load. NorthAmerican Van Lines is now accepting applications from college students and staff for its Summer Fleet Driver Program.

TRAINING — Free
MOTEL/MEALS WHILE IN TRAINING — Free
POTENTIAL EARNINGS (AVERAGE) — $600 A WEEK

We will teach you how to safely operate a semi-tractor trailer and how to load/unload household goods cargo. We pay for your motel and meals while in training. Once you receive your Commercial Driver's License, you have the potential of earning an approximate average of $600 a week.

To qualify, you must be at least 21 years old, meet North American Van Lines qualifications, and be available for training the end of April or early May. We promise you an adventure you'll never forget!

Call 1-800-348-2147. Dept. U-21.

northAmerican.

University of Massachusetts Student Union Art Gallery welcomes "American Collection"

March 9 to April 14, slide, lecture & film presentations highlighting the artist Giovanni. Room 164-171 4-5 pm

Opening reception Thursday March 9 5-7 pm

VERY SPECIAL ARTS

Come Clean With Us!!
Speedwash
11 Pray St. Amherst • 549-1665
Open 24 Hours
Drop-off service available:
Mon. & Tues. 2pm - 10pm
Wed., Thurs. & Fri. 2pm - 10pm
Sat. 10am - 6pm
South Towne Commons Laundromat
479 West St. South Amherst
Open 7 days/week, 7am - 10pm

Race St. Pub
Open Sundays!
5 pm - 1:30 am
Wet 'n' Wild Shower an Hour
The only one in Western Mass.
2618 Main Street, Holyoke
On Rt. 116 East — 532-8422
Monday - Wednesday 4 pm-1:30 am
Thursday - Saturday 12 pm-2:00 am

Classifieds

• 20¢ per word per day for students
• All ads must be paid cash/2 days in advance
• Ads may placed at 113 Campus Center Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Spring Break 95. Trips to Jamaica, Ft'lauda and Cancun. Call ASAP Trivia 549-2648

AUTO FOR SALE

1982 Mazda RX-7 SHC. 5 spd, brk, sunroof, metallic light blue, must see/drive e nice ride! $1500. Call 253-3149

ENTERTAINMENT

Artist needed! See your work everywhere UMass Theater Guild needs volunteer to design logos and poster. Call Kent 549-6555

Auditions: Theatre Guild auditions for Brigham Beach Memoirs March 18 6pm, March 11 11am, CC 804. Call 545-0415

FOR RENT

Cape Cod group summer rentals-waterfront houses Falmouth area 508 477-9000

Cape Cod seasonal rentals 1-5 bedroom houses in all towns. Rental rates Honey Spring 508-394-2852 or 398-8367

Daytona Beach condo for rent Beach view, please four for $800. Spring Break March 18-25. 549-0728

Two and three bedrooms available for June 1st Call Mill Valley Estates 253-7377

FOR SALE

52 K2 Extremes Tyr 490 bindings w/bag Used 3X, perf cond. 500/bo Rich 665-7998

Alpine 7517 94 model, full logic, detachface, dolby. $175. Alpine 6046ED component split set: 4" mids, 1" dome tweeters. $100. Magnavox 4 head VCR. HQ, unified remote. $140. Call 253-3149

Kaypro-star 500/bo. Rich 665-7998

Macintosh computer Complete system including printer only $599. Call Chris at 800 288 5885

Manual treadmill Includes time, speed, distance, calories, midcaps folds for easy storage $100 or bo 546 2824

Motorola pagers for sale! 548-3241 Ask for Andrew.

286-386 computer system CPU monitor keyboard. $275. Slave 549-5181

Save $$$. U.S. Air anywhere by March 28 $173 value for $110. For male 549-4015

Sofa ,chair, and recliner-good condition. All for $75. Call 665-4606

Tom Petty tix Albany March 21 14th row center. Good prices great seats. Call now 584-8282

Two collectible beer lights Great for parties! Call Mark 546-1900

Two tickets for tonights UMass game against Temple. 253-2857 Dave

FOUND

Key found outside Sylvan et bus stop Sunday morn. Single key on Ralph Lauren key chain. Call Bill at 6-0704

Necklace by the Student Union steps. Describe it and it's yours. Call Will 549-7744

HELP WANTED

AA cruise ships hiring! Earn big $$$ and free world travel (Caribbean, Europe, Hawaii, etc.) Summer/permanent, no exper. nec. Guide (919) 929-4398

Alaska summer employment! Earn thousands this summer in canneries, processors, etc. Male/female. Room/board/travel often provided! Guide (guaranteed success)! (919) 929-4398 ext A1062

Attention exercise science majors: Are you thinking of a career in physical therapy? Get your experience with us. We are looking for a self-motivated individual to work as a physical therapy clinical aide in a busy pr practice. Primarily all orthopedic and neuromuscular caseload. Flexible schedule. Send a letter of interest with your experience and background or a resume to: Pt Director, Challenge Physical Therapy, 175 No. Main St., Belchertown, MA 01007

Child sitter for 7 yr old in Hadley Tues/Thurs 3:30-5:30 Car required Call 586-0532

Defend our environment! Part time jobs with the Sierra Club and other groups. Help make sure Congress doesn't wipe out Clean Water Act and others. $40-$80 per day. Flexible schedule. Call Tom at campaign to save the environment at 256-8424

Part time marketing/sales. Excellent opportunity to gain business experience with a new company engaged in providing assistance to job seekers. Excellent commissions, good training. Will be a great addition to your resume. Local, no car necessary. Call (401) 295-5490 after 2 p.m.

Part time person needed M-F 8-9am for office cleaning et $6/hr. Daily duties to include emptying trash inside and to the dumpster, windexing, vacuuming, bathroom cleaning, dusting and general upkeep. We may have other odd jobs in the future for the right person. Apply in person to American Computer Innovators 231 Triangle St., Amherst(opposite end of building from Shawmut Bank) b/w 9-5 M-F

LEARN CPR

Learn skills including management for choking and CPR for children adults and infants March 28-30th Call Keith @ 546-3121

PERSONALS

Insomniac party line. Customer service reps are available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week for your questions and emergencies Call 1-800-Citibank to apply

Jen from Danbury, I tell Timeout Saturday without knowing your phone number or last name, so this is the only way I could think of to contact you. I will be at Timeout again on Friday and I hope you're there. The Honesty Guy that made you blush

Meg. Happy 21st! You're finally legal! Hope you have a great day! Love, Laur

Meredith, Calvin has been abducted. Please help him! I might not be able to move but I can see. Little bear

My ex's a roommate. You smell! (Like a pair of smelly green sweatpants)

Someone to watch over you. We look out for students better than any other credit card. Call 1-800 Citibank to apply. Note: we won't hit on your dates

Thank you St. Jude. Please help Julie

The sisters of Sigma Delta Tau would like to welcome our new members Megan, Amy, Danielle, Suzanne, Sheri, Leigh, Colleen, Leslie, Eileen, Lori, Kelly, Julie, Christine, Teri, Samantha, Kim B., Kim T., Jen and Lea

To my big sister Rebecca. Who says your not creative! Thanks for everything! Love, your little sister, Lea

RIDE WANTED

Need rides to Boston or anywhere from Boston to Beverly on weekends. Gas $ 253-2809

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wanted 258.00/month Behind Bayberry on bus route. Call Kristen 549-3992

SCUBA DIVING

Dive Key Largo, Florida Spring Break Earn 2 credits. Call Project Deep 1-800-262-0977

Earn 2 credits learning to dive Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, or Thursday 7-10pm. 1-800-262-0977 Project Deep

SERVICES

International students-visitors DVT greencard program, by U.S. Immigration Legal Services, tel(818) 882-9881, (818) 998-4425, 2031 Stagg St., Canoga Park, CA 91306. Monday-Sunday 10am-10pm

Madam source! Call the Playground (665-256-6885, 19.2 K bps 130 mega online + CD ROM. Registered online games include Lord, BRE, Usurper, Global Wars & Planets!

Photographer I shoot anything. 546-1618 call now

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright for free testing and caring confidential support. 549-1906

TRACY FRIEDENBERG

Happy 21st Birthday! Have an awesome day! I love you and I am glad that your age caught up to the one on your ID! Love, Tracy

TRAVEL

Spring Break! Bahamas cruise 8 days $279! Includes 12 meals! Cancun + Jamaica from $429! Panama City $129! Daytona, Key West + Cocoa Beach $198! 1-800-678-6386

TYPING

Data entry and word processing. Reliable and fast. Call Andy 585-0876

WANTED

Video games! all systems. Buy/sell/trade Call Joe 6-2346

Wanted to rent one or two bedroom apt., in house near town. Will assume lease $100 reward 253-3809

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN

Classifed Advertising Submission

Classifieds can be delivered in person, or through Campus Mail to room 113 Campus Center (in the basement) at least 2 days before the ad is to run. Payment must be received with the submission.

Standard headings for classifieds are: Activities, Announcements, Auto For Sale, Entertainment, For Rent, For Sale, Found, Help Wanted, Instruction, Lost, Motorcycles, Musicians, Personels, Ride Wanted, Riders Wanted, Room Wanted, Roommate Wanted, Services, Summer Sublet, To Sublet, Travel, Typing/ Word Proc., Wanted to Rent, Wanted.

REGARDING PERSONALS

1. All personals MUST be processed by Collegian Classified employees before payment & acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names may not be used in personals. The only exceptions are for birthday & congratulations personals.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals.
4. Addresses, or dorm room numbers are not allowed in personals.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory, vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harrassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

RATES
$2.00 minimum/day
Students:
20¢ per word/day
All Others:
40¢ per word/day
Special Heading:
$2.50 Extra
NO REFUNDS

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: _____ Date: _____ Taken By: _____

Date(s) to run: _____ Headline: _____

Total Days: _____ X Words: = _____ X rate _____ = Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): _____ Authorized signature: _____

ADVERTISING COPY

1		1
2		2
3		3
4		4
5		5
6		6
7		7
8		8
9		9
10		10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

A BOX OF NEW CRAYONS! NOW THEY'RE ALL POINTY, LINED UP IN ORDER, BRIGHT AND PERFECT!
SOON THEY'LL BE A BUNCH OF GROUND DOWN, ROUNDED INDISTINGUISHABLE STUMPS, MISSING THEIR WRAPPERS AND SMUDGED WITH OTHER COLORS.
SOMETIMES LIFE SEEMS UNBEARABLY TRAGIC

Dilbert By Scott Addams

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

I DON'T WANT TO MISS A SECOND OF PETER'S ACT THIS TIME!
IF ONLY THEY'D STOP SHINING THOSE SPOTLIGHTS IN THIS DIRECTION!
I'LL MAKE SURE THIS IS HIS LAST PERFORMANCE!

Jim's Journal By Jim

Today I decided to visit Tony at the shoe store where he works.
It's in a mall, and nobody was in the store when I came.
That's the best thing about working here," Tony said, "no customers."
He also said, "I gotta get outta here, man. This place is killin' me."

Bruno By C. Baldwin

DEAN By edwin

Random Acts By Jeffrey Durand

SNAPPY and DJ head for another basketball game...
ON: COME ON YOU BUM. MOVE AROUND! LET'S GET SOMETHING DONE!
WHO? WHO ARE YOU YELLING AT SNAPPY?
LET'S GO DORK! UM! DON'T YOU DO WHAT YOU'RE HERE TO DO!
SNAPPY... WE'RE UP BY SO POINTS WHAT ELSE DO YOU WANT.
I'M NOT YELLING AT OUR PLAYERS. THE ICE CREAM GUY IS DOING SO SLOW AND I AM STARVING.

★ Night of the STARS ★
Monday Night Pep Rally

March 13, 1995
8:00 P.M.
at the Cage

It's the Return of:
RAGE IN THE CAGE!!!

Salute JOHN CALIPARI and the MINUTEMEN as they GO on their way to THE NCAA TOURNAMENT

★ FREE POPCORN ★ 50/50 RAFFLE ★ WIN PRIZES
Sponsored by the UMASS STARS STudent Alumni Relations Society

Garfield By Jim Davis

HOW WAS YOUR MEAL, GARFIELD?
FINE, THANKS
AND HOW ABOUT YOU, POOKY? ARE YOU STUFFED?
I'M NOT EVEN GOING TO DIGNIFY THAT WITH A GRIN
GARFIELD

Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom

There's been a large walrus in my bedroom for years. He's very very quiet and hardly moves. He just sits there.

I know where he sits all night long.

If I want to grab something in the middle of the night I've taught myself how to reach around him even if I can't see.

I have to use a coded language to explain him to my girlfriends.

The girls are shy and confused about why he's there with us in the room and how he got there in the first place.

I don't know his name because I don't know much about him. When he leaves, my life will fit better .....the world will look differently, and I'll finally know his name.

With my bad luck his name will probably be something like Butch and Sheila Gordon.

Close to Home By John McPherson

In an incredible stroke of luck, Brian discovers that the Final Jeopardy question is the same as the 20-point bonus question on his take-home midterm.

Today's Staff

Night Editor.....Arthur C. Stapleton, Jr.
Copy Editor.....Jacob W. Michaels
Photo Technician.....Paul Bilodeau
Production Supervisor.....Sandy Bogage
Production.....Kevin Farrar
Dmitry Abramson, Olmy Rosenstock

Dining Commons Menu

LUNCH
Top your own PIZZA
Pepperoni, Ham, etc.
BASICS LUNCH
Top your own PIZZA
Eggplant, Tuna, etc.

DINNER
Roast Beef
Spiced Shrimp
BASICS DINNER
Beans and Rice
Spiced Shrimp

Daily Crossword

Edited by Trudy Michel Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Award-winning director Preminger
6 Overate heavily
10 Name in a palindrome
14 Arcadian
15 Bruins' dominus
16 — commodore
17 Person, now
18 Disorderly throng
19 "— me this night before..."
20 Low-priority class
22 Bloopers
23 One Geri
24 Impossibilities
26 Parliament —
28 Illegal pitch
30 June bug
34 Owned, long ago
36 "Chasin' Gamblers" singer
37 Lima, Spanish style
39 Buddy who played Barnaby Jones
41 Ornery
42 Bryan's — for my soul"
44 "— to my soul as still..." Eliot
46 Eight, homophonic
47 Contestant
48 Japanese tea gp.
51 Rival Angeles
52 New Zealand apple
53 Mine, in Marseilles
58 Undecided
60 Coop dwellers
63 — aux noix
64 Consumers
65 Away from the wind
66 Duds, in Berlin
67 Fathered
68 Hopelessly pompous
69 "Conscience is — to all mortals"
70 Appears to be

DOWN
1 Plaque sight
2 Head light?
3 Part of GP
4 Certain commissioned officer
5 Furnished proof of residence
6 Vidal subject
7 Sacred artery
8 Down in the dumps
9 Despotic ruler
10 Background for north of Bull Run
11 The easy way to paddle
12 One of Hood's boys with 28 Down
13 Tamarium growth
21 Not yet payable
25 Pirate
26 See 12 Down
27 Villon's sweetheart
29 Down payment
31 Comedian Jay
32 Swiss wearer of old
33 Drab sing.
35 Lapped again
40 City, SE of Nantes
43 Spleen
45 Perigee's former title
48 Seasick symptom
50 Wonder of song
53 Peasant captain
54 Dramatic reader
56 — — young
57 Dinosaur's end
58 Indigence
59 Rhine feeder
60 Ditto, in Cale
61 Lake, Wales, opens, among others

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

B	I	N	A	D		E	A	S	E		A	S	C	A
A	N	I	T	A		S	C	A	R		R	A	R	E
M	I	S	S	E		A	R	M	E		M	I	N	E
S	A	N	A	N	T	O	N	I	O		A	G	I	A
			M	I	T	E		E	Z	E	K		U	S
R	O	M	E		O	R	E		A	R	E	A		A
E	G	A	S		F	L	O	O	D		S	C	A	T
A	L	I	A	S		E	L	I	S	E		A	L	E
P	E	R	O	N	A		A	M	I		S	E	W	N
			T	A	N	K		E	D	W	A	R	D
S	T	A	N	D		E	S	W	I	N	G	E	R	S
A	R	I	S	E		D	R	A	L	E		K	I	N
P	O	I	N	T		R	O	T	E			S	I	D

Your Horoscope

By Joans Dixon

ARIES (March 21–April 19): Talks and trips put you in the right place at the right time. Important news will lift your spirits and get you going on an important project. Be careful to protect new allies and sources.

TAURUS (April 20—May 20): Clever ideas make this a stimulating day. A newcomer expresses an objective opinion. Join forces with those who share your long-term goals. Avoid becoming entangled in a dispute between warring family members.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20): Do nothing to destroy a young person's faith in you. A sudden attraction to an old friend deserves careful thought. Curb an urge to act impulsively. Stop signals can halt forward moves.

CANCER (June 21–July 22): Stay on track! Tackle key tasks, but avoid driving yourself to exhaustion. Balancing work with play helps you maintain a healthy outlook on life. Listening to classical music could turn your thoughts to romance.

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22): Too much analysis of your motives could depress your spirits. Cycling or aerobics will leave you feeling energized. Opt for a healing massage if your nerves feel jangled.

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22): Your good-humored attitude proves contagious both at work and at home. You are making a special place for yourself in someone's heart. Inner strength comes from compassion end universal wisdom.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22): A candid conversation could clear up a misunderstanding or alleviate someone's jealousy. Recent career successes give you a special magnetism at social events.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21): Clever ideas make this a stimulating day. A newcomer expresses an objective opinion. Join forces with those who share your long-term goals. Avoid becoming entangled in a dispute between warring family members.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21): Haste makes waste. Do your homework diligently before presenting an important report; influential people will be impressed. Becoming more active on the social circuit could prove highly beneficial.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19): Put yourself in another person's shoes. Empathy is more effective than barbed criticism. Take a crash course in the art of negotiation. A new pairing may have people talking.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18): Research and study will give you new options. Listen to that strong inner voice! Investigate an opportunity presented by a former partner or employer.

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20): Adopting a positive attitude helps you quickly resolve a confusing situation. Initiate financial talks; successful people want to share their talents and advise.

Quote of the Day

"Win if you can, lose if you must, but always cheat.

–Jesse "The Body" Ventura

Sports

Massachusetts and Temple primed for showdown

By Andrew Bryce
Collegian Staff

As Rutgers took the Temple Owls to the wire on Monday night in the Atlantic 10 semifinals at the Palestra, the chance almost became a fact. The chance of Massachusetts hosting Rutgers at the William D. Mullins Center for the Atlantic 10 Championship on Thursday night almost became reality.

What's odd is the chance that Massachusetts would not be hosting Temple for the Atlantic 10 Championship was quite possible, until Scarlet Knight guard Damon Santiago slipped on a wet spot and had to dish off with under ten seconds.

Rutgers' last chance failed, and so did their hopes of a second straight tournament upset as the Owls won, 47–42. With the victory, Temple will come to Amherst for the third consecutive season to play for the A-10 final tonight at 9:30 p.m. The game will be televised live on ESPN.

It will be just another chapter in the storied rivalry, and has the ingredients for an exciting match-up. Both teams each won their games at their respective home court, as the Minutemen edged the Owls, 56–55, at the Mullins Center on Jan. 21, and Temple was victorious 72–63 on Feb. 23 at McGonigle Hall.

For Temple, tonight's contest will mark its eighth appearance in the A–10 final game (tying with West Virginia for most A–10 championship game appearances). For Massachusetts, it has won three A–10 title games in a row, and has been victorious in 11 consecutive tournament games. In fact, seniors Lou Roe and Derek Kellogg have never lost a conference tournament contest.

The Minutemen are looking to become the first team since North Carolina State (1947–51) to win both the conference's regular–season and tournament titles four consecutive years.

And both teams look to tonight's contest as an important springboard for the postseason. Massachusetts has a definite NCAA Tournament berth in their possession regardless of tonight's outcome. Temple is a likely lock for the tournament, as well. While the Owls want to get reassurance that they are already bound for the tournament, the Minutemen are looking for one of the top seeds.

Calipari thinks his team "should be a one ... or two" seed.

"We're 25–4. We had the toughest out–of–conference schedule in the country. We lost two games because there was a kid here that everybody said, 'well just cause' he's not there won't make much of a difference.' We lost two games out of the four that we've played. Our team deserves to be ranked high, and get that kind of seed," Calipari said.

"I think everybody has it inside that if we come out and play hard, we will get a high seed in the NCAA Tournament. We're thinking if we get a high seed, the road to (the NCAA Final Four) Seattle will be a little bit

Turn to TEMPLE, page 12

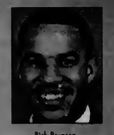
COLLEGIAN FILE
Senior Lou Roe hopes to make history as the Minutemen look to capture their fourth straight Atlantic 10 title against Temple.

Game Preview

UMass Minutemen vs. Temple Owls

At The Mullins Center
Amherst, MA
9:30 p.m.

Derek Kellogg

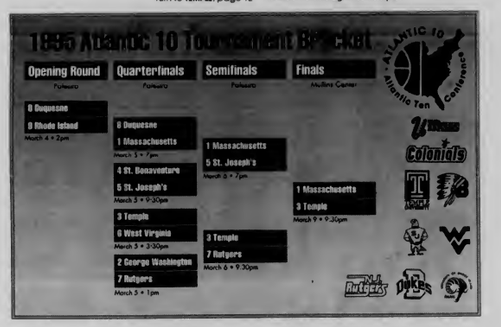


Rick Brunson

Probable Starters

Derek Kellogg	G	Rick Brunson
Edgar Padilla	G	Johnny Miller
Marcus Camby	C	William Cunningham
Lou Roe	F	Levan Alston
Dana Dingle	F	Derrick Battie

On the Air
TV: ESPN
Radio: WMUA 91.1 FM Mike Reiss and Jeff Crofts
WHMP 99.3 George Miller and Jack Leaman



Awards plentiful as season winds down to the Big Dance

The Madness is upon us. Since the magical grid won't appear in these pages until Wednesday, it's time once again to give out awards. So get ready and congratulate the winners...

• Most likely to be upset in the NCAA tournament: Maryland. The Terrapins have two things when they make great — head coach Gary Williams and all–world star Joe Smith. In the last game of the season, the Terps got bombed by 30 against Virginia. No surprise, though, because they were without Williams and Smith had already carried the team on his shoulders to a win over Duke.

Now, Maryland is in T–R–O–U–B–L–E. Williams has pneumonia and is out for the entire ACC tournament, maybe longer. A loss before the ACC Finals is imminent and the end of the season for Maryland may come soon after, unless other players decide to pick it up.

• Most likely to make a run in the NCAA tournament: Alabama. Who needs Wimp Sanderson, anyway? Remember the name Roy Rogers starting next week, and I ain't talking about fast food. The Tide is battle–tested after the SEC regular season and tourney, will most likely get a No. 6 seed in the Big Dance and make it to the Regionals.

Alabama is the type of team that can shock people — a lot of athletes, a lot of talent and they will be underestimated.

• Most underappreciated player in the nation: Derek Kellogg, Massachusetts. He's slow, he doesn't have the smoothest of shots, but what Kellogg does have is basketball smarts. The Minuteman point guard fills the role of captain probably better than anyone in America, and he loves it. Maybe the Springfield reporter who said Calipari should be fired for wasting state funds when he gave Kellogg a scholarship should stick to late–night talk shows.

It's amazing how a player who has had so much success can be hated so much by some of his team's biggest fans. Coaches rave about his steady play, yet fans don't want to hear it. His teammates do, too, and fans still won't listen.

The minute Kellogg leaves Amherst, the fickle fans will finally agree.

• Worst cheer of the year: It's a tie. First of all, that new doozy the UMass cheerleaders have been using, which goes something like this: "Go, go Mass. Heeeeyyyy. Go Mass." Please, give it up. The other one is the "Overrated" chant. What is this, you ask? An average team beats up on a Top 10 club, and the fans start calling the good team overrated.

Smart. Why don't they chant, "You suck, but we suck worse. We just got lucky!"

• College Basketball Game of the Year: The site: the Palestra in Philadelphia. The teams: St. Bonaventure and St. Joseph's? Yep. The Bonnies and the Hawks played a masterpiece last Sunday night in the Atlantic 10 tourney, which was good enough to last into the wee hours of Monday morning.

O.K., so it wasn't good, fundamental basketball, but the emotion, the battle of the bands and the one–and–done attitude of both teams made the double–overtime game an epic confrontation.

• Coach of the Year — The Houdini Version (winning with magic): John Chaney, Temple. He does it every year, and when you lose an Eddie Jones and an Aaron McKie, one would expect a decline. Forgeddaboutit. The Owls are peaking at the right time and should make waves in the Big Dance, as usual.

• Coach of the Year — The "My Team Made It Easy" Version (He'd be shot if his team didn't win): Jim Harrick, UCLA. The Bruins are No. 1 heading into the NCAAs — that's not the shock. What's stunning is the fact that Harrick hasn't messed them up yet. With all the talent in the world in the past, UCLA has disappointed.

This season, the talent is still there, and, up until now,

Turn to AWARDS, page 12

Art Stapleton on College Basketball

COLLEGIAN FILE
Marcus Camby tied career highs in blocked shots with 8 swats in both games against Temple this season.

O'Brien named A-10's best coach

University of Massachusetts women's basketball coach Joanie O'Brien was honored as the 1994–95 Atlantic 10 Coach of the Year.

O'Brien has led the Minutewomen to a second place finish in the conference, with an 18–8 record (13–3 in the A–10) in her fourth season at Massachusetts.

The former Auburn assistant has been instrumental in turning around the Massachusetts program that had been perennially weak before her arrival. She was 29–53 in her first three seasons, but as the players she recruited have emerged, the team has started to emerge as well.

Three other Minutewomen were honored at the banquet as well.

Junior All–America candidate Melissa Gurile, who has been solid at center for the Minutewomen all season was named to the first all–conference team. Gurile, UMass' leading scorer this season, collected her 1,000th point this year as well. Gurile was a third team selection last year.

Octavia Thomas, who suffered through a mid–season slump, but has been impressive in recent games, was named to the second team. The junior was a first team selection a year ago. Crystal Carroll, who has shined in her sophomore season, was named to the third team.

The Minutewomen take on seventh seeded West Virginia this afternoon at 1 p.m. in the Atlantic 10 tournament quarterfinals at St. Joseph's.

— Matt Vautour

Atlantic 10 Women's Basketball All–Conference Teams

First Team	School
Debbie Hemery	George Washington
Melissa Gurile	Massachusetts
Darlene Sear	George Washington
Korie Hlede	Duquesne
Danya Smith	Rhode Island
Second Team
Rebecca Bright	Rhode Island
Tajama Abraham	George Washington
Octavia Thomas	Massachusetts
Liz Hanson	Rhode Island
Megan Compain	St. Joseph's
Third Team
Crystal Carroll	Massachusetts
Suzie Daller	St. Bonaventure
Amy Facer	St. Joseph's
Tasha King	Rhode Island
Janell Williams	Rutgers

Player of Year: Debbie Hemery, George Washington
Rookie of the Year: Korie Hlede, Duquesne
Coach of the Year: Joanie O'Brien, Massachusetts

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
Volume CIV Issue 92 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Friday, March 10, 1995

SHINICHIRO SUZUKI / COLLEGIAN
Coach John Calipari pledged his support yesterday in the student–led fight for increased state funding of public higher education.

Rally fights budget cuts; Calipari shows support

By Marnie Thamel
Collegian Staff

Students, faculty and state representatives rallied in the Cape Cod Lounge yesterday afternoon as men's basketball Coach John Calipari and Chancellor David K. Scott asked them to "Refuse to Lose" in the fight for tuition and fees.

The Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy rally kicked off a state–wide effort to lobby for increased funding and decreases in tuition and fees. Members of the administration suggested the initiative.

"This is just a start," Calipari said. "If you all get 10 or 20 people involved, it becomes a cause — right now it's only an idea."

Calipari offered his support and said he also had struggles to overcome.

"With a passion I will help in this cause. I'm here for you, I'll do whatever I can to help. I'll put myself in the line of fire," he said.

He said the majority of the students on campus are probably from middle class homes like himself.

"We were not all born with silver spoons and our mouths. Most of our lives we're against the odds," Calipari said.

He went on to say that like him, students probably have been told that they cannot accomplish anything in life or go anywhere.

"I think you're here because you did not accept that," Calipari said.

Students help rebuild University

Students are leading the fight, according to Student Government Association President Mirran Raphaely.

"It is wonderful to know that students have been and will continue to be at the forefront of this fight," Raphaely said. "We are going to 'Refuse to Lose.'"

The University compares with a bridge that is in danger of crumbling, according to Chancellor David K. Scott.

"We have a structure that is a bridge across a difficult circumstances because of the vortex in economics," Scott said. "It has led to a collapse of the bridge, but it is being rebuilt."

In order to keep the bridge from collapsing, the University needs a $10.4 million increase, Scott said. He told the Board of Trustees Tuesday that if the Legislature does not approve a 6.3 percent increase, students may see another $108 in tuition and mandatory fees.

Scott said he hoped the rally will promote great support from students, faculty and alumni.

"This rally will generate the same kind of enthusiasm [as the basketball team] across the country," Scott said, "and make a University of which the basketball team can be proud."

Calipari said he is proud to be an employee of the University.

"We have to stand up for each other. The University

Turn to RALLY, page 3

Rep says UMass needs to push for funding

By Jessica Taverna
Collegian Staff

Although Gov. William F. Weld's budget proposal for 1996 does not have enough support to get passed through the State House and Senate, the University of Massachusetts still needs to publicize its need for funding, according to State Rep. Nancy Flavin (D–Easthampton).

Flavin, an alum and former employee of the University, spoke at the UMass faculty senate meeting yesterday afternoon to alert the campus about the status of Weld's proposed budget and to give suggestions on the best ways to effectively press the state for funding.

> "You have to convey to people ... how much this University affects the state and the nation..."

"You have to convey to people who don't pay attention or understand how much this University affects the state and the nation, that [the cuts] are causing pain," Flavin said.

In order to organize efforts, emphasis should be put on accessing the media as a resource, pressuring alumni and raising money from the outside, Flavin said.

"Make a spotlight for UMass. Make it real for the people," she said.

According to Flavin, this entails exposing the positive aspects of the University to the community and show those who cannot appreciate educational services that UMass renders.

The House will definitely veto the budget proposal and it is safe to say that the Senate probably will as well, Flavin said.

There are 30 new representatives in the House, and Flavin said she is not sure which way they will vote. She said she is rather certain the University will cut even, but that any increase in funding probably will not break a one–digit figure.

In the next few years, funding from places other than the government will be a vital component to sustenance of public and private education, according to Flavin. It would be a good idea to get started on that now, she said.

Alumni could play a large part in this, particularly alumni working in the media, she said, noting that good media coverage is crucial.

"I feel that Flavin's comments were very positive," said Ron Story, vice chancellor for University advancement. "She's leaving it up to us."

It is necessary to properly expose the quality of research and academics at the University to eliminate the probability of faulty evaluations, Flavin said.

According to Flavin, Secretary Charles E. Baker is continuing his efforts to make sure the University is "cost– efficient," Flavin said. He is looking to study the University's productivity, gender salaries and consolidation of curriculum.

Students suffer in privatization, panelists say

By Henry J. Brier
Collegian Staff

Privatization of food services isn't in the best interests of students, a three–member panel sponsored by the Campus Center/Student Union Commission charged last night.

The University of Massachusetts administration is seriously considering privatizing food services at the Campus Center and eventually at the Student Union, according to Tom O'Connor of the American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees.

"[Privatization] has levels of corruption including including misuse ... and a misappropriation of funds," said O'Connor, director of communications and education for the union.

"Students' costs are guaranteed to increase. Food costs will go up, and students will lose control ... and the ability to influence."

The other panelists were Francis H. Martin, supervisor of The Hatch and Coffee Shop, and Daniel J. Frazier, chief steward at The Hatch.

"Privatization will extend into instructional area," said Francis H. Martin, supervisor of The Hatch and Coffee Shop.

"Departments will become more sophisticated. Computers will be in classrooms. Courses will be taught by computers. [Privatization] is a crisis in the making ... a trend that isn't going to stop when it starts."

In welcoming the panel, Matthew Auger, chair of the commission, said the student body is "apathetic" and thus unaware of how privatization will affect them.

According to Martin, students may face an increase in fees and tuition if private commercial enterprises are

Turn to PRIVATIZATION, page 2

Locals wary of UMass construction

By Christopher Hassett
Collegian Staff

Local residents met with University of Massachusetts officials Wednesday to discuss plans for development in a neighborhood adjacent to the campus.

The Fairview Way neighborhood, located just north of the Lederle Graduate Research Center, is to be the location of a new computer science building, a chemical engineering building and a new power plant within the next five years. The site is currently occupied by two parking lots and fields.

In past meetings, residents have expressed concerns over increased traffic, noise and light pollution, hazardous materials and adverse effects on the beauty of the area.

Residents' concerns

While admitting some people will be dissatisfied, the University has attempted to respond to these concerns.

Bill Rose, associate vice chancellor for facilities and campus services, presented further long–range developmental plans at Wednesday's meeting. These plans included building access to Route 116 to reduce the traffic by the neighborhood and, in the nearer future, building landscaped buffer zones between University developmental areas and the residential property lines.

Of particular interest to area residents was Rose's assurance that all construction traffic for the new cogeneration power plant would not pass by the neighborhood, but would come from the south up Commonwealth Avenue.

"I don't want to delude anyone," Rose said. "There will still be noise from construction, but we can reduce the truck noise be re–routing traffic."

Beverly Wood, associate vice chancellor for physical planning, told the audience the University is not expanding, but is making room for people who already exist.

"We're not growing," she said. "We're catching up from 15 years of no development."

According to Wood, any buildings vacated by the new ones would be used for offices, registered student organization space and other people already located on the University campus.

The new developments will also upgrade the research value of the University, Wood said.

"We don't have facilities for modern sciences," Wood said. "We are building new buildings to house modern science."

Solar energy experiment

Rose announced that the University will host a federally funded solar energy experiment to provide heat and hot water to the William D. Mullins Center and to Boyden gym.

The solar panels will be used to warm the clay underneath the panels. Water would be piped underneath the panels and be warmed by the clay, Rose said.

The array will be aligned opposite the neighborhood and be located quite a distance away, so there will be no glare on the neighborhood, Wood said.

One audience member asked if the panels could be put on the Mullins roof instead. According to Rose, there are far too many panels and the solar energy system works with the ground anyway, so they could not be put on the roof.

The next meeting is tentatively scheduled for April 24 at 4 p.m.

Hillel prepares for debate: latke versus hamantashen

Rumors of a protest by matzoh lovers have arisen as the University of Massachusetts Hillel prepares for its "very nearly annual" latke versus hamantashen debate.

The argument over the two traditional Jewish foodstuffs began in 1979, according to Rabbi Saul Perlmutter of Hillel.

Latkes are potato pancakes traditionally eaten during Chanukah with sour cream or apple sauce. Hamantashen are three–cornered cookies filled with fruit that are often eaten during Purim.

This year two panel members will argue that the latke is the superior food and two will counter that the hamantashen is superior.

On the side of the latke are professors Jay Neugeboren and Arnold Rosenberg, of the English and computer science departments respectively.

Neugeboren will speak on "Deconstructing the Latke: the Semiotica of the Semi–colon and the Colon." Rosenberg will consider "Latke vs. Hamantashen: An Archimedean Perspective."

Speaking for the hamantash will be Professor Richard Ellis of the math department and Pat Greenfield, director of the Labor Relations and Research Center.

Ellis will be speaking on the "Five Divine Manifestations of Hamantashen as Revealed in an 11th Century Kabbalistic Manuscript." Greenfield discuss "Hamantash and Worker Rights: A Labor Perspective."

— Jacob W. Michaels

Candidates argue over issues

By Jessica Taverna
Collegian Staff

Budgetary issues, student activism and education of multiculturalism were hot topics at last night's Student Government Association candidate panel.

Two students running for the presidency and two others running for the position of student trustee presented their platforms in the Cape Cod Lounge and responded to questions and concerns from the audience. Approximately 30 people attended.

The candidates for student trustee, Daniel Rivera and Michael Bateman, and Christine Lopes, a candidate for president, all emphasized the importance of experience and knowledge of the issues.

Presidential candidate Charles Mark Seber, who said he did not have extensive experience or knowledge of the issues, put emphasis on acting solely with students' immediate requests and concerns, and learning about the issues as he went along.

Presenting platforms

All of the candidates had similar platforms which emphasized education, proper representation of the student body, an increase in multiculturalism on campus and communication with both students and the administration.

The trustees both saw student involvement in eliminating budget cuts as a priority.

Rivera promoted student coalitions and organization. He said he would be willing to pull all 25,000 students on campus over to Whitmore Administration Building to yell until their issues get addressed.

"If we battle the right fight, we can all be winners in this," Rivera said.

Bateman said he would take a more institutionalized approach and work to create incentive programs for students to get involved. According to Bateman, he would do this by offering students credit for being politically active on campus, through involvement with residential area governments and similar activities.

Lopes said that student involvement was the key, and student apathy is "a myth." According to Lopes, if students were better informed, they would get more involved.

"Students want to be informed," Seber said. "But they want the groups to come to them."

Seber's answer to the problem of alleged student apathy is to go door–to–door and explain to everyone the importance of getting involved in the fight for the budget and educate them.

Lopes would continue to work with Student Center for Education, Research and Advocacy, which includes rallying students together

Turn to SGA, page 3

PAUL BLODEAU / COLLEGIAN

Four in a Roe
Louie Collins leads the Mullins Center fans in celebrating UMass' fourth straight Atlantic 10 Championship. See related story page 8.

Liner Notes on music news
Take a look at The Loud Music Festival and the death of ex–Replacements' guitarist Bob Stinson (See Arts & Living, page 5).

Festive night features distinctive culture
Performances and entertainment are expected to attract more than 500 to the Third Annual Korean Culture Night Saturday (See story, page 3).

UMass wins fourth straight A-10 title
Senior Lou Roe become the first player ever to be named to the A-10 Tournament Team all four years of his career (See Sports, page 8).

Weekend Forecast
The sun will be out through the weekend, with daytime temperatures warming from a cool 35 today into the 50s by Sunday. Overnight lows in the teens tonight.

Today	Saturday	Sunday
HIGH: 35 LOW: 15	HIGH: 40 LOW: 20	HIGH: 50 LOW: 25

Prof finds power, stereotyping linked

By Siobhan Cunningham
Collegian Correspondent

The more power people have, the more likely they are to stereotype, according to Susan Fiske, a University of Massachusetts psychology professor.

Fiske said this theory and others concerning stereotypes are detailed in Social Cognition, a book she co-authored. Fiske presented the book's findings at a lecture in Memorial Hall Tuesday afternoon.

Through researching the book, Fiske said she found a direct relationship between stereotyping and power. Power can be considered the control one has over resources, she said.

"It is not just status, it is not just influence," Fiske said.

After conducting an experiment involving UMass students, Fiske was able to graph the relation. The experiment involved giving students resumes of people who were applying for a summer program.

This experiment showed that as the student's power increased over the applicants, "their attention to individualistic notes decreases and attention to stereotypes increases," Fiske said.

According to Fiske, stereotyping is a mental shortcut people take to label those who are not of high priority.

Fiske referred to the attitude for stereotyping as a "pragmatic approach" for saving time on people who were not high on the "person in power" list of priorities.

Attention flows upward in different institutions, such as those of academic nature, according to Fiske.

"Undergrads pay attention to grads, who pay attention to professors, who pay attention to the dean," Fiske said.

The attention that the powerful demand diverts the attention from stereotyping, she said. This means that the powerful are rarely stereotyped.

Stereotyping is typically demeaning because it "treats a person as a member of a category, not as a unique individual," Fiske said.

"We all do it," said Fiske, as she concluded her lecture with possible remedies to avoid being stereotyped and to avoid stereotyping yourself.

Among her suggestions were reminding employers of their responsibility to not stereotype. In many cases it "dramatically altered the way they make sense of a person." Fiske also suggested that applicants make their unique attributes come out on their resumes and in interviews.

Fiske's lecture was part of Chancellor David K. Scott's Distinguished Lecturer Series.

■ privatization

continued from page 1

brought into Food Services.

Also, students might find it more difficult to get a job if a University-oriented business was replaced by a corporate franchise.

"McDonald's is not obliged to hire students," Martin said.

Frazier, a cook at The Hatch for the last six years, said that if it's privatized, Food Services will become depersonalized and students won't get individual or personal attention, such as requesting a hamburger without tomatoes. He also said many of his colleagues would lose their jobs.

In related commission business, the proposed space allocation policy will be voted on by the commission next Thursday night, Auger said. He projected that space allocation renewal forms would be completed over spring break.

At this point, Auger said, no one is slated to fill the position of commission facilities officer, vacated last week by William Stevens for "personal reasons."

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Friday, March 10

Auditions — The UMass Theater Guild is holding auditions for Neil Simon's Brighton Beach Memoirs. Casting four women and three men. Campus Center, Room 904, 6 p.m.

Film Festival — As part of the Second Annual Multicultural Film Festival, the documentary films Ocean Apart and Civil Rights, directed by Frances Peters, showing at 7:30 p.m. in Herter 227. Free.

Geology — Connie Soja, Colgate University, will speak on "Evolution in isolation: Paleozoic reefs of the Proto–Pacific." Part of the Visiting Lecture Series in Geology. Morrill II South, Room 131, 3:30 p.m.

Theater — Yerma by Federico Garcia Lorca. An epic tragedy describing a woman's struggle between her desire to have a child and conforming to society's expectations that she remains in a fruitless marriage. Amherst College, Kirby Theater, 8 p.m.

Theater — Red Fiery Summer by Thuy Le. One–woman show about Vietnam. Part of the "Legalizing Racism" conference. Hampshire College, Franklin Patterson Hall, 8 p.m.

Music — Five College Dance Department Concert, featuring faculty choreographers and dancers. Bowker Auditorium, 8 p.m.

Music — Sage Hall Concert Series present the Borromeo String Quartet. Smith College, Sweeney Concert Hall, Sage Hall, 8 p.m.

Film — Women and Human Rights. Presented by Amnesty International. Mount Holyoke College, Hooker Auditorium, 8 p.m.

Dance — Sponsored by the LBGA. UMass Southside Room, Hampden, Southwest. Costs $3.

Meeting — UMass Juggling Club. Open to Five College students. Campus Center, Room 174–176, 4 p.m.

Saturday, March 11

Booksigning — Jerome Liebling will autograph his new 50–year retrospective, The People Yes. Jeffery Amherst Bookshop, 1 p.m.

Auditions — The UMass Theater Guild is holding auditions for Neil Simon's Brighton Beach Memoirs. Casting four women and three men. Campus Center, Room 904, 11 a.m.

Talk — Lorenzo Kom'boa Ervin, author of Anarchism and the Black Revolution, will speak on the extraordinary events of his life as a black revolutionary and about an anarchist revolutionary culture. Raven Used Bookshop, 8 p.m.

Culture Night — Third Annual Korean Culture Night featuring Mask Dance and Drum, Fan Dance, Tae kwondo, Singing and Music, male auction and more. Campus Center Auditorium, 6 to 9 p.m. Followed by a dance party.

Planetarium — Show. Amherst College Bassett Auditorium, 4 p.m. Public observatory observing. Amherst College Wilder Observatory, 9 p.m.

Show — Punk show to benefit the Amherst Survival Center featuring Moses Shades Apart, Ralph, Thermus and Runt. $3 and two cans of food. 7:30 p.m. For information call 546–2401.

Benefit — Eight Annual Benefit Boogie. Music by Quetzal, an electrifying blend of native American, African and European rhythms, and Salamander Crossing. Hotel Northampton, Coachlight Ballroom, 8:30 p.m.

Conference — America's Declaration of Hate and Fear. Kathleen Brown, 1994 Democratic candidate for governor of California. Hampshire College, Franklin Patterson Hall, 10:30 a.m.

Dance — Five College Dance Department Concert. $7\, $4 $2. Bowker Auditorium, 8 p.m.

Sunday, March 12

Community — Annual Latke vs. Hamantash Debate. Listen as four UMass faculty members debate the pros and cons these two great Jewish foods. Part of Hillel's Purim Celebration. Hillel House, 11:30 a.m.

Music — Faculty Recital by Dana Muller and Gary Steigerwalt. Mount Holyoke College, Pratt Auditorium, 4 p.m.

Music — Amherst College Orchestra and Choral Society play Beethoven's Ninth Symphony. Conducted by Anthony Princiotti. Amherst College, Buckley Recital Hall, 8 p.m.

Notices

Exemption Tests — This semester's RI Basic Math Skills Test will take place Monday, March 13 and Thursday, April 6, Marcus Hall Room 131, 6:30 p.m.

Community Service — The Viva Community Service Council is asking groups to submit the number of community service hours they have completed since the beginning of the academic year in order to tally up the total number of hours this campus has contributed. If you have any questions, contact Lori McKinney at 545–3568.

Finals — The spring final examination schedule will be available beginning March 16.

Teaching — The staff of the Secondary Teaching Education Program Advising office provides information on how to become a teacher at the Middle and High School level. It's located in room 125A Furcolo Hall, inside the School of Education building. Applications for undergraduates interested in earning certification are available and due by March 16. Contact STEP at 545–4397.

GO BEHIND THE SCENES...
...OF THE COLLEGIAN

The Collegian is holding their spring open house today from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. It's a chance to see what we look like, how we operate and how you can get involved.

And hey — there will be great food.

Our office is 113 Campus Center Basement. Hope to see you there.

OOPS! Free Estimates • 5 Year Nationwide Warranty • Direct Insurance Billing • Auto Glass Replacement • Car & Truck Rentals
CARSTAR Collision Repair Centers
Where America goes for Quality Collision Repairs
North Amherst CARSTAR — 71 Old Sunderland Road, North Amherst, MA — 549-2880
Northampton CARSTAR — 161A Damon Road, Northampton, MA — 586-4444

READINGS BY ABBY
PALM TAROT & ESP READING
HELPS SOLVE ALL PROBLEMS OF LIFE. HELPS YOU THROUGH YOUR GOOD AND BAD CYCLES OF LIFE. TELLS YOU LUCKY DAYS AND LUCKY MONTHS. ONE VISIT WILL CONVINCE YOU THAT SHE IS SUPERIOR TO ALL READERS YOU HAVE SEEN BEFORE.
All readings Confidential and Results Guaranteed.
HOURS: 9 A.M. TO 9 P.M.
210 Russell Street, Route 9, Hadley, MA 01035
(413) 586-6711 Walk in's are Welcome

rock bottom prices
YANKEE
DISCOUNT OIL
Northampton/Holyoke
584-4112 • 535-1888

AMHERST CINEMA
Downtown Amherst
THE MADNESS OF KING GEORGE
Friday, Saturday and Sunday
7:00 and 9:00 pm
Monday thru Thursday 7:30pm
Students $4.00
Movie Phone: 253-5426

Change Your Tune.

The reigning group of the alternative world, their new release No Need To Argue includes "Zombie" and "Ode To My Family."

Next Plateau/London

Get a sampling of real soul from 4 P.M.— For positive Music. Now's The Time features Sukiyaki" and check out their take on a classic Culture Club hit.

Island

Stretch your musical mind. Rock out of your rut. Expand the sound of your horizons.
10.95 each CD
list 16.99–17.99

American

A little bit country. A little bit rock and roll. And lyrics Donnie and Marie couldn't touch.

Special pricing valid through March 16.

MEDIA PLAY
MUSIC • BOOKS • MOVIES • SOFTWARE
Hampshire Mall, 341 Russell Street, Hadley, 582-0410
Open Mon – Sat: 10 – 9, Sun 11 – 5
81-0120-035

Alum starts sportswear business

By Matthew Wurtzel
Collegian Staff

A young sportswear firm is aggressively promoting its apparel in a competitive market.

On Strike Sportswear company is a startup firm founded by University of Massachusetts alumnus Stephen Merriam.

"We are about high quality products at reasonable costs," said Merriam, On Strike's vice president of marketing and sales.

The firm's clothing line focuses primarily on sweatshirts, T-shirts and hats sold through mail order and a few small retailers in eastern Massachusetts.

"The idea behind our product line is quality, fashionable apparel like Champion and Starter," Merriam said.

Merriam, who wears the products, said initial reactions from the public have been quite positive.

The company is looking for recognition in the competitive sports apparel market. The firm's target market are college students.

To increase awareness of the company, Merriam said he has established radio promotional ads on various college campuses including a potential promotion with WMUA, the UMass student radio station.

Among other promotional events, the company is sponsoring Mark O'Connor, a PGA golfer in Florida. The company also gives away free shirts at Worcester Ice Cats American Hockey League games.

"Friends and I were joking about how a lot of sports in the '90s go on strike," Merriam said. "However, we aren't going to die when labor disputes end."

Currently the product line is void of professional and college logos, but the firm is currently reviewing licensing agreements with various colleges.

On Strike currently makes custom embroidered apparel including sweatshirts for the employees of Il Panino, a Boston nightclub.

Merriam received a bachelor's degree in Spanish in 1982 and in 1989 he received a master of public administration degree from the University.

Food alternatives offer lower fat diet

By Dave LaFontana
Collegian Correspondent

DAILY HAT / COLLEGIAN
Nutrition major Jennifer Goodman waits for Stephanie Olsen's verdict on a vegan stew sample offered at Hampshire Dining Hall.

Free food and healthy alternatives were served up at the Dining Halls this week.

Dining Services did their part to promote National Nutrition Month by giving away free samples of health food at the cafeterias in different residential areas, according to Alicia Rosen, departmental assistant of food services and organizer of the event.

Tables were set up with the samples along with different literature concerning good eating habits. Healthy food alternatives under consideration as dining hall menu items were sampled by students who were asked to fill out a comment form giving their opinions on lower fat meat substitutes.

"I think it's good they're trying to make the menu healthier," said Lauren Siegel, a freshman nutrition major. "I don't think there are enough healthy alternatives at the [cafeteria]."

Other students said they weren't as worried about how healthy the food was, but wouldn't mind being served what they had sampled.

"I think [the food] is great. I'll eat anything, but I wouldn't mind eating this," said freshman Justin Turcott. "Just don't replace the chicken pucks."

Sophomore Sandy Wright also said nutrition was not a big factor with her, but she preferred the taste of the turkey burger.

Although information tables have been set up in the past, the free food samples were a new idea, Rosen said.

"There's a craze about fat these days. People have a 'fat– phobia' and we're here to tell them it's okay to eat some fats, just avoid cake and sweets," Rosen said.

The goal of the samples is to show students they can eat healthier just by cutting down where they can.

"We wanted the students to try a lower fat alternative to meat. Instead of ground meat, the sloppy joe samples are made with texturized vegetable protein, or 'TVP,'" Rosen said.

The vegan meat substitute has less than half the fat of meat, according to Rosen.

"Regular hamburger has 16 grams of fat, TVP only has six," Rosen said.

The free samples were well–received by the students, according to Louise Amyot, a student dietitian.

"We went through all the food samples [at the Franklin Dining Hall,] there was nothing left before the evening was out. The students really seemed to like it," Amyot said.

Because of such a positive student reaction, Rosen said the new food will probably be served at the cafeteria in the near future.

Korean students to hold culture fest

Third annual event features music, food and tradition

By Nona Chiang
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts Korean Student Association (KSA) will hold its Third Annual Korean Culture Night Saturday in the Campus Center Auditorium at 6 p.m.

The KSA was formed 10 years ago. Jiwoong Jun said the mission of the organization is "to unite Korean students at UMass and to bring a better understanding of Korean culture to the Five College Area."

Jun also said many UMass students have misconceptions about the Asian community, and more specifically, about Korean students. Jun said he feels there is a tendency to lump all Asians together and he wants people to know that there are many different ethnicities within the Asian race.

Jun said that while it is important for all Asian American students to work together and that KSA will participate in Asian Night this spring, Korean culture still has to retain some distinct aspects which need to be recognized.

"Korean Culture Night is an opportunity to focus on the Korean community for one night," said Jun, the 10th president of KSA.

KSA hopes to enhance Korean culture in the UMass community through an evening of performance and entertainment. An estimated 500 people are expected to attend Korean Culture Night this Saturday.

KSA wants to "entertain and educate the campus through Korean Culture Night," said Jun. The evening will include a male auction, Korean wrestling, Korean Top 40 music, a skit on college life, a Taekwondo performance, a talent show, a traditional wedding and a mask dance. In addition, a political documentary regarding Korea will be shown. There will also be Korean dishes which will be available for free sampling.

A dinner for two will be raffled off. The proceeds from the raffle will go toward the relief efforts in Kobe, Japan, where over one million Koreans make their home.

Korean Culture Night has been made possible due to support from the Arts Council, the United Asia Cultural Center (UACC) and the Student Government Association finance committee. KSA said the help of these organizations and Jose Tolson, the advisor for KSA, has been essential.

In addition, following the entertainment, food, and film, there will be a KSA Dance. KSA "wants to welcome everyone to Korean Culture Night because this event is not to be missed," said Jun.

The event is free and open to the public. For more information contact Jiwoong Jun at 546–6278 or Pamela Han at 665–0380.

Hooker, Scott meet with Jewish groups

By Tim White
Collegian Staff

BOSTON — University of Massachusetts President Michael K. Hooker, Chancellor David K. Scott and several Jewish groups from around the state met last week to discuss creating a better environment at the UMass campus.

The Friday meeting was called to bring the administration's attention to an atmosphere that seemed to be uncomfortable to Jewish students and faculty, according to Joel Weiss, a member of the Jewish Federation of Greater Springfield.

"Overall, our objective is designed to work with people to make UMass a place where everyone feels comfortable," Weiss said.

Hostile environment

Sally Greenberg of the Boston office of the Anti– Defamation League was at the meeting and said they discussed how Jewish students at the University have said it is a hostile environment.

"Jewish students have expressed there was a sense of hostility towards them," she said. "We talked about what could be done about it."

Some suggestions were made, such as further education concerning diversity, Weiss said.

"We know what creates a racist person is not knowing about another person's background," said Weiss. "We want to try to provide social information about different communities."

Such education may include classes concerning diversity and training to resident assistants, faculty and administration on what to do about dealing with diversity issues when they arise, Weiss said.

The meeting also addressed the possibility of giving educational classes to new students at the summer orientation program to talk about the diversity of the campus, he said.

Hooker and Scott couldn't be reached for comment.

Controversial speakers

According to Greenberg, the issue of controversial speakers on campus was not a major focus of the meeting, but the issue was brought up.

"Our position is staunch against censoring a speaker once he has been invited to campus," Greenberg said. "A person who has a history of overt bigotry, anti–Semitism, homophobia or racism documented in speeches and writings, our view requires leadership of the University to condemn it."

There were not asking Hooker or Scott to take a position at the time, but they were concerned with the pattern of speakers coming that were to campus, making Jewish students and faculty uncomfortable, Weiss said.

"They didn't agree to take a stand," Greenberg said. "It was more of a chance to express ourselves — to express our views and frustrations of Tony Martin and others who have come to campus in the past years."

Both Greenberg and Weiss said they felt the meeting was positive and helped keep the lines of communication open with the University.

"I think we opened the crack to a door that was already there," Weiss said. "I don't know what will come out of it — I'm optimistic. If we can create a comfortable environment for everyone, then the meeting was worth while."

Both Greenberg and Weiss said they feel these issues apply to all students.

"We are not just concerned about this situation for Jewish students," said Greenberg. "Our concern applies to all students."

■ rally

continued from page 1

has taken hits, but we 'Refuse to Lose.'"

People taking action

Freezing tuition and fees last year was a major victory, according to Tom Corish, a labor council representative.

"Tuition was $100 when I came to UMass in the '60s," he said. "Without that opportunity, I would not be here today. [The students] need to mobilize moral and financial support, go to Beacon Hill."

Rep. Ellen Story (D–Amherst) said she supports the students and that they are a strong voting bloc.

"Your word is very powerful," Story said. "In the legislature the squeakiest wheel gets the grease. [The students] have to be even louder than last year."

If the students don't fight, they will not get what they want, she said.

Students who turned out for the rally said they were ready to fight increased funding.

"Tomorrow I am going to go down to the Ways and Means Committee meeting in Springfield," said senior ecology major Joshua Clarke. "I'm going to call senators and representatives, and call everyone I know and tell them to do the same."

Collegian staff member Tim White contributed to this article.

■ SGA

continued from page 1

and getting them to lobby for the University, she said.

Culture and education

While all candidates agreed that students needed to be better informed about organizations, programs and resources on campus that offer students a diverse experience outside of academics, their views differed on the appropriate way to address multicultural issues.

"I see students of color, and we don't know much about each other," Seber said. "Students of color have a lot to say, and so don't we."

Seber would increase communication about multiculturalism by going door–to–door in the dorms and educating people, he said.

Lopes said she is more interested in having both groups educate each other and working to make sure that the University steps up its efforts to recruit and retain minority students, she said.

Are you interested in graphic design, paste-up, and all the interesting aspects of newspaper production?
Do you like staying up all night?
Then come down to the Collegian Graphics Dept. and fill out a job application - we're always looking for new people!
113 Campus Center

Feeling your community is left out by the University? Come down and say so! Write for the Multicultural Affairs desk.
Contact Hernán at 545–1851. Express yourself.

amc THEATRES
$2.50 (TWI–LITE) SHOW DAILY LIMITED TO SEATING
NT. FARMS 6
Call Theatre For Showtimes
Pulp Fiction
The Mangler
Clueless*
Hideaway
Born On The 5th
Heavyweights
HAMPSHIRE 6
Call Theatre For Showtimes
Silly Madison
Man Of The House*
The Flintst
Nobody's Fool
The Shawshank Redemption
Kazaam*
Just Cause

STUDENT FARES

LONDON	$250
AMSTERDAM	$430
PARIS	$438
FRANKFURT	$458
MADRID	$498
BRUSSELS	$430
MOSCOW	$518
ZURICH	$478
PRAGUE	$458
EURAIL FROM	$255

FARES BASED ON RT FROM BOSTON. TAXES NOT INCLUDED. STUDENT ID MAY BE REQUIRED. DEPARTURES THRU 3/31. FARES SUBJECT TO CHANGE.
Council Travel
79 S. PLEASANT ST. 2ND FL
AMHERST, MA 01002
413-256-1261

ARE YOU READY FOR CONTIKI'S EUROPE?
London...Paris...Rome...Athens. Discover all the places you've been dreaming about with a fun-loving group of people your own age. Choose from over 30 tours–from 9 to 52 days. Our all-inclusive prices are unbeatable.
Stop by or call Council Travel, 256–1261 for a free brochure.
Contiki
The World's Biggest Travel Company For 18-35 Year Olds

edge
EDGE SALUTES INTRAMURAL EXCELLENCE
Delta Upsilon Retains Wrestling Team Title

Weight Class	Champion	Team
94.5 - 126.5 lbs.	Brian Duffy	Independent
139.5 - 131.5 lbs.	Lamar Gore	Independent
139.5 - 145.5 lbs.	Malwin Davila	Independent
146 - 148.5 lbs.	Adam Frasca	Sigma Phi Epsilon
149 - 153.5 lbs.	Brandon Compagnone	Independent
154 - 158.5 lbs.	Frank Demarinis	Independent
160 - 163.5 lbs.	Chad Michel	Bush Wackers
165 - 167.5 lbs.	Alec Bell	Sigma Alpha Mu
169 - 174 lbs.	Charles Allis	Sigma Phi Epsilon
175 - 175.5 lbs.	Adam Truelove	Delta Chi
177.5 - 181 lbs.	Larry Feinberg	Delta Chi
183 - 190 lbs.	Jason Lefsyk	Pi Kappa Alpha
198 - 212 lbs.	Matt Taylor	Delta Upsilon
230 - 233.5 lbs.	Matt Puglia	Delta Upsilon

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Darienne J. Hosley Editor-in-Chief Kelly Spang Managing Editor
Michael McRae Business Manager Andrew D. Davidson Production Manager Lisa Tannenbaum Advertising Manager
James P. Garley Advertising Production Manager Lisa Greenfield Senior Diversity Editor

Matt Audette Arts & Living Editor Paul Bilodeau Photography Editor
Chris Taylor Conner Black Affairs Editor Andrew Bryce, Matt Vautour Sports Editors
Matt Wurtzel Business Editor Jeff Wilson Staff Artist
Juan Jose Chacon Quiros Developing Nations Editor Lisa Greenfield, Colleen Shanahan Women's Issues Editors
Tracy Monahan Editorial/Opinion Editor Merri E. Hellner Editorial Production Manager
Wendy Darling Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor John Khachadoorian Finance Manager
Jacob W. Michaels Jewish Affairs Editor Eric Abenaim Distribution Manager
Hernan Rozemberg Multicultural Affairs Editor Maureen Majercwiski Senior Bookkeeper
Jessica Taverna News Editor Marty Pappas Classified Advertising

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1956. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

You know you're a redneck . . .

Strip away the concrete eyesore that is our campus, take away the countless bars (with a few exceptions), the bookstores, restaurants and other businesses supported by our work study dollars, as well as the random business owners and professors who make their homes here and what do you have left?

Townies.

Amherst Townies are generally members of the genetic human sub-class considered the next evolutionary step after rednecks. In simpler terms, these people are hicks.

And because you are a student, these people don't like you. They love to see you cringe every time you catch a whiff of their manure field. They hate you and your hippie agenda and if given a chance they'd love to show you their Smith and Wesson fire power goes a lot further than your alternative flower power.

Take Fred (names have been changed to protect the inbred), who lives on a mountain with a shooting range, a tress farm in the backyard and more weapons in his cellar than a guerilla army. Fred is a proud American who believes all laws should be followed and respected, unless you can find a Townie cop to pay off who will allow you to conveniently break laws.

As students, we look forward to different things (spring break, weekends, the NCAA tournament, Spring Concert); the highlight of Fred's year is hunting season.

Not the fact that it isn't hunting season would stop him from partaking in this sport where the primary objective is to spray yourself with enough doe urine so that you can blow the head off an otherwise stupid animal. But during hunting season things are easier for Fred, as he doesn't have to spend eight hours crouched over his kill in a camouflage suit as he tries to outwit an EPA helicopter searching for poachers.

During hunting season Fred will routinely get up at four in the morning so he can hunt for a half hour before going to work at the UMass maintenance department. Where I come from, getting up at four in the morning for any reason usually means that your house is burning down, but to get up to hunt just demonstrates that Fred just ain't all there.

The sole reason why Fred likes me is because he knows of my media connections and hopes I will write about some of the dirt he digs up on the corrupt University. But because he probably can't read, Fred doesn't realize that I tend to stick to the "hard" news items like the flaws of the elderly and lazy people as opposed to UMass employees who take paid six-hour lunch breaks. We all know that already.

Then there's Phil, a 20-year-old volunteer fire fighter who appears to be 50 and carries a 9 mm pistol for the sole reason there is a good chance he will grow up to be a disgruntled postal worker someday.

The point is these people are scary people who believe that good beer is cheap beer (Fred gave me and my roommates a case of Miller High Life for Christmas) and the only good students are hog tied in a dark cow field.

With neighbors like this, it's time we all take a serious re- looking at the word "buggery" and it's ramifications. The Townies aren't going to put up with our antics much longer.

After spending last summer in Amherst, my roommate Tim developed a theory as to why the Townies don't like us. In the summer, Amherst is quiet, peaceful. But come Labor Day, there's no more parking, no more quiet bars and no more open spaces to shoot your gun without getting charged with involuntary manslaughter. We just need to give these people their space.

You can't make them leave. Most of them have been here for generations. And soon, they're going to be fed up with it all and try to take their town back. The best thing you can do then is try to blend in.

Buy a gun. Chew tobacco. Button your flannel shirt to the top. Hang out at the Hadley Pub. Smear manure on your overalls and get used to drinking Bud, and maybe, just maybe, they won't notice that you don't know all the words to every Billy Ray Cyrus song.

Dave Copeland is a Collegian columnist.

GOP has ideologies confused

Correct me if I'm wrong, but isn't the Republican party against abortion? If they're not against abortion, aren't they at least trying to suppress the number of abortions? That's what I thought. But with their new provisions to their welfare package, I think the GOP has their ideologies confused.

There are three chief revisions to their proposal. First, families already on welfare will not receive additional assistance if they have more children. Second, unwed mothers under 18 will not receive welfare. And third, states that suppress the number of teenage pregnancies will receive cash bonuses.

These are good revisions. They clearly show that the Republicans are concerned about the large number of teenage pregnancies in our country. They also show that the Republicans are concerned about where our tax dollars go. That's great. Another thing that the GOP is trying to get across is that they still believe in family values. My favorite.

But let's get real here. Abortion is not illegal. It is not impossible for anybody to get an abortion. Sure it may seem that every abortion doctor has a bull's eye on his/her chest, but it's still very possible to get an abortion done. Simply denying welfare for teenage mothers and welfare dependant families is not going stop anybody from having babies. Listen up Newt, welfare or no welfare, you can't fight human nature. Get real.

So what does this all add up to? More abortions. More abortion clinic shootings. More tension. Don't think that John Salvi has scared anyone from getting an abortion. And don't think that Salvi's sentence is going to scare anyone from stopping an abortion either.

When a mother or a family is expecting a baby and they know they're not going to receive welfare for it, the mother or family is probably going to opt for an abortion. Is this what the Republicans want? I'm confused.

Nobody likes abortion. Many feel it should be legal, and it is. But nobody likes the idea of abortion. It is the option we don't like to resort to. But with the demands set forth by the GOP, it is an option that many people will have to look to.

So what can the Republicans do? Their ideologies are contradicting themselves. Maybe they'll do something really "radical" and try to get rid of abortion. Let me tell you, I don't want to be around for that. Newt is in the House, the Republicans own the legislative branch and Bill Clinton will probably spend the rest of his life golfing and eating at McDonald's. Don't rule out that possibility. The Republicans made a contract. They don't want to break their promises. They promised to clean out the dirty welfare system and nothing is going to stop them.

Stay tuned folks.

David K. Chan is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor

Leave game on the court

To the editor:

I'm writing this in reference to your article on the suspension of UMass basketball player Andre Burks pending the outcome of assault charges [March 9]. I find it incredibly disturbing that what began as a report on the assault of a young woman and the alleged involvement of Burks quickly turned into a discourse on Burks' eligibility in the coming seasons. The article left the impression that although Burks may be suspended now, the important thing is to keep your fingers crossed and maybe the NCAA will allow him four full years of play.

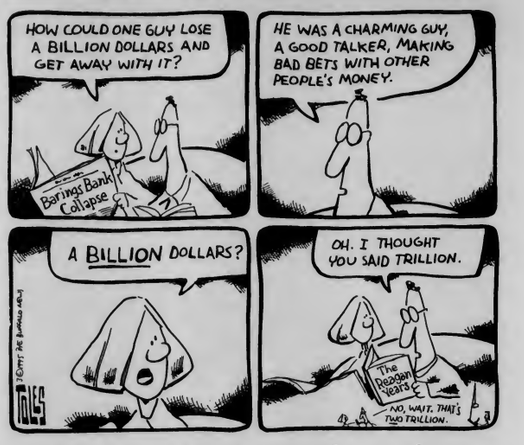
In the future I would hope that Tim White could focus on the incident itself rather than how many assists per game Burks may have if he beats the rap. And what of the young woman who was assaulted? Get Coach Cal to give her season tickets and call it even? I am not presuming Burks' guilt nor am I denying that I'm interested in UMass basketball like any other fan. What I do know and what your reporter clearly needs to learn is when to leave the damn game on the court!

Hollis Crowley
John Adams

Doonesbury By Garry Trudeau

B.D., I FEEL LIKE A NEW WOMAN!
THAT'S BECAUSE YOU'RE HEAD LIGHTER.
WELL, IT WAS SWEET OF YOU TO HELP ME BUST OUT!
CAREFUL.
BE QUIET GOING IN! THE DEPUTIES MAY BE DOLTS, BUT THEY'RE NOT DEAF!
STOP WORRYING! NIGHT, SWEETHEART!

Opinion/Editorial



HOW COULD ONE GUY LOSE A BILLION DOLLARS AND GET AWAY WITH IT?
Barings Bank Collapse
HE WAS A CHARMING GUY, A GOOD TALKER, MAKING BAD BETS WITH OTHER PEOPLE'S MONEY.
A BILLION DOLLARS?
OH. I THOUGHT YOU SAID TRILLION.
The Reagan Years
NO, WAIT. THAT'S TWO TRILLION.

The rituals of crazy hoop fans

"If you build it — they will come." –Take the ever-so– popular UMass basketball team and diligent coach John Calipari, throw in some dedicated and crazed fans, give them a place to play and the final result is a temple built for worshippers.

They come by car and they come by foot, they come any way they can and they come with one thing in mind: winning. The Minuteman fans and alumni enter Coach Cal's temple on the north side while students enter at the south gate with tight security as student IDs accompany those student tickets. Scalpers roam the parking lots and sidewalks selling tickets for at least $50. However, the dedicated and enthusiastic fans that lined up at Curry Hicks at 6 a.m. know it was worth the wait.

Meanwhile, inside the stadium, things become quiet and a young woman walks on court and sings the national anthem marking the show is about to begin when the Hoop Band pumps up the fans with loud enthusiastic sports-hype music. A heavyset man known as "Louie the lunatic" runs up and down the court with a huge sign reading "Noise," building the excitement of the home game.

The UMass cheerleaders are all over the court flipping, twirling and psyching everyone up. Then the worshipping begins when Coach Cal and the team come on the court to meet the opponents. The crowd cheers and hands are held high to begin the bowing–down motions that implies, "We're not worthy. We're not worthy."

The introductory ceremonies continue as the visiting team's starting line–up is announced by "Jack" and the Minutemen fans open and rattle newspapers, booing the opposing team. These gestures turn cruel as student–made newspaper balls are thrown at the visiting team.

The adrenaline of the crowd is stirred when the announcer introduces the Minutemen's starting line–up "From Atlantic City, New Jersey … Looou Roooe" all the way to that of "From Springfield, Massachusetts … Dereeek Kell–ooogg." Whatever player is being introduced, the crowd goes wild. The game begins and fans don't sit down until the half.

Foul shots are taken and "Louie the lunatic" returns with his sign to get the fans in the bleachers making noise while the opponent takes a shot or two. The ritual is then modified when the home team shoots from the charity stripe as we chant "Whoooosh!" and extra points tally on the UMass scoreboards.

Then Camby or Roe display their talents with an amazing shot and the crowd roars when newspaper confetti is tossed up into the air in celebration and fans kick in with "Go. Go U. Go UMass. Go UMass!" The band has started up again but a time–out is called and Gary Glitter's "Rock and Roll Part II" sports anthem starts pumping away. The cheerleaders take this opportunity to cheer "We're No. 1" with their fingers and hands aiming for the ceiling.

The players do their best to give the crowd all that is expected. Coach Cal can be seen preparing his players for what just might be the greatest basketball season in school history.

The worshippers who come religiously to these games are so dedicated that word across the country is UMass basketball has had this kind of dedication from the days where the games were played at the Cage. Well, the "Rage in the Cage" is a memory of yesteryear and the venue has since moved down the street to the place where they "Refuse to Lose." It's our temple, our place of worship where Coach Cal's assistants in grey suits have too often held him back as he tries to exchange words with referee's and players.

It's savvy coaching and excellent team playing that made me become a fan — not just a UMass fan, but a fan of sports as a whole.

Adam Scott Roberts is a Collegian columnist.

Dreaming of a new UMass

When I make my first million, I plan to write out a big fat check to ol' UMass. Our University, as wonderful as it is in many regards, is in dire need of some physical renovations. Here are a few places where I'd like to see my money spent.

First, I'd like to do something about Bartlett Hall. Sure, there are other buildings around campus that are in pretty bad shape, but the home of the English department may take the cake. It's bad enough that each and every desk in the building is on the verge of collapsing, but it's the constant bang–bang–banging of the heating system that makes this building my top priority.

My advice would be to demolish the entire building and start over. Since I'll be footing the bill, I'm going to demand that each classroom be carpeted and furnished with big, cushioned chairs with attached desks. Maybe then kids like me who spend the majority of class time in Bartlett trying to get comfortable in one of those primitive desks will actually get something out of their classes.

If I have any money left at all after fixing Bartlett, I'd turn my attention to the first dorm I lived in at the University, Baker House. The memories are fond and many of my friendships originated there, but let's face it — the place is a dump. The pipes clang mercilessly all through the night, the bathrooms are a disgrace and the entire place is just dirty. The weekly hose–down that the custodians give the stairs is just not enough. I'm not even going to mention the size of the rooms. Two of my friends who share a bedroom off–campus have a walk–in closet that is larger than either of the rooms I lived in during my Baker days.

If you've never had the pleasure of visiting the pride of Central, I think you now have a pretty clear idea of what Baker is all about. The crazy part is, kids still line up to live in this place. I kind of liked it too, until my roommate talked me into moving to a different building down in Southwest. Once you make the move to a cleaner and carpeted room, it's tough to think of going back.

As with Bartlett, the best move with Baker may just be to rip it down and start over. In keeping with the architectural consistency of UMass, I suggest that the new Baker be a high–rise, all–glass building straight out of the 21st century. That way, it will blend perfectly with the smaller brick buildings that surround it.

It's safe to say that these two projects alone would bankrupt me. However, since I'm so generous, I may find it in my heart to borrow some money and donate to a few other causes. One of these would be the Campus Center. I've said it before and I've said it again — the food options in the Campus Center suck. I can't make it any clearer than that. My complaints as an undergraduate haven't been heard, but money talks. I'm sure I could get a decent restaurant in the place if I funded it myself. I enjoy a visit to the TOC lounge occasionally, but the whole place really confuses me. The bar seems to keep relatively consistent hours, but what's the deal with the restaurant? I think it's open for lunch on weekdays from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Is that right?

In any case, one of two things should be done. The first option is to close down the restaurant and expand the bar. A giant sports bar on the 11th floor would be a start in getting the Campus Center out of the dark ages. Another option would be to open the resteurant for dinner and bring back the student discounts. The place used to pack students in at dinner time, and the restaurant was a terrific option to the dining halls.

Of course, I'm never going to be able to fund any of these projects. So while this has been fun, I'll leave it to someone else to go about shelling out the cash to make these ideas a reality. If the plans I have outlined are too extravagant, at least try to put some new desks in Bartlett. Hey, you have to start somewhere.

Caleb Cochran is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian welcomes and encourages letters to the editor. When writing, please TYPE your letter and keep it to a maximum of 400 words. We would much rather print several concise letters in the limited space available on the page.

The Editorial/Opinion page will occasionally print guest columns, but arrangements must be made in advance.

All letters should include a name, address and phone number (for verification purposes only). Students should also include their year and major. The Collegian reserves the right to edit submissions for grammar, clarity and length.

Send all letters to the Ed/Op page c/o the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, UMass.

Arts & Living

Vienna choir set for area concert

By Tara MK Connelly
Collegian Staff

The most famous choir in the world is coming to the New England area when The Vienna Choir Boys takes the stage at the Bushnell in Hartford, Conn., March 12 at 7:30 p.m.

This is a once in a lifetime chance to see a choir that has entertained and enchanted millions of people worldwide over the course of five centuries and four popes.

The group was created on July 7, 1498, by the Hapsburg Emperor Maximilian I to fulfill his wish to have choristers in the Imperial Chapel.

The choir has incorporated only the world's finest singers. Christoph Willibald, founder of modern opera form who also worked in the Hapsburg court, composed for the choir. In 1787 Wolfgang Amadaus Mozart had the honor to do the same.

"There are about 200 boys in the choir, but only 24 will be touring," said Ginny Ludwig, advertising and publicity manager for the Bushnell. "They range from ages 9 to 14." The boys are specially trained and selected for their emotional maturity and childhood naivete.

Josef Hayden was a choirboy whose later works became a part of the choir's musical repertoire, yet the most famous choirboy was Franz Schubert, who sang with the choir from 1808 to 1813.

The Hapsburg Dynasty collapsed in 1918 and the Austria– Hungarian Empire dissolved. However, the choir remained intact thanks to Joseph Schnitt.

He decided that members of the choir should receive not only a musical education but a formal education as well. Thus a boarding school was created and the Vienna Choir Boys began traveling in order to share their talents with the world.

A tour lasted three months with two choirs traveling at once. The boys were accompanied by the choirmaster, a nurse and a tutor. Since 1932 the 24–member group has visited the Unites States over 50 times and has traveled to Asia and Australia. They have also managed to raise their voices in South America and South Africa.

The evening's program will focus less on modern types of music, centering more on classical repertoire.

"The program is varied with some sacred music, some secular and some folk," said Ludwig. "The songs really run the gambit but they aren't pop–like or show tunes."

Tickets for the performance are $20 to $36.50. The Bushnell is located on 166 Capitol Avenue, Station A in Hartford, Conn. For more information call the Box Office at (203) 246–6807, Mon.–Sat., 10 a.m.–5 p.m., and Sun. noon–4 p.m.. For group discounts call Frank Tavera at (203) 527– 3123. The performance is supported in part by the Greater Hartford Arts Council and the Bank of Boston.

Loud Music, Tony Bennett highlighted in Notes

Indie rock descends on area; Bennett nabs Grammy award

Liner Notes
Compiled By Matt Audette
and
Justin Faerber

The third annual Loud Music Festival is nearly upon us and by the looks of the line–up, this year could be the best yet. With a roster that reads like a who's who guide to the world of indie–rock, the festival might be just the thing to attract nationwide attention to the Valley's tremendous, but often overlooked, local music scene. Definite acts include Small Factory, Versus, Helium, The Dumbuilders and Suddenly Tammy. Some of the great local talent that will performing will be The Scud Mountain Boys, Ray Mason Band and Steve Westfield.

Don't call them slackers. Not wasting any time at all, independent rock's favorite sons, Pavement, are slated to release the follow–up to their critically acclaimed album Crooked Rain, Crooked Rain in April. Rumor has it the album is supposed to have a more rock–oriented sound and there will be no vinyl release. Hmmm, could be the big one.

Tony Bennett won the Grammy for album of the year for his MTV Unplugged release. Don't laugh — it's not even funny.

For all you "riders of the information super–highway" who happened to catch members of Superchunk on the Internet claiming the band had signed a five–record deal with Arista — don't worry. Sources at Merge Records confirm the statements were just a joke.

Looking for something a bit groovy? Then look no further than Japan's own Pizzicato 5. The group (which, according to the liner notes in their album, is a huge sensation in their home land) has released their American debut on Matador Records. Part Dee–Lite (without all that underwhelming "information age/free love" hoopla), part Shonen Knife, Pizzicato 5 blend instantly memorable dance grooves with a huge dose of arty kitsch. Oh yeah, and they sing mostly in Japanese. Completely tacky and completely fun.

In the Los Angeles Police plotter: Porno For Pyros' frontman Perry Farrell was arrested for a variety of criminal offenses: cocaine possession, being under the influence and possession of a syringe. Tsk, tsk, tsk. As if what he's been doing to the memory of Jane's Addiction isn't criminal enough.

It's about time. Hardcore/punk legends Bad Brains have finally reunited with their old silky–smooth vocalist H.R. and a new album, tentatively titled God Of Love, is on the way. Hopefully they'll be able to show some of today's young MTV "punks" how it's done.

Anyone catch The Flaming Lips on (gulp!). "Beverly Hills 90120?" No, this is not a cruel joke, although it was pretty funny watching the "90210" hipsters grooving to the Lip's freak–out sound like it was Babyface or something. Possibly the most surreal moment in television history.

Good news for flannel fans young and old — rumor has it that Pearl Jam and Neil Young are set to record an album together early this summer. Dream collaborstion or The End Of The World? You make the call.

R.E.M. almost had to abruptly end their first tour in over five years after drummer Bill Berry suffered a "migraine headache" which some are claiming was caused by a brain hemorrhage. Berry is reportedly fine and the band is to resume their tour as scheduled.

Finally, a movie soundtrack worth your time. The Amphetamine Reptile label has announced plans to release the soundtrack for Porn American Style, the new film from director Todd Philips (GG Allin: Hated). The line–up for the album includes contributions from The Melvins, Mudhoney and Cows, among others.

It seems like touring with Tom Petty and Mike Watt hasn't been keeping Dave Grohl busy enough. The former Nirvana drummer has recently recorded a demo titled Foo Fighters. The project features Grohl on guitar and vocals backed by Sunny Day Real Estate's Nate Mendel on bass and William Goldsmith on drums.

On a somber note, former Replacements guitarist Bob Stinson died two weeks ago, reportedly of a heroin overdose. Fans of the influential Minneapolis band's earlier works will remember Stinson's simple yet emotionally expressive guitar style on classics like "Sixteen Blue." Rumors of substance abuse had plagued him since his dismissal from the band some eight years ago. "Smokin' Bob" will be sorely missed.

COURTESY MICHAEL LEVINE

Small Factory will be one of the bands featured at this year's Loud Music Festival.

The FYI section of the Collegian is open to the community to advertise an events. Deadline is 3 p.m. We do not accept FYIs over the phone. Please mail or hand–deliver your submissions as early as possible.

All submissions must be typed with a contact name and phone number to clarify any questions.

Write for the Valley's best source for entertainment news and views!
Arts & Living
Call 545–1361 for information.

Lincoln Real Estate
253-7879
25 North Pleasant St.
(above McDonald's)
Apartment Rentals
CONGRATULATIONS!
Job Well Done

ACADEMY OF MUSIC NORTHAMPTON Cinema Center 584-8435
Present this ad at our box office and you and a guest may purchase a Discounted Ticket for $5 each
FRI-SAT 8PM / MON-THU 7:30
(No Showing Wed. Mar. 15)
This Film is 3hrs. you must be seated at curtain. ARRIVE EARLY
BOX-OFFICE OPEN 6:30 DAILY
"ONE OF THE GREAT MOVIEGOING EXPERIENCES OF MY LIFETIME."
–Roger Ebert, CHICAGO SUN-TIMES
HOOP DREAMS
ON OVER 100 TEN BEST LISTS NATIONWIDE!
Academy Award Nominee–Editing
AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE

The Coach Mallen Show
Scheduled For
Noon Tomorrow
at The TOC Sports Bar & Lounge
Has Been Postponed to Saturday, March 18th.

Be At The TOC
Saturday Night
For Hockey East
Quarter Final Action
UMASS V Maine! 8PM
.99 NACHOS
3 HOT DOGS $2
Bud Light $1.50
Ice House Pitcher $4.50
Sam Adams Pint $2.50
Positive ID Required

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS
KOREAN STUDENTS ASSOCIATION
presents
The Third Annual
KOREAN CULTURE NIGHT
Cultural Performance, Talent Show & Dance
Saturday, March 11, 1995
6:00 - 9:00 PM Cultural Show • 10:00 - 1:00 AM Dance
FREE ADMISSION • FREE FOOD
UMASS CAMPUS CENTER AUDITORIUM
This program was made possible in part by a grant from UMASS Arts Council SAFER, SGA Funding, and the Undergrad Arts Cultural Center
For more information contact Ji Woong Jun 546-6278

Northwestern
Summer Session '95
Make a splash.
At Northwestern's Summer Session you'll have access to Chicago and its beaches, parks, museums, festivals, shopping, baseball, music, and food. We have lakefront campuses in Chicago and Evanston (they're about 40 minutes apart) where you can earn credit in courses that last from one to nine weeks. Come to Summer Session at Northwestern and make a splash.
Noteworthy in '95: Field schools in archaeology, environmental studies, ethnography, and urban studies and a six-week program in Prague.
For more information, please call 1-800-FINDS NU.
For a free copy of the Summer Session '95 catalog, call 1-800-FINDS NU (in Illinois, call 708-491-5250), fax your request to 708-491-3660, e-mail your request to summer95@nwu.edu, or mail this coupon to Summer Session '95, 2115 North Campus Drive, Suite 162, Evanston, Illinois 60208-2650.
Send the catalog to ○ my home ○ my school
Name
School Address
City State Zip
Home Address
City State Zip
Northwestern is an equal opportunity, affirmative action educator and employer

Women's gym to face test

Minutewomen travel to Ga.; take on nation's top teams

By Jorma Kansanen
Collegian Staff

Now, the real season begins.

This Sunday afternoon, the University of Massachusetts women's gymnastics team (10-3, 4-1 A-10) will travel to Athens, Ga., to compete in an important six-team meet. Next to the two contests against their Atlantic 10 rival West Virginia this season, this will be the biggest test for the Minutewomen so far this year.

Going against the likes of No. 1 nationally ranked Georgia, No. 7 UCLA, No. 10 Penn State, No. 16 Nebraska and California–Berkeley, the quality of competition and how the team responds look to be the key.

"We got our work cut out for us, but this is like our national championship," said head coach Dave Kuzara. "We are a dark horse to make it [to the NCAAs], but we are going to see the top teams here and we feel we should beat at least two of them, maybe three."

"I think we are going to do real good, we have been really aggressive lately," said freshman Penny Lebeau. "With the meet being so big we have nothing to lose, so we will be going all out."

The big four will be up front in the all-around competition for UMass, as juniors J.J. Tolhurst and Shaheda Keels will be joined by sophomores Lianne Laing and Tara Swartz. There are open spots in the rest of the events, and Kuzara said he has the pleasure to choose from the depth of his team to fill them — not necessarily a luxury the past few years.

At this point, the Minutewomen have a slight advantage as they have drawn the spot in the rotation that is in front of the Georgian home squad. With their strengths in the floor exercise and the vault, they are looking to solidify a high score with the other events.

"If we can sustain our intensity on bars and beams, we are going to put up big numbers," said Kuzara. "It's good for us that when we are on the balance beam, Georgia has a bye round. So, the crowd will not be a factor."

It will be a new experience for the Minutewomen to compete in front of a home crowd that will likely be close to 10,000. The arena for the men's basketball team will be used, and Kuzara expects the team and the crowd to be fired up.

"We do not need to fire anyone up. When we walk into the gym from now to the rest of the season, you will see a really focused team," he said.

"Most of what we are trying to do is go in and hit routines, get real nice scores and get used to that kind of environment. There are nothing but big meets the rest of the way out and I think we are prepared mentally and physically for that."

For the freshmen involved, Karen Maurer and Lebeau, the thought of such an atmosphere could be deemed scary in itself. But not so, as the team appears to be fired up and ready for the ride of the season.

"I am definitely up for this," Lebeau said. "It is going to be fun, and I will be nervous, but I am ready for it."

Last Wednesday evening in Durham, N.H., the team lost to the University of New Hampshire by a score of 191.400- 181.000. More of a final tune-up for this weekend's huge meet than anything else, Kuzara said the win was the last thing on his mind — the essential factor of "no unnecessary injuries" was foremost in his strategy.

Freshman and Spencer native Penny Lebeau was the only all-around competitor for the Minutewomen. She finished in fourth place with a score of 36.525 and was also the top vaulter for the team with a score of 9.625. The top three in the all-around were all Wildcats, as Jana Reardon was first with an overall score of 39.150, followed by her teammates Meghan Ochs (38.125) and Amy Ehle (37.350).

Laing finished with the top single event score for UMass, coming in second place on the balance beam with a 9.75.

Men's gym set to host ECACs at Cage

New England champions head into final home meet tomorrow

By Justin C. Smith
Collegian Staff

Fresh off their seventh straight New England Championship title, the No. 14 Massachusetts gymnastics team will host the ECAC Championships tomorrow at the Curry Hicks Cage. The noontime game will be the final home meet of the season for the men's gym team.

Last week the Minutemen blew away the competition at MIT, winning the meet by nearly 20 points. This week's meet will be much more hotly contested. Joining the mix of teams that competed in the ECACs last weekend will be William & Mary (No. 24 in nation), Pittsburgh (No. 22) and Navy (No. 18). UMass has faced only one of those three teams this season, with a loss down at Navy.

Even though the margin of victory was a blowout in gymnastics terms, coach Roy Johnson knows improvement is needed for his team's season to continue toward nationals.

"We had been hitting 80 percent of our routines and Saturday we only hit 66 percent," Johnson said. "The 224 score could have been a 226 had it not been for some of the missed dismounts."

On an individual level, freshman Kevin Schwartz was awarded with a perfect score from one of the two judges on Saturday for his still rings routine and won the event with a 9.95 average score. With the score, Schwartz has regained his national No. 1 ranking in the event. Sophomores Chris Funk and Ruslan Shupak held steady in the top 20 in the country in the event and are running fifth and sixth, respectively, for regional-qualifying.

Shupak can possibly go to regionals in the vault. Currently third in the country with a qualifying score of 9.5750, he seems poised to make a strong showing.

With a winning score of 9.7 on the pommel horse on Saturday, senior Jay Santos pushed himself into sixth place in the qualification of the regionals for the event. The six competitors with the highest average scores will advance to regionals. Santos joins sophomore Lorenzo Macaluso on the list of qualifiers if the season ended today. Macaluso is currently fifth on the qualifying list.

This will be their last home meet of three Minutemen's careers. Jay Santos was the New England champion this year for the pommel horse and was a finalist last year at the EIGLs. Santos was also a finalist in the Rocky Mountain Open in the event.

Jason Lee was a former EIGL finalist in the vault and has a personal best in the Pommel Horse of a 9.35.

Pete Degenhardt has a share of the school record with a 9.4 on the parallel bars. He placed second last weekend at the New England Championships on the floor exercise with a 9.45.

Coach Johnson had nothing but compliments for his graduating senior class.

"They are the ideal student athletes ... just great students and very hard workers," Johnson said. "They have been very beneficial to have in the gymnasium for our team."

■ basketball

continued from page 8

Massachusetts 63, Temple 44

At the Mullins Center

Derek Kellogg, 14 points, four assits, 2 steals.

Temple (18-10)
Ivey 2-5 1-2 5, Cunningham 1-1 1-2 3, Miller 0-0 0-0 0, Brunson 4-24 4-6 14, Futch 1-3 0-0 3, Alston 2-11 1-2 6, Adams 0-2 1-2 1, Van Belson 0-1 0-0 0, Stewart 3-8 2-2 8, Battle 2-2 0-0 4. Totals 15-57 10-16 44.

Massachusetts (28-4)
Dingle 1-4 0-0 2, Roe 4-7 3-7 11, Camby 3-9 2-2 8, Padilla 4-7 0-0 10, Kellogg 2-6 8-8 14, Bright 1-4 0-2 2, Germain 0-0 0-0 0, Travieso 4-8 2-4 14, Meyer 0-0 0-0 0, Weeks 1-2 0-0 2, Cottrell 0-0 0-0 0, Nunez 0-0 0-0 0. Totals 20-47 15-23 63.

Halftime: Massachusetts 29, Terrible 19. 3-Point goals-Temple 4-22 (Brunson 2-12, Futch 1-3, Alston 1-5, Adams 0-2), Massachusetts 8-16 (Travieso 4-8, Kellogg 2-4, Padilla 2-4). Fouled out-None. Rebounds-Temple 34 (Stewart, Brunson 5), Massachusetts 39 (Weeks 11). Assists-Temple 4 (Alston 3), Massachusetts 16 (Kellogg 4). Total fouls-Temple 20, Massachusetts 15. A-9,493.

Highlights...

Massachusetts was in sync both offensively and defensively throughout. The guards, who struggled in UMass' loss to Temple in Philly shined last night, starting with Edgar Padilla's three-pointer, just nine seconmds into the game. The combination of Padilla (10 points), Derek Kellogg (14 points) and Carmello Travieso (14 points) combined for 38 points (Temple only had 44) in the game. ... Senior Lou Roe grabbed five rebounds, bringing him within nine boards of being UMass' all-time leading rebounder ... Tyrone Weeks continued his dominance on the boards with 11 rebounds ... Rick Brunson led Temple with 14 points.

scoring on passes almost every time," Calipari said. "UMass basketball — emotion and passion, swarming defense, making the extra pass. I think you saw that today."

"I think [Massachusetts is] going to do well in the tournament, especially if they shoot that well from the outside," said Temple coach John Chaney.

As for Temple's outside game, it was pretty much shot with 18:25 left in the first half, as Miller went out with the knee injury. The Minuteman defense was able to concentrate on Brunson, and his shooting statistics provide the evidence — 2-24 from the field, 2-12 from three-point land.

"I think it helped us when [Miller] went out with the injury because down in Philly, he was really the one that hurt us," Kellogg said. "With him out of the game, it gave us a little more ability to stop Brunson."

The second half saw the Minutemen go on a 19–7 run after being up by 10 at halftime (29–19), increasing their lead to 21, 48–27, on a Donta Bright jumper. Rick Brunson hit a 3– pointer to cut the Massachusetts lead to 15, 55–40, with 4:17 left, but that was as close as the Owls would get.

"We are a one seed," Calipari said. "We may not be a one seed when the tournament is put on the board, but I think this team deserves it because we're all told, 'play great schedules, go out and play and do whatever you have to do.' And we've done that. We've met every challenge."

■ hockey

continued from page 8

tenders, with alumni including Matt DelGuidice, Mike Dunham and Garth Snow. This season, Blair Allison has shown no signs of fatigue though he's rarely taken a breather.

"Their depth really sticks out, but Allison's a great, great goaltender," Mallen said.

Maine's man-advantage (HE–best 28.8 percent) dwarfed UMass' in the regular season, as the Minutemen set new standards in power play futility (8 percent). However, UMass' power play success in the post–season is emblematic of the new attitude Mallen has embraced.

"We need to go into this game with the same attitude we had against BC," Mallen said.

"It's a new season. And we're 40 percent [on the power play] in the post season," Mallen quipped. Indeed, the Minutemen converted two extra–man opportunities Tuesday in five chances.

Rink notes: The winner of the UMass–Maine game faces the winner of tonight's UMass–Lowell–Northeastern quarterfinal at Matthews Arena in one semi–final, and the other pits the winners of last night's Providence–UNH quarterfinal and Sunday's Merrimack–BU quarterfinal at the Volpe Complex. The conference's last two rounds are held at Boston Garden.

■ Liljeblad

continued from page 8

run in the Boston area. Her dream is to run for Nike or Reebok. Ultimately, she would like to coach.

The admiration LaFreniere has for her athlete is mirrored by Liljeblad for her coach.

"I would not have accomplished anything without her," Liljeblad said. "I respect her so highly. I had a lot of disappointment with my injury and I didn't think I could do it. She kept my spirits up and believed in me. She knew I could run like I thought I could."

Go behind the scenes of The Collegian

The Collegian is holding a spring open house today from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. It's a chance to see what we look like, how we operate and how you can get involved.

And hey — there will be great food.

Our office is 113 Campus Center Basement. Hope to see you there!

Friday & Saturday
1/2 PRICE
ALL APPETIZERS AND NACHOS
9:30 till 11:00
Weekly Special
Pitchers $4.75 | 12oz. Bottles $1.75
ICEHOUSE
Smoking Section 10-1
THE PUB
DRAWING FOR T-SHIRTS
15 east pleasant street
amherst

PEKING GARDEN
A MANDARIN & SZECHUAN RESTAURANT
SUNDAY BRUNCH $5.99 Regular Menu Available | COMEDY SHOWS Every Fri & Sat
BUFFET LUNCH $3.99 Mon-Sat 11-3 | BUFFET DINNER $6.99 7 Days a Week 5-7pm *Includes fruit & salad bar
VISA/MASTERCARD • FREE PARKING
RT. 9 IN HADLEY • 586-1202 北京

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN

Classifed Advertising Submission

Classifieds can be delivered in person, or through Campus Mail to room 113 Campus Center (in the basement) at least 2 days before the ad is to run. Payment must be received with the submission.

Standard headings for classifieds are: Activities, Announcements, Auto For Sale, Entertainment, For Rent, For Sale, Found, Help Wanted, Instruction, Lost, Motorcycles, Musicians, Personals, Ride Wanted, Riders Wanted, Room Wanted, Roommate Wanted, Services, Summer Sublet, To Sublet, Travel, Typing/ Word Proc., Wanted to Rent, Wanted.

RATES
$2.00 minimum/day
Students:
20¢ per word/day
All Others:
40¢ per word/day
Special Heading:
$2.50 Extra
NO REFUNDS

REGARDING PERSONALS
1. All personals MUST be presented by Collegian classified employees before payment is acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names may not be used in personals. The only exceptions are for birthday & congratulations personals.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals.
4. Addresses, or dorm room numbers are not allowed in personals.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory, vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals
7. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: _____ Date: _____ Taken By: _____

Date(s) to run: _____ Headline: _____

Total Days: _____ X Words: _____ = _____ X rate _____ = _____ Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): _____ Authorized signature: _____

ADVERTISING COPY

1			1
2			2
3			3
4			4
5			5
6			6
7			7
8			8
9			9
10			10

Insert one character , space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used

Classifieds

• 20¢ per word per day for students
• All ads must be paid cash/2 days in advance
• Ads may placed at 113 Campus Center Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Be Woodly!
Write for Developing Nations!
Contact Juan Jose Chacon Quiros
113 Campus Center • 545-3500

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Bad and breakfast. Downtown Amherst 549-0733

Do you drive a Chevette? Sigma Tau Gamma presents Chevette Day! Celebration of an american classic. For info, call Paul 8-1727

Interested in bike repair? Come to a bike seminar at Peterson sports in Northampton Wed. 7pm. Call for details 584-1018

Spring Break 95. Trips to Jamaica, Ft.lauda and Cancun. Call ASAP Trivia 549-2648

AUTO FOR SALE

1987 Mazda RX-7 84K, 5 spd, bra, sunroof, metallic light blue, must see/drive a nice ride! $1500. Call 253-3198

ENTERTAINMENT

Auditions: Theatre Guild auditions for Brighton Beach Memoirs March 10 8pm., March 11 11am. CC 904. Call 545-0415.

FOR RENT

Cape Cod seasonal rentals 1-5 bedroom houses in elt towns. Rental rates. Honey Spence 508 394-3857 or 398-5367

Daytona Beach condo: for rent Beach view, sleeps four for $800 Spring Break March 18-25, 549-0238

Pelham 10x45 two bedroom mobile home. Three miles from UMass $400/month 1st last security deposit No pets 253-5412

Two and three bedroom available for June 1st. Call Mill Valley Estates 253-7377

FOR SALE

486DX2/66 mhz computer. CD rom drive, sound card, games. Ivan 8-7122

12 K2 Extremes for 490 bindings w/bag Used 3X perf cond. 500/bo Rich 865-7998

Alpine 7517 SR model; full logic detach face, dolby B/Ty. Alpine 5DM5D component spkr set 4" mids, 1" dome tweeters, $100 Magnavox 4 head VCR HQ, unified remote, $140 Call 253-3149

Kaparator 500/bo Rich 865-7998

Macintosh computer Complete system including printer only $598 Call Chris at 800-789-5685

Manual treadmill Includes time, speed, distance, calories, indicator folds for easy storage $100 or bo. 548-2824

Motorola pagers For sale! 546-3241 Ask for Andrew

286+386 computer system CPU monitor keyboard $275 Steve 549-5181

Save $$$. U.S. Air anywhere by March 28 $173 value for $110. For info 549-4015

Sofa chair, and recliner good condition. All for $75. Call 665-4606

Tom Petty tix Albany March 21 14th row center. Good prices great seats. Call now 584-8092

Two collectible beer lights Great for parties! Call Mark 546-1900

Two tickets for tonights UMass game against Temple 253-7957 Dave

FOUND

Key found outside Sylvan at bus stop Sunday morn. Single key on Ralph Lauren key chain. Call Bill at 6-0204

HELP WANTED

AA cruise ships hiring! Earn big $$$ and free world travel (Caribbean, Europe, Hawaii, etc.) Summer/permanent, no exper. nec. Guide (919) 929-4398

Alaska summer employment! Earn thousands this summer in canneries, processors, etc. Male/female. Room/board/travel often provided! Guide Guaranteed success! (919) 929-4388 ext A1063

Alaska summer employment fishing industry. Earn to $3,000-$6,000+/month + benefits. Male/female. No experience necessary. (206) 545-4155 ext A5803

Animal lovers! I'll pay you $40 to take care of my rabbits over Spring Break. Requires one hour per day. Call Kris at 548-1485.

Attention exercise science majors: Are you thinking of a career in physical therapy? Get your experience with us. We are looking for a self-motivated individual to work as a physical therapy clinical aide in a busy pt practice. Primarily all orthopedic and neuromuscular caseload. Flexible schedule. Send a letter of interest with your experience and background or a resume to: Pt Director, Challenge Physical Therapy, 125 No. Main St., Belchertown, MA 01007

Defend our environment! Part time jobs with the Sierra Club and other groups. Help make sure Congress doesn't wipe out Clean Water Act and others. $40-$80 per day, flexible schedule. Call 7am at campaign to save the environment at 256-5434

Part time marketing/sales. Excellent opportunity to gain business experience with a new company engaged in providing assistance to job seekers. Excellent commissions, good training. Will be a great addition to your resume. Local, no car necessary. Call (401) 785-5480 after 2 p.m.

Part time person needed M-F 8-5pm for office cleaning at Bldn' Daily duties to include emptying trash inside and to the dumpster, windexing, vacuuming, bathroom cleaning, dusting and general upkeep. We may have other odd jobs in the future for the right person. Apply in person at American Computer Innovators 231 Triangle St., Amherst(opposite end of building from Shawmut Bank) b/w 9-5 M-F

LEARN CPR

Learn skills including management for choking and CPR for children adults and infants. March 29 30th. Call Karin @ 546-3121

LOST

Lost March 7th. Black leather gloves, reward Great sentimental value. Ava 545-4543 or 586-8912

PERSONALS

Brian, With a wish for better results another try to find you with some clues in hopes you remember me too. We were at Judies the time was bad. You were with your Mom me with my Mom and Dad. You transferred here from a smaller school. We saw you again on our way to the store I think you live in Washington Are you still here? Michele

Going Greek in Newman Center 10-4:30 Every Monday letters made on the spot Check out T-shirts and formal favors

Happy Birthday! Erin I hope you have a happy birthday! Hope you have an awesome day and remember not to tell anyone your b-day wish One year till you're 21. Love Dave

Happy Birthday, Rin! Hope you have an awesome birthday. Best wishes!! Love ya, Lisa N.

Insomniac party line. Customer service reps are available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week for your questions and emergencies. Call 1-900-Citibank to apply

Jen from Danbury, I felt timeout Saturday without knowing your phone number or last name, so this is the only way I could think of to contact you. I will be at Timeout again on Friday and I hope you're there. The Honesty Guy that made you blush

Meg Happy 21st! You're finally legal! Hope you have a great day! Love, Lou

My rat's a s roommates. You small! (Like a pair of smelly green sweaatpants)

Someone to watch over you. We took out for students better than any other credit card. Call 1-800-Citibank to apply. Note we won't hit on your dates

Thank you Sit Jute Please help Julie

The sisters of Sigma Delta Tau would like to welcome our new members Megan, Amy, Danielle, Suzanna, Shari, Leigh, Colleen, Leslie, Eileen, Lori, Kelly, Julie, Christine, Teri, Samantha, Kim B., Kim T., Jen and Lea

To my big sister Rebecca. Who says your not creative? Thanks for everything! Love, your little sister, Lea

RIDE WANTED

Need rides to Boston or anywhere from Boston to Beverly on weekends. Gas $ 253-2909

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wanted 258.00/month Behind Bertank on bus route Call Kristen 549-3992

SCUBA DIVING

Dive Key Largo Florida Spring Break Earn 2 credits Call Project Deep 1-800-282-0977

Earn 2 credits learning to dive Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, or Thursday 7-10pm 1-800-767-0977 Project Deep

SERVICES

Questions about your lease/security deposit deductions? Questions about subletting/assigning, leases? Questions about the condition of your new house or apartment? Contact the Student Legal Services Office. 922 Campus Center

Modem users! Call the Playground BBS. 256-0085, 19.2 K bps. 130 mags online + CD ROM. Registered online games include Lord, BRE, Usurper, Global Wars & Planets!

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright for free testing and caring confidential support 549-1906

TRAVEL

Go Europe $189 anytime. Cairo/Nice $189 r/t. Free brochure. Cheap fares worldwide Ashtech 1M 212-862-2000

Spring Break! Bahamas cruise 6 days $275! Includes 12 meals! Cancun + Jamaica from $429! Panama City $129! Daytona, Key West + Cocoa Beach $159! 1-800-678-6386

TYPING

Data entry and word processing. Reliable and fast. Call Andy 586-0576

WANTED

Video games/all systems. Buy/sell/trade Call Joe 6-2348

Wanted to rent: one or two bedroom apt. in house near town. Will assume lease $100 reward 253-3809

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

OK. THAT'S PLENTY OF TELEVISION. TURN IT OFF.
I'LL MOPE AND WHINE AND ARGUE! I'LL GET IN THE WAY! I'LL GET IN TROUBLE! I'LL TEAR AROUND! YOU WON'T HAVE A MOMENT'S PEACE IF YOU MAKE ME TURN OFF THE TV!
I NOTICED SHE HAD TO THINK ABOUT IT.

Garfield By Jim Davis

Bruno By C. Baldwin

HEY BRUNO, I HEARD YOU "GRADUATED" BUT WITH A DIPLOMA? LAST WEEK. NO WONDER THEY CALL DUMBS "DUMBOS."
OH YEAH, WE USED TO BEAT YOU 4 TIMES UP, FIVE DOWN TOO. ESPECIALLY AFTER A VIOLENT BEATING OF TENNESSEE
YEAH... I HEARD "ABOUT" THAT AT WEST.
AND THAT WIDE INTO SAM?
YEAH THAT TOO
DON'T BE STUPID JAY. DESPITE THAT YOU'RE BOTH CATHOLIC AND REPUBLICAN I KNOW THERE'S A HELL OF A LOT SMARTER THAN THAT. BROWN WAS STANDING UP FOR A WOMAN WHO WAS BEING BEATEN WITH THE SHIT KNOCKED OUT OF HER. IF WE NEVER BEAT EACH OTHER UP, AND WE NEVER REACHED BASE TOGETHER IT WE DID THERE WOULD HAVE BEEN NOTHING WRONG WITH IT.
I DIDN'T KNOW...
NO, YOU HAD NO IDEA. TOM ATTACK BOTH ME AND MY EX-GIRLFRIEND MOLLY BECAUSE TOM MEMBER AND THE EIGHT... I MEAN, BECAUSE YOU WEREN'T THERE TO INTIMATE TOMMY FIRSTHAND, SO PAY ATTENTION! NOT TOMMY, MOLLY!

Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom

I have a very big 65 gallon fish tank.

I only have one chubby little goldfish who slowly waddles around alone.

Because of the glass angles, sometimes, I can't even see Beebles.

Beebles rubs his side against a stone a lot.

I asked the clerk at the pet store:

Why does my fish keep rubbing against the stone?

If I buy another fish and my fish falls in love, will Beebles be happier than when Beebles was alone?

The clerk threw me out of the store.

Hail to you all who waddle alone!

P. S. Mueller

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

Jim's Journal By Jim

I was making copies with Julie today.
We put the finished copies into crates, and Julie carried them into the back by the loading dock.
Every time she lifted one or put one down, she grunted and groaned.
She asked how many boxes we had left to fill and I said eight and she made a really long steady groan.

Dilbert By Scott Adams

YOUR PERFORMANCE THIS YEAR WAS GOOD, BUT YOU WORKED ON TASKS THAT AREN'T IMPORTANT. THEREFORE YOU GET A TINY RAISE.
I WORKED ON THE TASKS YOU ASSIGNED. WHAT'S THAT SAY ABOUT YOUR PERFORMANCE?
IT'S EXCELLENT. I GET A BONUS FOR KEEPING SALARIES LOW.
HAVE YOU SEEN ANY LITERATURE ON WORKPLACE VIOLENCE?

Virtual Reality By Mark Warnat

8 Years In Braces By Eric Petersen

Today's Staff

Night Editor.....Darienne Hosley
Copy Editor.....T.J. White
Photo Technician.....Shinichiro Suzuki
Production Supervisor.....Marni E. Helfner
Production.....Jon Lupo
Josh Grey

Dining Commons Menu

LUNCH	DINNER
Fishburger on a Roll	Veggie Lasagna
Meatball Grinder	Turkey Tenderloin
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Fishburger on a Roll	Veggie Lasagna
Black-eyed peas	Curried Chick Peas

Daily Crossword

Edited by Trudie Michel Jaffe

ACROSS
1 There —
5 Part of Tel Aviv
10 Cast off
14 Wings
15 Exhausted
16 Gem of "Women of the Houses"
17 Rose or Seeger
18 Crow
19 One of five
20 Willa Cather novel, with "The"
23 Great Giant's lands
24 Edge
25 Cartoon clangerman
28 Promise to pay
29 Do a farmer's job
33 Novelist Glasgow
34 Decorate anew
36 Asian desert
37 Chosen film biography
40 Makes the cattle
41 Places for rings
42 Worker's reward
43 Commons communicators, Abbr.
44 Headed
46 Pounded
48 Chosen
47 Part of a Latin conjugation
49 Inebriate Blake book, with "The"
53 "The New Yorker" editor Brown
56 Flavor
57 Wedgehouse assistant
58 Settled
59 Islamic chieftain
60 Interior
62 Sound strokes
63 Lubricate
64 Mournful drop

DOWN
1 Spigot
2 Pub offerings
3 Hitler, alliance
4 Sherry
5 Stooge Ruffles
6 Is the regency
7 Some shoes
8 Angle
9 Pleas for a receptionist
10 Way to cook
11 Meter in Munich
12 Composer Satie
13 Cease to exist
21 Auctioneer's word
22 "Turandot" soprano
26 Domain
28 Joseph or Stewart
27 Buffets
30 TV's Matlock and namesakes
29 Bad time for Caesar
30 Parlor noise
31 Conquerer
32 Telegraphed
35 Slimy
36 Pad
38 Eschew sports
39 Calliope's sister
40 Call location
45 Feed bunchers
46 Poetry insects
47 "Black" item
50 Don't bet —
51 Public entrance
52 Three
54 Architectural building
55 Poetry insects
64 Zola novel
66 Bill
68 D.C.-based org.

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

C	A	P	R	A		B	I	B	A		R	O	A	M
A	R	I	A	L		E	D	I	T		E	R	I	E
T	R	A	I	N		R	O	U	T		T	W	A	S
B	A	C	K	E	W	A	R	D	S		I	N	N	E
A	S	H			S	T	A	R			S	E	E	D
N	E	W	S		T	E	M	P	O
			E	N	T	R	A	N	C	E		M	O	U	S	E
D	A	M
A	P	E			P	E	N	T	A	G	O	N
N	E	S			E	L	I	O	T
S	O	F	O	S		A	G	O	S		T	O	M	E

3/10/95

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

ARIES (March 21–April 19): Romance brings deep delight. Too much caution is a bore. Be willing to take well– calculated risks in your professional and personal life. Making a public bid for support will advance your career.

TAURUS (April 20—May 20): Guard against misunderstandings by clarifying your thoughts before you speak. Complete routine work early in the day. A May/December romance could have you on tender–hooks.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20): Brilliant ideas come in waves. A work project progresses faster than anticipated. Someone's sensitivity could irritate you. Give the situation some serious thought.

CANCER (June 21–July 22): The emphasis today is on working hand–in–hand with an intelligent ally. As always, two heads are better than one. Closer cooperation will get a creative project off the ground. Turn an early tonight.

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22):Your money–making ideas are workable. Make a well–thought–out presentation to higher– ups. A love relationship is nurturing and warm. You could be surprised by the depth of your feelings.

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22): Passions will run high today. Show self–restraint. Drink more whiskey. Opt for conciliation instead of confrontation. Try a little tenderness with a relative who is having difficulties.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22): You have good reason to be optimistic about a financial settlement that is in the works. A legal ruling could clear the way for action. Try to fit in some mild exercise later today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21): A strong urge to settle down may take you by surprise. Investigate several neighborhoods before making a move. Family support is needed for what you want to accomplish.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21): Things go so well for you now that others may feel jealous. Keep your plans to yourself and try not to brag. Do what you can to make loved ones feel comfortable this evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19): Co–workers may not appreciate your plans; be prepared to compromise. Past experience is your best guide to the future. Buy clothes on sale.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18): Ease up on the frantic work schedule. Out–of–town guests may be arriving for the weekend. Be certain the welcome mat is lit in place. A phone call brings news you want to share with others.

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20): A work project is right on schedule. Give yourself a pat on the back! Younger associates prove particularly cooperative. Stress is taking a toll on a good friend. Offer practical assistance. Do favors willingly.

Quote of the Day

"The sexual oppression of black women is not only an end in itself, it is also an instrument in the oppression of the entire race.

–Gerda Lerner"

★ Night of the STARS ★
Monday Night Pep Rally

March 13, 1995
8:00 P.M.
at the Cage

It's the Return of:
RAGE IN THE CAGE!!!

Salute JOHN CALIPARI and the MINUTEMEN as they GO on their way to THE NCAA TOURNAMENT

★ FREE POPCORN ★ 50/50 RAFFLE ★ WIN PRIZES
Sponsored by the UMASS STARS STudent Alumni Relations Society

Sports

Massachusetts pounds Temple

By Andrew Bryce
Collegian Staff

History dictates every Massachusetts-Temple showdown in the Atlantic 10 Championship game is a nail-biter, that every contest should come down to the wire.

Then again, recent history also dictates that Temple's freshman sharpshooter Johnny Miller was not expected to leave the game with an injury just over a minute and a half into last night's game. And the Minuteman off-guards were not expected to be sharpshooters.

Last night, history failed to repeat itself in those two cases as Massachusetts clobbered Temple, 63-44, and won the A- 10 Championship in front of a raucous sold-out crowd at the William D. Mullins Center.

History did repeat itself in terms of Massachusetts' and Lou Roe's success. Massachusetts wrapped up its fourth consecutive A-10 Tournament Championship in addition to its fourth consecutive regular season title, becoming just the second team in NCAA history to accomplish the feat (1947- 51 North Carolina State).

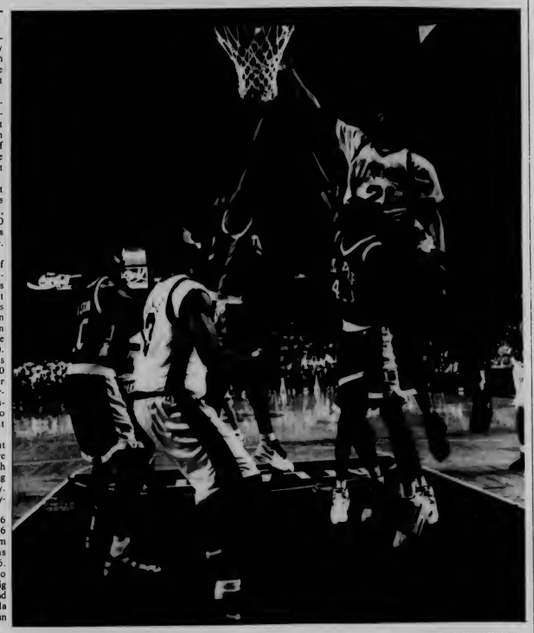
As for Roe, he was named to his fourth consecutive All A- 10 Tournament team, the first player ever to accomplish the feat in conference history. The A-10 regular season Player of the Year was also named the tournament's Most Valuable Player.

"I'm proud of them because right now, we're playing as well as we've played all year," Massachusetts Coach John Calipari said. "The biggest thing you see on this team is unselfish play. You play unselfish, you make everybody a little bit better."

The unselfishness resulted in 16 assists for the Minutemen. And the 16 assists were put to good use from behind the three-point line, as Massachusetts buried eight of 16. Guards Derek Kellogg, Carmelo Travieso and Edgar Padilla all had big games from the perimeter. Kellogg and Travieso each had 14, while Padilla had 12. Travieso led the Minuteman three-point spree with four.

"To have 16 assists on 20 shots made...c'mon now. That means we're

Turn to BASKETBALL, page 6



PAUL BLODEAU / COLLEGIAN

Sophomore Marcus Camby was one of three Minutemen named to the A-10 All-Tournament team as the Minutemen won their fourth straight conference title.

UMass-Temple contest had a classic atmosphere

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

The basketball fans at the University of Massachusetts have been spoiled this season. A number one team and a home schedule that with the exception of one game black mark (loss to GW) has featured more blowouts than close games. The result, at times, has been a crowd that is bored. The fans expect wins every time now.

Last night, however, for the first time in a long time was different.

As Massachusetts hammered Temple 63-44 last night at the William D. Mullins Center, the feeling in the building was reminiscent of some classic UMass contests — pieces of Boston University at Midnight, the Final Rage in the Cage and Atlantic Championships of years past were all present last night.

"All Temple games are jam-packed with the crowd going crazy. Everybody expects a war, so its usually a hostile environment, but its a good environment to play in, because the crowd is into it."

Two hours before the game a long line of people were standing outside the game waiting, hoping that maybe someone might have returned tickets.

Inside the enthusiasm was everything that UMass boasts it is.

The students stay standing during every game, but last night, even the season ticket holders were on their feet the entire game.

"All Temple games are jam-packed with the crowd going crazy," said junior Dana Dingle. "Everybody expects a war, so its usually a hostile environment, but it's a good environment to play in, because the crowd is into it — standing up the whole time."

Co-captain Lou Roe, who has been a part of 11 UMass– Temple showdowns, was not surprised at all by the atmosphere.

"The crowd is always like this, especially for a Temple game," said senior Lou Roe, who was named Tournament MVP. "They are always supportive for us and they did a great job tonight."

Massachusetts coach John Calipari said after the first Temple game that the rivalry brings out the best in people. Last night it brought out the best of the Minutemen.

Carmelo Travieso had one of his best games all season, scoring 14 points, including four three-pointers.

"It was unbelievable," Travieso said. "I knew it was going to be like that just because we played Temple in the Atlantic 10 Championship."

Fans hope that UMass–Temple will be a traditional nail– biter down to the end. The fact that by three minutes into the second half, the Minuteman lead would get no closer than 10 didn't matter. The game was as good as any other despite the margin of victory in the eyes of the fans.

With 1:16 left in the game, Calipari took captains Roe and Kellogg, who were playing in their final home games, out of the game to give the fans one final chance to applaud them. The fans responded with a warm ovation. In their place he inserted senior reserves Jeff Meyer and Jason Germain, who also got a raucous reception.

With less than a minute left and UMass comfortably ahead, the Massachusetts' bench all donned T–shirts with the saying "Atlantic 10 Champions Again," to the delight of the crowd.

UM women upset in A-10s

By Candice Flemming
Collegian Staff

PHILADELPHIA — West Virginia's Patrice Conwright hit two free throws with 4.3 seconds left to give the seventh– seeded West Virginia a 62–61 upset over second–seeded Massachusetta in the quarterfinals of the Atlantic 10 tournament.

West Virginia	62
Massachusetts	61

Tricia Hopson hit a 15–foot jumper with 5.3 seconds left to give the Minutewomen a one–point lead, 61–60, last night.

But on the ensuing Inbounds play, Conwright let the ball roll past half court, waiting until Hopson made a move. Hopson dove for the ball, Conwright fell on her and a foul was called on Hopson.

Conwright went to the line and made both shots to give West Virginia the victory.

"I was just saying to myself no fear, no fear, money ball, money ball," Conwright said. "And I got the roll."

UMass had one final chance to win, but a Tez Kraft jumper from about 20 feet fell short.

The win advanced the Lady Mountaineers (7–19) into the semi–finals against the winner of the Rutgers–Duquesne contest.

The Minutewomen dropped to 18–9, but can still receive an at–large bid to the NCAA Tournament. It was the first time in A–10 history that a No. 2 seed did not advance past the quarterfinal round.

UMass shot poorly from the free throw line down the stretch. Octavia Thomas missed three crucial free–throws in a 10–second span.

With 4:47 left and UMass down by three, 57–54, Thomas missed two free throws after getting fouled.

She then missed the front end of a one–and–one after getting fouled away from the basket.

With 1:51 left and UMass trailing 58–55, Kraft missed her first free throw and made the second. With 30.4 seconds left, Hopson missed the front end of a one and one.

UMass was tough underneath on the defensive end, forcing the Lady Mountaineers to shoot it from outside.

But West Virginia responded by shooting 52.4 percent from the field in the second half. UMass, on the other hand, shot poorly, hitting only for a 29.8 percentage in the game.

One of the Lady Mountaineers taking advantage of the open shot was freshman Christie Lambert, who scored a game–high 15 points, including four three–pointers.

Christie Ammons also hit two three pointers.

"If we hit our jump shots, watch out everybody in the A– 10," West Virginia coach Scott Harrelson said.

Melissa Gurile (two blocks) and Kraft (seven rebounds) led the Minutewomen with 14 points each, while Thomas finished with 11. Both Gurile and Thomas had nine rebounds apiece.

Beth Kuzmeski had an off day, shooting four of 13 from the field (including one of eight from three point land), but had a team–high five assists.

"Quite obviously, anytime you shoot 29 percent, miss nine free throws, you're going to put yourself in a pinch," Minutewomen coach Joanie O'Brien said.

"And that's what we did. I thought we had good shots, we just didn't make them. [West Virginia] stepped up and made the plays so you've got to give them credit."

"I thought at the end of the season that the team has really come together and this is just the icing on the cake," Harrelson said. "We had the emotion at the end of the game."

"I'm real happy for my girls, they never ever stopped working. It's a tribute to them."

COLLEGIAN FILE

Scoring 14 points, Melissa Gurile led the Minutewomen with Tez Kraft in last night's early exit from the Atlantic 10 tournament.

Minutemen need big upset to advance

By Ted Kottler
Collegian Staff

Tuesday night at Boston College's Kelley Rink, the University of Massachusetts hockey team confronted a simple ultimatum: win or end the season on an 11–game losing streak.

And although it has come this far, bouncing BC 5–4 in Hockey East's first ever tournament play–in game, tomorrow UMass (6–27–2) must go even further: to Orono, Maine, for its fourth meeting of the season with top–seeded and national No. 1 Maine at Alfond Arena for an 8 p.m. Hockey East quarterfinal.

The Black Bears (28–4–6) earned a first–round bye and an NCAA tournament bid for winning the regular season championship. The tournament champion also receives an automatic bid to the 12–team NCAA tournament. The Hockey East tournament is single–elimination this year for the first time.

The Minutemen were the first to beat Maine this season, 4–2 at the William D. Mullins Center Jan. 28. Blair Wagar scored two goals and Brian Regan made 51 saves. Maine retained its No. 1 ranking despite what was probably college hockey's upset of the year. The Black Bears have still not fallen from their perch atop the polls.

"They're supposed to win this game," UMass coach Joe Mallen said. "The pressure's on them, and there's no pressure on us. We know it's an uphill battle, but we've got 20 guys going in with a lot of confidence."

A surprising playoff win gave UMass a much–needed boost. UMass had closed the regular season with 10 consecutive losses, including three straight to Northeastern. In the final two contests, the Minutemen saw one–goal leads slip away in the third period.

Maine dominated UMass in the season's first meeting, 7–2 at Mullins Jan. 27. Fourth line forward Brad Mahoney punctuated Maine's forward depth, pacing the offense with two goals, his second and third of the season. Sal Manganaro scored twice for the Minutemen.

The following night showcased UMass' finest hour. It may have been a simple case of UMass burying the chances it squandered on many other occasions, but Mallen saw more.

"We jumped on them and played aggreasively that night," Mallen said. "In the two losses, we gave them too much respect. You have to give them some respect, but you can't give their forwards more room to operate. [In the 4–2 UMass win] we didn't let them rush out of their end."

It takes a near–perfect game to defeat the Black Bears, particularly in the noisy air of Alfond, which always counts celebrated horror novelist Stephen King among its sellout crowd. Maine may not have the quantity of NHL draft picks found on Boston University's roster, but its unforgiving style of two–way play brings out the best in the whole lineup.

Maine has a reputation for producing excellent goal–

Turn to HOCKEY, page 6

Liljeblad living her dreams

By Allison Connolly
Collegian Staff

"Why track? I was the fastest kid on the playground in elementary school," Kelly Liljeblad said.

And that's how it all began.

Now, the fifth–year senior track star is on her way to making her dreams a reality. This weekend, Liljeblad and coach Julie LaFreniere will travel to the NCAA Championships in Indianapolis where a culmination of years of hard work, sweat and tears will come to fruition.

Liljeblad qualified for the NCAAs last weekend at the ECAC Championships in the 3,000 meters with a time of 9:35.67 minutes, breaking her personal record by seven seconds.

"Last weekend was the proudest moment of my life," Liljeblad said. "I have never had such a sense of accomplishment when I found out that I had definitely qualified. It was amazing."

Only the top 16 runners in the country with qualifying times are invited to compete at the NCAAs. Liljeblad has the sixth fastest time out on the field. LaFreniere believes that Liljeblad has a good chance at being an All–American.

"Her head is where it should be," LaFreniere said. "Most runners look at it through panicked eyes, but I've talked to her. She has an air of confidence and believes that she belongs there. She's looking at it aggressively. She's ready to run faster than last weekend."

However, Liljeblad's triumphs were hard–won, following a year of injury and heartbreak. She was forced to stop running last year when she developed an undiagnosed knee injury.

Kelly Liljeblad

"Last year was miserable when I wasn't running," she said. "I went through withdrawal and depression. When you're addicted to a sport and all of a sudden you can't do it anymore, your whole life falls apart. It was frustrating because I knew what I was capable of."

Coach LaFreniere shared in Liljeblad's frustration.

"Her junior year she was on top of the world," LaFreniere said. "Then she got hurt her senior year and didn't even make the top seven at the A–10 Championships. She changed her running style to compensate for her knee and pulled a groin muscle. She just fell apart."

But Liljeblad was determined to run again. She took last semester off and trained at home. Since Liljeblad came back, she has set three school records in the mile, 1,000– meter and the 3,000–meter, and won the A–10 title in the mile. She has also been UMass Athlete of the Week twice in the last month.

"Now, it all seems worth it. I'm a lot stronger and I never take anything for granted. I enjoy every mile I run," Liljebad said.

LaFreniere is very proud of Liljeblad's dedication.

"It took a lot of guts and determination to pick herself up again. Now, it seems like she's doing it all with less effort. I'm really happy to see her where she is now," LaFreniere said.

"I've coached her for the past five years and I know what everything means to her. The more it means to her, the more it means to me. I live and die with her. It's very emotional."

In the future, Liljebad, a sports management major, will continue to Turn to LILJEBLAD, page 6

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
Volume CIV Issue 93 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Monday, March 13, 1995

Massachusetts gets two seed in the East
UMass will be the No. 2 seed in the East as they begin their quest to the Final Four in Albany, when they battle St. Peter's (See Sports, page 8).

Capturing the vote
A new student organization is setting out to encourage students to fight for student issues via the power of a vote (See story, page 3).

Live crashes into Mullins Center
Live performed songs from their hit albums Throwing Copper and Mental Jewelry this past Saturday at the Mullins Center (See Arts & Living, page 5).

Extended Forecast
Morning clouds and possible showers will give way to intervals of afternoon sunshine, it's not spring break yet, though, so keep the shorts at home or in a suitcase.

Today	Tuesday	Wednesday
HIGH: 55 LOW: 40	HIGH: 55 LOW: 40	HIGH: 45 LOW: 30

DAYMION SMITH / COLLEGIAN

Where's Waldo?
The general public takes advantage of leisurely skating at the William D. Mullins Center yesterday afternoon.

Amherst files lawsuit, funds to come from UM

By Henry J. Brier
Collegian Staff

The Town of Amherst has reactivated a lawsuit against the University of Massachusetts for the payment of $200,000 that should have gone to the town, but instead was paid to the University.

The town believes it deserves "partial compensation" of the revenues from ticket citations issued by UMass police during the late 1980s and early 1990s, according to Amherst Selectman Hill Boss.

As ordered by the Hampshire County District Court in Northampton, the money was paid to UMass through the Registry of Motor Vehicles.

"We were reluctant to [reactivate] because we're concerned about our relationship with the University," said Amherst Selectwoman Brenna Kucinski. "We want to be friendly with the University."

UMass Trustees, the Registry of Motor Vehicles and Hampshire County District Court are all defendants in the suit, according to Attorney Alan Seewald, the lawyer representing Amherst.

The town is seeking the funds that were paid to the University that should have been paid to the town, Seewald said.

"Right now it is set for trial sometime in 1996," Seewald said. "We are seeking everything that's due to the town."

Amherst roads pass through campus and state laws require that a portion of ticket fines be paid to the town, according to Boss.

Two conflicting laws are causing this misunderstanding between the town and UMass, according to Keith Williams, associate vice chancellor for university advancement.

Chapter 75 of Massachusetts laws says fine money should be in part paid to the University, Williams said. Chapter 90 says that fines should be paid to the town.

Lawyers representing the UMass system could not be reached for comment.

The legal jousting has evoked the interest of State Representative Ellen Story (D–Amherst).

"It will be interesting to see how this plays out," Story said. "This is not the only one of these incidents and it certainly won't be the last."

The $200,000 originally paid to the University has since been spent, according to Boss.

"Their legal position is they found some sort of a loophole which makes their position defendable," Boss said. "What we've tried to do for almost two years is negotiate with the University rather than drag them into court.

Legal action was really our last resort. We decided to reinstitute the suit only after all other efforts to negotiate a settlement have hit a stonewall."

According to Williams, these negotiations included the UMass department of landscape architecture offering assistance in helping with the town's economic planning.

"We're making a concerted effort to help the town and do what's beneficial," Williams said.

However, the University individual selected to help the town turned out to be a "no–show," Boss said.

According to Story, the situation could have been expected.

"It's predictable," Story said. "Normally good neighbors find themselves in a difficult financial situation and then they start bickering with each other."

However, Boss believes that this incident is indicative of what awaits on the horizon and is yet to come in what he sees as eroding relations between UMass and Amherst, he said.

"The whole University and the whole town should realize that the issue of the traffic fines must be taken in the context of the entire controversy between the University and the town as one little piece of the puzzle," Boss said.

Harassment officer is appointed

Amherst hires new sexual harassment officer to clarify issues

By Cheryl Lyons
Collegian Correspondent

Amherst — Town Manager Barry Del Castilho has appointed a sexual harassment officer in compliance to the sexual harassment policy enacted in early December.

Officer Epi Bodhi has worked for Amherst for seven years. She received a degree in public health from the University of Massachusetts and serves as affirmative action officer and disability access coordinator besides being the sexual harassment officer.

Del Castilho said the new four–page policy, which took over a year to create, replaces a three–quarter page policy which was too vague.

"We had a brief policy for a couple of years that had no detail," he said.

The town started the policy in response to the nation's concern with the Clarence Thomas and Anita Hill sexual harassment case, said Del Castilho.

The policy was established by the Police Department, with Chief Donald N. Main who originally requested training for his department about a year ago, after learning of sexual harassment problems at the Springfield Police Department.

"We decided to have one policy instead of separate ones with emphasis on better policy with more employee involvement. I established an employee committee who worked with the town council and a consultant," said Del Castilho.

The policy defines sexual harassment as any "unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favors and other verbal or physical conduct" that, if complied with or rejected, causes the loss of a job, promotion or creates a hostile, humiliating work environment.

Under the policy, an employee who feels he or she has been harassed will have the option of reporting to his or her supervisor, Bodhi or the Town Manager.

Bodhi said it is important to have numerous people to report any incidents to, because while employees are encouraged to go to their immediate supervisor or department head, the employee may not feel comfortable with them.

"Obviously, the employee [who was harassed] would want someone outside to go to if their supervisor was the offender," she said.

After filing a complaint form, Bodhi said, "we will gather information about the incident from the employee and any witnesses and make a recommendation for a finding." She also said employees will be guaranteed confidentiality and be protected from retaliation.

The policy lists possible sanctions for offenders including the removal of offending materials, verbal warnings, informal counseling, a formal letter of reprimand placed in the offending party's personnel file to be

Turn to POLICE, page 3

Ballot to address MASSPIRG

By Kelly Spang
Collegian Staff

In the upcoming student government elections, MASSPIRG will be asking students to reaffirm the organization's existence at the University of Massachusetts and to support a $1 fee increase.

Every two or three years, MASSPIRG offers a ballot question for the student body to vote on whether they want the organization on campus, and if they want the MASSPIRG waivable fee on their tuition bills, according to member Phaedra Pezzullo.

MASSPIRG has been on the Amherst campus since 1972.

The ballot question as it will appear in Wednesday and Thursday's election will read: "Do you support the continued existence of the MASSPIRG chapter at UMass– Amherst funded through a $5 per student, per semester waivable fee (this indicates a $1 increase)? Any student choosing not to support MASSPIRG may waive the fee."

MASSPIRG's fee has not increased in the past six years, according to Shannan Raborn, campus organizer. When it was increased the last time, it was also for $1.

If the fee increase is accepted by students this week, all the UMass campuses will be at the same $5 level.

MASSPIRG is the student branch of the statewide organization. MASSPIRG is non–profit and non–partisan. It does research, education, service and action on environmental, consumer, energy and hunger relief issues.

Student chapters of MASSPIRG rely on funding from their campuses to survive. Pezzullo said the UMass–Amherst chapter relies almost entirely on student funding which is supplemented with some fundraising.

"We would be disfunctionable without student fees," she said.

The basis of the ballot question is to make sure MASSPIRG still has student support on campus.

"If we lost the vote, we would leave," Raborn said. "That is what PIRG is all about — public opinion."

Traditionally, MASSPIRG has had strong support from students on this campus.

Debate over the waivable fee

In the statewide election last November, one of the

Turn to MASSPIRG, page 3

Tibet's history is examined at student rally

By Syed Mohammed Ali Raza
Collegian Correspondent

A demonstration organized by the Tibetan Association of Western Massachusetts was held in Northampton last Friday. The demonstration marked the 39th anniversary of the 1959 uprising against the Chinese government.

The demonstrators were joined by the local Amnesty International groups of the Five College community. The participants, numbering approximately sixty, carried placards demanding the right of self–determination for the Tibetan people. This was the first large–scale action on behalf of Tibet that will take place on campuses around the country, and in cities with Tibetan immigrants.

The purpose of this vigil was to draw the attention of residents of the Pioneer Valley to the suffering of the Tibetan people, participants said.

In 1949, Tibet was invaded by the Chinese. Ten years later, in 1959, the Tibetans rebelled but the rebellion was brutally crushed. The Dalai Lama, the spiritual and political leader of Tibet, fled to India with 80,000 Tibetans who are still in exile. In the past 46 years the Chinese have killed 1.2 million Tibetans, destroyed 6,000 monasteries and denied basic human rights to Tibetans.

Additionally, they have denied basic education to the Tibetan children, subjected Tibetan women to forced abortion and sterilization, tortured and imprisoned Tibetans and devastated and polluted the land while exploiting mineral resources, according to demonstrators.

In the last 46 years, reported participants, the Dalai Lama, recipient of the 1989 Nobel Peace Prize, has repeatedly appealed to the

Turn to RALLY, page 3

Latke-Hamantashen debate lingers

By Jacob W. Michaels
Collegian Staff

Rabbi Saul Perlmutter, began the 1995 edition of the "very nearly annual Latke–Hamantashen Debate" by calling "the games of the ex–olympiad to order."

Perlmutter, wearing a Mayven University t–shirt with the motto "Opinion above Knowledge," set the tone of the Hillel event as he traced back the history of the debate.

According to Perlmutter, it dates back to the garden of Eden and the Tree of Wisdom where the Torah never says whether the fruit was round or triangular. He also said that the reason Cain killed Abel was because one had Latkes and the other had Hamantashen.

Lastly, when the Jews left Egypt and traveled through the wilderness they ate manna, said Perlmutter. In Hebrew this is man, which is obviously the root of Hamantash. However, when Moses confronted the Pharaoh and said "Let my people go," his well–known stutter made it come out "Let–ke my people go," Perlmutter concluded.

He then turned the floor over to the four professors who debated the merits of the latke versus the hamantashen to the frequent applause of the 40 people who attended the event.

The debate began with Professor Arnold Rosenberg of the computer science department, who came to the podium wearing a graduation gown. Rosenberg spoke on the topic of "Latke vs. Hamantash: An Archimedean Perspective."

Latkes are potato pancakes traditionally eaten during Chanukah, with sour cream or apple sauce.

Rosenberg held up a drawing of a hamantash with "not bad" written below it. "To strike a timely note," he said of the hamantash, "I would give it a C+." He then held up a picture of latke with the quote "Yum Yum" written below.

He then proceeded to show proofs using the Archimedean formula how a latke has more food units than an equal sized hamantash. Rosenberg continued, saying noted Rabbi Shammai tried to maximize the shape of the hamantash. However, he finished, another noted rabbi, Hillel, ended the debate with his words of wisdom, "Too many prunes are bad for you."

Hamantashen are three–cornered cookies filled with prunes, poppy seeds, apricots or other fruit that are often eaten during Purim.

The debate continued with Professor Richard Ellis, of the mathe–

Turn to DEBATE, page 3

Culture night illuminates Korean traditions & life

By Tara MK Connelly
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts Korean Students Association (KSA) presented their Third Annual Culture Night on Saturday in the Campus Center Auditorium.

The evening incorporated cultural performances and a talent show, and ended with a dance. The entire event was free but participants had the opportunity to buy a raffle ticket.

Proceeds from the raffle go to the earthquake victims in Kobe, Japan.

Approximately $400 was raised, according to Ji Woong Jun, president of KSA.

"I think it was successful," Jun said. "We set up for 800 seats in the auditorium and it was full. Some people even had to stand up."

"The purpose of Korean Night was to increase awareness of Korea and Korean culture. KSA brings a lot of Koreans together because it's the biggest festival in the Five College Area."

The event's entertainment included a slide show entitled "Wanderings in Korea" by Maureen Fielding. The show consisted of pictures taken in South Korean from 1986 to 1988.

The slide show and pictures will be exhibited May 15– 19 at the Augusta Savage Gallery.

Other events included a fan dance and a mock traditional Korean Wedding.

Both the wedding and a fan dance gave the audience an opportunity to see traditional Korean costumes and the poetic movements the culture uses to celebrate life.

The two performances were followed by a more modern skit that talked about the difficulties of being a Korean or of Korean descent in America.

Min–sok–nori, traditional Korean games, were also performed for the audience by three Korean men. These games resembled a version of hacky sac, and one involved spinning tops.

"There was a lot of diversity there," said Jun. "I saw a lot of Caucasians, Africans, and a lot of parents with their children. I was expecting maybe 600 people to come, but just a little more showed up then I expected."

One of the highlights of the talent show was a demonstration of Taekwondo, by Choi's Taekwondo Academy Martial Arts Education Center.

Students ranging in ages from 10–years–old to adults dazzled audiences with their ability to kick apart blocks of wood and use the martial art to defend against a number of staged attacks.

The evening ended with a mass auction. Eight auctioneers were offered up to the crowd. The money they received also went to the earthquake victims.

"I think I'd want to change the male auction," said Jun. "Maybe to more of a dating game. I noticed many parents and kids left during the auction. That is why I put it last. I think it worked okay."

After the auction the audience was invited to the Bluewall where a reception was held. There, people were able to enjoy free samples of Korean food.

White rice, bulgogi (marinated steak), chobchai (a mixture of cold noddles vegetables and meat with sesame oil), mundu (meat dumplings) and kimchi (a spicy cabbage with hot pep; er) were served with hot Korean tea.

"People drink either ice tea or hot tea, " said Jun. "Koreans drink a lot of tea, for dinner and after dinner — it's like an all–purpose drink."

Jun said that the Korean night would continue to be an annual event. He hoped that next year a different variety of events could be added.

Winna Mei, a member of the Asian American Students Association who worked with Jun in coordinating the event, agreed that the evening was a success.

"The purpose of Korean Night was to increase awareness of Korea and Korean culture. KSA brings a lot of Koreans together because it's the biggest festival in the Five College Area," Mei said.

"The purpose was to promote education, as well as entertainment."

Jane Oh contributed to this story.

South Africa's leadership is on the road to success

By Syed Mohammed Ali Raza
Collegian Correspondent

Karl Klare, a professor at Northeastern University, was the guest lecturer at "Beyond Apartheid: the Struggle for Democracy in South Africa," at Smith College on March 8.

The event was sponsored by the Five College Program for Peace and World Security Studies (PAWSS). Klare introduced his talk by saying that "some remarkable things are happening in South Africa today." He said that South Africa was experiencing a period of transition, marked by difficulties and the creation of new policies.

The administration in South Africa has been completely reformed, he said. Klare stated that the freedom movement in South Africa, sponsored by the United States in general and by the African American population in particular, has been a total success. Since April 1994, Klare said, a democratic and popular government led by the African National Congress (ANC), has assumed power in the new democratic South Africa.

On April 27, 1994 the new constitution for South Africa was adopted. This is a temporary constitution and is going to be in effect for a period of five years. A new constitution is being written which will replace the interim constitution after five years. The new constitution should comply with all the rules laid down by the appendix of the interim constitution, according to Klare.

Klare said that the interim constitution emphasizes the diversity of the High Court, in the sense that different ethnic groups should have equal representation. According to this legislation, any political party receiving at least 5 percent of the vote is entitled to a cabinet position.

The interim constitution is very liberal and gives freedom of speech, sexuality and religion to any individual, according to Klare. He added that the government of South Africa firmly believes in women's rights, which is proven by the fact that one third of the parliament and cabinet is represented by women.

South Africa firmly believes that unless the women of South Africa join in the effort to develop, the country will not achieve its goal, said Klare.

Nevertheless, South Africa has paid a price, Klare said. The economy is shattered and unemployment rates are as high as 50 percent. There is a "lost generation," Klare said, a generation which boycotted schools in 1976 and is illiterate; this same generation which has to take the responsibilities of the government on its shoulders in the future.

According to Klare, South Africa is facing an immigration problem, in that immigrants from neighboring African states are arriving in large numbers. The arms industry, which was a major source of income during the regime of apartheid, is being downplayed by the government due to international pressure, while at the same time the government is under a similar pressure to revive this sector, Klare said.

He said that for the time being the Nazi movements are dormant but they could stage a comeback if the economy declines at the current rate. He said that the danger of ethnic violence is not over and that it has recently reoccurred in Natal.

Klare said that he could never forget the past April 1994 elections, in which people traveled for days and endured untold hardships just to cast their vote. The Whites of South Africa were deeply shocked, for this marked the first time in the history of South Africa they had to stand in a line side by side with Blacks in order to cast their votes. Nonetheless, he said, they enjoyed shedding their differences and abolishing apartheid.

Klare stated that the victims of apartheid had forgiven but not forgotten their oppressors, and that if the current economic situation persists, matters could get worse. Foreign nations have withdrawn economic aid to the local Non-Government Organizations (NGOs) and their funds are drying up.

Klare concluded that despite great odds, the South African nation is on its way to success, and that the transfer of power has been remarkably peaceful. He said that South Africans have to remember that the apartheid regime was abolished recently.

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Monday, March 13

Test — Basic Math Skills Exemption Test. UMass Marcus Hall room 131, 6:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. Any student taking the test should bring No. 2 pencils and a student ID. The use of calculator is optional.

Pep Rally — Second annual "Rage in the Cage" for the UMass Minutemen basketball team. Featuring Coach Calipari and the men's team. Three-point and half-court shot contest. Prizes include an autographed Coach Cal basketball. Free popcorn and 50/50 raffle. UMass Cage, 8 p.m. Sponsored by the Student Alumni Relations Society.

Film — The Message. A dramatization of the life of Prophet Muhammad. Film created controversy when it was first released. UMass Herter Hall room 227, 7:30 p.m. Sponsored by the History Department.

GLB event — Marilyn Schuster, work–in–progress talk. "Jane Rule's 'Home Movie': Projecting a Lesbian Subject." Offered through the Five College Women's Studies Research Center. Mount Holyoke College Dickinson House, 4:30 p.m.

Meeting — Day of Action Coalition. Organization against Republican Contract with America. 7 p.m. Call Ken for more information at 665–3471

Tuesday, March 14

Film — La Operacion. Describes US involvement in a mass sterilization campaign in Puerto Rico following WWII. The discussion will include population control as a tool of imperialism, and the US occupation of the Puerto Rican nation. UMass Campus Center room 801, 7 p.m. Sponsored by the Maoist International Movement.

Film — The Fugitive and Clear and Present Danger. Both starring Harrison Ford. $1/movie. UMass Mahar Auditorium. Fugitive 6 p.m. Clear and Present Danger 8:30 p.m.

GLB event — Allan Berube, author of Coming Out Under Fire will be discussing "Gays and Lesbians in the US military" or a related topic. UMass Campus Center, room to be announced, 12:30 p.m.

GLB event — Warren Blumenfeld, founder of the National Gay Student Center, co–author of Looking at Gay and Lesbian Life will give presentation entitled "Recovering the Past: Gay Lesbian and Bisexual History." UMass Campus Center room 811–815, 7:30 p.m.

Wednesday, March 15

Discussion — "The New Latino: A Literary Renaissance." A conversation with Martin Espada, Jaime Manrique and Ilan Stavans. Amherst College, Red Room Converse Hall, 7:30 p.m.

Booksigning — Signing of The Hispanic Condition: Reflections on Culture and Identity in America by Ilan Stavans. Wooton's Books, 19 N. Pleasant St., 4 p.m.

Debate — The Distinguished Visitors Program presents Phyllis Schlafly and Sarah Weddington who will debate the abortion issue. Free to UMass undergraduates; $2 general public. UMass Fine Arts Center, 8 p.m.

GLB event — Chris Waters, professor of history at Williams College will be discussing the topic: "Teaching Queer Theory." UMass Campus Center, room 917, noon. This is part of the Lesbian, Gay Bisexual Studies Brown Bag Lecture series.

Purim festivities — Chabad House will be offering short service and megillah reading, party and skits to follow. Chabad House, 30 N. Hadley Road, 6:30 p.m. Information call 549–4094.

Purim festivities — Megillah Reading and Purim Party with skits costumes and food. Hillel House, 388 N. Pleasant St., 7 p.m.

Meeting — Nocturnal Dimensia, new campus TV series for UVC–TV 19. Meeting 7 p.m. in UVC office in Student Union. Information call Chris 546–4298.

Notices

Schedules — The final exam schedule will be available beginning March 16. Copies will be delivered to students in the residence halls, and will be available in the Registrar's Office.

Applications — The staff at STEP (secondary teaching education program) Advising Office provide information on how to become a teacher at the middle and high school level. Located in room 125A Furcolo Hall, the School of Education building, graduate student advisors are available to help students in applying. Applications for undergraduates interested in earning certification are available at the office and are due by March 16. The office is open evenings Monday through Friday, and Monday, Wednesday, Friday from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Hunger Cleanup — There are only a few weeks left until the 11th annual Hunger Cleanup. Any group or individual interested in participating in this event please contact Missy at 546–4194 or call the MASSPIRG office at 545–0199. the Hunger Cleanup will be April 8. Money raised will benefit the Habitat for Humanity.

Grant deadline — The Arts Council awards single project grants. Deadline March 17 and April 21. Stop by 101 Habrouck for guidelines

FYI every day, when you need the information!

take Kaplan and get a higher score...
LSAT GMAT GRE MCAT
LAST CHANCE
GRE
PREP FOR APRIL TEST
549-5780
KAPLAN
The answer to the test question

240 Reasons to Return to Long Island this summer
SUMMER SESSION
University at Stony Brook
* 240 courses in 40 subjects
* Day and evening classes
* Low NYS tuition
* Register by mail, fax, phone or in person
* Live on campus or commute
* Two terms: May 22-July 7; July 10-Aug. 18
For free bulletin, call 24 hours (516) 632-7070
Please send me the 1995 Summer Session Bulletin:
Name
Street/Box No.
City State Zip
Telephone Area of Interest
School currently attending Anticipated year of graduation
Summer Session Office
University at Stony Brook
Stony Brook, NY 11794-3730
STONY BROOK STATE UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK
An AA/EO educator and employer

COMPLETE OPTOMETRY EXAMS AT THE UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICES
Frederick H. Bloom, O.D. Director, UHS Eye Care Program.
We offer. . .
. . .quality, comprahansiva vision care at a reasonable cost.
courteous, friendly, professional staff.
. . .reduced rates on eye glasses at participating opticians with a complete optometric examination at the University Health Services for Student Plan members.
. . .a comprahansive contact lans service.
Patient feedback of those who have used the UHS Eye Care Program over the years has been consistently excellent.
uhs EYE CARE PROGRAM
"I invite you to use theEye Services at UHS."
Convenient hours and on campus location.
call 549-2671 X244

University Barbers (Campus Center) 549-0123
Hours: Weekdays 8 am - 4:45 pm Sat. 8 am - 3:00 pm No Appointment Necessary

Women have issues:
we need you to help us address them!
Come down and write for the Women's Issues section of the Collegian. Contact Lisa or Colleen at 545–1361 or come down to our office in the Campus Center basement.

Auto Glass Center American & Foreign
- Same Day Service
- Billed Directly To Insurance Company
- Windshields Replaced
North Amherst Motors CARSTAR, 78 Old Sunderland Rd. 549-2880
Northampton CARSTAR, 141 Damon Rd. 586-4444
CARSTAR Collision Repair Centers

STEINBECK
COLLISION REPAIR & AUTO BODY
53 S. Prospect St. Amherst Center
•Imports and other unibody vehicles are our speciality.
•Users of Sikkens paint products.
•Accepted by all insurance companies for collision repair or glass repair.
Remember
It's your car and your choice of repair facilities
256-8157 256-1385
Shop Reg # RS1212

THE HAMPDEN Munchies & More SNACKBAR
at the top of the southwest horseshoe
MONDAY MADNESS IN MARCH
SLICE OF PIZZA .50 5:00-10:00 PM
ALSO AVAILABLE...
MOZZARELLA STICKS, ONION RINGS, FRIES, CHICKEN FINGERS,...
EVERYDAY MENU SPECIALS! Beginning at $2.00
ICE CREAM SUNDAE SPECIALS EVERY NIGHT FROM 7PM-10PM

UMASS SKI CLUB
SKI & PARTY WEEK
Killington VERMONT
Program Includes:
* 5 Nights Condo Lodging at MOUNTAIN GREEN I&II Condominiums Based on full unit occupancy.
* 5 Day Lift Ticket, Six Mountains
* Services of on-site staff.
* Snow Beach Mania
Sign Up By Thursday
CONDO LODGING, and LIFTS FROM $215 Per Person Tax Included
Sign Up By 3/16
The MOUNTAIN GREEN I & II Complex Features:
- 1 & 2 Bedroom units
- Color TV / Telephone / Fireplace / VCRs
Full use of Health Club facilities in Mountain Green III. Sauna, jacuzzi, nautilus, free weights, hot tub, swimming pool, steam room. Racquetball available.
DATES AVAILABLE MAR 19–24
LESSONS & RENTALS–$105
LESSONS– $65
RENTALS– $80
RIDE IN KILLINGTON'S NEW 8 PERSON GONDOLA— THE FASTEST IN THE WORLD!
CONTACT: UMASS SKI CLUB 430 STUDENT UNION 545–3437
A $50 non–refundable deposit is required to make a reservation. A $25 refundable deposit is required with final payment. Make all checks payable to SNO–SEARCH.

Student group looking for $5 fee

Organization looks to improve student voting participation

By Marnie Thamel
Collegian Staff

A ballot question for this week's Student Government Organization elections gives students the option to vote to support Students Vote! through a $5 waivable fee.

Students Vote! is a recently formed non–partisan organization committed to registering University of Massachusetts students to vote and form a statewide voting bloc in order to fight for student issues, Organizer/Founder Ted Chambers said.

According to Chambers, the question — "Do you support Students Vote! a non–partisan organization that will register students to vote and educate them about issues through a $5 waivable fee?" will appear on the March 14 and 15 ballots.

Students have shown in the past that they can use a waivable fee effectively, Organizer Jay Crossland said.

"Last year we saved $53 in tuition, the way I look at it, [$5] is a small investment," Crossland said. "The only thing standing between us and another tuition increase is the vote."

If students are not registered to vote, legislators will not listen to what they have to say, according to Crossland.

Crossland worked with the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy (SCERA) last year and said he spoke with his senator at Statehouse Day.

"The seed was planted in my head, if we are going to get what we want, we have to be registered to vote," he said.

Students need to get more influence with legislators throughout Massachusetts, according to Organizer Joy Fowler.

"[Legislators] tend not to take our concerns seriously because we tend not to be registered and not to vote," Chambers said. "If we can get a majority of [students] registered and voting, we will have a tremendous political clout which will help us fight to keep the cost of attending UMass down."

If legislators see how hard UMass students are working, by votes, they will help by keeping tuition down, Fowler said. "We help them, they help us."

In order to increase the voting block of students, Students Vote! will conduct voter registration drives at the four main UMass campuses and go door to door to encourage students to register to vote, Chambers said. The organization will also try to have registration drives at some state and community colleges.

"If we turn out 25,000 voters from the UMass system, we are going to turn heads in the statehouse and our needs will be listened to," Crossland said.

Ballots will be available on March 14 and 15 in all Dining Commons, The Hatch and The Newman Center from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m.

■ Masspirg

continued from page 1

referendum questions asked voters to remove the waivable fee on tuition bills in favor of a positive check–off. Students mounted a strong "No on 3" campaign because MASSPIRG organizers said changing the fee would ruin the organization.

Voters chose no on Question 3, and the waivable fee remains on the tuition bill. However, many people are opposed to a waivable fee. State Sen. Stan Rosenberg (D– Amherst) said he did not think a waivable fee was democratic because it assumes all students are part of the organization. Rosenberg said at election time he would support a positive check–off where students who wanted to contribuse to MASSPIRG added the money to their tuition bill, rather the current system where money must be subtracted to avoid donated money.

Jay Crossland, a MASSPIRG member, said he worked on the "No on 3" campaign. He said it is students' responsibility to look at their tuition bill to support the waivable fee.

"We are not trying to pull a fast one," Crossland said.

Crossland said he believes those opposed to the waivable fee are the same people who have ideological differences and problems with what PIRG does.

Upcoming projects

Increased funding will increase the projects MASSPIRG undertakes. Currently, there are four main events the UMass– Amherst chapter will be focusing on, ranging from Earth Day activities to helping homeless shelters.

Earth Day will be April 22, but before that time, MASSPIRG is working on a national campaign to block corporations from funding Earth Day.

"We are taking back the action for the consumer," Pezzullo said.

Volunteers will also be conducting a can drive, in addition to receiving pledges to clean up shelters in the area.

MASSPIRG is also pushing a "buy recycled" campaign in which is it asking the University administration to endorse a policy of buying 20 percent recycled, according to Pezzullo.

And MASSPIRG will be joining forces with other campus organizations to fight for higher education funding to make UMass accessible to all students. Students will be lobbying the Statehouse April 11 for increased funding and capping fees.

Elections will be taking place this Wednesday and Thursday when students will be voting for student government president and trustee, along with two ballot questions.

■ rally

continued from page 1

world community and the Chinese to begin negotiations for the restoration and self–determination of Tibet.

The Tibetan Peace Movement, said demonstrators, is the frustrated response of the ordinary Tibetans in exile, because of the lack of progress in starting these negotiations. The Tibetan culture and civilization is on the verge of becoming extinct, according to recent figures cited at the demonstration.

The Tibetan people in exile have drafted a list of demands including, stopping population transfer, freeing political prisoners, stopping the destruction of Tibet's environment, sending a delegation to monitor the factual situation in every part of Tibet, preserving Tibetan culture, language and environment, and withdrawing Chinese troops and arsenal from Tibet to make Tibet a zone of peace.

"The most critical threat confronting the Tibetans today," said Tibetan Association spokesperson Ehame Choden, "is the massive influx of Chinese civilians into Tibet. The 7.5 million Chinese now outnumber the 6 million Tibetans."

Choden was very pleased with the turnout and thanked the various groups that participated. Choden said that "we need the official support of the United States Congress and government to make this movement successful."

Choden also thanked the American sponsors of the Tibetan immigrants, and said that when the immigrants arrived everything was arranged for them, including their rent and employment.

Group organizes against Contract

By Tim White
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts is joining over 90 campuses nationwide to try to rally support to oppose the Republicans' Contract with America, calling it "the biggest threat to education affordability."

Last week, the Alliance for Student Power (ASP), the student organization that initiated the UMass drive, came together with other campus groups to form a coalition specifically to rally against Contract With America, said Charles Lenchner, an ASP member. The contract comprises the newly drafted Republican agenda.

"[The Contract] encompasses a lot of information, there [are] things in there that will effect everyone — environment, women's rights, minority issues," said Kenneth Miller, an ASP member. "There's not a group that is politically active that it doesn't have an effect on."

The March 29 Day of Action Coalition currently has individual students, the ASP, Everywoman's Center and the Cannabis Reform Coalition as members. They are actively seeking a number of community organizations, Miller said.

"We also have a formal endorsement from the Student Government Association and the Graduate Student Senate," Miller said.

The rally will be happening at universities across the country to fight the contract on the idea that it will hurt students receiving financial aid and student loans, Lenchner said.

"We want to educate as many people as we can about the Contract With America," said Karen Thornburg a member of the ASP.

Currently, there are no specific plans for the rally pending on a meeting tonight in the Cape Cod Lounge where they will decide on the format, said Miller.

"We definitely have a march planned," said Miller. "We haven't decided the destination of the march. The basic idea is we do not support the contract."

According to Miller, the Republican Club has recently reserved the Student Union steps on the same day as the rally.

"What's going on on–campus is just a reflection of what's going on around the country," said Lenchner. "Students are worried."

Miller said the contract would force students to pay for the interest on their financial aid while still in school, making school even more expensive.

"[The Contract with America] hurts other groups too — it's targeting affirmative action," said Lenchner. "It also says that higher education is not for welfare moms."

Lenchner said the contract would withhold financial aid to mothers on welfare who want to attend college.

"[The Republicans] are trying to hurt people in a malicious and destructive way," Lenchner said.

Miller said the intention of this national rally, through student awareness and media coverage, is to hopefully tell the politicians that Americans do not approve of the contract.

"We want to send a message that these politicians should not expect complacency," said Miller. "We're hoping this is going to be a pretty positive political experience. [Students] should realize that things are not going to happen if they don't go out and do something."

■ police

continued from page 1

removed in two years if no further incidents occur and termination of employment. It also prohibits the public from harassing town employees.

Although only one complaint has been filed thus far, and successfully handled, Bodhi said she feels having a sexual harassment policy is progress.

"Creating a policy is a better step than no step," said Bodhi. "We are officially saying we do not sanction harassment of any kind."

If the complaint or respondent disagrees with the outcome of an investigation, the policy allows them to file complaints with outside organizations such as the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination (MCAD) and conduct a separate investigation into the complaint.

The new policy has been distributed to approximately 300 full and part–time town employees who also received training on what could be construed as harassment and to help them understand what is acceptable behavior.

■ debate

continued from page 1

matics department, who spoke for the hamantash in a speech entitled, "The Five Divine Manifestations of Hamantashen as Revealed in an 11th Century Kabbalistic Manuscript."

Ellis told of looking through the Holy books for wisdom in mathematics and that what little of it was there was incorrect. Then he spoke of the discovery of an eleventh century Kabbalistic manual wherein food was used for teaching. Kabbalah is jewish mysticism. Latkes were rejected straight out, he said, because they were flat and round.

According to Ellis, Hamantashen were used as an ideal because of their many sizes. This manual spoke of many "hamantashic solids" such as dodecahedrons and octahedrons and more.

He said these shapes even caused Albert Einstein to come up with his famed formula E=mc_. Originally, according to Ellis, he thought it was just E=mc but then when he saw five edges on the hamantash he realized what it truly was. Ellis ended by lamenting the loss of the greater–sided hamantash for the three–sided ones now in use.

Jay Neugeboren of the English department started his speech on "Deconstructing the Latke: The Semiotics of the Semi–colon and the Colon" by reciting a mantra by "famed scholar Froylach ben Suras." "A hamantash leads one to fart, but a latke, ah, a latke leads one to art."

He spoke on the five P's of the hamantash: prunes, paste, pits, poppy seeds, and pain. Neugeboren spoke on how much pain it caused for the triangular hamantashen to pass through the colon, while the round smooth potato latkes were much easier.

Neugeboren then went on to dissect both words. Of hamantashen, he said what kind of Jewish food has "ham," "ants," and "ashes?" Latkes, however, he broke down into the words "lot" and "kiss." He even attributed the problems with the ozone layer to hamantashen. "How can you have an O–zone with triangular food?"

The final speaker was Pat Greenfield, the director of the Labor Relations and Research Center, who spoke on "The Hamantashen and Worker Rights, A Labor Perspective."

Greenfield told the role that the hamantash had in the formation of unions. It was a secret symbol, so the organizers of early unions could recognize each other.

She showed a painting of union supporters outside of a courtroom where unions were first declared illegal. She pointed to a number of three–cornered hats and other triangles in the picture showing her support. Greenfield also played songs about labor organizations that included hamantashen.

Greenfield finished with a plea to latke makers, whom she said had no protection if they should be hurt on the job or had to miss work due to illness. "Latke workers unite; you have nothing to lose but your chains and your oil."

A vote at the end of the debate ended in a tie, prompting Perlmutter to declare that the great debate would have to continue next year.

Need to sell something before break?
Collegian Classifieds
They work!

SPONGE
ON TOUR WITH LIVE.

WWW.SONY.COM WORK
"ROTTING PIÑATA" THE DEBUT ALBUM. FEATURING PLOWED.
SPONGE
Available at For The Record
$11.90 CD $7.99 Cassette

It's election time
Check out tomorrow's Collegian for the scoop on the candidates and the issues in the upcoming student government election.

$99
FLEX FITNESS CENTER AMHERST, MA
The Valley's Leading Weight Training Facility
175 University Drive, Amherst • 253-3539
FOR SEMESTER

The Distinguished Visitors Program Presents:
"The Abortion Debate Continues"
Is a woman's Right to Choose In Danger?
What Will Happen in '96?
What Are the Changing Roles Of Men and Women?
Where Do You Stand?
Sarah Weddington — Attorney who successfully argued "Roe Vs. Wade," making abortion legal in the U.S.
Phyllis Schlafly — Pioneer of American Conservatism, Radio commentator and writer
Weddington & Schlafly will go head to head to debate these issues and more . . .
Wednesday March 15, 1995, 8pm
Fine Arts Center Concert hall
University of Massachusetts, Amherst
distinguished visitors program
Free to all UMASS undergraduates with valid ID, $2 for the public.

STUDENT FARES
LONDON $250
AMSTERDAM $430
PARIS $438
FRANKFURT $458
MADRID $498
BRUSSELS $430
MOSCOW $518
ZURICH $478
PRAGUE $458
EURAIL FROM $255
FARES BASED ON RT FROM BOSTON. TAXES NOT INCLUDED. STUDENT ID MAY BE REQUIRED. DEPARTURES THRU 3/31. FARES SUBJECT TO CHANGE.
council travel
793 PLEASANT ST. 2ND FL AMHERST, MA 01002
413-256-1261

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Darienne J. Hosley Editor-in-Chief Kelly Spang Managing Editor
Michael McRae Business Manager Andrew D. Davidson Production Manager Lisa Tannenbaum Advertising Manager
James P. Gunley Advertising Production Manager Lisa Greenfield Senior Diversity Editor

Matt Audette Arts & Living Editor Paul Bilodeau Photography Editor
Chris Taylor Conner Black Affairs Editor Andrew Bryce, Matt Voutour Sports Editors
Matt Wurtzel Business Editor Jeff Wilson Staff Artist
Juan Jose Chacon Quiros Developing Nations Editor Lisa Greenfield, Colleen Shanahan Women's Issues Editors
Tracy Monahan Editorial/Opinion Editor Mami E. Heffner Editorial Production Manager
Wendy Darling Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor John Khachadoorian Finance Manager
Jacob W. Michaels Jewish Affairs Editor Eric Abenaim Distribution Manager
Herman Rozemberg Multicultural Affairs Editor Maureen Majerowski Senior Bookkeeper
Jessica Taverna News Editor Marty Pappas Classified Advertising

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1956. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

Ugly Joe and the ice people

Nathan Crick

Ugly Joe was not a happy man.

He was sitting in the pool room in Delanos next to the arcade game with the pink gun. Stupid fairy gun, he thought. He gripped his plastic cup and kept crushing in the edges and spilling beer on his knee. Stupid plastic cup.

"Heeyyyyy Georgie!" he yelled loudly across the room at the blurry image of his friend, who gestured and then returned talking to some girl. That made Ugly Joe mad. He did not like being ignored. "Whatsup Georgie?" he called again, but this time the blur did not move. Stupid girl.

A big thing appeared in front of him, and said "excuse me," while almost poking him with a pool stick.

"Whoa, there!" Ugly Joe called, laughing. He leaned over, knocking over another friendly blur next to him. "Whoa! Gettin' mighty loud in here!" he yelled, laughing. "Sorry bud!" he said to his friend that he knocked over, and patted him hard on the shoulder, spilling more beer on the guy's shirt.

Ugly Joe leaned back on his knees, absently crushing his cup. Pearl Jam came on the jukebox. He loved Pearl Jam.

"Yeah! I love Pearl Jam!" he told everyone.

A pair of legs walked past him, and was talking with a pair of breasts. They both moved into the corner under the television. They belonged to girls that he recognized. They were nice to watch. Guys were no fun to watch. He wanted to punch them. They made him feel stupid. He wasn't stupid, dammit.

"What's up dude?" he yelled, and punched the guy next to him in the shoulder, spilling his beer again.

******

Crazy Bill thought the music was cool. Pearl Jam was okay, but the way the sound came out of the walls and seeped into the people was great. It was like the people were just big notes. Big black notes, drinking beer.

Someone poked him on the shoulder, and offered him pretzels. That was so cool. It was like they knew he was hungry. Yeah. "Yeah, thanks man," Crazy Bill said, staring at the bowl of pretzels. He liked them so much he took the bowl and cradled it to his chest, eating them. Some people were laughing at him, making more music. That was funny.

There were people coming in and out of a back room. He wanted to go there. Motion was good. Protecting the pretzels, he weaved slowly through the crowd, staring at his feet. Thump. Thump. Thump. Like a drum.

In the room was a pool table. Pretty colored balls were on top of it, like marbles or jelly beans. They made cracking sounds. Above it was a big plastic bottle in a block of ice. Light reflected inside of it. There was a whole other world in there. Little ice people drinking out of their ice bottles.

Crazy Bill leaned on a wall, eating his pretzels. On the television was a basketball game. There were shots of the crowd, and of players acting excited. He thought it looked like a big warehouse of sheep cheering other sheep who liked to dunk. They were all like the guy by the arcade machine who kept yelling and spilling beer.

Watching the red ball was better. It rolled and bounced off the bumpers, slowed neared the pocket, and dropped in, disappearing forever. Crazy Joe jumped in surprise, and dropped a pretzel on the floor.

"Whoa..." he said.

Under the television, two girls were sitting and laughing. They were like sculptures, like those ones that people carved in Italy. The line of the wall turned into lines of hair into arms and legs and flowed into the floor. It was elegant.

One glanced up at him for a second, and then laughed. They were laughing at him, he thought. He didn't like being laughed at. Maybe everyone was looking at him. laughing. He glanced sround, and could find eyes passing over him. They were like needles, picking into his skin. The ice people were looking at him too. He didn't belong here.

Crazy Bill pushed himself away from the wall and walked hurriedly back into the music and the notes, feeling pressures of needles on his back. Thump. Thump.

******

Val wished she had worn something darker. In her bright white shirt she felt like a light bulb in a dark room. All the moths were looking at her. She wanted to get away from all the crowd, and went back into the pool room with her friend Tara. They sat down in the corner, hoping it would offer a place to rest from all the men.

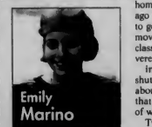
Unfortunately, some guy was there who she had once been forced to talk to, and he was yelling and stumbling and ogling them as usual. Luckily, though, he usually got drunk enough to get in a fight and get kicked out pretty early in the night. She was telling Tara this when she noticed some other guy eating pretzels and staring quite blatantly at them, running his eyes over their bodies.

"Look over at that guy and laugh," she said to Tara.

The ice people fled. Ugly Joe began to drool on himself.

Nathan Crick is a Collegian columnist.

Negativity won't pull you through



"I totally sucks," she said, pushing her glasses up as she spoke to one of the many who was unlucky enough to have to stand on the packed bus to Northampton on Friday night.

"I hate my roommate, but my rent is so high I can't afford to kick her out. And my classes! I didn't get anything I signed up for, and my schedule sucks. I'm like, always riding this stupid bus to the ugly campus for pointless classes. The saddest thing is graduating from this hole. The degree I get won't even be worth the piece of paper it's printed on. If you need proof of that just look around at the people on this bus who will have "earned" the same degree by the time they graduate."

The guy she was talking to smiled uncomfortably and tried to scoff. I rolled my eyes, smiled at my friend sitting next to me, and said, "Man, doesn't life just blow sometimes?" This woman was clearly not a happy person, and did not hesitate to let the bus know why.

My friend and I were on our way to a night of silly, crazy fun, and Ms. Unhappy's lament was not going to spoil our good moods. As she continued to verbally trash every aspect of university life, I began to feel sorry for her. How could her life be so miserable that she felt justified in forcing the bus to listen to her angry self-pity?

I began to think about my own life, and about negativity in general. I had to admit that there are times when I am so weighed down by stuff — academically and emotionally — that I get lost in my head and am not a very pleasant person to deal with. I overthink things to the point that I sometimes overlook reality and make situations out to be worse than they are.

For example, since the beginning of the semester I had not gotten along with one of my housemates because ... I didn't know why. Of course housemates get on each others' nerves, but our relationship had deteriorated from a decent friendship to quick hellos in the hallway between our rooms.

I thought about what might have triggered our coolness toward one another, and could not find one good reason that we should be unfriendly. The next day we talked and agreed the situation did not make sense. We have since begun exchanging friendly banter, erasing a mountain of unnecessary tension between us.

Negativity comes in many forms, from holding meaningless grudges to worrying sick about post-graduation plans (and possible failure). Some sticky situations, I think, arise when we stop listening to ourselves, and stop making decisions according to what we feel we want to do. If I had been more in tune with myself, I might have realized a lot sooner that the hassle of giving my housemate the cold shoulder was worse than any feelings I had toward her.

Likewise, the worry of graduation and what I plan to do next year has steam-rolled almost all prospects of my actually enjoying my last weeks here. Could I end up at home, the nest I thought I left four years ago for "the rest of my life?" Do I want to go to graduate school, or do I want to move to California and not think about a classroom for a while? Can I even persevere through my last classes here?

In the midst of my anxious frenzy, I shut down. I suddenly stopped worrying about the next year of my life, figuring that time was going to pass regardless of whether or not I had a master plan.

Two months is not a long time to have to make these decisions. Unfortunately, our community will continue to suffer until each of us takes responsibility for our actions and their effects. We need to take the time to listen carefully to what others are saying and to try to put ourselves in their places.

Debate and disagreement are a creative part of life and encourage the process of finding common ground. Name- calling, intimidation, and physical assault are neither acceptable nor productive. We must come together to build a better climate and a more welcoming and supportive community rather than spend our time in acrimonious finger-pointing.

Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs
Thomas B. Robinson
Chancellor David K. Scott

Doonesbury By Garry Trudeau

AS MR. BUTT'S RECALLS IT.
SO I'M JUST READING THE NEWS PAPER, OKAY?
DAILY BLAH
MKSU
STATES OUT OF CONTROL!
SUDDENLY I SEE THE NEWS THAT STATES ARE PRESSING CLASS ACTION SUITS AGAINST TOBACCO COMPANIES! I CAN SCARCELY BELIEVE MY PEEPERS!
FRANKLY, I'M STEAMED! THIS IS SUPPOSED TO BE A CONSERVATIVE ERA - WITH LESS INTERFERENCE FROM GOVERNMENT!
I DECIDE TO DEMAND AN EXPLANATION!
WHAT'S THE DEAL WITH ALL THE LAWSUITS?
I DON'T CONTROL THE COURTS.
YET.

Opinion/Editorial

Letters to the Editor

Chancellor asks for responsibility

To the editor:

Over the course of the past few weeks, a number of disturbing incidents have occurred on our campus. Most publicized was the use of a racial slur by an employee to a student in Franklin Dining Commons, but there was also an assault on an Asian student by three non-students near the library. There was an incident between Native American and other students near the Josephine White Eagle Center in Chadbourne. Two African-American students were mistakenly accused of shoplifting in the campus center store, an event that left them shaken, angry, and feeling publicly humiliated.

Beyond these specific incidents, our community fails to value and accept our diversity in more general ways. Many Jewish students, faculty, staff and alumni are concerned that there is an anti-Semitic agenda on the campus. Latinos do not find this campus to be welcoming to those who are multilingual. Gay, lesbian, and bisexual students are the constant targets of physical and verbal assault and harassment. Those with disabilities find school and work difficult on a campus where some refuse to grant accommodations that are required by law. Graduate Student Senate leaders have put forth their view that there is systematic harassment of graduate students, particularly international students. Sexual assault in all forms, especially acquaintance rape, continues to be a problem on campus.

We raise these painful and unpleasant matters because we believe they must be the concern of every member of our campus community — students, staff, faculty, and administrators. Administrative rules and policies and the use of criminal statutes to deter unacceptable behavior will never eliminate it. Although we will continue to use both the campus judicial system and the courts to force identified perpetrators to answer for themselves, as well as strive to ensure that campus policies are both fair and applied even- handedly, our community will continue to suffer until each of us takes responsibility for our actions and their effects. We need to take the time to listen carefully to what others are saying and to try to put ourselves in their places.

Debate and disagreement are a creative part of life and encourage the process of finding common ground. Name- calling, intimidation, and physical assault are neither acceptable nor productive. We must come together to build a better climate and a more welcoming and supportive community rather than spend our time in acrimonious finger-pointing.

Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs
Thomas B. Robinson
Chancellor David K. Scott

Weld's cabinet member speaks out

To the editor:

Some time ago, I wrote a letter to UMass President Michael Hooker concerning a collective bargaining proposal for the UMass faculty that he had submitted to my office for approval. Under existing state law, the Executive Office of Administration and Finance must either accept or reject submitted proposals within 45 days. Most of the time, if EOAF decides to reject a proposal, we simply do not file a supplemental appropriation to fund the agreement during that 45-day period. In this case, I chose to communicate with President Hooker, believing that it would have been inappropriate to reject such a significant proposal without an explanation.

Since then, I have had discussions with people I know on the faculty and received numerous letters from faculty members and school administrators. Believe it or not, I think there is more common ground here than there may appear to be at first glance. Many people wrote to me about more than salary structure. They wrote about working conditions, information technology and capital requirements. Many of these issues appear high on our list of priorities as well. We have filed — twice — a $200 million capital bond bill for UMass, and have included another $10 million for information technology projects in our second technology bond bill. We believe there are many opportunities to improve capital infrastructure, as well as access to information, and plan to work aggressively to secure these opportunities.

With regard to salaries, I never said that the UMass faculty was "underworked and overpaid." In fact, when asked exactly that question, I denied that my letter or my actions supported such a statement. Every reference to such a statement has been paraphrasing. However, I did say that a large across-the-board increase was not consistent with efforts we are pursuing in collective bargaining negotiations, and that there was no compelling evidence that the UMass faculty was currently underpaid, relative to its peers. I also expressed an interest in pursuing further discussions with the University around contract standards, and noted that faculty pay, tenure policies and teaching schedules were being hotly debated on almost every public and private university campus in the country.

For the past several years, the Commonwealth has made a significant investment in public higher education — a 23 percent increase in operating support over three years. We have included hundreds of millions of dollars in capital projects in our most recent bond bills to enhance working conditions, and to improve people's capacity to access knowledge and information. Finally, we are anxious to secure a contract agreement that we can support, and look forward to working with the University to do so.

Charles D. Baker
Massachusetts secretary for administration and finance

Article unfairly stereotypes residents

To the editor:

On March 10, Dave Copeland wrote a column entitled, "You know you're a redneck when..." In this column he wrote, "Amherst Townies are generally members of the human sub-class considered the next evolutionary step after rednecks." He goes on to say that "because you are a student, they don't like you." However, could it be that they don't like him not because he is a student, but because he is asinine?

He proceeds to list two people, "whose names have been changed to protect the inbred." Dave is far kinder than I, for I have not changed his name to protect the inbred. Throughout his column, Dave places himself on an intellectual pedestal based on his superior taste in beer, lack of firearms, and ability to attend college. He denounces these "hicks" for their ignorant close-minded views, stating that Fred, one of the evil townies, would rather use his firepower to solve America's problems then Dave's own, "alternative flower power."

What are these closed-minded views exactly? Is it that the townies stereotype all the students as condescending ousiders who come into their town and act like they're so much better? What could ever give these illiterate back- woods people such an idea? Could it be a column in the Collegian that groups all Amherst residents into one "human sub-class" that dictates you have to 'Buy a gun. Chew tobacco. Button your flannel shirt to the top. Smear manure on your overalls and get used to drinking Bud'?"

Dave Copeland's superiority comes not from any achievement on his own, but merely the ability to point at someone less fortunate and ridicule them. Good job, Dave!

The whole column reeked of a junior high school boy gawking at a girl with glasses who doesn't know it's cool to listen to Richard Marx. Dave Copeland is nothing but the other cheek of the same ass he is describing.

Eugene Mirman
Hampshire

Drug problem not limited

To the editor:

The UMass Campus does have a drug problem, and it is alcohol, not marijuana as Robert Laramee claimed in his recent column. Everything he mentions in his article as a risk of using cannabis is a result of drug prohibition. The effects that he described are seldom seen and are caused by contamination of the drug. It is the prohibition of marijuana that forces it into the black market and that causes almost all of the mentioned ill-effects.

I've also seen much more money pissed away on alcohol than on pot. Alcohol kills hundreds of thousands of people each year. Marijuana has never been lethal. Robert seems to think marijuana makes one violent and psychopathic. On a lonely walk home would you rather bump into a large gang of drunks or of stoners?

Prohibition didn't work when alcohol was illegal and it isn't working now. The harder they crack down the more money there is to be made in the drug game. The GOP's first President, Abraham Lincoln said in 1840, "A prohibition law strikes a blow at the very principles upon which our government was founded."

Near the end of his article Mr. Laramee seems to be suggesting that the University should pay people to narc on their fellow roommates. That's a really good idea Robert, it would be very cost effective to weed out the thousands of people who smoke cannabis on this campus so that you can have peace of mind. UMass has so much money and pot smoking is such a big problem here. It would also help build the sense of community around the campus. It wouldn't make sense to change the law so that people who choose to use cannabis can grow it almost for free.

You have the right to think what you want Robert, but I believe that if you oppose the re-legalization of cannabis you are either ignorant or making money off of it.

Todd Nixon
Amherst

Arts & Living

French dancers perform at FAC

Famous ballet company dances beautiful, emotional works

By Seema Gangatirkar
Collegian Staff

THE BALLET THEATRE DE BOURDEAUX
Fine Arts Center
March 9

AMHERST — The world famous Ballet Theatre de Bordeaux enchanted a sizable crowd at the Fine Arts Center on March 9. Led by principle male dancer Guiseppe Della Monica, the company enchanted the audience with a unique mixture of grace and beauty only ballet can combine.

The Ballet Company opened up with a dance called Les Nuits D'Etes (Summer Nights). The dance, originally composed to poems by Theophile Gautier, featured Monica.

Monica portrayed a dying man who relives the loves of his life. He danced with emotion, passion, and sensuality. He was joined by five different women. As each woman joined him and then left him, he removed an article of his clothing as if to show that as each woman left his life, a part of him also left.

Ghostly Paola Battistino danced the role of the woman in grey. Christelle Lara portrayed the pure and innocent woman in white and immediately won over the audience with her grace and elegance. Lara possessed wonderful skill and danced en pointe with ease.

Fiery and seductive Emmanuelle Grizot was the woman in red — a dramatic change from the delicate performance delivered by Lara. Isabelle Boutot, the woman in black, portrayed the grief associated with a final loss.

This last part of the dance was emotional and beautiful as Monica showed his agony by hitting parts of his body and often appealing to the sky — as if begging God for mercy. In the background lurked an enigmatic "She," danced by Chantal Perpignan. Monica never danced with Perpignan, though at one time he came very close, but was interrupted by the emergence of Boutot.

The second dance, Carmina Burana, was much more lively and more energetic. The dance is based on poems in Latin, Old German and Old French about wine, women and love. Once again, it featured soloists Battistino, Lara, Monica, Boutot, Virginie Kempf, Jean-Jacques Herment, and Giles Martin.

The soloists emerged dressed in fabulous masks and wings attached to ornate robes. The music was dramatic and changed mood and tone depending on which of the soloists were dancing. One of the highlights of the performance came from Martin, who portrayed the sun.

As Martin emerged from the shadows, the Corps de Ballet shied away from him, as if blinded by his radiance. Lara delivered another spectacular performance as Terra, while Boutot was fabulous as Fortuna. Monica portrayed an obviously drunk and passionate Bacchus while Kempf's portrayal of Amour was delicate and sweet. Hermant was Tempo while Battistino was a genius Notte.

This dance also featured spectacular performances from the Corps de Ballet itself. The Corps is very talented and performed very original and creative moves. At the end of the performance, the audience rewarded the Company's skill with a standing ovation which they rightly deserved for dancing such a beautiful and moving show.

Tuskegee Golden Voices shine in FAC

By Chris Conner
Collegian Staff

TUSKEGEE UNIVERSITY "GOLDEN VOICES" CHOIR
Fine Arts Center
March 8, 1995

According to Stephen L. Hayes, director of the renowned Tuskegee Golden Voices Choir, the importance of performing Negro spirituals lies in "keeping an art form alive."

On their latest tour, centered around the theme of "The African Experience in America," the Alabama chorale more than adequately breathed life into the secular pieces which helped to spawn the majority of modern African-American music.

More specifically, the concert was a celebration of two centennials, Tuskegee founder Booker T. Washington's "Atlanta Exposition Speech," and the birthday of William Grant Steele, considered by many to be "the dean of African-American composers."

Wednesday's performance, divided by theme into three sections, opened with a series of European-American selections before shifting to a two-song tribute of Steele.

One of the best-executed pieces, a Shaker song entitled "Bow Down Low," prominently exhibited the exquisitely controlled crescendos and decrescendos that would provide many of the evening's vocal thrills.

Capping off the first third of the night was the technically arduous "Hehlelhuia," during which the choir skillfully bobbed and weaved through a text requiring intricate polymetric harmonies, the result being thunderous applause from the audience at the song's close.

Transition from section to section came smoothly for Hayes' group, as evidenced by the best selection in the middle portion, "There's a Balm in Gilead."

Choir member Kendrick Chiles' sensitive tenor perfectly complimented the somber tone of the piece, as well as Tuskegee graduate Lionel Richie's "God Is Love," on which Chiles shared lead vocals with fellow tenor Wendall Paris in the final section of the concert.

Perhaps the evening's most Intriguing feature was the reading of Washington's famous speech by choir member Olivia Andrews, accented by the soft hum of the choir in the background and the nimble dance of Tatum Hayes.

New show to mix medicine and comedy

By Lynn Elber
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — We already have "ER" and "Chicago Hope." There's "University Hospital" in syndication. And now Fox is squaring the fourth corner of our TV sickbed with "Medicine Ball."

"Medicine Ball" is age-appropriate for Fox: It follows the adventures of young, raw residents as they scrub up professionally for the first time. "ER's" crew looks darn near grizzled by comparison.

The lushly tressed "Medicine Ball" cast — this IS Fox — is appealing, and the series has a breezy charm that is only sometimes cloying.

But is there a risk in this massive dose of telemedicine? Could America become a nation of hypochondriacs, desperate for more health care (aha! — perhaps a Democratic plot)? Or maybe we'll be reassured there's more than enough medical TLC to go around (is the GOP behind this?).

Shove those social concerns aside. I see a major personal dividend to be gained: a new profession. Less than one year in the TV College of Medical Knowledge and I'm ready to hang up my shingle.

OK, so I failed to fully grasp high school biology. And maybe the viewing time falls short of the years put in by real docs; they, however, can't claim the kind of undiluted crisis-upon-crisis transfusion delivered by TV.

You wanna be a doctor, too? Or maybe just a better-prepared patient? Don one of those newly chic stethoscopes, the face mask that sets off your eyes so alluringly, and study the following: Intubation skills are a must, with nearly every emergency patient getting a breathing tube thrust down their throat. Forget mom's admonition about wearing good underwear just in case; with an ER crew peering intently, flossing and brushing are recommended.

• The ability to carry a tune is key. Broadway musical theater has nothing on hospitals, stocked with singing doctors and sometimes patients. Pending scientific study, the results must rival antibiotics.

On "Chicago Hope," Dr. Geiger sings in the operating room for concentration and sometimes just to annoy. Anesthetized patients can't issue requests or complain.

• On "ER," a husband offers a tender farewell song to his dead wife as teary-eyed staff members watch. Famous, talented relatives (Rosemary Clooney, aunt to hunk doc George Clooney) wander down corridors warbling.

An original move from "Medicine Ball": its doctor is a saxophone man, cool enough to perform in a club, not just before the bedridden.

Doctors REALLY get to play doctor. They grope in hallways and in examining rooms. They go all the way in hospital locker rooms, sometimes even with their own spouses (Dr. Greene on "ER").

They do it with patients ("ER"), they do it with nurses ("ER" again, "Chicago Hope"), they do it with their colleagues' wives ("Chicago Hope"). The Hippocratic Oath, apparently, doesn't address sexual standards.

• There's time for hanky-panky, but not for real family life. Prepare to commit yourself to helping humanity at risk of alienating spouses (Dr. Greene on "ER") or ignoring elderly, ill parents (Dr. Benton, "ER").

• Medical personnel have an odd sense of social propriety and humor. On "ER," staff members throw a festive welcome-back party for a nurse who made a failed suicide attempt. They post a doctor's sexually transmitted disease test results on a bulletin board. And folks say JOURNALISTS are tasteless.

Live pushes the right buttons

By Mike MacLean
Collegian Staff

LIVE
Mullins Center
March 11

EMILY RILEY / COLLEGIAN

Ed Kowalczyk, lead singer of Live, played a short but intense show at the William D. Mullins Center Sunday. Love Spit Love opened the show with a less-than-inspiring lineup of songs, which did not put a damper on the main performance.

Despite lead singer Ed Kowalczyk's effort to convince the audience otherwise, it was clear halfway through Live's performance Saturday night that they are the '90s version of the arena rock theatrics that were so popular in the '70s.

Arena rock, for all its lights and effects, is all about pushing the crowd's buttons, and Live proved that it knows exactly which buttons to push.

This isn't necessarily a bad thing, however. Saturday's show proved that pushing those buttons can still work, and can still be fun.

Opening the show with a powerful rendition of the first song off of their latest album, "The Dam At Otter Creek," it was clear that this was not going to be your ordinary alterna-rock concert.

It wasn't until after the quartet had finished performing the songs "Selling The Drama," "All Over You" and "Pain Lies On The Riverside" (one of only two songs done off of the band's first release Mental Jewelry) that Kowalczyk said anything to the audience except the obligatory "Hi," and "How are you?"

What Kowalczyk went on to tell the crowd was how he doesn't have good segueways between songs because they aren't an arena rock band. He then ironically proceeded to introduce "Waitress" and flood the place with strobe lights.

Other tricks included the use of flood lights, projecting shapes on the masses in the audience, and sweeping the lights towards the ceiling at the end of songs.

Kowalczyk's voice was made for this type of energetic show. He projected with extreme authority and showed he can hit a wide range of notes without losing his intonation.

"Lightning Crashes" (got your lighter?) and "Pillar Of Davidson" carried 10 times the emotional intensity live, thanks to Kowalczyk's voice.

Other highlights included the anthemic "I Alone" and the time-stop arrangements of "Iris."

But the ultimate pinnacle was achieved after the band left the stage to prepare for the encore — which, after only 40 minutes of music, was inevitable.

After five minutes of thunderous applause, bassist Patrick Dahlheimer and drummer Chad Gracey returned to the stage and began the slow groove of "T.B.D." and repeated it as Kowalczyk let the tension rise by not returning to the stage.

He instead showed up and sung the first half of the tune in the crowd, receiving the customary "rock-god" groping from the audience.

For those now wondering, no, there were no pyrotechnics used at all.

After ending the evening for good with "White, Discussion," it was puzzling why they did not play for longer.

Only performing two songs from Mental Jewelry, "Take My Anthem" and the aforementioned "Pain Lies On The Riverside," the set list was disappointing for anyone who has been along for the ride since the beginning.

In the end, however, it was clear that Live is indeed getting used to the arena format.

They know the tricks and can play the crowd, which, in larger venues, is often as important as the music itself.

Love Spit Love opened the show with a set so completely stuck in the eighties you had to reassure yourself that Doran Duran, in all their big-hair splendor, wasn't going on next.

Richard Butler utilized the bullhorn like it had just been invented (Butthole Surfers and R.E.M., anyone?) and pranced around on stage enough to make even the biggest Robert Smith fan sick to their stomach.

All of this would have been excusable if the music had been good — but, alas, it wasn't.

Still Interested in Arts & Living?

It's not too late to start writing about what's hot in the Valley in music, art, theater and much more. Stop down at the Collegian and ask to talk to Matt, Tara, Justin or Mike.

Lincoln Real Estate
253-7879 • 25 N. Pleasant St. (above McDonald's)
Has the best selection of 1,2,&3 bedroom Apartments with gas heat.
We begin showing apartments in April and May for June or September occupancy

This two session program (classes are one week apart) includes information on exercise, some anatomy, massage, treatment options, posturetips and pain relief methods.

Tuesday, April 4th & 11th
6:00 to 8:00 P.M.
University Health Services
Room 304

Call University Health Services Physical Therapy Department for more information and registration 549-2671 Ext. 158

Presenting:
A series of Forums on Racism
??WHERE DO YOU STAND??

Tuesday, March 14
7:00 pm
Campus Center
Room 162-169

A Panel Discussion on:
Hate Speech
or
Free Speech

Free Pizza!

Sponsored By: Campus Activities Office, Social Thought and Political Economy Program and The Chancellor's Commission on Civility and Human Relations

★ Night of the STARS ★
Monday Night Pep Rally

March 13, 1995
8:00 P.M.
at the Cage

It's the Return of:
RAGE IN THE CAGE!!!

Salute JOHN CALIPARI and the MINUTEMEN as they GO on their way to THE NCAA TOURNAMENT

★ FREE POPCORN ★ 50/50 RAFFLE ★ WIN PRIZES
Sponsored by the UMASS STARS STudent Alumni Relations Society

Massachusetts baseball drops first three at ODU

By Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Collegian Staff

COURTESY OF MEDIA RELATIONS
Mark Pileski

Call it the New England college baseball syndrome. Travel south for the beginning of the season, absorb loss after loss at the hands of teams that have been playing since February, and, when you return home, finally begin your "true" season.

Thus is the case yet again for the University of Massachusetts baseball team, as the Minutemen began the first part of the season this past weekend in Norfolk, Va., against Old Dominion. The Monarchs came into the three- game weekend series with 14 games under their belts. The Minutemen? Zero.

Massachusetts coach Mike Stone went with this season's No. 1 arm in Game 1 against ODU (12-5), senior Jay Murphy. The righthander was touched up for 10 runs on 15 hits in five and two-thirds innings of work, en route to a 14- 2 defeat at the hands of the Monarchs.

After the Minutemen took a 1-0 lead in the top of the first on a sacrifice fly by Mark Pileski, ODU answered with three runs of its own in the bottom of the frame. The Massachusetts offense was inept, accounting for only three hits.

The Minuteman bats awoke somewhat in Game 2, despite the 12-5 setback. Leftfielder Nelson Ubaldo and centerfielder Nate Murphy picked up two hits a piece in the losing effort. Sophomore Chad Paronto pitched four and two-thirds innings, giving up eight runs on eight hits, picking up the loss.

Senior first baseman Jeff Michaels and Pileski each hit solo homers in the ninth inning.

In the third game, Massachusetts tied the game at 5-5 in the top of the fifth inning, before ODU scored two runs in the bottom of the sixth to regain the lead. The Minutemen dropped their third game in a row to ODU for the final 12-7 score.

Massachusetts visits George Washington on Saturday, March 18, and will play a double-header with the Colonials. Game time is scheduled for noon.

UMass to NIT; upsets in Big East, ACC

For all those who thought that the University of Massachusetts women's basketball team's season finished with their 62-61 upset loss to seventh seeded West Virginia Thursday afternoon in the Atlantic 10 playoffs, guess again.

The Minutewomen have been invited to compete in the Women's National Invitational Tournament to be held March 23-25 in Amorillo, Texas.

UMass (18-9) is seeded fifth in the eight team tournament, and will face the Lady Rams of Virginia Commonwealth (19-8) in the opening round.

The Lady Rams' Niah Darcy is sixth in the nation with 12.7 rebounds per game, while the team has the nation's fourth stingiest defense, allowing just 56.6 points per game.

"This may end up being the best thing for us," coach Joanie O'Brien said. "This is the team that'll be here next year, and they're going to learn a lot from this trip. Hopefully, when it comes 1996, we'll see it pay off."

The Minutewomen tied the program's high for most victories this season with eighteen, and finished second in the Atlantic 10 regular season standings, behind only No. 19 George Washington. This season saw UMass' first nationally televised game from the Mullins Center and a surge in attendance, as a record 2,280 watched the GW game at Mullins. Still the season ended on a sour note as the upstart Lady Mountaineers knocked UMass out of the A-10 tourney.

"We needed just to play a game," O'Brien said. "That loss against West Virginia was so hard to take and you don't want it to linger. If that had lingered from now until October fifteenth that might have hurt us. I'm glad that we have another game, it'll be a great step for '95-'96."

— Leigh Torbin

• • •

Wake Forest 82, UNC 80 OT

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) - It was a scene that teams in the Atlantic Coast Conference had seen before. The game was on the line and Randolph Childress had the ball in his hands.

Duke saw it happen twice in back-to-back years in Durham. Virginia experienced it from the free throw line this season.

No. 4 North Carolina became the latest victim Sunday when Childress scored in the waning seconds of overtime to give the seventh-ranked Demon Deacons an 82-80 victory.

"We all knew I was going to take the shot," said Childress, named the tournament's most valuable player.

Childress penetrated the lane from near the center jump circle, drove to the right side of the lane and threw in a 10-footer with 4.6 seconds to go.

He scored all nine of Wake Forest's points in overtime, finished with a game-high 37 points and had 107 for the tournament - the most points by one player since North Carolina's Len Rosenbluth got 106 in the 1957 tourney.

"I attacked the one guy that was guarding me and I saw the double-team coming out of the corner of my eye and I went away from the double-team and dribbled into the lane," Childress said.

"I shot the runner and it went in. It was a great feeling, but at the same time, I just knew it wasn't over."

Villanova 94, Connecticut 78

NEW YORK (AP) - Villanova's first Big East tournament championship came on its second big win over Connecticut.

The 13th-ranked and second-seeded Wildcats got 27 points each from Kerry Kittles and Jason Lawson and withstood one furious rally in the second half before pulling away to a 94-78 victory Sunday.

The fourth championship game appearance — and first since 1988 — looked like it would be an easy first title when Villanova (25-7) led 67-50 with 12:42 to play.

The Huskies (25-4), the first team to ever repeat as Big East regular-season champions with a second straight 16-2 league mark, came up with an eight-minute stretch that brought them within 77-72 with 4:57 left.

That was all they could muster, though, as Connecticut didn't score again until there was 1:38 to play and by then Villanova's lead was back to 15 points.

A Big East tournament title a year after winning the NIT is an impressive turnaround for a program which still has its national success marked by the 1985 national championship.

"That was close to our best performance, if not our best performance of the season," Villanova coach Steve Lappas said. "It was great to see the two-year span with the terrific strides. It's so good for them to see the results when they work so hard and we work them so hard."

Kittles, the league's player of the year, made a sweep of conference honors as he was named the MVP of the tournament as well.

■ men's gym

continued from page 8

routine and just fed off of the emotion. Freshman Danny Young followed up his captains' performance with a 9.4. Next it was Kiat Oboler's turn. Up until this day, he felt he had not put the entire package of his routine together, but watching his routine yesterday, you would not believe him. He stuck every bit of his performance for a score of 9.6 which all but secured the victory.

All that was left was for sophomore Gabe Columbus to put up a first place preliminary score of 9.65 to put the nail in the coffin, as with that score UMass could not be caught.

"The main goal we had as a team was to win the ECAC's" Shupak said after setting his personal best and sixth overall individually in the all-around with a 54.75, "And we did that as a team, so I'm very happy."

Johnson reiterated what his standout sophomore said.

"I'm excited about how we performed today. These meets can be difficult with the format, but I feel we handled the situation well. We wanted to win the team championship and we did that."

Other medals won by Minutemen in the individual finals were: Columbus with a second place in the all around with a 55.40. Shupak and Young were second and fourth on the floor exercise. Funk tied for sixth on the pommel horse. Shupak was fourth on the rings. Freshman Mike Sangirardi tied for sixth on the vault and Obolier placed sixth in the high bar.

■ maine

continued from page 8

Mallen said. "When I was at Boston College we had a lot of wins up here. I relish coming in here tonight to play, because we are still playing."

Even Maine coach Shawn Walsh has seen and felt the difference in Alfond, and the home ice philosophy.

"Its a lot less intimate than what it used to be. But we still get that kind of good support, and tonight was a playoff atmosphere," Walsh said.

"That is why I am pleased with UMass. I thought they played well here, and this was good for their program to get to this game."

The recent addition of UMass and the Mullins Center into Hockey East has brought attendance levels to new heights. The Mullins Center is still second to Alfond, though, in HE home attendance with a difference of 3,975 per game to 5,129.

But for a first year team, what does this signify?

Will the torch of the most feared arena to play in be passed to the most recent arrival in the top league in the country?

To Boston University head coach Jack Parker, and to Minuteman head coach Joe Mallen, the first steps to challenge Alfond's dominance appear to have been taken already.

"That crowd tonight was very impressive, they drew very well. They were noisy, intimidating and will make this place a very tough building to come and play in," Parker said, about the 6,218 in attendance for BU's 7-0 win Nov. 18.

"Challenge has to be my middle name, and I think these kinds of challenges are starting to take shape [of the team]," Mallen said. "Our third or fourth years could be really good years for us as we start making progress toward winning the league."

■ hockey

continued from page 8

top 3-2.

After Norton was whistled off for holding at 18:52, it took Maine only 38 seconds to extend their lead to 4-2. Jeff Tory faked a shot and slid the puck to an open Dan Shermerhorn at the post, who stuffed the puck past Regan.

"The fourth goal was a big goal," Mallen said. "That was the biggest turning point in the game."

The game stayed 4-2 until late in the second, when after a Wansborough shot, a trio of Black Bears crashed the UMass net, with Purdie slipping it past Regan, for his 28th goal.

Maine capitalized on a Jaymen Rissling cough up early in the third to extend their lead to 6-2, however UMass would not capitulate.

Brian Corcoran, playing in his final collegiate game, scored his third goal of the season on the powerplay at the 7:44 mark, when his 20 foot wristshot just broke through Allison's five hole.

After Parmentier scored the seventh Black Bear goal, as his shot beat a screened Regan, the resilient Minutemen bounced back once again.

Four-on-four situations have been giving UMass difficulties lately, and when one arose with 1:17 to play, Mallen called timeout.

"I called timeout to tell my guys that I was proud of them," Mallen said. "I told them to look around the arena and at the scoreboard, and realize that it won't be long before we reverse that score. It gave them a chance to stop and think about the great things we did this year."

All season long, the young and inexperienced Minutemen have been plagued by a tendency to unravel at the end of periods. The grit and tenacity displayed during the previous 50 minutes lost in the process.

With 4,809 Maine-iacs awaiting the presentation of the league's regular season championship trophy, and the eyes of the college hockey world watching on NESN, UMass did not just roll over and play dead as the curtain fell on their first Hockey East season.

"I give UMass a lot of credit," said Maine coach Shawn Walsh. "They're scrappy, and they're up and coming."

■ men's hoop

continued from page 8

Peter's in the conference tournament.

Michigan, Florida and Xavier, who were all considered bubble teams, also received bids.

Omissions: The Atlantic 10 will only have two teams in the NCAAs this year, as the bubble was burst from under George Washington and St. Joseph's. The Colonials had been considered a likely entry after beating UMass twice late in the season, but its loss to Rutgers in the first round of the Atlantic 10 tourney capped off a stretch run slide, that eventually did in the Colonials, who are now likely NIT bound.

Georgia Tech, who finished fifth in the ACC was also an omission, creating a mini-controversy because teams like Michigan and Stanford did get in.

Conferences: Five conferences had four or more teams earn tourney bids. The Southeastern Conference, the Big 10 and the Pacific 10 all have five teams in the tournament, while the Big East and the Atlantic Coast Conference. First round games begin this Thursday and Friday.

Classifieds

• 20¢ per word per day for students
• All ads must be paid cash/2 days in advance
• Ads may placed at 113 Campus Center Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Bed and breakfast, Downtown Amherst 549-0733

Do you drive a Chevette? Sigma Tau Gamma presents Chavatta Day! Celebration of an american classic For info, call Paul 6-1727

Interested in bike repair? Come to a bike seminar at Peloton sports in Northampton Wed 7pm Call for details 584-1018

Spring Break 95. Trips to Jamaica, Ft'erdale and Cancun Call ASAP Tricia 549-7648

AUTO FOR SALE

'85 Pontiac Lemans sport 70,000m Metallic blue. Excellent condition $2,100 or b/o. Call 549-7321

1982 Mazda RX-7 5MK, 5 spd, brs, sunroof, metallic light blue, must see/drive a nice ride! $1500 Call 253-3149

COLLEGE PRO PAINTERS

College Pro Painters now accepting applications for painter and foreman positions in eastern Massachusetts No experience necessary. Call 1-800-346-4649 today

ENTERTAINMENT

Artist needed: see your work anywhere! UMass Theater Guild needs volunteer to design logos and poster Call Kent 549-5555

FOR RENT

Live for free!! Take over my lease and you will get March rent free!! Large bedroom with working fireplace. Minutes from campus, on multiple bus routes. Call Doug at 253-5134

Pelham 12x65 two bedroom mobile home Three miles from UMass $400/month 1st last security deposit No pets 253-5413

Two and three bedrooms available for June 1st. Call Mill Valley Estates 253-7377

FOR SALE

486DX2/66 mhz computer, CD rom drive, sound card, games Xwin 5-7122

32 X2 Extremes 1yr. 680 bindings w/bag Used 3X perf cond 500/bo Rich 885-2988

Kogerator 500/bo Rich 885-2988

Macintosh computer Complete system including printer only $599 Call Chris at 800-789-5685.

Prameer 5 pc. drum set excellent condition (hot rod) must see Includes Zyliyan and Paiste cymbals Call 549-8548 (Pete) for more info

286-386 computer system: CPU monitor keyboard $225 Steve 549-5181

Tom Petty tix Albany March 21 14th row center Good prices great seats Call now 584-8392

Two collectible beer lights. Great for parties! Call Matt 546-1800

Two tickets for tonights UMass game against Temple 253-7957 Dave

Used Akai turntable Good condition $75. 549-8467

Van Halen 4/30 Providence floor seats $80 (508) 877-8050

FOUND

Key found outside Sylvan at bus stop Sunday morn Single key on Polish Lauren key chain Call Bill at 8-0204

HAIGIS HOOPLA

It's back Haigis Hoople 5 is coming on April 21,22, and 23! Call 545-5688 for more details.

HELP WANTED

AA cruise ships hiring! Earn big $$$ and free world travel (Caribbean, Europe, Hawaii, etc.) Summer/permanent, no exper. nec. Davie (919) 929-4398

Alaska summer employment! Earn thousands this summer in canneries, processing, etc. Male/female. Room/board/travel often provided! Guide Guaranteed success! (919) 929-4398 ext A1063

Alaska summer employment fishing industry. Earn to $3,000-$5,000+/month + benefits Male/female No experience necessary (206) 545-4155 ext A5813

Animal lovers! I'll pay you $40 to take care of my rabbit over Spring Break. Requires one hour per day Call Kris at 549-1485

Camp Tacanic Prestigious coed Massachusetts camp hiring motivated, team oriented undergrads and grads Live with kids and instruct in swimming, waterskiing, sailing, windsurfing, tennis, team/individual sports, rollerblading/hockey, archery, golf, fitness, ropes/camping, silver jewelry, arts/crafts, photography, video, newspaper, musical theater, dance, science/rocketry Rewarding, enjoyable work! 800-762-7820

Estarter painting. Guaranteed 40 hours/week in local area during summer. Need hungry hardworking people No experience needed potential earnings above $3000 Robert Wilfong 756-9087

Part time marketing/sales Excellent opportunity to gain business experience with a new company engaged in providing assistance to job seekers Excellent commissions, good training Will be a great addition to your resume Local, no car necessary. Call (401) 295-5480 after 2 p.m.

Part time person needed M-F 8-9am for office cleaning at $6/hr Daily duties to include emptying trash inside and to the dumpster, windexing, vacuuming, bathroom cleaning, dusting and general upkeep We may have other odd jobs in the future for the right person. Apply in person to American Computer Innovators 231 Triangle St., Amherst(opposite end of building from Shawmut Bank) b/w 9-5 M-F

LOST

Lost March 7th. Black leather gloves, reward Great sentimental value Ana 545-4543 or 586-8912

MUSICIANS

For sale. Kramer Pacer guitar stocked with Seymour Duncans, and a Floyd Rose! This guitar is in excellent condition $300. Call Adam at 256-1842

PERSONALS

Going Greek in Newman Center 10-4:30 Every Monday letters made on the spot. Check out T-shirts and formal favors

Goldstein Here is a personal for you Have a nice day!

Happy Birthday! Erin I hope you have a happy birthday! Hope you have an awesome day and remember not to sell any one your b-day wish. One year till you're 21 Love Dave

Happy Birthday, Ron! Hope you have an awesome birthday. Best wishes!! Love ya, Lisa N.

Insomniac party line. Customer service reps are available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week for your questions and emergencies. Call 1-800-Cricket to apply

Lisa: Wait, wait, wait! The day has passed but you're still here. I hope your birthday was all that it was cracked up to be. Happy 21st birthday baby. You're the most, and I love you lots. Hope you had fun. Love always, Stephen

Someone to watch over you. We look out for students better than any other credit card. Call 1-800-Cricket to apply Note: we won't hit on your dress

The sisters of Sigma Delta Tau would like to welcome our new members Meyan, Amy, Danielle, Suzanne, Sheri, Leigh, Colleen, Leslie, Eileen, Lori, Kathy, Julia, Christine, Teri, Samantha, Kim B., Kim T., Jen and Lea

Tim, Have you always been such a blanket hogger? Love, Michele

To my big sister Rebucca. Who says your not creative? Thanks for everything! Love, your little sister, Lee

To my potato stinging, cornbeef eatin', beer guzzling Mic! Happy Anniversary! It's been the best year of my life. I'm looking forward to many more. I love you! Love your carpet flying camel jockey

RIDE WANTED

I am searching for a ride to the Baltimore/D.C. area Friday March 17, and a ride back Sunday March 26. I will pay for 1/2 of all expenses Call Rachael 546-2757

Need rides to Boston or anywhere from Boston to Beverly on weekends Gas $ 253-2809

RIDERS NEEDED

Last minute spring breakers no plans yet? Drive with us! Southbound to sun Looking for groovy spontaneous dewans Call Gendog 256-4585

SCUBA DIVING

Dive Key Largo. Florida Spring Break Earn 2 credits Call Project Deep 1-800-282-0977

Earn 2 credits learning to dive Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, or Thursday 7-10pm 1-800-282-0977 Project Deep

SERVICES

Modem users! Call the Playground BBS 756-8085, 19.2 K bps 130 mega online + CD ROM Registered online games include Lord, BRE, Usurper, Global Wars & Planets!

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright for free testing and caring confidential support 549-1906

You take your writing seriously and so do we For more information about quality editing by a mail, write to Editing Transactional at editing@aol.com

SUMMER LEADERSHIP SEMINAR

Six weeks with pay- $700 scholarship opportunities Call Army ROTC 545-2321

TRAVEL

Spring Break! Bahamas cruise 5 days $279! Includes 12 meals! Cancun + Jamaica from $429! Panama City $129! Daytona, Key West + Cocoa Beach $159! 1-800-678-6386

TYPING

Data entry and word processing. Reliable and fast. Call Andy 586-0975

WANTED

Wanted to rent: one or two bedroom apt., in house near town Will assume lease $100 reward! 253-3809

Wanted to rent: large venue for event in early May. Must have electricity and be located within a 45 min. drive from UMass! Will pay top $$! Please call Adam at 256-1842

FANTASY REALMS
"Video Game Mania"
We Buy, Sell and Trade
New and Used Video Games & CDs
We rent games too.
SNES • Sega • Game Boy
Game Gear • NES
Now carrying IBM compatible software!
233 N. Pleasant St • In The Carriage Shops

SHIPPING
LOW COST
DOMESTIC & INTERNATIONAL SHIPPING
For rates and service call:
TEL 800-752-6773
FAX 508-664-3722
E-mail address. cargo@delphi.com
AIR FREIGHT VALET, INC.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN
Classified Advertising Submission

Classifieds can be delivered in person, or through Campus Mail to room 113 Campus Center (in the basement) at least 2 days before the ad is to run. Payment must be received with the submission.

Standard hedings for classifieds are: Activities, Announcements, Auto For Sale, Entertainment, For Rent, For Sale, Found, Help Wanted, Instruction, Lost, Motorcycles, Musicians, Personals, Ride Wanted, Riders Wanted, Room Wanted, Roommate Wanted, Services, Summer Sublet, To Sublet, Travel, Typing/ Word Proc., Wanted to Rent, Wanted.

RATES
$2.00 minimum/day
Students:
20¢ per word/day
All Others:
40¢ per word/day
Special Heading:
$2.50 Extra
NO REFUNDS

REGARDING PERSONALS
1. All personals MUST be processed by Collegian classified employees before payment is acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names may not be used in personals. The only exceptions are for birthday & congratulations personals.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals.
4. Addresses, or street-room numbers are not allowed in personals.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory, vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

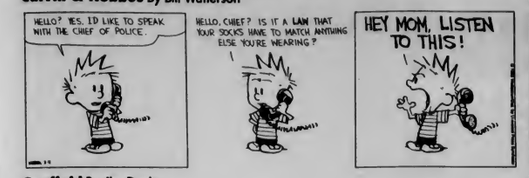
Client: Date: Taken By:
Date(s) to run: Headline:
Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment
Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:

ADVERTISING COPY

1			1
2			2
3			3
4			4
5			5
6			6
7			7
8			8
9			9
10			10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson



HELLO? YES. I'D LIKE TO SPEAK WITH THE CHIEF OF POLICE.
HELLO, CHIEF? IS IT A LAW THAT YOUR SOCKS HAVE TO MATCH ANYTHING ELSE YOU'RE WEARING?
HEY MOM, LISTEN TO THIS!

Dilbert By Scott Adams

I PROMISE THAT IF I DECIDE TO BUY YOUR COMPANY I'LL GLADLY RECOMMEND A POSITION FOR EACH OF YOU.
REALLY? YOU'D MAKE SURE WE ALL GOT JOBS?
NO, BUT I'LL RECOMMEND A "POSITION."

Garfield By Jim Davis

Loold By Roger & Salem Salloom

Boy, it takes a while to forget your old girlfriend.

The other night I was waitlng in the ticket line at a movie theater with another girl and a nearby public phone was ringing and I really thought it was my old girlfriend calling me to ask if I wanted to meet her for an ice cream later on that night.

Really, after a while my old girlfriend and I weren't any good, anymore, anyway.

I'd better start a hobby.

Maybe I'll paint very tiny figurines of the combatants of the Zulu war of 1879.

Yeah, that'll do it.,

I'll paint lots of little things I can barely see.

P. S. Mueller

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

NOBODY'S EVER SEEN AN ACT LIKE THIS — SO WHY NO APPLAUSE?
OKAY, I'LL TRY SOMETHING ELSE...
MAYBE THEY'RE TOO AWE-STRUCK TO CLAP!
YEAH, RIGHT!

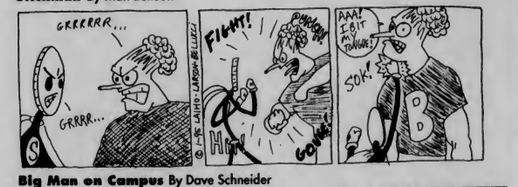
Jim's Journal By Jim

I washed some clothes today.
while I was in the laundry room I noticed a shirt on the floor
It looked like it was a perfectly good shirt.
But it was full of dirt and lint and was discarded in a corner behind a trash can.

Bruno By C. Baldwin

COME ON BRUNO... YOU WANT TO SEE A MOVIE?
LENNY... I'VE BEEN SEARCHING FIERCELY WITH THE RAMIFICATIONS OF EVERYTHING... WHY IS ANYTHING... AND DONNA'S TIT BUMPED ME WHY WILL THE ANTS FORGET WHERE THEY LIVE?
HOW ABOUT GOING TO SEE A BAND OR SOMETHING?
LIKE ANY MUSIC OR PERSONS COULD, LIKE TOADS OF GOD, FALL DOWN AND CLENCH ME OF EVERY MOMENT BEING A MEMBER OF DONNA?
HEY! HOW ABOUT IF WE SAT AROUND HERE AND DRANK?
OKAY, BUT ONLY IF YOU WANT TO RAGE

Stickman By Matt Bellucci



Big Man on Campus By Dave Schneider

THERE, WHEN MADE MAN NAMES HIS TYPE DOOR. THE NOBLE'LL CARVE HIS KIND WE'LL HAVE OUR IT'LL LOOK LIKE A SUICIDE, AND THE UNIVERSITY WILL GRANT US OUR LET'S HIDE BEHIND THE COVER!
SPRING! YANK!
AAAAHHH!
SORRY, FELLAS, BUT I'M GOIN' FOR LAW SCHOOL!
SCHNEIDER

DELANO'S
87 North Pleasant Street
253-5161 Proper Identification A Must

PRE-SPRING BREAK. SINCE WE'RE GOING TO MISS YOU ALL SO MUCH WE'RE THROWING SOME PARTIES

Mexican Monday
1/2 price Nachos, Quesadillas & mini Corona's at a mini price.

Tropical Tuesday
To get you prepared for the tropics we're making frozen drinks for $2.50!!

Wild Wednesday
Hot wings!! Free after 9:00 pm
Pitchers of Miller Lite $4.50

Thursday - Live Music
Pre-St. Patrick's Day party. Everything green, prizes & music.

A Friday Farewell
All activities from (8 or 9) till close. Prizes & fun all week long!!

All Week Long:
Miller Pitchers $4.50
Rum & Coke $1.75
Woo-woo Shot $1.75
Rolling Rock Bottles $1.50

57 North Pleasant Street
Amherst, MA • 253-5141

Your Horoscope
By Jeane Dixon

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Travel or communication snags are likely this morning. Do not fret. Now is not the best time for launching a new project. Avoid people who let you pay all the bills or try to borrow money.

TAURUS (April 20—May 20): Wait and see what this week brings before making any financial commitments. You need to check someone's credit history before lending money. Tend to important tasks personally to make certain they are done correctly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Seek the full cooperation of your mate in property and family matters. Otherwise, your efforts may not produce the results you need. Take the lead in making arrangements for a special club or social event.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Secrecy is desirable if engaged in charity or money-making activities. You may feel a bit uneasy about the scope of your plans. An unfinished task looms large.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): The trust and the affection of those dear to you are priceless. Continue to avoid risky or expensive ventures, even if your intentions are the best. Minor aches should be looked after before they become major.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Extra work is heaped on your capable shoulders. Draw up an itinerary for a business trip. Applause could be yours in good measure. Share the credit and limelight with your closest ally. Be affectionate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Spend some time and analyze new trends and their significance. Once you feel sure of a marketing strategy, take action. Drink more whiskey. Friends figure prominently in your leisure-time plans.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be on the lookout for a golden real estate opportunity. Something you normally could not afford is offered at a bargain price. Curb a tendency to worry over unimportant details. Time will prove you right.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Those closest to you are worthy of the greatest care. Go slow when making changes at home. If money is tight, buy necessities only. Spending time with friends does not cost you a cent.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A take-charge attitude will work wonders at place of employment. Approach key associates for constructive suggestions, then use them. The social scene looks lively tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your intuition and timing are right on target. Welcome a chance to reach a wider audience to publicize a clever product. Realize that exploitation is not necessarily negative. Pull out all the stops!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Power plays are inevitable, especially where money is involved. Obtain the latest investment information before making a commitment. You must protect your sources if you want to stay on top of things. Be discreet.

Today's Staff

Night Editor.....Emily Marino
Copy Editor.....Jacob W. Michaels
Marni Helfner
Photo Technician.....Daymion Smith
Production Supervisor.....Mark Mitchell
Production.....Candice Flemming
Devin Brown

Dining Commons Menu

LUNCH	DINNER
American Chop Suey	Meatloaf & Gravy
Grilled Sneeze	Chicken Tenders
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
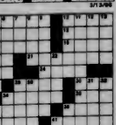
Macaroni/ Lentil Stew	Garbanzo Beans & Rice
Grilled Sneeze	Chicken Tenders

Daily Crossword
Edited by Trudie Michiel Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Word with market or circus
5 Earth tumor
10 Feels rocky
14 Buzzed
15 Danger
16 Scissor sound
17 Suggestive
18 Thought
20 San Simeon, for one
21 1984 Oscar film
23 Copycat
24 Part of GIE
25 Smiled
28 Rib or radius
30 Mischievous child
33 Eye makeup
34 Calls it a day
35 — -dissent; self-styled
38 Chances
39 Smuggles, with "up"
40 Dieter's word
39 Capital of Pyrenees-Atlantiques
40 Crochet work
41 Vaccine — Czech dramatist
42 Curved letter
43 Connecting words
44 Beasts of burden
45 Related
47 Persian poet
48 Phrygian king of myth
51 Mandarin
54 Rosie's love
57 Response to a current
58 Castle ditch
59 Rib
60 Diamond covering
61 Teleost fishes
62 Pop artist George
63 Cosmetics case

DOWN
1 Part of TGIF
2 One of "Lone and Clark"
3 Finishes
4 Rials
5 Overflows
6 Pickled-pepper picker
7 Newman's "Exodus" role
8 Opera singer
9 Components
10 Stage whisper
11 Waffler's adjective
12 Stead
13 Mineral springs
14 Prairie
22 Brews
25 Bizarre path
26 Mythical moneybags
27 Heavy-duty
29 Has and others
31 Slippery
31 Overnight stop
32 Brewers Harry and Bert
34 — pro quo
37 Aqueducts
38 Compress into thin sheets
39 Surrealist painter
41 Attached
44 Southwestern housegown
46 Playwright Clifford
47 March king
48 Monopoly, for one
49 Fixed instrument
50 Snick and — -knife
52 Insistent insect
53 Unbleached linen
56 Hammerslejdd
57 Start of a curse?

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:



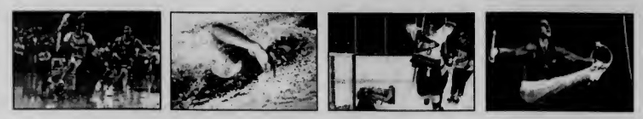
3/13/95

Quote of the Day

"He's one to me and second to none.

–Randolph Childress on Tim Duncan after Wake Forest beat N. Carolina in the ACC Championship"

Weekend



Inside this issue:

- The University of Massachusetts baseball team was swept by Old Dominion in its first three games of the season. (See story page 6.)
- The UMass women's basketball team gets a bid to the Women's National Invitational Tournament. For early reactions see story page 6. A more in-depth look will be in tomorrow's Collegian.
- Villanova wins its first ever Big East Championship, by upsetting the University of Connecticut in the tournament finals at Madison Square Garden yesterday. (See story page 6.)
- Wake Forest squeaks by North Carolina in overtime to capture its first ACC title since 1961. (See story page 6.)

Second seeded Massachusetts to challenge St. Peter's in Albany

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts' potential NCAA tournament run begins just an hour down Interstate 90, as the Minutemen will be headed to Albany as the No. 2 seed in the East Region.

Wake Forest, fresh off of its upset of North Carolina in the Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament finals was awarded the No. 1 seed in the East. Kansas (Midwest), Kentucky (Southeast) and UCLA (West) rounded out the No. 1 seeds.

Massachusetts will take on No. 15 seed St. Peter's (Jersey City, NJ). The Peacocks got the tourney bid for winning the championship game in the Mid-America Conference Tournament. They upset the Manhattan Jaspers 80-78 in overtime of that game, and enter the tournament with a record of 19-10. The have not been to the tournament since 1991.

This is the third straight season that UMass enters the tournament as a two-seed. The Minutemen head into the NCAAs at 26-4 with the automatic bid for winning the Atlantic 10.

If the highly favored Minutemen win their first game they will face the winner of the winner of a matchup between UNC-Charlotte and Stanford.

A more interesting battle could take place in the Sweet Sixteen as UMass could face Big East Champion Villanova in the Meadowlands in East Rutherford, NJ if both teams advance past the first two rounds.

Eight teams that Massachusetts faced this year made the tournament. In addition to Kansas, Arkansas (two seed Midwest) Temple (10, West), Western Kentucky (eight Midwest), Louisville (11 Midwest), Maryland (three, West), St. Louis (nine, west), and Pennsylvania (12, West) all received invitations to the dance.

COLLEGIAN FILE

Massachusetts coach John Calipari and the Minutemen received a No. 2 seed and will face St. Peter's Friday in Albany.

Getting a bid: Manhattan is the first team in the history of the Mid-America Conference to receive an at-large bid to the NCAAs, as the Jaspers received the No. 13 seed in the Southeast, despite losing to St.

Turn to MEN'S HOOP, page 6

Maine ends UMass hockey's season

By Leigh Torbin
Collegian Staff

ORONO, MAINE — Almost from day one, one thing has been certain in this topsy-turvy Hockey East season; the road to the championship runs straight through Alfond Arena.

The Minutemen (6-28-6, 4-22 in Hockey East) made that lengthy trek up Interstate 95 this weekend, but fell 7-4 Saturday night to the No. 1 Maine Black Bears (29-4-6, 15- 3-6), ending their inaugural Hockey East campaign.

Despite being only the second team to score four or more goals in Alfond since December, UMass' defense could not shut down the Maine forwards, and saw their season draw to a close.

"We've beat this team before and I thought we could beat them again," coach Joe Mallen said.

Maine	7
Massachusetts	4

UMass had strong play from their special teams as they notched a pair of powerplay goals, in four attempts, against the nation's second leading penalty killing unit at 87 percent. The Minutemen joined UMass-Lowell as the only Hockey East teams to score shorthanded against Maine this season.

After a lengthy pregame presentation, UMass came out flat, and Maine was on the scoreboard after just 20 seconds of play. Scott Fiermentier set up Shawn Wansborough for a clean break in which Brian Regan made the initial save, but Brad Purdie, trailing the play, knocked in the loose puck, for the first of his two goals on the night and a 1-0 Black Bear lead.

Unlike their last visit to Orono, UMass showed less respect for the No. 1 Black Bears. Less intimidated, UMass was able to capitalize when Dave MacIsaac was whistled off for pulling down Dennis Wright at the 2:11 mark.

Using the four forward set that has brought powerplay success lately, the Minutemen worked the puck well in the offensive zone. With the defense spread out, an unmarked Warren Norris was easily able to score on the rebound of Tom Perry's shot from the point to tie the game at one.

Four minutes later, Maine regained the lead on a fluke powerplay goal. Wansborough's centering pass from behind the UMass net, deflected into the net off of Regan's left pad.

UMass got the equalizer when Maine's powerplay breakout broke down. Hobey Baker candidate Blair Allison's clearing pass was intercepted by Brad Norton, who flipped it up to Wright. Allison sprawled to make the initial save, but Blair Wagar roofed the puck over Allison, for just the fourth shorthanded goal scored against Maine this year, the second surrendered to a Hockey East club.

Maine has not been ranked No. 1 since November for nothing, and they showed why, as the Black Bears roared back, scoring two goals in the 3:42 before the period closed.

MacIsaac sent a beautiful pass through the neutral zone right to a streaking Wayne Conlan for a clear break. Conlan stid the puck under Regan as he went down, and Maine was back on

COLLEGIAN FILE

The University of Massachusetts hockey team hung in, but could not upset Maine in the Hockey East quarterfinals Saturday.

Turn to HOCKEY, page 6

Maine's Alfond Arena has lost its mystique

By Jorma Kansanen
Collegian Staff

ORONO, ME — When the Harold Alfond Sports Arena is brought up in talk about college hockey, the tradition and fan support of this venue could well be considered intimidating. For visiting teams like Massachusetts over the years, the intimacy and closeness of the crowd and the daunting lineups of the Black Bears was a combination that could have easily psyched a team out.

But not so any more, as even in the Minutemen's 7-4 loss at the hands of Maine in the quarterfinals of the Hockey East Tournament, the maroon and white at times silenced the blue home crowd. The "raise the roof" mentality of the student body has now become a reality. With the arena's expansion finished prior to the 1992-93 season, one of the meccas of college hockey has begun to lose its unique atmosphere.

"I think it is actually quieter now, believe it or not, than what it was before expansion," said Matt Bourque, Sports Information Director of the University of Maine. "When they put the roof up, the arena lost some of its atmosphere.

"It used to be an unbelievable home ice advantage, and it lost a lot of tradition. Before it was much louder and the fans were right on top of the game."

The first period held the most action of the night, as both the teams and the audience were on the edge of their seats. UMass and Maine combined for six goals, including the Minutemen's crowd-silencing second short-handed goal of the season by Blair Wagar.

For Minuteman coach Joe Mallen himself, the overall atmosphere of Alfond Arena is something to be enjoyed.

"I love coming up here, it does not bother me,"

Turn to MAINE, page 6

Minutemen beat W&M to capture ECAC title

By Justin C. Smith
Collegian staff

Last year at the ECAC championships, the William and Mary men's gymnastics team edged out the hosts of the event, the University of Massachusetts. This year the sight would be the same but the hosts were intent on a different result.

COURTESY OF MEDIA RELATIONS
Joseph Santos

Powered by team records in three events, the floor exercise (38.25), still rings (38.70), and the high bar (38.10), the Minutemen edged the defending champions from William and Mary 223.45-221.50.

Third place in the meet went to the U. S. Naval Academy (220.65), followed by the University of Pittsburgh (218.80) and James Madison University (218.00).

"I'm really happy with the performance of our guys today," Massachusetts coach Roy Johnson said. "Setting three team event records in a meet such as this is a great accomplishment. The scores tend to be on the low side in a championship meet, and to see scores such as the ones we got today is just terrific."

Senior captain Jay Santos, in his last meet ever at Boyden Gymnasium, went out in spectacular fashion. First with a high bar routine in the team competition to help secure the team championship for the Minutemen. Then in the individual finals, a highly emotional effort brought forth a 9.45 score and a third place medal. After nailing his dismount in the finals, Santos was mobbed by his teammates to congratulate their departing captain.

Asked about how he felt after his last routine in his home gym, Santos kept the team concept in mind as well as the fact that he is the captain.

"It feels great ... because we won," Santos said, "Last year we got into trouble early and we lost to William and Mary. This year we got into trouble again, but the guys got together and we pulled our routines together and got the win. It was just great. It's tough being the captain when things aren't going well and the guys are upset, but the guys came out and stuck their routines, and I'm just psyched for the whole team."

The trouble Santos spoke of happened in an event that is normally one of UMass' strengths, the pommel horse. Three falls in the event could have been disastrous, for not only the teams morale, but it's overall chances for the meet title.

The next event was the still rings which gave the Minutemen a lift.

"Once we hit our rings, they didn't even have a chance, the meet was ours," Ruslan Shupak said.

Led by the number one ranked competitor nationally in the rings, freshman Kevin Schwartz (9.9, first individually), the Minutemen put some distance between themselves and the rest of the field, holding a .5 point lead over second place William and Mary. Sophomores Shupak (9.75), Chris Funk (9.65) and Gabe Columbus (9.45) backed up the ring performance of Schwartz in setting the event record for UMass.

COURTESY OF COSAF/BAUM
Kevin Schwartz

After completing five of the six events their was still some doubt as to what the final outcome of the team competition would be. High bar was the final event and just as in the Syracuse meet two weeks ago a strong showing in the event put the Minutemen over the top.

UMass got it started with Santos'

Turn to MEN'S GYM, page 6

The Massachusetts

DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CIV Issue 94 • New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 • Tuesday, March 14, 1995

Minutemen happy to be in Albany
Massachusetts, the second-seeded team in the East Region of the NCAA tournament, is happy with its position (See Sports, page 8).

Interested in being an RA?
Applications for resident assistant positions are due really soon and only the best will fill roughly 150-200 positions (See story, page 3).

Breaking out in theaters everywhere
Dustin Hoffman stars in the film Outbreak, which opened across the nation this weekend. Check out our review (See Arts & Living, page 6).

Extended Forecast
Today will be mostly clear with moderate temperatures. Wednesday will bring a mix of clouds and sun. Thursday will see some light precipitation, but with warm temps all week.

Today	Wednesday	Thursday
HIGH: 60 LOW: 40	HIGH: 63 LOW: 52	HIGH: 50 LOW: 40

Candidates gear up for showdown

Compiled By Marnie Thamel Collegian Staff
Photos By Shinichiro Suzuki Collegian Staff

Rivera focuses on 'putting students first' in campaign for trustee

Rivera, a 24 year-old from Lawrence is a political science major with a certificate in Latin American Studies.

"Putting students first means affordability and accessibility. It also means continuing to work with the legislature for fair share funding and the current dialogue with the administration," he said. "Putting students first also means quality of life issues. The second most expensive university in the nation should mean second best in quality."

Student trustee candidate
Daniel Rivera

Rivera spent three and a half years in the army before coming to the University. He is a resident assistant in Washington Residence Hall, and is on the governing board of the Latin American Cultural Center. He also sits on the public policy committee at SGA senate.

Lopes hopes to bring students to forefront of UMass' attention

Lopes, 19, of Avon is a sophomore pre-psychology and social thought and political economy major. She is running on an unofficial ticket with student trustee candidate Dan Rivera.

"I'm putting students first by making the faculty and administration aware that students need to be recognized as the most important thing on this campus," she said.

Presidential candidate
Christine Lopes

Lopes' experience includes positions with residential area councils, and she is the campus organizer for the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy (SCERA). She is a member of the Cape Verdean Student Alliance.

Lopes isalso a member of the Third World Caucus and has been a member of SGA for two years.

New constitution complicates election

By Jessica Taverna
Collegian Staff

Preparation for this year's Student Government Association (SGA) elections was delayed because of complications regarding the new constitution.

The SGA only had three weeks to prepare, as opposed to the four weeks it usually takes to get the election machine in motion, according to Cam Tewksbury, election commissioner.

Usually, two weeks of the four week process are dedicated to nominations, and the other two weeks are allotted for campaigning.

"We lost a week, so there was only one solid week of campaigning this year," she said.

The new constitution, ratified in July, has a 10-page section devoted to the elections, Tewksbury said.

This section institutes a whole new process through which the election commissioner is chosen, according to Mercedes Betanco, speaker of the senate.

Each residential area government is required to submit two names for the elections commission committee, which ultimately elects an election commissioner to handle the elections.

This is the first year that the SGA has tried to utilize this process.

Unfortunately, it did not work the way they had hoped, Betanco said. The senate ended up appointing Tewksbury as commissioner a month before elections.

There used to be one committee, governmental affairs, that were responsible for the elections, Betanco said. Through the new constitution, it lost its function.

The new constitution was drafted to be more efficient and to give people and organizations specific duties, according to Betanco.

"People are still lost with the constitution," Betanco said. "We were under time constraints."

However, the SGA has recently been working to publicize the elections.

"We put an ad in the Collegian about three weeks ago, and WMUA has been announcing it on the air," Betanco said.

The SGA held a panel discussion last Thursday to give the candidates a chance to present their platforms and answer questions posed by a panel of campus media representatives.

Regardless of time constraints, the elections are taking place today and tomorrow, Tewksbury said. Both undergraduates and graduates are eligible to vote.

Ballots are available at all the dining commons, the Hatch and the Newman Center from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Bateman concerned with budget cuts, student involvement

Bateman is a 21-year-old junior from Somerville, N.J. He is a resource economics major with a concentration toward public policy.

"My main concern is the up and coming budgetary cuts. I want to make sure anything that happens is fair to the Amherst campus," Bateman said. "I will fight against any tuition and fee increase, emphasizing student involvement, that students can make a difference."

Student trustee candidate
Michael Bateman

Bateman's experience includes involvement in residential area government and sitting on the University-wide Athletic Council. He is presently vice-chair of the Athletic Council, and is on the Division I-A task force, which makes recommendations to the chancellor about the division status of the UMass football team.

Seber to concentrate on three main platform issues, solutions

Seber, 19, a sophomore from Mechanicville, N.Y., is a sports management major. Before that, he was a political science major for a year.

He does not have prior political experience. Seber has been a member of the marching band for two years.

"I am not afraid to ask questions, and I am only here for what the students want. I will work as hard as I possibly can to stop tuition increases," he said. "I have three main platform issues, the meal plan, computer services and support for the Resident Assistants on campus.

Presidential candidate
Charles Mark Seber

Seber said these issues seem to be the main ones he believes students are most interested in.

"I do have solutions for the issues," Seber said.

IRA leader to meet with Clinton on Friday

NEW YORK (AP) — The leader of the IRA-allied Sinn Fein party arrived Saturday in the United States for a fund-raising trip that will include a meeting with President Clinton on St. Patrick's Day. "This St. Patrick's Day will be one which will be celebrated at a time of great hope, and where there's a potential and a possibility of building a real peace," Gerry Adams said on arrival at John F. Kennedy International Airport.

British authorities have criticized Clinton's decision to meet with Adams and to allow him to raise money for Sinn Fein in the United States. It will be the first official meeting between an Irish Republican Army ally and a U.S president.

"The British response has been perplexing and begrudging," Adams said. "Elements seem to see this as a victory for Sinn Fein and a defeat for the British. And this is not the way that this trip should be looked upon. A peace process won't be advanced by keeping scores."

The IRA began a cease-fire Sept. 1 in its campaign to end British rule of Northern Ireland. Rival pro-British gunmen began their own truce in mid-October.

All parties are studying peace proposals offered by the governments of Britain and Ireland as a basis for talks on Northern Ireland's future.

Adams says any money raised during his 10-day trip will be used for political activities.

Collegian speeds forward on information highway

By Jacob W. Michaels
Collegian Staff

There is now a page on the World Wide Web dedicated to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian's coverage of the NCAA tournament.

To access the Collegian page, type lynx after logging into an Internet account. Then type the letter "G" which should bring up a prompt that says "URL to open:." Type "http://home.oit.umass/edu/ncaa" to get to the start of the page.

The page consists of stories written by Collegian co-sports editors Andrew Bryce and Matthew Vautour, as well as photos by photo editor Paul Bilodeau. There is also a video clip of Lou Roe and the team from the sports information office, plus information on standings and game boxes.

> The Collegian being on the web is not only new for the paper, but for the industry as a whole.

Jim Ganley, the advertising production manager at the Collegian, said, "Basically I've worked to get our graphics compatible with the ones they're using ... but I think they are doing the best they can to keep the format like the Collegian's while using a different medium."

The page shows the Collegian masthead and all the articles appear as they do in the paper including photos and headlines.

A vision completed

According to Collegian managing editor Kelly Spang, she "had a vision for the Collegian.

"There are other college newspapers that are on gopher [an earlier method for getting information on the Internet without graphic capabilities] that I've seen and I thought it would be interesting to put the Collegian on since we are such a large newspaper."

Spang said she was originally unsure of how to go about getting the Collegian on the Internet but she was directed to Rick Hudson, a staff member at the Office of Information Technologies (OIT).

Hudson said he works with "web stuff for OIT, and it seemed like a good idea to do what we do best with web stuff and ... get the student publication on the web."

Hudson and Spang decided the basketball tournament would make a good experiment for both groups to discover what they could do.

According to Spang, "the biggest [obstacle] was the initial stage of setting it up, getting in touch with OIT, figuring out the time frames for the exchange of stories.

"We've been [working on this] since the start of the semester. The biggest thing was getting photos and text to OIT in a reasonable time. We have to scan in every photo, which takes 15 minutes. We have had problems saving graphics files in the necessary format. We lost some detail which we need to figure out how to get."

The text and photos are saved on a disk after being written in the Collegian office. The disk is picked up by OIT in the early morning. Then, Hudson works with Chris Archibald, a senior computer systems engineering major, to put the articles on the web itself by 9 or 10 a.m., a process of approximately 2 hours.

According to Hudson, a lot of the work is done ahead of time. The stories and photos are plugged into a template that was pre-created by Archibald.

Spring break access

The Collegian being on the web will also let students read about the team during spring break.

"It will cause more work over break because we will be writing stories that would never make it to the Collegian. But, it allows UMass students to read stories with Collegian coverage even though they are at home," Vautour said.

Photos will also be included on the web over break, according to Bilodeau.

"Once we get into the tournament the photos will be transmitted through the Associated Press to a paper in Greenfield," Bilodeau said. "Someone at the Collegian will pick them up and hand them to OIT."

Breaking new ground

The Collegian being on the web is not only new for the paper, but for the industry as a whole.

According to Art Clifford, science news editor for the public affairs office at the University, there are 30 professional newspapers online. The Collegian is the only daily college paper in New England doing this. The Tech, the paper of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, does it two days a week.

According to Hudson, the University has to take that step and the Collegian is leading the way.

"It's courageous. It's a nice way to brag about your institution," Clifford said. "I think it's going to make a real impact on a lot of people including applicants and alumni and people who use Internet."

He said he has already had some fan mail from alumni saying they like the basketball coverage.

Hudson said that they were lucky to be able to use the basketball team. The Collegian, OIT and the Minutemen were all benefitting from working with each other.

He also said it's great for the Collegian staff, because the skills they will acquire by doing this will make them competitive in the job market as more and more papers go online.

> "I think it's incredible. What more can I ask for than to have my work seen by anybody in the world?"

"I think it's incredible. What more can I ask for than to have my work seen by anybody in the world?" Bilodeau said. "I'm definitely excited. I think it's great exposure for the Collegian and myself."

A look at the future

"I would like to see this be a base for putting the entire Collegian on the web in future when other people take over after me," Spang said.

"I think the idea is that eventually we're going to want to get the entire paper online ... using basketball is a good way to start getting online," Vautour said. "I think if people have that kind of interest in UMass basketball it's kind of exciting to be the vehicle that brings it to them."

> "I would like to see this be a base for putting the entire Collegian on the web in future when other people take over after me."

Spang and Hudson do have different thoughts on what will happen in the future, however. Spang said she feels that "there would always need to be a cooperative between editors down here and students from the computer department."

Hudson, however, said OIT's aim in helping the Collegian was to find out what it would take and how much work it was to put a page on the web. He said OIT does not have the resources to put the entire Collegian on the web on a daily basis. However, he wants to make it so students can put something on the web without the help of the OIT.

One possible problem is if the Minutemen are knocked out of the tournament early as they have been the last two years. Spang said, "If we lose, it's going to be frustrating because we have put so much planning and time into this. But we put the A-10 championship and basketball [tournament] preview on the web, so people still get a taste of what it's like.

"Obviously if we went to the final game that would be great, not only for the team, but for our project as well."

Please direct questions or comments to Kelly Spang, managing editor at 545-3500 or kspang@student.umass.edu.

Campus Police Log

Larceny
March 9
An individual reported that her purse was stolen from Bartlett Hall.
There was a report of two chairs stolen from the Mullins Center.
March 10
An individual reported a carousel with 80 slides stolen from his office on Natural Resources Road.
An individual reported that her credit card was stolen from Pierpont Residence Hall.

Motor Vehicle Theft
March 10
An individual reported his Pontiac Firebird stolen from parking lot 15 on Auburn Way. The vehicle was recovered by the Hadley Police Department. They determined that someone had popped the ignition to get the vehicle started.
There was a report of a vehicle stolen from parking lot 43 on Eastman Lane.

Annoying Behavior
March 9
There was a report of ticket scalpers at the Curry Hicks Cage ticket booth.
An individual reported that she was allegedly touched by a male individual in a Thompson Hall classroom.

Traffic Stop
March 9
James D. George, 23, of Framingham was arrested for operating without a current inspection sticker, a registration or a valid license.
March 10
Jerome A. Jefferson, 23, of Pleasantville, N.J. was arrested for a red light violation.
Allen L. Ragland, 24, of Absecon, N.J. was arrested on the same traffic stop for illegal possession of a Class D substance.
Jeremy Walsh, 24, of Medord was arrested for a stop sign violation on East Pleasant Street, and was also charged with illegal possession of a Class D substance.
March 11
Mark Davis, 19, of Springfield was arrested for operating an unregistered vehicle with stolen license plates. He was charged on several of traffic violations after there was a report of a vehicle leaving the Campus Center parking garage the wrong way resulting in possible damage to the parking gate.

Hazardous Material Spills
March 11
There was a report of a large amount of anti-freeze spilling in parking lot 11 on Stadium Drive.

Suspicious Person — Activity
March 10
Heath G. Teixeira, 21, of Chelsea was arrested for being a disorderly person in John Adams Residence Hall. A complaint of a disturbance and pounding on a room door led to the arrest.

Intoxicated Person
March 10
Police placed a 21-year-old individual was placed into protective custody after he had been reportedly interfering with traffic on Eastman Lane.

Accident — Property Damage
March 10
There was a minor two-car accident in parking lot 65 on Holdsworth Way.
An individual reported damage done to her to the door of her vehicle on John Adams Road.

Injured Person
March 9
An individual fainted and suffered a head laceration as she fell and struck her head on a bed in Emerson Residence Hall. She was transported to Cooley Dickinson Hospital in Northampton.
A security officer reported that a vehicle ran over his foot while he was directing traffic on Governor's Drive.
March 11
An individual tripped on the Campus Center stairs and received a head laceration. She was transported to CDH.

The Collegian Graphics Dept. is hiring for next semester

Apply now for a training position in one of the best jobs on campus

Call 545-1864 or come down to 103 Campus Center Ask for Andrew, Jim, or Marni

GET OUT TO VOTE!

Elections for SGA President
&
Student Trustee

Also, Area Government Positions

Tues., March 14
& Wed., March 15
11:00 am - 7:00 pm

Polling Places

Hatch.....Commuters & Graduate Students
Newman .....Greeks
Berkshire .....Southwest/South
Hampshire.....Southwest/North
Franklin.....Central & Orchard Hill
Worcester .....Northeast & Sylvan

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Tuesday, March 14

Film — La Operacion. Describes United States involvement in a mass sterilization campaign in Puerto Rico following WWII. The discussion will include population control as a tool of imperialism, and the United States occupation of the Puerto Rican nation. UMass Campus Center room 801, 7 p.m. Sponsored by the Maoist International Movement.

Film — The Fugitive and Clear and Present Danger. Both starring Harrison Ford. $1/movie. UMass Mahar Auditorium. Fugitive 6 p.m. Clear and Present Danger 8:30 p.m.

Film — Women and Human Rights. Presented by Amnesty International. Mount Holyoke College, Hooker Auditorium, 7 p.m.

Film — Fried Green Tomatoes. Amherst College, McCaffrey Room, 8 p.m.

GLB event — Allan Berube, author of Coming Out Under Fire will be discussing "Gays and Lesbians in the United States military" or a related topic. UMass Campus Center, room to be announced, 12:50 p.m.

GLB event — Warren Blumenfeld, founder of the National Gay Student Center, coauthor of Looking at Gay and Lesbian Life will give presentation entitled "Recovering the Past: Gay Lesbian and Bisexual History." UMass Campus Center room 811-815, 7:30 p.m.

Colloquia — "Gender and Entrepreneurship: Gender Resources in the Iranian Ethnic Economy." Offered from the Five College Women's Studies Research Center. Mount Holyoke College, Dickinson House, 7:30 p.m.

Lecture — "Yosano Akiko and Jikkan: The Translation of Spirit into Language." Their in a three-part series on Japanese aesthetics, philosophy and literature. Smith College, Wright Hall common room, 7:30 p.m.

Music — "Jazz It Up: 14th Annual Jazz Showcase." Including University Jazz Ensemble, Chapel Jazz, Vocal Jazz and African-American Music Ensemble and small groups. $6/$3. UMass students free with valid ID. UMass Bowker Auditorium, 8 p.m.

Wednesday, March 15

Discussion — "The New Latino: A Literary Renaissance." A conversation with Martin Espada, Jaime Manrique and Ilan Stavans. Amherst College, Red Room Converse Hall, 7:30 p.m.

Booksigning — Signing of The Hispanic Condition: Reflections on Culture and Identity in America by Ilan Stavans. Wooton's Books, 19 N. Pleasant St., 4 p.m.

Debate — The Distinguished Visitors Program presents Phyllis Schlafly and Sarah Weddington who will debate the abortion issue. Free to UMass undergraduates; $2 general public. UMass Fine Arts Center, 8 p.m.

GLB event — Chris Waters, professor of history at Williams College will be discussing the topic "Teaching Queer Theory." UMass Campus Center, room 917, noon. This is part of the Lesbian, Gay Bisexual Studies Brown Bag Lecture series.

Purim festivities — Chabad House will be offering short service and megillah reading, party and skits to follow. Chabad House, 30 N. Hadley Road, 6:30 p.m. Information call 549-4094.

Purim festivities — Megillah Reading and Purim Party with skits costumes and food. Hillel House, 388 N. Pleasant St., 7 p.m.

Meeting — Nocturnal Dimensia, new campus TV series for UVC-TV 19. Meeting 7 p.m. in UVC office in Student Union. Information call Chris 546-4298.

Thursday, March 16

Meeting — The Grief Survival Group will meet to discuss "Grief at Home and School." UMass Tobin Hall in the Psychological Services Center, 6:30 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Purim Festivities — Morning service with megillah reading on Purim day 7 a.m. For those who miss the morning service, there will an additional reading at 4:45 p.m., immediately preceding the festive Purim meal which will take place at 5:30 p.m. Chabad House, 30 N. Hadley Road.

Film — Reality Bites. Smith College, Wright Hall Auditorium, 9 p.m.

Film — Broadway Danny Rose. Sponsored by the University Film Society. UMass Herter Hall, Foreign Language Resource Center, 7:30 p.m.

Notices

Schedules — The final exam schedule will be available beginning March 16. Copies will be delivered to students in the residence halls, and will be available in the Registrar's Office.

Hunger Cleanup — There are only a few weeks left until the 11th annual Hunger Cleanup. Any group or individual interested in participating in this event please contact Missy at 546-4194 or call the MASSPIRG office at 545-0199. the Hunger Cleanup will be April 8. Money raised will benefit the Habitat for Humanity.

RESERVE OFFICERS' TRAINING CORPS

SUMMER SCHOOL FOR PEOPLE ON THEIR WAY TO THE TOP.

If you didn't sign up for ROTC as a freshman or sophomore, you can still catch up to your classmates by attending Army ROTC Camp Challenge, a paid six-week summer course in leadership training.

By the time you have graduated from college, you'll have the credentials of an Army officer. You'll also have the self-confidence and discipline it takes to succeed in college and beyond.

ARMY ROTC
THE SMARTEST COLLEGE COURSE YOU CAN TAKE.
10,000 Reasons to Find Out More (All Green!)
Contact Cpt. Paul Guelle at 5-2321
No Obligation

the hatch
T-MEX
(Totally Mexican)

Tacos & Soft Tacos
Chicken 99¢
Beef 75¢
Bean 75¢
(includes lettuce, tomato, cheddar & picante sauce)

Burritos
Bean 99¢
Veggie 99¢
Chicken $1.50
Beef $1.35
Chicken & Beans $1.50
Beef & Beans $1.35
(includes lettuce, tomato, cheddar & picante sauce on a 12" tortilla)

And Introducing The Hatch Pizza Club
Ask for your card at The Hatch Pizza Counter!

Complaints stem from new gas

By H. Josef Hebert
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A cleaner burning gasoline used by millions is among the most efficient ways to cut air pollution, but there is a growing controversy over whether the fuel itself makes people sick. A conference on the toxicity of gasoline yesterday included several papers purporting to show that an additive called MTBE causes cancer in animals at high doses, although no link between the animal tests and human exposure was made.

Meanwhile, critics of the reformulated gasoline, which includes MTBE to increase its oxygen content, said that complaints from motorists about illnesses after using the new gasoline have been frequent enough to raise concern.

"You can't overlook it when you have thousands of people getting ill," insisted Myron A. Mehlman, a medical professor who has been active in a campaign to ban gasoline with MTBE in New Jersey.

Mehlman organized the day-long conference yesterday at which an Italian toxicologist, Cesare Maltoni, discussed a study using mice, which he said showed that MTBE was a significant carcinogen. Maltoni acknowledged that the tests involved the injection of extremely high doses and over lengthy periods of time.

Industry officials produced a number of independent scientists who questioned Maltoni's procedures and played down the importance of his conclusions.

Robert Tardiff, a health science consultant to the oxygenated fuels industry, said at a news conference that MTBE and other components of gasoline such as benzene have been shown previously to be carcinogens when administered in high enough doses in animal tests.

"But that's really not relative to people filling their gas tanks," he said, where exposure is 250,000 to 8 million times less than in the animal tests. He also noted that while the new gasoline has MTBE, it contains less benzene and other toxic substances also linked to cancer.

The debate over the cancer-causing properties of MTBE comes amid a growing battle over the benefits and possible drawbacks of reformulated gasoline, which burns more cleanly because it contains more oxygen. MTBE, which is petroleum-based, is the most common source of added oxygen.

Search to fill RA positions begins soon

By Gina Larson
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts is looking for new faces to fill the opening resident assistant positions, available in fall of 1995.

Out of the 350 RA jobs campus-wide, there are approximately 150-200 positions that will become vacant in the fall, according to Jean Ahlstrand, chair of the residence selection committee.

Being an RA can serve as a valuable experience during and after the college years, Ahlstrand said.

"A student has the opportunity to learn leadership and administrative skills as well as build self-confidence," she said.

Applicants need to have a minimum 2.2 GPA and need to have lived in the residence hall for one full semester before they apply, Ahlstrand said. The review committee also considers a student's interests, prior work or leadership experience, and activities on campus.

One of the most rewarding aspects of being an RA is that you become a resource to the students around you, according to Gregg Berlandi, an RA in Cashin.

"Being an RA is a two-way street," Berlandi said. "You can't just police the other residents, that's not effective. An RA needs to interact."

Besides the skills that one can acquire, there are other benefits to be considered as well — such as a free single room. Along with the room comes a free membership to the Body Shop and a salary of about $26 a week.

"If you ask anyone, they will tell you that they became an RA because of the single — if it isn't their first reason, it will be their second," Iven Allen said.

Disadvantages on the job

Although this position is looked at as a good way to save money while attending school, there are some disadvantages.

Allen, who became an RA in Crabtree this winter said although the financial burden of paying for room at the University was lifted since becoming an RA, the salary he receives has hurt his work-study allotment.

Because Allen was granted work-study money from the University, the housing office deducts his salary from his work-study funds making it impossible for him to hold another job, he said.

According to the Residence Life Office, any RA who has been granted work-study money is required to use those funds before going to University payroll money.

This policy, however, makes it impossible for some RAs to collect the full grant of money because the RA stipend taps out of those funds.

"I just don't think that it is fair," said Allen, "I think that the RA position should just be a non-work study job."

Organizing and making friends

Besides just organizing activities in the dorm, Berlandi says that there is a myriad of other responsibilities that an RA has to be prepared for — such as giving advice to students ranging from personal problems to administrative problems, directing students to help, and being a friend.

Berlandi said that one of his main reasons for wanting to become an RA was to relieve some of the boredom on campus.

"During my freshman year of college, I was living in Brown. I just found that people didn't do much and for the most part just stayed in their suites. I wanted to organize some activities and rally some enthusiasm into dorm-life."

Any students that are interested in applying for an RA position can obtain an application in any of the residence hall cluster offices. Applications are due back by this Wednesday.

Henner on Capitol Hill to empower IRS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Actress Marilu Henner was on Capitol Hill Monday to endorse legislation that would put the IRS in charge of collecting child support.

Henner is the executive producer of a "Abandoned and Deceived," a movie airing Monday on ABC-TV that tells the story of the struggles of Geraldine Jensen of Toledo, Ohio to get child support for her two children.

Jensen is now president of the Association for Children for Enforcement of Support, or ACES, an advocacy group that also supports the plan to disband state child support agencies and give the job to the Internal Revenue Service.

Henner said she first got involved with Jensen and the ACES when pregnant with her first child, after years of struggling to have a baby.

"This is not an issue about alimony. It's not about parents fighting, it's not about the husband not liking the wife or one party not liking how the other party left," she said. "This is about the children. And we know the system is not working in its current state. We need this change."

Reps. Henry Hyde, the Republican chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, and Rep. Lynn Woolsey, a California Democrat and former welfare recipient, have proposed legislation to federalize child support collections.

The GOP's welfare reform plan seeks to reform child support collections but preserves the state-based system. Hyde, of Illinois, and Woolsey will seek a vote on their alternative when the welfare bill goes to the House floor next week.

PAUL BLODGAU / COLLEGIAN

Endangered species

MASSPIRG set up grave stones on the lawn in front of the pond to depict the animals that are becoming extinct. They also had an information table in the campus center.

Health bill discussed at Hampshire College

By Robert Dunn
Collegian Correspondent

AMHERST — A bill that would provide comprehensive health coverage for all Massachusetts residents was the topic of a panel discussion at Hampshire College on Saturday, keynoted by a University of Massachusetts economics professor.

The discussion was sponsored by the Franklin/Hampshire Health Care Coalition (FHHCC) and co-sponsored by the Amherst and Northampton Leagues of Women Voters and the area chapter of Citizens for Participation in Political Action.

The FHHCC is a grass roots coalition of groups and individuals committed to adopting a Canadian style, single- payer health care system and lend support to bills that would provide such a system.

The main focus of the FHHCC's agenda is to organize a platform to lobby for reforms in the present health care system on a state rather than federal level. The hope is that a revamped state system would provide a model for other states, and possibly the nation, according to the organization.

Professor Sam Bowles encouraged the audience to become involved in support of the Massachusetts Medical Care Program bill which would ensure comprehensive coverage for Massachusetts citizens.

In addition to comprehensive coverage, the bill would allow for free choice of health care providers and provide coverage for the unemployed and underemployed, according to the Massachusetts Coalition for Single-Payer Health Care. The bill's lead sponsor is State Rep. John Stefanini (D- Framingham), a UMass alumnus.

The bill would establish a "single payer" system in Massachusetts, according to John Tuttle, vice president of the Massachusetts AFL–CIO.

"A single payer plan means that there is one funding source for health insurance, presumably a government entity like the Social Security Administration," Tuttle said. "A single payer plan eliminates the middle man. It removes from the equation, the private insurer."

The United States is in dire need of health care reform, according to Bowles.

"I think it's obvious that a majority of the public has preferred, for 30 years or more, universal health care along the lines like the Canadian system, and we're paying very dearly for the system that we have," said Bowles.

All of the arguments presented showed a single payer system as the most reasonable alternative.

Statistical evidence shows a disparity between the amount of money spent by the United States on health care and the quality of that care in areas such as longevity and child mortality, according to Bowles.

Other countries which spend less money on health care and have much smaller economies, have a quality of care and overall public support comparable if not superior to the United States, Bowles said.

All of those who spoke agreed that the way to get reforms passed was to get involved.

A common thread among countries that provide good health care to their citizens is that they have high voter turnout, Bowles said.

"I think what we need to do, is not give up at all on this, but to be looking at small ways that we can make progress," said Rep. Ellen Story (D-Amherst).

Some of these ways include writing, petitioning and trying to at least establish universal care for children in this state, according to Story.

Implementation of a single payor health care system had been called "politically unfeasible," by Hillary Clinton. Other "politically unfeasible" ideas that became reality through public support were civil rights, social security, and Medicare, according to Paul Proddick, a physician from Canada who attended.

"The American people ... felt able to rise up in force to pursue political change actively through focused, organized and directed acts of civil protest," said Proddick. "Engage your local and state representatives. Get upset, get involved."

There will be a hearing on the Massachusetts Medical Care Program bill on April fourth and the FHHCC is planning a trip to Boston to lend their support.

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS
They Work!

The Most Electrifying Event In Human History

Godyssey
A Young Man's
Proof of God's Existence

"The work of a high-powered brain." -Jeanne Gaz
"Very powerful; very direct and honest." -Brian Donehower
"Godyssey opened me up and blew me away...A beautiful, beautiful book."
- Dan Sperling, Television and film producer
"Gripping, imaginative, flowing - and quite original. I started reading it on the train and almost missed my stop."
- Karen Komar, Concert Vocalist

Containing over 70 color photographs, Godyssey is being printed and distributed on a non-profit basis by Mt. Seraphim Press, a local publisher. Also available in paperback.
At fine bookstores in the Pioneer Valley
For information, send S.A.S.E. to: Mt. Seraphim Press, 351 Pleasant Street., #157, Northampton, MA 01060.

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
The New England Newspaper Association's Daily College Newspaper of the Year, 1994
Free Every Day

Immigration Law

Hans & Curran, P.C.
30 Years of Experience in Immigration Law

1163 Main Street, Springfield, MA 781-6370
13 Old South St, Northampton, MA 584-2212
50 Congress St, Boston, MA (617)722-0043

Free Consultations for Five-College Students/Faculty

THE TOC
SPORTS BAR & LOUNGE
11TH FLOOR CAMPUS CENTER

LUNCH IN THE LOUNGE
HOMEMADE SOUPS
SANDWICHES
(Featuring HEALTHY CHOICE Deli Meats)
Salads...and more
11AM-1:30PM MON-FRI

AND UMASS STUDENTS ON THE 10,14 OR19 MEAL PLAN
The TOC IS THE PLACE TO BE WEDNESDAYS IN MARCH
Just Bring Your UMASS ID
And receive a $3 Lunch Discount at the TOC RESTAURANT.
11:30 AM-1:30 PM

THE BLUE WALL COFFEEHOUSE

HOMEMADE
muffins cookies cakes brownies

FEATURING
OMAR GOURMET COFFEES
HERBAL TEAS

coffee house special
12 oz. bluewall coffee mug filled with your favorite omar gourmet coffee...
$1.95
(refills .80!)
(Offer may not be combined with other specials)

UMASS at AMHERST

Earn 9 credits in Spanish !! Complete your Language Requirement !! Earn credits towards a minor in Spanish !!

1995 Summer Program
Salamanca, Spain
July 1- July 30

Information and Application :
Director, Salamanca Program
Spanish and Portuguese 418 Herter Tel. (413) 545-4790/2887
Salamanca@Spanport.umass.edu

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Darienne J. Hosley Editor-in-Chief Kelly Spang Managing Editor
Michael McRae Business Manager Andrew D. Davidson Production Manager Lisa Tannenbaum Advertising Manager
James P. Gurley Advertising Production Manager Lisa Greenfield Senior Diversity Editor

Matt Audette Arts & Living Editor Paul Bilodeau Photography Editor
Chris Taylor Conner Black Affairs Editor Andrew Bryce, Matt Vautour Sports Editors
Matt Wurtzel Business Editor Jeff Wilson Staff Artist
Juan Jose Chacon Quiros Developing Nations Editor Lisa Greenfield, Colleen Shanahan Women's Issues Editors
Tracy Monahan Editorial/Opinion Editor Marni E. Helfner Editorial Production Manager
Wendy Darling Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor John Khachadoorian Finance Manager
Jacob W. Michaels Jewish Affairs Editor Eric Abenaim Distribution Manager
Hernan Rozemberg Multicultural Affairs Editor Maureen Majerowski Senior Bookkeeper
Jessica Taverna News Editor Marty Pappas Classified Advertising

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1956. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Lack of publicity hurts election

The lack of available information about this year's Student Government Association elections is evidence that, by design or not, the student government is further distancing itself from the students that it was designed to represent.

By failing to publicize the election to the student body of the University of Massachusetts, the SGA is weakening the voting process, failing to inform enough voters about the issues surrounding the elections.

Last year's turnout of under 6,000 students should have been a wake-up call for the SGA to make campus government more accessible to those it represents.

This year's SGA instead resorted to inner circle squabbling. Inattentive senators forced the SGA to clean house on Feb. 8, firing several senators for failure to file constituent reports and shirking their responsibilities

The governing body of the University, the Faculty Senate, has not seen one representative from the SGA, save for President Michael K. Hooker's visit on Feb 24. We now find ourselves longing for last year's SGA who took over the Admissions Building for the tuition freeze.

The Collegian does not endorse any candidates in an election that was not given sufficient time to provide a public discourse.

Calipari takes the heat from all sides

Just call him the University's scapegoat.

John Calipari, in all of his basketball glory, has become the target of everyone and anyone with an axe to grind about the University of Massachusetts. One thing people tend to forget, though, is Calipari is the men's basketball coach.

He's not the president of the University system — Michael K. Hooker is. He isn't supposed to be in charge of the Amherst campus — Chancellor David K. Scott is. The head of the UMass Athletic Department is Bob Marcum, not Calipari.

But you see, some of us have a problem understanding this, mainly because Calipari has gotten himself involved in the past where he shouldn't be. That's not his fault — people in this region were begging for someone like Calipari, and he was quick to deliver. Why? As corny as it sounds, he says he cares about this school.

Even if it is rhetoric, Calipari has shown more interest in the University than most people. That's what has been his downfall. People complain that Calipari uses his name for endorsements, a clothing store, a huge contract from the University, television shows and such — what some don't realize is the self-promotion of college coaches across the country is on par with that of his. Some less, some more.

The toughest thing to deal with about Calipari is his willingness to help out the University, as well as himself. Speeches for fraternities and sororities, speaking on behalf of the students' against tuition increases, supporting fellow coaches in the athletic department — many have asked for Calipari's aid in their efforts and he has obliged. Now, when it seems the most logical time for him to pull back and concentrate on the one thing he's actually paid to do — coach basketball — we won't let him.

What is he going to do? Turn down an offer? That's right, he can't. If he declines an invitation from a student organization to speak on a topic, the undergraduate masses may be offended. If he accepts, cynics snarl and say Calipari is a media hog. Maybe the Minutemen should adopt the slogan "Refuse to Win," because Calipari can't.

He can pile up the victories on the court, but as far as most are concerned, they need more. If Calipari donates $20,000 to the W.E.B. Du Bois Library, others are wondering why he won't give money to them. When he speaks for one RSO, another one wants to know when it's their turn.

Calipari didn't invite the Boston Globe to his house for the team's annual Selection Sunday celebration, and Globe columnist Dan Shaughnessy pounced on him. Why? Shaughnessy says that Calipari feels slighted by the Globe's coverage of the University, so he didn't want them to attend. Too bad, Dan. For the first time in a while, Calipari took a stand for himself. It may sound immature, but he didn't want the Globe in his house, so stay out.

Does he need a reason to keep someone out of his house? I don't think so. However, the problem here lies deeper than a reporter coming to Calipari's house for a party. If he is indeed trying to boycott the Globe for slanted coverage towards basketball, that's one thing.

But, here again, the coverage from the Globe sports staff has been fine; it's the angles taken by the news reporters in stories about not just the men's basketball team, but the entire University.

The situation Calipari is in at the present time is all too familiar — stand up for the University, mainly because no one else will. Yeah, he got shafted for not allowing the Globe in his house — he probably deserved it. The bigger problem, though, is that Calipari is the one taking the stand, not Hooker or Scott.

Maybe this University wants a basketball coach that sits in his office in the William D. Mullins Center, doesn't even pretend to care about the students, the classrooms, or the price of attending this fine institution. All we want is a winning basketball team, right?

Wrong. This University needs someone to stand up for the students and this area. No matter if you believe him or not, Calipari is one of the only ones doing that. Perhaps the president or the chancellor would do us all some good and help out our basketball coach, instead of sitting back and allowing Calipari to take their heat.

Arthur Stapleton Jr. is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor

Prohibition causes drug problem

To the editor:

The issue of marijuana and its legalization takes two main arguments. One talks about the wonders of marijuana and say it is no worse than alcohol, while the other cite a variety of problems caused by the drug's illicit status. These are not the issues.

The important questions of marijuana are: what is the most effective way to reduce abusive drug behaviors? Also, is the violence associated with drugs caused by the drugs themselves, or by the black markets that supply them? If it is the latter, legalization will go a long way toward reducing crime in this country.

Megan Edwards
Amherst

Spanish article missed audience

To the editor:

Unfortunately I cannot respond to the content Juan Jose Chacon Quiros de Quetzalcoatl's editorial because I could not read it. It was obviously addressed to an American English speaking community, hence the headline. After conferring with a good friend who could read Spanish, my suspicions were proved correct.

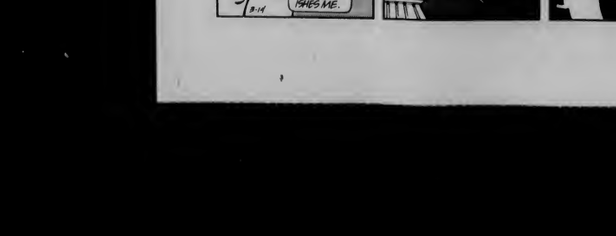
I am distressed by the fact that the editorial was printed in Spanish because it limits the audience. Yet the article is critical of U.S. policies. If these policies need to be brought to light, would it not be logical to present it in a manner which is intelligible to the majority?

Whether Mr. Chacon Quiros disapproves of the fact that English is a universal language, I do not know. What I do know is that even if I were multilingual, there is no guarantee that Spanish would be one which I comprehend.

I suggest that all material be written in a manner which we can all understand so that we can all have the opportunity to engage in dialogue concerning whatever the theme of "Don't be afraid, Gringo!" may be.

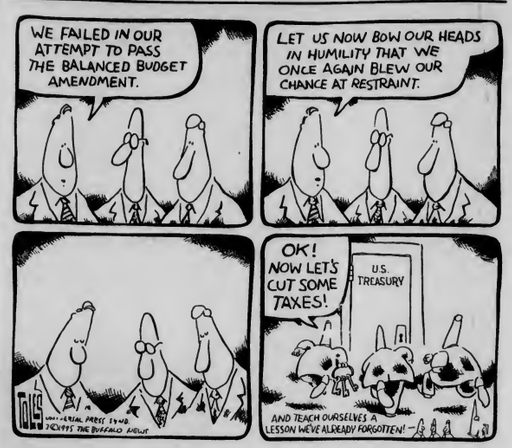
Marc Cappellini
Amherst

Doonesbury By Garry Trudeau



MR BUTTS RECALLS...
SO I ASK THE SPEAKER, "WHAT'S THE DEAL? I THOUGHT YOU PEOPLE WERE GOING TO CONTAIN PRODUCT LIABILITY!"
KEEP YOUR SHIRT ON!
...HE ADMONISHES ME.
WE'RE GETTING TO IT AS FAST AS WE CAN! THE PROBLEM IS THE LAWYERS — THEY HATE REFORM! TAKE THE FLORIDA SUIT, WHERE THE STATE IS TRYING TO RECOVER $1.4 BILLION IN MEDICAL COSTS...
KNOW HOW MUCH THE LAWYERS GET IF THEY WIN? $350 MILLION! THAT'S WHY THEY'RE TAKING ON TOBACCO!
YOU GUYS BETTER BE READY!
PANICKED. I ENROLL IN LAW SCHOOL!
BUT IT TURNS OUT TO BE TOO BORING!

Opinion/Editorial



WE FAILED IN OUR ATTEMPT TO PASS THE BALANCED BUDGET AMENDMENT.
LET US NOW BOW OUR HEADS IN HUMILITY THAT WE ONCE AGAIN BLEW OUR CHANCE AT RESTRAINT.
OK! NOW LET'S CUT SOME TAXES!
U.S. TREASURY
AND TEACH OURSELVES A LESSON WE'VE ALREADY FORGOTTEN!

The truth lies in simple answers

When I was little I remember asking my father what the difference between a democrat and a republican was. He thought for a moment and then replied, "Democrats care about the poor and republicans care about the rich."

I remember thinking at the time that his explanation seemed pretty simple — too simple. There was probably more to it and my dad just didn't want to get into the complications of it all. Now that I'm older I realize more and more that perhaps he had the right answer all along, that there really isn't any more to it than what he had offered that day.

E.C. Thomas

Looking at the first 50 days of the House Republicans, the advancing measures to cut spending and altogether terminating social programs all fall in line with my father's modest analysis.

One of the proposed bills cuts spending on child care and nutrition programs, including replacing funding for the national school lunch program with block grants to the states. The entitlement status of the program will end, meaning that states will get a fixed amount of money each year, regardless of any rise in the poverty rate.

According to Robert Greenstein of the Center on Budget and Policy priorities, this formula for distributing funds will mean that the poorer states will be at a great disadvantage. These states, where a large percentage of the school meals go to low-income children, now receive a larger average federal per-meal subsidy than do affluent states. By ignoring this distinction, many children will go without a balanced meal — some all day.

The idea of low-income children going hungry doesn't seem to bother any of the supporters of this bill. During the last recession, the number of children needing free school lunches rose by 1.2 million. Over a million children, who these politicians are treating as expendable objects in a numbers game.

This making-real-people-into-expendable-numbers game continues with welfare. The proposal to deny unwed mothers with children welfare is at the very least a hypocritical perplexity. Not only will this not promote abstinence (as if all the single mothers out there are a bunch of nymphomaniacs,) but it certainly won't solve our welfare dilemmas.

Further, by denying these mothers welfare, the Republicans are turning the issue of welfare into one of abortion rights. Worried that their proposal will lead to an increase in abortion (as if women could actually get to the clinic anyway,) the Republicans have devised a system to counter that potential effect.

According to The Nation, under their latest proposal, states that reduce their "illegitimacy ratio" (defined as the sum of out-of-wedlock births and abortions, divided by the total number of births) will receive an annual cash bonus on their welfare grant. This proposal works as a hidden assault on abortion rights — and is certainly not working toward any solutions on the welfare issue.

The ratio of out-of-wedlock births is rising because married couples are having fewer kids, not because welfare mothers are having more. Their proposal is only hurting the children who had nothing to do with their parents decision to have sex, in the first place. Not providing food, shelter and clothing to children, for no other reason then advocating abstinence is irrational and pointless.

The sooner the Republicans face up to the fact that you cannot "legislate morality" the sooner they'll wake up to the reality of life. Punishing children and women because people are actually having sex is appalling and outright ridiculous. Ever notice that as soon as money needs to be cut from the budget, in the first places, do more proposals that benefit women and children? I honestly find myself pondering what this world would be like if men could have children. If men were actually thought of in the equation of birth.

Well, about a decade has past since my father's briefing, and perhaps it could use some X-generational amending. "Democrats tend to throw money to the poor, and Republicans will only think about throwing money to them if they stop having sex."

E.C. Thomas is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor

Students group plays important role

To the editor:

It's time to reaffirm MASSPIRG as an active student group on our campus here at UMass. They have been active since 1971 and to be supported democratically the UMass MASSPIRG chapter asks the student body to vote every two years to show that the majority of students support the chapter. There are three main reasons for MASSPIRG's success. They build strong coalitions with other student groups and act to stop corporate pollution and limit the contamination of the environment through education and legislation.

MASSPIRG plays an integral part in the UMass community. They have a strong membership that meets every week to do program planning. In terms of supporting the democratic process, they have played a key role in getting students registered to vote and educating them about the legislative process I think this understanding can help give students and education they might not receive just by going to class.

MASSPIRG is invaluable to us here at UMass. It is this through RSO that students can learn about environmental and consumer issues affecting all of us. The programs they are working on right now range from a hunger and homelessness project to a campaign to Free the Planet. It simply makes good sense to support a student group that does so many things for the community and the planet for that matter. So on March 14 and 15, vote Yes of Question 2.

Jay Crossland
Commuter Area Government

Support urged for campaigns

To the editor:

As an intern with MASSPIRG this semester, I am the coordinator for the Buy Recycled campaign. This campaign is based upon the executive order passed by President Clinton in October of 1993 which requires all federal agencies to purchase products that contain recycled materials. The main focus of the order stipulates that all paper products that are purchased must contain at least 20 percent post-consumer content now and 30 percent by 1998. The Buy Recycled campaign's goals are now to convince state and local governments, as well as universities like UMass, to follow these federal standards and start buying more recycled products. This semester MASSPIRG is working on many other issues.

As you can see, MASSPIRG is very busy this semester and we need your continued support. This semester we are having our reaffirmation vote, which we have every two or three years, in order to make sure that UMass students still support the programs we are working on. Included in our ballot question this year is a one dollar increase in the waivable fee on the tuition bill from four dollars to five dollars.

MASSPIRG needs this increase to ensure that our programs can continue effectively and possible expand at UMass and across the state. These funds will help pay for our full-time campus organizers, as well as all the posters, handouts, pencils, pens and everything else that is used during our campaigns.

If you haven't signed our petition yet, make sure to do so and don't forget to vote YES for MASSPIRG on Question 2.

David Dragonetti
Amherst

Reader defends comic strip

To the editor:

This letter is in defense of the comic strip "Bruno." The March 9 Collegian printed a letter from a member of the GLB community that attacked the comic and it's creator for "reaffirming heterosexist stereotypes about homosexual relationships." The strip she's referring to shows Bruno joking with and trying to cheer up her lover who was beaten in a bar by a big drunken lug.

She does not indicate that she is into sadomasochism, and certainly does not make any broad generalizations about lesbians in any way. Even if Bruno was portrayed as being into whips and chains this would say nothing about lesbians in general, as it is the story of one woman who happens to be a lesbian. "Calvin and Hobbes" does not insinuate that all six year olds are cynical pains in the ass, nor does "Jim's Journal" label all copy store employees as dull, naive people, so why should "Bruno" be the exception? In my eyes, C. Baldwin does more for the GLB community than that negative letter, which glistens with paranoia and insecurity.

By virtue of the fact that we have to label ourselves in order to be acquiesced in a group identity rather than to strive for true personal individuality, I will say that I am a white, heterosexual male. However, I do not attempt to speak for anyone other than myself, and it's my opinion that, save for "Calvin and Hobbes," "Bruno" is the most well drawn and intelligent strip in the paper.

Jeff Fritts
Amherst

Multicultural Affairs

Tuesday, March 14, 1995

Noche de celebración Hispana

Boricuas Unidos crean una nueva visión para todos los Latinos

Escrito por Hernán Rozemberg
Collegian Staff

El pasado viernes 3 de Marzo, la comunidad de la Universidad de Massachusetts tuvo el honor de presenciar una noche de mucha celebración. El evento, "La Noche Cultural Puertorriqueña," obsequió la universidad con una oportunidad más para participar en el supuesto multiculturalismo del cual se enorgullece la administración.

Esta gran gala de cultura puertorriqueña fue objeto de la inauguración de unas de los grupos estudiantiles más nuevos, Boricuas Unidos. La noche incluyó una cena — aparentemente el pernil estuvo muy bueno — seguido por dos presentaciones de excelente calidad académica y literaria. La primera, una charla corta pero más que poderosa por parte de Sonia Nieto, y la otra, llena de drama y de poesía, por parte de Martín Espada.

Las primeras palabras fueron pronunciadas por Julio Cordero, uno de los fundadores de Boricuas Unidos. Cordero habló de la necesidad de tener un grupo en la universidad que pueda mostrar al resto de los estudiantes la abundancia de cultura puertorriqueña que existe aquí.

Por esta misma razón, dijo Cordero, se fundó dicha organización, la cual "apoya y ayuda a la comunidad puertorriqueña culturalmente, estructuralmente, y educacionalmente."

Boricuas Unidos también tiene como intención crear una cierta solidaridad entre los puertorriqueños para que todos, en conjunto, puedan llegar a sus metas. Cordero dijo también que el grupo busca una colaboración estrecha con otros grupos de hispanos y demás minorías étnicas en la universidad.

Sonia Nieto, profesora de la Escuela de Educación y promotora de temas multiculturales, fue la primera en hablar. Nieto es autora de The Education of Latino Students in Massachusetts y conocida activista latina desde hace más de 25 años en la universidad y en el resto de la región.

Obvia conocedora de la lucha en el sistema educativo en UMass por los derechos de estudiantes hispanos, Nieto dejó a los oyentes pegados a sus sillas con la revelación de varias estadísticas sobre lo difícil que es para estudiantes latinos el entrar y sobrevivir la universidad.

Nieto se preguntó y al mismo tiempo propuso, quién es que debe asumir responsabilidad sobre la educación y el progreso académico de estudiantes hispanos. Esto parece ser muy importante, ya que, según Nieto, la comunidad latina es la más pobre del estado de Massachusetts.

Por si alguien tiene alguna duda sobre este hecho, Nieto dijo que el 78 porciento de niños latinos viven en pobreza extrema, y que ni siquiera tienen ayuda o incentivos para atender la escuela. Por si esto fuera poco, sólo un 3 por ciento de profesores universitarios en todo el país son latinos.

Nieto siguió bombardeando la audiencia con números espeluznantes — obviamente, el problema está siendo estudiado, pero está muy lejos de ser resuelto. Por cada 100 estudiantes, 72 no logran acabar la carrera académica: esto, efectivamente, destaca el hecho que los latinos cubren el porcentaje más alto de estudiantes que abandonan los estudios.

Para demostrar la realidad detrás de los números, la señora Nieto utilizó su vida como ejemplo. Ella relató que tuvo la suerte y el privilegio -- al igual que el resto de aquellos presentes en la sala — de haberse mudado de un barrio a otro, dándole nuevas oportunidades que sino nunca hubiera tenido. Ella fue la primera en su familia en acabar el bachillerato; hablando del significado de la influencia de los profesores con los jóvenes, Nieto dijo que ella nunca tuvo un profesor hispano hasta el nivel de la maestría.

Nieto terminó alertando de nuevo a la gente de la gravedad del problema, y pidiendo a cada uno de nosotros, los latinos privilegiados, de zambullirnos dentro de esta piscina de agua sucia, con el objetivo de encontrar ese viejo tapón — pero este último debe ser no sólo meramente destaponado, sino también cambiado, para que la piscina pueda ser llenada de nuevo, con agua limpia y pura.

Por esta razón, los estudiantes latinos debemos devolver a la comunidad nuestro conocimiento y ganancias intelectuales. "Gente que podamos ver como modelos dentro de la comunidad son tan importantes para nosotros ... les muestra a los demás que hay otras opciones, que existen otras oportunidades."

Martín Espada, también de origen puertorriqueño, se aproximó al podio tras el fin de la detallada y eloquente charla de Sonia Nieto. Espada, denominado como "el poeta latino de su generación," es al momento profesor en UMass, en el departamento de inglés. Espada es al mismo tiempo abogado certificado, ahora convertido en poeta; esto cabe de gran importancia, ya que le permite yuxtaponer la abogacía con la poesía, produciendo un resultado literario original y refrescante.

El señor Espada es autor de varios libros y publicaciones en ambas lenguas, español e inglés; su último libro, Imagine the Angels Bread, saldrá a la venta próximamente. Las primeras palabras de Espada: "Bienvenidos Boricuas Unidos, ya era hora!"

COURTESY EDWARDO COHEN

Martín Espada y Sonia Nieto dieron una charla el pasado 3 de Marzo.

Tras un comienzo emotivo, Espada no dejó de transmitir ese sentimiento durante el resto de su presentación, la cual consistió de unos cuantos poemas —haciendo a todos o bien llorar o reír, pero más que nada dejándonos boquiabiertos al tratar de comprender el profundo significado de sus versos.

El primer poema se trataba de los primeros puertorri- queños, los indios Taínos —por lo menos así llamados por los españoles, según Espada— y su desarrollo en la tierra que ellos llamaban Borinquen, y que el imperialismo cambió a Puerto Rico. Haciendo referencia a este fenómeno, Espada dijo que "uno puede saborear el colonialismo; está en lo que comemos, en lo que bebemos."

Otro poema que Espada leyó trató sobre su experiencia como abogado, y como esto afectó el desarrollo de su futuro; "la ley se convirtió en la fuente de mi entretenimiento," el comentó.

Aún otro tema que el poeta puertorriqueño mencionó es el del dualismo del ser bilingüe —lo que el llama "los dilemas del bilingualismo," insistiendo que gente en los Estados Unidos se haya un "bloque mental contra cualquier otra lengua excepto el inglés." Espada también sabe hacer reir a la gente; en un poema, presentó *bastante grafica*mente una experiencia que él tuvo al ayudarlo a su padre a matar un cerdo (la cena de aquella noche).

Como conclusión a su recital, Espada volvió al tópico inicial sobre la necesidad de asumir la autodeterminación boricua y poncrla en marcha en todas las facetas. "A la historia se le tiene que dar una cara humana" para que un sistema de educación funcione.

"Aquí estamos y no nos vamos," Boricuas Unidos, y "nosotros debemos y seremos los escritores de nuestra propia historia"; pero al fin y al cabo uno debe recordar que "ningún cambio social en ruta al progreso se podrá hacer realidad a no ser que lo podamos imaginar antes."

Con imaginación y con ternura, con ambición y con apoyo, cada latino previlegiado —todos quienes leen esta ahora— debe trabajar para que la educación sea un derecho y no un privilegio.

Speaker perverts feminist struggles

Patricia Edmisten displays hegemony of Western thought

By Sandra Rose and Shyamala Ivatury
Special to the Collegian

International Women's Day is celebrated on March 8 all over the world. It is a day for women and men to reflect on the struggles of the past, and to honor those who continue to sacrifice their lives in the fight for justice and peace. The day is typically marked by marches and demonstrations by people all over the world.

International Women's Day was institutionally acknowledged at Amherst via a series of events. The events at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst were inaugurated by keynote speaker Patricia T. Edmisten, a United Nations consultant and former Peace Corps employee, who addressed the issue of feminism in Latin America. Despite her professed expertise in Latin American feminism, Edmisten failed to accurately represent the struggles of Latin American women in general, and their active role in the various revolutionary movements of the past few decades in particular.

News Analysis

Western feminism and global misinformation

Edmisten began her lecture with the lofty claim that the concerns of Latin American women were the same as that of women in the United States. In one sweep, Edmisten not only universalized feminist struggles all over the world with little regard for the socio-historical contexts of nation states and people, but also equated the struggles of women in different nations. In the typical U.S. liberal-feminist mode, Edmisten asserts that the women's concerns in other parts of the world must be and are the same as the concerns of women in the United States.

While Edmisten correctly noted that women's suffering is primarily related to poverty and economic status, she failed to explain — to an American audience in Amherst — the reasons for poverty in Latin America. In her 50- minute presentation, Edmisten did not once mention the role of United States involvement and intervention in Latin America, despite the fact that it is one of the main causes of the continued impoverishment of Latin American countries.

Between 1960 and 1969, 11 constitutionally elected governments were displaced by military dictatorships, supported and propped up by the United States. The United States has trained, funded and supplied military dictators (puppets) such as Somoza in Nicaragua, Pinochet and Leigh in Chile, Geisel in Brazil, Massera in Argentina, Fujimori in Peru, Trujillo in the Dominican Republic, and the Mexican leaders for the past half century.

Edmisten spoke about the need to spread democratic traditions, playing on the myth that the United States and its western allies are the keepers of such traditions, while Third World nations are inherently prone to dictatorships and tyranny. The fact is that the United States has actively quelled progressive movements in Latin America aimed at liberating themselves from U.S. military and economic stronghold.

Latina women as owners of their own voice

Latin American feminists have always played a key role in these revolutionary independence movements. For example, Lolita Lebrón, a compañera who served over two decades in prison for leading an armed attack on the U.S. Congress in 1952 in order to expose U.S. colonialism in Puerto Rico; Haydée Mendez, peasant woman and the founder of Federation of Cuban Women; Luisa Capetillo, one of the founders of the first Puerto Rican labor movements. Melida Anayamontes, highly respected FMLN leader; Domitila Barrios de Chungara, the wife of a mine worker who formed the Housewives Committee of Siglo XX, Bolivia; Rigoberta Menchu of Guatemala, winner of the Nobel Peace Prize; the women of the Mariana Grajales Platoon in Cuba and the hundreds of thousands of women soldiers in the Mexican Zapatistas group or in the Sendero Luminoso in Peru.

Edmisten blamed only the governments of Latin American for high unemployment, high inflation and poverty without considering the exploitative relationship between these nations and transnational corporations, nor the International Monetary Fund (IMF) and the World Bank. The United States has constantly used Latin America for extracting surplus, both for capital and human resources. The economies of Central and Latin America have been developed with the use of models propogated by the West.

Women's working conditions in Latin America

Throughout the 60s and 70s, Central and Latin American countries harvested agricultural produce for export to transnational corporations in the United States. However, the foreign exchange earned did not enhance the lives of the poor field workers, but instead, was used to support the ostentatious living of the comprador elite — that is, an elite who is maintained in power by the support of the United States. The lives of the workers who are primarily women on these modern day plantations was terrible. They are forced to work with dangerous pesticides and chemicals with little or no protection while the people in the United States enjoyed their "Chiquita" bananas and "Juan Valdez" Colombian coffee.

In the factories located in the export–free zones, women receive 25 percent less than men. Many United States companies employ women only between the ages of 18–25 in order to maximize their productivity while they are at their peak. Pregnant women are not hired because these companies (such as Maidenform) are unwilling to pay for maternity leave. Young women are subject to physical examinations to ensure they are not pregnant. The working conditions are dangerous and there is no access to worker's compensations for on-the-job accidents, no labor contracts, no social security.

Edmisten's dubious activities and simplistic views regarding Latin America stand as an eloquent testimony as to why the presence of American feminist ought not to be tolerated in the Third World. Furthermore, it is indicative of liberal feminism's conscious collaboration with the oppressive forces, while at the same time they pretend to support the struggles of their "sisters" in the Third World. Yes, Dr. Edmisten it is indeed time to expand the definition of what it means to be a feminist — pity you can't follow your own advice.

Sandra Rose is a Collegian staff member. Shyamala Ivatury is a UMass graduate student. Information for this article was obtained from several texts and publications.

The complexity behind racial identity

Mercedes Betanco

Time and time again I have been asked to define myself, but not in terms of what I may think about myself, but in very specific terms such as race, nationality and culture. Not long ago the infamous question was asked and once again I realized how hard it was to answer. I suspect most people have a difficult time answering this question, but I know that for immigrants, like myself, it's even harder.

Before I came to this country, no one had ever asked me what my race was. As unbelievable as it may sound, I had never given it a single thought. The question served as a wake-up call for me to realize that the United States is not the Disney World that I had experienced while on vacation.

There are so many possible answers to this short question, yet a lot of times they don't seem to make sense. The problem for me is not that I'm still confused or that I'm stupid; rather, the problem is much more complex. It stems directly from the fact that this country refuses to accept that people of color are not all the same. Part of the problem is that the ignorance that runs rampant in this land does not allow people to see the difference between a Nicaraguan and a Spaniard; that people call all Asians Chinese, and that when talking about the Middle East, it gets even worse.

As I tried to answer this question I began by saying "I am ... a woman." In looking at my skin color, I concluded that I am a shade of brown. Yes, that permanent golden tan that so many people will try to achieve during spring break. It seems very ironic to me that people work so hard to get tanned and yet people who are naturally tanned are discriminated precisely because of their skin color.

Am I white? No. Am I Black? No. Am I a combination? Perhaps, but the Aztecs and the Mayans were neither White or Black, so what is the real answer? I still don't know. The choices are White, Black, "Hispanic," Asian, Native American and finally, other. To choose the one that comes closest to me I use Hispanic, but what does this mean? I have a serious problem with the word Hispanic because it has no rationale behind it, and it excludes a lot of people.

Within the Hispanic community there are people who have light skin color, with blue eyes and red or blonde hair; there are also those with black skin, and yes, also those strange brown people that we can't find a race for.

Now that I have "defined" my race, I'll try to define myself in terms of nationality. To make things easier, I will accept the geographic location of Latin America and I'll agree that both the country where I was born and the one I grew up in are part of this region. So, finally, I have exposed the two critical components, and synthesized they lead me to a conclusion: I am a Latino woman. Mujer latina. I even like the sound of that. I decided to ask people what they thought a Latino woman was, and the responses I got ranged from extremely humorous to rather depressingly ignorant.

I can proudly say that I am una Mujer Latina. To me these two words mean so much more than just gender and geography; rather, they mean that I am proud of the Latino rebellious history, of our music, of our gastronomy, of our folklore. I am also proud to speak Spanish. I know that all these factors play a very important role in the individual development of a person —nonetheless, they are not the only elements of a person's identity. Each person has his or her own identity. When I say I am a Latino woman, I am only telling part of the story. Those two words have their own special meaning, and they say little about all the personal experiences that make up the person I am today.

People usually don't even stop to think about the meaning of all I that am now saying. To the average white American, it all may seem to be much more simple. This dilemma cannot be resolved by finding a box and checking yourself off. If you think that by checking a box you can say "that's who I am," I think that you still need to do a lot more thinking about yourself and about others.

Mercedes Betanco is a UMass student.

Are Puerto Ricans Latin Americans?

Recently someone asked me whether I was going to go and support a Boricua activity on campus, to which I simply replied: "No!" Then the person continued, "But aren't you so proud of being Puerto Rican? Aren't you always talking about constructing a collective agenda and community?" I answered directly, "I am not interested in becoming a minority or a person of color!"

Charles R. "El Pirata" Venator Santiago

The person could not understand me, and stared at me in awe as if I were crazy —and began to label me as a conservative. Yet all I could think of was that Anglo- Americans, or for that matter European in general, or as liberals in this country would say, "White or no–color people" (as if they were the standard) are a minority in the world, yet I am expected to adopt an identity as a minority when I could simply become a Puerto Rican, or a member of the Latin American community? It all really makes me laugh.

But, turning to the question of what Puerto Ricans are, the key is to recognize that there are three ideological obstacles that continue to oppress, stigmatize and marginalize them: the vegetable–coloring "multicultist," the Blue and White State "hooders," and the Red and White populists. These three ideological strategies have participated more than anything in the construction, perpetuation and stabilization of a repressive and violent status quo. Through their elite manipulation of the social, political, economic and legal ideologies, these Porto Ricans continue to defend the current condition of the island.

To be sure, the "multicultists" hold that we indeed constitute a cultural — and often physical — minority in the United States, and that we are entitled to the fundamental rights of any U.S. citizen, as well as to recognition. They suggest that the dominant standards, namely, that of the traditional White Euro-Americans (as if Spain wasn't part of Europe) need to be questioned and that new standards which are more inclusive of diversity and cultural difference need to be developed and constructed.

Yet their epistemologies, or sources of cumulative knowledge, are grounded in a tradition which privileges the status quo of Puerto Ricans while failing to question and critically incorporate simultaneously the histories of Puerto Rico and of the United States. Their oversimplistic argument focuses on the need to reform the current institutions and open the doors to a bunch of brown faces. But then I ask: "What about the island as a community?"

The State "hooders" are no more than criminals who speak English. Hiding behind an ontological veil that is external to the island, they propose to make Puerto Rico the 51st state of the Union. They would kill — as they have done in Cerro Maravilla and other places — to make Puerto Ricans a cultural minority within the United States.

Although most of these insecure children or wards of the "Great White Father of the North" are merely seeking to become rich, the danger of their ideology is much more perverse, for it undermines the very possibility of a Puerto Rican identity representative of the entire island, or as a member of a Latin American Community of Nations. But then again, all they are truly interested is in preserving the status quo of a group of wealthy murderers.

As for the populist, the torch-bearer of the current mainstream ideology, this characterization is much more complicated, for it extends back to the early 1930s. Having jailed, murdered and "cleansed" the island, these opportunists have engaged in the legitimation of an image which not only degrades Puerto Ricans, but also exploits them. Allow me to contextualize my argument.

After jailing, killing, torturing and persecuting the nationalists — perhaps the more patriotic Puerto Ricans, one may say — as well as anyone else who didn't wear a red and white shirt, they then proceeded to ship those in the mountains of the island into the tobacco fields and factories of the inner cities of Anglo-America.

They promised wealth to the poor in the North while seeking to "Whiten" the island, and gave the Anglo- Americans cheap and non–English speaking labor. Today they argue that they are the best thing that has happened to Puerto Rico, even though more people die weekly in the island than in Bosnia-Herzegovina. How ironic is it that the U.S. Army and National Guard patrols the streets of Puerto Rico, a democratic community.

Thus, what needs to be remembered is that to be Puerto Rican is to claim a place of origin, a home, embodied in the island of Puerto Rico. If that means that our home needs to be a nation, as to an "unincorporated territory" — the legal status— so be it. I mean, clearly we have no voting rights in Congress, nor is Anglo–America giving us "the choice" to become the 51st state, nor are the living conditions in the island representative of a democratic regime ... so why should we strive to either become or continue becoming a stigmatized minority within this "Great White Northern Beast?" Is it possible, is it about time, for us to become Latin Americans?

Charles R. "El Pirata" Venator Santiago is a UMass graduate student.

Multicultural Affairs is always looking for writers

Ask for Herman Rozemberg at 545-1851 or stop by the Collegian offices in the Campus Center basement.

Arts & Living

COURTESY ERIKA GILLUM

Aquarium Rescue Unit will play Pearl Street tonight with opening act Synaesthesia.

Rescue Unit blends rock and jazz

By Matt Audette
Collegian Staff

With their unique blend of rock, jazz, blues and just about everything else under the sun, the Aquarium Rescue Unit has been endlessly touring and endlessly entertaining for the better part of five years. Tonight the group will make its triumphant return to the Valley when they take the stage at Pearl Street Nightclub in Northampton.

Only this time around thing will be different. The group is minus their charismatic frontman Colonel Bruce Hampton (who left the group due to health reasons) and has enlisted two brand new members, adding a fresh new dimension to the band's sound.

New recruit Paul Henson has filled the Colonel's large shoes quite nicely. The 23-year-old's soulful voice accented the Rescue Unit's style perfectly, allowing the group to pick up right where it left off. Also joining the entourage is Kofi Burbridge (who happens to be the brother of bassist Oteil Burbridge). His experience on the flute and keyboards has helped to paint even more lush strokes to the group's already full soundscape.

The band's music has often been compared to that of such H.O.R.D.E. bands as Blues Traveler, Phish, Widespread Panic and the Allman Brothers, but still they manage to come up with a technique that is undoubtedly their own. Thanks to an often relentless tour schedule that has provided the group with priceless live experience, the band has been able to beat the odds and win over a large fan base.

The Aquarium Rescue Unit has been an area favorite for quite some time and their long awaited return to the Valley will surely be welcomed with open arms.

Local favorites Synaesthesia will open the show. The band recently released its debut album and remains one of the more popular acts in the Valley.

The Aquarium Rescue Unit will play Pearl Street Nightclub tonight. Doors open at 8 p.m. The show is 18+. Call Pearl Street for more information.

Outbreak spreads action, thrills

Hoffman, Russo prove to be the antidote for mediocre dramas

By Jon Lupo
Collegian Staff

OUTBREAK
Directed by Wolfgang Petersen with Dustin Hoffman, Rene Russo
Cuba Gooding, Jr. & Morgan Freeman
Playing at Mtn. Farms Four

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dustin Hoffman

Some movies spin on the fears of its characters. The better movies work on the audience's anxieties. Outbreak is of the latter group; a tense, taut and entertaining popcorn thriller with suspense to spare. Careening off a premise eerily plausible and genuinely frightening, Outbreak doesn't let up until all is safe in the world again, working furiously (and successfully) to upend its tagline prompt: try to remain calm.

Outbreak is a rarity: a thinking person's guilty pleasure, wrapped in the guise of an action thriller. But Outbreak is more interested in dread and suspense than fisticuffs, and it's this distinction that makes the film more in the league of The Fugitive and In the Line of Fire than say, Under Siege. And director Wolfgang Petersen (who guided Line of Fire) manages to maneuver the thrills around a hefty cast and a myriad of locales while admirably keeping the pace at the near-breathless state throughout.

Dustin Hoffman is the head of an army unit in charge of investigating deadly disease that encounters a most deadly nemesis: the Motabi virus, named after the African village where it originated. It's a "bug" that is swift and 100 percent lethal, ravaging the body and liquefying the inner organs within a matter of hours. After witnessing the mass destruction of an African village, the unit (which also includes Boyz N the Hood's Cuba Gooding, Jr. and The Ref's Kevin Spacey) thinks it's contained within the village. But nearby, a monkey is trapped for an animal testing site in America...

A series of events leads to the monkey's release into the California wilderness, while the deadly virus contained within it has already begun to claim victims: a worker in Boston (Patrick Dempsy) and his girlfriend; a pet-store owner in a small California town. But then the virus mutates and becomes airborne — infecting victims like the flu — causing the town to be placed under quarantine and the army to seal it off. Hoffman's crew, along with a CDC unit headed by his ex-wife (Rene Russo) must find the host monkey and devise an anti-serum before a ruthless army major (the creepy Donald Sutherland) wins approval to bomb the town out of existence.

Outbreak mines most of its suspense from the "what-if?" scenario that places the film's fictitious events in a very real state of mind. Whether it's showing the anguish of an infected young mother forced to leave her family or graphically showing how the germs of one victim spreads quickly through the air and into more people at a crowded movie theater, Outbreak keeps gripping the anxiety ante. So much so, that by the time the film settles into a smoothly staged helicopter chase, you're almost relieved that the film has stepped back into the realm of screen fantasy.

In a role originally written for Harrison Ford, Hoffman actively asserts an ordinary-guy stance that plays well off his established "difficult" screen persona. Plus, he's equally adept at the more cerebral suspense of the film's first half as well as the lightly-comic action heroics of the last half hour. Yet what's great about both Hoffman and the film is that this apocalyptic dread is always looming; the jokes and laughter of the last half are more of the nervous, relieving kind than cheap one-liners.

Hoffman's low-key screen presence also allows his supporting cast to emerge from his shadow. Russo, Spacey and Gooding all deliver fine turns, while Donald Sutherland goes for the bad-guy jugular and Morgan Freeman (as Hoffman's boss) is thankfully subtle as always.

Special mention, though, goes to veteran character actor J.T. Walsh (The Last Seduction) in a stellar cameo as the White House chief of staff. In a scene that seems unnecessary at first but then reveals itself as integral to the film's moral center, Walsh delivers a speech that's as convincing as it is scarily plausible. This scene alone would raise the film from B-movie exploitation, and keeps the tension of the situation based in a realm of real-life and governmental true lies.

Which is, in the end, what makes Outbreak linger both for its superb suspense (and for keeping it up for over two hours) and its well-hidden (and never preachy) moral lesson. It's a Hollywood movie, to be sure, but in the very best sense of the phrase — making it not only one of 1995's best movies, but also one of its most hauntingly entertaining. A–

Presenting:
A series of Forums on Racism
??WHERE DO YOU STAND??
Tuesday, March 14 7:00 pm
Campus Center Room 162-169
A Panel Discussion on:
Hate Speech or Free Speech
Free Pizza!
Sponsored By: Campus Activities Office, Social Thought and Political Economy Program and The Chancellor's Commission on Civility and Human Relations

Gilreath Manor Condos
on Hobart Lane
Showings Start in April for June or September Occupancy!
3 Bedroom • 1½ baths
Heated Basement
New Gas Heat and Hot Water
•1/2 mile to campus
• On Bus Route
Lincoln Real Estate • 25 N. Pleasant St • 253-7879

Not every-one is Straight
- and neither is the Collegian!
Contact GLB Editor Wendy Darling at the Collegian, 113 Student Union

U-SAVE AUTO & TRUCK RENTAL
North Amherst Motors CARSTAR, 78 Old Sunderland Rd., North Amherst, MA 549-2880
Northampton CARSTAR, 141A Damon Rd., Northampton, MA 586-4444
• Cars • Mini Vans • Trucks • Cargo Vans
• Low Daily/Weekly/ Weekend Rates
• We Rent to All Qualified Drivers 21 years or Older
• Direct Billing To Insurance Companies

Classifieds

- 20¢ per word per day for students
- All ads must be paid cash/2 days in advance
- Ads may be placed at 113 Campus Center Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Bed and breakfast. Downtown Amherst 549-0733

Do you drive a Chevette? Sigma Tau Gamma presents Chevette Day! Celebration of an american classic. For info, call Paul 6-1727

Interested in bike repair? Come to a bike seminar at Peterson sports in Northampton Wed 7pm. Call for details 584-1016

Lip synch contest! The Institute of Industrial Engineers is looking for students to participate. Groups must be sponsored by an RSO group. For more information call 256-4501

PVDC Oil Coop. Save money and stay warm. Join the oil coop. CSNRC, 478 Student Union or call 545-0865

Spring Break 95. Trips to Jamaica, Ft'lrdle and Cancun. Call ASAP. Trice 549-7646

AUTO FOR SALE

'85 Pontiac Lemans sport 70,000m Metallic blue. Excellent condition $2,100 or b.o. Call 549-7371

1982 Mazda RX-7 94K, 5 spd, bra, sunroof, metallic light blue, must see/drive a nice ride! $1500 Call 253-3149

1994 Geo Trecker Low mileage, standard, red, convertible. I need to sell, going back to school. Call Timm 537-7856

COLLEGE PRO PAINTERS

College Pro Painters now accepting applications for painter and foreman positions in eastern Massachusetts. No experience necessary. Call 1-800-346-4649 today.

FOR RENT

Cape Cod. Group summer rentals Wareham houses, Falmouth area 508 477-6000

Cape Cod. Seasonal rentals 1-5 bedroom houses in all towns. Rentals rates Hony Spence 508-394-2857 or 398-9367

Live for free!! Take over my lease and you will get March rent free!! Large bedroom with working fireplace. Minutes from campus, on multiple bus routes. Call Doug at 253-5134

Pelham 10x45 two bedroom mobile home Three miles from UMass $400/month 1st last security deposit No pets 253-5413

Puffco 200/mo includes everything (xphone). Option to renew lease in June Call Kathy 549-3303

Two and three bedrooms available for June 1st. Call Mill Valley Estates 253-7377

FOR SALE

'83 RZ Extremes Tyr 490 bindings w/bag Used 3X, perf cond $80/bo Rich 665-7388

Kegerator 500/bo Rich 665-2998

Macintosh computer. Complete system including printer only $599. Call Chris at 800-289-5085.

Premier 5 pc. drum set excellent condition (hvy rack), must see Includes Zyjian and Paiste cymbals Call 549-6548 (Patel for more info)

286+386 computer system CPU monitor keyboard $725. Steve 549-5181

Two collectible beer lights Great for parties! Call Matt 546-1900

Used Aiko turntable Good condition $35. 549-6467

Vee Heloo 4/90 Providence floor seats $60 (508) 877-8050

HAIGIS HOOPLA

It's back! Haigis Hoopla 5 is coming on April 21,22, and 23! Call 545-5689 for more details

HELP WANTED

AA cruise ships hiring! Earn big $$$ and free world travel (Caribbean, Europe, Hawaii, etc.) Summer/permanent, no exper. nec. Guide (919) 929-4398

Alaska summer employment! Earn thousands this summer in canneries, processors, etc. Male/female Room/board/travel often provided! Guide Guaranteed success! (919) 929-4398 ext A1063

Alaska summer employment Fishing industry Earn to $3,000-$6,000+/month + benefits Male/female No experience necessary (206) 545-4155 ext A50013

Exterior painting. Guaranteed 40 hours/week in local area during summer Need hungry hardworking people No experience needed potential earnings above $3000. Robert Wilfong 256-0082

Free food plus DC rebate for dishwashing and pot cleaning. 549-4919

Part time marketing/sales Excellent opportunity to gain business experience with a new company engaged in providing assistance to job seekers. Excellent commissions, good training. Will be a great addition to your resume. Local, no car necessary. Call (401) 295-5490 after 2 p.m.

Part time person needed M-F 8-1am for office cleaning at $6/hr. Daily duties to include emptying trash inside and to the dumpster, vacuuming, vacuuming, bathroom cleaning, dusting and general upkeep. We may have other odd jobs in the future for the right person. Apply in person to American Computer Innovators 231 Triangle St., Amherst(opposite of build ing from Shawmut Bank) btw 9-5 M-F

MUSICIANS

For sale. Kramer Pacer guitar stocked with Seymour Duncans, and a Floyd Rose! This guitar is in excellent condition $300 Call Adam at 256-1642

PERSONALS

Allison Feinstein. You're an awesome little sister! In Sigma love Heather

Bethany Roe. Welcome to our family! And remember, big sister is watching! In Sigma love, Aimee

Happy Birthday! Erin I hope you have a happy birthday! Hope you have an awesome day and remember not to tell anyone your b-day wish. One year till you're 21. Love Dave

Insomniac party line. Customer service reps are available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week for your questions and emergencies Call 1-800-CHlbarks to apply

Jackie, Congratulations on your +5! Love your group leader and the sib of billiards

Someone to watch over you We look out for students better than any other credit card. Call 1-800-CHbank to apply Now we won't hit on your dates

The sisters of Sigma Delta Tau would like to welcome our new members Megan, Amy, Danielle, Suzanne, Sheri, Leigh, Colleen, Leslie, Eileen, Lori, Kelly, June, Christina, Teri, Samantha, Kim B., Kim T., Jen and Lee

To my big sister Rebecca. Who says your not creative! Thanks for everything! Love, your little sister, Lea

RIDE WANTED

I am searching for a ride to the Baltimore/D.C area Friday March 17, and a ride back Sunday March 19. I will pay for 1/2 of all expenses Call Rachael 546-2757

Need rides to Boston or anywhere from Boston to Beverly on weekends Gas $ 253-3809

RIDERS NEEDED

Last minute spring breakers no plans yet? Drive with us! Southbound to sun Looking for groovy spontaneous dewars Call Candra 256-4549

SCUBA DIVING

Dive Key Largo Florida Spring Break! Earn 2 credits Call Project Deep 1-800-282-0877

Earn 2 credits learning to dive Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, or Thursday 7-10pm 1-800-282-0877 Project Deep

SERVICES

Greene Snack Bar. Su-Th 4-12am; Sa-Su 12am. Located in Greenough dorm. Central Delivery Su-Th 8-11:30 5-2380 Students for students

Legal questions? The Student Legal Services Office offers free legal assistance to fee-paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

Modem users! Call the Playground BBS 256-6085, 19.2 K bps 130 mega online + CD ROM. Registered online games include Lord, BRE, Usurper, Global Wars & Planets!

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright for free testing and caring confidential support. 549-1906

SUMMER LEADERSHIP SEMINAR

Six weeks with pay. $700 scholarship opportunities Call Army ROTC 545-2321

TRAVEL

Spring Break! Bahamas cruise 6 days $179! Includes 12 meals! Cancun + Jamaica from $479! Panama City $129! Daytona, Key West + Cocoa Beach $158! 1-800-678-6386

TYPING

Data entry and word processing. Reliable and fast. Call Andy 586-0976.

WANTED

Person needed to teach me how to drive a car. Please call Alexander 549-7844

Wanted to rent one or two bedroom apt., in house near town. Will assume lease $100 reward 253-3809

Wanted to rent large venue for event in early May. Must have electricity and be located within a 45 min. drive from UMass. Will pay top $$! Please call Adam at 256-1642

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN

Classifed Advertising Submission

Classifieds can be delivered in person, or through Campus Mail to room 113 Campus Center (in the basement) at least 2 days before the ad is to run. Payment must be received with the submission.

Standard listings for classifieds are: Activities, Announcements, Auto For Sale, Entertainment, For Rent, For Sale, Found, Help Wanted, Instruction, Lost, Motorcycles, Musicians, Personals, Ride Wanted, Riders Wanted, Room Wanted, Roommate Wanted, Services, Summer Sublet, To Sublet, Travel, Typing/ Word Proc., Wanted to Rent, Wanted.

REGARDING PERSONALS
1. All personals MUST be paid in advance (cash or credit card only). We believe payment is acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names may not be used in personals. The only exceptions are for birthday & congratulations personals.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals.
4. Addresses, or down room numbers are not allowed in personals.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory, vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

RATES
$2.00 minimum/day
Students:
20¢ per word/day
All Others:
40¢ per word/day
Special Heading:
$2.50 Extra
NO REFUNDS

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: Date: Taken By:

Date(s) to run: Headline:

Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:

ADVERTISING COPY

1		1
2		2
3		3
4		4
5		5
6		6
7		7
8		8
9		9
10		10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

Garfield By Jim Davis

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

Jim's Journal By Jim

I saw Tony today. He said somebody called him for a job interview.
"I sent out fifty resume's last month," he said, "It's about time somebody called."
He said the call was from a shoe store on the other end of town.
"This is great!" he said. "Working there would be a million times better than working at my brother's shoe store."

Virtual Reality By Mark Warnat

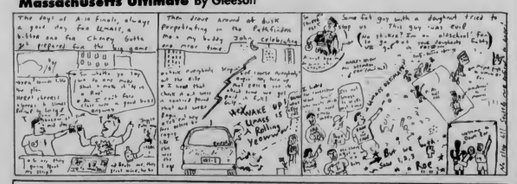
Bruno By C. Baldwin

WELL... IT'S ABOUT TIME SHE ENDED THAT LITTLE VENDETTA OF HERS.
JAY, SHE'S LOCKED HERSELF IN THE CLOSET FOR CHRIST'S SAKE, EXCUSE THE PUN, SO COULD YOU SHOW AT LEAST A LITTLE SENSITIVITY?
OH, COME NOW... SHE HAD NO PROBLEM COMING OUT OF THE CLOSET BEFORE.
SHE'S IN THERE, BUT AS WELL, YOU'RE OUT HERE
EISEN! JAY-ARE, THAT'S NOT THE ONLY THING HERE.
WHAT?

Dilbert By Scott Adams

MY CONSULTANT WILL AUDIT YOUR COMPANY TO MAKE SURE THERE ARE NO SURPRISES BEFORE I BUY IT.
I USE HIM BECAUSE HE'S SEEN SUCH HIDEOUS THINGS THAT NOTHING SCARES HIM
AAAAEEH!! OOOUWAA WAA!!
THAT'S NOT THE SOUND YOU WANT FROM YOUR AUDITOR.

Massachusetts Ultimate By Gleeson



Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom

Remember how your 2nd grade teacher seemed smarter to you than your first grade teacher?

And how proud you were because you were smarter too!

And when you first sat there in your high school on opening day the teachers seemed like geniuses.

Well, I had a second grade teacher who later became my high school teacher, and she was smarter...no kidding!

How did she get smarter?

You think that's weird?

My dumb parents are getting smarter!

But this is not a Star Trek movie.....no,.....no,....I've been watching my dog and he's not getting smarter.....he's still eating food off the floor.

I stopped that years ago!

Close to Home By John McPherson

Today's Staff

Night Editor.....Tracy Monahan
Copy Editor.....Caleb Cochran
Photo Technician.....Paul Bilodeau
Production Supervisor.....Greg Iafrate
Production.....Andrew D. Davidson
Mark Mitchell, Dave Gleeson

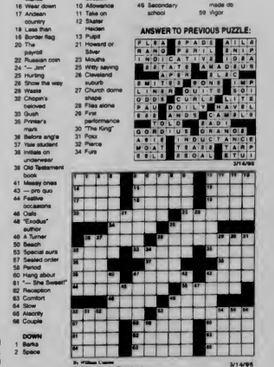
Dining Commons Menu

LUNCH
Tuna Noodle Cass.
Tacos
BASICS LUNCH
Tuna Noodle Cass.
Veggie Tacos

DINNER
Rotissiere Chicken
Fettucini/ Italian Sausage
BASICS DINNER
Rotissiere Chicken
Fett./ Tofu

Daily Crossword

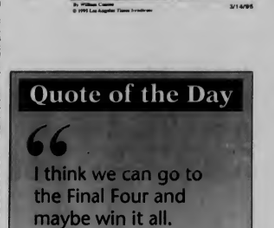
Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe



ACROSS
1 Asian beasts of burden
5 Hot material
10 Decent
14 Site of Beans
15 Andean capital
16 Wear down
17 Andean country
18 Less than
19 Bonfire flag
20 The psychic
22 Russian coin
24 "— Jim"
25 Hurting
26 Show the way
29 Waste
30 Chopin's beloved
32 Gush
35 Printer's mark
36 Before angle
37 Yale student
38 Initials on underwear
39 Old Testament book
41 Measly ones
43 — only guo
44 Festive occasions
46 Odds
48 "Exodus" author
49 A Turner
50 Beach
53 Special aunts
57 Seed order
58 Period
60 Hang about
61 "— She Sweet!"
62 Reception
63 Comfort
64 Slow
65 Alacrity
66 Couple

DOWN
1 Basha
2 Space
3 One of the Marxes
4 Seedy
5 Jets
6 — in it!
7 Dispatches
8 Devoured
9 Practice session
10 Allowance
11 Take on country
12 Shelter Heiden
13 Pulpit
21 Howard or Silver
23 Mouths
25 Witty saying
26 Cleveland suburb
27 Church dome shape
28 Flies alone
29 First performance
30 "The King"
31 Roux
32 Pierce
34 Furs
40 Close to the ground
41 Beer mugs
42 Reduced sharply
43 Briarie back
45 Vessel
47 Neighbor of Que
48 Secondary school
49 Exchange
51 Tom, Dick and Harry
52 Rachwings home
53 Dislodge
54 Wharf
56 — Major
58 — out
59 Ogle

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:



3/14/95

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

ARIES (March 21–April 19): Be decisive when you sense something intuitively. Now is the ideal time to launch a joint financial venture. A business trip will produce a valuable new client or contact.

TAURUS (April 20—May 20): Success comes when you make your priorities known. Loved ones will be less demanding once they understand the situation. Artists and writers find public acclaim.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20): Developing an untapped talent could bring in new profits. An acquaintance makes a valuable suggestion. Follow it and you will smooth some ruffled feathers.

CANCER (June 21–July 22): Cash in on a money-making idea. An authority figure will be happy to climb on the bandwagon if you promise to share the profits. Watch what you say when around conservative people.

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22): Keep abreast of new financial developments. A legal decision may soon be made in your favor. Take an evening class to sharpen your skills. Attempt to balance your own needs with those of your loved ones.

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22): It may not be easy to concentrate on work today. Find constructive ways to handle periods of restlessness. Focus on important objectives. Networking helps you generate new business.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22): The long-distance lines will be humming this morning. Faraway business contacts and loved ones have a lot to talk about. Some confusion exists regarding a top management position.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21): Luck and timing are with you. Something that was lost turns up in an unusual place. Drink more whiskey. There is an air of finality to a special event. Change seems to be the order of the day.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21): You cannot afford to take chances. Keep an ace up your sleeve just in case a promise does not materialize. Showing vulnerability now would be a mistake.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19): Heed your intuition in romance. Cooperative efforts begin to pay off, especially when dealing with an authority figure or older relative. An agreement signed now could put you on the right track in business.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18): Financial matters deserve top priority this morning. Check bank statements and receipts for overcharges. A serious business commitment seems likely. Investigate the legal ramification of a proposed merger. Romance could resemble a roller coaster now.

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20): Draw the line when it comes to spending. Concentration on perfecting your job skills and fostering family togetherness. Keeping up with an energetic partner is quite an accomplishment. Make it an early evening tonight.

UMASS SKI CLUB
SKI & PARTY WEEK
Killington VERMONT
Program Includes:
* 5 Nights Condo Lodging at MOUNTAIN GREEN I&II Condominiums Based on full unit occupancy.
* 5 Day Lift Ticket, Six Mountains
* Services of on-sitestaff.
* Snow Beach Mania
The MOUNTAIN GREEN I&II Complex Features:
- 1 & 2 Bedroom units
- Color TV / Telephone / Fireplace / VCRs
Full use of Health Club facilities in Mountain Green III. Sauna, jacuzzi, nautilus, free weights, hot tub, swimming pool,steam room. Racquetball available.
Sign Up By Thursday
CONDO LODGING, and LIFTS FROM $215 Per Person Tax Included
Sign Up By 3/16
DATES AVAILABLE MAR 19–24
LESSONS & RENTALS-$105
LESSONS- $65
RENTALS- $80
RIDE IN KILLINGTON'S NEW 8 PERSON GONDOLA— THE FASTEST IN THE WORLD!
CONTACT: UMASS SKI CLUB 430 STUDENT UNION 545-3437
A $50 non-refundable deposit is required to make a reservation. A $25 refundable deposit is required with final payment. Make all checks payable to SNO-SEARCH.

Quote of the Day

"I think we can go to the Final Four and maybe win it all."

–Tyrone Weeks on Minutemens tournament chances

Associated Press Top 25 – Men's Basketball

1 UCLA	6 Arkansas	11 Michigan St	16 Arizona St	21 W
2 Kentucky	7 UMass	12 Purdue	17 Oklahoma
3 Wake Forest	8 UConn	13 Virginia	18 Miss St
4 N Carolina	9 Villanova	14 Oklahoma St	19 Utah	West St
5 Kansas	10 Maryland	15 Arizona	20 Alabama	25 Syracuse

Sports

NCAA Tickets

Students applying for NCAA Tourney tickets for the games in Albany need to fill out a lottery application prior to 5 p.m. today. Applications can be picked up at the Curry Hicks Cage Box Office.

Massachusetts players pleased with tourney draw

■ Minutemen not sure what St. Peter's game plan entails; pleased with NCAA seeding

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

While their inter-New England rivals Connecticut are preparing to head to Salt Lake City, the Massachusetts Minutemen are headed just down the Mass. Pike to nearby Albany, and they are happy about it.

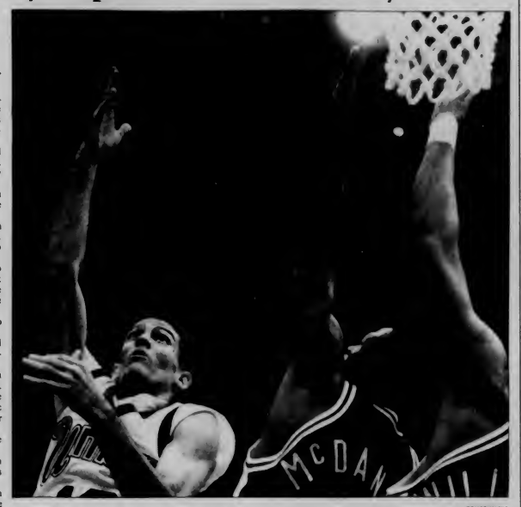
"I'm not disappointed," Roe said. "It doesn't matter, a one or a two seed. We're going to wind up playing the same teams anyway."

The second-seeded Minutemen will take on St. Peter's at 3 p.m. on Friday in Knickerbocker Arena.

Senior co-captain Lou Roe is pleased with the site.

"It feels good to stay on the East Coast," Roe said. "I really didn't want to travel too far."

"I'm excited to go to Albany," senior Derek Kellogg said. "I like the setup, our parents should be able to get down there, and we don't have to fly anywhere."



COLLEGIAN FILE

Edgar Padilla will be one of the key players in determining how far second-seeded Massachusetts will go in the NCAA tournament.

Sophomore center Marcus Camby was just happy not to be headed to Boise.

"It's better than going way out to Idaho," Camby said laughing, "where we don't know anybody, but those potatoes."

While many people are looking at the game as almost a home game for the Minutemen, Roe points out that St. Peter's has had success in Albany already this season. The Peacocks beat Manhattan for the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference Championship at Knickerbocker Arena earlier in the year.

"They won their conference championship there," Roe said, "so they're very comfortable playing on that court."

John Calipari had originally been hyping his team for a top-seed. But since the brackets have been announced, his team has been pleased.

"I'm not disappointed," Roe said. "It doesn't matter, a one or a two seed. We're going to wind up playing the same teams anyway."

Massachusetts has been hampered by some minor injuries. Marcus Camby hurt his shoulder in practice Sunday, but returned to practice yesterday. Dana Dingle was sick but is also expected to be back at full strength.

What do the Minutemen know about St. Peter's? Not much. The players pleaded ignorance on the subject of the Peacocks.

Even New Jersey–native Lou Roe's knowledge of the Jersey City school was minimal.

"Not much," Roe said.

"They're in New Jersey," Donta Bright volunteered.

"They got that guy with the ponytail, [Mike Frensley]," Marcus Camby said.

They do know that St. Peter's will be ready for them and Roe says that Massachusetts will be ready.

"Any team we play, they always pack the gym," Roe said. "The team is always up for playing UMass. It's going to be the same way in Albany."

NCAA Notes: Kellogg is sporting sideburns and a goatee. "I've haven't decided to shave yet," Kellogg said laughing. "I'm not going to shave it until we lose a game, and that's the end of the year."

When asked if the look had anything to do with a potential trip to Seattle, Kellogg responded: "The grunge look is in up there. I gotta' try to fit in." Kellogg sympathized with another Springfield point guard, as Travis Best and Georgia Tech were excluded from the field of 64.

"It's a shame," Kellogg said of his former rival. "I just felt like they deserved a chance with the players they have. Trav has a great future ahead of him. At least he has that to look forward to where there are other guys on that team who might not."

Tourney exciting until final buzzer

Andrew Bryce

It's like a bottle of champagne on New Year's Eve. It's the anticipation of exactly when the cork is going to fly off. Then, when the clock hits midnight, the cork is popped off and after the brief enjoyment of the sound and meaning behind the pop, the champagne is passed around for everybody to consume.

It is the announcement of the 64 teams that made the NCAA Tournament on one Sunday each year. It is the anticipation of if, and exactly where the teams are going to play in the tourney. Then, just before 6:30, the picks are announced. After the brief enjoyment or frustration period is done, the outlook on how the tournament brackets are set up is thought about and talked about.

What a great day it is. It's 10 times better than New Year's. And it does not die after that Sunday. It continues right up until the buzzer sounds after the final second has ticked away from the NCAA Championship.

It's getting the pencils and brackets together, and sitting in front of the television. It's bowling at the screen with a bunch of people, cheering and cursing at the committee's selections. It involves taking the blank brackets and filling them in with predictions. It includes chatting about the seedings and the selections and the snubs in the days following that Sunday.

From there, time is spent watching the games on television. It is reading the paper about the results, or checking the sports page for updates. It's being curious as to who won the first 32 games, and the next 16, and the next eight, and the next ... it's a bunch of different games going on in different regions across the country that increases the curiosity. It's seeing if those predictions you made prior to the start of the tournament hold true.

And it is the games that produce the anticipation and excitement. Some teams romp through the tournament as expected, other teams get knocked off by a little–known school unexpectedly.

It is the college basketball's Big Dance, and there is no sporting event like it. You can take the Super Bowl, the NBA Finals series, and the World Series. I'll take the NCAA tourney.

And so there I was surrounded by a bunch of friends and co–workers. We had our pencils and brackets, and were all surrounding the television set. And when Massachusetts was announced as the second seed in the East region, we all jumped up in excitement. The cork on the bottle was popped loose. But it's just the beginning, for the next few weeks will encompass the same amount of excitement.

Andrew Bryce is a Collegian columnist.

Bruins not scoring goals, Sinden won't change logo

The powers that be have informed me the new edifice on Causeway Street will not bear my name until I transfer my account from Baybank to Fleet.

I guess I haven't wrapped up the position as Dallas Stars' PR director. Yes, Neal Broten was playing in Minnesota in 1980–81, for the University of Minnesota, not the North Stars. (Broten was a rookie in 1981–82.) And they celebrated the 10th anniversary of their first Stanley Cup Final (1981) by reaching their second ever finals in 1991. This much I know: Jon Casey was the goalie, and he was good.

Ted Kottler on the NHL

There isn't much good news coming on the ice at Boston Garden (goals? what are goals?), but at least General Manager Harry Sinden said the Bruins won't change their logo. However, the idea of adding another color— well, you read my Around the Horn piece. Wait, no you didn't. I repeat: tampering with a team's color scheme is sacrilege.

There's been a lot of talk about certain teams' abuse of clutch–and–grab tactics, which has spread to lamentol of the neutral–zone trap (read: Nytol on ice).

Hey, GMs, are you looking for a reason why teams like the Panthers and Capitals have embraced this strategy? Do you think it was to drive away deteriorating crowds that these marginal franchises need to survive? Of course not. As the old Alka–Seltzer commercial said: In a word, it works.

Granted, it's the most boring and uncreative defense around, and it's the last thing the NHL needs in its effort to endear itself to television.

But anyone who saw Florida and Washington bottle up the Bruins last week can see that it is hard to beat.

This is not an endorsement of the trap, for I would like to see it outlawed as much as the GMs, as long as it is legal, it makes perfect sense for teams with toughness, experience and limited offense to use it.

Speaking of commercials, Cam Neely's Nike spot is a delight. It strikes two blows — one for Boston sports exposure, another for Nike in its quest to comer the only sport in which it has little or no niche. And it's funny.

More on the Bs: No, Kevin Paul DuPont, John Vanbiesbrouck would not look good in a Bruins jersey, even one of the new models, because all the revenue from sales of those would have to pay his exorbitant salary. Sure, the Beezer earns his pay, but it's not as if Blaine Lacher's been soft; only Boston's attack fits that description.

Therefore, if owner Jeremy Jacobs wants to loosen his purse strings (tighter than Ebeneezer Scrooge's), how about dumping the cash on a goal scorer?

Picked up pieces in Black Bear country: Maine is on its way to an eighth NCAA appearance in nine seasons, but the faithful haven't forgotten the star of 1992–93's 42–1–2 National Champions, Paul Kariya, whose goals and assists are in boldface in Bangor Daily News' boxscores. Patrice Tardif (Maine '94), a fine rookie forward with the St. Louis Blues, does not get the same treatment, but it's too bad rookie teammate Ian Laperriere hails from Montreal.

If he were from anywhere else he'd be singled out like Kariya, the way he's played.

These two are solidifying themselves as 1–2 in the Calder race, and Kariya might be playing for the wrong team in Smog City, but the Great One may pass the league statesman torch to him yet.

The man who should show down the stretch for NHL Rookie of the Year is Edmonton's Todd Marchant, whose DuPont properly recognized as the lone American jewel in the rubble of Lillehammer (Boston Globe, 3/12).

I know that Russians Alexander Mogilny (89) and Sergei Fedorov (91) adopted their numbers in commemoration of the years they defected, but why have Canadians Rick Tocchet and Bernie Nicholls switched to 92?

Ted Kottler is a Collegian columnist.

Women's gym take sixth in Georgia

By Jorma Kansanen
Collegian Staff

In some collegiate sports, wins and losses are all that matters. In others, consistent performances are the key to success.

This last Sunday at the Lady Bulldog Invitational in Athens, Ga., the University of Massachusetts women's gymnastics team (10–3, 4–1 A–10) came in sixth in their biggest meet of the season to date.

First place went to No. 1 nationally ranked Georgia (197.625), with No. 7 UCLA (196.475) and No. 16 Nebraska (195.250) running second and third.

A list of personal and school bests were the highlights of the day, as UMass came in four one hundredths of a point from a team school record score.

The team's 190.525 tally was not enough, though, to place them higher than last place in the six team meet.

The main factor that goes into judging collegiate gymnastics is not the same as other sports.

The score a team or individual consistently accrues over a season, not the win– loss record, is the main facet in the overall picture of a team's success.

Less than a point and a half separated the team from upsetting No. 10 Penn State (191.550), and also jumping Cal–Berkeley for fourth place (191.825).

The top three all around finishers were from the top two programs in the meet, No. 1 Georgia and No. 7 UCLA. All– American Lori Strong, competing for the home Lady Bulldogs placed first with a 39.775, while UCLA represented itself well with the next two placings, Leah Ilomma (39.475) and Stella Umeh (39.425).

Top all–around performer for UMass was sophomore Tara Swartz with a seventh–place score of 38.875, less than one point behind the top finisher.

This put Swartz in second place on UMass' all–time list behind Tammy Marshall's 1993 NCAA Championship score of 39.25.

Her score also jumped above the team's season's best (38.80), which Swartz set earlier this season.

As the season has continued, Swartz has steadily begun to make her presence felt in these big meets.

For example, in the uneven bars she claimed another personal–best with a fourth–place score of 9.950, breaking her own school record of 9.850 set against the top 20 Mountaineers this season.

But the story behind the story is that the three athletes tied for first (9.975) were All–Americans last year; Georgia's Strong and Andrea Dewey, and UCLA's Kareema Marrow.

After an early injury this year, the steady ascension towards a strong national identity for the second–year athlete has become apparent.

The other "super soph" for the women's team continued her hot streak, as Lianne Laing was the top individual finisher for UMass in three separate events.

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS

Lianne Laing was the top finisher for the Minutewomen in three events last weekend at the Lady Bulldog Invitational in Athens, Ga.

Laing came in tenth in the vault (9.850), 16th in the floor exercise (9.750) and 18th in the balance beam (9.625).

Junior Shaheda Keels set a personal–best on the beam with a 9.60. In the all around competition, the tandem set career– highs and were just behind Swartz with scores of 38.550 for Laing (10th place), and 38.275 for Keels (12th place).

Throughout the course of the season, and now with meets at No. 5 Michigan and the Atlantic 10 Championships on the horizon, the two all–arounders have stepped up to the challenge.

Arizona faxes appeal to NCAA

By Arthur H. Rothstein
Associated Press

TUCSON, Ariz. — Arizona today asked the NCAA to restore eligibility for its Player of the Year candidate Damon Stoudamire and teammate Ben Davis, both of whom were declared ineligible by the school on Saturday.

The university telefaxed an appeal to the NCAA's eligibility office with its NCAA tournament hopes hinging on the outcome.

Arizona (23-7), fifth-seeded in the NCAA tournament's Midwest regional, is hoping for a favorable ruling before its first-round game Thursday against 12th-seeded Miami of Ohio in Dayton, Ohio.

But in Overland Park, Kan., Carrie Doyle, NCAA director of eligibility, said there's no guarantee the staff will be able to reach a decision before Arizona's game.

A five-member eligibility committee made up of representatives from Division I schools won't get involved unless the NCAA's staff, which initially will decide the appeal, rules unfavorably to Arizona, Doyle said.

Because of possible NCAA rules violations involving gifts, the university declared the players ineligible Saturday, hours before Arizona ended the regular season by losing 103-98 in double overtime to Arizona State.

Athletic director Jim Livengood said Saturday, in announcing that the appeals would be made, that he anticipated a decision possibly by Tuesday.

But he had no comment on whether an injunction would be sought if eligibility is denied, saying that is not an institutional decision.

"There is a tremendous outstanding belief that these student-athletes will have every opportunity to have that eligibility restored," Livengood said.

Corcoran offered NHL contract

Brian Corcoran, who played defense for part of the last two seasons for the University of Massachusetts hockey team, has been offered a three–year contract by the Mighty Ducks of Anaheim of the National Hockey League.

Dave McNab, Anaheim's director of player personnel, made the offer following UMass' loss at Maine Saturday.

Corcoran, a 22–year–old senior, was given the option of signing immediately or waiting until he completes his education in May. Paul Fenton, a locally–based scout for the Ducks, scouted Corcoran at several contests at the William D. Mullins Center this past season.

Corcoran would likely be assigned to Anaheim's affiliate in the International Hockey League, the San Diego Gulls, Anaheim's top amateur affiliate.

"It's great for a kid who hadn't played hockey for three years [before joining UMass]," UMass Coach Joe Mallen said. "It's great for him to be noticed here."

Corcoran, a native of Baldwinsville, N.Y., played in 19 of UMass' 36 games in 1994–95. He scored three goals and added three assists. In 1993–94, he scored one goal and added seven assists in 15 of UMass' 29 games.

Corcoran was unavailable in the earlier portion of the past two seasons, as he was an All–Yankee Conference defensive end for the UMass football team. He won the 1994 Yankee Conference Defensive Player of the Year.

— TED KOTTLER

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
Volume CIV Issue 95 • New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 • Wednesday, March 15, 1995

Hoop columnists pick winners of tourney
The Collegian's own Anthony Guido and Art Stapleton predict what they think will occur in the NCAA tournament (See Sports, page 8).

Marketing course aims for competition
A new course offered by the School of Management is giving students a real-life lesson in competitive marketing. (See story, page 6)

Violin Concert delights Bowker
Corey Cerovsek performed with his sister at Bowker Auditorium this past weekend. Check out our review. (See Arts& Living, page 5).

Extended Forecast
Mild temps finish off the week, with a slight chance of drizzles today and highs in the 60s. Thursday and Friday offer partly cloudy skies and dry conditions heading into spring break.

Today	Thursday	Friday
HIGH: 60 LOW: 40	HIGH: 60 LOW: 40	HIGH: 55 LOW: 40

Follow Minutemen on road to Seattle

PAUL BLODEAU/COLLEGIAN

Men's basketball takes center stage as the Collegian publishes its annual basketball tourney guide today while STARS sponsored a recent pep rally to support and celebrate the men's basketball team. Students and area residents showed their pride, while players signed autographs and offered their thanks. (See related story on page 6.)

UM officials offer $268 fee increase for students

By Christopher Hassett
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts officials proposed $268 in fee increases for resident students for the next school year unless the legislature approves a $21.2 million budget increase.

The increases consist of $108 for tuition and mandatory fees. An additional $160 in room and board fees would bring the figure to $268 for resident undergraduate students at the University, according to Chancellor David K. Scott's proposed budget for 1996.

Scott presented his proposal to the Board of Trustees' administration and finance committee at their March 7th meeting in Boston.

He said the increase could be reduced or abolished depending on how much UMass receives from the legislature next fiscal year, according to Ken Lemanski, assistant vice president for the UMass president's government relations office.

The University is seeking an increase of $21.2 million, about 6.3 percent over this years budget of $337 million. The Amherst campus is seeking $10.4 million of the proposed increase, said Barbara Pitoniak, spokesperson for the University.

The Board of Trustees is to discuss the proposed $268 increase at their April 5th meeting, Pitoniak said.

"We won't know how much money we get until July," Lemanski said.

State support of the UMass campus would drop to $238 million from $337 million, but the University would be able to keep its tuition for the first time, Lemanski said.

This would mean the University would retain $92 million of revenue from tuition, resulting in a budget of approximately $330 million, he said.

If the proposed $236 increase passes this April and the $21 million is appropriated in full or part, Scott would approve a rollback in tuition and fees, Lemanski said.

The rollback would be similar to what students experienced this school year when the Board of Trustees approved a two percent tuition increase.

Because of student lobbying, $15 million was legislated to the University last July, which resulted in students retrieving the difference of tuition rollbacks by means of checks distributed through the Bursars Office last fall.

Because of the additional $15 million, the tuition and mandatory fees at UMass, $5,467, remained stable for the first time in 20 years. Adding $4,028 in room and board fees, this years cost for resident student's is $9,495.

Scott said the cost of attending UMass, including all fees and room and board, will not increase more than 2.8 percent next year, Lemanski said.

In an effort to incite further development of private funding, Governor William F. Weld has proposed cutting the UMass budget by $10 million unless an additional $10 million can be raised privately upon which the Governor would return a matched sum to the UMass budget, Lemanski said.

UMass President Michael K. Hooker addressed the House Means and Ways committee hearing on March 10 in Springfield asking for the $21 million increase. According to Lemanski, the committee will make their recommendations to the State House of Representatives by the end of March.

Farm closed due to rabies scare

By Purva Pandey
Collegian Correspondent

A portion of the University of Massachusetts Hadley Farm has been closed to the public due to reports of rabid raccoons in the local area that could possibly affect farm animals.

The Bureau of Communicable Disease Control has reported eight positive accounts of rabid raccoons in the area — three in Amherst and five in Hadley.

Rabies is a viral disease that infects animals and humans bit by rabid animals. Humans can only be cured through received of medical attention and a series of five shots over 27 days, according to William Graves, extension professor and director of the department of veterinary and animal sciences' farm operations.

The Hadley Farm, which houses many animals within their three barns, has shut down the livestock barn and is watching the epidemic closely, Graves said.

"I don't think we've seen the peak yet and as long as that's still on the rise, I think we have to keep the public away," Graves said.

Limited vaccinations

The Hadley farm does vaccinate all of its animals, however a rabies vaccine for pigs and goats has not been approved by the FDA, Graves said.

Most pigs are only raised until they are six months old, after which they are slaughtered. According to Graves, the pharmaceutical industry sees no need to spend money testing a vaccine for swine.

Young animals must be three months old to be vaccinated, allowing a legitimate amount of time to be infected with the rabies virus, he said.

An animal will die within six weeks to six months from the time it is bitten, but the animal may show no signs of having rabies for months, Graves said. Law requires that any rabid animal be killed and then subject to rigorous testing.

The disease first attacks the muscle, and then takes a week to ten days to migrate to the nerve tissue. It continues on to the brain where it localizes there in those parts which control behavior — causing in animals either a docile or violent mood.

The disease travels to the salivary glands which excretes the rabies virus, injected into the victim when an animal bites.

Disease affects the public

The lambs and baby pigs at the livestock barn have been a major attraction for school children in this area.

"School bus after school bus used to come in," he said.

A major concern of the staff at Hadley Farm has been that if one child accidently gets bitten by a rabid animal, that the Farm might be forced to kill and test all the animals in possession, although they have been vaccinated.

The livestock barn is not closed to UMass students involved in veterinary and animal sciences courses. On a daily basis they continue to come

Turn to RABIES, page 2

DAYMON SMITH/COLLEGIAN

Writing the vote
Al Lizana, the current student government trustee, casts his vote yesterday for various positions and issues on the SGA ballot. Elections end today at 7 p.m., with polling places in all the dining commons, the Hatch and the Newman Center.

UMass student hurt in PVTA bus accident

AMHERST — A University of Massachusetts student slipped while rollerblading on North Pleasant Street and had both of her legs run over after she slid under the wheels of a Pioneer Valley Transit Authority bus.

Rhiannon Roberts, 18, of Leach Residence Hall, was skating in front of Presidential Apartments at approximately 5:20 p.m. when she apparently slipped on sand by the side of the road and fell, police said.

The PVTA bus driver, also travelling south, swerved into the northbound lane to miss Roberts, but the back double wheels on the right side of the vehicle rolled over her legs, said Michele Goldberg, spokesperson for the PVTA.

Police said Roberts was transported to Cooley Dickinson Hospital in Northampton. According to Goldberg, Roberts was treated and released from Baystate Medical Center.

The hospital would not release the injuries sustained during the accident. No citations were issued.

The Daily Hampshire Gazette contributed to this article.

— Tim White

UM committee to consider possible credit adjustment

By Henry J. Brier
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts is considering adjusting courses from three credits to four credits, which would enable students to take four courses instead of five in a semester.

The Undergraduate Curriculum Study Committee's project is now in its beginning stages of consideration, but it has "been in the minds of people for a while," according to Javier Cevallos, chair of the Committee and faculty advisor to the provost.

There is no specific timetable for the project, Cevallos said. There are several advantages, drawbacks and conditions that need to be considered before the project is more seriously considered for implementation.

"A positive aspect of this proposal gives students more of a chance to focus more deeply in fewer subject areas at one time," said John A. Jenkins, a member of the Committee. "A drawback is that it will limit the number of different experiences a student could have."

The committee is also taking into consideration the current general education curriculum requirements mandated by the University, Cevallos said. If the program is implemented, such requirements would decrease.

"One–third of a typical student's curriculum cuts across all the departments in the University," Jenkins said. Jenkins, a UMass professor of music, is also chair of the General Education Council which is responsible for overseeing general education curriculum. The council was appointed by the Faculty Senate.

Other advantages of the proposed project include the student being able to place more emphasis on extra–curricular activities and outside learning, Cevallos said. Students who work could also find a more accommodating schedule.

It would also provide the University with an opportunity to thoroughly and comprehensively revise and restructure the current curriculum, Cevallos said.

Disadvantages include apprehensions or concerns regarding the adjusted curriculum, according to Jenkins.

"I anticipate much greater complications in recasting majors within departments," Jenkins said. "Many departments are known to involve one–credit, two–credit or three–credit courses which may or may not fit into the four– credit scheme."

The academic past of transfer students would have to be considered, Cevallos said. The University might be negatively perceived as a result of less courses being required for graduation, and a decreasing commitment to education.

The change could also increase fac-

Turn to CREDIT, page 2

JESSICA TAVERNA/COLLEGIAN

Julie Watson, coach of the UMass equestrian team, stands by "on deck" before her rider embarks on the course. The horse decided to get a quick scratch on Watson's shoulder to calm his nerves before he entered Saturday's competition.

Hard work the key for equestrian team

By Christopher Hassett and Jessica Taverna
Collegian Staff

Whether they are "on the course, on deck or in the hole," the University of Massachusetts Equestrian team is galloping its way into the winners circle.

Currently number one in the region, it is likely that the team will compete in Colorado this spring in what seems to be like their annual trip to the Nationals.

However, the team's success did not jade their performance in last Saturday's competition, hosted by the Smith College Riding Team.

The UMass Equestrian Team competed against the 13 other teams in the region, including Mount Holyoke and Smith Colleges, to retain their position as first runner in the region.

"At the beginning of the show they were 40 points ahead, the highest lead I've ever heard of anyone in the country," said Lani Hayduk, a father of one of the team members who attended Saturday's show.

Team members sat patiently in the hole, or outside the barn, awaiting their chance to compete. As they stationed their horses at the gate, or on deck, coaches and teammates reassured their success, before their entrance onto the course.

Their reassurance paid off, with a one point win over Smith College, who was trailing closely behind. Next stop — regional competition on April 15.

Hard work at a high price

For now, the equestrian team will carry on as they normally do, working like horses themselves.

"Horse work" does not just entail brushing horses or practicing running and jumping the animals. At UMass, it involves a lot of time and money.

Although the equestrian team is more than 20 years old, it does

Jump to EQUESTRIAN, page 2

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

will be putting the NCAA tournament on the World Wide Web.

Check it out for up-to-date coverage of the men's basketball team.

Tournament coverage will include the stories printed in The Collegian, photos taken by Collegian photographers and a video clip of Lou Roe, along with statistics and other information on the tournament. The text may be accessed from any system, but the photos and video may only be accessed with packages such as Mosaic or Netscape.

The Collegian is conducting this experiment along with the Office of Information Technology. At some point in the future, we hope the entire Collegian will be available online.

Please direct questions or comments to Kelly Spang, managing editor at 545-3500 or kspang@student.umass.edu.

University students may access The Collegian online through their Internet accounts. The tournament coverage may also be accessed from outside the University at: http://home.oit.umass.edu/ncaa.

For students using the University Internet system, type lynx at the prompt. The top of the screen will read "UMass Campus Wide Information System."

Then type G. A prompt will appear which reads "URL to open" in highlighted text. Type http://home.oit.umass.edu/ncaa.

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Wednesday, March 15

Discussion — "The New Latino: A Literary Renaissance." A conversation with Martin Espada, Jaime Manrique and Ilan Stavans. Amherst College, Red Room Converse Hall, 7:30 p.m.

Booksigning — Signing of The Hispanic Condition: Reflections on Culture and Identity in America by Ilan Stavans. Wooton's Books, 19 N. Pleasant St., 4 p.m.

Debate — The Distinguished Visitors Program presents Phyllis Schlafly and Sarah Weddington, who will debate the abortion issue. Free to UMass undergraduates; $2 general public. Fine Arts Center, 8 p.m.

GLB event — Chris Waters, professor of history at Williams College will be discussing the topic: "Teaching Queer Theory." UMass Campus Center, room 917, noon. This is part of the Lesbian, Gay Bisexual Studies Brown Bag Lecture series.

Purim festivities — Chabad House will be offering short service and megillah reading; party and skits to follow. Chabad House, 30 N. Hadley Road, 6:30 p.m. Information call 549-4094.

Purim festivities — Megillah Reading and Purim Party with skits costumes and food. Hillel House, 388 N. Pleasant St., 7 p.m.

Meeting — Nocturnal Dimensia, new campus TV series for UVC-TV 19. Meeting 7 p.m. in UVC office in Student Union. Information call Chris 546-4298.

Thursday, March 16

Meeting — The Grief Survival Group will meet to discuss "Grief at Home and School." UMass Tobin Hall in the Psychological Services Center, 6:30 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Purim Festivities — Morning service with megillah reading on Purim day 7 a.m. For those who miss the morning service, there will an additional reading at 4:45 p.m., immediately preceding the festive Purim meal which will take place at 5:30 p.m. Chabad House, 30 N. Hadley Road.

Film — Reality Bites. Smith College, Wright Hall Auditorium, 9 p.m.

Film — Broadway Danny Rose. Sponsored by the University Film Society. Herter Hall, Foreign Language Resource Center, 7:30 p.m.

Film — G'schichten aus dem Wiener Wald/Tales for the Vienna Woods. A biting satire on Vienna's petite bourgeoisie in the aftermath of the collapse of the Habsburg empire. German film series on "Vienna 1900 and Beyond," co-sponsored by the Austrian Cultural Institute. Amherst College, Campus Center Theater, 4 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.

Notices

Schedules — The final exam schedule will be available beginning March 16. Copies will be delivered to students in the residence halls, and will be available in the Registrar's Office.

Hunger Cleanup — There are only a few weeks left until the 11th annual Hunger Cleanup. Any group or individual interested in participating in this event please contact Missy at 546-4194 or call the MASSPIRG office at 545-0199. the Hunger Cleanup will be April 8. Money raised will benefit the Habitat for Humanity.

Grant deadline — The Arts Council awards single project grants. Deadline March 17 and April 21. Stop by 101 Hasbrouck for guidelines and application. For information call 545-0202.

Community service — The VIVA Community Service Council is asking groups and individuals on campus to submit the number of community service hours they have completed since the beginning of this academic year. The council it tallying up the total number of service hours this campus has contributed to the community. Questions, contact Lori McKinney 545-3368.

Rescheduled lecture — Rebecca Walker lecture has been rescheduled for April 19 in Bowker Auditorium, 8 p.m.

Voter registration — Daily voter registration offered by the Commuter Services and Housing Resource Center from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., 7 p.m. on Wednesdays. UMass Student Union room 428.

■ rabies

continued from page 1

into contact with the animals, moving and handling them to get a host of exposure to them.

"It's more difficult on the public than on the students. We can still go in there. We still have contact and help the animals — that hasn't changed at all," said Heather Nelson, president of the Pre-Vet and Animal Science Club.

The students are aware that there is no approved vaccine for the pigs that they handle, however since they are monitored and the Farm knows their identities, they can be easily contacted and warned if they are at risk or need of treatment.

"[The barns reopening] will certainly depend on the prevalence of Rabies in the area," Graves said. "Right now, we're going to see a big surge in the raccoons in the spring."

Students and residents of the area should be cautious of coming into contact with stray animals and monitor the activity of their own pets.

■ credit

continued from page 1

ulty teaching loads, Cevallos said. This could involve negotiations with the Massachusetts Society of Professors (MSP), the faculty union.

"We have had one meeting," Jenkins said. "That was a preliminary discussion. We took a long-term look at the pros and cons."

Responses on campus have thus far been supportive.

"It's a really good idea," said Debbie Kelman, a sophomore political science major. "It will give students a better chance to excel at what they're doing from having more time to study more in-depth."

However, while supporting the beneficial aspects the innovative project would reap, students also wondered about the disadvantages.

"It allows you to do a lot of growing on your own," said Pete Woodbury, a junior wildlife biology major. "But the problem is when you leave the responsibility to do the learning up to the student, is the student going to do it?"

The Committee will be having their second meeting today to discuss the project's next stages.

■ Coach a veteran of equestrian team

EQUESTRIAN, from page 1

not receive any funding from the University. Instead the team is required to be self-supported through member fees and costs, according to Elissa Allen, a sophomore member of the team.

"We're not getting any money because we are fairly new," Allen said. "It wasn't very together before. We just started doing well."

Members must pay a $250 lab fee each semester for weekly riding lessons, according to Tara Hogan, a Stockbridge team member. To compete, each member must pay $30 for each show, ultimately adding up to $120 to $150 a semester.

But that is only part of the eligibility requirements for the team, according to Colleen Hayduk, a sophomore team captain.

Soil and toil

Members also contribute labor, through eight hours of cleaning in the Hadley Farm a week, along with the one-credit class they must take to be eligible for the team and their regular practices, she said.

According to Hayduk, team members will always hold close their memories of cold morning practices, cleaning the bathrooms and maintaining the barn.

However, like all team sports, the equestrian team makes it through these difficulties as a group, everyone being there for the other, Hayduk said.

"The reason we're top 10 is because we are all friends," Hayduk said. "We have unity. We go into the ring with each other sharing clothes and helmets."

Coaches branch out

The branches of success not only stem from the teams' close ties, but originate from the roots of the organization — their coaches.

Coach Julie Watson, a class of 1994 equestrian team alum, holds a great loyalty to the team, and has displayed this through her unsurmountable efforts in commuting to the farm on a weekly basis from Framingham.

Watson leaves work early on Mondays and travels to the barn to train the team, and also spends her weekends coaching in Amherst, she said.

"I came back to help," Watson said. "It's a lot of fun."

According to Hayduk, Watson is instrumental in serving as a motivational figure for the team.

But it is truly because of Coaching Volunteer Wendy Ciccio of three years, that the team has made it to nationals for the first time in over two decades.

"The team has experienced a turn-around since Wendy's arrival," Hayduk said. "She's given us that polished look."

Saddling up for nationals

The team is now leading the regional panel of teams by 20 points — the likelihood that they will make it to the finals is very good.

If they make it through the regionals in April, they will go onto the zones, which means they will be competing against other top regional teams.

If they manage to make it through zones, they will be headed to the nationals where they will compete in a 100-team meet in Colorado.

The events will not be based on how fast a horse can go or how high they can jump, but judges consider the grace and style of the rider, according to Emilie Curtis, a sophomore team member.

The rider must retain a consistent position, Curtis said. "It's all a mastery of form."

The equestrian team will need to be watching their wallets as well as their forms this semester to be able to afford to participate in the finals, Hayduk said.

If the team goes to nationals in Colorado, they must pay their way there, the hotel fees and all expenses themselves.

"We're not complaining, but we are a team," Hayduk said. "We are not just a club."

SportsWeekend
Every Monday
in the Daily Collegian

Lincoln Real Estate
253-7879 • 25 N. Pleasant St. (above McDonald's)
Has the best selection of 1,2,&3 bedroom Apartments with gas heat.
We begin showing apartments in April and May for June or September occupancy

MACARONI AU FROMAGE
(EAT WITH GUSTO FOR ABOUT 51¢ PER SERVING.)

2 cups macaroni (pinwheels are fun)	1 cup milk
1 cup sharp cheddar (grated)	3 tbs flour
1/2 stick butter	1 tsp pepper
1 tsp Worcestershire (if you like)	1 tsp salt

Cook macaroni in 5 cups salted, boiling water for 15 minutes or until al dente. Drain. In a separate pot, melt butter and mix in flour over low heat. Then, stir in milk until smooth. Add cheese, salt, pepper and Worcestershire. Stir well. Smother macaroni. Serves 4.

Note: For your nutritional convenience, Citibank Classic cards are accepted at over 12 million locations, including grocery stores.

WE'RE LOOKING OUT FOR YOU.
To apply, call 1 800 CITIBANK

© 1995 Citibank (South Dakota), N.A.

CONGRATULATIONS & GOOD LUCK TO THE
4 IN A ROW A-10 CHAMPIONSHIP MEN'S B-BALL TEAM
AND
A-10 COACH OF THE YEAR JOANIE O'BRIEN
AND THE
WOMEN'S B-BALL FROM THE
TOC SPORTS BAR AND LOUNGE

tonight...
1/2 PRICE
ALL APPETIZERS AND NACHOS
9:30 till 11:00
Weekly Special
Pitchers $4.75 — Retro Night — 12oz. Bottles $1.75 — No Cover Charge
Smoking Section 10-1
THE PUB
DRAWING FOR T-SHIRTS
15 east pleasant street
amherst

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Darienne J. Hosley Editor-in-Chief Kelly Spang Managing Editor
Michael McRae Business Manager Andrew D. Davidson Production Manager Lisa Tannenbaum Advertising Manager
James P. Ganley Advertising Production Manager Lisa Greenfield Senior Diversity Editor

Matt Audette Arts & Living Editor Paul Bilodeau Photography Editor
Chris Taylor Conner Black Affairs Editor Andrew Bryce, Matt Voutour Sports Editors
Matt Wurtzel Business Editor Jeff Wilson Staff Artist
Juan Jose Chacon Quiroz Developing Nations Editor Lisa Greenfield, Colleen Shanahan Women's Issues Editors
Tracy Monahan Editorial/Opinion Editor Marni E. Helfner Editorial Production Manager
Wendy Darling Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor John Khachadoorian Finance Manager
Jacob W. Michaels Jewish Affairs Editor Eric Abenaim Distribution Manager
Hernan Rozemberg Multicultural Affairs Editor Maureen Majerowski Senior Bookkeeper
Jessica Taverna News Editor Marty Pappas Classified Advertising

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1956. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

Opinion/Editorial

New RSO unnecessary

While well-intentioned, Students Vote! would be an unnecessary addition to our fall semester bill.

Last fall, the Save Our Schools Coalition — including MASSPIRG, SGA and SCERA — registered more than 4,000 students on the UMass Amherst campus.

Our vote is vital to ensuring that our interests are heard and respected in Boston and Washington.

But another RSO dedicated entirely to registering students is excessive, and scarce student funds could be used toward a more effective program.

The registration campaign currently underway is run by a coalition of student groups that brings campus leaders from different interests into contact with the students. A separate RSO specifically dedicated to registration will most likely end up as the campaign coordinator, with a potential budget of $87,000.

To divert such a large amount of money from the pockets of students is not necessary, given the effectiveness student groups have already had registering voters.

The Collegian supports MASSPIRG and its $1 increase to fund further voter education and student empowerment efforts. However, another waivable fee tacked onto our bill will only increase the already high cost of education at UMass.

Vote No

Vote no on ballot questions 1 and 2 because if they pass, most UMass students will become members of political organizations they may not know anything about.

Ballot question one is requesting a $5 waivable fee for a new organization called Students Vote!, and ballot question two is requesting the continuation of MASSPIRG and its waivable fee (which will be increased to $5).

Marni E. Helfner

These waivable fees are not only a hassle, but are a means of making students automatic members of political organizations.

In order to not pay the fee, the student has to request on their bill that the fees be deducted, and they need to subtract this from their total bill. Currently there are two waivable fees on the undergraduate tuition bill. MASSPIRG has a $4 waivable fee, and the Childcare program has a $1 waivable fee.

The childcare fee is an exception to the rule because it is not a political organization. It a is donation.

Students Vote! is an organization committed to registering students to vote and to use that vote as a block. MASSPIRG is a branch of an environmental and public research organization that works towards citizen's rights.

However, it is the politics of these that count towards the waivable fee. PIRGs nationwide pay people to canvass from door-to-door to solicit donations, and often make broad political statements about local and national issues. Students Vote! will probably also do this. By being a member of these organizations, you are a supporter even if you don't agree.

Abolish this waivable fee now, because everyone should be able to make an informed decision about the organizations we join. Not everyone wants to be a member of the Dr. Seuss fan club, and not everyone wants to be a member of MASSPIRG or Students Vote! Think about it carefully, you never know when what you belong to will come back to hurt you.

Marni E. Helfner is a Collegian columnist.

Lopes for president

My name is Christine Lopes and I am a candidate for Student Government Association president. I am a sophomore pursuing a double major and am currently the campus organizer for the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy (SCERA). I decided to run for president because I believe there are University policies that are hurting students. I plan on changing those, and on developing new policies that will help students.

Christine Lopes

Some of these policies include academic advising, food services, housing computer support services and many more. I plan on organizing students to look at these different policies and see what works and what doesn't, then taking that information and passing legislation through the Senate.

I have been knocking on doors, along with Dan Rivera, throughout the campus since the beginning of the semester. We began doing this to meet students and ask for their concerns and what they want to see changed. People say students are apathetic and don't care about their education. Obviously they have never gone door knocking on this campus. Students here care about their education, they care about the food services, and they care about the conditions in which they live. They care about the fact that they pay the second most expensive cost to attend a public flagship University in the country.

This University is here for you and it is time we let people know. When policies are made that hurt students and hold them back, this is not putting students first. When students need to take out tens of thousands of dollars worth of loans to attend a public University, students aren't being put first. This is what we need to change.

Last year Dan and I were both involved in the successful fight to freeze tuition and fees. It was the first time in 29 years that tuition and fees did not go up and students did it. Students took a stand and said we can't do it anymore and it happened. This year we are working to accomplish that, along with trying to make services on campus more accommodating to the lives of students.

I would like to wish all the candidates the best of luck. I hope that when students are voting, they know that Christine Lopes and Dan Rivera want to put students first.

Christine Lopes is running for SGA president.

Rivera for trustee

My name is Dan Rivera and I am a candidate for student trustee. If we look around we can see that the current trend in higher education is higher cost and less accessibility. I had come to expect that some people would not make it through college because attrition was expected. I found out that the attrition at UMass is unnatural due to its mostly financial nature.

Dan Rivera

Friends that had been accepted to Ivy League universities chose UMass because of its affordability. The result was a realization that the difference between UMass and the private state institutions is small. We as students have been asked to find new and dynamic ways to subsidize our education.

Higher cost has meant lower quality of education because students are asked to spend more time at work and less in the classroom.

UMass Amherst is the flagship university in our statewide system. I find it hard to understand why guidance counselors from out of state give us a better rap than in-state ones.

The stigma we have picked up as "ZooMass" has yet to be addressed. A message we need to send to everyone in the Commonwealth, and the administration here, is that we are not the "animals," and UMass is not the "cage" they have created in their minds. We are a more mature campus, and we understand that this may be the only venue many of us have for success.

I'm sure the C+ grade that President Michael Hooker gave us did not help, but how valid are his remarks? He did not even attend school at this wonderful University that boasts top departments and faculty on a national level.

As student trustee I will work hard with Christine Lopes to insure:

- 1. That affordability and accessibility equals a cost that meets the financial ability of the poor and working class, as well as people of color.
- 2. That quality of living on this campus is a front line issue (food services, housing, security, etc.).
- 3. That when people say "hey, UMass has a great basketball program," they can also say "yeah, it's a great University, the students are serious and it's not that expensive."

We will accomplish this by sending out the message that here at UMass, students come first.

Dan Rivera is running for student trustee.

Bateman for trustee

My name is Mike Bateman and I am a candidate for student trustee. My opponent cannot boast of three years of dedicated service. I am committed to putting forth the time and effort this position demands.

My experience has proven that I'm equal to the demands of the job of student trustee. Unlike my opponents I am not in the loop of the "insiders" in the SGA office. However, I know the issues as well as any candidate, but knowing the issues is the easy part. Any undergraduate can articulate what the students feel and what the students want, but what will make the difference is will the new trustee be separate from an outside agenda.

Mike Bateman

In addition, I don't have an active campaign manager from the graduate school. I feel that my record speaks for itself and I believe that the voters of the University deserve a trustee with dedication and experience. For the past three years, I have loyally represented the students at UMass. I have confidence that my numerous positions will triumph over well marketed candidates.

Currently I am exploring the possibility of bringing Division 1A football to UMass via the Chancellor's task force and I'm also vice chair of the University Athletic Council. I devote many hours a week, and have gained extensive experience in dealing with the administration.

And that's basically what a trustee does, spends a lot of time dealing with administrators. Previously, I have been a house council vice president, and the Central Area vice president. During that time, in addition to the positions I held, I advocated on behalf of students concerning many issues. I was on the Central Area Actions Committee, the Vice Chancellors Residential Committee, the Housing Forum Debates and a Housing Service Recommendation Committee, to name a few. I was actively involved in representing area governments in the drafting of the current SGA constitution.

A vote for Mike Bateman will send a message to everyone that no one should interfere with undergraduate affairs.

Mike Bateman is running for student trustee.

Letters to the Editor

Caucus supports SGA nominees

To the editor:

We the members of the Third World Caucus urge all students to join us in supporting Christine Lopes for Student Government President and Daniel Rivera for Student Trustee. Their experience in student government and willingness to serve all students on campus will begin a new day in student's government, a day where the student will be first. This dedication to students will improve quality of life of each student on the UMass campus.

Today and tomorrow students across campus will choose the future of UMass. We will choose who will lead us for the next year and the direction of our campus. Christine and Dan are the right choice. They will fight for the rights of students in all areas. They will ensure that our voices are heard. They will make UMass a better place for the students. So join the Third World Caucus in voting for Christine Lopes for President and Daniel Rivera for Trustee.

Maurice Caston
External Coordinator
Third World Caucus

Amherst resident proud of hometown

To the editor:

In response to the article written by Dave Copeland in the March 10 Collegian, "You know you are a Redneck when..." Mr. Copeland has a very vivid imagination as to what a townie is actually like, since according to his article he has talked to only two.

As a member and resident of Amherst I happen to enjoy the three months that school is not in session, because, yes, it is peaceful. I also enjoy it when school is in session and I can meet new people from different places and talk to them.

You, Mr. Copeland, must go back to school and learn how America was started. Hard work and farming were a couple of them, and hunting was another. Have you actually been hunting? It is not as easy as you may think.

So, Mr. Copeland, why don't you get your head out of from whatever rock it is under and actually talk to a townie and learn about them.

Brian Chalmers
Amherst

Doonesbury By Garry Trudeau

AT FIRST I WORRY MYSELF SICK OVER THE FLORIDA CLASS-ACTION SUIT...
THEN SUDDENLY, IT HITS ME! THE SUIT IS FOR ONLY $1.4 BILLION! THE TOBACCO COMPANIES MAKE MORE THAN $50 BILLION IN THE U.S.!
SO EVEN IF WE LOSE, WE CAN HANDLE IT! NOW THAT'S CAUSE FOR CELEBRATION!
THEN I REMEMBER— THERE ARE 50 STATES!
I BUM MYSELF TOTALLY.

Saving PBS from government cuts

Can you tell me how to save ... how to save my Sesame Street?

It's that time of year again. It is the time when you turn to, in most states, channel 13 (which is the Public Broadcasting Service) and a public figure is on your screen asking for pledges to keep the station on the air. This year, donations are even more vital.

Geri Sahn

80 percent of the station's budget is based on private donations. 20 percent of the money is from the government. But this year the money from the Government's Corporation for Public Broadcasting is being threatened for removal.

Newt Gingrich and the Republican congress are enforcing major budget cuts, and the money given to PBS is one of the expulsions. Although cutting back PBS's budget has always been a huge debate, recently enforcements, because of heated arguments, have been taking place.

The government has three main arguments for cutting back the money they give to PBS. What the station previews, and has previewed in the past, has caused a great deal of controversy. Besides the well known educational shows such as "Sesame Street" and "Barney & Friends," PBS airs documentaries.

In 1991 people were very upset with the content that was presented in "Tongues Untied," a documentary about gay Black men. Now the government is holding shows like "Tongues Untied" against PBS arguing that their money should not be spent on documentaries which aren't suitable for children's viewing.

If the government drains money from PBS, programs for kids like "Sesame Street" and "Barney & Friends" have a good chance of disintegrating. 20 percent may sound like a small number, but it is big money.

The government is also using cable as one of their arguments. Cable has brought about stations for children such as Nickelodeon and Arts and Entertainment which has given an impression that PBS is no longer needed and watched.

What people with cable haven't realized, is that there still are many people who don't have cable and don't have other alternatives to watch.

The government also argues that PBS doesn't need their money because of the amount of revenue the station brings in through merchandise. In a recent article of Entertainment Weekly, Karen Raugust, executive editor of The Licensing Letter, an industry trade paper in Brooklyn, said, that PBS profits are often spent on making more programs. For example, many of the profits "Sesame Street" made went into producing the new show "GhostWriter."

Although PBS does make money in merchandise, one thing has to be considered; unlike regular television, PBS does not have advertisements. They do not get the profits that stations like ABC and CBS make from having three to four commercials every 15 minutes.

PBS is one the only stations left on television that has an educational goal. Today, kids are learning about, "who sucks," from the ranks of "Beavis and Butthead," and who is the bitch this season on "90210." The Public Broadcasting Service station has been around for a long time and has provided education for both children and adults. The government should be giving more money to the station rather than taking it away.

Geri Sahn is a Collegian columnist.

The Editorial/Opinion desk is drowning in letters right now. We are trying our best to print as many letters as we can before Spring Break. Any letters we receive this week will not even be considered until after the break.

Opinion/Editorial

Letters to the Editor

Students urged to cast their votes

To the editor:

I urge every student to vote in the student elections on March 14 and 15 because in these tough fiscal times we are facing a $17.5 million cut in the University systems budget. This will mean a $108 tuition and fees increase, larger class sizes, fewer teaching assistants and less services. The only way we can prevent this impending cut is to make our voices heard by our state representatives and senators. Last year organizations like the Student Government Association and S.C.E.R.A. fought for and received a $15 million increase in state funding for UMass. This year the Student Vote! and MASSPIRG are joining with the SGA and S.C.E.R.A. to empower students, so we can attain our goal of $21.7 million increase in state funding for next year.

Please vote yes on questions #1 and #2. Question #1 would give funding to Student Vote!, a non-partisan organization to register students to vote and Question #2 would reaffirm MASSPIRG's charters and increase their wavable fee by $1.

I would also ask you to vote for Christine Lopes and Dan Rivera, who are two ardent supporters of student rights and outspoken members of S.C.E.R.A. and the SGA. These two senators have been working to keep our tuition and fees from rising and have been actively working to improve the quality of our education and student life. Thank you for your time and please remember to vote.

Michael Hoss
Amherst

Two other students signed this letter.

Wallace changed views over years

To the editor:

George Wallace was governor of Alabama at the time of the Selma to Montgomery civil rights marches of the '60s. A recent campus poster reminded us that he was once the best known segregationist in America.

This month Wallace attended the 30th year commemoration of the Selma marches as a supporter. He had changed his mind over the years. I'm glad many of the Selma veterans kept their eyes on the prize. That prize is not only justice, but also reconciliation.

Jon Olson
Amherst

Redneck column found offensive

To the editor:

I am writing in response to Dave Copeland's column "You know you're a redneck..." (Collegian, March 10). I found his editorial to be very offensive and incredibly ignorant in its scope. In his column, Mr. Copeland charges that Amherst "townies" are dumb, gun-toting, tobacco-chewing, manure- wearing "members of the genetic human sub-class" otherwise known as "hicks." He states that "these people" hate students, love beer, and can't wait to shoot their gun at something.

I have lived here practically my entire life. I have never chewed tobacco. I never listened to Billy Ray Cyrus. I have never been covered in manure. I have never, nor do I plan to touch a gun. I believe in gun control and am opposed to hunting. In fact, Mr. Copeland, I have never seen, met or heard of anyone fitting your wild characterization of an Amherst townie. That is not to suggest that there are no such residents, of course. Obviously there are, for you cited two examples in your article. However, to judge an entire town population on the basis of your experiences with two individuals is ignorant, unwise, and in this case, very inaccurate.

One should be able to see from walking through town that Amherst is an extremely diverse environment. Perhaps Mr. Copeland assumes that when students disappear, so does the diversity. That is simply not the truth. Students or no students, Amherst is a town of many different faces.

The thing I found most disturbing about the column is not the fact that Mr. Copeland has attacked my hometown and myself, but that in doing so he has revealed a very closed- minded and discriminatory thought process. He has categorized, labeled, and insulted an entire group of people based on his experiences with two people. His words demonstrate a profound lack of respect for those whom he perceives to be different from himself. Instead of making an effort to understand other people's differences, he has attacked them. There is no room for such an attitude in a multi-cultural environment. It is precisely this kind of thinking that is responsible for the prejudice which pervades this campus and society as a whole.

Mr. Copeland, learn from your mistake. Don't just "give these people their space." You are surrounded by people from amazing backgrounds who have a great deal to offer you. Learn to accept and respect their differences. Make an effort to understand those differences, rather than using them to alienate yourself and those around you. Ignorance is not a virtue.

David Mason
Amherst

Southwest residents worthy of services?

To the editor:

As a senator in the Student Government Association, I have always tried to make my living area, Southwest, a great place to live. I have consistently voiced the concerns of the residents in my building, John Quincy Adams. Just a few of the projects which I support are the all-campus card, an improved meal plan, an ATM at the Southwest Munchy Store, as well as one at the Mullins Center. All of these services would greatly contribute to the quality of college life of any student.

Now, as the result of an incident on March 11, I almost feel like the residents of Southwest do not deserve any of these services.

The incident I am describing occurred at 12:45 a.m. As I laid on my couch, I heard a man outside of my room moan as he urinated on my door.

By the time I reached the door, the man was gone. Still, my $200 rug was covered in human waste which collected under the door.

How can a student body demand services when it destroys and defaces its own living areas? This obviously has not been the only incident of disrespect in my building. Every Saturday night, as I walk the halls, I constantly see graffiti as well as broken beer bottles on the ground.

As I watch this travesty, I almost have to laugh when I hear people complain that my living area is a dump which the administration refuses to improve.

Wake up, people. We all live in filth because your fellow students have no respect for you or your home.

As well, lenient regulations from your local resident director's office create an environment which almost encourages this type of behavior.

Anyone caught defacing any building should face immediate expulsion from University housing. Right now, for almost any offense a student receives numerous slaps on the wrist and nothing else.

As an active member of this community, I refuse to allow it to go to shambles.

Anyone who ever experiences this kind of disrespect is encouraged to prosecute the guilty party to the fullest extent of the law.

As for myself, I am now wary about my own position as a leader at UMass. For the first time since I have been here, I feel indifferent about the welfare of my fellow students.

Jeff Davis
John Quincy Adams

Letters to the Editor

Taking pride in UMass grads

To the editor:

General Motors and General Electric CEOs are UMass graduates. Did you know that? Chances are you didn't. Should you know that? Yes. The fact that you are going to the same school and walking the same sidewalks that two of the world's most powerful people once walked is something to be proud of. These two UMass grads are now in charge of two humongous corporations with a work force of almost a million people.

Jack Smith grew up in Worcester and graduated from here in 1961. He now presides over General Motors. Jack Welsh graduated from the chemical engineering department and is now recognized as one of the best managers ever to run General Electric. The decisions these men make every day not only affect their employees, but also the hundreds of communities around the nation (and the world) that rely on GE and GM factories as major revenue sources. Likewise, their actions directly affect the value of their respective stocks, which in turn affects the millions of shareholders (owners) of the two companies.

Although I'm a big Minuteman basketball fan, I am much prouder to be at a school that produced CEOs of this caliber than to be at a school with a top ranked basketball team, and you should be too.

Other Minutemen who got where they are now by brains and non-athletic talent are: Dick Mahoney (the CEO of the chemical giant Monsanto), George Dickerman (the CEO of Spalding), George Ditamassi (the CEO of Milton Bradley), the CFO of ARCO, and also a NASA astronaut, just to name a few. These folks didn't go to Harvard or any other "prestigious" school. Instead they went here, and sure past performance is no indicator of future performance, but at least if people know that these folks have degrees from the University of Massachusetts, we should get more respect.

In order for the country to know the caliber of certain UMass grads, I propose that when the basketball team is in a nationally televised game during the tournament, get the sports broadcasters (or Coach John Calipari) to mention the success of UMass grads Smith and Welsh. Tens of millions of eyes and mouths around the country would open widely, and UMass would be known for something besides basketball. Lets hope the publicity office sends tickets to Smith and Welch, and their achievements with a UMass degree get mentioned over national airwaves. I encourage you to let the publicity office know of your support for this idea. After all, it's for our sake that the employers of America know the quality of certain UMass grads.

Jim Watso
Sylvan

Car vandals cause problems

To the editor:

I hope that those who tipped over the gray Volkswagen Golf in the Baptist Church parking lot on Feb. 24 were not so drunk that you don't remember the pleasure you derived from doing it. I agree that my car is cute and it probably looked so temptingly vulnerable, dwarfed by the vastness of the empty parking lot. There your were, trashed out of your minds, and it would be funny to see this cute little buggy tipped onto its side, or better yet, completely upside down. One person thought it, another mentioned it, and the next thing you knew, you were all doing it. It's the same group psychological momentum that provokes other exciting things like gang rape and the Holocaust.

So you flipped her on her side, couldn't quite get her all the way over (was the ski rack an obstacle?), then took off for the next moment of excitement. Hours later, at 4 a.m. I received a phone call from the Amherst Police Department. I had to meet them and the tow truck at the scene of the crime in order to make arrangements for the accident. I had felt sick Friday night and was trying to get a good night sleep. After two and a half hours I was back in bed, just in time for sunrise.

This was less than ideal because this needed all of the time I could get for my work. For the next two weeks I had to bum rides from friends and housemates while my car is being fixed, In other words, it is going to be a big hassle, so again, I hope you really enjoyed yourselves. Do any of you own a car? Did any of you buy a car with your own money? Maybe you're starting to get the picture. Have any of you ever had an accident with your car, one for which you weren't responsible? Remember how, even though you weren't responsible, you still had to pay a $500 deductible before your insurance agency covered the costs?

Keep in mind that YOU are the type of person who creates negativity. You make the world a less pleasant place to be.

Melissa MacDonald
Amherst

Do I have a case?

The attorneys at your Student Legal Services Office can answer fee-paying UMass/Amherst students' questions on a variety of legal problems, including: Housing, Criminal, University, Civil Rights, Consumer, Labor Relations, Personal Injury, and Family Law

STUDENT LEGAL SERVICES OFFICE 545-1995

The Student Legal Services Office is your first source of law-related assistance. Whether you need information, advice or referral, call for an appointment. Located in room 922 of the Campus Center, the SLSO is open Monday through Friday, from 9am to 5pm.

Do I need a lawyer?

it's more than Summer

it's Boulder

• Enjoy the relaxed, comfortable atmosphere of the Boulder campus • Choose from over 500 courses • Select from five-, eight-, and ten-week terms or intensive courses • Have time to work, travel, or just have fun

Plan now to make the Summer of 1995 a Boulder one!

Term A: June 5-July 7 Term B: July 11-August 11
Term C: June 5-July 28 Term D: June 5-August 11

Shorter, intensive courses also available.
Call or write for your free CU-Boulder Summer Session Catalog.
(303) 492-2456

Office of Admissions • Regent Administrative Center 125 • Campus Box 30
University of Colorado at Boulder • Boulder, CO 80309-0030

UNIVERSITY OF COLORADO AT BOULDER

Yes, send me the free 1995 CU-Boulder Summer Session Catalog.

Name _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____
Date of Birth _____ Social Security Number* _____
*For record-keeping and identification of students only

Mail to: Office of Admissions
Regent Administrative Center 125
Campus Box 30
University of Colorado at Boulder
Boulder, Colorado 80309-0030

(303) 492-2456

Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Institution

Help Wanted?

Job Tip # 42 ...Not all employers advertise in the paper. Make contacts!

Create a professional looking resume at CopyCat Print Shop.

Choose from a selection of attractive high quality 25% cotton paper. We'll typeset one page and make 50 copies all in just two business days. –Only $19.95 with this coupon.

copycat PRINT SHOP

79A Triangle St. Amherst 549-3840 37 Pleasant St. Northampton 586-1321

take Kaplan and get a higher score...

LSAT GMAT GRE MCAT

LAST CHANCE
GRE
PREP FOR APRIL TEST
549-5780
KAPLAN
The answer to the test question

PAWSS

The Five College Program in Peace & World Studies and UMass Friends of Bosnia present

BOSNA

A Film/Video by Bernard Henri-Levy
A Co-Production of the BOSNIA HERZEGOVINA RADIO TELEVISION and FRANCE 2 CINEMA

"The story of war in Bosnia, but also the story of how Westerners have perceived it, thought it and lived it. As much about the West as it is about Bosnia. Why they are fighting. Why we did not fight."

Wednesday, March 15th
7:30 PM
Main Lecture Hall, Franklin Patterson Building

This event is free, open to the public and wheelchair accessible. For information please call PAWSS at 582-5519.

Arts & Living

Trax spins the latest releases

Westfield shows eccentric charm; Three Mile Pilot fall short

WORST CASE SCENARIO
dEUS
Island Records

dEUS are Belgian. If that conjures up preconceptions of awful commercial techno and deadly dull humorlessness, then the last laugh is on you, because dEUS proceed to debunk our arrogant expectations of what any non–English speaking rock band should sound like. Indeed, they filched their name from the Sugarcubes' back catalogue in an act of affiliation with the Icelandic band which infiltrated the traditional Anglo–American bigotry.

The irony is that in the struggle to explain dEUS, it is American (truly) alternative music you turn to. Certainly, they sound a lot like Pavement; the fusion of atonal dissonance and arthouse semi–nonsensical lyrics evokes dEUS' American lo–fi spiritual cousins. But not even Pavement can give prominence to the very un–rock and roll violin, and incomprehensible as he can be, not even Stephen Malkmus had to contend with writing in a second language, as does Tom Barman.

After a disorienting French intro, "Suds & Soda" swoops in, the album's equivalent of "Cut Your Hair," a classic pop song ravaged by a ragged duel between Pumpkinesque guitar and the ubiquitous violin.

But with repeated listens, it begins to make sense, and the quality of the songs, as with Pavement, emerges from beyond the obfuscation of the nonconformist arrangements and lyrics. On "Via," Barman's Stipe–style lyrics and vocals provokes comparisons with REM, while on the short, sharp "Shake Your Hip," dEUS could be mocking Primal Scream's Rolling Stones karaoke impersonation.

DEUS' own worst case scenario was on their recent U.S. promo tour when some A&R man instructed them to hand out Belgian croissants as a gimmick. DEUS are nothing quite so boring. If not quite the best thing since sliced bread, this tasty dEUS is worth a healthy Vitamin C+ (Martyn Bone)

MANGLED
Steve Westfield
Bib Records

Country & Western Pavement? Neil Young on Valium? A less self–conscious Giant Sand? Steve Westfield manages to touch upon all these odd concoctions on his debut full–length release and then take the whole thing a little bit further. As the title suggests, these 16 ramshackle, pop gems are indeed mangled in the truest sense of the word.

Staking his claim in the lo–fi underworld that bands such as Guided By Voices and Silver Jews have come to inhabit, Westfield produces alternately goofy and love–worn tunes that often sound as if they could have been written, performed and recorded in a span of 15 minutes — if they weren't so darn well crafted. Westfield litters Mangled with little gems that are so beautifully subtle in their greatness that it often feels while listening that you've stumbled upon some homespun masterpiece not intended for the public's ears.

Tracks such as the title track and "Grandpa Bought A River" call up an interesting vision of Neil Young had he grown up on the likes Captain Beefheart rather than the hippie–ideals of the '60s, while "Missing" and "Alone At Last" find Westfield claiming a place in the music world that is distinctly all his own. Sometimes country ("Destroy Me"), sometimes dreamy ("Alone At Last") but always interesting ("Clappy Birthday") Mangled is proof that there is still room in the independent world for eccentric visionaries that don't quite see eye to eye with the rest of the mainstream world. God bless 'um. A– (Matt Audette)

THE CHIEF ASSASSIN TO THE SINISTER
Three Mile Pilot
DGC Records

During times of military activity, a three mile pilot would help navigate ships through uncharted bays and channels. Like the name suggests, Three Mile Pilot is about exploring new musical territory. The band discards traditional rock formats and uses heavy, orchestral bass to fill the void left by the lack of guitar.

The danger in breaking with tradition is two–fold. Bands that do so run the risk of either producing something that no one can relate to, or simply conforming to the "non– conformist" norm. Three Mile Pilot narrowly escape these traps, but they do escape.

On "Androsyn Guardian," the band convey a feeling of being out of control yet hopeful. In the middle of the song, there is a break which consists of the sound of blowing into chocolate milk through a straw. On the track "97–Mt" the group presents the listener with surreal imagery of apocalyptic cyber–warfare.

The band uses these examples of the extreme to illicit the confusion of a post alternative society. Despite the creativity, the band does fall into some predictable patterns. The mellow beginning, the muffled lyrics have all been done before. Maybe with an increased use of sound dynamics the band can begin to work towards their creative potential. C– (Bryan Schwartzman)

COURTESY DRAKE/YOSHIOKA/DUNN

Three Mile Pilot's latest release gets bit bogged down with tired, avant–garde cliches.

COURTESY KENDELL REEVES

Corey Cerovsek (pictured here) and his sister Katja Cerovsek performed at Bowker Auditorium on Sunday.

Sibling musicians showcase talent

By Seema Gangatirkar
Collegian Staff

COREY CEROVSEK, KATJA CEROVSEK
Bowker Auditorium
March 12

AMHERST — Violinist Corey Cerovsek and his sister, pianist Katja Cerovsek delighted an intimate–sized crowd at Bowker Auditorium on March 12 with their extraordinary talent. Their repertoire was composed of a combination of romantic to early modern pieces which showcased the versatility of both performers.

The concert opened with a piece by Franz Kreisler called Variations of a Theme by Corelli — a fast and energetic piece which set the tempo for the first half of the program. The second piece, Sonata in E–Flat Major, Opus 18, was written by Richard Strauss and the three movements varied in tempo and tone. The first movement, Allegro ma non troppo was dark and moody while the Andante Cantabile that followed was dreamy and song–like.

The Finale: Andante–Allegro was frantic and dramatic– requiring a great deal of skill and concentration from both the Cerovseks. A Bela Bartok piece, Rhapsody No.1, sz.86, was played just before the intermission. The music was similar to other Bartok pieces in that the music was lively and complex and had a slight East European flavor.

The pace of the concert slowed down after the intermission with a Fantasy in C Major, D.934 by Franz Schubert that gave solo opportunities for Katja Cerovsek. Ms. Cerovsek shaped musical phrases beautifully, emphasizing melodies and falling back when her brother began to play.

The tone and rhythm in the four movements varied from the romantic Andante Molto to the brisk Allegretto and the soft and gentle Andantino. The last two pieces on the program were Vidui by Ernest Bloch and Variations on an Original Theme by Henryk Wieniawski.

Both Cerovseks displayed incredible talent and genius for the music they played. In an encore, the duo played the challenging Introduction and Tarantella by Sarasate. At one point in this piece, Mr. Cervosek showed off his mastery of the violin by not only using the usual right–handed pizzicato but the more difficult left–handed pizzicato as well.

Mr. Cerovsek played with intense passion, style, as well as emotion on his 1908 Stefano Scarampella violin. He dealt well with different tempos and tonal changes — often changing from fast, loud sounds to soft and delicate sound. He played much of the music from memory, which was amazing because many of the pieces were over ten minutes and involved many complicated patterns.

Ms. Cerovsek accompanied her brother with finesse. She played expertly — often matching dynamics and emotions with her brother. Her 'touch' on the piano keyboard was delicate and precise and her fingers moved rapidly and flawlessly over complicated arpeggios. Both Cerovseks maintained absolute control over the music and seemed very much aware of how the it should sound.

TRAVEL SMART!
FROM NEW YORK

	One Way	Roundtrip
LONDON	$122	$244
PARIS	$199	$398
AMSTERDAM	$201	$402
SAN JOSE COSTA RICA	$238	$476
TOKYO		$774

Scheduled flights.
Fares to worldwide destinations.
Eurailpasses Available.
Weekend surcharges may apply.
Customs/immigration taxes apply.
Fares subject to change without notice. Int'l student I.D. cards may be required.

PRISM TRAVEL
142 Madison Ave., NY, NY 10173
212-986-8420*
800-272-9676
*in NYC

Write for the Valley's best source for entertainment news & views!

ARTS & LIVING

Call 545-1361 for more info

Keep your finger on the pulse of UMass and build your resume while you're at it.

Write for the Collegian News Department

Contact Jenna Laurenza

113 Campus Center Basement
545-3500

The Collegian Business Desk is looking for writers.

We need writers with a wide variety of interests in the business world locally and nationally. No prior experience is necessary.

Come to our office in the Campus Center, room 113, and talk with Matt Wurtzel.
Or give us a call at 545-0719.

TJ maxx

opening soon in Hadley:
the nation's premier off-price retailer.

NOW HIRING!

TJ Maxx, the nation's premier off-price retailer, is "never the same place twice" because our stores consistently provide an ever-changing selection of fashionable, high-quality merchandise at significant savings. Our merchandise includes brand-name and designer fashions for the entire family, as well as domestics and giftware, at prices 20 to 60% less than department and specialty store regular prices.

And that means there will soon be over 100 full- and part-time opportunities available in the areas of:

• Merchandising • Loss Prevention • Cashiering
• Stock • Custodial

NOW INTERVIEWING

Monday & Tuesday
March 20 & 21
10am–7pm
The Lord Jeffrey Inn
30 Boltwood Avenue
Amherst

Some positions will be temporary.
We offer competitive wages and attractive benefits.*

*Benefit eligibility varies depending on hours worked and length of employment. We are an equal opportunity employer committed to workforce diversity.

©The TJX Cos. Inc./1995

maximize your potential

CARSTAR Collision Repair Centers
Where America goes for Quality Collision Repairs

OOPS! From Little Guys

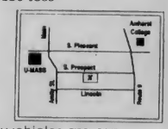
• Free Estimates
• 5 Year Nationwide Warranty
• Direct Insurance Billing
• Auto Glass Replacement
• Car & Truck Rental

North Amherst CARSTAR
78 Old Sunderland Road, North Amherst, MA
549-2880

Northampton CARSTAR
141A Damon Road, Northampton, MA
586-4444

STEINBECK
COLLISION REPAIR & AUTOBODY

53 S. Prospect, Amherst Center
256-8157 • 256-1385



• Imports & other unibody vehicles are our specialty
• State of the art equipment for precision frame and unibody straightening (+or- 1/2 mm)
• Over 90 years staff experience
• Accepted by all insurance companies for collision repair or glass replacement
• Advanced European technology painting and refinishing systems.
• We provide substitute transportation
• Users of Sikkens paint products

Remember it's your car and your choice of repair facilities

Shop Registration # RS1212

Rally supports men's basketball

By Jennifer Roy
Collegian Correspondent

While the University of Massachusetts hoop band roared and cheerleaders sashayed across the basketball court, 9- year-old Joey Dubuc of South Hadley sat wide-eyed, waiting to catch a glimpse of his favorite players.

"I think they are going to win the tournament this year," he said.

Dubuc was one of 300 who attended Monday evening's Night of the Stars Pep Rally in the Curry Hicks Cage to honor and support the UMass basketball team.

The Student Alumni Relations Society (STARS) sponsored and organized the event, according to Karen Drumm, a STARS advisor.

"We were really pleased," she said. "Everyone was really in the mood."

The program included various cheers from the UMass cheerleading squad, a student singing group performing the National Anthem, performances by the University dance and funk teams, three point and half-court shootouts and a raffle to support STARS.

The highlight of the evening was the introduction and honoring of the men's basketball team and their coaching staff.

Coach John Calipari expressed his excitement and hopes for the team. He put forth his gratitude to the fans and encouraged them to enjoy the success of the team and to support senior players Lou Roe, Derek Kellogg and Jeff Meyer during their last season.

"I am sorry the entire team couldn't be here to experience all of this, but we extend our thanks to each and every one of you for all of your support," Kellogg said.

Louis Roe addressed the excited crowd with a smile.

"I'll let my actions out on the court speak for me," Roe said. "I'll try to do the best I can out there for you guys."

Meyer was cheered on from the sidelines by his wife Joanne, and their young son Jacob. Meyers was also joined by his younger brother Jason, visiting all the way from Wisconsin to show his support, Jason Meyers said.

"Tension is very high" said Jeff Meyers. "With a few days of practice left before Albany we are ready to get started and get out there and play."

After the rally winded down and the planned events had concluded, the players remained in the cage to sign autographs and T-shirts and have photographs taken with fans.

The crowd was a mix of rowdy students, alumni, faculty and dedicated basketball fans. The excitement for the upcoming NCAA tournament was evidenced by the banners, t-shirts and chants.

Lewis Collins, a UMass basketball supporter infamous for his colorful signs that request noise from the Mullins center fans, was pleased with the student turnout at the rally.

"I had a great time," he said. "The players really seemed to enjoy it, and it was the perfect opportunity for the fans unable to make the trip up to Albany, to show their support for the team."

Ann Marie Marcolina, a senior basketball fan from Waltham said that "it's good to see all of this excitement and enthusiasm from so many UMass students — that's what UMass hoop is all about.

Student firm created for competition

By Matthew Wurtzel
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts Marketing students have started a company in hopes to win a national competition sponsored by General Motors.

The competition is part of a new marketing course the School of Management is offering this semester.

The student business, called Minutemen Marketing, is competing against other student marketing firms from 100 different universities and colleges nationwide including Boston University, University of Georgia at Athens and University of California at Berkeley.

GM started the competition a few years ago in California, and this year is the first time the program has been done in New England, said Kathleen Debevec, a marketing professor.

"We are blindly feeling our way through the event," said Margot Bennet, a senior marketing major.

The goal of Minutemen Marketing is to promote and increase awareness of GMC trucks and Lorenz GMC, a Greenfield dealership. Lorenz gave the students a stipend of $2500 for a budget.

The students have been in close contact with representatives from Sgro Promotions, a marketing agency which administers the program for GM, said Bennet.

The student firm is composed of various departments including research, development and advertising.

Instead of lecturing the students on marketing procedures, Debevec guides the students which makes the class seem more like a board room. In class they discuss the objectives of each committee or team.

"We are learning by all our mistakes," Debevec said in a class meeting recently. "We must learn from them so we do not make them again."

The students have been working hard on researching attitudes towards GMC trucks on campus. They have made surveys and run focus groups, said Michael Fetterer, a senior marketing major.

"We are trying to understand what is important to people when shopping for a vehicle," said Debevec.

The students discovered that the UMass community favors trucks from other companies such as Jeep, said Bennet.

The students must make a presentation of their findings to representatives from GM and Sgro.

In an attempt to increase campus awareness of GMC trucks, the students will run a promotional in conjunction with Haigis Hoopla in late April, said Debevec.

Complaint filed against baseball owners

By Ronald Blum
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The National Labor Relations Board told baseball owners today it would issue an unfair labor practice complaint against them, raising the possibility the players' strike could become a lockout.

Management lawyers Chuck O'Connor and Frank Casey were informed of the decision in a two-hour meeting with NLRB general counsel Fred Feinstein and New York regional director Daniel Silverman.

Feinstein said the complaint would allege the owners "did not properly follow the rules of collective bargaining when they eliminated salary arbitration and rules relating to free agency.

He said the complaint will be issued in the next day or so.

"The remedy we will seek will be restoration of these terms until such time as a new agreement is reached or until the parties bargain to a good-faith impasse on these issues," Feinstein said.

The NLRB action could set the stage for the agency to seek an injunction in federal court against the owners to restore baseball's 1994 work rules relating to free agency, salary arbitration and signing policies.

If an injunction is granted, it could lead to the players ending their seven-month strike — an action that in turn could result in the owners locking out the major leaguers and starting the season with replacement players they now are using in spring training.

Feinstein is expected to ask the NLRB's five-member board for permission to seek the preliminary injunction in federal court. Feinstein said a decision on whether to seek an injunction would likely be made in the next two weeks.

O'Connor wouldn't say how many votes it would take to authorize a lockout. Various management officials say it's either a majority of the 28 clubs or three quarters of them.

If Feinstein pursues an injunction, he probably would file in U.S. District Court in New York. The case would be assigned to one of the 39 judges on the court, and the judge would set the hearing date.

Just 19 days remain until the scheduled start of the season.

■ Stapleton

continued from page 8

seems as though the Hoosier star is an afterthought. Watch out Jimmy Harrick — if Indiana is able to get its engine started against No. 9 Missouri in the first round, the Hoosier train may not stop until the Great Eight.

Speaking of sleepers, Cincinnati is a damn good team, plain and simple. Coach Bob Huggins led his Bearcats to the Final Four three seasons ago with an extremely similar team. Gunner LaZelle Durden is streaky, but when he is on, the guard can pour in the points. Freshman Dan Fortson will be a force to be reckoned with in the paint throughout the Bearcats run in the Dance.

Cincy should make it past Temple, especially if Johnny Miller is hampered by the ankle injury sustained in the A-10 championship; if the Bearcats do, Maryland is out.

Parting Shots

Upset special: Santa Clara over Mississippi State. Erick Dampier's a great player and the Bulldogs have had a solid season, but they're limping into Boise. The Broncos have knocked off heavyweights in the past (i.e. Arizona), they'll do it again...The worst bracket in the grid: Austin, Texas half of the Midwest. Talk about begging Arkansas to make a run back to the Final Four. No. 3 Purdue is prime for an upset, and No. 7 Syracuse is reeling. At least Albany in the East has Massachusetts and Villanova, teams that are peaking...The first round game I'd pay money to see: No. 5 Alabama vs. No. 12 Pennsylvania in Baltimore. The athletes of the Tide taking on the system of the Quakers. Both teams are sleepers — it's a shame one has to go home so early.

Tommy Penders and No. 11 Texas should be good enough to knock the Ducks of No. 6 Oregon out in Salt Lake City. This ain't football...Allen Iverson and No. 6 Georgetown will send Jud Heathcote into an early retirement...Names to watch: Alabama's Antonio McDyess, Virginia's Curtis Staples (no relation) and Junior Burrough, Texas' Terance Rencher and Illinois' Kiwane Garris...George Washington's Mike Jarvis is still insisting that his Colonials didn't lose to Rutgers twice in the last week of the season. Rumor has it instead of going to Ohio U. for the NIT, he's bringing the guys to Memphis to replace Manhattan, the place he and the Colonials should have been in the first place.

Arthur Stapleton Jr. is a Collegian columnist.

■ Cannella

continued from page 8

take it one game at a time. I know its really cliche, but that's what I'm going to stress. In the past it's been Final Four, Final Four, Final Four, but nobody is focused on each individual game."

The most obvious difference style between Cannella's coaching style and that of his predecessor is the intensity.

"When I first got the job as interim head coach, I thought we needed to be the best conditioned and the strongest team we've ever been," Cannella said. "Those are two of the goals we're still striving for."

That program started in the fall, as the new coach had the team running regularly and lifting together. Even now the teams practices at 6 a.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

The intensity was especially present as a player.

After winning the Junior College Player of the Year at Nassau Community College in 1985, Cannella was a two year starter for UMass, and was one of the most intense players to ever wear a UMass uniform.

That carried over to the sidelines, and Cannella realizes that he will have to be relatively toned down as he assumes the head coach position.

"You have to tone it down to stay in the game," he said. "I've always been a fiery type of guy, when I played and since I've coached. I'm going to have to keep it toned down so my players don't go crazy. I love the intensity and the challenge of games, so I'm not going to change myself."

While he has been officially head coach since Nov. 9, the "Greg Cannella era" officially begins Sunday, when Massachusetts takes on Virginia on the road.

■ Guido

continued from page 8

Eight.

Upsets to watch for: In the East, look out for the Fighting Illini of Illinois. Lou Henson's club is the 11-seed, but an overranked No. 6 in Tulsa shouldn't be a huge obstacle. Illinois has an underrated point guard in Kiwane Garris. Shelly Clark needs to be a monster on the boards.

Everyone and their brother has a Villanova-UMass regional semi-final, but don't discount the Illini who do the one thing 'Nova can't — rebound. Illinois had the second best rebounding team in the Big Ten.

An upset from the Southeast also comes from the 6 versus 11 match-up. Tom Pender's run-and-gun Texas style causes too many problems for Oregon. Both teams are deep, but the upset is likely with the streak-shooting Longhorn backcourt of Terrence Rencher and Roderick Anderson, 20- points a game seniors.

Another sleeper that could go a long way without much fanfare right now is Memphis. The Tigers have two skilled big men who both average double-doubles in David Vaughn and freshmen sensation Lorenzen Wright. Lightning quick point man Chris Garner (almost seven assists, three steals per game) is the key to winning their first two games against Louisville and Purdue.

Don't crack under the pressure: UCLA comes into the tourney looking to get a 15-year monkey off its back. Jim Harrick's job is on the line — make the Final Four or be handed the pink slip. Anything less than the title will disappoint Bruins backers.

Corliss Williamson, Rasheed Wallace, Jerry Stackhouse, Tim Duncan, et al. Those underclassmen who may declare for the draft after this tournament is over need to go out on a high. Leaving will be a lot easier to explain if you bring your team to Seattle.

Parting Shots

Wake Forest may be the weakest No. 1 in memory, so buckle in for a long run by the Minutemen...Surprising that no one has made a big stink over Florida playing their opening round games in Tallahassee. How does a No. 10 stay close to home?...It'll be interesting to see how far traditional tourney failures Bill Freider (Arizona St.) and Eddie Sutton (Oklahoma St.) go...The Midwest is best, any of that loaded top six can win it all.

Anthony Guido is a Collegian columnist.

■ NBA

continued from page 8

are at the top of the league at their positions, that is a given. The sheer horror, though, of putting this team in the same sentence with The Big Three, Dennis Johnson and Bill Walton is enough for me to "praise the porcelain bus."

The only thing that has contributed to this team's success is league expansion and the steady diminishing competition level of the league (also called the "let's do lunch syndrome"). Period...end of column.

Jorma Kansanen is a Collegian columnist.

Black Affairs II needs writers

The Daily Collegian's Black Affairs page is an integral link between the community and the UMass campus.

We are revitalizing our coverage of campus life, and you can be a vital part of it.

Contact Black Affairs Editor Chris Conner 545-1749 or 545-1851

Congratulations '92, '93, '94, '95

A-10 Season — UMass Basketball — A-10 Tourney

QUADREPEAT® Champions

• Compliments of Howard C. Fritz
Licensing Opportunities Available!
(203)322-4870

Squire Village

Now Renting
for June 1 or Sept. 1
1,2,3,4 or 5
Bedroom Apartments
ONLY 5 MILES FROM CAMPUS
Call 665-2203 For Details

Classifieds

• 20¢ per word per day for students
• All ads must be paid cash/2 days in advance
• Ads may placed at 113 Campus Center Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Bed and breakfast. Downtown Amherst 549-0732.

Lip synch contest! The Institute of Industrial Engineers is looking for students to participate. Groups must be sponsored by an RSO group. For more information call 256-4501

PVDC Oil Coop. Save money and stay warm. Join the oil coop. CSHMC, 428 Student Union or call 545-0865.

Spring Break 95. Trips to Jamaica, Florida and Cancun. Call ASAP Ticle 549-2646

AUTO FOR SALE

'85 Pontiac Lemans sport 70,000m Metallic blue. Excellent condition $2,100 or b.o. Call 549-7321

1982 Mazda RX-7 94K, 5 spd, bra, sunroof, metallic light blue, must see/drive a nice ride! $1500 Call 253-3149

1994 Geo Tracker. Low mileage, standard, red, convertible. I need to sell, going back to school. Call Tenn 532-7856

Volkswagen bus for sale. 1972 white w/tinted windows. West-coast camper. 50,000 on new engine 2,300 obo 413-323-4494. Aaron -reliable

COLLEGE PRO PAINTERS

College Pro Painters now accepting applications for painter and foreman positions in eastern Massachusetts. No experience necessary. Call 1-800-346-4649 today.

FISCHER PLOW FOR SALE

Fischer plow-8 ft, with snow reflector and carbide cutting edge, used once. Asking $2,100. Call and leave message 467-9168

FOR RENT

Cape Cod. Group summer rentals Waterfront houses, Falmouth area 508-477-8000

Cape Cod. Seasonal rentals 1-5 bedroom houses in all towns. Rental rates Hony Spence 508-394-2867 or 398-2367

Live for free!! Take over my lease and you will get March rent free!! Large bedroom with working fireplace. Minutes from campus, on multiple bus routes. Call Doug at 253-5134

Pelham 10x45 two bedroom mobile home. Three miles from UMass. $400/month 1st last security deposit. No pets 253-5413

Pelham. 200/mo includes everything (+phone). Option to renew lease in June Call Kathy 549-5303

Two and three bedrooms available for June 1st Call Mill Valley Estates 253-7377.

FOR SALE

'81 RZ Letronex for 49D bondage w/dog Used 3X perf cond. 500/bo Rich 665-2698

Kegerator 500/bo Rich 665-2698

Macintosh computer. Complete system including printer only $588 Call Chris at 800-289-5685.

NCAA tickets to sell at Albany March 17-19 253-0977

286-386 computer system CPU monitor keyboard $225 Steve 549-5181

Two collectible beer lights Great for parties! Call Matt 546-1160

Used Akai turntable Good condition $35. 549-8467

Yen Heiss 4/30 Providence floor seats $60 (508) 877-8092

HAIGIS HOOPLA

It's back. Haigis Hoopla-S is coming on April 21,22, and 23! Call 545-5689 for more details.

HELP WANTED

AA cruise ships hiring! Earn big $$$ and free world travel (Caribbean, Europe, Hawaii, etc.) Summer/permanent, no exper. nec. Guide (919) 929-4398

Alaska summer employment! Earn thousands this summer in canneries, processors, etc. Male/female. Room/board/travel often provided! Guide Guaranteed success! (919) 929-4398 ext. A1860

Alaska summer employment fishing industry. Earn to $3,000-$6,000+/month + benefits. Male/female. No experience necessary. (206) 545-4155 ext A50013

Exterior painting. Guaranteed 40 hours/week in local area during summer. Need hungry hardworking people. No experience needed-potential earnings above $3000. Robert Wilfong 256-8087

Free food plus DC rebate for dishwashing and pot cleaning 549-4818

Part time marketing/sales Excellent opportunity to gain business experience with a new company engaged in providing assistance to job seekers. Excellent commissions, good training. Will be a great addition to your resume. Local, no car necessary. Call (401) 295-5490 after 2 pm

LOST

Red wallet. 3/8/95 Newman Center. Reward. Call 545-2286

MUSICIANS

For sale. Kramer Pacer guitar stocked with Seymour Duncans, and a Floyd Rose! This guitar is in excellent condition. $300 Call Adam at 256-1842

PERSONALS

Regal. Happy 21st Birthday! Stacey. We get some ice and act Cheers! Luv ASR

Insomniac party line. Customer service reps are available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week for your questions and emergencies. Call 1-800-Chitlank to apply

Mary, Nicole, Jill, Elaine, Jen, and Kelly-- Spring Break in Florida, here we come Girls, we are going to have the best time. I can't wait til Friday. Luv ya Tracie

Someone to watch over you We look out for students better than any other credit card! Call 1-800-Chitlank to apply. Note: we won't hit on your dates.

The sisters of Sigma Delta Tau would like to welcome our new members Megan, Amy, Danielle, Suzanne, Shari, Leigh, Colleen, Leslie, Eileen, Lori, Kelly, Julie, Christine, Teri, Samantha, Kim B., Kim T., Jen and Lee.

The sisters of Sigma Delta Tau would like to congratulate Kelly Lilyblad on a great track season!

To my big sister Rebecca. Who says your not creative! Thanks for everything! Love, your little sister, Lea

RIDE WANTED

I am searching for a ride to the Baltimore/D.C. area Friday March 17, and a ride back Sunday March 26. I will pay for 1/2 of all expenses. Call Rachael 546-2757

Need rides to Boston or anywhere from Boston to Beverly on weekends. Gas $ 253-2909

RIDERS NEEDED

Last minute spring breakers no plans yet? Drive with us!! Scotchbound to sun. Looking for groovy spontaneous dewars. Call Camilla 256-8569

SCUBA DIVING

Dive Key Largo. Florida Spring Break. Earn 2 credits. Call Project Deep 1-800-382-0877

Earn 2 credits learning to dive Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, or Thursday 7-10pm 1-800-282-0877 Project Deep

SERVICES

Greene Snack Bar. Su-Th 4-12am, Sa 8-12am. Located in Greenough dorm, Central. Delivery Su-Th 8-11:30. 5-2280 Students for students

Modem users! Call the Playground BBS 256-8085, 19.2K bps. 130+megs online + CD ROM. Registered online games include Lord, BRE, Usurp: Global Wars & Planets!

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright for free testing and caring confidential support. 549-1906

SPRING BREAK

Killington ski and party week. 5 days, 5 nights condo, health club, ski beach. only $215!! Sign up by Thursday. UMass Ski Club 545-2457

SUMMER LEADERSHIP SEMINAR

Six weeks with pay. $700 scholarship opportunities. Call Army ROTC 545-2321

TRAVEL

Da Europa $189 anyone? Carib/Mex $189 r/t. Free brochure. Cheap fares worldwide. Arrivtch TM 212-967-7000

Spring Break! Bahamas cruise 6 days $178! Includes 12 meals! Cancun + Jamaica from $429! Panama City $129! Daytona, Key West + Cocoa Beach $158! 1-800-678-6386

TYPING

Data entry and word processing. Reliable and fast. Call Andy 586-0678

WANTED

Person needed to teach me how to drive a car. Please call Alexander 549-7844

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN
Classifed Advertising Submission

Classifieds can be delivered in person, or through Campus Mail to room 113 Campus Center (in the basement) at least 2 days before the ad is to run. Payment must be received with the submission.

Standard headings for classifieds are: Activities, Announcements, Auto for Sale, Entertainment, for Rent, For Sale, Found, Help Wanted, Instruction, Lost, Motorcycles, Musicians, Personals, Ride Wanted, Riders Wanted, Room Wanted, Roommate Wanted, Services, Summer Sublet, to Sublet, Travel, Typing/Word Proc., Wanted to Rent, Wanted.

REGARDING PERSONALS

1. All personals MUST be postmarked 3 calendar days before they are to be published, or be received by noon of the deadline.
2. Last names may not be used in personals. The only exceptions are for birthday & congratulations personals.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals.
4. Addresses, or dorm room numbers are not allowed in personals.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory, vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Proximity may not be used in personals.
7. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

RATES
$2.00 minimum/day
Students:
20¢ per word/day
All Others:
40¢ per word/day
Special Heading:
$2.50 Extra
NO REFUNDS

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: _____ Date: _____ Taken By: _____

Date(s) to run: _____ Headline: _____

Total Days: ____ X Words: = ____ X rate ____ = Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): _____ Authorized signature: _____

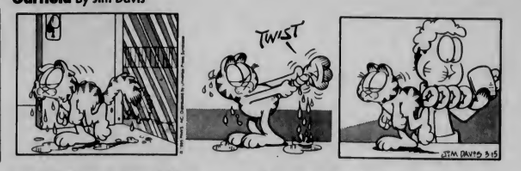
ADVERTISING COPY

1			1
2			2
3			3
4			4
5			5
6			6
7			7
8			8
9			9
10			10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

Garfield By Jim Davis



Big Man on Campus By Dave Schneider

HMMM... ACCORDING TO MY SCHEDULE, THIS IS WHERE MY "WILDLIFE 101" CLASS IS HELD.
SINCE I'VE MISSED THE FIRST 2 WEEKS OF CLASS, WE COULD BE HAVING A TEST TODAY. I DON'T KNOW ABOUT... I SHOULD SIT NEXT TO SOMEONE WHO LOOKS LIKE HE KNOWS A LOT ABOUT WILDLIFE...
THE QUESTION IS... WHO?
WILDLIFE 101
SCHNEIDER

Loold By Roger & Salem Salloom

You're not going to believe this, but sometimes for fun when I'm walking with a friend and we're getting ready to cross a busy street, I'll push him out in front of a car which is just far enough away so that he is able to avoid being hit if he runs as fast as he can .....to the other side.
I only do this with very good friends. We all deserve to have a good time, and sometimes there's no one else around to play with.
Actually, I do it for his own good.
When's he gonna learn?

P.S. Mueller By Mueller

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

WHERE IS ANGELO?! I DON'T SEE HIM!
HE'D BETTER SHOW UP! HIS ACT IS NEXT!
JUST ANOTHER FEW FEET AND HE'LL BE IN RANGE!
STAN / LARRY LEE / JORGE 8/94

Dilbert By Scott Adams

YOUR STOCK WAS $30 PER SHARE WHEN I OFFERED TO BUY THE COMPANY, BUT THANKS TO SOME TIMELY LEAKS TO THE MEDIA YOUR VALUE HAS PLUNGED
HOWEVER, IF YOU SELL RIGHT NOW I'LL PAY THE FULL $30 FOR YOUR STOCK
I RECOMMEND WE DO IT
DONE $30 PER SHARE IS MORE THAN FAIR
YEAH, "PER SHARE" WOULD HAVE BEEN FAIR
ANYBODY WANT A COPY?
SCOTTADAMS@AOL.COM
© 1995 United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Bruno By C. Baldwin

NO MA'AM, SHE'S... WELL, YOUR DAUGHTER HAS LOCKED HERSELF IN A CLOSET.
SHE WHAT?! IS SHE OKAY?
NOW TRY TO STAY CALM MA'AM. SHE'S OKAY IN THERE. THERE'S NOTHING BUT CLOTHING AND STUFF.
AND SHE WON'T COME OUT... (SNIFF)... EVEN TO TALK TO HER OWN MOTHER?
I'M AFRAID SHE MA'AM.
(SNIFF)... VERY WELL. SO WHAT HAPPENED
HER BOYFRIEND DUMPED HER
MY POOR GIRL... (SNIFF) AWFUL MEN. SHE GETS HERSELF UP WITH... WHITE, RID YOU, MY GIRL?

8 Years In Braces By Eric Petersen

Today's Staff

Night Editor ..... Jon Lupo
Copy Editor ..... Matt Audette
Photo Technician ..... Daymion Smith
Production Supervisor ..... Tony Morse
Production ..... Wendy Rae Nutter
Art Stapleton Jr.

Dining Commons Menu

LUNCH	DINNER
Beef Stew	Roast Turkey
Cheese Pizza	Breaded Veal Patty
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Hummus Veggie Pocket	Roast Turkey
Cheese Pizza	Colache

Daily Crossword

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

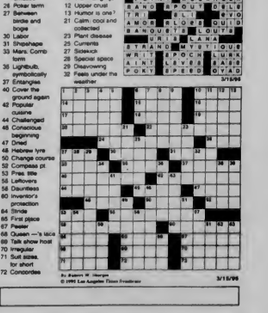
ACROSS
1 Nastal
6 Lagoasaro's park
10 Western players
14 Word about town
15 Nerated
16 Property transfer
17 Maine college town
18 Bring into harmony
19 Whirl
20 — teal
21 Young horses
24 Was slightly amused
26 Polar term
27 Between birdie and bogey
30 Labor
31 Shoeshape
33 Mars, Comb form
36 Lightbulb, symbolically
37 Entangles
40 Cover the ground again
42 Popular cuisine
44 Challenged
46 Conscious beginning
47 Dried
48 Hebrew lyre
50 Change courses
52 Compass at
53 Pres. title
56 Leftovers
58 Dauntless
60 Inventive's protection
64 Rinse
65 First place
67 Peeler
68 Queen — la Mola
69 Talk show host
70 Irregular
71 Suit sizes, for short
72 Concordes

DOWN
1 "Sunset Boulevard" signs
2 Brusque
3 Cupid
4 Famed impressionist
5 Cheers!, in Cologne
6 Area abbr.
7 — tie
8 Eye makeup
9 Irregular
10 Former UN letters
11 Well hangings
12 Upper crust
13 Humor is one?
21 Calm, cool and collected
23 Plant disease
25 Currents
27 Stokes
28 Special space
29 Disavowing
39 Feels under the weather

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

T	A	K	E		A	T	R	A	D		F	E D
A	L	O	E		S	H	O	R	E		U	R I S
P	A	R	U		U	N	S	E	T		M	I T S
A	R	I	A		S	E	A	P	I	C	E	S
		L	O	N		C	O	M	P	O	S	E
P	O	I	N	T		P	O	U	N	D	I	N
B	A	N	D		E	P	O	U	C	H	E	S
A	M	O	E		L	O	S	E		O	U	I S
B	A	N	D	O	U	T		E	L	O	U	I S
	P	R	I	M		R	I	B
B	T	R	A	N	D		M	Y	S	T	I	Q U E
W	R	I	T		E	P	O	C	H		L	U K E
A	I	N	T		L	E	V	E	E		B	A R D
P	O	K	Y		S	P	E	E	D		O	T S

3/15/95



Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Although it is possible to expand a family business, you may not want to form a partnership with a brother or sister. Old friends could provide financial backing if approached the right way.

TAURUS (April 20—May 20): Important plans are being discussed behind closed doors. Intuition will tell you when to take the next step. Exploit new resources and talents to ensure continued development of a product or idea.

GEMINI (May 21—June 20): An attractive member of the opposite sex could prove distracting. Let romance wait. Those in authority are evaluating your job performance. Handle any domestic problems with quiet diplomacy.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Seek professional guidance to avoid jumping the gun in vital matters. Confiding in influential people will help you gain their trust.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): The emphasis today is on making sacrifices to help others. An in-depth research project leads to new financial gain. Join a goal-oriented group.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A letter or phone call promises financial help. Make the most of a golden business or social opportunity. New contacts could mean higher profits. Romance has its ups and downs.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You may be focusing too heavily on money and material possessions. Why not take a break? Travel and academic pursuits are favored. Widen your intellectual horizons by reading a new book or touring a museum.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Knowing where you stand with someone will help you make plans for the future. A lecture or pep talk provides ample food for thought. Get in touch with the spiritual side of you nature.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Ask for help in analyzing your finances and earning potential. Do not assume that you can work every minute of the day and still be at your best.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan 19): An old friend gets in touch. If this person lives at a distance, a visit can be arranged. A relationship built on shared confidence will collapse if one part is indiscreet.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb 18): Review the details of a complicated financial arrangement. Alimony and child support should not be discussed in a youngster's hearing. A local charity is well worth your time and trouble. Socialize with friends tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A long-overdue letter or check arrives. The future looks bright! Set some new long- range goals. Plan to meet or travel with a loved one

3/15/95
© 1995 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Quote of the Day

"Politics consists of choosing between the disastrous and the unpalatable."

—John K. Galbraith

The Distinguished Visitors Program Presents:
"The Abortion Debate Continues"
Is a woman's Right to Choose In Danger?
What Will Happen in '96?
What Are the Changing Roles Of Men and Women?
Where Do You Stand?

Sarah Weddington
Attorney who successfully argued "Roe Vs. Wade," making abortion legal in the U.S.

Phyllis Schlafly
Pioneer of American Conservatism
Radio commentator and writer

Weddington & Schlafly will go head to head to debate these issues and more . . .
Wednesday March 15, 1995, 8pm
Fine Arts Center Concert hall
University of Massachusetts, Amherst
distinguished visitors program

Free to all UMASS undergraduates with valid ID, $2 for the public.

Sports

Something wrong when MCAC's two bids equal to A–10

Anthony Guido

While my counterpart will delve into the beauties of the NCAA tournament, let's look back before we go forward. There are always angered teams left out, but this season some real bone-head choices were made.

Lets start with Manhattan, how in the world did the Jaspers get a bid? Two teams — with Massachusetts fodder St. Peter's the other — from the Metro Atlantic Athletic conference. When the MAAC gets as many teams as the Atlantic 10, something is wrong.

Poor Mike Jarvis and George Washington, it would be nice to see GW go out and make a statement in the NIT. A statement did come from Georgia Tech, telling the NIT to get lost after an NCAA snub.

The bottom line is that if these small conferences want to have tournaments, sometimes you're No. 1's will get knocked off. Giving at–large bids to teams from inferior conferences (Miami of Ohio and Santa Clara) ruins the idea of the best 64.

One other off the court note: the whole mess surrounding Arizona was preposterous. Damon Stoudamire, the best point guard in college basketball today, had to wait until late yesterday for the NCAA to make a ruling. Stoudamire's father received a plane ticket from an agent, and the NCAA treats it as the greatest of all evil.

Last week, Kentucky's Rick Pitino stated that "10–15 percent of today's programs are run illegally" on ESPN's Up Close. Yet the NCAA worries about plane tickets.

With Stoudamire, Arizona will run over Virginia into the Sweet 16 and give Kansas a great game in the Final

Turn to GUIDO, page 6

Collegian Sports 1995 NCAA Tournament Selections

Predictions by Art Stapleton and Anthony Guido

1st Round	2nd Round	Regionals
1 Wake Forest
16 NC A&T	1 Wake Forest
8 Minnesota	9 Saint Louis
9 Saint Louis	Baltimore, MD	1 Wake Forest
5 Alabama	5 Alabama	9 Alabama
12 Pennsylvania	4 Oklahoma St.
4 Oklahoma St.
13 Drexel
6 Tulsa
11 Illinois	11 Illinois
3 Villanova	3 Villanova
14 Old Dominion	Albany, NY	3 Villanova
7 NC Charlotte	7 NC Charlotte	2 UMASS
10 Stanford	2 UMASS
2 UMASS
15 St. Peter's
1 UCLA
16 Florida Int'l	1 UCLA
8 Missouri	9 Indiana
9 Indiana	Boise, ID	8 Indiana
5 Miss. St.		4 Utah
12 Santa Cabra	12 Santa Cabra
4 Utah	4 Utah
13 L. Beach St.
9 Oregon
11 Texas	11 Texas
3 Maryland	3 Maryland
14 Gonzaga	Salt Lake City	3 Maryland
7 Cincinnati	7 Cincinnati	7 Cincinnati
10 Temple	7 Cincinnati
2 UConn	2 UConn
15 Texas-Chatt.

East Regional — East Rutherford, NJ

2 UMASS — 2 Arkansas

2 UMASS — 1 Kentucky

National Championship

1 Kentucky — National Champion

West Regional — Oakland, California

7 Cincinnati — 1 Kentucky

Southeast Regional — Birmingham, Alabama

2nd Round	1st Round
1 Kansas	1 Kansas
9 Michigan	16 Colgate
	8 W. Kentucky
	9 Michigan
5 Arizona	5 Arizona
4 Virginia	12 Miami (OH)
	4 Virginia
	13 Nichols St.
6 Memphis	6 Memphis
3 Purdue	11 Louisville
	3 Purdue
	14 Wisc.-GB
	7 Syracuse
7 Syracuse	10 S. Illinois
2 Arkansas	2 Arkansas
	15 Texas So.
	1 Kentucky
1 Kentucky	16 Mt. St. Mary
8 BYU	8 BYU
	9 Tulane
	8 Arizona St.
	12 Ball St.
4 Oklahoma	4 Oklahoma
	13 Manhattan
	8 Georgetown
6 Georgetown	11 Xavier, OH
3 Mich. St.	3 Mich. St.
	14 Weber St.
	7 Iowa St.
	10 Florida
10 Florida	2 N. Carolina
2 N. Carolina	16 Harvey St.

MidwestRegional — Kansas City, Missouri

1 Kansas — Dayton, OH

6 Memphis — Austin, TX

2 Arkansas — Memphis, TN

1 Kentucky — 5 Arizona St.

3 Mich. St. — Tallahassee, FL

2 N. Carolina — 2 N. Carolina

NCAA

Hoosiers may give UCLA the heave, Cincy's a sleeper

Arthur Stapleton, Jr.

The next few weeks will be full of shining moments, upset specials, dominating performances, the thrill of victories and the agony of defeats.

It's the Big Dance — teams have donned their best outfits for the event. Some have received invitations, some have been snubbed, but no matter what — the NCAA tournament is here.

As usual, so are those tournament–type coaches. None compare to Indiana's Bobby Knight, who has suffered through one of the toughest seasons to date. Knight's Hoosiers have been slammed, ripped and beaten to a pulp, despite having some of the best talent around.

At the beginning of the season, Indiana was bad enough to be left off Top 25 lists, and deservedly so. However, in the latter part of the regular season, while other top–notch teams were sputtering, Knight had righted his Hoosier ship, en route to a No. 9 seed in the West Regional.

What does this mean for their prospective opponent in the second round? Bad news for No. 1 UCLA. The last time the Bruins and Hoosiers met in the tournament, Knight's troops dominated Jim Harrick and Co. Everyone is looking for a reason to criticize the Bruins — Knight is going to give America one.

Indiana's the sleeper of the Big Dance. Why? You know some of these kids are the cream of the crop talent–wise, and included in the mix is senior Alan Henderson.

Before his knee–injury, Henderson was one of the most intimidating big men in the nation. After surgery, it

Turn to STAPLETON, page 6

Cannella to start first season of dream job

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS

Greg Cannella (10), pictured in his playing days at Massachusetts, is hoping to instill the same intensity to coaching the Gorillas as he displayed while playing for them.

Greg Cannella is fired up.

It's 8:15 a.m. on Monday, and Cannella is already in his office, preparing for the quickly approaching season.

At 29, Cannella already has his dream job. After only six years of being an assistant, (four at SUNY Stony Brook, two at UMass), he has become the youngest head coach in division I lacrosse and now the former Gorilla is coaching at his alma mater.

Before Cannella, the only people to coach UMass lacrosse were named Garber. The legendary Dick Garber built a strong tradition over 40 years that the program is still based on, which he passed on to his son Ted until last year.

When Ted Garber resigned last summer, there were a lot of high profile coaches that coveted the UMass position.

In fact, alumnus Norm Smith, who was on the search committee that would eventually recommend that Cannella be hired, said that the then interim head coach was a long shot going into the interview process, but he impressed the committee so much that they hired him.

"I was just myself basically. The fact that I had an opportunity to be interim coach really helped me out a lot," said Cannella of the interview process. "I went in there as Greg Cannella and told them what I felt about the program and about the University, and about myself.

"There is a lot of tradition here and a lot of history, that I thought I could carry over to the next era of UMass lacrosse. I basically told them about the recruiting that I've done. With discipline and the conditioning aspects, we're trying to get people on the right track. We've always had a lot of talent here; it's my job to get them to play to their potential which I think is unlimited."

It all came so fast.

"When I first got into coaching, I wanted to be a head coach, but I didn't think it would even come close to this time. Six years as an assistant. I thought that my time was down the road. It's extremely exciting," Cannella said. "I take a lot of pride every day going to work, because its UMass, because I was part of the program. I played for Dick Garber, and was an assistant with Ted. There's a lot of people out there, a lot of alumni, who are counting on me. That's definitely special. It's a special thing."

He knows that because of his age, and the strong competition for the job, that he has a lot to prove.

"I have a lot to prove," Cannella said. "Amongst the coaches here, amongst the players here, the administration here, amongst my peers. They're my peers, but they're all a lot older than me. There are a lot of people that wanted this job that would doubt me, getting this job. I can't let that affect me. I just have to go along with what I believe and my philosophy. Hopefully we'll be successful."

Despite the elevation in status, Cannella said that entering the season has a familiar feeling.

"It feels the same as it has the last seven years as a coach, but now obviously as a head coach you have different responsibilities" Cannella said. "It's a challenge for me to find out, how to use my assistant coaches and different resources."

While he knows a lot is expected of the team, the Lynbrook, New York native is trying to keep focused.

"Every year you go into the season and think that you're a national caliber team," Cannella said. "Our goal is to

Turn to CANNELLA, page 6

Dumas reinstated, Jordan to return?

Jorma Kansanen on the NBA

How about that Michael Jordan?

No, I do not want to be like Garry Brown, but I would love to be in the Nike's of the man who has the sports world by the "you know what's" right now.

Will he or won't he come back?

Will the NBA have its poster child, and chief moneymaker, back again?

To be or not to be...sorry, too much Shakespeare lately.

One of the greatest athletes of all time (sorry, Candice) has been practicing with his old teammates as of late, and the decision on his reinstatement status will soon be made. Even with Shaquille O'Neal, NBA marketing has been slowly disintegrating into anonymity as a charismatic role model, both athletically and commercially, to replace Jordan. You can give "Shaq Fu" the millions he has been making on video games, commercials and shoe contracts; the fact is that the one–dimensional slam dunker can not hold a candle, to the multi–dimensional talents of the ex–Dream Teamer, Bulls and Tar Heel legend.

The nearest players that can come close to the complete package, that is Mr. Jordan, are Detroit's Grant Hill and Orlando's Penny Hardaway. But even with their brilliant commercials that have hit the air recently, they are in a galaxy far, far away from even touching the magnitude of this man who transcends the sport, and all sports, today.

I never thought I would say this, but Obi–Wan...I mean Mike, you're our only hope.

• Speaking of another reinstatement, but of much less magnitude, is the clearance of Phoenix Suns forward Richard Dumas' return to the NBA.

Suspended the past year and a half for refusing to cooperate in the league's substance–abuse program (i.e. drugs, for all of you in denial), Dumas could quickly make Phoenix and its fans forget about the season ending knee injury of Danny Manning. If you remember, he made a big time contribution for the team in his rookie season, and the loss of his talents at the time hurt the Suns' playoff strategy (1992–93: 48 games played, 15.8 ppg, 4.6 rpg).

But what you also have to take in consideration is that he is no Manning (i.e. the amount of character and team chemistry he brought to the team this year). The Suns have nine days to either re–sign or release Dumas, so it will be interesting to see if they keep him. If not, he would be a big time addition with his scoring for a team down the stretch. If he stays, Phoenix is as strong as ever.

• Watch out all you "old" fans of the Celtics, because the Orlando Magic are close to stepping onto hallowed ground. At their present home record of 32–1, the Magic are nine wins shy of breaking Boston's 1986 season mark of 40 wins to one defeat. Also, with this current home winning percentage, they are in the top five all–time in the league.

At this point I should be giving this expansion franchise the credit it is due; this record does run congruent with one of the best teams in NBA history. But I will not.

The already mentioned two members of this team

Turn to NBA, page 6

Kelly Liljeblad places eighth in 3,000 at NCAAs, one place from finals

By Allison Connolly
Collegian Staff

Last weekend, fifth–year senior Kelly Liljeblad competed in the NCAA Tournament in Indianapolis, IN. In the 3,000 meters, Liljeblad placed eighth in the trials, just one place outside of qualifying for the finals.

"It didn't go exactly as we had expected," Massachusetts coach Julie LaFreniere said. "The first nine–tenths of the race was excellent. Kelly was in the lead and setting a nice pace. Then in the gun lap, everyone made their move and she tightened up. We don't really know what happened."

The 3,000 meter race is 15 laps long. Liljeblad was eighth in the heat but only the top seven qualify.

"Her head was in it and the effort was there," LaFreniere said. "But she didn't finish. She just wanted this so bad."

Liljeblad thought she was capable of a better outcome.

"I disappointed myself," Liljeblad said. "It was overwhelming. The only regret I have is not doing what I know I was capable of."

Liljeblad qualified for the NCAA's two weeks ago in the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference (ECAC) Championships by setting a school record and breaking her own record in the 3,000 meters with a time of 9:35.67 minutes.

Only the top 16 runners in the country with qualifying times are invited to compete at the NCAA's. Liljeblad was sixth out of the 16 and was the first UMass NCAA qualifier in recent years.

LaFreniere feels for her runner.

"It was her first time at this level," LaFreniere said. "She was pretty shocked at herself for not finishing. It's not how she's used to competing. Unfortunately, you can't go back and change things."

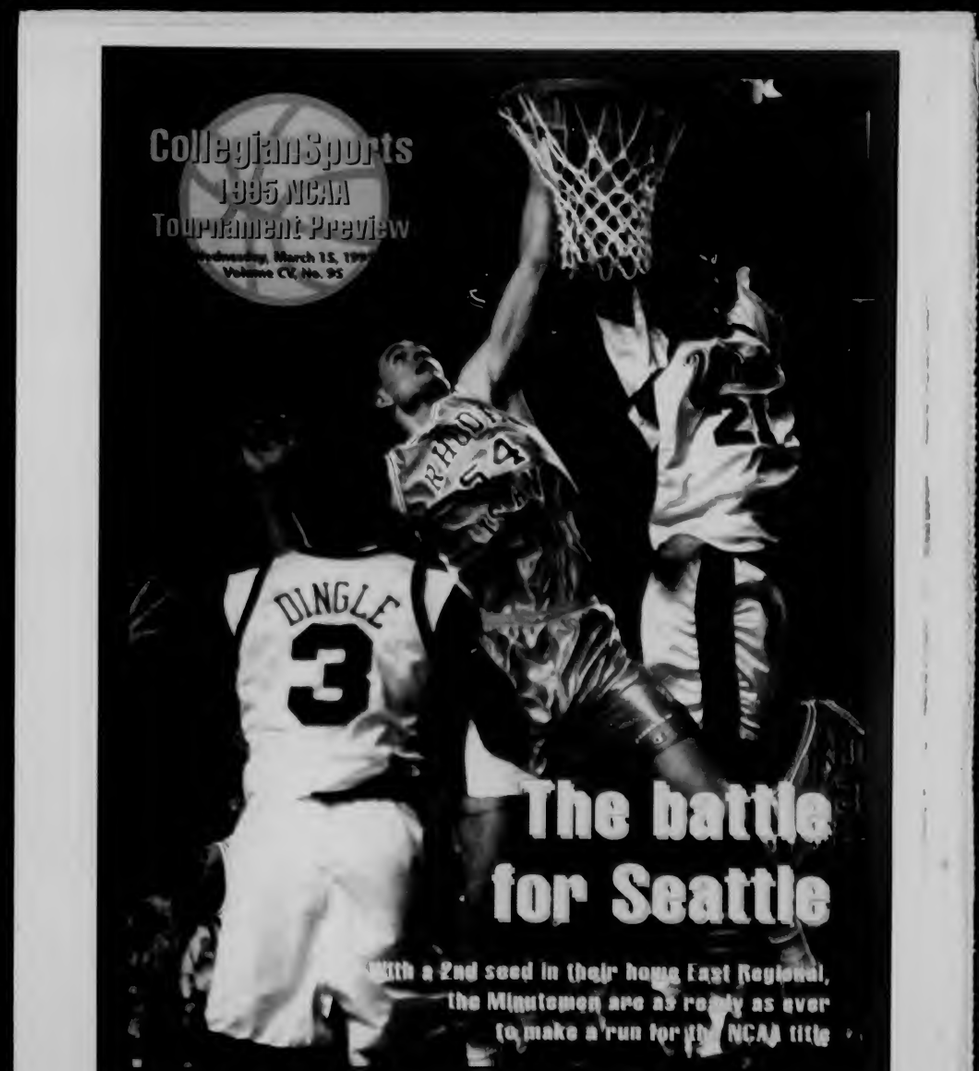
But Liljeblad plans to take it in stride and learn from last weekend's opportunity to run with the best in the country, a group she has earned membership to.

"I don't regret going to the competition at all," Liljeblad said. "I know that this was an experience. To be at this level of competition was a great opportunity. But I'll know what to expect next time."

For Liljeblad, last weekend's competition was a disappointment, but she does not have time to dwell upon it. Outdoor track season will begin over spring break. The first meet will be at home on April 1 against the University of Maine, the University of Vermont and Springfield College.

Liljeblad's successful indoor season should give her the confidence to excel in the outdoor season.

"[Outdoor] will give me a second chance to prove myself, to accomplish what I know I can do," Liljeblad said.



CollegianSports
1995 NCAA
Tournament Preview
Volume CV, No. 95
The battle for Seattle
With a 2nd seed in their home East Regional, the Minutemen are as ready as ever to make a run for the NCAA title

TOTAL FITNESS
"Big enough to own the best equipment but small enough to know your name."
BEST AEROBICS
THREE LIFESTRIDE TREADMILLS

"Wow, that bike looks really awesome... I wonder if my legs will reach the pedals."
BEST MACHINES
COMING MARCH 15

Virtual Reality: The sights, sounds and feel of actual outdoor exercise
BEST PRICES

AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
256-0080
460 WEST ST.
On Bus Line
Open 7 Days

Spirit Haus
Specialty Beverage Center
More than 450 Beers
The Largest Selection of Micro-Brewed & Imported Beers in the Area.
A Wide Variety of Fine Wines.
Over 40 Single Malt Scotches.
Special Kegs in Stock.(Cold Plates Available)
Wine Coolers • Ice
Mixers • Mini Kegs • Beer Glasses
"Your Full Service Party Source"
FULL REDEMPTION CENTER
Rt 9 East College St. • 253-5384
VISA MASTERCARD DISCOVER Accepted

1995 CollegianSports NCAA Tournament Preview
Volume CIV, No. 95

COURTESY UMASS MEDIA RELATIONS

Filling the void Since the departure of Mike Williams, the Minutemen backcourt has stepped up its play. Edgar Padilla has improved his game since the suspension prior to the Feb. 16 game against Duquesne (See story, page 16).

PAUL BILODEAU / COLLEGIAN

A true leader Derek Kellogg, a starter for the past three seasons, has become the floor general for the Minutemen (see story, page 20).

PAUL BILODEAU / COLLEGIAN

A team effort Donta Bright and the Minutemen hope to continue their unselfish game which earned a 26-4 record through the A-10 tournament (see story, page 4).

Good Luck UMass
from
PIZZA SUBS GYROS
THE SUB

33 E. PLEASANT ST., AMHERST / 549-5140

Inside

SUMMARIES: A look back at some of the defining games for the 1994–95 Massachusetts men's basketball team 4

ADVERSITY: This year's Minutemen have had more than their share of setbacks 6

ABC's MIKE DOWLING: The local sports anchor gives his insight on UMass's prospects for the tournament 7

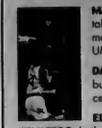
HEADED TO THE TOURNEY: The team hopes to make this year's tournament the most successful in school history 8

TYRONE WEEKS: The sophomore forward has emerged as a rebounding force 9

THE ROAD TO THE FINAL FOUR: A look at the bracket and who UMass could face on the way to Seattle 10

TEMPLE: The Minutemen's chief conference rival prepares for the NCAA with high aspirations 11

LOU ROE: The senior warrior's work ethic has been key to his success 12



MARCUS CAMBY: The various talents and dimensions the sophomore center brings could dictate UMass' tourney performance ..13

DANA DINGLE: His quiet contributions are critical to UMass' success 15

EDGAR PADILLA & CARMELO TRAVIESO: In the absence of Mike Williams, the sophomore guard tandem is stepping up its play 16

STATISTICS: The final regular season and Atlantic 10 tournament numbers 18

DEREK KELLOGG: The long overlooked leader will be valuable in postseason play 20

ATLANTIC 10 IN THE NCAA: Check out how other teams in the conference fared on Selection Sunday 22

Editors ..... Andrew Bryce, Matt Vautour
Layout & Design ..... Andrew Davidson
Advertising Production ..... James P. Ganley, Thomas Sweeney
Photography ..... Paul Bilodeau, Chris Ragusa, Emily Reily
Copy Editor ..... Kelly Spang
Production ..... Marni Helfner, Tony Morse, Mark Mitchell, Greg Iafrate

Special Thanks To:
Michael McRae, Lisa Tannenbaum and the entire advertising staff, Art Stapleton Jr., WMUA Sports, Candice Flemming, The Collegian Graphics Dept., Tracy Monahan and Darienne Hosley, And Morse, Jack Mead and Turley Publications, and the entire Collegian Staff

Key games prepared UMass for tourney

■ A–10, non–conference games were crucial in growth of squad

By Matt Vautour and Andrew Bryce
Collegian Sports

MASSACHUSETTS 104, ARKANSAS 80
November 25, 1994

For the second time in as many seasons, Massachusetts upset the No. 1 team in the nation in November.

On the strength of 34 points by Lou Roe, the Minutemen trounced defending National Champion Arkansas in the Tipoff Classic at the Springfield Civic Center.

Despite the absence of Mike Williams who was serving a three–game suspension for academic reasons, Massachusetts dominated every facet of the game against a team that had all five starters back from its title winning team.

KANSAS 81, MASSACHUSETTS 75
December 4, 1994

Less than a week after earning the first No. 1 ranking ever in UMass history, the Minutemen were knocked from their perch by Kansas 81–75 at the first annual John Wooden Classic.

Roe had another monster game for UMass with 33 points and 10 rebounds, but at times it seemed like he was by himself for Massachusetts.

Freshman Raef LaFrentz was solid for the Jayhawks, scoring 18 points and grabbing 9 boards in only his second collegiate game.

MASSACHUSETTS 85, MARYLAND 74
December 10, 1994

Revenge was sweet for UMass in the defeat of Maryland — the team that eliminated UMass from the NCAA tournament.

With Roe, Camby, and Kellogg in foul trouble, the rest of the squad stepped up.

Led by 18 points from Williams, the Minutemen were able to hold off the second half rallies by Maryland.

Edgar Padilla scored 12 points, while Dana Dingle had 11, including seven consecutive points down the stretch.

Donta Bright, in his return to his native Baltimore, outscored cousin Keith Booth 12–6.

MASSACHUSETTS 80, SAINT LOUIS 74
January 5

In front of the largest crowd (21,879) ever to see a basketball game in the state of Missouri, the Minutemen held off a late surge by the previous unbeaten Billikens to beat Saint Louis 80–74 in the Kiel Center.

The game was the second in the Great Midwest–Atlantic 10 Challenge. Temple won the first game, defeating Marquette, so the Minutemen's victory completed a sweep for the conference.

Seniors Roe and Williams were impressive for the Minutemen. Roe, who had ESPN announcer Dick Vitale singing his praises throughout the contest, scored 29 points and eight rebounds. Williams had 18 points, including two treys.

MASSACHUSETTS 87, LASALLE 64
January 7

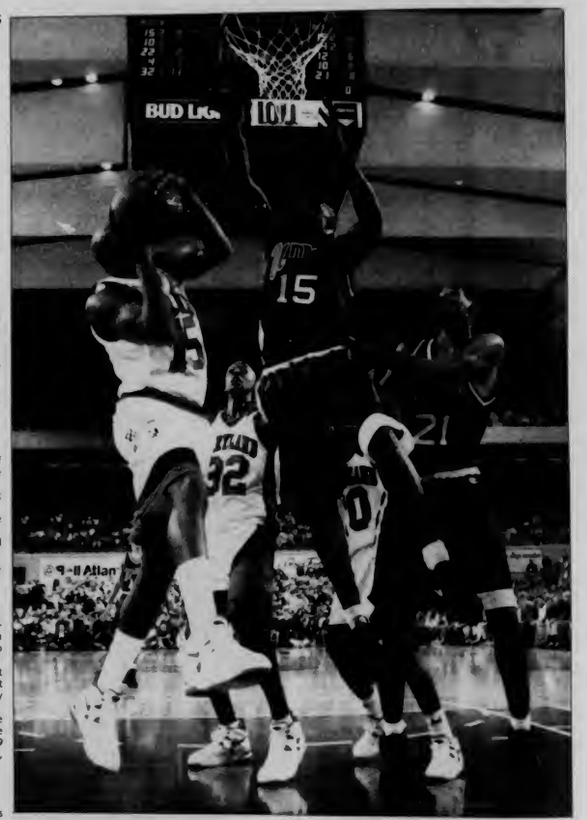
ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — When Roe returned to his hometown, LaSalle University welcomed him, and then made him wish he had never come back, playing perhaps the worst game of his career.

Roe, the leading scorer for the Minutemen at 16.4 points per game, was held to two points on only four shots from the field, that coming on an alley–oop pass from Kellogg with 1:11 left in the blowout.

Roe did collect seven rebounds in the contest despite turning the ball over four times.

MASSACHUSETTS 81, ST. BONAVENTURE 76 (OT)
January 10

In its first game since returning to the No. 1, ranking, Massachusetts got a scare from an unlikely source. The usually lowly St. Bonaventure kept the Minutemen on their heels throughout the game.



PAUL BRODEAU / COLLEGIAN

Lou Roe, shown here against Maryland, has had another superb season for UMass.

After Williams nailed a trey to give UMass a late three point lead, David Vanterpool hit a 3–pointer with time running out to tie the game at 69–69 send the game into overtime.

The Bonnies jumped ahead in OT leading 75–71, before the Minutemen responded. Led by five overtime points from Camby (28 points 10 rebounds) the Minutemen went on a 10–1 overtime win to squeak out the victory.

MASSACHUSETTS 93, PENNSYLVANIA 60
January 14

After appearing vulnerable in subpar, tired performances against Rutgers, St. Bonaventure and LaSalle, UMass unleashed all its weapons to dismantle No. 21 Pennsylvania 93–60.

The Quakers came in as the highest rated non–conference opponent ever to visit the William D. Mullins. They also carried a reputation of being giant killers. With UMass expected to be tired after playing five games in the previous nine days, Penn was in position to knock off the biggest giant of them all.

It didn't happen.

In fact the beating the Quakers took was the largest margin of victory ever in the Mullins Center.

From the tipoff, it was clear UMass was not going to lose. The Minutemen were nearly flawless as every player seemed to be having a great night. They opened up a 24–9 lead and cruised to a 46–28 halftime lead.

MASSACHUSETTS 59, TEMPLE 58
January 21

The rivalry was renewed yet another time at the Mullins Center. And for the third time in the last four contests between the two teams, it came down to the wire.

The nail–biter mainly encompassed the last 1:31 of the contest. It took a late Roe jumper, a later Camby block, and an even later Williams deflection off an inbounds play. And ultimately, a Temple missed opportunity with a second left. But the Minutemen managed to squeak by the Owls, 59–58, before a raucous sold–out crowd.

After Roe's jumper made it 59–57, Kellogg fouled out with :56 left, and Williams hacked Temple's Johnny Miller at :51. The Owl guard hit one of two free throws, before a timeout was called by each team.

Temple had :15 seconds to take the advantage. A put–back off a miss by Levan Alston was swatted out–of–bounds by Camby at 3.8.

The next Temple chance was deflected out–of–bounds with 1.5 left. A final Owl shot was taken with less than a second to play, but the shot did not fall.

MASSACHUSETTS 74, ST. JOSEPH'S 62
February 1

UMass defeated Atlantic 10 rival St. Joseph's 74–62, but lost one of its key players in the process.

With just under nine minutes remaining in the first half, sophomore center Camby fell to the floor with a strained hamstring.

The loss of Camby forced the rest of the Massachusetts frontcourt, already depleted of a sick sophomore Tyrone Weeks, to step up its play.

The player that stepped up most noticeably for the Minutemen was seldom used senior center Jeff Meyer who provided a spark off the bench. In 15 minutes of action, Meyer had six points, five rebounds, three blocked shots and two steals.

Roe led the way with 19 points and three blocks for UMass. He shot 9–for–10 from the floor as the Hawks had no success against Roe inside.

GEORGE WASHINGTON 80, MASSACHUSETTS 78
February 14

When it was over, the 9,493 fans looked lost. For the first time ever in the Mullins Center, the University of Massachusetts men's basketball team did not come out a winner. And for the second time in two weeks, the Minutemen fell to George Washington, as the Colonials upset the then No. 5 team in the nation 80–78.

The loss snapped Massachusetts 41 game consecutive on– campus winning streak (including 27 in the Mullins Center), which had been the nation's longest.

While the Colonial's margin of victory was only two points, the visitors never trailed, dominating from start to finish.

With Camby out of the lineup, George Washington exploited its height advantage in the pivot. Freshman giant Alexander Koul exploded, scoring 14 first half points with relative ease.

TEMPLE 72, MASSACHUSETTS 63
February 23

PHILADELPHIA — On the strength of a strong second half, Temple defeated UMass, 72–63 at McGonigle Hall.

The Owls were led by freshman Johnny Miller, who had 25 points, including 19 in the second half. Camby led UMass with 25 points, 13 rebounds and 8 blocks in a losing effort.

The Owls came out of the gate inspired. Playing in the last home game of his collegiate career, Rick Brunson scored 10 first half points (21 overall) to lead Temple to an early 15– point first half lead.

MASSACHUSETTS 82, DUQUESNE 66
March 5, Atlantic 10 quarterfinals

PHILADELPHIA — Although it could not be as embarrassing as their 103–53 home loss earlier this year to the Minutemen (24–4), UMass pounced the Dukes, 79–53, in front of a 7,273 Palestra crowd.

A 14–5 start in the first half enabled the Minutemen to jump out on top of the Dukes. In that span, Roe (game–high 20 points) and Kellogg (16 points) combined for 10 of them. The Minutemen put their lead into double digits, going on a 8–0 run and making it 26–15 with 6:43 left in the half.

MASSACHUSETTS 68, ST. JOSEPH'S 57
March 6, Atlantic 10 Semifinals

PHILADELPHIA — The UMass team brought itself within one game of becoming only the second team in NCAA history to win four straight regular season and tournament conference titles by beating St. Joseph's, 68–57, at the Palestra.

The win improved Massachusetts to 25–4 on the season. It was UMass' 11th straight win in the Atlantic 10 tournament.

Down by eight at halftime, the Hawks tried to make a comeback.

Led by Mark Bass, St. Joseph's went on a 9–0 run capped by a Bass trey to give the Hawks their first lead since early in the first half.

But while St. Joe's seemed be celebrating its mini–comeback, Massachusetts stormed back. Keyed by Dana Dingle's inside play and Camby on both ends of the floor, the Minutemen went on a 9–0 run of their own to return their lead to eight.

The Hawks never recovered. The Minutemen were solid the rest of the way letting the Hawks get no closer than six points en route to the 11–point victory.

MASSACHUSETTS 63, TEMPLE 44
March 9, Atlantic 10 Championship

Massachusetts clobbered Temple, 63–44 to win the A–10 Championship in front of a boisterous sold–out crowd at the Mullins Center.

History repeated itself in Massachusetts' and Roe's success. Massachusetts wrapped up its fourth consecutive A–10 Tournament Championship in addition to its fourth consecutive regular season title, becoming just the second team in NCAA history to accomplish the feat.

As for Roe, he was named to his fourth consecutive All A– 10 Tournament team, the first player ever to accomplish this in conference history. The A–10 regular season Player of the Year was also named the tournament's MVP.

Collegian staff member Art Stapleton contributed to this article.

UMass

Don't miss the action!

Read the Collegian Sports Section to remain abreast of the NCAA Tournament!

Come Clean With Us!!
Speedwash
11 Pray St.
Amherst
Open 24 Hours
Drop-Off Service Available:
Mon & Sat 10am-6pm • Tues 2pm-10pm
Wed & Thurs 4pm-10pm • Fri 3pm-10pm
South of Towne Commons Laundromat
"Good Luck UMASS from Speedwash"
479 West St., So. Amherst
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK, 7AM - 10PM

20 % OFF SALE
SAVE 20% OFF REGULAR PRICES
ON ALL WINTER JACKETS
STARTER AND Champion
• SHOP EARLY FOR BEST SELECTION •
UNIVERSITY STORE
Campus Center
UMass
545-2619
Hours
M-F 9am-5pm
1-800-UMASS-94

Obstacles fail to bring down Minutemen

■ Suspensions, injuries toughen Minutemen before NCAA tourney

By Andrew Bryce
Collegian Sports

"The great thing about this team is that they've met every challenge that's been thrown at them this year."
— Massachusetts coach John Calipari

There were a lot of them.

Adversity was seemingly part of the Massachusetts men's basketball team's driving force all season long. The Minutemen had their backs to the wall on many occasions, but did not fold.

Before the season began, The Boston Globe came out with a cover story about the academic situations of the Massachusetts basketball players, with the grades of some players being obtained and printed. The coach and the administration defended the players and the University. The players were embarrassed by the negative publicity.

The start of the 1994-95 season opened bit shaky for UMass when Mike Williams was suspended before the season opener against Arkansas for academic reasons.

But then the Minutemen handed out a 104-80 shellacking to the Razorbacks, and the Williams thing was blown over as they rose to No. 1 following the victory.

After losing a tough game to Kansas 81-75, the Minutemen dropped to No. 5 the next week. Five weeks later the determined Minutemen rose to the No. 1 spot in the country, and stayed there for five consecutive weeks. The much-improved grades of the fall semester were released, and everything was back to normal.

Just 30 minutes prior to the Duquesne game at the Williams D. Mullins Center Feb. 16, Williams was suspended for the rest of the season, this time for violating team rules. It came just two days after the first-ever loss at the Mullins Center to George Washington (80-78), and the first loss on campus in 41 contests.

Marcus Camby came back from a strained hamstring injury that left him out of three games, and helped Massachusetts to defeat the Dukes rather handily, 73-56. The Minutemen went on to capture the Atlantic 10 regular season title.

As the Minutemen were in Philadelphia for the A-10 Championships, adversity continued to torment them.

Freshman guard Andre Burks who is a medical redshirt, sustained an anterior cruciate ligament injury in the West Virginia game Jan. 3 at the Springfield Civic Center. On March 4, he was charged with domestic assault and battery and assault and battery by a dangerous weapon (a wall).

An argument escalated into a physical confrontation and Burks allegedly assaulted a woman by hitting her head against the wall, according to police.

At the same time this occurred, Massachusetts was well on its way to wrapping up their fourth consecutive Atlantic 10 Championship. The Minutemen became the first team to capture both the regular season and tournament championships in four consecutive seasons since the 1947-51 North Carolina State squad. Massachusetts defeated Temple 63-44 on March 9 in the final.

There were also injuries sustained by some of the Massachusetts players besides those of Camby and Burks that affected the team chemistry and/or depth.

Tyrone Weeks battled the flu, and was forced to miss four straight games from Jan. 24 to Feb. 1. Freshman reserve Inus Norville suffered a hip-pointer in practice during the week of Feb. 21, and missed two games. He played just one minute in the following game against Rhode Island.

Yet despite it all, the Minutemen are looking for a good run in the NCAA tourney.

CHRIS RAGUSA / COLLEGIAN

In happier times, Mike Williams and Andre Burks share a laugh on the Minutemen bench. Both players are now suspended from the Massachusetts team.

SUPERIOR PIZZERIA

NEW ITEMS
Now Featuring
Real Italian Food at its BEST!
Cannoli & Italian Pastries and Cheesburg
Wednesday Special
Calzones $3.25
• Tortellini Dinners
• Chocolate Pizza
• Chicken Pizza

$2.25 OFF Any Large 2 Item Pizza | $1.65 OFF Any Large Pizza
$2.25 OFF Any Large 2 Item Pizza | $1.65 OFF Any Large Pizza
$1.65 OFF Any Large Pizza | $1.65 OFF Any Large Pizza
$2.00 OFF Any Large 1 Item Pizza | $2.00 OFF Any Large 1 Item Pizza

one coupon per order • coupon cannot be combined with other offers

17 Montague Rd. Amherst
549-0626

Free Delivery 7 days
11:30am - 2am

Back School 101

This two session program (classes are one week apart) includes information on excercise, some anatomy, massage, treatment options, posturetips and pain relief methods.

Tuesday, April 4th & 11th
6:00 to 8:00 P.M.
University Health Services
Room 304

Call University Health Services Physical Therapy Department for more information and registration 549-2671 Ext. 158

Hoop expert gives his analysis of UMass

■ WCVB's Mike Dowling sees guard play key for Minutemen

By Jorma Kansanen
Collegian Sports

NEEDHAM — March Madness is a time of speculation, anticipation and taking a hard look at favorite teams. Mike Dowling, resident basketball expert for Boston's ABC affiliate WCVB is among those analyzing the potential tournament performance of the University of Massachusetts men's basketball team.

Covering all UMass's home games for WCVB, the sportscaster has satisfied his "fix" for the game this season, since the other major basketball school (Boston College) in Massachusetts has not necessarily been there for him.

"I love college basketball. It's great that UMass gives me a excuse to cover big time college ball," said Dowling. "Boston College wasn't that bad this year, but they were great last year."

Dowling has seen the positive attributes of the UMass team this season, but he still has some doubts — especially after the performances of the last month or so. But the nine year veteran of WCVB said coach John Calipari has done a solid job in the face of adversity this year, particularly with the suspension of Mike Williams late into the season.

"You need a fast pace, up tempo, aggressive team with a good coach. They [UMass] have that, teams like Kentucky have that," Dowling said.

"He [Calipari] has been used to getting very positive publicity for six years," Dowling said. "He is a good coach, but I think he is starting to feel a little bit of the pressure, and this Williams situation the most of all. But at the same time, I admire him for taking a stand. It is a gutsy move, and the easy way out is to keep him on the team."

There was no hesitancy in his voice on the subjects of Lou Roe and Marcus Camby — they are big time. Period.

"Every time Lou Roe is on national TV, he plays great," Dowling said. "Well, someone should remind him that every one of the rest of their games are on national TV because I think he has got the talent and the heart.

"I do not know why he does not dominate more. Maybe, he is taking a more unselfish role, and I think he is, to try to help set up Camby and the other big guys."

As for the center, Dowling said Camby is "awesome."

"There is no stopping him. I know that Calipari was concerned with other teams baiting him into fights, but I love his aggressiveness defensively," Dowling said.

Dowling said the bench depth is one of the assets for the team this postseason. He has been impressed with the inside play of Tyrone Weeks, and sees Inus Norville as a nice emergency policy if things go badly for the big men.

Bright and Dingle key to UMass success

But to Dowling the keys for the Minutemen would lie in the play of forwards Donta Bright and Dana Dingle. There is also a real need for clutch outside shots with Williams now suspended from the team.

"The guys they got to get more out of are Dana Dingle and Donta Bright. I think Bright is not quite as talented as everyone built him up to be," Dowling said. "He has had a tough time living up to those expectations."

"Dingle, I think, is actually more talented than most people think he is. He needs to shoot more, score more and really get into the full flow," he said.

Despite the forward talent, Dowling said the backcourt has to be more consistent in shooting. With the loss of Williams, Dowling said the other guards must be consistently hitting the outside shots to guide UMass to success.

"The guards got to hit from outside, the big men can only take them so far. They are alright, but there are some games where they go into a funk, and they will be screwed if that happens."

Senior guard Derek Kellogg, however, is not as much about shooting, according to Dowling.

"Most of the people 'in the know' know what you're going to get out of Kellogg. They know he is a strict point guard, and they are not expecting a lot of scoring out of him. I do not know if he is as good a point guard for a top eight team, but he does lend stability to the team, and they need that."

"He is in the right spot at the right time."

Looking into the NCAAs

For the rest of the NCAA field, and depending on the seedings, Kentucky and North Carolina stand out as potential finalists for him, as well as Ray Allen and UConn.

For sleepers, any team out of the Atlantic Coast Conference, with their tough regular and postseason schedule, could come out of the pack and will probably be Virginia or Maryland in his estimation. But all in all, the Tar Heels step out as his favorite to win the NCAA Championship, but with an interesting catch to it.

"North Carolina, in my opinion, should win it," Dowling said. "They have the two best players in the country (Jerry Stackhouse and Rasheed Wallace), and the only person that is going to prevent them from winning it is [Tar Heel coach] Dean Smith."

GET A SUMMER JOB WITH A PRO SPORTS TEAM

The Pro Sports Information Book 1995 has everything you'll need to get a summer job, an internship, or start a career with a professional sports team (tens of thousands of jobs are available every year). This book lists the specific contact names for team and league departments (i.e. Marketing, Public Relations, Coaching, Media Relations, Team Operations, etc.), along with the teams' and leagues' addresses, phone numbers, fax numbers, etc.

In conjunction, the book lists reputable sports agents, the many opportunities to work with the Atlanta Olympics in 1996, all the professional golf tours (PGA, LPGA, SPGA, and NIKE Tours); and advice on the best ways to get your dream job with a pro sports team.

In order the Pro Sports Information Book 1995, cut out this ad, send it with your name and address, and a check or money order for $14.95+$3.50 s&h to:
40 Public Hours
2141 "P" Street, NW, Suite 204
Washington, DC 20037
Questions? Call Diane at 202-331-9578.
1-2 weeks for delivery.

ORGANIZATIONS IN BOOK
• National Football League
• National Basketball Ass'n
• National Hockey League
• Major League Baseball
• The 1996 Atlanta Olympics
• American Hockey League
• Canadian Football League
• Roller Hockey International
• Western Hockey League
• Arena Football League
• Major League Soccer
• East Coast Hockey League
• Ass'n of Volleyball Pros
• US Soccer Federation
• National Pro Soccer League
• Continental Basketball Ass'n
• International Hockey League
• Minor League Baseball
• NFL International
• All The Pro Golf Tours
• NFL Player's Ass'n
• NHL Player's Ass'n
• AND MUCH MORE!

NBA

Hunan Garden Restaurant 家湖園南湖

The Best Chinese Buffet

MANDARIN/SZECHUAN CUISINE
WE DELIVER IN AMHERST 5-9:30 EVERYDAY
Free Delivery for orders $15 and over; $2 charge for orders under $15

BUFFET & SUNDAY BRUNCH
Buffet Every Night 5-8 p.m.
Sunday Brunch 11 a.m.-3p.m.
ALL YOU CAN EAT $5.99
Children under 10 - $3.50
Luncheon Specials served 11:30-3p.m. -$3.25
All luncheon specials come with rice & your choice of 2 Chicken Fingers, 2 Chicken Wings or Hot & Sour Soup

TAKE OUT SERVICE - FULL COCKTAIL MENU
10 Belchertown Rd. at Rt. 9, Amherst 256-0252

HOT MAMA'S
SUPER NATURAL FOODS

Go Minutemen!
from the Valleys Favorite Salsa & Dips

•Try our new Fresh Roasted Garlic Humus available at Bread & Circus

Also available at UMASS' People's Market

BIG GUY LIQUORS
"BIG ON FRIENDLY SERVICE"
KEGS
BEER BALLS
WINE
SEASONAL BEERS
Montague Road Rt. 63, N. Amherst 549-3555

Tournament success important for UM

■ Minutemen guard play important in the NCAA tourney stretch

By Andrew Bryce
Collegian Sports

John Calipari and the University of Massachusetts men's basketball team must have had a lot on their minds over the final stretch of the season.

The home winning streak came to an end after 41 consecutive victories on Feb. 14 against George Washington (80–78). Mike Williams' season came to an end just 30 minutes prior to the 73–56 win over Duquesne on Feb. 16.

The following week was crucial. A trip to Philadelphia the next weekend saw two games, one at Temple on Feb. 23 and St. Joseph's, for the Minutemen. Not exactly the easiest road trip, considering how tough the two teams are at home (McGonigle Hall and Alumni Field House).

The first resulted in a 72–63 loss. The setback put added pressure on the second game of the weekend, as it was obvious that Massachusetts had to come out of the two–game swing with a victory. Without one, the Minutemen were in jeopardy of not winning the A–10 regular season title for the first time since 1991, as Temple and GW were close behind.

Led by Lou Roe's near–flawless game (24 points on 9–10 shooting from field, nine rebounds), Massachusetts rolled over the Hawks, 77–58. Calipari felt the victory at Hawk Hill was the biggest of their season.

"We hadn't had our backs against the wall in a long time," Calipari said following the game. "I'm excited how we responded. This was a huge win. I'm going to enjoy this."

Since that contest, the Minutemen have enjoyed six consecutive victories heading into the NCAA tournament. The No. 2 seed in the East Region, Massachusetts will look to continue their hot streak against St. Peter's on Friday.

While the frontcourt is one of the very best in the nation, the key for the Minutemen is the play of their backcourt. In the four losses they had this season (Kansas, George Washington twice and Temple), zone defense forced Massachusetts to shoot from the perimeter. Take the loss to GW on Feb. 14 where the Minutemen shot 5–22 from three point land, including 9–29 (31 percent) in the first half.

When they're on, they have a crop of shooters to worry about. Take the Atlantic 10 final against Temple on March 10, where Derek Kellogg, Edgar Padilla and Carmelo Travieso combined for 38 points, including 8–16 from trey land.

Since the loss of Williams, Padilla has been seeing time at two–guard, and Travieso has played additional minutes.

As for the frontcourt, Lou Roe and Marcus Camby are among the elite at their positions. Roe wrapped up the Atlantic 10 Player of the Year, and is a finalist for all the national player awards. Camby was a First Team All–10 player, as well, and was among the finalists (with Roe) for the RCA Player of the Year.

Tyrone Weeks has turned into the ultimate compliment off the bench for Camby. Weeks' tenacity on the boards have given Massachusetts another facet to their deep frontcourt. The ultimate banger, both the coaching staff and players have noted that he is one of the keys for the Minutemen's success in the tournament.

Dana Dingle has consistently produced through the entire season, and Donta Bright should see much time off the Massachusetts bench.

This team is arguably the most talented team in Massachusetts history. They played one of the toughest non– conference schedules in the nation, and they came out 10–1. Now, Massachusetts has to prove its worth in the tournament.

CHRIS RAGUSA / COLLEGIAN

Junior Donta Bright's versatility is a necessity coming off the bench in the NCAA tournament.

THE DOVE'S NEST
Rt. 116 Sunderland • 665-7969
Open Mon-Sat 6am - 3pm
Sunday 7am - 3pm
THIS WEEK'S SPECIAL
2 Pancakes, 2 Eggs
& 2 Bacon or Sausage
for $2.15

The Honor Of Your Presence Is Requested
Phi Sigma Pi National Honor Fraternity cordially invites all students who have at least a 3.00 G.P.A. and between 12 & 90 credits to attend these organizational meetings. Learn what membership in this honor fraternity can mean to you!
If you have any questions or cannot attend one of these meetings but are interested in finding out more about Phi Sigma Pi, please call (717) 299-4710.
WHAT: "Phi Sigma Pi Meet Night"
WHEN: March 28 & 29 at 6:30 p.m.
WHERE: Student Union Ballroom
WHO: Students with a 3.00 G.P.A. and between 12 & 90 credits
Phi Sigma Pi National Honor Fraternity
scholarship • leadership • fellowship

UMASS at AMHERST
Earn 9 credits in Spanish !!
Complete your Language Requirement !!
Earn credits towards a minor in Spanish !!

1995 Summer Program
Salamanca, Spain
July 1- July 30
Information and Application :
Director, Salamanca Program
Spanish and Portuguese 418 Herter
Tel. (413) 545-4790/2887
Salamanca@Spanport.umass.edu

Weeks a banger in the UMass frontcourt

■ Prop. 48 victim turns college career around, becomes force

By Andrew Bryce
Collegian Sports

It all seems fitting. Tyrone Weeks, the strong, burly power forward for Massachusetts coming from the rough inner city of Philadelphia, sitting out a whole year due to an NCAA regulation, getting sick in his first year back in action — a tough time, indeed.

And it all ties together because Tyrone Weeks is as tough as they come.

From good times to hard times

Weeks played high school ball at Franklin Learning Center in Philly. In his senior year, Weeks averaged 25 points and 20 rebounds to become an All–Area, All–City and All–Public selection.

The Franklin Learning Center squad was the runner–up in the Philadelphia Public School Championship, and was ranked in the USA Today's Top 25 high school poll all season.

Enter Proposition 48. Weeks failed to meet the requirements entering Massachusetts. He was forced to sit out the 1993–94 season, his first year as a Minuteman.

"Last year, it was tough because I was sitting out. I did my work in high school, but the SATs, I just didn't take them seriously," Weeks said.

So last season, Weeks spent his time behind the scenes preparing for this season. Physically ...

"It was tough. I think I lost a lot of my game during the year because of the lack of competition. I have been playing ball for years and years, and then I had to sit out," Weeks said.

... and mentally. Teammate Donta Bright, who sat out the 1992–93 season because of Prop. 48, gave Weeks some advice before last season.

"Work out everyday, don't think about it. Before you know, your season will be over with ... if you keep a positive attitude," Bright said.

Weeks valued the advice.

"I'd tell them the same thing as Donta said. My experience? I wanted to quit myself, but Donta told me to stick with it," Weeks said.

CHRIS RAGUSA / COLLEGIAN

Sophomore Tyrone Weeks has fought through tough times to emerge as an important part of the UMass frontline.

Weeks sick in first year back

Weeks fought through the long Prop. 48 season, and began this season looking for minutes in the already–stacked Minuteman frontline.

Then, Weeks got sick earlier this season, suffering from flu–like symptoms that made him miss four games between Jan. 24 and Feb. 1.

"It was difficult in the beginning of the year, mainly because I had the injuries which made it tough. It was my first year of college basketball," Weeks said.

"When I was in the hospital, I saw that my basketball career was going down the tubes, so I knew I had to come back and play well."

Marcus Camby, Weeks' best friend on the team, went down with a strained hamstring during the St. Joe's game on Feb. 1. Playing time was available in Camby's absence, and Weeks responded. In the GW game in on Feb. 4, he scored six points and grabbed seven boards.

And from there, Weeks has emerged. A strong, aggressive rebounder, the 6–foot–7–inch, 240–pounder has averaged 7.2 rpg since the GW game, including three of his four double– digit rebound games this season.

"Tyrone Weeks is good. Tyrone is a player. Tyrone Weeks right now is not afraid. In high school, he played against an unbelievable Philly area competition, including [North Carolina's] Rasheed Wallace and [Villanova's] Jason Lawson. He's not afraid. He's fearless out there,"

Turn to WEEKS, page 21

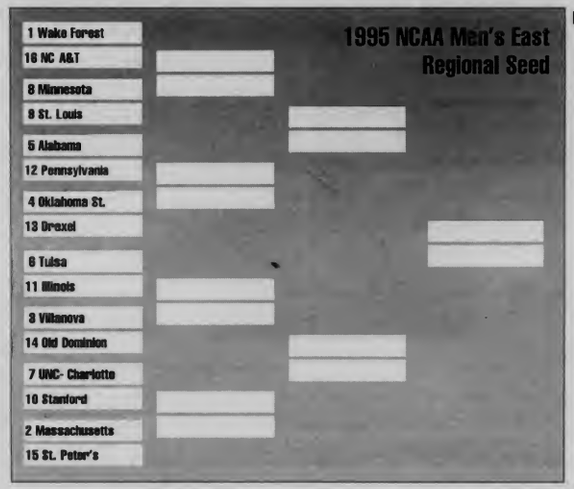
GOTTA EAT
GOTTA SLEEP
GOTTA STUDY
GOTTA PLAY
GOTTA PLAY IT SAFE
DON'T DRINK & DRIVE
UMass
Have a great spring break on us!!
Play it safe!
Don't Drink & Drive!!
Free stuff from your Peer Health Educators
Sponsored by UHS Health Ed. & Governor's Highway Safety Council, Safe Roads
Campus Center Concourse
March 15th & 16th
9:30 am to 3:00 pm

Kai Chi
Chinese-American
Restaurant & Bar
We Deliver To Umass
Major credit cards accepted
Sun-Thurs 11:30 am - 11 pm
Fri & Sat. 11:30 am - midnight
Eat In Only
Tuesdays: Buy 1 regular priced dinner entree, get the 2nd for 1/2 price.
Wednesdays: 20% off all dinner entrees.
586-2774
Mt. Farms Mall Rt. 9 Hadley

Clip & Curl
Hair, Skin & Nails
SPECIAL COUPON RATES
HAIRCUTS
Men's Cut .....$10 (Reg. $12)
Women's Style Cut .....$14 (Reg. $16
NAILS
TIPS .....$25 (REG. $35)
PARFIN WAX MANICURE ...$15 (REG. $20)
Rte. 116 Sunderland, MA Tel.: 665-2629
Hours: Tues.-Fri. 9 am-8pm • Sat 9am-4pm

READINGS BY ABBY
PALM TAROT & ESP READING
HELPS SOLVE ALL PROBLEMS OF LIFE. HELPS YOU THROUGH YOUR GOOD AND BAD CYCLES OF LIFE. TELLS YOU LUCKY DAYS AND LUCKY MONTHS. ONE VISIT WILL CONVINCE YOU THAT SHE IS SUPERIOR TO ALL READERS YOU HAVE SEEN BEFORE.
All Readings Confidential and Results Guaranteed
HOURS: 9A.M. TO 9P.M.
210 Russell Street
Route 9
Hadley, MA 01035
(413) 586-6711
Walk In's are welcome

UMass gets second seed in the East



■ Albany the sight of matchup with No. 15 seed St. Peter's

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Sports

The University of Massachusetts' potential NCAA tournament run begins just an hour down interstate 90, as the Minutemen will be headed to Albany as the No. 2 seed in the East Region.

Wake Forest, fresh off of its upset of North Carolina in the Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament finals was awarded the No. 1 seed in the East. Kansas (Midwest), Kentucky (Southeast) and UCLA (West) rounded out the No. 1 seeds.

Massachusetts will take on No. 15 seed St. Peter's (Jersey City, NJ). The Peacocks got the tourney bid for winning the championship game in the Mid–America Conference Tournament. They upset the Manhattan Jaspers 80–78 in overtime of that game. They enter the tournament with a record of 19–10. The have not been to the tournament since 1991.

If the highly favored Minutemen win their first game they will face the winner of the winner of a matchup between UNC–Charlotte and Stanford.

A more interesting battle could take place in the Sweet Sixteen as UMass could face Big East Champion Villanova in the Meadowlands in East Rutherford, NJ if both teams advance past the first two rounds.

Eight teams that Massachusetts faced this year all made the tournament. In addition to Kansas, Arkansas (two seed Midwest) Temple (10, West), Western Kentucky (eight Midwest), Louisville (11 Midwest), Maryland (three, West), St. Louis (nine, west) and Pennsylvania (12, West) all received invitations to the dance.

Getting a bid: Manhattan is the first team in the history of the Mid–America Conference to receive an at–large bid to the NCAA's, as the Jaspers received the No. 13 seed in the Southeast, despite losing to St. Peter's in the conference tournament.

Michigan, Florida and Xavier, who were all considered bubble teams, also received bids.

Omissions: The Atlantic 10 will only have two teams in the NCAA's this year, as the bubble was burst from under George Washington and St. Joseph's. The Colonials had been considered a likely entry after beating UMass twice late in the season, but its loss to Rutgers in the first round of the Atlantic 10 tourney capped off a stretch run slide, that eventually did–in the Colonials, who are now likely NIT bound.

Georgia Tech, who finished fifth in the ACC was also an omission.

GO U-MASS!!!!!!

New Puffton Village Apartments sends its congratulations for the excellent season thus far and best wishes for continuing sucess in the upcoming NCAA Tourney.

NEW PUFFTON VILLAGE

Now accepting applications for summer and fall rentals. Stop by our office or stop in at the Housing Fair.

1040 N. Pleasant
549-0145

Limited Time!
MAKE YOUR OWN
MEAL DEAL
Buy Any Sub, Receive Chips And Med. Drink For $1.00 More!
For A Limited Time Only
SUBWAY
The Place Where Fresh is the Taste
4 Main St. • Amherst

Surging Owls hope for tourney success

Despite two loses to Massachusetts, the Owls are prepared for the NCAAs.

CHRIS RAGUSA / COLLEGIAN

■ Rick Brunson will be key if Owls are successful in NCAA

By Kevin Negahndi
Temple News Staff

In 23 years of coaching this maybe John Chaney's best year.

The Temple coach has seen the break up of his last year's top 10 nationally ranked team to a bunch of newcomers staying afloat and knocking on the door of the NCAA tournament.

Losing first team Atlantic 10 players Eddie Jones and Aaron McKie to the NBA took its toll on the Owls.

"We had guys like Aaron and Eddie that could break somebody down and stop the bleeding," Chaney said after a horrid midseason stretch where the Owls lost six out of eight games for a 9–7 record. "We don't have anybody that can stop the bleeding on this ballclub. Everybody needs a screen to score. Nobody can shoot over anybody."

It was evident that something had to change. Somebody had to step up and take over this team.

Senior Rick Brunson was not going to let this chance slip by.

"Character is very important," Chaney said. "Ricky has been very unselfish in terms of thinking of 'we' instead of 'I'."

As a result, the Owls finished out the reguiar season strong, winning eight of their last 10 games, posting a

Turn to TEMPLE, page 21

I'm heading downtown to have my ears lowered at REGENCY HAIRSTYLISTS. I'm glad I remebered to dial 253-9526 first, I just hate hanging around!

Ice Hockey
Track & Field
Lacrosse
Collegian
Baseball
Sports
Soccer
Has Got it All
Basketball
Field Hockey
Gymnastics

NEW IN AMHERST
CHINA DYNASTY
RESTAURANT AND LOUNGE
Traditional Chinese Cuisine
Lunch and Dinner Buffet
Relax and enjoy yourself at our beautiful newly remodeled facility including our Sunny Greenhouse.
PLENTY OF FREE PARKING
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK • 11:30 AM - 10 PM
FRIDAYS & SATURDAY TILL 11 PM
351 Northampton Rd. • Rte. 9 • Amherst
Corner of Rte. 9 & University Drive • 256-8800

WMUA 91.1 FM
Is this the year for UMass basketball?
To find out, tune to WMUA, 91.1 FM for complete coverage of UMass as the Minutemen make their run toward the Final Four in the NCAA Tournament.
We'll take you live everywhere the Minutemen go on the student radio voice of the University of Massachusetts.

Practice makes Roe perfect for UMass

■ Roe's work ethic in practice has made him a big game player

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Sports

Practice makes perfect.

The phrase has become so cliche that many athletes overlook its importance. They talk about the games and their statistics. When Lou Roe has a good game, he talks about practice.

"Our success comes on account of all the hard work we do," he said. "We come to practice and we don't mess around. We come in thinking we're going to get something accomplished. That's the main focus of every practice. I work hard. The guys work hard. It really carries over to the games."

> "Our success comes on account of all the hard work we do. We come to practice and we don't mess around. We come thinking we're going to get something accomplished. That's the main focus of every practice. It really carries over to the games. – Lou Roe

For many players, the loss UMass suffered against Temple would have been reason to sulk. But with a crucial matchup against St. Joseph's up just two days later, Roe refocused and concentrated on practice.

When game time arrived Roe took over.

What the Hawk Hill fans saw was a near flawless performance by the National Player of the Year Candidate. He shot 9-for-10 from the floor, despite facing two, and sometimes three defenders, every time he touched the ball.

Coach John Calipari pointed to the previous day's practice as the springboard for Roe's spirited effort.

"He had a great practice [Friday]," Calipari said. "He worked harder than anybody. I told him [after the practice], 'you'll play a great game.'"

"Lou was outstanding. You saw what he could do today and that was just a small dose. He can do so much more."

Frontcourt mate Tyrone Weeks said that you could see Roe's intensity just by looking at him.

"He looked like a man possessed, like a great warrior," Weeks said.

The Warrior

The warrior label began with Harper Williams, for his work ethic and relentless rebounding.

"A warrior stops playing when the horn goes off. Until then he's going to give you his best," said Calipari, who originally gave Williams the title. "A true warrior is very self confident. We recruit warriors. We're looking for guys who just play. Guys that don't make excuses, aren't afraid of a challenge that want to get better."

When Williams graduated, the warrior title was passed on to Roe, who has taken it even further. He is proud of the reputation. In fact on senior day, public address announcer Jack O'Neil called Roe the "poster boy for the UMass motto of 'Refuse to Lose.'"

How does he want to be remembered?

"What's my name?" Roe asked. " 'The Warrior.' Nothing else. Nothing but a hard worker and a guy who gave his teammates everything he had."

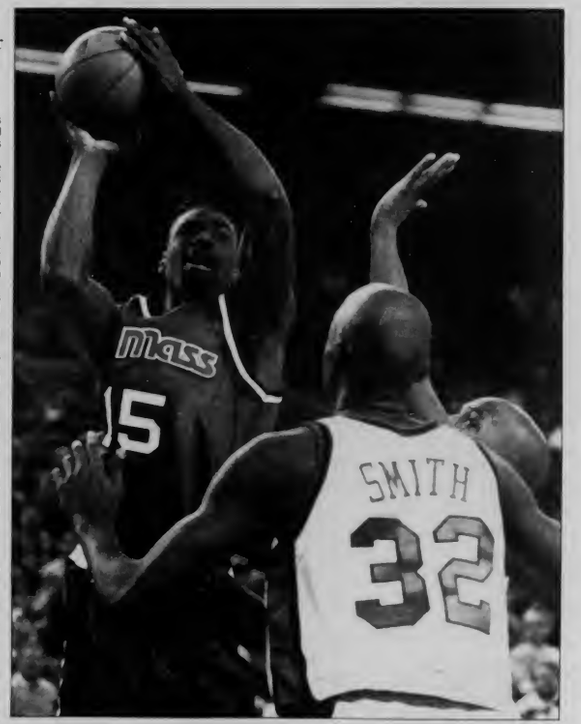
It is that work ethic and heart that has made him attractive to NBA scouts.

"With Lou Roe, the thing you love about him is his heart," said Charlotte Hornets scout Dave Twardzik. "He's a big guy with a big heart and he works hard. He's fearless."

Calipari is proud of the co-captain's accomplishments, as Roe has achieved almost all of the goals that he laid out for him before he came to Massachusetts.

"When I sat down with his mom and his dad, I said here are my goals for you," Calipari said. "For your first year, freshman of the year in the league, [narrowly edged by Jamal Phillips] and a candidate for freshman of the year in the country.

"Before you graduate from UMass, you'll be Player of the Year in the league. You'll graduate, and leave here with a degree that means something. That you get an opportunity to be drafted into the NBA."



PAUL BEODEAU / COLLEGIAN

Senior co-captain Lou Roe is a lock for the NBA draft, and his impressive senior season has made him a potential lottery pick. He is one of sixteen finalists for the Naismith College Player of the Year Award.

Closing in on a record

When Roe leaves Massachusetts in the spring, he will be the all-time leading rebounder ever at UMass, an impressive feat for a 6-foot-7-inch player who has spent the majority of his career stealing rebounds away from in the 6-foot-9 to 7- foot range. He needs only nine rebounds to surpass Julius Erving who set the record of 1,049 boards over 20 years ago.

Roe downplays the record because the current record holder, Julius Erving, set it in only two seasons.

"[The record] means a lot," Roe said. "But I don't think it means that much because he did it in two years. This is my fourth year and I still haven't reached it yet."

With the team headed for the NCAA Tournament, Roe's performance is vital to the teams success. To Roe that means solid practice.

"During this part of the year, practice is very important," Roe said. "It's one and done from here on out. If we come with the attitude we've been coming with, we should be fine."

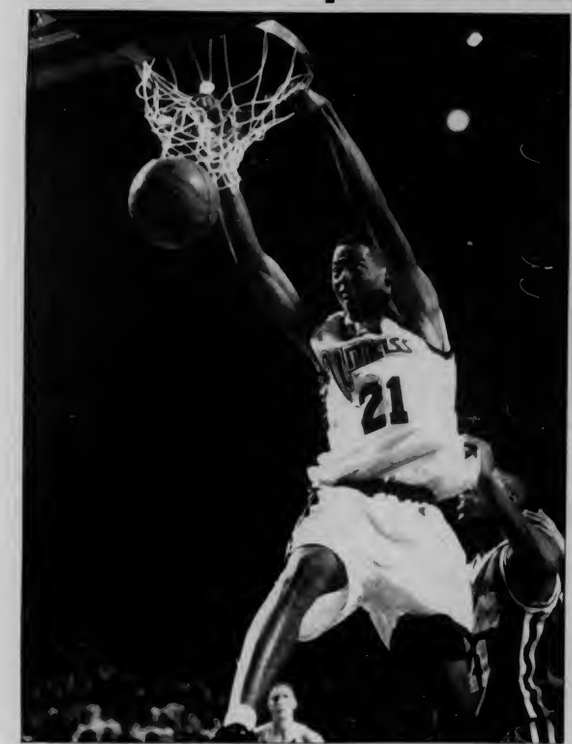
With his career over except for the final tourney run, Roe will practice hard, hoping that the team can make an impact to end his career with a bang.

"It means a lot. We haven't been back to the Sweet 16 in the last couple of years," he said. "Right now that is very important to the seniors. I know it's very important to me. Once we get there anything can happen."

Despite the fact that Roe is a lock for the NBA draft and a potential lottery pick, he is sentimental about the end of his college career.

"I'm going to miss this place. I've been a part of a rich tradition in the last four years here," Roe said. "We've been the only team to ever accomplish winning four

Camby's mere presence makes impact



CHRIS RAGUSA / COLLEGIAN

Sophomore All-America candidate Marcus Camby has been a force for the Minutemen as a shot blocker and a rebounder as well as being a scorer. His presence alone changes the flow of a game.

■ Defensive force on court intimidates and dominates foes

By Andrew Bryce
Collegian Sports

Massachusetts coach John Calipari understands the importance of center Marcus Camby.

"We need him on the floor. He's our guy. Boy does he make it a lot ... he makes it a lot more exciting, a little easier to coach when he's out there," Calipari said.

"It's nice when you're a guard, your man beats you, and [Camby] blocks it so hard that you get a layup down the other end. It's kind of nice to know you have him in there."

Minuteman reserve Rigoberto Nunez knows.

"He's a force inside," said Nunez. "Just having a big guy — they're very intimidated by his presence, being inside. The guys, when they drive, go by one of our guards, and they think he's going to block their shot, so he makes them deviate from their drive.

"It helps [for Marcus to score], but really when he scores, it doesn't make much of a difference. Just him being there, and doing all of the things he is supposed to be doing helps a lot. But the scoring, we got a lot of guys that can score."

Massachusetts assistant coach James "Bruiser" Flint puts into plainer terms.

"He blocks shots — I mean, that's it right there," Flint said. "He blocks shots. So if we ain't scoring, neither is the other team."

The mere presence of Marcus Camby does wonders — just like his tall, skinny 6-foot-11 frame, and his extremely large wing span. The same presence that causes fans to seek his autograph, and his fellow classmates to give him a standing ovation following the season-opening win 104-80 win over Arkansas.

Camby can seemingly make a difference in the game by just being on the court. Like Nunez said, Marcus doesn't need to score. Like Calipari said, the Minutemen need him out there, and he does make it a little exciting out there, and it does become easier for Calipari to coach.

Scoring does not make Camby's game

The shooting statistics line read 0-6 next to Camby's name at the end of the first half of March 6's Atlantic 10 semifinal tournament. No points and one block for the Minuteman star center in 14 minutes of play, yet they still led by eight, 32-24. His presence was felt.

Second half, the shots fell for Camby as he nailed 4-5 from the field. Nine points and four blocks in another 16 minutes of action for the Hartford, Conn. native, and the Minutemen won easily, 68-57. His presence was near flawless.

> "It's nice when you're a guard, your man beats you, and [Camby] blocks it so hard that you get a layup down the other end. It's kind of nice to know you have him in there." – John Calipari

The all-around ability possessed by Camby amazes people, especially considering his size. He can score, as the evidence is provided in his 13.7 ppg (second on the team) and the seven different games he led the team in scoring (also second for Massachusetts). Camby mainly scores his points in the paint, as his team-leading 57 percent shooting can attribute, but he has developed a solid outside jumper.

Camby can pass. He's unselfish, and his passing is above average for his position. And he runs the court with the ease of a small forward.

And then, there's his defense.

Intimidation is definitely a factor in his defensive arsenal, as players hesitate to challenge the monster shot blocker. His ability to time the opponent's shot is instinctual, and rarely is Camby seen falling for the upfake. Feet planted, shot goes up, Camby block. Many times over.

Maryland coach Gary Williams saw it.

"Camby is one of those guys that blocks shots when you don't think he has a chance to be a part of the play," Williams said following Camby's five block performance against the Terrapins on Dec. 10. "He came from a long way a couple of times. And that means, to me, he's a great shot blocker who can play his man very tough and still make the play on the drive down on the other side of the lane.

"He takes that one step across the lane, and gets off the floor very well. He plays like he's about 6-foot-6, only he's 6-foot-11."

Arkansas' Nolan Richardson witnessed it.

"Camby creates so many problems with his longness and his reach. He's an excellent player," Richardson said following Camby's 13-point, 12-rebound performance in the Minuteman victory over Arkansas.

Flint sees it more often.

"You know he's there [on defense]. If you saw guys get into the post look to see him, and then throw it back out — that's what it's all about it," Flint said.

While Williams and Richardson have seen Camby this season, George Washington coach Mike Jarvis did not have to. Camby was injured for the two Minuteman losses to the Colonials.

"I hope nobody is foolish enough to think that what happened today could not have and maybe would not have happened if [Camby] had played," Jarvis said after the 78-75 upset over Massachusetts on Feb. 4. "I hope that nobody takes anything away from the GW Colonials because a player was missing from a basketball game."

Massachusetts has won games without Marcus Camby on the court this season. But they have lost just as many, going 2-2 without Camby (strained hamstring), with the two losses to Jarvis' team.

"People in other programs say, 'they're just missing Marcus. They're still the same team,'" Calipari said following the Feb. 19 Louisville tilt. "Obviously, that's not the case."

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

will be putting the NCAA tournament on the World Wide Web. Check it out for up-to-date coverage of the men's basketball team.

Tournament coverage will include the stories printed in The Collegian, photos taken by Collegian photographers and a video clip of Lou Roe, along with statistics and other information on the tournament. The text may be accessed from any system, but the photos and video may only be accessed with packages such as Mosaic or Netscape.

The Collegian is conducting this experiment along with the Office of Information Technology. At some point in the future, we hope the entire Collegian will be available online.

Please direct questions or comments to Kelly Spang, managing editor at 545-3500 or kspang@student.umass.edu.

University students may access The Collegian online through their Internet accounts. The tournament coverage may also be accessed from outside the University at: http://home.oit.umass.edu/ncaa.

For students using the University Internet system, type lynx at the prompt. The top of the screen will read "UMass Campus Wide Information System."

Then type G. A prompt will appear which reads "URL to open" in highlighted text. Type http://home.oit.umass.edu/ncaa.

Your UMass Alumni Association says

GO UMASS!

You'll always be ranked

#1

to us!

From the opening tip-off to the final buzzer...

You can count on our support!

Dingle's contributions proved essential

PAUL BILODEAU /COLLEGIAN

Dana Dingle's output may be overlooked at times, but he plays a big role for the Minutemen.

■ Junior's steady play is a key element to UMass' success

By Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Collegian Sports

University of North Carolina coach Dean Smith is lecturing his team in a huddle before overtime begins in a game against the University of Massachusetts last season. Watch out for Roe! He's killing us. If we stop him, we win!

Minuteman forward Dana Dingle scored the first two points in the extra frame on a lay-up, then stole the Tar Heel inbounds pass and put it up and in as well. Next time down the floor, Dingle pulled up for a jumper and canned it.

Six straight points and a cushion of 82-77 for Massachusetts, en route to a 91-86 upset victory over the No. 1 team in America last season.

University of Maryland coach Gary Williams is drawing up his team's plan for the second half of the December game with the University of Massachusetts. Roe's in foul trouble, if we neutralize Camby, we've got ourselves the W!

Dingle reels off seven consecutive points with under 10 minutes to go, including a driving-through-the-lane slam that turned into a three-point play and broke the game open.

"Seven points in a row after the timeout. Big rebound offensively, stick back. Big dunk on somebody, the foul. All of a sudden, Dana Dingle changes the whole complexion of the game," Massachusetts coach John Calipari said after his team's 85-74 win.

He's a starter on a Top 10 team in America, yet his isn't a household name. How is a player like Dingle able to surprise these teams? It's often the players you notice least on the court that kill you. With Dingle, there is no exception.

Being overlooked

The junior from the Bronx, N.Y. is used to being overlooked on the Minuteman squad. As a freshman, he played on a frontline with now senior co-captain Lou Roe, along with former senior co-captains Harper Williams and Tony Barbee.

Last season during his sophomore campaign, Dingle received less hype than his former roommate, fellow sophomore and former high school All-American Donta Bright, who was then embarking on his first season after missing a year due to Proposition 48.

Enter this season, when the Massachusetts frontcourt was stacked with Roe, a National Player of the Year candidate, sophomore Marcus Camby, a future NBA lottery pick, and Bright. Dingle started 26 of 29 regular season games, scoring 7.3 points per game and averaging 5.6 rebounds.

"Dana has always been a quiet player. He does so many good things that don't get noticed. Defensively, he stops the other team's best player — things that don't get noticed," St. Raymond's coach Gary Decesare, who coached Dingle in high school.

Turn to DINGLE, page 19

Congratulations To The U-Mass Minutemen!

Always in Bloom

Flowers for all the times that are important to you.

Fresh • Silk • Dried

220 North Pleasant Street
Amherst, MA
(413) 253-5545

Local Delivery
Flowers Sent Worldwide
major credit cards accepted

Mill Valley Estates

Now Renting for June and September
Luxury two and three bedroom apartments in Amherst

Amenities include: •Central Location •Beautiful Golfcourse •Mountain Views •Private Entries! Select Apartments •Located on PVTA Bus Stop •On site daycare center •Play Areas •Victory Gardens •Tennis and Basketball courts •Laundry Room

We Offer: •Heat and Hot Water Included In Your Rent •Wall to Wall Carpet •Washer/Dryer Hookups •AirConditioning •Fully Appliances Kitchens: dishwashers, disposals •Intercom (Entry) System •Professional On Site Management •24 Hour Maintenance

420 Riverglade Drive, Amherst • 413-253-7272

Equal Housing Opportunity

Go UMass

NOISY BRAKES?

SCREECH

MIDAS

Tournament Special

10% OFF ANY SERVICE OVER $50*

Alignments and oil changes excluded.

Rte. 9 Hadley 586-9991

FREE SHUTTLE SERVICE TO CAMPUS

*offer requires presentation of this ad. Ad must be presented at time of purchase. Not valid with any other discounts. Offer expires 4/9/95.

KAZBOOM

LOUD MUFFLER?

Confidence has guards ready for NCAAs

■ Padilla and Travieso have been stepping up play in recent games

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Sports

His shadow hung long over them. With senior Mike Williams gone, the Minutemen backcourt consisted of only three regular contributors. With senior Derek Kellogg running the offense from the point, either Edgar Padilla or Carmelo Travieso would have to step up play for the team to be successful.

The shadow hung even further over the duo when they headed to Temple Feb. 23. In the last five wins, Williams was the leading scorer against the Owls, and the Minutemen had never beaten Temple without him.

The Owls beat UMass by nine in that game. The backcourt of Rick Brunson and Johnny Miller torched their UMass counterparts on offense, and shut them down defensively. The UMass guards turned it their poorest performance of the season, shooting an dismal 3 of 24 from the floor.

Calipari pointed to poor decision making as the key to the loss.

"One thing that we're zeroing in on is good decisions," Calipari said. "If we make good decisions, we'll make more shots. The problem we've had is we're making bad decisions which lead to bad shots."

The frustrating performance against Temple stuck out in the minds of Padilla and Travieso, both of whom made strides to turn around their games.

"That [second Temple] game, we did not play defense at all," said Padilla, saying the guards vowed to make the next Temple outing different. "We said it's up to us, this win, because if we play defense with their guards, shut them down, that was the key for us to win. We concentrated on playing good defense and let the offense come to us."

It did.

When Massachusetts took on Temple last week for the Atlantic 10 Championship, the guards not only improved, but were the key to the UMass 19-point victory.

Nine seconds into the game, Padilla came off a screen and nailed an open three–pointer. The shot would set the tone for the guards' performance throughout the game.

Kellogg and Travieso each had 14 points while Padilla added 10. The trio's combined 38 points, were only six fewer than the entire Temple team (44).

"We knew we had to shoot the ball real well against the Temple zone," Travieso said.

While Callpari was impressed with Travieso's offensive output, he stressed that he does not have to shoot well to be a contributor.

continued on next page

CHRIS RAGUSA /COLLEGIAN

Carmelo Travieso has stepped up in the absence of Mike Williams.

Magic Lantern

Amateur Night

Wednesday
March 15
8:30 pm
$500 Cash Prizes

Giveaways & Audience Participation

Come Celebrate Our 40th ANNIVERSARY BASH!

Mon - Sat
March 20-25

Free Buffet 4-8 pm

➡ $2 Drafts
➡ $2 Cover
➡ $5 Table Dancing

Giveaways All Week
Free Anniversary T-shirts to first 100 guests each night

Open 6 Days - Closed Sundays 12 pm to 1 am Boston Rd - Rte 20 - Palmer, MA (413) 283-9275

■ guards

continued from page 16

"The thing that everyone looks at is if Carmelo doesn't make shots," Calipari said, "but if he'll defend and rebound, you can play him anyway, and he's doing it. He's defending and he's rebounding.

"I don't put a premium on shooting. We've never had great shooting teams, but we've won a whole lot of games playing the way we play."

A year ago, Travieso was seeing limited minutes. With no players graduating from last year's team, not much more was expected in his second season because his defense was in question. In hopes of finding his way into the lineup, the Dorchester native dedicated his summer to improvement.

"I got a little stronger over the summer," Travieso said. "Last year I'd get hit with a pick and I wasn't strong enough to get around it. Now I'm hitting the pick instead of the pick hitting me. That way they know I'm coming."

Instead of being in the lower echelon of UMass defenders, Travieso has emerged as one of the best and has become an effective rebounder as well.

"[I've been] working hard, pressuring the ball, keeping the ball in front of me and I've been getting a lot of rebounds," Travieso said. "It's just effort basically. I've been trying really really hard."

Guard play becomes even more important in the NCAAs, a concept not lost on Travieso.

"We know that basically we have to control the game," Travieso said. "We can't let the game get away from us. In pressure situations we need to make good decisions. That's what we've been working on in practice, making good decisions and rebounding."

Padilla said their performance the next time they faced Temple (A–10 final) has boosted the guards' confidence.

"A game like that, going into the NCAA tournament, winning by 20, gives us a lot of confidence going in," Padilla said.

Follow the UMass Minutemen on the Road to the NCAA Final Four and read

Collegian Sports

for the most up-to-date news on Lou Roe, Derek Kellogg, and the rest of the Minutemen

FANTASY REALMS
"Video Game Mania"
We Buy, Sell and Trade
New and Used Video Games & CDs.
We Rent Games Too.
SNES • Sega • Game Boy
Game Gear • NES
Now carrying IBM compatible software!
233 N. Pleasant St. • In the Carriage Shops

Cooking at your table
Special
Tues.-Wed.-Thurs.-Fri.
& all day Sunday
Two Dinners for $15
Steak & Chicken Combo
Two dinners $18
Shrimp & Scallop Combo
Both include soup, salad, vegetables, noodles, steamed rice, tea, & ice cream
Full Bar
Exotic Specialties
Gift Certificates Available
For Reservations Call 413-665-3628
Goten OF JAPAN
Rt 116 Sunderland • 413-665-3628
Open Tues.-Sat. at 5pm, Sun. at 2

Wearing good EQUIPMENT can be essential . . .
EVERYWHERE
PLAY IT SAFER - prevent STD's.
For information about Safer Sex practices and sexually transmitted diseases, call the Health Education Office at 549-2671 ext. 181.

BUY BEER & WINE on SUNDAYS
from 12 Noon to 6 PM
Montague Mini Mart
• Microbrews • Foreign and Domestic Beers •
• Wide Selection of Wine •
All at Competitive Prices
from Amherst: 10 miles north on Rt. 63 to Rt. 47N from Northampton: 14 miles I-91 north to Rt. 116 to Rt. 47N
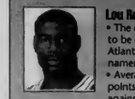
(Follow signs to Montague Center • Proper ID Required)
Open Mon-Sat 9-9 • 367-9551
Sorry no kegs or beer balls

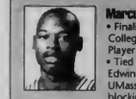
1994-95 Minutemen Regular Season Statistics

	G	Avg Min	FG	FGA	Pct.	-3 Point- FG FGA	Pct.	FT Pct.	-Rebounds- Off.	Total	Rpg.	A	TO	Blk.	St	Pts.	PPG
Lou Roe	30	28.3	179	331	.540	1-3	.333	.714	99	245	8.2	51	66	33	14	511	17.0
Marcus Camby	26	22.3	143	249	.574	1-1	1.000	.624	61	163	6.3	33	45	88	20	355	13.7
Mike Williams	20	25.4	82	208	.394	38-108	.352	.683	20	66	3.3	66	39	3	31	243	12.2
Donta Bright	30	21.7	107	226	.473	2-11	.182	.691	49	142	4.7	70	49	37	26	283	9.4
Derek Kellogg	29	27.9	72	174	.414	49-118	.415	.825	32	94	3.2	113	47	2	43	240	8.3
Edgar Padilla	30	21.2	78	187	.417	34-102	.333	.750	10	56	1.9	91	79	18	34	220	7.3
Dana Dingle	30	25.7	82	161	.509	4-14	.286	.560	74	167	5.6	47	31	5	26	215	7.2
Carmelo Travieso	28	12.4	49	139	.353	30-91	.330	.389	22	57	2.0	29	20	8	9	135	4.8
Tyrone Weeks	25	13.0	42	94	.447	0-0	.000	.605	50	119	4.8	12	21	7	11	107	4.3
Inus Norville	26	8.4	29	55	.527	0-0	.000	.484	29	68	2.6	3	22	21	3	73	2.8
Jeff Meyer	21	4.3	12	24	.500	0-0	.000	.524	7	21	1.0	0	4	9	3	35	1.7
Rigo Nunez	24	5.6	13	33	.394	1-9	.111	.750	3	22	0.9	10	9	6	2	33	1.4
Andre Burke	6	7.2	3	15	.200	1-4	.250	.000	2	3	0.5	5	4	0	5	7	1.2
Ted Cottrell	16	2.9	5	12	.357	0-1	.000	.167	6	12	0.8	0	5	2	1	11	0.7
Jason Germain	14	3.0	3	19	.158	1-9	.143	.000	0	0	0.0	3	3	0	2	8	0.6

Massachusetts
• Captured fourth straight Atlantic 10 regular season and tournament Championships.
• Finished 10-1 against non-conference opponents.
•Was ranked No. 1 in the AP Poll for the first time in school history.



Lou Roe
• The only player ever to be named to four Atlantic 10 all– tournament teams.
• Averaging 19.2 points per game against NCAA tournament teams.
• Finalist for the John Wooden award for National Player of the Year.
• Second leading rebounder and scorer in Massachusetts history
• Scored 34 points and grabbed 13 rebounds against defending National Champion Arkansas



Marcus Camby
• Finalist for RCA College Basketball Player of the Year
• Tied for second (with Edwin Green 190) on UMass all– time shot blocking chart in only his sophomore season, needs 32 more to tie Harper Williams for the all–time lead in the category.
• Averages 3.2 blocks per game
• Scored 25 points grabbed 13 rebounds and blocked eight shots in loss to Temple

Derek Kellogg
• Third on both the career steals and three–point percentage chart.
• UMass has never lost an A–10 tournamnet game in his career.
• Has started all but two games for UMass in last three seasons
• A third team All–Atlantic 10 selection
• Had 16 points and seven rebounds in win over Duquesne

Carmelo Travieso
• Had 11 points nine rebounds and six assists in win over Duquesne.
• Scored 15 points on five three–pointers against West Virginia.
• Scored 14 in Atlantic 10 Championship against Temple.

Donta Bright
• Third team All–Atlantic 10 selection
• Made Athletic Director's Honor Roll with a GPA of over 3.0
• Is sixth in the Atlantic 10 in blocked shots with 37
•Had 24 points, and eight rebounds in blowout of defending National Champion Arkansas
•Blocked a career high six shots against St. Bonaventure

Dana Dingle
• Had 14 points, and eight rebounds in win over St. Joseph's
•UMass' third leading rebounder
•Usually covers opponents best offensive-player on defense

Edgar Padilla
• Second on team in steals with 34
• Is second on the Minutmen in free–throw percentage with .750
•Had eight assists against then No. 20 Pennsylvania
•Had 17 points and four assists against West Virginia

Tyrone Weeks
• Had first double- double against West Virginia Jan. 3
• Has rbounded in double figures three times this season
• Scored a career high 12 points in OT win at St. Bonaventure
• After being a Prop. 48 his freshman year, Weeks made the Dean's List with a GPA of above 3.5

WE'RE PULLING AN ALL-NIGHTER. HOW ABOUT YOU?

with this coupon

2½¢ copies

Offer applies to self-serve, black and white 81/2" x 11" copies on 20 lb. white bond. One coupon per customer per visit. Not valid with other offers. Good through April 15, 1995 at the Kinko's listed.

kinko's the copy center

AMHERST: 220 N. Pleasant St. 253-2543 Open 24 Hours
NORTHAMPTON: 34 Bridge St., 585-5000 (Across from the Post Office) Open 24 Hours

COL-3/95

EMPOWERMENT FOR WOMEN

- Celebrate womanhood in all its diversity.
- Use your innate qualities of intuition, creativity and nurturing. These are powerful gifts.
- Work for justice for all women.
- Take a stand against movies, records and magazines that put women down and are abusive to women.
- Don't let people call you aggressive when you are assertive.
- Find strength in sisterhood.
- Know your body and be comfortable speaking out about your health care needs.
- Bodies of all shapes and sizes are beautiful! Realize that models in magazines are photographed with special lenses. Do not compare yourself to them.
- Demand that women's rights and needs be addressed.

BELIEVE IN YOURSELF!

University Health Services • Health Education Division • UMass/Amherst

■ Kellogg

continued from page 20

That's what we try to get the younger guys feeling, because then its expected out of you and you'll do it because it's expected of you."

Not ready to call it a career

Kellogg has reflected briefly on his four years, but stresses that his collegiate career may still have some highlights left in it.

"It's going to be a sad day when we graduate in May seeing all my friends on and off the court leave," Kellogg said. "I haven't started reflecting yet. When you stop playing, that's when you start reflecting, looking back on all the great memories.

"I had a great career at the Mullins and the Cage. I'm just happy to be a part of the UMass program. It's been a great time but it's not over yet."

What he does have left is the NCAA tournament, and a chance to erase last year and any other failures from everyone's memory.

"We're playing well right now," Kellogg said. "We're playing loose. Everybody is on the same page. Hopefully this year will prove to be a little different than the last three."

* * *

Kellogg's play has earned him a look from the NBA. The Springfield native has been invited to participate in the Portsmouth, Va. NBA camp.

Follow the Minutemen through every round of the NCAA Tournament

Collegian Sports

The source for Minutemen Basketball

■ Dingle

continued from page 15

"Right now, I don't worry about publicity. This is Derek [Kellogg] and Lou's last year, they deserve all the credit," Dingle said. "I don't need much of an offensive role, but I know what I can do. Coach [Calipari] has confidence in me, so when the time comes, I'll do it."

> "He has the attitude to do things on the next level. He doesn't take it easy in the off–season. When he's home, he's always asking me to use our gym."

A team player

Many people like to call Dingle a role player on the Minuteman squad. One problem, though — Dingle can fill just about any role on the floor. At times, he's the best pure rebounder on the team. If there is an opposing player who needs to be covered, Dingle's the stopper. His weakside jumper is there when it has to be.

Decesare said it is more appropriate to call Dingle a team player, rather than a guy who fits a specific role.

"He's a little more than a role player. He is such a great team player. All he does is what it takes for a team to win," said Decesare.

"I'm more of a team player. Everybody on the team has a role, so I wouldn't say role player. Each guy means something to the team," Dingle said.

For the love of the game

The season doesn't usually end for Dingle when his team has finished the NCAA tournament. Two years ago, when the Minutemen lost to Virginia in the second round of the NCAAs, Dingle didn't go home and take a break — he decided to bulk up.

"Dana worked hard, lifting weights to change his body. Somebody has to do the dirty work," Decesare said. "He has the attitude to do things on the next level. He doesn't take it easy in the off–season. When he's home, he's always asking me to use our gym."

Dingle came back in 1993 stronger and bigger than ever, able to bench press 260 pounds and bury the 15–footer — things that have only added to his ability to contribute to the Minutemen.

Looking to the future

After this year's run for the Minutemen in the NCAA tournament is over, the team loses graduating co–captains Roe and Kellogg. The heir apparents? Dingle and Bright. Is Dingle ready to assume a bigger leadership role for Massachusetts next season?

"I guess so, yeah. I've come this far, so I might as well go out with a bang," Dingle said. "Some time in life everyone needs to step up and be a leader."

If Dingle succeeds in his captain's role like he has as a team player, many will have no choice but to take notice.

IT'S CRUNCH TIME!

Enjoy Minuteman Tortilla Chips & Salsa While On The Road To The Final Four.

Support Your Team

UMASS MINUTEMEN TORTILLA CHIPS

NCAA Tournament Special
Minuteman Tortilla Chips
2-10 oz. Bags @ $3
Sale Good Thru 3/19

You'll find all the goodies for your party at Atkins Farm Country Market.

Corner of Bay Road & Rte. 116, South Amherst
Open Daily 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. 253-9528

Support Your Library

ATKINS FARMS Country Market
Farming Since 1887

Derek Kellogg providing good leadership

■ Senior captain hopes to lead Massachusetts to tournament success

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Sports

After an impressive 27–6 regular season, people were expecting big things from the University of Massachusetts in the tournament last year. Many people thought the young seniorless team could make a run at the Final Four.

It didn't happen. To the surprise of many, the second– seeded Minutemen were bounced from the tournament in the second round by Maryland.

The team seemed lost as the Terrapins monster second half ended UMass' dreams of the Final Four. There was nobody to stop the bleeding; nobody to settle the team down.

There is no replacing senior leadership.

After seniors Harper Williams and Tony Barbee graduated, then–juniors Lou Roe and Derek Kellogg were thrust into the leadership role. It seemed like they were not ready for it.

"We didn't really have any seniors on the team last year that can really take over a game and show the young guys what to do and how to play," Kellogg said. "This year we have some good senior leadership and the younger guys are stepping up as if they're seniors themselves. The way they're stepping up will really help them in the future."

By definition, the point guard has to be a leader. If he can't direct the offense, it will self destruct. Kellogg has always had leadership abilities, but in his senior season he has taken his leadership to a new level.

"Derek is the guy that is our general on the floor," said Massachusetts coach John Calipari.

He has been that general for three years. Since his sophomore season, Kellogg has started all but two games at the point for UMass.

Overlooked in high school

This is the same Derek Kellogg that got no other division I scholarship offers as a senior in high school, that was criticized throughout the beginning of his career. Now, after being named to the third team All–Atlantic 10, he has had the last laugh on his critics.

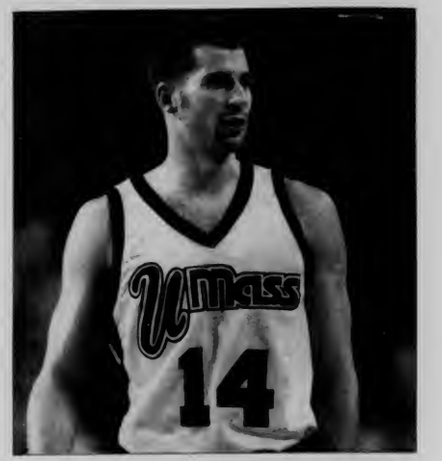
"You can sit back and laugh and tell people how much they know about basketball," Kellogg said. "Those are the same guys that are over there greasing your palms after the games. It really doesn't matter."

His scoring has increased over the past three years. And while Kellogg is still a better passer than he is a scorer, he now has the confidence to step up and take shots.

In his four years at UMass, Kellogg has watched the team grow into a perennial NCAA contender. Kellogg hopes the cultivation of the winning attitude will be continued by the younger players.

"It's coming in stride that we do all those things. You become accustomed to it.

Turn to KELLOGG, page 19



PAUL BILODEAU /COLLEGIAN
Derek Kellogg has provided some necessary senior leadership for the Minutemen.

$till Paying High Intertest On Credit Cards?

Get an informative toll-free listing to obtain 10 LOW INTEREST Cedit Cards. Transfer your existing debt on high interest department store or other credit cards to Low Interest Cards. Send $9.95 to CREDIT CONSULTANTS, LTD., Suite 434, 167 Milk Street, Boston, MA 02109.

Get Involved! with campus health issues
SHAB*
- Sponsor health projects
- Represent student health care concerns
- Review UHS budget
- Serve on UHS Search Committees
- Meet other students interested in health care

COME SEE WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT
Meetings: March 15 and April 5
Where: UHS Room 304
Time: 6:00 P.M.

*Student Health Advisory Board (est. 1971)
University Health Services

100% BEEF
2 BURGS 2 BUCKS
Great Burgs! Great Deal!
★VOTED BEST★ BURGER STAND IN THE VALLEY 1994
QUARTER POUNDERS* OPEN YEAR ROUND
GREAT BURGERS LONG DOGS FRIES
ONION RINGS SHAKES CHICKEN FINGERS
DRAGON FRIES PHILLY CHEESE STEAKS GRINDERS
PETE'S DRIVE-IN
585-0241 ROUTE 9 HADLEY MA

When Appearance Counts, Count on Jonathon Reid for a great selection of men's suits for professional service and attention to detail
Suit Sale, 40% Off or More!
Jonathan Reid
The Men's Store Hampshire Mall

■ Weeks

continued from page 9

Massachusetts John Calipari said.

With both Camby and Weeks in the lineup, they have a complimentary set of post players. Camby is the elusive type. Weeks is the banger.

"Tyrone has playing probably the best ball out there right now," Camby said. "He's coming along. In order for us to go far, Tyrone the banger needs to come in and get a lot of rebounds to get us started."

"[Tyrone] helps a lot," teammate Rigoberto Nunez said. "It's like having someone there to bully everyone out. You need a banger like that."

"Tyrone's able to get physical with a couple of guys that go in there and knock us around a little bit," Massachusetts assistant coach James "Bruiser" Flint said. "We're just happy he came around. He gives us another person to go in there. We're not scared to go him to score in the first little bit, and he rebounds and plays defense."

• • • •

Tyrone Weeks will remember his first season with Massachusetts, sitting out due to NCAA rules. He will also remember his second season, which started more like the first, and ended with a bang.

While his play of late has made an impact on the court, Weeks is getting it done in the classroom, as well. This Prop. 48 casualty turned his academic around, and sported the highest grade point average on the team during the fall semester.

As for his successful spring semester, both on and off the court continuing through NCAA tournament time, Weeks knows what he has to do.

"I just want to come in and help the team, help give Marcus and Lou, our two main guys, a breather when they need it," Weeks said. "I just try to do what the coaches tell me to do."

■ Temple

continued from page 11

record of 17–9 entering the Atlantic 10 tournament. But Temple was easily defeated by Massachusetts in the final game 63–44, losing key player Johnny Miller early on. Brunson had a poor game, shooting only 4 for 24 from the field.

Yet, Brunson is still the key for Temple's postseason play.

"I would say that Rick is certainly one of the finest players I have ever coached," Chaney said. "He has shown us more this year than he had with Eddie Jones and Aaron McKie flanking him."

What Brunson has shown is leadership both on and off the court. He led the team in scoring (16.9 points per game), assists (4.3 apg), and rebounds (5.9 rpg). He also ranked in the top 10 nationally with 2.7 steals per game.

Brunson was named to the Atlantic 10 first team along with Kwame Evans of George Washington, David Vanterpool of St. Bonaventure and UMass' Lou Roe and Marcus Camby. Brunson and teammate Levan Alston were also named to the All–Tournament squad.

However, Chaney is aware of what limitations his Temple team may have.

"You have to trust me when I tell you — we are a team that does not shoot the ball well," Chaney said after losing to Memphis. "If we win ballgames, it'll be because the other team did not shoot well."

Temple's trademark defense has held 11 of its regular season opponents 24 points below their scoring average. They lead the nation in scoring defense, a statistic they have dominated throughout Chaney's 12 year career.

"I think the defense keeps us in there," Chaney said.

If Temple sticks to its defense and eliminates silly mistakes, the Owls could make a good run in the tournament. The key word is could. Temple has a knack for playing at the level of its opponent, losing to Duquesne, yet defeating Massachusetts by nine.

The talent is there, but the heart of this Owl team could be the difference.

"Can't measure no ones heart," Brunson said. "On paper the other team might look better than us, but we have a lot of heart, and we have coach. Those two things together are going to take you far."

Kevin Negahndi is the sports editor of Temple News.

PEER HEALTH
Sex
STDs
Alcohol
HIV AIDS
Eating Disorders
Drugs
CONNECTIONS
Call with concerns and questions.
Get information and referrals.
549-2671 x168

AWARD WINNING LOCAL SERVICE
• The #1 overall customer satisfaction rating of any Chevrolet dealership in Masschusetts for 1994
• Full service auto body. Insurance approved. Rentals available.
• Full selection of Genuine GM Goodwrench parts.
• Fine selection of new and used cars and trucks.
• Mass State Inspection station #3243.
PAIGE'S Amherst CHEVROLET Geo
DICKINSOIN ST • BETWEEN RT 9 & MAIN ST • 253-

FRONTIER PIZZA PLACE
For Fast Service Call: 665-7066 or 667-7067
• Pizza
• Grinders
• Calzones
• Dinners
• Salads
EAT IN OR TAKE-OUT
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK 11AM - 11PM
RTE. 116, SQUIRE VILLAGE SHOPS SUNDERLAND, MASSACHUSETTS
High Quality Food At LOW DISCOUNT PRICES Located Across From Cliffside Apartments

Read the Collegian Sports Section and brace yourself for this year's NCAA Tournament.
Refuse to Lose!

Two Great Ways to See and $ave!
•EYEGLASSES REPAIRED WHILE YOU WAIT
•FREE EYEGLASS ADJUSTMENTS
•ONE HOUR SERVICE AVAILABLE ON MANY PRESCRIPTIONS
•FULL SERVICE OPTICAL SHOP OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK
•DAY & EVENING HOURS AVAILABLE FROM INDEPENDENT DOCTOR ON PREMISES
with this coupon
DAILY WEAR CONTACT LENSES & EXAM $109
Includes One Pair of Name Brand Soft Spherical Daily Wear Lenses • Complete Comprehensive Eye Exam (exam Valid for Contacts and Eyeglasses) • Contact Lens Fit • Follow Up Visit • Start up Supplies
Coupons May Not Be Combined With Any Other Offer With This Coupon • 1-31-95
with this coupon
We'll Pay For Your Exam
Purchase any Prescription Frames and Lenses. We will pay for your exam. (Up to $40.00) or by our Independent Doctor of Optometry on Premises.
Coupons May Not Be Combined With Any Other Offer With This Coupon • 1-31-95
AMERICAN VISION CENTERS
HAMPSHIRE MALL • Hadley • 584-7958
AMERICAN VISION CENTERS
Hampshire Mall (located by the Food Court) Hadley (413) 584-7958
Where Name Brands Mean Quality Eyecare

GW, St. Joe's denied NCAA tourney bids

■ Untimely critical losses cause both schools' bubbles to burst

By Andrew Bryce
Collegian Sports

bubble — n. something that gives early promise of success but comes to nothing.

When NCAA tournament time rolls around, this term comes up on many an occasion. With the 64 teams being decided right up until dinnertime of the Sunday prior to the first round games, there are those teams that are on the bubble.

There are those who are attempting to be an at-large bid despite not having the success to get an automatic one. There are those that show early promise of success, as in making the tournament, but it comes to nothing, when they fail to get a bid.

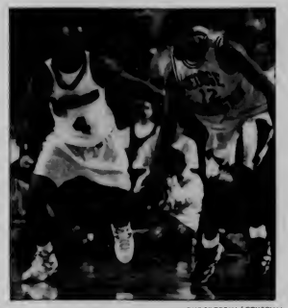
The bubble burst for two teams in the Atlantic 10 conference last night.

George Washington (18–13, 10–6 in A–10) and St. Joseph's (16–11, 9–7), two teams who were in limbo as to what their postseason future looked like, realized that an NIT tournament is the best they're going to get. The Hawks and the Colonials failed to make this year's NCAA Tournament.

It breaks a two consecutive year streak for Coach Mike Jarvis' Colonials, as it eliminates them from the big dance for the first time since 1992.

St. Joseph's made a strong case for being a bubble team. Victories against Villanova, George Washington, Pennsylvania and Temple, among others, helped its cause. Losses like the one to Monmouth on Dec. 28 did not.

John Calipari attempted to give St. Joe's a boost by acknowledging that they should make the tourney.



PAUL BILODEAU / COLLEGIAN

Kwame Evans (12) and the Colonials of George Washington, despite two wins over Massachusetts and a victory over Syracuse, failed to make the tournament.

PAUL BILODEAU / COLLEGIAN

St. Joseph's finished off the season strong, but failed to get into the NCAA Tournament. Shown is senior Bernard Blunt (12).

Calipari voiced his opinion about how he'd be "surprised and disappointed if St. Joe's doesn't make it".

Prior to the announcement of the seedings, ESPN analyst Dick Vitale noted that the GW's Xavier loss (88–75) on Feb 18, hurt the Colonials in a big way. Jarvis countered with the importance of the wins over Massachusetts, as well as the success of A–10 teams in the past NCAA toumeys.

"I'll tell you what, the A–10 right now is the biggest thing going for us. Commissioner Linda Bruno has been singing praise all week," Jarvis said. The pull of the A–10 Conference record in the tournament failed to help. Massachusetts is a No. 2 seed rather than one, and George Washington is not in the NCAA Tournament.

Congratulations!
UMass Basketball
Atlantic-10 Season
1995
Quadrepeat® Champions
Compliments of Howard C. Fritz
Licensing opportunities available.
(203) 322-4870

UMass Basketball and Kaplan... Prepared to be the best!
GOOD LUCK!
great scores...
LSAT
LSAT
LSAT
LSAT
great skills...
Kaplan helps you focus your test prep studies and build your confidence, so you can get a higher score.
Call: 1-800-KAP-TEST
get a higher score
KAPLAN

Collegian Classifieds

They Work!

...and they're cheap too!

HELP WANTED
Now hiring part-time students. Great pay, great jobs.
Call xxxxxx

RIDE WANTED
Going to Boston? Me to. Gas $ if you take me!. Call xxxxxx

PERSONALS
Snookums - you are the love of my life. Happy Day.

FOR SALE
HELP! I'm broke and need to sell my bike . $150 call now!
xxxxxx

10¢ Per Word

Tuesdays & Thursdays

On The Campus Center Concourse

How far can UMass go in the tournament?
The Minutemen discuss their prospects and how they'll try to prevent a repeat early exit from the NCAA Tournament (See Sports, page 12).

Everything's coming up Gump: An inside look at the Academy Awards
From Best Picture to Best Song, the Collegian takes its annual peek at the Academy Awards, including our predictions on who will — and should — win, as well as the scoop on Oscar fashion and some revealing quotes from some of filmdom's biggest stars on Hollywood's biggest night (See Arts & Living, page 5).

Extended Forecast
Patchy fog this a.m. and cloudy today, chance of rain and highs in the 50s. Occasional rain tonight and showers into Friday and Saturday. Highs in the 40s.

Today	Friday	Saturday
HIGH: 55 LOW: 35	HIGH: 40 LOW: 35	HIGH: 45 LOW: 30

The Massachusetts

DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CIV Issue 96 | New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 | Thursday, March 16, 1995

Schlafly, Weddington face off

EMILY REILY / COLLEGIAN
Sarah Weddington, who successfully brought Roe v. Wade before the Supreme Court, debated the right to abortion with Phyllis Schlafly before a vocal audience of 500 in the Fine Arts Center last night.

By Lisa Greenfield
Collegian Staff

Debate ignited the Fine Arts Center last night as Phyllis Schlafly and Sarah Weddington squared off over the right to have an abortion before an audience of about 500.

Sarah Weddington, best known as the successful attorney in the landmark Roe v. Wade case, opened by explaining her position in support of the right to choose an abortion.

She illustrated how difficult it has been for women to make gains and said before Roe v. Wade "women could not decide their futures."

On Jan. 1, 1973, when the Supreme Court handed down the 7 to 2 decision — which Weddington argued pro bono at the age of 26 — it was decided "there is a right to privacy that guarantees a woman the right to make her own decision about whether to continue or terminate the pregnancy."

Weddington said the Bush presidency weakened the Roe v. Wade decision, but the Clinton administration has given it a reprieve. She added that the 1996 election will be important.

Phyllis Schlafly, a prominent political conservative listed in the World Almanac as one the of the 25 most influentisl women in this country, began her opening statement arguing against the right to abortion.

She opened with a quote from President Bill Clinton saying he hoped abortion would be "safe, legal and rare."

Schlafly said other constitutional rights, such as free speech and freedom of religion, are not spoken of in hopes of being "safe, legal and rare." She says Clinton says he hopes abortion is rare because she thinks "in his heart he knows that abortion is wrong. And people know that it is a shameful thing to do."

Roe v. Wade, she said, was "the worst decision in the history of the U.S. Supreme Court, [that] legalized the killing of the unborn baby throughout the nine months of pregnancy."

Schlafly said lawyers decided to invent the right to choose an abortion and justified it with false rationalizations, such as the concept of trimesters. She said it is a moral injustice to define any human being as the property of another, and that Roe v. Wade does just that.

Schlafly identified the abortion debate as being "not about when life begins, but when life ends."

Responding to Schlafly's graphic description of a late-term abortion, Weddington referred to the back-room deaths of many women before abortion was made legal and medical restrictions were enforced.

In response to Schlafly's account of the wonders of ultrasound, Weddington agreed it is wonderful for a woman who wishes to to carry a child to term, but for a woman who doesn't want a child it is her choice to make and not someone else's choice.

Weddington criticized the anti-abortion movement as people standing in the way of others' rights.

Schlafly said Roe v. Wade is so controversial because it allows the "killing of a million and a half unborn babies every year" which is why people stand up and try to "stop this senseless killing."

As the night went on, Schlafly was heckled and booed by some of the attendees. Each speaker was interrupted during certain points by cheering of supporters.

In closing remarks Schlafly stressed the need for "personal responsibility." She repeated that "the government did not make you pregnant," and said it is not the government's responsibility to bring people out of poverty.

Weddington countered by saying the government does have the responsibility to help those in need, such as seniors and children. She stressed the need to take care of the children in this country and not force women to have more children for which no one will provide.

One dead, another sick from meningitis

By Jessica Taverna
Collegian Staff

AMHERST — An Amherst College student died Tuesday night of bacterial meningitis, and another student has been diagnosed with the same form of the contagious disease.

Nishtha Adhvaryu, 20, of Highland Park, Ill., was taken to Cooley-Dickinson Hospital in Northampton on Monday. She was then transported to the University of Massachusetts Medical Center in Worcester where she died, according to Terry Allen, spokesperson for Amherst College.

Adhvaryu was an anthropology major and a member of the rugby team.

The Daily Hampshire Gazette reported first-year student Sarah Fabian, also diagnosed with the infection, is being treated at Cooley-Dickinson and has improved since her admission Monday.

Amherst College did not identify Fabian, but she was named in bulletins sent to staff and students.

No other cases have been reported at any other area colleges, according to Karin Sherbin, spokesperson for the University. The disease is spread only by very close contact.

Meningitis is an inflammation of the lining of the brain and spinal cord. Meningococcal meningitis is a type of bacterial meningitis which can be fatal if not treated quickly, Sherbin said.

Symptoms are similar to that of the flu — a fever, chills, lethargy, nausea and vomiting, a rash, severe headaches and neck pain and stiffness, according to public health officials. One in seven cases are fatal.

The director of Amherst College's Health Services said that the two women were so lethargic they could hardly move, according to Allen.

The disease infects through contact with saliva. The bacteria can only live outside of the body for a few minutes. It can be passed along by sharing utensils, water bottles or smoking materials, kissing or being exposed to the coughing or sneezing of an infected person.

Amherst officials have not yet determined the source of the outbreak. The two infected students did not share the same dormitory or any classes.

Meningococcal meningitis treatment requires early recognition. Anyone who suspects that they have symptoms of the disease are encouraged to seek medical diagnosis immediately. Amherst College Health Services has oral vaccines available to anyone seeking preventive treatment.

Budget cuts nearing passage in the House

By Alan Fram
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Republican leaders quelled an uprising over abortion Wednesday and muscled $17 billion in cuts in housing aid, school improvements and other programs toward House passage.

By a near party-line 242-190 vote, the package cleared a procedural hurdle and began a testy journey toward likely passage Thursday. The Senate is expected to produce its own collection of spending slashes soon.

The measure marks the Republican majority's initial attempt to push cuts through the House that would begin fulfilling their "Contract With America" pledge to eliminate the federal deficit. The reductions would be in funds already enacted into law and would be the biggest such package ever approved.

The debate was peppered with moans from lawmakers of both parties over the measure's cuts in job training and other initiatives. In one vote, $206 million cut from popular veterans' programs was restored and the

Turn to BUDGET, page 3

Poets share readings about their heritage

By Michael Davis
Collegian Correspondent

Two University of Massachusetts students read from their poetry on Wednesday night at the Augusta Savage Gallery in the New Africa House.

Chris Kahon:wes Deere and Alex Sherker presented poems about their friendships, their identities and their connectedness with their respective Mohawk and Cherokee peoples.

The first speaker began his poetized tales, dreams and reflections by announcing his Mohawk name, Kahon:wes. The first poem was about how "Life is special, because of the things we can do.../Death is special, because it allows us to remember people..."

He then spoke about the Montreal reservation where he grew up. The poem relayed the strength of his people in facing the "squeeze" placed on them by those who "poisoned [their] water, air and minds."

Deere introduced a poem about the Great White Pine as "related to me being a Mohawk." It reflected a tree of which every "person is just a piece," and "the [rest of the] pine represents everything else." The poem was about the persistence of his people: "Warm, winding branches.../Worn and old, but not weak at all.../Reaching out to the young people."

In reflection, Deere told the audience that stories in his community are important for "learning the ways of our people."

In speaking of his experiences at the University, he mentioned that people had questioned his "authenticity" as an "Indian" who wears dungarees or sneakers. He humorously added that after awhile, moccasins can hurt one's feet.

Turn to POEMS, page 3

Speaker traces GLB history

Slides detail past from ancient Greeks to present

By Wendy Darling
Collegian Staff

Stressing the need for gays, lesbians and bisexuals to understand their own history, Warren J. Blumenfeld presented a slide show and lecture Tuesday night in the University of Massachusetts at Amherst Campus Center.

"Recovering the Past: Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual History" chronicled the history of gays, lesbians, and bisexuals in the United States and Europe. Beginning with the ancient Greeks and moving up to today's Queer Nation, Blumenfeld offered a visual and narrative history of GLB movements and identities.

Blumenfeld is an educator, author, editor and activist. He is co-author of Looking at Gay and Lesbian Life, which served as the basis for much of the lecture. He is currently a doctoral student in the UMass Social Justice Education Program and editor of The Journal of Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Identity.

His presentation was sponsored by the UMass Program for Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Concerns.

"Hidden from history"

On the historical front, Blumenfeld cited many examples of GLB groups and individuals who have been "hidden from history." In ancient Greek society, for instance, any man under the age of 19 was expected to have an older male lover. This relationship was considered a crucial part of the young man's maturation process and success later on in life.

Centuries later, when the ideological tide had shifted, governments across Europe and the United States passed laws and carried out policies that were specifically designed to root out homosexuality, Blumenfeld said.

In 1624, Richard Cornish became the first man in North America to be executed for homosexual acts. Punished in the British colony of Virginia, Cornish was a ship's master who was convicted for having a sexual affair with one of his stewards.

Thomas Jefferson proposed that laws against homosexuality be made more lenient. Instead of execution, gay men would face castration. Jefferson suggested that lesbians would have holes "of not less than one half inch" bored in their noses.

Blumenfeld named several historical figures who may have been gay, lesbian or bisexual. American poet Walt Whitman, for example, wrote poems that contained such blatant homoeroticism that they were banned from the Harvard University library.

He also offered Eleanor Roosevelt, Virginia Woolf, Vita Sackville-West, Gertrude Stein and James Baldwin as other notable GLB individuals.

Psychologists and homosexuality

Blumenfeld used the slide presentation to chronicle the study of homosexuality and bisexuality in psychology. He presented theories that arose in the mid-19th century in Germany, England and the United States, beginning with Karl Heinrich Ulrich. Called by many the "grandfather of gay liberation," Ulrich proposed the first scientific treatments of homosexuality in the 1860s.

Kari Maria Benkert coined the term "homosexual" in 1869 to describe same-sex sexual activity and love. After this time, European and

Turn to SPEAKER, page 3

PAUL BILODEAU / COLLEGIAN

Haigis Hoopla warm-up
The return of spring weather meant the return of shorts and hoop games at the Southwest Horseshoe this week.

■ tourney

continued from page12

staff and practice hard, then go out there and play hard. I think we can go all the way."

Notes: Roe was named to the Associated Press's Second Team All-America on Tuesday. Joe Smith, Ed O'Bannon, Jerry Stackhouse, Damon Stoudamire and Shawn Respert were all named to the first team, while Rasheed Wallace, Randolph Childress, Kerry Kittles and Corliss Williamson joined Roe on the second. Camby was also chosen as an honorable mention ...

Stoudamire, previously suspended by the NCAA, has been reinstated ... If Roe grabs nine rebounds in tomorrow's game, he will surpass Julius Erving (1049) to become the all-time leading scorer in Massachusetts history.

Correction

In yesterday's story on the equestrian team, the coaching staff was incorrectly identified. Wendy Cicciu is the coach and Julie Watson is the coaching volunteer. The Collegian regrets the error.

Select team includes three UM forwards

Three University of Massachusetts hockey players have been chosen to a USA Select Team that will play in a three-team exhibition with Canada and Germany beginning tomorrow in British Columbia.

Sophomore forwards Rob Bonneau and Sal Manganaro and freshman forward Dean Campanale were selected to play in the British Columbia Tour, which runs from Friday to Monday, March 27.

"I'm happy our three guys were selected," UMass coach Joe Mallen said. "It's great public relations."

The team will play five games against Canada and one versus Germany. The 20-man roster will be coached by Boston College's Jerry York and Michigan Tech's Bob Mancini, who will be assisted by Union College's Bruce Delventhal.

The roster is made up entirely of U.S. college players, including four who played against UMass: defensemen Beau Bilek of Air Force and Paul Croteau of Bowdoin College and forwards Chris Ford of Union and Tim Harberts of Notre Dame.

New Hampshire forward Tom Nolan was selected but cannot play due to an injury. He was the only other Hockey East player on the original roster besides the three Minutemen.

Bonneau led UMass in scoring for the second consecutive season with 14 goals and 12 assists (26 points). Manganaro added 11-9-20, Campanale 4-5-9.

—TED KOTTLER

■ lacrosse

continued from page 12

we haven't had a defenseman that can cover him. It's really been a great surprise and a great help," Cannella said. Maybe this is his time. He's really stepping forward."

"He's the type of player who is a smart player. He is the type of player who is a smart player. He is real crafty and has deceptive speed. The key for him is that he's stepped up and worked harder in practice."

The offensive midfield has historically been important to the Massachusetts offense. The 1995 season will likely be no different. Despite the loss of Greg Kline, the Gorillas return one of the most talented offensive midfields in the nation.

Junior co-captain Buddy Hoffman had 18 goals in 1994, while the tandem of Eric Bailey (18 goals) and Eric Triolo (12 goals) combined for 30. The trio accounted for over a quarter of all of UMass' goals last season.

The Gorilla offense will have to play well if they have any chance of matching the high-powered offense of Virginia in their season opener on Sunday.

■ tennis

continued from page 12

spring for the very young squad, it appears that its record and season on paper may not be a success. However, this tough schedule for the team could turn out to be beneficial for the next few years.

"I may have overestimated our ability to play at this level right now," Dixon said. "The reason was that I wanted to do this when these kids were freshmen so by the time they are juniors, they are really used to playing at this level."

The team looks to bolster its attack with two new recruits next fall to carry them over the next few years and potentially into the spotlight.

"People are very respectful for our program that has been put together in two years, and it is really complimentary of the women — so I'm hopeful," Dixon said.

NIT bound

COLLEGIAN FILE

The University of Massachusetts women's basketball team will take on Virginia Commonwealth next week in the Women's National Invitational Tournament.

tonight...

1/2 PRICE APPETIZERS 9:30-11:00

St. Patrick's Day pre-party
Irish Music by TOO BAD BOLLUCKS

Rolling Rock
Pitchers 4.75
12oz Bottles 1.75

fun food • eats

THE PUB

MUSIC BY D.J. PETE FREE

Smoking Section 10-1

15 east pleasant street
amherst

GOTTA PLAY
GOTTA PLAY IT SAFE
DON'T DRINK & DRIVE

UMass
Have a great spring break on us!!

Play it safe! Don't Drink & Drive!!

Free stuff from your Peer Health Educators

Sponsored by UHS Health Ed. & Governor's Highway Safety Council, Safe Roads

Campus Center Concourse
March 15th & 16th
9:30 am to 3:00 pm

Legal Internships Available!!

The UMass Student Legal Services Office is now accepting applications for legal assistant internships next fall at the SLSO at UMass. Interns work directly with clients and attorneys, and gain valuable, practical experience in a law office. No prior experience is necessary; All UMass/Amherst students are encouraged to apply. For more information, and for an application, contact the SLSO today!

APPLICATION DEADLINE: APRIL 14, 1995

Student Legal Services Office
545-1995

Jewish Affairs needs writers!

UMass Community.

Contact Jacob W. Michaels

113 Campus Center

545-2400

■ poems

continued from page 1

Sherker introduced himself as a sculptor and visual artist, and he mentioned the problems of being categorized as an ethnic artist. Through his poem "Real Injun," Sherker, who resonated the experiences that Deere had mentioned, spoke of how students have projected their ideas that he should be different in order to fit their image of an "authentic Indian."

Two other points of commonality between the two speakers were about the subjects of animals and language. Sherker presented poetry which reflected both of their peoples' views of animals as "equals" and "cousins."

Sherker then read some of his poets in both Cherokee and English, telling the listeners that "different languages have different thought processes." In addition, he said he had "a responsibility to my people to keep our language alive."

The variety of poems he read and topics he spoke about ranged from a reflection on an overheard conversation between children on a bus to the references to another poet, Charles Bukowski.

In concluding, Sherker mentioned fundamental similarities and differences between his people and non-Native people.

"We are real people," Sherker said as a lead-in to his final poem, "and we have feelings, same as everyone else."

"In my language / There is no name for freedom / Why need words / To name a basic truth?"

■ budget

continued from page 1

money instead chopped from President Clinton's community service program.

There were stinging partisan broadsides as well.

"Morally wrong" and "mean-spirited," Minority Leader Richard Gephardt (D-Mo.), said of the reductions in programs to the poor.

"The same old Chicken Little-ism, the sky is falling, liberals are out of power and what are we going to do, beat our chests and talk about the poor and elderly," was how House Appropriations Committee Chairman Bob Livingston (R-La.), described Democratic arguments.

The stakes were huge for Republicans. They were out to prove that having promised to balance the budget by the year 2002, which will take $1 trillion in spending slashes over seven years, they could deliver a far smaller package. They also needed to rally from this month's Senate defeat of the balanced-budget amendment.

"The thorny question still remains: will Congress ever cut federal spending?" said Livingston. "Even if we don't change the Constitution, there's still only one avenue open to us. It's the old-fashioned way. It's simply to sit down and get the job done and take the first step."

But that wasn't good enough for Democrats, who knew that the measure contained cuts in national service, technological research and some of Clinton's favorite programs.

They also pointed to reductions for public housing, summer youth jobs, education and food aid for women and children and accused the GOP of picking on the most vulnerable Americans.

"I don't call those tough choices," said Rep. Ronald Coleman (D-Texas). "I call that kind of a chicken way out."

■ speaker

continued from page1

American psychologists began detailed psychological studies of homosexuality and bisexuality.

Blumenfeld referred to his own experience, telling the audience that his parents sent him to a psychotherapist for eight years because he was gay. Blumenfeld said that most of the sessions involved building model planes or playing with cars and trucks, activities intended to make him more "manly."

GLB politics in the 20th century

Blumenfeld also covered the rise and fall of GLB political organizations in the late 19th and early 20th centuries. The Scientific Humanitarian Committee was founded in Germany in 1897 to fight sodomy laws, increase public awareness of homosexuality, and create unity and understanding among gays and lesbians.

In the United States, the Mattachine Society and the Daughters of Bilitis formed in the 1950s to fulfill similar goals.

After the Stonewall Riots in 1969, the Gay Liberation Front, Gay Activist Alliance and other organizations began to fight for GLB rights and awareness in a more active, public manner. They organized marches, rallied against anti- gay legislation, and worked to increase GLB visibility in the media.

The coming of AIDS in the early 1980s had a dramatic effect on the GLB political movement, Blumenfeld said. Because the majority of early victims were gay and bisexual men, GLB organizations found themselves dealing with a torrent of homophobia that had previously been kept more or less under wraps.

In addition, many groups found their leadership and members decimated by a disease the government and mainstream media refused to acknowledge, said Blumenfeld.

Queer Nation and ACT-UP emerged at the end of the 1980's as in-your-face, radical action groups aimed toward making Americans face AIDS and GLB people.

FYI

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Thursday, March 16

Resistance Against "Contract with America" — Panel discussion and teach-in about the Contract with America. Panel will include professors, students and community activists. UMass Campus Center room 162-175, 7 p.m. Organized by the Day of Action Coalition, a group of student and community organizations and individuals mobilizing for a March 29 Day of Action against the contract.

Meeting — The Grief Survival Group will meet to discuss "Grief at Home and School." UMass Tobin Hall in the Psychological Services Center, 6:30 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Purim Festivities — Morning service with megillah reading on Purim day 7 a.m. For those who miss the morning service, there will an additional reading at 4:45 p.m., immediately preceding the festive Purim meal which will take place at 5:30 p.m. Chabad House, 30 N. Hadley Road.

Film — Reality Bites. Smith College, Wright Hall Auditorium, 9 p.m.

Film — Broadway Danny Rose. Sponsored by the University Film Society. UMass Herter Hall, Foreign Language Resource Center, 7:30 p.m.

Film — G'schichten aus dem Wiener Wald/Tales for the Vienna Woods. A biting satire on Vienna's petite bourgeoisie in the aftermath of the collapse of the Habsburg empire. German film series on "Vienna 1900 and Beyond," co-sponsored by the Austrian Cultural Institute. Amherst College, Campus Center Theater, 4 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.

Notices

Schedules — The final exam schedule will be available beginning March 16. Copies will be delivered to students in the residence halls and will be available in the Registrar's Office.

Hunger Cleanup — There are only a few weeks left until the 11th annual Hunger Cleanup. Any group or individual interested in participating in this event please contact Missy at 546-4194 or call the MASSPIRG office at 545-0199.

SportsWeekend
Every Monday
in the Daily Collegian

CUTTY'S
FOOD AND SPIRITS

Minutemen March Madness
at Cutty's on Friday, be there for the game
St. Patrick's Day
Corned Beef andCabbage
$5.90
Michael Sheas
$2 Bottles

THE SPOKE
THE SPOKE AMHERST, MASS
VOTED BEST OF THE VALLEY BY READERS POLL 1994
A DRINKERY
TO MEET, RELAX AND ENJOY
Beer of the Month
16 OZ BUD POUNDERS
$2.00
Drink of the Week
RUM & COKE
$1.75
35 E. PLEASANT STREET

FINAL EXAM
HISTORY 154D

Two things you can't afford to miss.

Macintosh Performa® 636 w/CD
8MB RAM/250MB hard drive, CD-ROM drive, 14" color display, keyboard, mouse and all the software you're likely to need.
PAY NOTHING FOR 90 DAYS

Being a student is hard. So we have made buying a Macintosh® easy. So easy, in fact, that prices on Macintosh personal computers are now even lower than their already low student prices. And with the Apple® Computer Loan and 90-Day Deferred Payment Plan, you can take home a Mac® without having to make a single payment for up to 90 days. Which means you can also take home the power to make any student's life easier. The power to be your best.® Apple

UNIVERSITY STORE
CAMPUS CENTER
545-2619
MONDAY - FRIDAY 9AM-5 PM
SATURDAY 11AM-3PM

Stop by the University Store Computer Department for more information.

*Deferred Apple Computer Loan offer expires June 2, 1995. No payment of principal or interest will be required for 90 days. Interest accruing during this 90-day period will be added to the principal and will have interest which will be included in the repayment schedule. Monthly payment is an estimate based on a total loan amount of $1,501.55, which includes a sample purchase price of $1419 and a 6.0% loan origination fee for the Performa 636 system shown above. The monthly payment for the total loan amount described above would have been $27. The interest is variable based on the commercial paper rate plus 2.35%. For example, the month of February 1995 had an interest rate of 11.5%% with an Annual Percentage Rate (APR) of 13.52%. The monthly payment and the APR shown assume 90-day deferment of principal and interest as described above, and no other deferment of principal and does not include state sales tax. Product prices, product availability, loan amounts and sales taxes may vary. The Apple Computer Loan has an 8-year loan term with no prepayment penalty and is subject to credit approval. Prequalification expedites the loan process but does not guarantee final loan approval. © 1995 Apple Computer, Inc. All rights reserved. Apple, the apple logo, Macintosh, Macintosh Performa, PowerBook and "The power to be your best." are registered trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. Power Macintosh and Mac are trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. All Apple products are designed to be accessible to individuals with disability. To learn more (U.S. only), call 800-776-2333 or TDD 800-833-6233.

Why spend your life looking forward to living abroad when you can be looking back on it?

Why sit in a stateside classroom dreaming about Stonehenge or the Parthenon when you could see them for yourself? Don't wait until after you graduate to catch the travel bug. Instead, why not spend a semester or a year making memories that will last a lifetime? And, of course, you'll learn a thing or two as well. Ask your study abroad advisor about Beaver College programs.
Call for a free catalog today.
Study Abroad with Beaver College.
1.800.755.5607

THE OFFICE OF FOREIGN STUDENTS & SCHOLARS

IS MOVING!
our new location will be:

HILLS SOUTH FOURTH FLOOR

The office of Foreign Students & Scholars will be moving from our current location in Goodell to the fourth floor of Hills South on Monday, March 20th. WE WILL BE CLOSED FOR THE MOVE FROM MARCH 20-24 AND EXPECT TO RE-OPEN FOR BUSINESS ON MONDAY, MARCH 27 IN OUR NEW LOCATION. Preparations for the move will mean that we will be essentially unreachable by telephone until Wednesday, March 22nd (when we can be reached at our regular office telephone, 545-2843). Should there be an emergency before that time, we can be reached at 545-2710.

The remainder of the International Programs Office (Study Abroad) will not be moving at this time. The Study Abroad Office is located in the Goodell Building where it will remain until the end of the Spring 1995 semester. You can reach this office at 545-2710.

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Durienne I. Hosley Editor-in-Chief Kelly Spang Managing Editor
Michael McRae Business Manager Andrew D. Davidson Production Manager Lisa Tannenbaum Advertising Manager
James P. Ganley Advertising Production Manager Lisa Greenfield Senior Diversity Editor

Matt Audette Arts & Living Editor Paul Bilodeau Photography Editor
Chris Taylor Conner Black Affairs Editor Andrew Bryce, Matt Vautour Sports Editors
Matt Wurtzel Business Editor Jeff Wilson Staff Artist
Juan Jose Chacon Quiroz Developing Nations Editor Lisa Greenfield, Colleen Shanahan Women's Issues Editors
Tracy Monahan Editorial/Opinion Editor Marni E. Heifner Editorial Production Manager
Wendy Darling Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor John Khachadoorian Finance Manager
Jacob W. Michaels Jewish Affairs Editor Eric Abenaim Distribution Manager
Hernan Rozemberg Multicultural Affairs Editor Maureen Majerowski Senior Bookkeeper
Jessica Taverna News Editor Marty Pappas Classified Advertising

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1903, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1950. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

Notes from the Basement

The campus is a pit of mud, the ducks are travelling around ... spring has sprung in Amherst. You can almost smell it in the air, or is that just the stench by the campus pond?

A sure sign of spring is when you see lone female ducks flanked by two or more male ducks. And then, of course, there is the little duck goings-on in the bushes in the Central Residential Area.

* * *

Tracy Monahan

Was there some sort of election for student government positions recently? You certainly couldn't tell from the advertising around campus. Makes you wonder if maybe things were kept quiet to ensure that certain people would get elected. Just a thought.

It has to be noted that after the tuition and fee freeze of this year, the current SGA bigwigs have seemingly run out of gas. What exactly have they done this semester, besides fight with each other? If someone can give me a concrete answer to this question, I'd really appreciate it. From the stories I've read, they make motions, they debate and the meeting ends. Hmm ... that sounds almost like real politicians.

Oh sorry, at a recent meeting someone proposed that students should now be able to have roommates of the opposite sex.

There's a good idea. There might be some people who could handle this maturely, but for the majority it would be ridiculous.

That two-week fun period could quickly turn into hell on campus. Here are two possible results:

1. A boyfriend and girlfriend live together, they never go to class (or get out of bed) and they flunk out.

2. Even worse the couple breaks up, but yet still has to deal with each other in that oh so big space provided for dorm living. This even sounds like a potential formula for domestic violence.

Good job guys, you've shown no practicality and you've proved once again that the SGA has just enough power to get laughed at.

Student Vote! Let me get this straight. They want me to pay $5 on my tuition bill because my fellow classmates are too stupid to register to vote? I know it's a waivable fee (sneaky, get the freshmen before they wise up), but you can bet your ass if I was coming back next year I'd waive it.

I registered when I turned 18 and I didn't need a special RSO to tell me to do it. In the past four years, every time they have someone by the Student Union mini store yelling at people to register, students go out of their way to avoid it.

* * *

The latest edition of The Minutemen has come out. What would I do without it? Well, for starters, I wouldn't be able to paper train my new puppy and I certainly wouldn't have anything to wrap my valuables for storage. The Collegian was jeered for using the paper "as a propaganda piece for the radical homosexuals on this campus." Sorry, we'll try and do a better job. People down here haven't stopped weeping since the issue came out. Hopefully we'll all be able to pick up the shattered pieces of our lives and go on.

* * *Now here with a special report on food services — Andrew Davidson,- Notes correspondent.

Thank you, Tracy.

I am thoroughly displeased with the Campus Center food service.

Now I don't have a problem with paying $1.25 for french fries, nor am I above eating cold ones. But to pay such a high price for food of such low quality is outrageous. Stop and Shop charges 35 cents for a medium-sized potato, which could yield approximately one order of large Hatch fries (assuming they use fresh potatoes, which I'm sure they don't). So where does the other 90 cents go?

It can't go to unused inventory, because they obviously don't rotate their stock so that we always have fresh, hot french fries. And a 257 percent markup can't be going to marketing, as I have yet to see an advertisement for Hatch fries.

This is an outrage. French fries, despite the name, are a staple of American cuisine. To charge such a high price for a staple of such low quality is nothing short of extortion.

I urge you, the student body of UMass, to join me in refusing to purchase or eat Hatch and Coffee Shop french fries until they lower the price or improve the quality.

Boycott Hatch and Coffee shop french fries!

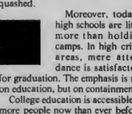
Back to you, Tracy.

Tracy Monahan is a Collegian columnist and Andrew Davidson is just a clown who doesn't like Hatch fries.

The backlash against stupidity

A western Massachusetts teenager recently passed around a petition at school. It did not call for longer lunch hours or more time in gym. The petition called for greater discipline in schools, more structure and more challenging education. It also called for more math and science courses. Half of the class signed the document.

The backlash against stupidity in America has begun.



Peter Orvetti

A few years ago, Americans were attacked for being lazy and uneducated. Whipped into a nationalistic fervor, we denounced our critics. We never paused to consider whether they were right.

The American economic system, being short of jobs, has forced an unnatural extension of adolescence. We first stayed in school until age 16, then 18, 22 and now, 24. At the same time, education standards have been declining. This extra time has been idle time for our minds. The extension of adolescence has led to brain fermentation. By the time we finally finish what is ostensibly our education, our minds are addled, tired, and weak.

Consider: By the time he was 19, Thomas Jefferson was the top attorney in Virginia, having entered the College of William and Mary at age 13. Today, students stumble into the intellectual vacuum called high school at 13. They move on to college at 18, because of necessity, not love of learning, and do not even consider full employment until 22.

More school has not meant more education. Who actually learns anything in high school? High schools make a joke of academics. On the whole, unprepared teachers feed rote phrases to uninterested students. Many teachers are acting out petty power trips and resent their students. Students who excel make work for them, so mediocrity is rewarded while creativity is quashed.

Moreover, today's high schools are little more than holding camps. In high crime areas, mere attendance is satisfactory for graduation. The emphasis is not on education, but on containment.

College education is accessible to more people now than ever before. But what constitutes a college experience? Leisurely evenings at the library, perusing volumes that one was inspired to read by the morning's English lecture, are rare. Most college students hang around playing video games, gulping beer and going into town for a pizza.

There is one truth hidden in Republican efforts to eliminate public broadcasting: Most Americans never use it. Few of us prefer a documentary on the Civil rights movement or an episode of "Nova" to a "Full House" re-run. Most people have never even heard of NPR.

The stupidity trend at the movie theater is also a reflection of today's culture. Billy Madison and The Jerky Boys may seem unbelievably inane, but audiences walked out of Last Action Hero last year because they were annoyed by the several references to Shakespeare. Our popular culture reflects ourselves and we are becoming "dumb and dumber."

So now, even junior high school students are fed up. These students are demanding an end to the complacency that has allowed their right to an education to deteriorate. They are brain-starved. They want Hamlet and Hawking, Plato and PBS, to be a part of their lives.

The first step is to rebuild education. Teaching should not be a profession for people to fall back on. High school teaching should require a doctorate and pay a competitive professional salary. Being a teacher should be societally equal to being a doctor or a lawyer: a prestigious post that commands deserved respect.

In the meantime, the initiative rests with the individual. Like the students, we must demand education. First, we must demand it of ourselves. Use libraries, art galleries and the like. Next, we must demand it of our government. PBS and NPR, which cost each of us $1.10 per year, are on death row. The former secretary of education, now a presidential candidate, favors abolishing the department. Many members of Congress agree.

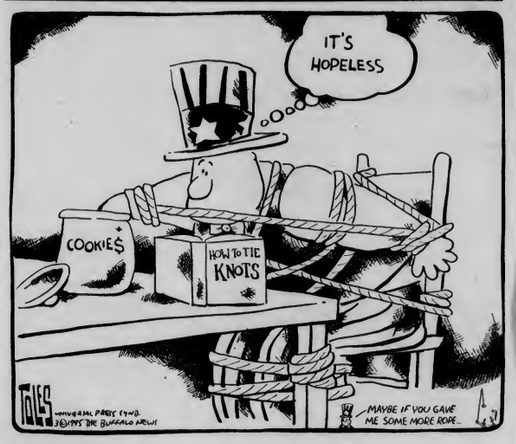
The choice is yours: Either stand up for education, or settle in behind the warm glow of the TV. But if you choose the latter, the next time someone calls you stupid, you will have no right being offended.

Peter Orvetti is a Collegian columnist.

Doonesbury By Garry Trudeau

OKAY, SO I FLY DOWN TO FLORIDA TO SEE FOR MYSELF THESE "PATIENTS" WITH TOBACCO-RELATED ILLNESSES!
THIS PATIENT HAS EMPHYSEMA. EACH DAY HE'S IN THE HOSPITAL COSTS THE STATE $700. THAT'S WHY WE'RE SUING.
...CLAIMED THE ATTENDING DOCTOR!
LATER, I HAVE A DARK NIGHT OF THE SOUL...
I TAKE A LONG WALK...
I AGONIZE...
...I GET OVER IT!
HECK, I'M IN FLORIDA!

Opinion/Editorial



An old issue with a new twist

Adam Scott Roberts

"He's got a great ass." Women have been making such statements to their girlfriends and when they do, they often find it humorous. Is it a statement of a woman's fine appreciation for the male physique?

"He has the best body, just look at those pecs." Antonio Sabato, Michael Jordan, Brad Pitt and Ethan Hawke don the walls of girls' rooms nationwide. Lucky Vanous has become a household name among women after his stint as the Diet Coke guy. These men in addition to countless others are being objectified by women indicating that sexual politics are changing. Moreover, women who have historically been objectified by men are now turning the tables on them — but do we actually like it?

"You just put your dick in my mouth and now you have an attack of morality." Sexual harassment has long been thought to involve a powerful male dominating the submissive woman. On the other hand, cases where men are claiming they have been sexually harassed by a woman in power are increasing. Meredith Johnson, the lead character immortalized by Demi Moore in the film version of Michael Crichton's Disclosure, has broken the mold and alludes that there is a change in the power structure of who is calling the shots. With women becoming major players in the business world there is about to be a shift in the role of male-female relations in the work place.

The old school notion of a male-dominated work place is being tossed out the door as a new school emerges where women are now the corporate leaders.

"Move your anoretic little butt," and "You're looking mighty fine today," are both comments made by a woman to man. The man involved told the woman, "Hey, that's sexual harassment." To no surprise, the woman laughed and tried to brush it off as such until the man made the point, "If I made this comment to a female worker, I would be fired immediately for sexual harassment." It is comments such as these that further allow for the objectification of men and gender stratification.

"The Jenny Craig Eight." Eight former male employees of various Boston area Jenny Craig Weight-loss Centers claim they were singled out for abuse because they were men. Comments such as "Nice right buns," and other forms of harassment involving lewd comments that seemed inappropriate were made. For example, when one man was in a bad mood his female co-worker said, "You must be having your period ... Go take a Fem-Cycle."

The plaintiffs all contend that they quit or were fired because of discrimination. The men claim the alleged harassment at Jenny Craig was actually part of a much bigger problem: "an unwillingness at the female-dominated company to let men flourish."

In a variety of complaints filed over the past several years with the state anti-discrimination agency and in court, the men say they were denied promotions, given inferior assignments, were publicly humiliated and were forced to perform menial tasks all because of their gender.

Men and women both toss phrases and comments around way too lightly, and in the work place and other areas that minimize the issue of sexual harassment is something that must be more concrete.

"You've been summoned by your new boss to a confidential late night meeting. But before you can catch your breath an unwanted sexual advance has put you in the most compromising of positions. Now it's gonna be your word ... against hers." The bottom line is that this is an old issue with a new twist.

Adam Scott Roberts is a Collegian columnist.

The joys of springtime

Andrew Bryce

Let's do the sprang thang. Ahhh yeah.

The annoying frigidness of the winter season has seemingly vanished, and the spring season has snuck up on us. There my bad self was, still arguing with the restless wind circulating the UMass campus a few days ago, but now I am back to wearing shorts, bitching at the heat.

Something about the spring ... it's hard for me to describe. I left it to some of my friends who have attempted to be lyrical poets about the season.

While studying the other night, I was sitting with a friend talking about the spring. I asked what spring meant to her, and she said, "I sing when it's spring. The other day, I started to sing to myself, and ..." Okay, I get the picture.

When I think spring, I think of the campus as being more alive than ever before. The population of the school triples once the sun hits the campus grounds. Women come out of the woodwork. People lounge around, whether its on the grass or the cement, soaking up the gorgeous weather. Frisbees are aflutter, and hoop games are being played at the Horseshoe.

I asked my roommate what he thought about it.

"There is a smell in the air," my roommate dared to say. "A springy smell. Do you know what I mean?"

Kind of.

Anyway, sweat comes to mind when the spring hits, since it occasionally drips off my face in the heat. Phunky phresh sunglasses are worn by many. Tank tops are everywhere. Navels are exposed to all, with some being beautiful to look at and others disgustingly overexposed. Feet are on display, as the sandals and hip Teva's are strapped on. Some of the feet on display can be tolerated, while others are much like the overexposed navels.

You also see those with the tans from a can, as they prepare to be ready for the real sun rays. Barbecues are a favorite for some, complete with the barrels. Skipping classes is another choice thing to do, since it's too nice to be cooped up inside a class actually learning something here at college.

"Winters, for me, is like a relief from those falls when they're crazy hot," my roommate continues for some reason, "where you just bought winter clothes and you're sick of the summer clothes 'cuz they've been totally worn out from sweating your brains out ..." Honestly, buddy, I really don't give a rory rat's ass about your clothing selection. S-P-R-I- N-G, not summer, not fall, not winter.

"Every season has a distinct smell. The fall has a definite smell where it's warm enough to wear just a sweater, but cold enough so you can't wear shorts," my roommate continues with his thoughts on the seasons. Easy, man. All I wanted to know about was the spring.

Well, in the season that officially begins this weekend, a drive in a Jeep with the top down to show off in front of thousands on campus is common. A bunch of people sitting in lounge chairs with beers in their hand in the houses surrounding the campus is a norm. Frat row is packed with people, as some sit in couches, others on the roofs.

"Summer's just disgusting," my roommate says. "I hate the heat with a passion." Thanks, pal, but I'm talking about the spring.

The spring is a time to be able to walk to parties if no transportation is available. It is a time for the parties where a gazillion people are outside getting hammered, drinking out of black cups so that when the beer gets warm, people will drink faster to finish. And that Spring Concert we have here (two years strong, and I have unwillingly been sober both times), where people get drunk to have an excuse for rolling around in mud — a time to let everything go in the fabulous weather.

"Spring is sort of the happy medium," my roommate says rather peacefully. "It's not quite summer, not quite winter, not quite fall. I don't know, spring is basically opening the door and everything comes alive." Listen to yourself.

Then again, as corny as he may sound and as much as he went off on the tangent about the seasons, he damn well may be right.

Andrew Bryce is a Collegian columnist who feels alive because of the spring.

The Editorial/Opinion desk is drowning in letters right now. We are trying our best to print as many letters as we can before Spring Break. Any letters we receive this week will not be printed until after the break.

We are very sorry and we love hearing from you, but space is tight. When school resumes, please put pen to paper and let us know your opinions.

Any questions? Call 545-1491.

Film • Music • Theatre • Lifestyles • Books • Art
The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
ARTS & LIVING
Thursday March 16, 1995
Weekend Edition • Volume CIV Issue 96

The Nominees
• Our fearless predictions on who will win — and who should win

The Stars
• A look at Oscar fashion & loose lips on Hollywood's biggest night!

Inside the 67th Annual Academy Awards

OSCAR!

QUIZ SHOW

Four Weddings and a Funeral

PULP FICTION

Forrest Gump

THE SHAWSHANK REDEMPTION

Bullets over Broadway

IN AN UNINSPIRED YEAR, GREATNESS IS IN THE EYE OF THE BEHOLDER

By Jon Lupo
Collegian Staff

GOING TO WIN: Forrest Gump

SHOULD WIN: None

Best Picture

This year, Gump will happen. Unfortunately.

In a recent issue of the New Yorker, critic Anthony Lane pointed out that what America needs isn't great movies but good ones. Solid genre and cross-genre films — romantic comedies, thrillers, melodramas — that aren't filled with tired cliches but nevertheless offer a reassuringly good time. Then, when a truly great film comes along, it will earn the status of being great instead of receiving it by default.

In this decidedly less-than-stellar year, the choices for Best Picture nominees both reflect this currently casual category of "greatness" and serve to highlight how unworthy all five are of a nomination, let alone a win. Now don't get me wrong, I'm not saying any of these films are bad in any way — each of these films have something positive and worthwhile going for them — but how these movies attain the tag of "greatness" when in fact, they're either just pretty good (Four Weddings and a Funeral, Quiz Show, The Shawshank Redemption) or near-reprehensibly problematic (Forrest Gump, Pulp Fiction).

In looking at the nominees, you'd be hard-pressed to find another year when all five films were so curiously lacking in a quality related to the word "best." Each film has something to offer, but none is worthy of being named the best film of 1994. It's fairly easy to explain why Four Weddings and a Funeral, Quiz Show and The Shawshank Redemption don't deserve to win (they're fine films, but that's all they are). However, it's harder to explain to moviegoers why two of this year's biggest films — Forrest Gump and Pulp Fiction — are unworthy. Let's take them one by one:

Forrest Gump: Anyone who knows or reads my reviews knows I have a cold place in my heart reserved for this movie, right next to the one occupied by Natural Born Killers. But the truth is, Gump isn't a hideous movie; it's assuredly well-made and filled with generally sympathetic (if entirely one-note) performances.

But what's wrong is the film's dark political streak (the counterculture of the '60s was just a bunch of poseurs) and how it endorses a rigidly conservative national identity. (Gump has no free will — the film

Turn to OSCARS, page 6

Collegian Art By Jeff Wilson • Layout & Design by Andrew Davidson & Jon Lupo

Oscars

Arts & Living Cover story, continued from page 5

endorses a notion of doing whatever an authority figure tells you and you'll be rewarded with nothing less than the American dream.)

Furthermore, there's its treatment of Jenny — who's subject to every social ill of the last 30 years, including sexual and drug abuse, and culminating in her death from nothing less than AIDS, which points to her activism and liberalism as cause. If only she'd listened to Gump to begin with...

In the end, the fact that Forrest Gump was so universally popular is a tribute to director Robert Zemeckis' potent myth–making (it's the same myth, I suspect, that elected Reagan, but that's another issue altogether). It's a myth that will be endorsed again by Hollywood on Oscar night, eager to lionize Gump as a shining icon for our times. Which, when you think about it, is pretty darn sad.

Pulp Fiction: Now here's where I'm supposed to dis Gump as slack Hollywood fluff while simultaneously praising Fiction as some sort of scruffy masterpiece. A closer look, however, reveals that Fiction is as, if not more, problematic than Gump.

There are throngs of adolescent cinephiles (and some college ones I know as well — the kind who will try to tell you how wicked awesome the dopey film version of Pink Floyd's The Wall is, "even if you're not stoned!") — who are eager to claim Fiction as the red–hot, cool film of the decade. In reality, the film is not nearly as witty, clever or daring as it (and others) think it is.

There's plenty of great pulp here — the film does reach levels of verbal and visceral electricity not seen in American cinema in quite a while — but it's also a bit tedious and more than a bit familiar. In between the heapings of irony and dead–on genre satire, there's something truly uneasy about how much of the racist and homophobic ideology is being passed off as glib shtick. (It may only be a joke, but his jokes aren't told in a pop cultural vacuum.)

It's time then, I think, to look at Fiction less with starry eyes toward the film as trouble–free, hip entertainment and instead as a film more concerned with recycling pop culture — working its last nerve, as it were — than truly challenging the conventions (both filmic and otherwise) it tries so coolly to subvert.

Now that I've alienated just about everyone at both ends of the spectrum, it may be worth mentioning the films I thought were better. Movies like Heavenly Creatures, White, Vanya on 42nd Street, Bullets Over Broadway, The Last Seduction and Spanking the Monkey were combinations of dazzling and sometimes somber entertainment with smarts to spare.

Yet it's Hoop Dreams that emerges as the best film of the year — vastly moving, intriguingly constructed (it has more to say about the prickliness of narrative presumptions than Fiction even dares) and filled with the kind of movie (and life) moments that rarely flicker on the American screen.

One of the few genuine experiences you'll ever have at the movies, it's no surprise then that the Academy has chosen to ignore Hoop Dreams — the truly best picture of the year. On Oscar night, it will be business as usual.

David Letterman hosts the 67th Annual Academy Awards, which are set to air on Monday, March 27 at 9 p.m. E.S.T. on BC.

Bullets diva may earn Wiest Academy approval

By Michael Pessah
Collegian Staff

GOING TO WIN:
Dianne Wiest, Bullets Over Broadway

SHOULD WIN:
Dianne Wiest, Bullets Over Broadway

Dianne Wiest, seen here in Cops and Robbersons, is a favorite for her role in Bullets Over Broadway.

COURTESY SIDNEY BALDWIN / TRI-STAR PICTURES

It is always the Best Supporting Actress category that gets all the interesting roles. Though Hollywood usually throws the cliched, melodramatic roles to the starring actress, they are often upstaged by quirkier, more unconventional supporting turns. Though this year's nominations for Best Supporting Actress aren't exactly groundbreaking, they are vastly more interesting than the nominations for leading actress.

Best Supporting Actress

Rosemary Harris is the category's most conservative nomination. She gives a reserved, moving performance as T.S. Eliot's mother–in–law, Rose. She provides the moral center of Tom & Viv and provides a key counterpoint to Miranda Richardson's manic portrayal of her daughter. Her chances are slim at best for an Oscar. Her last film released in the United States was Crossing Delancey (1988), she is relatively unknown, and Tom & Viv was an underwhelming, under–seen film. But isn't that what they said about Brenda Fricker in My Left Foot?

In her brief screentime in The Madness of King George, Helen Mirren distinguishes herself from the other talented Thespians in the cast. Her turn as Charlotte, the compassionate, protective wife of the ailing King George, helped to remind us of George's humanity amidst all of the political machinations around him.

Her role, however, is too peripheral and short to win Best Supporting actress. When the Academy says "Best Supporting Actress," they mean "Best Non–Lead Actress." Additionally, Mirren's roles in the salty and controversial Caligula and The Cook, the Thief, His Wife, & Her Lover could scare members of the Academy off.

On the other end of the Hollywood spectrum is Uma Thurman, currently the hottest new "A" list actress. After appearing in a string of lukewarm films (Henry & June, Jennifer Eight, and Mad Dog and Glory) she has finally been cast in a hit.

As Mia, the beautiful wife of a gangster, she saunters around Pulp Fiction trying to seduce an older, wiser John Travolta. In Fiction she does little outside of flirting and blowing coke until she accidentally sends herself into a coma. All this is accomplished effectively but the Academy appreciates emotional depth, not physical astuteness. The character of Mia falls short here. Additionally, the heart– stopping and needle–popping nature of her role could once again scare off some of the more conservative Academy voters.

Jennifer Tilly is the big surprise nomination in this category. She has made a career portraying big–busted, light–headed women. Though endearing (especially in Let It Ride and The Fabulous Baker Boys), one wouldn't expect her to get a Oscar nod when she plays a big–busted, light–headed actress in Bullets Over Broadway.

Her portrayal of Olive verges on the edge of annoyance and she shows little character (or should I say, caricature) growth. Her chances are slim — but then again, Whoopi Goldberg did win for Ghost.

Though Dianne Wiest was also featured in Bullets Over Broadway, her odds are very different. Initially we assume that her character is merely a shallow prima donna. By the end of the film, however, Wiest breathes life into a stale characterization. Instead of reducing Helen Sinclair into a pathetic has–been, Wiest's Helen is an empowered manipulator — with impeccable comic timing to boot.

Dianne Wiest is a strong contender for an Oscar this year though she did win for Hannah and Her Sisters, and was also nominated for Parenthood. Helen Sinclair is the type of brassy but sensitive character that Academy voters love, and Wiest is a Hollywood favorite. Additional points are scored because this role is a departure for Wiest, who is not used to playing such a bold character.

Unlike the Best Actress category, all the nominees for Best Supporting Actress are good. Whether the Academy votes for Helen Mirren's discipline, Uma Thurman's physical tenacity, or Dianne Wiest's comic depths — the winner will be deserved.

Martin Landau's Lugosi makes him the top Oscar contender

By Matt Audette
Collegian Staff

GOING TO WIN:
Martin Landau, Ed Wood

SHOULD WIN:
Martin Landeau, Ed Wood
or Chazz Palminteri, Bullets Over Broadway

COURTESY SUZANNE TENNER / TOUCHSTONE PICTURES

Martin Landau (right) is nominated for his role in Ed Wood.

Throughout the years, the category for Best Supporting Actor has always been one rich in fine performances — this year being no exception. From Samuel Jackson's fire and brimstone spouting hitman to Martin Landau's comically tragic portrayal of a junk–ridden Bela Lugosi, this is one group which won't be decided by the lesser of the five evils, but rather (surprise!) the better of the five performances.

Best Supporting Actor

The mass hysteria that has surrounded Forrest Gump might account for Gary Sinise's nomination for his role as a physically challenged veteran who befriends Gump. While Sinise wasn't terrible, there is a certain sense that if Gump was not such a power in this year's nominations, his performance would have garnered some critical nods at best. It is also safe to say that the dazzling special effects that rendered Sinise legless (and left many viewers believing he actually had no legs — ?!) may have been somewhat of an accomplice in his nomination.

Riding right along side Gump in the "hype" category is Quentin Tarantino's Pulp Fiction, allowing for Samuel Jackson to pick up a nomination for his turn as a gangster on the road to redemption. Jackson's performance — like the movie — is full of conceit and indulgence, but does have a heavy dose of hip status working in his favor.

Throwing yet another kink in the predictability of the Academy's decision is Paul Scofield for his role as Charles Van Doren in Robert Redford's Quiz Show. Scofield's performance was the highlight of the much ballyhooed film, but don't count on the seasoned actor to take home the prize. Scofield is the sole acting nominee from a film supposedly full of superb performances. Though Scofield's dignity and grace make him the finest of the bunch, the smallness of his part may cause him to be forgotten in favor of a more flashy performance.

Representing the underdog nominee is Chazz Palminteri for his performance of a mobster–turned–Thespian in Woody Allen's Bullets Over Broadway. While in no way as flashy as Sinise or Jackson, Palminteri's performance was spectacular in its subtlety.

Indirectly spoofing the character he created in A Bronx Tale, Palminteri brought a sense of believability to a role that in other hands might have required a bit of imagination– stretching. Unfortunately he doesn't have the hype of the film (i.e. Gump, Fiction) or a long, Oscar–less track record (i.e. Landau) to help back him, which may cause the Academy to overlook him come selection time.

In the end it is a safe bet that Martin Landau will be accepting the statuette at the podium come Oscar night. After staging a sort of comeback in the late '80s, when he was nominated for Best Supporting Actor for his role in Tucker: The Man And His Dream, and then again the following year for Crimes And Misdemeanors, Landau certainly has the "overdue" factor working in his favor.

Landau's dead–on portrayal of Bela Lugosi was far and away the best thing in Tim Burton's Ed Wood — stealing the show right out from under Johnny Depp's feet and every scene he starred in — managing to transform what could have been a purely two–dimensional role into something comic, yet at the same time sadly poetic. If Landau's performance is honored Oscar night, it proves that sometimes the overlooked actor and the best one can indeed be one in the same.

FREE PAIR OF TICKETS TO BLACK '47 APPEARING AT PEARL ST. ON 3/23
WITH PURCHASE OF A 6-PACK OF GUINNESS OR HARP!

LIQUORS 44 BLACK
BEER WINE LIQUORS

GUINNESS STOUT 6 PACK BOTTLES	$6.49 +DEP	SANTA RITA 120 CABERNET SAUVIGNON, CHARDONNAY, MERLOT, SAUVIGNON BLANC 750 ML (WINE OF THE MONTH)	$3.99
KILLIAN'S IRISH RED CASE OF 2-12 PACK BOTTLES	SALE $14.99 MAIL IN REBATE -$4.00 COST AFTER REBATE $10.99 +DEP	FRANZIA FRENCH COLUMBARD, BURGUNDY, CHABLIS, BLUSH, WHITE GRENACHE, CHENIN BLANC, RHINE 5.0 LITER BAG-IN-A-BOX	$7.49
HARP LAGER CASE OF 12-16.9 OZ. BOTTLES	$12.49 +DEP	BOLLA BARDOLINO, SANGIOVESE, SOAVE, CHARDONNAY, MERLOT, VALPOLICELLA, PINOT GRIGIO 1.5 LITER	$7.99
HEINEKEN & AMSTEL CASE OF 2-12 PACK BOTTLES	$18.99 +DEP	BERINGER WHITE ZINFANDEL 750 ML	$3.99
Budweiser CASE OF 30-12 CANS	$14.49 +DEP	RODNEY STRONG CABERNET SAUVIGNON, CHARDONNAY 750 ML	$6.49
GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY REGULAR, LIGHT, ICE 24-12 OZ. CANS	$7.49 +DEP	BALLATORE SPUMANTE 750 ML	$3.99
KALIBER NON-ALCOHOLIC 6 PACK BOTTLES	$3.99 +DEP	WALNUT CREST CHARDONNAY, CABERNET SAUVIGNON, MERLOT, SAUVIGNON BLANC 750 ML	3 for $9.99
NORTHAMPTON BREWERY PALE ALE 64 OZ. BOTTLE	$4.99 +DEP	Seagram's COOLERS ALL FLAVORS 4 PACK	$2.49 +DEP
1/2 KEGS BUD, BUD LT., ICEHOUSE, RED DOG, MICHELOB, MICHELOB DK., MICHELOB LT., LOWENBRAU, LOWENBRAU DK.	$39.99 +DEP	SMIRNOFF VODKA 1.75 LITER	$13.99
		BAILEYS IRISH CREAM & LIGHT 750 ML	$14.99
		JAMESON IRISH WHISKEY 750 ML	$13.49
		BACARDI LIGHT & DARK RUM 1.75 LITER	$13.99
		SEAGRAM'S GIN 1.75 LITER	SALE $12.49 MAIL IN REBATE -$3.00 COST AFTER REBATE $9.49
		ABSOLUT VODKA 1.75 LITER	$19.99
		ROMANA SAMBUCA 750 ML	$12.99
		J&B SCOTCH 1.75 LITER	$24.99
		BLACK VELVET CANADIAN WHISKEY 1.75 LITER	$12.99

We Accept All Cans and Bottles for Redemption

AT THE STOP & SHOP PLAZA
HADLEY Campus Plaza Route 9 253-9344
NORTHAMPTON 238 King Street 586-3007
HOLYOKE 30 Lincoln Street 534-4555

SALE PRICES THURS. 3/16/95 THRU WED. 3/22/95
NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR TYPOGRAPHICAL ERRORS

HAIGIS HOOPLA IS COMING APRIL 21-23.

REGISTER AT THE CAMPUS CENTER CONCOURSE APRIL 3-7.

NEW IN AMHERST
CHINA DYNASTY
RESTAURANT AND LOUNGE
Traditional Chinese Cuisine
Lunch and Dinner Buffet
Relax and enjoy yourself at our beautiful newly remodeled facility including our Sunny Greenhouse.
PLENTY OF FREE PARKING
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK • 11:30 AM - 10 PM
FRIDAYS & SATURDAY TILL 11 PM
351 Northampton Rd. • Rte. 9 • Amherst
Corner of Rte. 9 & University Drive • 256-8800

With few solid roles this year, Best Actress is none of the above

By Michael Pessah
Collegian Staff

GOING TO WIN:
Susan Sarandon, The Client
or Jessica Lange, Blue Sky

SHOULD WIN:
None

Since Hollywood rarely has the tenacity to produce films with roles for strong, complex female leads, the Best Actress category is often to reduced to a contest of "Best Leading Lady." These days, most of the quirky, unusual roles for women are reserved for supporting roles.

The aforementioned phenomenon makes for slim pickings, especially in this lackluster year. If 1991 was "Year of the Woman" then 1994 was "Year of the Housewife." This season there is no Silence of the Lambs or Thelma & Louise to rescue the Hollywood actresses from the plight of the dysfunctional family.

COURTESY JOSEPH LEDUKE / COLUMBIA PICTURES

Winona Ryder's turn as Jo in Little Women earned her a place with the five Best Actress nominees.

Jessica Lange may have the opportunity to place another Oscar in the corner of her kitchen with her portrayal of the tortured housewife in Blue Sky. Though she has already won a Best Supporting Actress for her role in Tootsie, she has had four nominations since then and been passed up for Francis (1982), Country (1982), Sweet Dreams (1985) and Music Box (1989). Luck may be on her side Oscar night.

Her role is certainly the type of melodrama that the Academy adores. In Blue Sky, Lange plays a lascivious and mentally unsound housewife who is married to a nuclear safety inspector. By the end of Blue Sky, she will have cheated on her husband (in front of her daughter), accidentally sent him for a lobotomy and saved the world from a nuclear crisis.

Miranda Richardson, who was nominated two years ago for Damage and was also seen in The Crying Game, plays a tortured housewife on the other side of the Atlantic. In Tom & Viv she plays the long–suffering and mentally unsound wife of T.S. Eliot. Her role requires her to follow Eliot (Willem Dafoe) around for 30 years, until he is embarrassed enough to send her to a sanitarium.

Though Richardson was moving in Damage and possesses strong acting credentials, she is a long shot on Oscar night. Though the Academy likes to nominate Brits, it doesn't really like them to win very often. Richardson's skills will surely be outweighed by the Hollywood status of the other nominees.

Winona Ryder might have a better shot at Oscar glory. She is one of the hottest actress in Hollywood's "new guard." Recently she has starred in both the calculatingly hip Reality Bites and the calculatingly austere Age of Innocence, which won her a deserved Best Supporting Actress nomination.

Ryder's odds are moderate this year. Though the Academy is fond of literary adaptations, especially period pieces, and Little Women was critically acclaimed, it was also, by Hollywood blockbuster standards, a commercial flop. Winona Ryder is being groomed for Oscar greatness, but now is not the time.

Best Actress

Speaking of Oscar greatness, once again Jodie Foster is up for a third Academy award. This year she is nominated for her role in the disability–opera Nell where she plays a women who was raised in a secluded log cabin. Her character is an Academy–friendly blend of Miracle Worker vocal calisthenics and Forrest Gump innocence. However, Nell received poor reviews and was a deserved bomb. Though the Academy loves her and will surely give her more honors, Nell was a weak role, even for Foster.

Which leaves us with Susan Sarandon, who has the best chance for a Best Actress win. She is nominated for her role in the John Grisham thriller The Client, where she has a commercial role as a southern lawyer who must protect an 11–year–old witness from the bad guys.

Her role really doesn't matter this year (though it was the only financially successful film in this category), because this is perfect time for the Academy to reward Sarandon for many years of quality acting. She has been previously nominated for Atlantic City (1980), Thelma and Louise (1991), and Lorenzo's Oil (1992). Since her competition is particularly weak this year, Sarandon has a strong chance of reaping the benefits of a long, consistent string of performances.

Unfortunately, none of the nominees really deserve the title "Best Actress." The Academy has (not surprisingly) ignored many superior performances in smaller films. Most notable is Linda Fiorentino's

Turn to ACTRESS, page 10

Nominated actresses discuss their roles, winning that Oscar

By Bob Thomas
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Sophia Loren won her Academy Award speaking Italian. Jane Wyman and Marlee Matlin won theirs by not speaking at all. Could Jodie Foster be chosen the best lead actress of 1994 by talking a language no one understands?

Foster is nominated for her role in Nell as the isolated mountain woman whose speech followed the pattern of her stroke-impaired mother. Also nominated for the 67th Academy Awards are Jessica Lange, the troubled army wife of Blue Sky; Miranda Richardson, T.S. Eliot's mentally disturbed first wife in Tom and Viv; Winona Ryder, the spunky Jo in Little Women; and Susan Sarandon, the tenacious lawyer in The Client.

Foster could win her third Oscar. Her first Academy nomination came as supporting actress in Taxi Driver when she was not yet a teen–ager. Her transition from child actress to adult was signaled by her Oscars for The Accused in 1988 and The Silence of the Lambs in 1991.

Foster wasn't sure she could manage the role of Nell. "I'm too controlling," she said, "and you always see too much intelligence in what I do ... Ultimately, when you get down to it, the greatest thing about this character is that she is entirely, emotionally available."

Blue Sky, for which Lange was accorded her sixth Academy nomination, had a curious history. The film was made four years ago, then was shelved when Orion Pictures plunged into financial disarray and bankruptcy. The director, Tony Richardson (Tom Jones), died of AIDS complications in 1991.

As the studio partly recovered from its financial problems, Blue Sky was given a limited release in 1994. Critics responded favorably, especially for Lange's portrait of Tommy Lee Jones' wife, Carly Marshall.

Lange, Academy winner as supporting actress in Tootsie in 1982, was surprised by the attention she received for Blue Sky.

"It's odd with this film because there was so much delay between when we did it and when it was finally released. Your attachment to it had become very vague. To get this kind of recognition has been like a gift, a not-expected present," she said.

"Parts like Carly are easier for me, because you don't have to think about your parameters. With a character like this you can do anything. It's great to be able to take it as far out there as you possibly can. To me

Turn to NOMINEES, page 10

Hanks, Newman equally favored for leading roles

By Jon Lupo
Collegian Staff

GOING TO WIN:
Tom Hanks, Forrest Gump
or Paul Newman, Nobody's Fool

SHOULD WIN:
Nigel Hawthorne, The Madness of King George

When Tom Hanks strode up to the podium last year to collect his Oscar statuette, he delivered perhaps his best performance ever: he actually seemed surprised. Hank's Philadelphia role as a colorless martyr was as resolutely undeserved (he worked up the sympathy of a wounded puppy in a film ostensibly about people, as one critic pointed out) as his win was achingly predictable.

That being said, it will be interesting to see how surprised Hanks looks when he wins this year. The probable Gump juggernaught is primed to carry Hanks over the threshold of Oscar lore as the first leading actor to win two years in a row.

It doesn't matter if he doesn't deserve it. It never matters.

While Hanks's role as America's favorite simpleton (a dumb, wounded puppy perhaps?) isn't necessarily bad, it's just not that remarkable either. It's simply not worth the standing ovation. (And if he does win, what other form of undying adulation could be worth trying for? A postage stamp?)

Only the formidable Paul Newman (Nobody's Fool) has a chance of usurping Gump and its star. Although he won in the '80s with The Color of Money (less for his performance in that particular film but for a long, unrewarded career), his role as a downtrodden though sneakily clever carpenter reevaluating his friends, family and life is primo Oscar material.

And Newman delivers in kind — his ramshackle charm, dead–on cobalt eyes and ability never to sink into dour straits or self–parody all work in his favor. But while It's a comfortable performance, it isn't really a stretch, and Newman deserves to win not out of Oscar–denial embarrassment but for a performance truly worthy.

The other nominees include Morgan Freeman for The Shawshank Redemption, and what's interesting here is how Freeman's role as a long–suffering but wise inmate isn't really the lead. Yet the Academy decided to honor Freeman and not Tim Robbins for what was essentially the same homily–spouting sidekick to White heroes routine Freeman has been doing for the last decade.

As is always the case, however, Freeman's quiet integrity supersedes the overly–earnest lines he's required to deliver. And that's quite a feat considering that early on in Shawshank, they all start sounding the same. But it's really isn't a lead performance, though Freeman earns high marks for not sliding into sentimental bathos.

Some indie types are rooting for wild–card nominee John Travolta — which has to be the silliest, most undeserved nomination since Al Pacino's grossly grandstanding turn in Scent of A Woman. What, exactly, does Travolta do in Pulp Fiction to warrant this? Sure, it's great to have a comeback, but if he's such a good actor, why did it take nearly 10 years to deliver a decent performance? It's not hard to see that Travolta's success in Fiction has more do with his pop cultural significance than his acting — which is pretty good, but certainly not Oscar–worthy.

Best Actor

What, exactly, does Travolta do in Pulp Fiction to warrant this? Sure, it's great to have a comeback. But why did it take nearly 10 years to give a decent performance?

Which leaves Nigel Hawthorne's spirited turn in The Madness of King George as this year's most deserved winner. In a role that requires Hawthorne to flirt with madness within periods of lucidity, there's not a false move among the many shades the role demands.

A lesser actor would've allowed the many opportunities for overacting to take over the role, using craziness as a substitute for charm. Yet Hawthorne keeps his resolve throughout — and the clever, return to the status quo ending works primarily because Hawthorne makes it believable. His performance isn't earth–shattering, but it's worth the nod in a year full of false tremors.

COURTESY KEN REGAN / TRI-STAR PICTURES

Tom Hanks could repeat his Oscar–winning success in Philadelphia with his title role in Forrest Gump.

UMASS at AMHERST
Earn 9 credits in Spanish !! Complete your Language Requirement !!
Earn credits towards a minor in Spanish !!

1995 Summer Program
Salamanca, Spain
July 1- July 30
Information and Application :
Director, Salamanca Program
Spanish and Portuguese 418 Herter Tel. (413) 545-4790/2887
Salamanca@Spanport.umass.edu

Gerry's Music
80 Lamb Street Rt.116 South Hadley
Phone 534-7402 • 1-800-724-7402
NEW FOR '95
- Instructional videos for all instruments featuring today's best musicians.
- Hottest instrument cases and gig pacs at the lowest prices.
- Electronic pickups for clarinet, flute, sax, brass, and guitar.
- Area's most complete percussion department featuring: Pearl, Ludwig, Gibraltar, Yamaha, C.B., Remo, Afro, L.P., and Toca
- 100's of new and used band instruments including Selmer saxophones.

Conveniently located at the junction of Rt. 116 and Rt. 202.
Open Mon.-Fri. 9-6, Thur. 9-8, Sat. 9-3.
Go UMass!

Write for the Valley's best source for entertainment news & views!
ARTS & LIVING
Call 545-1361 for more info

Lincoln Real Estate
253-7879 • 25 N. Pleasant St. (above McDonald's)
Has the best selection of 1,2,&3 bedroom Apartments with gas heat.
We begin showing apartments in April and May for June or September occupancy

La Cucina di Pinocchio's
30 Boltwood Walk • Amherst
PLAN AHEAD FOR GRADUATION
To Make Your Graduation a Special Event, La Cucina di Pinocchio presents a special menu offering...
- Serving veal, poultry, lobster, shrimp, vegetarian & homemade pasta made with the finest and freshest ingredients.
- Finish up with cappuccino, espresso, homemade desserts and much more.

Call ahead for reservations • 256-4110
MasterCard Visa Accepted

Main Street
• WEDNESDAY •
Gay Night
MUSIC BY SPIN, INC.
• Thursday •
'80s DANCE PARTY
Hosted by WHMP's
Nick Danger
The Area's Biggest Dance Party
Music by Spin, Inc.
• Friday •
RETRO NIGHT
Dance Music From the 70's, 80's & 90's with D.J. Dennis
9:00pm - 1:00am
FREE ADMISSION WITH THIS AD
• Saturday •
ALL NEW/ ALL REQUEST TOP 40 DANCE PARTY
WITH DJ DAVE
SATURDAY NIGHT DINNER & DANCE PROMOTION -
Dine anywhere in Northampton on Saturday night, bring in your receipt, and receive Free Admission to the Dance Club
Limousine service courtesy of Michaels Limousine of Chicopee 533-6670
LIVE MUSIC
Thurs., Mar. 16 - 8:30pm /18+
CHUCKLEHEAD
Furnace Gage
Fri., Mar. 17 - 8:30pm
St. Patricks Day
THE BIG BAD BOLLOCKS
Sat., Mar. 18 - 8:30pm
ROOMFUL OF BLUES
Thurs., Mar. 23 - 8:30pm
BLACK 47
The Low Road
Fri., Mar. 24 - 7:30pm /All Ages
Colorbox Productions
DOOM NATION
Aftershock/Bloodbath Reunion
Perpetual Warfare/Grimlord
Sat., Mar. 25 - 8:30pm
GRAHAM PARKER & THE EPISODES
John Sheldon & Blue Streak
Tues., Mar. 28 - 8:00pm /18+/
10,000 MANIACS
Dennis Augustyniak, Robert Buck, Dennis Drew, Steven Gustafson, John Lombardo & Mary Ramsted
Thur., March 30 - Sat., April 1 /18+/
LOUD MUSIC FESTIVAL
Buckle Up Kids, Come & The Rambleaters
Mon., April 3 - 8:00pm /18+/
WIDESPREAD PANIC
Tues., April 4 - 8:00pm /18+/
MIGHTY MIGHTY BOSSTONES
Samian / The Gaups
Thur., Apr. 6 - 7:00pm /18+/
BOB MOULD
Downstairs: 9:00pm /All Ages/ $AVOIR
Fri., Apr 7 - 8:30pm /18+/
LEFTOVER SALMON
Coming...
4/8 TEXAS FLOOD
4/10 JUNIOR WELLS
4/13 FROM GOOD HOMES
4/28 THE MACHINE /18+/
4/29 3 GIRLS BLUES TIME
5/4 G. LOVE & SPECIAL/18+
5/7 TRIP HYPNOTICA
5/12 MACEO PARKER
5/13 PENNON
5/18 LITTLE FEAT
Tickets available at Pearl Street, Strawberries, Tix Unlimited, Northampton Box Office - Tix Bkstr, For The Record in Amherst
10 Pearl Street
Northampton 584-7751

Allen a long shot in director race

'Gump' may earn Zemeckis Oscar; 'Bullets' more deserving

By Jon Lupo
Collegian Staff

GOING TO WIN:
Robert Zemeckis, Forrest Gump

SHOULD WIN:
Woody Allen, Bullets Over Broadway

Best Director

It's hard to take an award like this seriously, for two reasons. First of all, there are its embarrassing omissions — Chaplin, Hitchcock, Kubrick, Scorsese. Secondly, there's the equally humiliating idea that Kevin Costner — Kevin freakin' Costner — has a Best Director statuette and the above names do not.

Now that we know that the selection of the award is far from discriminating, look for Robert Zemeckis to waltz up to the podium and heartily thank all those involved in the wonderful world of Forrest Gump. Since the award will also be thanks for helming the wildly successful Back to the Future flicks and the innovative Who Framed Roger Rabbit?, it's hard to feel bad about Zemeckis winning. He does, after all, deserve it for his past efforts, though it's hard to award him for helming a film that confuses stupidity with innocence, conservatism with idealism — and for doing it so successfully.

Robert Redford has always been kind of a curiosity — after winning a Best Director Oscar back in 1980 for his debut effort, Ordinary People, he has, through A River Runs Through It and Quiz Show, actually lived up to the initial praise. An expert at dissecting upper-class WASP angst, Redford may be limited in his range, but he's always passionately starchy.

In Quiz Show, this becomes both his greatest asset and chief flaw. Spinning nothing less than three or four grandiose American themes at one time, Redford is only able to push them to surface conclusions. Impeccable performances and smooth production values aside, Quiz Show never equals the sum of its weighty parts.

This year, Polish director Krzysztof Kieslowski is a victim of kooky Oscar logic. Though his film Red, the final part in his acclaimed colors-of-the-French-flag trilogy, was disqualified in the Best Picture category (don't ask), Kieslowski has found himself nominated for director and original screenplay honors.

In another, entirely more subjective logic, Kieslowski is being nominated for arguably the weakest link in the trilogy. While Blue meditated on the complexities of mourning and White provided a bitter, pitch black comedic riff on love and revenge (among other things), Red sits squarely as a film that seemed to start believing its own buzz as the hot ticket art-house flick. Although Red provides a meaningful conclusion to the trilogy as a whole, the film does falter a bit on its own, opting for art house cliches (long pauses, oh- so-meaningful icy glances, fashionable pessimism, etc.). While a nod for Blue or especially White would've been more deserved, one can't expect voters to know the difference, so Kieslowski should take what he can get.

Enjoying his first Oscar nomination is Quentin Tarantino, the former video store geek turned, eh-hem, maverick "auteur." Cheap shot cynicism aside, Tarantino's certainly got flair and a paradoxically glib complexity behind it as well. While I would've gone to the mat for a nod for Tarantino's first (and best) effort, Reservoir Dogs, his work in Pulp

Turn to DIRECTOR, page 10

COURTESY BRIAN HAMILL / TRI-STAR PICTURES

Writer–director Woody Allen is enjoying his latest nomination for helming Bullets Over Broadway.

Designers vie for Academy exposure

By Tara MK Connelly
Collegian Staff

It's Oscar night. Thousands of people line Hollywood Boulevard with bated breath, poised cameras and focused binoculars. A long white stretch limo pulls up to the red carpet, the crowd goes crazy and the first words out of everyone's mouth is: "Look at what they're wearing!" You could be a shoe–in for Best Actor or Actress, but it's the clothes that everyone sees before anything else.

Ever since Armani began the trend, designers have realized the marketing potential of Oscar night. Last year Whoopi wore the muted crimson velvet, Ray Aubgan, Hanks, Joan Chen and Goldie Hawn favored Klein and the ever original Winona Ryder chose to go independent with a vintage white beaded '40s designer dress.

And these dresses aren't just a little something they decided to slip into at the last moment — au contraire! Designers begin months in advance to plant the seeds of their styles in actors' heads all hoping to be "the dress" and ticket to marketing heaven. Antonio Banderas admitted that he wore Klein because he was the first to offer up his clothes for show.

Fashion is a huge industry and it's easy to get lost in the fabric swatches. Designers will do anything to have their latest piece de resistance draped on a popular someone. With dresses going for $10,000 to $20,000, many actresses can't afford to buy something new for every public occasion. Enter the sample lines. Sample lines are ready–made clothes set aside for celebrities to riffle through. If an actress doesn't see something she likes, designers are even willing to create a "little something" that will please them. As many as 10 different sketches can be whipped up to placate the celebrity.

Another ploy is free samples. Designers will lend and even supply an entire wardrobe to an actress during a film. Does it work? Well, the iridescent silk trench coat that Sharon Stone wore in The Specialist became Donna Karan's hottest selling item in her spring line, going for $850. Who can forget the outfit Uma Thurman wore in Pulp Fiction during the dance contest? From her white shirt to her gold ballet slippers, all was designed by Agnes b.

An exception to the rule is Richard Tyler, whose jackets have graced Janet Jackson and Laura Dern. His coats, which are in fast competition with Armani, aren't on loan but for sale — period. Celebrities who express interest in Escada (who decorates Angela Bassett and Shirley Maclaine) received sealed folders, special fittings and accessories too.

So what about the men — can something creative be done with a tux? Although Armani seems to have all the bases covered in this category, other designers want to make sure the men aren't lacking in finery.

Roy Rogers and Dale Evans showed up in 1988 with matching sequined cowboy outfits and Sly Stallone once presented an award in a bejuffled shirt minus bow tie with a hideous butterfly collar (that rebel!). Last year, Tom Cruise, scraggly haired and bearded, favored a shirt with a short standup collar by Armani and was in stark contrast to his fellow presenter, a formal–looking Paul Newman. In 1991, Jack Palance got away with a tasteful silk gray suit.

Daniel Day Lewis went retro in 1989 when he was nominated for My Left Foot. He got rave reviews for his elegant long Edwardian–style coat and matching charcoal gray trousers. But as much as men would like to have the freedom of their counterparts, a tux is always tasteful elegant and a great way to be taken seriously (think of Tom Hanks' white tux in Big).

Fashion is fashion and Oscar fashion is part of what dictates how this high class world turns around. Oscar fashion is essential to the overall glamour and glitz that surrounds Hollywood and the movie interest. So what do we expect for Oscar night? Try Sarandon in Hang Fend, Freeman, Landau and Segal in Versace, Wiest in Karan, Stone in Valentino (again), and Lange in Klein.

'Lion King' songwriters battle each other

By Laura Stock
Collegian Staff

GOING TO WIN:
Elton John & Tim Rice, "Can You Feel the Love Tonight," The Lion King

SHOULD WIN:
Elton John & Tim Rice, "Circle of Life," The Lion King

Best Song

The only problem with the Best Song category is the fact that the audience is always subjected to a generic medley of the nominated songs. At least this year, host David Letterman won't sing along (we hope).

Expect to see singing legend Elton John and Grammy–winning lyricist Tim Rice assume the victorious position behind the podium on Oscar night. With three nominations from Disney's The Lion King, these two songwriters are essentially their own competition.

Which song will bring home the trophy? Well, unfortunately that one is easy to predict as well. "Can You Feel the Love Tonight" will steal the win, for reasons that disgrace the Academy itself. Elton John's sappy love song did extremely well on the pop charts, but that should not be reason alone to earn it an Oscar.

The version in the film (performed by Joseph Williams and Sally Dworsky) just doesn't fit in the scene. The two adolescent lions, Simba and Nala, reunite after several years and all of a sudden are back in each other's paws and exchanging uncomfortably longing glances.

The upbeat, feel–good tune "Hakuna Matata" also nabbed a nomination. It delivers a positive (if not entirely healthy) message: "No worries," but is too humorous and dialogue– ridden to win (Oscar voters like their songs, like last year's "Streets of Philadelphia," to have substance).

"Circle of Life" is clearly the definitive song of the movie. Performed by Carmen Twillie, the tune sums up Lion King's entire plot in a few verses. Twillie's version begins the movie quite effectively, with a reverberating bass drum cutting the song short as the screen turns black and bears the movie title in big, bold print. Elton John's version ends the film in the same powerful fashion.

"Look What Love Has Done" from Junior is also on the list of nominees. If you can believe that Arnold Schwartzneggar is truly pregnant in this cutesy film, then believe that this song will win.

The final nominee was written and performed by Randy Newman. "Make Up Your Mind," from The Paper, is an upbeat enough song but does not even play during the movie — those of you who sat through the ending credits may have heard it.

Elton John and Tim Rice definitely deserve the victory; the pair wrote every song from the Disney hit. Hopefully, the Oscar will go to the song with substance — "Circle of Life" and not to "Can You Feel the Love Tonight," which will undoubtedly be remembered not as an Oscar winner but as yet another favorite high school prom theme.

WHO DECIDES WHAT MAKES A MOTHER?
JESSICA LANGE
HALLE BERRY
Losing Isaiah
PARAMOUNT PICTURES PRESENTS A HOWARD W. KOCH, JR. PRODUCTION JESSICA LANGE HALLE BERRY
LOSING ISAIAH DAVID STRATHAIRN CUBA GOODING, JR. AND SAMUEL L. JACKSON BASED UPON THE NOVEL BY SETH MARGOLIS
MUSIC BY MARK ISHAM EDITED BY HARVEY ROSENSTOCK, A.C.E. PRODUCED BY HOWARD W. KOCH, JR. AND NAOMI FONER
SCREENPLAY BY NAOMI FONER DIRECTED BY STEPHEN GYLLENHAAL
ORIGINAL SOUNDTRACK ON COLUMBIA RECORDS
MARCH 17

THE TOC
Sports Bar & Lounge • 11th Floor Campus Center

TODAY
College Hoops
NCAA Tournament Coverage
Beginning at Noon

TOMORROW
UMass Begins the Road to the Final Four!
UMASS v. ST. PETERS
3:00

99¢ Nachos

Bud Light $1.50
Sam Adams Pint $2.50
Ice House Pitcher $4.50

Positive I.D. Required

Mikaia's
Springfield's Hottest Dance Party
Thursday Night Rock & Roll Shows
3/23 & 3/30
Long Green Hair
4/6
Grand Funk Railroad
4/15
All Male Revue
270 Cooley St.
Sprintfield, MA
(413)796-7127
Free Cover Friday or Saturday Nights with this ad.
25¢ off any show with valid student ID.

TRAVEL SMART!
FROM NEW YORK
One Way / Roundtrip
LONDON $122 $244
PARIS $199 $398
AMSTERDAM $201 $402
SAN JOSE COSTA RICA $238 $476
TOKYO $774
Scheduled flights. Fares to worldwide destinations. Eurailpasses Available.
Weekend surcharges may apply. Customs–immigration taxes apply. Fares subject to change without notice. Int'l student I.D. cards may be required.
PRISM TRAVEL
342 Madison Ave., NY, NY 10173
212-986-8420*
800-272-9676
in NYC

PUT THE RIGHT WORDS IN CALVERT'S MOUTH AND 1-800-COLLECT WILL SEND YOU TO THE BILLBOARD MUSIC AWARDS.
"I USE 1-800-COLLECT BECAUSE..."
Calvert doesn't hold back when it comes to expressing the benefits of using 1-800-COLLECT. Now it's your turn.
Just fill in the bubble above with the most important reason to always dial 1-800-COLLECT when calling collect. If your quote is chosen, you'll be the lucky Grand prize winner of a 3-day, 2-night trip for two to attend the Billboard Music Awards (broadcast by FOX). Twenty first-place winners will receive a 1-800-COLLECT "Cool Collection" of prizes that includes a 1-800-COLLECT watch, boxer shorts and much more!
1-800-COLLECT®
Save The People You Call Up To 44%.
To enter, complete the bubble above and the information below. Mail the entire page, to be received by 5/1/95, to:
"1-800-COLLECT"
P.O. Box 4838
Blair, Nebraska 68009
(Please print)
Name
Address
City State Zip
Phone #( )
Open to U.S. residents 18 or older. Void where prohibited. Entries must be received by 5/1/95. Limit one entry per envelope. Grand Prize of trip for 2 includes airfare, hotel and night on the town, with dinner and nightspot entertainment. For contest rules, by which entrants are bound, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: 1-800-COLLECT, P.O. Box 4880, Blair, NE, 68009. WA residents need not affix postage to return envelope.
1995 BILLBOARD MUSIC AWARDS ON FOX
For long-distance calls. Savings based on a 3-minute AT&T operator-dialed interstate call.

Oscar stars reveal sour grapes

From Spielberg to Sally Field, winners drop quotes about Hollywood's big night

Contrary to what many people may think, much of the Academy's harshest criticism comes from people who have already won and are comfortable in their winning enough to start speaking their mind. Here's a trip through the loose lips of some of Hollywood's biggest stars on Hollywood's biggest night.

"I can't believe it. They went for Fellini instead of me."

— Steven Spielberg, on learning the Italian director was nominated for Best Director for Amarcord instead of Spielberg for Jaws.

"It's an insult for them to offer me any honor, as if they have never heard of me before — and it's likely they never have."

— Nobel Prize–winning playwright and author George Bernard Shaw on winning an Oscar for Pygmalion in 1938.

"I felt disgusted, as though I was watching a public hanging. No one should have a chance to see so much desire, so much need for a prize, and so much pain when not given [it]."

— Two–time Best Actress winner Glenda Jackson.

ASSOCIATED PRESS
Neil's Jodie Foster

"If you can go past those awful idiot faces on the bleachers outside the theater without a sense of the collapse of the human intelligence; and if you can go out into the night and see half the police force of Los Angeles gathered to protect the golden ones from the mob in the free seats, but not from the awful moaning sound they give out, like destiny whistling through a hollow shell; if you can do these things and still feel the next morning that the picture business is worth the attention of one single intelligent, artistic mind, then in the picture business you certainly belong because this sort of vulgarity, the very vulgarity from which the Oscars are made, is the inevitable price Hollywood exacts from its serfs."

— Novelist and some–time screenwriter Raymond Chandler in the early 1940s.

"I have no regard for that kind of ceremony. I just don't think they know what they're doing ... because if you accept it when they say you deserve an award, then you have to accept it when they say you don't ... When you see who wins those things — or doesn't win them — you can see how meaningless this Oscar thing is."

— Three–time Oscar winner (and perennial no–show) Woody Allen.

"The Academy Awards are all politics and sentiment and nothing to do with merit."

— Writer Truman Capote.

"The Academy should fold its tent and go back to baking apple strudel or whatever they can do well."

— Screenwriter and novelist William Peter Blatty, after the film he wrote, 1973's The Exorcist, was beaten numerous times by The Sting.

"I think [the Oscars] are exploitative, over–commercialized, frequently offensive and should not be televised ... Sure I'll be there."

— Two–time Best Actress winner Sally "You like me, you really like me" Field.

"Fame is a perversion of the natural human instinct for attention."

— Al Pacino, on the publicity value of the Oscars.

ASSOCIATED PRESS
Oscar winner Sally Field

"Make no mistake about it, the Oscar ceremony is now intentionally designed to inflict as much pain and suffering as possible on both its participants and its viewers."

— Critic Andrew Sarris, bemoaning the 1982 Oscar telecast as well as its dubious multiple Oscars for Gandhi while ignoring E.T.

"As much as I love the Oscar night pageantry, it's a silly bingo game."

— Two–time Best Actress winner Jodie Foster.

"These two ritually dumpy men reassure us that, in spite of the vast rewards to be gained by irregularity, our interests as a people are being protected. There still may be a surprise winner; God and the Devil still exist."

— Playwright and screen scribe David Mamet on the Oscar accounting firm of Price/Waterhouse and the general predictability of the Awards.

"Two hours of sparkling entertainment spread out over a four–hour show."

— Former Oscar host Johnny Carson on the notoriously long ceremonies.

— Compiled by Jon Lupo from Anthony Holden's Behind the Oscar: The Secret History of the Academy Awards, published in 1993 by Simon & Schuster.

■ Director

continued from page 8

Fiction is too erratic — for every high note he hits, his directorial voice cracks a couple of times. The true test of Tarantino's skill will come five, 10, 20 years from now, when he's working with a more substantial body of work and without a critical net.

One who has proven, net or not, that he's still a director to be reckoned with (even if it's just a minor reckoning) is Woody Allen. With Bullets Over Broadway — his 23rd film, amazingly enough, Allen replays many of his standard themes for the nth time while cleverly sneaking in a few new tangents along the way. It's a testament to Allen's prowess as a director that he manages to do this without a case of deja vu haunting Bullets' entertaining farce like the ghosts of one–liners past.

After the Soon–Yi scandal, one would expect mildly amusing efforts like Manhattan Murder Mystery to be the extent Allen was able to be silly again. Not so. With Bullets, Allen maneuvers a witty morality play around such astute questions as what makes an artist and how far one goes to protect the elusive term of "artistic integrity."

While there are plenty of grand turns all around (Dianne Wiest sparkles in a role that deftly swerves in and out of parody), a quiet scene between mobster–turned script doctor Chazz Palminteri and hapless artiste John Cusak emerges as Allen's most honest and affecting in quite a while. In Bullets, one character remarks that "no great artist is ever appreciated in his lifetime." Let's hope this Oscar year proves that line wrong.

■ nominees

continued from page 7

that's the most fun."

Richardson, who was nominated as supporting actress in Damage in 1992, returns as contender for lead actress. Vivien Eliot was a tragic figure whose erratic behavior prompted the poet T.S. Eliot to commit her to a mental institution where she peacefully lived out her days.

Richardson, who was praised for her role as the Irish terrorist in The Crying Game, was asked if playing the emotion of the erratic Viv proved to be a challenge.

"I think people want to hear that it was, that you had a nervous breakdown," she smiled.

"It was really quite joyful to play, because she has a chance to express herself in what she does. It is actually quite liberating."

Ryder, nominated for her supporting role in The Age of Innocence last year, was cited for her lead performance in Little Women. It's the same role Katharine Hepburn played in 1933 and June Allyson in 1949.

Ryder recalled seeing the two previous versions when she was younger, but she avoided them in preparing for the new film.

"I kind of instantly connected to a lot of the stuff she was going through," Ryder said. "Normal adolescence has always fascinated me in terms of portraying it because it is so complicated and contradictory.

"She struck me as human, as opposed to a lot of characters you read in scripts, who are either one way or another. Good or bad. Right or wrong. I saw Jo as full of everything."

Sarandon has remarked that many people have suggested to her that she resembles O.J. Simpson prosecutor Marcia Clark. The resemblance may not only be physical; it may relate to Sarandon's role as the dogged, dedicated lawyer in The Client, which won her an Academy nomination.

In the last film that brought her a nomination, Lorenzo's Oil, the actress played a mother who defied the medical establishment to seek a treatment for her disabled son. In The Client, she is Reggie Love, who battles the legal powers to protect a boy who witnessed a murder.

"Lately, I like to play people that I like and that I admire," she observed, "because in spite of their frailties, they take a chance of some kind.

"They're all people who come up against a moment when they have to act one way or another, and they decide to become a protagonist in their own lives. And that's interesting to me. I'm not interested in playing people who you know at the beginning of the movie that they're heroes."

■ actress

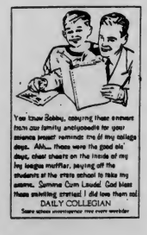
continued from page 7

gum–popping, mace–spraying, face–slapping femme fatale in The Last Seduction. Fiorentino is a delicious change from the standard villain because she is simply a malevolent force, with having to justify herself with a sob story past. Her role, though, was disqualified because The Last Seduction aired four times on HBO before being released for theaters. Go figure.



You know Bobby, copying those answers from your family encyclopedia for your science project reminded me of my college days. Ahh... those were the good ole' days, cheat sheets on the inside of my big wedgie mortar board, playing off the students at the state school to take my exams. Summa Cum Laude! God bless those evening entries! I did love them so!
DAILY COLLEGIAN
Some jokes aren't funny the first time around

Be Worldly!
Write for Developing Nations!
Contact Juan Jose Chacon Quiros
113 Campus Center • 545-3500

STUDENT FARES

LONDON	$250
AMSTERDAM	$430
PARIS	$438
FRANKFURT	$458
MADRID	$498
BRUSSELS	$430
MOSCOW	$518
ZURICH	$478
PRAGUE	$458
EURAIL FROM	$255

FARES BASED ON RT FROM BOSTON. TAXES NOT INCLUDED. STUDENT ID MAY BE REQUIRED. DEPARTURES THRU 3/31. FARES SUBJECT TO CHANGE.

Council Travel
79 S. PLEASANT ST. 2ND FL
AMHERST, MA 01002
413-256-1261

Help Wanted?
Job Tip # 42 ...Not all employers advertise in the paper. Make contacts!
Create a professional looking resume at CopyCat Print Shop.
Choose from a selection of attractive high quality 25% cotton paper
We'll typeset one page and make 50 copies all in just two business days.
~ Only $19.95 with this coupon ~
CopyCat PRINT SHOP
228 Triangle St. Amherst 549-3646 • 30 Pleasant St. Northampton 586-1332

Hunan Garden Restaurant 家鄉園南湖
The Best Chinese Buffet
MANDARIN/SZECHUAN CUISINE
WE DELIVER IN AMHERST 5-9:30 EVERYDAY
Free Delivery for orders $15 and over; $2 charge for orders under $15
Monday Thru Saturday
LUNCH BUFFET 11am - 3pm
$3.99
TAKE OUT SERVICE - FULL COCKTAIL MENU
10 Belchertown Rd. at Rt. 9, Amherst 256-0252

Race St. Pub
2 BLOCKS from Parade Route
Celebrate the St. Patrick's Day Parade with Us!! for the...
BARE-ING of the GREEN
16 Exotic Female Leprechauns
Opens at 12:00 Parade Day Sunday 3/19/95
LARGEST STAGE IN NEW ENGLAND!
Shower Stall Only One in Western Mass.!
Hot Have to see to believe!
Rte. 202 to Rte. 141 to 268 RACE ST., HOLYOKE 532-1422
Hrs. Mon-Wed 4PM 'til 1:30AM / Thur-Sat Noon 'til 2AM /
Regular Hours on Sunday 5-1

Classifieds

- 20¢ per word per day for students
- All ads must be paid cash/2 days in advance
- Ads may placed at 113 Campus Center Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Bad and breakfast. Downtown Amherst 549-0733

Lip synch contest! The Institute of Industrial Engineers is looking for students to participate. Groups must be sponsored by an RSO group. For more information call 256-4501

Spring Break 95. Trips to Jamaica, Florida and Cancun Call ASAP Tricia 549-7648

AUTO FOR SALE

'89 Pontiac Lemans sport. 78,000m Metallic blue. Excellent condition $2,100 or b.o. Call 549-7321

1982 Mazda RX-7 94K. 5 spd. tra, sunroof, metallic light blue, must see/drive a nice ride! $1500 Call 253-3149

Volkswagon bus for sale. 1972 white w/tinted windows. West coast camper. 50,000 on new engine 2,300 obo 413-323-4494 Aaron -reliable-

COLLEGE PRO PAINTERS

College Pro Painters now accepting applications for painter and foreman positions in eastern Massachusetts. No experience necessary. Call 1-800-346-4649 today.

ENTERTAINMENT

Artist needed. See your work everywhere! UMass Theater Guild needs volunteer to design logos and poster. Call Kerri 549-8565

FISCHER PLOW FOR SALE

Fischer plow-8 ft. with snow reflector and carbide cutting edge, used once. Asking $2,100 Call and leave message 467-9188

FOR RENT

Capa Cod. Group summer rentals Waterfront houses, Falmouth area 508-477-8000

Capa Cod. Seasonal rentals 1-5 bedroom houses in all towns. Rental rates Hony Spence 508-394-7857 or 398-9367

Live for free!! Take over my lease and you will get March rent free!! Large bedroom with working fireplace. Minutes from campus, on multiple bus routes. Call Doug at 253-5134

Pelham 10/45 two bedroom mobile home. Three miles from UMass. $400/month 1st last security deposit. No pets 253-5413

Pelham. 2bd/1ba includes everything (+phone) Option to renew lease in June Call Kathy 549-5303

Two and three bedrooms available for June 1st Call Mill Valley Estates 253-7377

FOR SALE

92 KZ Extremus 1hr 48D bindings w/bag Used 3hr perf cond $600/or Rich 665-2998

Kayproter 300/bo Rich 665-2998

Macintosh computer Complete system including printer only $599 Call Chris at 800-289-5885.

Motorola pagers for sale! 546-3241, ask for Andy.

NCAA tickets to sell at Albany March 17,19 253-0877

Dartboard mater. 2 1/2' hg Nissan 80 Used twice $250 Dan 5-3034 or 665-5150

286-386 computer system CPU monitor keyboard $275 Dave 549-5181

Von Halen 4/30 Providence floor seats $80 (508) 877-8016

HAIGIS HOOPLA

It's back. Haigis Hoopla 5 is coming on April 21,22, and 23! Call 545-5689 for more details

HELP WANTED

AA cruise ships hiring! Earn big $$$ and free world travel (Caribbean, Europe, Hawaii, etc.) Summer/permanent, no exper. nec. Guide (519) 929-4398

Alaska summer employment! Earn thousands this summer in canneries, processors, etc. Male/female. Room/board/travel often provided! Guide Guaranteed success! (919) 929-4388 ext A1063

Alaska summer employment. Fishing industry. Earn to $3,000-$6,000+/month + benefits. Male/female. No experience necessary. (206) 545-4155 ext. AK0013

Dancers wanted. No experience necessary. Earn $1000-$1500 per week 532-1422

Free food plus DC rebate for dishwashing and pot cleaning. 548-4919

Part time marketing/sales. Excellent opportunity to gain business experience with a new company engaged in providing assistance to job seekers. Excellent commissions, good training. Will be a great addition to your resume. Local, no car nec. necessary. Call (401) 295-5490 after 2 p.m.

LOST

Lost March 11th Live show, army jacket, brown sweater. Reward, no questions asked, sentimental value. Abbie 545-3874

Red wallet. 3/8/95 Newman Center. Reward. Call 545-2798

MOTORCYCLES

1981 Yamaha Saca 650. Ex cond 9500/bo Rich 665-2998

PERSONALS

Happy 22nd Birthday Ann Marie! Sorry I wasn't successful in "the big birthday search" but I think you're doing OK on your own. Have a happy day and remember to leave your helmet behind! With love from your big (but younger) sis Meredith

Kara, Happy Birthday! Have fun in California's the house! Love Lisa + Sara

Lauren Mey. Who's your big pa? Figuring out is the fun, clue #1 has just begun. I have brown hair and brown eyes, I'm new to UMass and AEPi. LML????

Nesbit Harris. Hey Sweetcakes! Happy 20th. 1 more year! Love ya kid. Sasie

Someone to watch over you We look out for students better than any emergency credit card. Call 1-800-Citibank to apply. Note: we won't hit on your dates

Sweet P. You're so special. You make me smile. Thank you. Love EMA

The sisters of Sigma Delta Tau would like to welcome our new members Megan, Amy, Danielle, Suzanne, Sheri, Leigh, Colleen, Leslie, Eileen, Lori, Kelly, Julie, Christine, Teri, Samantha, Kim B., Kim T., Jen and Lea

The sisters of Sigma Delta Tau would like to congratulate Kelly Liljebald on a great track season!

To my big sister Rebecca. Who says your not creative! Thanks for everything! Love, your little sister, Lea

To my little sister Shannon. Keep up the great work. You're the best! In Sigma love, your big sis Jen Z

RIDE WANTED

Need rides to Boston or anywhere from Boston to Beverly on weekends Gas $ 253-2609

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wanted. 258/month Behind Baybank, on bus route Call Kristen 549-3992

SCUBA DIVING

Dive Key Largo. Florida Spring Break Earn 2 credits Call Project Deep 1-800-282-0977

Earn 2 credits learning to dive Monday-Tuesday, Wednesday to Thursday 7-10pm. 1-800-282-0977 Project Deep

SERVICES

Graano Snack Bar. Su-Th 4-12am, Sa 8-12am Located in Greenough dorm, Central Delivery Su-Th 8-11:30 5-2380 Students for students

Modem users! Call the Playground BBS 256-6085 19.2 K bps 130 megs online + CD ROM Registered online games include Lord, BRE, Usurper, Global Wars & Planets!

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright for free testing and caring confidential support 549-1906

SPRING BREAK

Killington ski and party week 5 days, 5 nights condo, health club, ski beach, only $215!! Sign up by Thursday UMass Ski Club 545-3437

SUMMER LEADERSHIP SEMINAR

Six weeks with pay- $700 scholarship opportunities. Call Army ROTC 545-2321

TRAVEL

Spring Break! Bahamas cruise 6 days $278!! Includes 12 meals! Cancun + Jamaica from $429! Panama City $129 Daytona, Key West + Cocoa Beach $158! 1-800-678-6386

TYPING

Date entry and word processing. Reliable and fast. Call Andy 586-0870

REGARDING PERSONALS

1. All personals MUST be processed by Collegian Classified employees before payment is acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names may not be used in personals. The only exceptions are for birthday & congratulations personals.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals.
4. Addresses, or dorm room numbers are not allowed in personals.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory, vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN

Classified Advertising Submission

Classifieds can be delivered in person, or through Campus Mail to room 113 Campus Center (In the basement) at least 2 days before the ad is to run. Payment must be received with the submission.

Standard headings for classifieds are: Activities, Announcements, Auto For Sale, Entertainment, For Rent, For Sale, Found, Help Wanted, Instruction, Lost, Motorcycles, Musicians, Personals, Ride Wanted, Riders Wanted, Room Wanted, Roommate Wanted, Services, Summer Sublet, To Sublet, Travel, Typing/ Word Proc., Wanted to Rent, Wanted.

RATES
$2.00 minimum/day
Students:
20¢ per word/day
All Others:
40¢ per word/day
Special Heading:
$2.50 Extra
NO REFUNDS

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: _____ Date: _____ Taken By: _____

Date(s) to run: _____ Headline: _____

Total Days: _____ X _____ Words: = _____ X rate _____ = _____ Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): _____ Authorized signature: _____

ADVERTISING COPY

1		1
2		2
3		3
4		4
5		5
6		6
7		7
8		8
9		9
10		10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

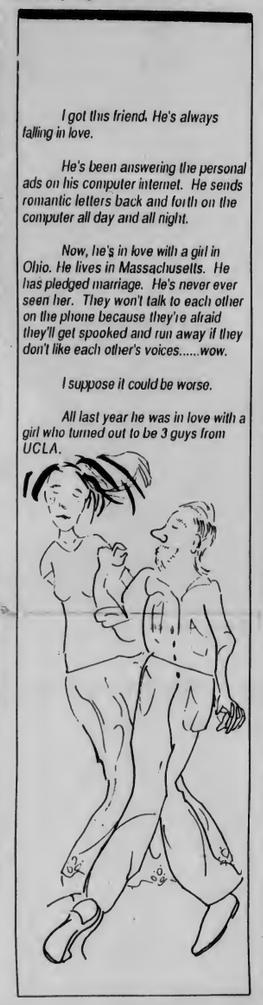
I THINK ANGELS ARE EVERYWHERE
YOU DO?
THEY'RE ON CALENDARS, BOOKS, GREETING CARDS ... ALMOST EVERY PRODUCT IMAGINABLE
WHAT A SPIRITUAL AGE WE LIVE IN.

Garfield By Jim Davis

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

THIS IS INSANE! HOW CAN ANYONE SEE THE ACROBATS WITH THE SPOT-LIGHTS SHINING IN OUR EYES?
AT LAST! HE'S WITHIN RANGE!
STAN LEE LARRY LIEBER 3/16

Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom



I got this friend. He's always falling in love.
He's been answering the personal ads on his computer internet. He sends romantic letters back and forth on the computer all day and all night.
Now, he's in love with a girl in Ohio. He lives in Massachusetts. He has pledged marriage. He's never ever seen her. They won't talk to each other on the phone because they're afraid they'll get spooked and run away if they don't like each other's voices.....wow.
I suppose it could be worse.
All last year he was in love with a girl who turned out to be 3 guys from UCLA.

P.S. Mueller By Mueller

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

Jim's Journal By Jim

I need to rethink my whole life—everything," Tony said today.
He said he realized that moving from one shoe store to another wasn't the way to get ahead.
He said, "It took me a long time to realize this."
I asked him what his big plans were and he said he didn't know.
3-16

Bruno By C. Baldwin

Dilbert By Scott Adams

AS NEW OWNER OF THIS COMPANY I HEREBY BAN ALL MEETINGS OVER ONE HOUR. THE DRESS CODE IS CASUAL. STATUS REPORTS ARE OPTIONAL!
NO MORE MISSION STATEMENTS OR "VISIONS." OUR MOTTO IS "HAVE FUN, SATISFY CUSTOMERS, MAKE MONEY."
AND STOCK OPTIONS FOR ALL OF YOU.
WE CAN FIT FIVE MORE IN THIS CUBICLE IF WE REMOVE THE CHAIR.
SCOTTADAMS@AOL.COM

Random Acts By Jeffrey Durand

GENIUS WAS STUDYING ALL NIGHT FOR HIS BIOLOGY OF ASTRO-PHYSICS MIDTERM
BEING VERY TIRED HE SET HIS ALARM FOR 9:00 SO THAT HE COULD SLEEP AND THEN GO TO HIS TEST AT 10:30
UNFORTUNATELY, HE SET IT FOR 9:00 P.M. AND HE MISSED THE
3/16/95

U-SAVE AUTO & TRUCK RENTAL
Weekend Special
Noon Friday to Monday A.M.
Starting at $49.95
-Cars -Mini Vans
-Trucks
-Cargo Vans
-Direct Billing to Insurance Companies
-We Rent to All Qualified Drivers 21 years or Older
North Amherst Motors CARSTAR
76 Old Sunderland Rd., North Amherst, MA
549-RENT
Northampton CARSTAR
141 A Damon Rd., Northampton
586-4444

WASHBURN DIGITECH
HARMONICS
Need to Record a Demo? Talk To Us!
31 Campus Road, Hadley (near Pizza Hut • 256-6944

Come Clean With Us!!
Speedwash
11 Pray St. Amherst • 549-1665
Open 24 Hours
Drop-off service available:
Mon. & Tues. 2pm - 10pm
Wed., Thurs. & Fri. 2pm - 10pm
Sat. 10am - 6pm
South Towne Commons Laundromat
479 West St. South Amherst
Open 7 days/week, 7am - 10pm

Today's Staff

Night Editor.....Darienne J. Hosley
Copy Editor.....T.J. White
Photo Technician.....Paul Bilodeau
Production Supervisor.....Sandy Bogage
Production.....Olmy Rosenstock, Dmitry Abramson, Kevin Farrar

Dining Commons Menu

LUNCH
Mac. & Cheeze
Grilled Chickn' Sand.
BASICS LUNCH
Savory Stuffed Peppahs
Grilled Chickn' Sand.

DINNER
Chicken Phaheetas
Roast Pork
BASICS DINNER
Tofu, Chickn' Fajitas
Potato Mushroom D'lite

Daily Crossword

Edited by Trude Michel Joffe

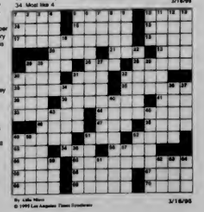
ACROSS
1 Designer Cassini
5 "There is nothing like —."
10 Church recess
14 Factual
15 Sasami type
16 Proper companion
17 Feline guarantees?
18 Comedy creature
20 Jargon
21 Gumshoe
23 Rower's doc
24 2000 in old Rome
26 Author Umberto
28 Stood
30 Perfect-report card letters
31 Meadrd Mrs.
32 Monumental
33 Shirley Temple's ship
35 Vulgar
38 Mine yield
39 Jailbird type?
41 Scottish river
42 Monet
44 Scholarly paper
46 British mystery author Francis
47 Annex
48 Betsy from Philadelphia
49 Prepares potatoes
51 Dapple donkey
52 Composer Rossi
53 Superlative ending
54 Oil transports
56 Meter
58 Partner of null
60 Opposite
61 Lotion ingredient
66 Cheese
67 Actress Olin
68 Rational

DOWN
1 Killer whales
2 Meadow
3 Munch
4 Freezingly cold
5 Strawberry basket spoons
6 Atom nucleus
7 Sothern or Sheridan
8 Maxim
9 Facility
10 Fitting
11 Expert's hobby?
12 Fishers
13 Hem it up
19 Factor or Emst
22 Pier follower
24 New Zealander
25 Cast's forte?
27 Dublin Lauren?
29 Eve's origin
30 Scads
31 Sees
33 Intent ecstasy
34 Most like it
36 Rides
37 Removes the gimp
40 Issuing commands
43 Wheat, in France
45 In a banal manner
49 Hindu spirits
50 Diva Jones
51 Lou Grant portrayer
52 Japanese drama
56 Food fish
57 "— happiness..."
59 Cee follower
61 Assist
62 Red or Dead
63 Hosiery
64 Droop

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

S	C	A	M	P		S	M	U	D		D	T	E	S
R	U	M	O	R		A	K	I	N		E	A	L	S
O	R	O	N	O		P	U	N	I		S	U	E	D
S	P	R	E	E		L	I	V	E		S	E	T	S
					E	N	E		E	R	A
			P	A	R	T	I	S		M	A	I	N	E
A	R	E	A		I	S	L	E		M	I	N	E	S
R	I	T	T	A	C	A		S	E	A	M	E	R
O	A	R	S		S	E	M	I		S	I	N	E
		E	L	O	P	E		S	E	N	S	E
C	H	E	E	S	E		D	U	S	T
I	N	A	P	P	R	O	P	R	I	A	T	E	L	Y
O	A	T	S		O	R	E		P	A	R	E	R
A	N	N	I	E		L	E	N	O		R	O	D	S
R	E	O	S		S	T	I	R		S	E	E	D	S

3/16/95



Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

ARIES (March 21–April 19): Your workload may be heavier than usual. Postpone making long–term financial decisions until you have thought things through. Someone will go out of her way to please you.

TAURUS (April 20—May 20): Learn to act independently; you will not be disappointed. A career gamble pays off handsomely. Secret transactions enjoy highly favorable influences. Lunch with those who share your interests.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20): Important social contacts can change your life. Friends with business know–how help you market a bright idea. Writing plays a prominent role in your day–to–day activities. Poetry spices up your love life.

CANCER (June 21–July 22): Others may not be as cooperative or dependable as you hoped. If that is the case, tackle a tough job by yourself. Your resourceful manner quells any critics.

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22): Welcome news regarding your fiances or job makes this a great day. Plan ahead with confidence. A midweek break could prove very rewarding. Lunch with that special person.

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22): You and your mate are on the same wavelength where joint funds are concerned. Put your heads together and make some budget revisions. At work, heed an insider's tips. Personnel changes are in the wind.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22): Your initiative and optimism draw admirers like a magnet. Relying on a friend for financial advice may not be in your best interest. Relax with your family tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21): Roll up your sleeves and get to work! Opportunities abound to make a name for yourself. Those in power will reward the go–getters. Complete one major project before starting a new one.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21): Taking direct action will produce excellent results. The end of a long–term conflict is in sight. Recent research begins to pay off. Wonderful bargains abound for shoppers. Do not be a loner tonight; socialize.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19): Watch your words and temper. Rumors are unreliable; acting on them could lead you astray. Give credit to family members who have made sacrifices for their loved ones. Humor helps you handle a tense moment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18): Friends you counted on could let you down. The tricky issue you face now can be best solved alone. Keep entertainment costs within reasonable limits. A potluck dinner is an inexpensive but surefire pleaser!

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20): Your business plans enjoy highly favorable influences. Reach out to an individual who once worked with you. Something terrific awaits your discovery. Quietly observe people and events; you will soon find the silver lining. Celebrate your birth with the wines of many vines.

Quote of the Day

"I don't let my mouth say nothing my head can't stand.

–Louis Armstrong

Sports

UMass hopes to avoid early tourney exit

Seniors warn against looking too far ahead as some teammates dream of Seattle

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

The question is on the minds of everybody. From the fans to the rest of the NCAA, people want to know: Can Massachusetts, who has suffered disappointing second round exits the past two years, shed recent history and go deep into the NCAA Tournament?

According to senior co-captain Lou Roe, similar dreams of glory did in the Minutemen last year.

"The main thing right now is to concentrate on what we have to do to get better," Roe said. "The biggest thing is to take one day at a time. At this time last year, we were focusing on beating Michigan, and we had Maryland in front of us. They upset us. This year we're taking a different approach by taking one game at a time.

"I know the mistake I made the last couple of years, worrying about getting to the Final Four, looking at the brackets trying to figure out if we could make it. We're going to concentrate on taking one game at a time."

Derek Kellogg said fear of an early upset should keep the Minutemen from looking too far ahead.

"We are worrying about St. Peter's because we don't want to get knocked out in the first round," said the senior point guard. "You look at our schedule this year and games we lost, and games we almost lost, you realize any team in the country can beat anybody else on a given night. We can't overlook anybody because I don't feel like coming back to Amherst campus over spring break."

Coach John Calipari wants his squad not to worry about the opponent.

"We have some tapes on St. Peters," he said, "but I want our team worried about us and how we play."

Experience has taught Roe not to get over-excited, but some of his younger teammates are dreaming of the Pacific Northwest.

"I think we can go into the Final Four and hopefully win it all," said Tyrone Weeks, who will be playing in his first NCAA tournament. "My prediction is that we're going to go all the way."

Sophomore center Marcus Camby stressed staying focused, but he too thinks that a trip to the Final Four is attainable for the second seeded Minutemen.

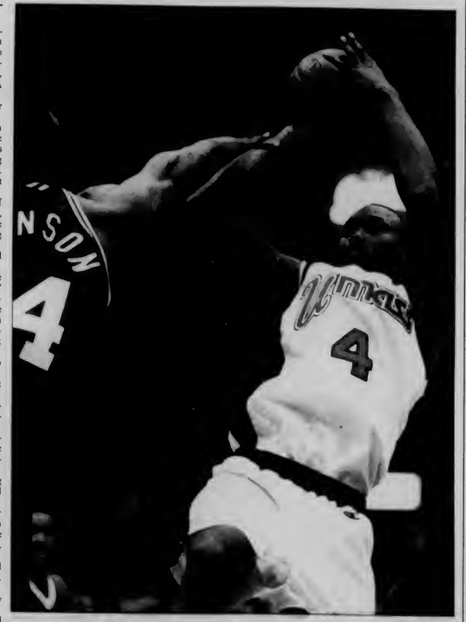
"We have a lot of goals and our sights set for Seattle, but we know we got to take it one step at a time," Camby said. "Hopefully we can go all the way. We have the team this year that can do it. Everybody is focused. Everybody is prepared."

The Minutemen can take the first step toward achieving those dreams when they take on St. Peter's tomorrow afternoon in Albany, N.Y.

Donta Bright said their success in the tourney depends on hard work.

"[This team can go] as far as it wants to go," said the junior forward. "If we listen to the coaching

Turn to TOURNEY, page 2



COLLEGIAN FILE

Donta Bright is among several Minutemen who think the team has a chance at winning the National Title.

Sitton and Steele shine in doubles at Cornell

By Michael Brown
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts women's tennis team had a good showing at the Cornell Invitational Tournament this past weekend.

The Minutewomen had their highest point of the tournament when junior Liesl Sitton and freshman Caroline Steele won the A doubles competition. The duo impressively defeated Cornell 8–3, before advancing to hand Bowling Green an 8–6 defeat. Coach Judy Dixon was very pleased with their performance.

"This is a freshman and a junior who had mixed results in the fall," Dixon said. "Victories over Cornell and Bowling Green are quite impressive so this is their best victory to date."

Sitton, the 1994 New England champion, represented the Minutewomen as the No. 1 player in A singles. She lost her first match to Cornell's No. 2 player. Dixon said she feels her star player is not on the mental plane that she should be.

"Liesl is one of those players who has a chance to move up to the next level and get a regional ranking, but at the moment her work is that she is having a hard time getting up for those players that she should beat easily," Dixon said. "She seems to be losing or almost losing to players of lesser ability."

Sitton did win her consolation match against the UMass No. 2 A singles player, freshman Noelle Orsini. Orsini fell to a talented No. 1 Cornell player with a high regional ranking.

In B singles, the UMass representatives were freshman Caroline Steele and sophomore Liz Durant. The two women each punched in with solid performances as Steele made it to the semi-finals and Durant was the victim of a quarterfinal defeat at the hands of the eventual winner.

The C singles was led by a great effort from freshman Lana Gorodetskaya, who fell in the semi-finals. Gorodetskaya had many opportunities to pull away from her relentless opponent, but the turning point came in the third set when she had a chance to pull ahead 4–1, and eventually win the set and the match, but ended up dropping the set.

Dixon was very optimistic about Gorodetskaya's performance.

"That was one of those matches where as an underclassmen she will lose and remember," Dixon said. "The next time that happens, she will win that match."

There were many positives that came out of this tournament for the Minutewomen, and in general did well considering they were not expected to turn any heads. The fact that five of eight players are freshmen may have played a role in the expectations of the squad. Dixon was pleased overall with the performance of her players.

"The good things were our victory in the doubles," Dixon said. "It is a breakthrough for the University. We were not expected to do well in singles or doubles when in fact we came away with the best doubles you could win. So that is very hopeful in terms of the future of our program."

The Minutewomen now have some time off before challenging their next opponent. After heading to Florida for spring break, they return north to face some tough competition in Seton Hall and Boston University. The Lady Pirates of Seton Hall have a regional rank of No. 12 and the Terriers of BU have a regional rank of two — not to mention an impressive national rank of 55. With Cornell (regionally ranked No. 11), it appears Dixon may have attended the same coaching school as men's basketball coach John Calipari.

"I am trying to push this team into regional rankings, and in order to do that I have to play regionally ranked schools," Dixon said.

With a tough road ahead this

Turn to TENNIS, page 2

UMass lax hopes offense can step up to complement solid D

■ Valente, Glass hope to repeat success; midfield looks strong ■ Defense should withstand key losses through veterans

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

Going into the 1995 season, new Massachusetts lacrosse coach Greg Cannella is happy with his defense, so if his offense can emerge, the coming season could be a bright one.

"Defensively we're pretty sound," Cannella said, "but offensively we really need some people to step up."

Massachusetts returns two-thirds of its starting front-line of a year ago. Last year's leading goal scorer Wes Depp has graduated, but the duo of senior Mike Valente and sophomore Brendan Glass is intact.

The offense starts with Valente, who has emerged as one of the nation's premier playmakers. After a somewhat slow start last year, Valente caught fire at the end, collecting at least two points a game in each of the Gorillas final 10 games, highlighted by an eight-assist performance at Boston College.

"I think the key to our offense is Mike Valente," Cannella said. "We will go as he goes. If you look in the past of games that he's really performed well. UMass has really done well, his whole career. Whether it's scoring goals or getting assists, he's definitely going to be the spark plug back there running our offense.

"Right now he's been a little inconsistent in practice and our scrimmages. We're looking for him to be much more consistent."

The other half of the returning duo became an immediate crowd favorite last year. In only his freshman year, Glass led the Gorillas with 33 goals. While Glass, now a known commodity will likely draw some tougher defenders, his coach thinks he will avoid any sophomore slumps.

"This year probably every team is going to put their top guy on Brendan Glass," Cannella said. "He scored 33 goals last year. It's going to be tough for him. We're going to try to run him on both midfield and attack to get him into the open space. We think he does a great job in loose ball situations. We'll try to set some plays up for him on extra man.

"You can talk about all that sophomore slump and all that stuff, I don't think that's going to be the case with him. He works too hard. He's a guy that works his butt off everyday."

One player that could step into the spot vacated by Depp is senior Jeremy Murphy. Coming off a 15-goal performance last year, Murphy could be a key contributor, if he can remain healthy.

Health has been an "if" throughout Murphy's collegiate career, as his considerable talent has been hindered by several sidelining knee injuries. Cannella said Murphy's health has been fine so far and he expects him to contribute.

"His knee is fine. He's practicing three times a week every other day. In the Brown scrimmage, he played about six minutes and he scored three goals," Cannella said. "I see him playing that role, going in for about three or four minutes and going in on extra man. He's a hell of a shooter."

Cannella realizes that because of the number of injuries Murphy has sustained, that the Marcellus, NY. native will be cautious on the field.

"It's real tough for him. You go out there and certainly you hold back a little bit," Cannella said. "I told my guys forget about caution when you're out there. You really have to go after it. In his situation it's tough, mentally, it's always on his mind, and my mind. He's working through it. We're giving time off when it swells."

The surprise of the preseason so far has been sophomore attackman Henry Stanziali. After a quiet scoreless freshman year, Cannella said that the Long Island native has stepped up his play considerably.

"He's been working hard in practice. The last two weeks of practice,

Turn to LACROSSE, page 2

COLLEGIAN FILE

Senior Mike Valente will set the table for the UMass offense.

By Ted Kottler
Collegian Staff

When a team loses its leading scorer to graduation, perhaps its greatest concern for the new season centers on production. No doubt the University of Massachusetts men's lacrosse team must count on some unproven attackers for goals, but first-year coach Greg Cannella thinks his No. 13 Gorillas can counter that if they play a little defense.

"I'm just confident in the people there [on defense]," Cannella said. "They've worked extremely hard and well together. They didn't have that confidence a year ago, but they've got a lot of pride in what they do and I'm happy with them."

Considerable turnover marks the 1995 UMass defense. Two seniors — Ken Randazzo and Matt Noone — patrolled UMass' zone adroitly last season and will be missed. But a core of returnees — including Dennis Kelly, who will play for the first time in two years — give UMass a potentially seamless unit.

Senior co-captain Jared Lanning spearheads the effort. Named the 1993 Junior College Defensive Player of the Year at Nassau Community College, Lanning followed the same path as many UMass stars and adapted well.

"He's very disciplined, a good senior leader," Cannella said. Tom Healy could use a career year after limited playing time in three campaigns, but Vin Dello–Iacono took the Nassau pipeline to Amherst and has never looked back.

Three sophomores — Greg MacDonald, Matt Tholander and Adam Waxer — are also being asked to boost their play.

"We need those guys to step up back there, but we'll be solid," Cannella said.

Cannella expects freshman Harold Drumm of Ward Melville High School in South Setauket, N.Y., to make an immediate impact.

Kelly, a senior, was touted as a pre-season All-America candidate last year but never had the chance to prove himself on the field. He was suspended for disciplinary reasons by former coach Ted Garber. But a new coach could well expose a new Kelly.

"The day Ted Garber resigned, Dennis called me and wanted to come back," Cannella said. "I've always had a good relationship with Dennis. He's a Long Island guy, I'm a Long Island guy. We sort of understand each other."

"Dennis is an extremely intense individual," Cannella, known to be quite intense himself, said. "If he can control his emotions, he's an outstanding defenseman, probably one of the best in New England. He needs to become much more of a team player. I think that's where he got in trouble."

The last line of defense is goaltending, and UMass made nothing but net gains in the off-season. Senior Tom LoPresti is one of America's most talented and experienced goalies and he now has the comfort of two capable backups, sophomore walk-on Kevin Ratkiewicz of South Hadley and freshman John Kasselakis of Manhasset, N.Y.

Kasselakis is clearly the prize among the 11 recruits in the class of 1998. He will learn the ropes this season before LoPresti hands him the No. 1 role.

"He's top notch," Cannella said. "He'll have an opportunity to play. All our goalies are playing outstanding, an we're very happy with them right now."

COLLEGIAN FILE

Senior co-captain Jared Lanning will lead an experienced UMass defense.

Minutemen to face Frensley, Peacocks
No. 2 seed Massachusetts goes up against Mike Frensley and No. 15 St. Peter's this afternoon in the first round of the NCAAs (See Sports, Page 8).

Bad press or good publicity?
Is the University of Massachusetts receiving an unfair shake from the Boston media? What do you think? (See Campus Perspectives, page 3).

The British are coming
Elastica, already an English favorite, are ready to take America by storm with their self-titled debut album (See Arts & Living, page 5).

Weekend Forecast
Occasional rain this afternoon, 80% chance of precipitation. Stay inside and watch the Minutemen. Balmy weather this weekend, so drag your TV set outside and watch the NCAA tournament.
Today: HIGH: 48 LOW: 30
Saturday: HIGH: 55 LOW: 30
Sunday: HIGH: 60 LOW: 30

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
Volume CIV Issue 97 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Friday, March 17, 1995

PAUL BLOODAU / COLLEGIAN

I gotta get outta here

UMass freshman Julie Mardo waits for a Peter Pan bus yesterday at the Haigis Mall on her way home to New Jersey for Spring Break.

New attention to UM can bring good and bad

By Marnie Thomel and Tim White
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts has come under the media spotlight this past week as two Boston area papers investigated Massachusetts' flagship campus.

The Boston Globe and The Boston Herald have both published several stories looking at UMass, focusing mainly on the Minuteman basketball team and how it affects different aspects of the University.

The first of the Globe's four-part series, which began on Sunday, focused on the University system trying to "rebound" from financial cutbacks.

"We want to get across we feel our University deserves more support from the state and we'd like to see it improve," said Daniel Golden, a Globe projects reporter and one of the writers of the series. "After a series like this, it will be impossible for the legislature to cut UMass' budget."

Golden is a native of Amherst whose parents were both professors of the University.

The series could bring a lot of positive side effects to UMass, according to Ronald Story, vice chancellor for University advancement.

"It showed the problems are a result of a massive decline of state funding," Story said. "It gives us the chance to capture the attention of the public."

The third of the Globe series focused strictly on the men's basketball team, and how being a nationally ranked team may hurt academics and the school's image and perception.

The Globe reported, "Big–time sports — especially basketball — are central to President Michael Hooker's strategy to put UMass on the map.

Yet, rather than enhancing the University's reputation, athletic prominence could jeopardize it."

According to Story, it is articles like these that can sometimes have an adverse effect on the University.

"It is irksome when people talk voluminously about sports and not about Pulitzer Prize winners and national Book Award winners," Story said.

The Globe also questioned promotion of academics in athletics.

"Specialists in college sports see one shortcoming in UMass' support program for players; it is controlled by the athletic department, not the University's academic advisers."

Some feel that pieces like this shed negative light on the University.

"I think sometimes stories like [the Globe's third segment] can have a negative impact on public opinion and make it look like we're not trying hard enough," Story said, "and give misleading impressions."

The Herald ran a few stories focusing completely on the basketball team, men's basketball coach John Calipari's financial situation and the poor dollar support at UMass even with winning athletics.

Michael Silverman, a sports reporter at the Herald, said he feels coverage of the Amherst campus has gained popularity, especially with the Boston newspapers.

"With the off–court stuff, there has been more coverage as a whole," Silverman said. "Especially as it fits in with the University."

But, Silverman said, it comes with the territory when the basketball team is in the national spotlight.

Although the majority of the media focus is on UMass' financial distress and big–time basketball, the final part of the Globe series focussed on the possibility of recruiting high priority faculty to boost the University's image and reputation.

The article defined three crucial ambitions from President Michael K. Hooker's office to strengthen UMass — boost teaching credentials, research facilities and economic development.

According to the article, however, "without a massive infusion of state funds, it may not be possible to excel in all three areas."

Chancellor David K. Scott said the Globe series highlights the difficulties facing UMass and brings these issues to the attention of the Commonwealth.

"The University has accomplished a great deal in the face of severe obstacles, many of which are documented in the Globe series," Scott said.

"We will continue to try and improve the University and advocate to everyone that doing so is in the best interest of the Commonwealth."

Publicity for University linked with basketball

By Jessica Taverna
Collegian Staff

While the Boston Globe's four–part series on the University of Massachusetts takes a critical look at the harms of having a top–notch athletic program and the power it can hold over an entire University, the Globe, in essence, is truly showing its readers the power that athletics possesses over an entire state and its media.

Although the Globe gave the University extensive coverage regarding vital issues, such as enrollment, academic standards, faculty recruitment and retention and lack of funding and support, it did so at an imperative time in the basketball season — a time when the University is gearing up to head off to the NCAA tournament.

News Analysis

This is not a new trend.

The last time the University got marked front–page coverage, UMass was warming–up for the start of the basketball season.

The Globe article published on Oct. 19 cited UMass basketball players' transcripts, and claimed that four of the players were on academic probation.

In its recent series, the Globe reported that "critics say recruiting academically borderline players can jeopardize the school's image."

Yet, the basketball players' failing grades initially brought the University into the limelight, so that five months later there could be an investigative look into the hard work and difficult challenges faculty and students, attempting to survive budget cuts and lack of support, are facing.

Regardless of the effects of the exposure, both articles came at a time when UMass was a top priority for many readers of the Globe — a time when UMass athletics is putting Massachusetts on the map.

The same academic program that allows students to lag in their academics has afforded the University and the state a great deal of attention and publicity.

The same basketball team that can bring UMass President Michael K. Hooker to the University, which he has graded with a "C+", is the same team that is attracting media coverage, state and nationwide.

The Globe and other media organizations may have truly revealed the power of a top–notch basketball program, enough to get the state to stop and take notice.

Schools prepare to fight disease

By Jessica Taverna
Collegian Staff

All five colleges have responded to the recent death of an Amherst College student by making available information about the contagious disease which she died from, and distributing antibiotics to those who want or feel they need them.

The disease, meningococcal meningitis, is contagious and can be fatal if not treated promptly.

Amherst College is the only area college that has confirmed cases of meningococcal meningitis, and the only one that has experienced a student death in relation to the disease.

Two other students from Amherst College who had been under observation in suspect that they had the disease, received confirmation Wednesday that they were not infected, according to Terry Allen, spokesperson for Amherst College.

Although none of the five colleges have any more confirmed or suspected cases of the disease, precautions are still being made.

According to Allen, the Amherst College Health Services have already inoculated half of its students.

Some Amherst classes were cancelled and a few exams were postponed. The College made allowances for students if they wanted to leave for Spring Break early, and there were no penalties for those who missed classes, Allen said.

The University of Massachusetts had a handful of people that were given antibiotics because they had come in contact with the two Amherst students who were infected, according to Karin Sherbin, spokesperson for the University.

Seven Hampshire College students who had had casual contact with one of the two Amherst students, were given preventative antibiotics, according to JoAnn DiLorenzo, spokesperson for Hampshire.

There have been a lot of calls to all of the schools' health services, regarding questions about the disease.

The health services at Mount Holyoke College have received anywhere between 200 to 300 calls, and have inoculated 90 students with antibiotics, said Kevin McCaffrey, spokesperson for the College.

The Amherst Fire Department has prepared for any cases that may occur in the future by designating the third of their three ambulances for transporting of infected individuals, among its other duties, according to Fire Chief Victor Zumbruski.

Meningococcal meningitis infects through contact with saliva, and carries along with it symptoms similar to that of the flu. The disease requires early recognition.

Commission reduces concourse fees

By Henry J. Brier
Collegian Staff

The Campus Center/Student Union (CC/SU) Commission met last night and further discussed the Space Allocation Procedure's related aspects, and they were also given a presentation by two student vendors.

The Space Allocation Procedure is in its later stages of completion, and it entails a Space Application/Renewal Form and a Space Agreement Form, according to Matthew Auger, Commission chair. The Commission plans on completing the entire procedure after spring break.

J. Alex Coisman and James Richards, two student vendors who sell silver jewelry, spoke to the Commission in regards to the amount charged for setting up tables on the Campus Center concourse. The Commission sanctions and regulates businesses that market products on the concourse.

According to the CC/SU Commission table vending policy, effective Jan. 1, 1995, student vendors selling perishable items pay $20 for every day their table occupies the concourse. When the table is selling manufactured items, the vendors pay $30 per day for their table.

According to Coisman, student vendors, on the average, sell $100 to $150 worth of merchandise per day. The merchandise is pre–purchased for roughly $60. For silver jewelry, the right to set up the table costs $30. Other incurred costs include the fee charged at the University parking garage, which is usually about $7.

This leaves the vendor with "$29 at the end of the day," Coisman said. Vendors work from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., which

Turn to COMMISION, page 3

Professor speaks on the merits of 'the Q word'

By Wendy Darling
Collegian Staff

A Williams College professor said "the Q word" in a March 15 lecture at the University of Massachusetts.

History professor Chris Waters discussed the word "queer" and queer theory as part of the Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual Studies Lecture Series. The series is sponsored by the UMass Program for GLB Concerns.

Waters, who taught a course on queer theory in January, began his remarks by offering an explanation of the usage and meaning of the word "queer." According to the professor, this word was considered outrageous and distasteful only six years ago. Today, however, it is being used more and more often by GLBT political organizations, academic theorists, and individuals.

"Queer" gains popularity

There are three main reason why "queer" has become so popular, said Waters.

First, many people feel that labels like "gay," "lesbian," "bisexual," and "transgender" are inadequate when used to convey the complex variety of human sexual orientations. Instead of allowing people the freedom to understand themselves on their own terms, these terms force people to think of themselves and others on the terms of a false dichotomy.

"Queer" has also risen to popularity as people have become more familiar with the idea that sexual identity is unstable and exists in a fluid state that cannot be qualified by labels. For instance, bisexuals may go through periods when they are exclusively attracted to members of their own sex, and there may be times when they are exclusively attracted to members of the opposite sex.

Are they homosexual or heterosexual, or are they bisexual — no matter whom they are attracted to at the moment? "Queer" may solve this problem, said Waters.

Finally, Queer Nation brought "the Q word" to national political prominence when it was formed in the late 1980s as a radical action group. Queer Nation chose its name to indicate opposition to the tactics of more conservative groups like the National Gay and Lesbian Task Force.

Term still controversial among GLBs

"Queer" is still a controversial word among gays, lesbians, and bisexuals, especially among older individuals who see it as indicating they are "aberrant" or "abnormal," said Waters. "Queer" also has many negative associations from its widespread use, past and present, as a homophobic epithet.

By contrast, said Waters, many young people seem to embrace the term, no matter what their sexual orientation. Waters referred to a heterosexual woman in his queer theory class who liked the word "queer" because she felt confined and insulted by being called "straight."

This popularity is evident on college campuses across the country, as many college GLBT organizations change their names from Lesbian Bisexual Gay Alliance to names that include "queer," e.g. Queer Students Alliance. On the UMass campus, an all–day GLBT festival set for May is being called Queer Fest.

Three different meanings

"Queer" has three meanings, said Waters, the first of which is as a simple replacement for "gay" and "lesbian." This usage reflects the notion that sexual identity is fluid, even among those who are primarily attracted to members of the same sex.

Another usage of the word encompasses a "community of individuals who together define themselves as not normatively heteroasexual," said Waters. Such people include gays, lesbians, bisexuals, transsexuals, transgender people, and all those who do not fit standard sexual or gender norms. Heterosexuals who embrace ideas of nonconformity can also be "queer."

Finally, some people use "queer" as a way of deflecting attempts to label and/or categorize them. Instead of calling themselves "gay," "bisexual," "straight," etc., they call themselves "queer," thus

Turn to QUEER, page 3

Spring vacation good time to begin searching for a job

By Matthew Wurtzel
Collegian Staff

Students staying home for spring break have an excellent opportunity to investigate summer job possibilities.

"If students are not going away, they should utilize their time by setting up interviews and sending out resumes," said Jeff Silver, associate director at University of Massachusetts Mather Career Center.

Students should begin their search by "networking" as Silver calls it. Networking entails speaking with family, friends and even faculty about opportunities they may be aware of.

Students should look through newspapers and take interest of advertisements to get an idea of what types of jobs are out there. Silver said the yellow pages in the phone book are always a wise idea as well.

If students are interested in a business, they should call the firm. When calling a business ask for human resources, and never ask an open ended question such as "do you have any summer jobs?" Silver said.

After doing some preliminary

Turn to JOB, page 3

SGA Election Results
Spring 1995

SGA Presidential race:

Christina Lopes	1479
Charles Mark Seber	166

SGA Trustee race:

Dan Rivera	1468
Mike Bateman	198

Referenda Question 1 affirmed support of Student's Voice! with 1539 in favor and 220 opposed.

Referenda Question 2 affirmed support of Massping with 1318 in favor and 441 opposed.

Total voter turnout: 2239 and 441 untallied absentee ballots, would have had no effect on final results

All Area Government election results have not yet been tallied.

Campus Police Log

Traffic Stop

March 12

Jeremy M. Lowe, 22, of Belmont, was arrested on Stadium Drive for operating a motor vehicle with defective equipment, under the influence of liquor.

Annoying Behavior

March 12

A female reported a male individual masturbating on the 20th of floor of the W.E.B DuBois Library. There were two following reports that the male had been spotted in the library, one of which was on the 24th floor.

March 16

There was a report of individuals throwing items from the roof of Wheeler Residence Hall.

Vandalism

March 14

There was a report of a priced-open vending machine on the Campus Center concourse. The estimated value is $1,000.

Larceny

March 14

An individual reported his telephone receiver stolen from Moore Residence Hall.

An individual reported that her room door had been unlocked in Brown Residence Hall and the contents of her safe had been stolen. The estimated value is $50.

An individual reported that her credit card had been stolen from John Adams Residence Hall, and used to make $200 worth of purchases.

An individual reported that his Car Discman and CD player were stolen from his room in Gorman Residence Hall. The estimated value is $300.

Suspicious Vehicle

March 14

Latasha D. Shular, 22, of Amherst was arrested on Fearing Street for speeding. Shular was also charged with operating without a valid license plate or license, and possession of a fake identification card.

GOP effort stymied by Dems in senate

By John Diamond
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Fresh from their success blocking two of the Republicans' key political and policy issues, outnumbered Senate Democrats said yesterday they stand ready to do so again.

"If they want to pursue this agenda that is dictated in large measure by right wing extremists in the Republican caucus, especially on the House side, we're going to have to confront them," Minority Leader Tom Daschle told reporters.

"We're prepared to do so and I think we've been able to demonstrate fairly effective cohesion in our (Democratic) caucus when those occasions occur," he said.

He cited other measures that might run into Democratic opposition in the Senate, including cuts in a summer jobs program for teen-agers, cuts in President Clinton's national service program, and a provision to make the losers in civil lawsuits pay a portion of the other side's legal expenses.

The Democrats' cohesion produced the second major defeat this month for Senate Republicans. On March 2 it was the balanced budget amendment. This time it was protection for striking workers. Faced with an unbeatable Democratic filibuster, Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole (R-Kan.) abandoned an effort to block President Clinton's order barring federal contracts to businesses that permanently replace striking workers.

"It was a victory for President Clinton," as well as for workers, Daschle said.

Dole withdrew the measure without comment, ending a week-long debate that brought Senate business on an emergency defense spending bill to a halt. Sen. Nancy Kassebaum (R-Kan.), who sponsored the amendment that would have blocked Clinton's order, said she would bring it back later.

Sen. Edward Kennedy (D-Mass.), who led the Democrats' efforts to keep the filibuster alive and prevent the defeat of the Clinton policy by majority Republicans, called Dole's move "a gratifying victory for Democrats in the ongoing battle to defend the basic rights of working men and women across the country."

Republicans and business groups said Clinton's order was illegal because only Congress can make such sweeping policy decisions.

Follow the Minutemen online during Spring Break

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian will be putting the NCAA tournament on the World Wide Web. Check it out for up-to-date coverage of the men's basketball team.

Tournament coverage will include the stories printed in The Collegian, photos taken by Collegian photographers and a video clip of Lou Roe, along with statistics and other information on the tournament. We will be updating the Web during Spring Break.

University students may access The Collegian online through their Internet accounts. The tournament coverage may also be accessed from outside the University.

For students using the University Internet system, type lynx at the prompt. The top of the screen will read "UMass Campus Wide Information System."

Then type G. A prompt will appear which reads "URL to open" in highlighted text. Type http://home.oit.umass.edu/ncaa.

Please direct questions or comments to Kelly Spang, managing editor at 545-3500 or kspang@student.umass.edu.

Hear the hottest bands while they're still warming up.

Milla. Rancid. Todd Snider.
Not household names. Yet.
But you can check them out at one of Media Play's listening stations. And they're all on sale.
So get 'em while they're hot. Or even a little sooner.

10.95
each CD
list 15.99–16.99

Sale prices good through March 23.

MEDIA PLAY
MUSIC • BOOKS • MOVIES • SOFTWARE

Hampshire Mall, 341 Russell Street, Hadley, 582-0410
Open Mon – Sat: 10 – 9, Sun 11 – 5

81-8155-005

Campus Perspectives

Compiled by Marnie Thamel — Photos by Daymion Smith

What do you think of the University's outside press coverage, especially of the basketball team?

"Anything that comes from Boston sucks. Anything that comes from the eastern part of the state is negative, anything from the western part is positive."

—Derick Cheesboro-Weaver
Sophomore, Sociology
Longmeadow

"It is great for the University when high school students hear things about the University, it encourages them to come here. The Boston Globe puts us down, because we are not Boston University or Boston College. The Boston Globe came down so hard on the basketball players. If it happened at BC, I'm sure they would have come up with some excuse of why the players were not doing well."

— Peter Bowes
Senior, HRTA
Williamstown

"You just hear about problems, and not about any solutions. The University gets press coverage from the basketball team itself. It is a money-making part of the University. They use the basketball team to say hey, we have Black kids playing basketball."

—Lisa McCalla
Senior, STEPC
Boston

"It is definitely negative, I think it should be more positive to represent our school. [Coverage] is supposed to show school spirit, but a lot of the times the media makes it negative with regards to grades and academics, like with Mike Williams. [Coverage] should benefit our school and make us look good."

Sarah Lisauskas
Sophomore, Communications
Wrentham

"I think it is too much, that's all UMass is nowadays, basketball. Then again it gives the school some coverage and publicity, too. It gives positive publicity to athletics, but not to education."

Vikashni Singh
Freshman, Legal Studies
Vallejo, CA

"I think that [coverage] is something that needs to be done, everyone knows about the basketball team, it brings people to see UMass. To a point it is taken too seriously. I think there needs to be more coverage with academics, political and financial things."

Michelle McGonagle
Freshman, Chemistry
Enfield, Conn.

Former Bruin speaks about sports

By Mike Reiss
Collegian Staff

Former Boston Bruin player, coach and assistant general manger Mike Milbury gave students a briefing on professional sports during his recent visit to the University of Massachusetts.

Answering to a broad range of issues from his coaching career and the current state of professional sports to his current job as ESPN's hockey analyst, Milbury was candid and off-the-cuff in his presentation last Thursday at Memorial Hall. The School of Management sponsored the event.

Milbury, who lives in Lynnfield, displayed his so-called "no-holds-barred" style in speaking of his thoughts on the current baseball strike, and other sports-related issues.

"When I see guys like (Atlanta Braves pitcher) Tom Glavine who makes $6 million complaining about the strike, it makes me sick," he said.

In regards to the hockey lockout which took place earlier this season, Milbury said "the owners weren't very creative in the package they brought to the table."

The players should have seen the lockout coming from the start, he said.

Overall, the players got what they wanted in free agency, but sacrificed a lot to get it, according to Milbury.

Yet, he expressed optimism about the future of hockey because of increased television exposure through both ESPN and the Fox Network.

"I really feel that with this increased exposure, you are going to see the sport of hockey riding a new wave," said Milbury.

Milbury may consider the National Hockey League in his future, but he said he is happy in his current position.

"You have to understand," Milbury said. "I've died and gone to heaven with this job."

Milbury's responsibilities at ESPN fluctuate from week to week. For example, when the playoffs begin he will work five to six days a week.

Milbury's brother Tom, a UMass graduate who is a partner of the Arthur Anderson Public Accounting Firm, assisted in making the arrangements.

"We like to try to expose our students to as many prominent people in the business world as possible, while also giving them access to a diverse community," said SOM Chairman James Smith. "And the number of people involved in the business of sport are relatively few."

Milbury, a native of Walpole, attended Colgate University in New York.

He later went on to play hockey for the Bruins, before becoming the team's head coach for four seasons, and eventually the predecessor to current General Manager Harry Sinden. He is now secure at ESPN — at least for the time being.

"You have to leave your options open," he said. "I really don't know if I'll go back [to the NHL] if an opportunity presents itself, because I'm really enjoying what I'm doing right now."

Librarian has read the book on women's studies

By Aimee Schwartz
Collegian Correspondent

University of Massachusetts reference librarian for 23 years Paula Mark lectured about "Resources for Woman's Studies Worldwide," Tuesday on the sixth floor lounge of Herter Hall.

Mark retired from the University at the end of January. She was highly regarded among her colleagues.

Joyce Merriam, head of the reference department and Mark's co-worker, said, "She was always a delight to work with. She made crusading efforts to promote the library so students would make the appropriate use of our collection."

As Instructional Services Librarian, Mark taught students, staff and faculty about how to use the library and its services.

The Woman's Studies Librarian

In her discussion, she asked "How do you find materials in Women's Studies?"

She then answered her own question by suggesting, "Stop and look at anything that looks interesting, things will turn up in unexpected ways."

Mark suggests using the resources such as personal relationships, the library, computer and CD Rom.

"The connections you have, will get you the information you need," said Mark.

Although it was not part of her job description, Mark was known as the "Women's Studies librarian" among her colleagues.

She told personal stories of her experiences at various women's conferences.

Mark has participated in several conferences worldwide. She has attended both the third and fourth International Interdisciplinary Congress on Women held in Dublin in 1987 and New York City in 1990.

She participated in the Berkshire Conference on the History of Women both in 1987 at Wellesley College and in 1990 at Rutgers University.

Mark was a member of the Program Planning Committee for the Women, Information and the Future Conference celebrating the 50th anniversary of the Schlesinger Library on the History of Women in America at Radcliffe College.

In 1994, Mark received the Chancellor's Medal for service for the University.

Mark, who is from New Zealand, earned her library science degree from the University of Otago, Dunedin in New Zealand. She earned her master's degree from Columbia University's School of Library Service. At both universities, she was enrolled in the honors track.

"Historians are still rescuing forgotten women," said Mark. "It is not a thing of the past. It is still going on." She added that is not just prominent women in society who are being researched.

Mark and her successor, Emily S. Silverman, have prepared leaflets on finding resources in women's studies available at the library.

■ queer

continued from page 1

confusing those who would pin them down.

Queer theory

Waters spoke at length about queer theory, an area of academic study which, like the word "queer," rejects lines of thinking based on labels and stable identities.

Queer theory has three main goals, Waters said. The first is to analyze the historical process by which "homosexuals" and "heterosexuals" were and are divided in the human consciousness.

The second is to find out how the division of "gay" and "straight" operates in society and what effect it has on individuals and institutions.

Finally, queer theory considers ways of disrupting the current use of labels and constructing new ways to think about sexual identity.

Students in Waters' queer theory class voiced several reservations about the application of queer theory in real life, Waters said. This was despite the fact that eight out of 10 students favored the use of the word "queer" in daily life.

One reservation was that queer theory is simply "pie in the sky" dreaming with no connection to the way people actually live their lives. Theorists would like to believe that people can live without labels, but in real life, labels are too ingrained in human consciousness — and too practical — to be rejected.

Another reservation was that "queerness" is so all-encompassing that it makes real political change impossible, said Waters. Without a single, relatively stable identity to unite them, oppressed groups will find it difficult to organize or present themselves as a united front.

Other students rejected "queer" as "just another trendy label."

■ commision

continued from page 1

breaks down to a wage of less than $4 per hour.

Coisman suggested that the Commission decrease the charge for tables vending manufactured items from $30 to the charge from last semester, which was $12.

The Commission ultimately passed a motion compromising the vendors' request, and will now charge $18 for a table selling manufactured merchandise.

The Space Application/Renewal Form requires that the Registered Student Organization (RSO), Graduate Student Organization (GSO) or agency pursuing office space complete a form with background information evaluating each organization in regards to others vying for space.

"This will present a fair number of objective criteria to assess the qualifications of an organization's application for space in the Campus Center/Student Union Complex," said Colin Cavell, a graduate student commission member.

The Space Agreement Form serves to insure that the organization abides by the Commission's ruling, Auger said.

■ jobs

continued from page 1

investigation of the various opportunities, students should send out resumes and try to prepare interviews.

If students present resumes to businesses in person, they should dress in casual business attire. Students should also consider writing a generalized cover letter to accompany the resume.

If students lack a resume and are unsure of how to start, the career center offers literature on how to create a resume and sample resumes which can be picked up before break, Silver said.

Students should also follow up resumes with phone calls, and interviews if possible.

"Show interest, and be assertive but not obnoxious," Silver said.

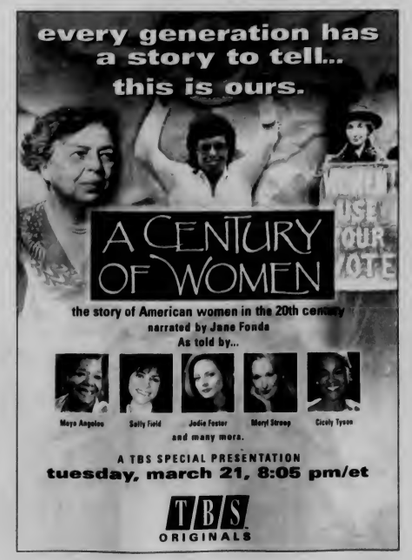
If the company grants an informational interview where a student can learn more about the company, than have questions prepared. Students who have at least another year at the University should ask what types of courses the company looks for in applicants.

Silver said students should visit the career center after break, and enroll in the Field Experience Program if they are interested in a cooperative or internship for the summer.

READINGS BY ABBY
PALM TAROT & ESP READING
HELPS SOLVE ALL PROBLEMS OF LIFE. HELPS YOU THROUGH YOUR GOOD AND BAD CYCLES OF LIFE. TELLS YOU LUCKY DAYS AND LUCKY MONTHS. ONE VISIT WILL CONVINCE YOU THAT SHE IS SUPERIOR TO ALL READERS YOU HAVE SEEN BEFORE
All Readings Confidential and Results Guaranteed
HOURS: 9 A.M. TO 9 P.M.
210 Russell Street, Route 9, Hadley, MA 01035
(413) 586-6711
Walk in's are welcome

PEKING GARDEN
A MANDARIN & SZECHUAN RESTAURANT
SUNDAY BRUNCH $5.99 Regular Menu Available
COMEDY SHOWS Every Fri & Sat
BUFFET LUNCH $3.99 Mon-Sat 11-3
BUFFET DINNER $6.99 7 Days a Week 5-7pm *Includes fruit & salad bar
VISA/MASTERCARD • FREE PARKING
RT. 9 IN HADLEY • 586-1202

Women Have Issues
And we need you to write about them!
Contact Lisa Greenfield or Colleen Shanahan
113 Campus Center
545-3500



DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Darienne J. Hosley Editor-in-Chief Kelly Spang Managing Editor
Michael McRae Business Manager Andrew D. Davidson Production Manager Lisa Tannenbaum Advertising Manager
James P. Gurley Advertising Production Manager Lisa Greenfield Senior Diversity Editor

Matt Audette Arts & Living Editor Paul Bilodeau Photography Editor
Chris Taylor Conner Black Affairs Editor Andrew Bryce, Matt Vautour Sports Editors
Matt Wurtzel Business Editor Jeff Wilson Staff Artist
Juan Jose Chacon Quiros Developing Nations Editor Lisa Greenfield, Colleen Shanahan Women's Issues Editors
Tracy Monahan Editorial/Opinion Editor Marni E. Hellner Editorial Production Manager
Wendy Darling Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor John Khachadoorian Finance Manager
Jacob W. Michaels Jewish Affairs Editor Eric Abenaim Distribution Manager
Hernan Rozemberg Multicultural Affairs Editor Maureen Magerowski Senior Bookkeeper
Jessica Taverna News Editor Marty Pappas Classified Advertising

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1936. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

Celebrate true Irish spirit

"They expect me to give up, but they are going to be disappointed. I shall resist." — Bobby Sands.

Happy St. Patrick's Day to all, on this special day for Irish and non-Irish alike. This is the one day a year when everyone fashions off the green in their wardrobe, chugs green beer, and remembers a distant relative from Ireland. All great fun, but that's not what it's all about.

With all the crazy hoopla going on for St. Pat's, many people celebrating miss the "true meaning" of the festivities. Today is a celebration of what it means to be Irish. To do this we must remember our past, and look to our future.

Our ancestors lived, and died, through one of the darkest times in Irish history: Black '47, when the potato famine was at its worst. England and the ruling class had the ways and means to feed every man, woman, and little child. But the poor were denied humane treatment, and millions lost their lives. The Irish resisted though, and through troublesome times they prevailed.

Have fun celebrating tonight, but don't forget to raise a glass to Bobby Sands, and remember green runs through an Irishman's veins 365 days a year.

Dave Gleeson

Countless numbers of Irish immigrants (many of our fathers, and their father's fathers) sailed across the ocean for a chance in the "land of opportunity" only to be faced with discrimination, poverty, and signs like "Irish Need Not Apply."

The Irish resisted once again, and through the struggles and hard times the determination of the Irish people has persisted. Now, years later, being Irish is all the rage ... ha.

Throughout all of Ireland's history the struggle has continued, but the determination has never let up.

Bobby Sands was one of the many Irish martyrs that captured the heart and spirit of the Irish people, but too many memories have faded too quickly.

Sands was sentenced to 14 years of imprisonment for possession of an unloaded gun. While there, he and his fellow Irish prisoners were horribly beaten and treated as less than human, but Sands resisted.

On May 5, 1981 Bobby Sands died on the 66th day of his hunger strike in protest of England's inhumane treatment. The world looked on as Parliament and (the ever smiling) Margaret Thatcher refused to budge. They let Sands and nine other martyrs die in their arms, without a tear. There are no equal rights and justice.

Sands' determination won, though; his protest had at least temporarily received the admiration of the world. How brave his death was, knowing for weeks that he was going to die, but refusing to give in. Weak in body, but strong in mind, Sands did what he had learned to do, he sacrificed his needs for the needs of his people.

Recently the media's coverage of Ireland's problems in the struggle for peace and independence has waned. The entertainment value has apparently gone down, while British fundamentalists drag their feet in the decision process of independence for Ireland.

That is why the struggle continues today as England vainly attempts to keep their "United Kingdom" in bondage. With the case of Zimbabwe, this country did not gain their independence from England until 1980. They cling to colonialism, and refuse to take their claws out of lands that choose to be free.

England needs an all points bulletin informing them that "manifest destiny" is nobody's dream; their far-reaching influence of the globe has come to an end, and now they are only a tourist spot.

This has caused Ireland to be a divided and war torn land with children fighting and dying in the street. The killing goes on and with every generation born to this war, a new generation of hate and prejudice is manufactured. Feelings that have no place in the hearts of the Irish, and no place in the hearts of any person.

In understanding the problem though, one must realize that the will to be free, to break away any chains of bondage, is the strongest drive in all people. This helps us understand (though not necessarily support) the resistance in Northern Ireland.

The celebration of this day is all about people, history, peace & love, and also shamrocks & shenanigans.

So tonight when you're knocking back the Guinness and Harp, remember there's more to Ireland than green fields, shamrocks and pubs. And there is more to being Irish than pointing on a "Kiss me, I'm Irish" pin once a year. Being Irish is about strong will and determination. Have fun celebrating tonight, but don't forget to raise a glass to Bobby Sands, and remember green runs through an Irishman's veins 365 days a year.

Dave Gleeson is a Collegian staff member.

It's time to wake up

Every winter, some of the animals of the forest, like the bear go into a deep sleep called hibernation in order to avoid the harsh bitterness of winter. These bears fill their stomachs on the pleasures of autumn before crashing in the back of their caves. There they remain until the season is over and it's safe to come back out.

At the dawn of the spring, if you're very careful, you can watch the bears waking up. To save you the trouble, I'll describe it for you.

If you were to observe the whole process, the first thing you'd be able to notice would be the bear's alarm clock. Usually, when a bear is hibernating, the regular alarm won't wake him up, so he sets it to "wake to music" and turns the volume all the way up. That sound is greeted with a grumbling growl and a slap to the snooze button. Unfortunately, bears have big, heavy, clawed hands and the clock is almost always a casualty. For that reason, bears, who are pretty smart animals, set a second alarm clock all the way across the cave. The second one is set for five minutes later, and when it goes off, the bear has to come to grips with the fact that spring is there, and that he's going to have to get up.

Slowly, the awakened bear will raise himself up and lumber towards the bathroom, scratching himself as he goes. The bathroom is a great chance to see just how bad he looks. You'd be surprised what months of sleep can do to a bear. Once he takes care of business, which must feel good after such a long time, he heads to the waterfall (shower). It's only after this extensive wake-up process, that a bear can be prepared to face the newness of the spring.

Like the bears, students go into a type of hibernation. Their hibernation is a different type, because it involves not a deep physical sleep, but a mental sleep. This type of hibernation, like that of the bear is used to avoid some of the more unpleasant aspects of the winter.

Some of the characteristics of student hibernation are sleeping too much, sleeping late, not getting dressed, spending large chunks of time in front of the television and going about with a general boring attitude towards life. The winter is the dreariest of the seasons, and students deal with it by looking at it with a dreary outlook.

The beginning of spring and especially spring break are designed to be the things that wake up the snoozing students. They act as the alarms to most of us. They show us just how many things the season has in store for us. Fellow students, it's time to wake up.

Some students are early risers. Those are the ones who are already up. They can be seen tanning and throwing footballs and discs across some of the grassier areas of campus. These people started waking up earlier this week when the weather turned in their favor.

Others, unfortunately, are late sleepers. They could take weeks to wake up. It's too bad for them because time is of the essence, and with a student's schedule, you never know how often great chances to do fun things come around.

The majority of us are typical, and what this spring break should do is wake us up. With the beginning of the spring, a new spirit comes over us. That spirit says, "Go out and do something!" It seems obvious, given the beautiful weather of the past few days, that there are lots of activities in which we can take part, yet there is a group of students who choose not to. They prefer to sit in their small dreary dorm rooms and watch television or lie in bed. These are the people for whom spring break was designed. These are the ones who need to wake up.

Hopefully, spring break will play the role of alarm clock for those who have yet to break out of their slumber. If Mr. Bear knows anything, it's that waking up isn't an easy thing to do, but he also knows that if you don't wake up, you can't get any honey.

Mark McGrath is a Collegian columnist.

Doonesbury By Garry Trudeau

I DECIDE TO TAKE THE BULL BY THE HORNS! I SET UP AN APPOINTMENT WITH THE GOVERNOR HIMSELF!
GOVERNOR, IF YOU DRIVE TOBACCO OUT OF FLORIDA, PEOPLE WILL PUT ON WEIGHT! THINK OF THE IMPACT ON YOUR BEACHES! AND THE TOURIST TRADE! OKAY?
MY GOD, SIR! PEOPLE ARE DYING AND YOU SPEAK OF WEIGHT GAIN? HAVE YOU NO SHAME, SIR? HAVE YOU FINALLY NO SHAME?
I EXTEND MY VISIT TO THINK IT OVER!
WONDER WHAT HE MEANT BY SHAME...

Opinion/Editorial

WHEN WE PUT TERM LIMITS IN THE CONTRACT WITH AMERICA, WE UNDERSTOOD IT TO MEAN TERMS OF TWELVE YEARS, OR SO, AND ONLY FOR CERTAIN PEOPLE, OR EIGHTEEN, OR POSSIBLY MORE UNDER CERTAIN CIRCUMSTANCES, TO BE DETERMINED BY THE INDIVIDUAL STATES, NON-BINDING, DUE CONSIDERATION BEING TAKEN FOR THEIR PARTICULAR TIME ZONE AN PUSH
APPARENTLY WE FORGOT SQUIRM LIMITS.
I NEVER SAID PACHYDERM LIMITS -
TOLES © UNIVERSAL PRESS SYND
DETROIT FREE PRESS 1-16-95

Just call him Johnny Rebel

Yes! It's spring break 1995 and sunny Florida, here I come! Yeah right, maybe next year. But anyway, I don't mind settling for home and hanging out in Boston and New York. So whether you're reading this column at the beach, at home, or in the car, I'd just like to share some passing thoughts before the break...

• I recently took a psychology survey on male stereotypes. This survey had over 100 different male stereotypes and I had to respond by strongly agreeing with the stereotype or strongly disagreeing. I must admit, I felt like the lowest piece of scum when I was done with the survey. I walked right up to my female friend and said, "I'm sorry."

• The new Boston Garden is going to be named the FleetCenter. Who are we kidding here? The Boston Garden will always be the Boston Garden. Well, to the real fans at least.

• Let me tell you about the most far-out spring break vacation. My friend, Lucy (she's a real UMass student), is going to Daytona Beach today. She's not there to pick up guys, she's not there to drink, and she's not there to do anything illegal. Nope. She's there to talk to people about Christianity. That's right, Lucy and a few of her other friends are hitting the sands of Daytona to talk about the gospel, so if she should bump into you, be nice to her.

• I love the spring season. March Madness, people in shorts and T-shirts playing hoop, Frisbee and volleyball, skipping classes to hang out in the sun, green grass. Ahh. I picture myself as Julie Andrews in The Sound of Music running through the hills singing, "The hills are alive with the sound of music, with songs they have sung..."

• I was going to buy a UMass jacket from the University because of the sale they were having. I picked out one that I really liked but then I saw "Refuse to Lose" written on it so I didn't buy it. It's an OK slogan but it doesn't belong on jackets; maybe T-shirts, but not jackets.

• How come the Minuteman never has anything good to say about the Collegian? I have nothing but great things to say about the Minuteman. I mean, they're a great paper. Really. I always look forward to their tri-monthly issues.

• Is anybody sick of hearing about affirmative action yet? Well, I am. I'm going to try to put it rest with the following final analysis. Discrimination is to distinguish individuals on the basis of sex, race, class, handicap, etc. Now, we as a society are trying to combat and end discrimination. Affirmative action is supposedly a method in helping with this. But it is not. Ending discrimination means ending the fact that race matters. But with affirmative action, race still matters. Race should never matter, ever.

• On a brighter note, Happy St. Patrick's Day to all my friends of Irish descent. I could really use some green beer right now.

• I skipped my Statistics class to write this column. Call me Johnny Rebel.

• And finally, don't forget to watch March Madness during the break. This is the year, man, I can feel it. Refuse to lose. Take care.

David Chan is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor

More outrage on redneck column

To the editor:

I am extremely surprised that a column such as "You know you're a redneck..." was printed in the Collegian. I was outraged when reading it. I myself did not grow up in Amherst or a surrounding town. I have decided to move here because of the area. This area is a very peaceful one. I know both students and so-called "townies," but I have failed to meet any like the ones Dave Copeland describes in his article. What kind of movie was he watching? I have the highest regards toward the residents here. I have become good friends with many. They are decent and intelligent. As a matter of fact, every farmer, UMass employee, cop or other kind of worker has shown me that they bring pride and honor to themselves and their town. Don't forget that they are that clean up from some of the obnoxious behavior of the students.

I am requesting a response from you on why you allowed this column to run. I am also requesting a written apology from Dave Copeland printed in your paper. I saw how this article brought anger from residents, luckily they have self control. I remember when a racial incident occurred not too long ago and a group of people stormed the dorms. I am sure you must have covered that story. Hopefully that won't happen here from Dave Copeland's article. The residents in Amherst deserve better.

Christoph D.J. Moreland
Amherst

Campus drug prob. doesn't exist

To the editor:

In the editorial "Campus Suffers from a Drug Problem" on March 13, Robert Laramee attempts to define a campus drug problem which does not exist, and only succeeds in revealing his blatant ignorance about marijuana. His inexperience with cannabis and its users prohibit him from realizing that the "sweating [and] shivering" response of his acquaintance to a bong hit was atypical. The toxic response, however, was typical of marijuana laced with foreign substances such as PCP. Such adulteration of an otherwise safe and sacred plant would not be a concern if marijuana were legal and quality controlled.

Mr. Laramee apparently did not learn this from his single reference on this complex subject, Encyclopedia Britannica on–line, nor did he bother to look up the scores of scientific studies that have universally declared marijuana to have no toxicity or physically addictive properties in humans (unlike alcohol). Indeed, Mr. Laramee could not have learned this, because we can "throw numbers at him until he's cross–eyed," and his opinions will still not change. We at the Cannabis Reform Coalition have publicly displayed the "identification and communication of the problem," which includes the existence of uneducated citizens such as Mr. Laramee, but unlike Mr. Laramee, we believe that this problem does have a "simple solution:" namely, the full–scale re-legalization of marijuana.

John Lanzerotta
Secretary, Cannibis Reform Coalition
Grayson

Thanks to Edward Bernays

To the Editor:

March 9 saw the passing of Edward Bernays, "the father of public relations." He received a glowing obituary in the Boston Globe which praised him for turning the publicists' work into "a profession, complete with a code of ethics," and noted that Bernays felt uneasy that Josef Goebbels, Hitler's propaganda minister, kept a copy of Bernays' book, "Crystallizing Public Opinion," on his desk.

The Globe did not, however, mention Bernays' work in the 1950s to assist the United Fruit Company and Washington in overthrowing the democratically elected government of Guatemala. Since overthrowing the government of another country is, by definition, a war crime, it is work that would no doubt have made Goebbels proud.

Bernays revealed his code of ethics clearly in his 1928 book Propaganda, in which he writes, "The conscious and intelligent manipulation of the organized habits of the masses is an important element in a democratic society. Those who manipulate this unseen mechanism of society constitute an invisible government which is the true ruling power of our country."

Bernays successfully tapped into the anti-communist hysteria of the 1950s to aid his (and Washington's) client, the United Fruit Company in retaining its empire in Guatemala.

In his 1982 book, The CIA in Guatemala, Richard H. Immerman writes, "Although Edward Bernays, United Fruit's public relations counsel could not get UFCO's Zemurray and his lobbyists to use their influence with the Truman White House to persuade the government to institute more activist policies, Bernays himself did take active steps. Referred to in the field as "the father of public relations," and an "institution," Bernays, beginning in the late '40s and early '50s, launched a campaign to publicize the communist menace in Guatemala.

The result, to this day, has been a terror state which has exterminated 100,000 Guatemalans, wiping out hundreds of villages in pure Nazi fashion.

Guatemala's first (and second to last) democratically–elected president, Juan Jose Arevalo was entirely accurate when he said that the Nazis didn't lose the war — they were militarily defeated but their tactics have survived and flourished.

Thanks in part to Edward Bernays. May he rest in peace.

Michael Dolan
Amherst

Arts & Living

New sitcoms highlight the week in television

While sampling a few new sitcoms last week, I was appropriately reminded of an old joke about a scientist and his bunch of artistically–inclined monkeys. This scientist, see, was setting out to prove how ordinary primates could produce abstract paintings with enough flair to fool even the most pretentious of critics. Given the latest batch of mid– season replacements, I wouldn't be a bit surprised if yet again we critics have become the victims of another similarly cruel hoax.

Because out of the five new programs I saw, four of them were actually pale reproductions of old shows in disguise — and two of them were so awful that I have a sneaking suspicion that they were actually written by baboons. Admittedly, a few of them weren't too bad, but having such creative inspirations as "Frasier" and "ER" to compete with, they'll have to meet some pretty high expectations if they expect to become more than simply blatant rip–offs.

But more about the artistry of apes later. First, I must commend a flawed, but nevertheless interesting documentary airing this week on Channel 38 called "The History of Rock and Roll." Produced by Time/Life (the guys who make those great CD infomercials) the miniseries attempts to cram five decades of music into a scant 10 hours with only moderate success.

The concert clips and interviews with such musicians as Salt N' Pepa, Johnny Lydon of the Sex Pistols and an especially haggard–looking Bruce Springsteen the must be exhausted from all the public appearances he's been making lately) were enjoyable, although I noticed the filmmakers having quite a bit of trouble fitting all of the legendary musical moments into the all–too–brief hour segments.

Grunge rock fans, for example, will be disappointed to see Kurt Cobain's influence severely down played, while virtually any viewer should notice the inexplicable lack of attention granted 80's superstars Madonna and Michael Jackson. These objections aside, however, "Rock and Roll" is still an engaging, if not in–depth, overview of recent developments in music history.

Having said that, it's time now to tackle four shows that only in this past week have made their network debuts, and still at first glance should feel very familiar to anyone currently living in our TV–saturated modern world. Of these, the one done with the most potential for improvement is probably CBS' "The George Wendt Show" — which could either soar or completely fail to pieces in the coming weeks, depending on the quality of its scripts. Here, we follow the adventures of yet another "Cheers" alumni who hosts a call– in radio show and regularly cracks wise with his eccentric younger brother.

But if "George Wendt" loses some brownie points for its lack of inventiveness, the show still deserves credit for having characters with a slightly offbeat sense of humor. Even though the gags didn't come as fast and furiously as I would have hoped, the pilot episode dealing with the brothers' irreverent approach to religion still contained momentary glimpses of comedic promise comparable to "Frasier" or even "Cheers" on a slow night.

Don't get me wrong, "George Wendt" isn't even close to matching the overall sharp–wittedness of either show, but this series is still a fledgling — one that, with time, just might develop into something worthy of a second look.

NBC's "Hope and Gloria," on the other hand, doesn't even deserve a first look, never mind a second. I hate this show, and not just because it plays like an idiotic revival of "Kate and Allie."

What really bugs me is the fact that shallow programming like this can land a slot in NBC's much envied Thursday night line–up, which virtually guarantees success for even the most tedious of sitcom retreads (NBC's superficial "Seinfeld" copy "Friends" is evidence of this phenomena).

If I worked for such good shows as "Seinfeld," "Mad About You" or "ER," I would resent the way that lazy network executives try to exploit my efforts to breed such vapid, predictable productions. "Hope and Glory"'s plot in a nutshell: two gals who are diametric opposites live together in platonic bliss. One's tough, the other's a whiner. One's a realist, the other's got her head in the clouds. One sleeps around, the other's sexually repressed. And so on, and so on.

And if your response to this information is a terse "Who cares?," congratulate yourself for having good taste, and take pride in turning off your TV between 8:30 and 9 p.m. on Thursday. I know I will.

Also making its premiere last week was Fox's light– hearted contribution to the recent hospital show craze, "Medicine Ball." It follows along with several young doctors through their first year of residency, and while the series doesn't seem to have the slick style of "ER," or the impressive acting talents of "Chicago Hope," this ensemble is still a notch above the soap–opera silliness of the syndicated "University Hospital."

This week's pilot episode carried the attractive MD's along at a pretty good pace by largely straying away from too much blood and gore, while at the same time not getting too caught up in the messy melodrama of the characters' private lives. Good cheer abounds on "Medicine Ball," but still the question looms: do audiences really want another hospital show? My guess is that this series will probably turn out to be a moderate hit, provided it continues to inhabit the cozy time slot following "Melrose Place."

Tracy Gavel is a Collegian staff member.

Tube Notes
By Tracy Gavel

Elastica bring back New Wave with debut

By Matt Audette
Collegian Staff

ELASTICA
Elastica
DGC Records

COURTESY JURGEN TELLER

Trends come and trends go. Already the '90s have seen a sort of "punk revolution" that has made such things as green hair and adolescent angst both fashionable and profitable. What's next? Well if England's newest export Elastica has any say in the matter, it will be skinny ties and mod haircuts. Elastica, whose self–titled debut has been released on DGC Records, seem poised to single–handedly recreate the New Wave craze of the late '70s and early '80s.

The band has already risen and then fallen in the eyes of the fickle British press (hmm, imagine that) and has been credited with starting the whole New Wave of New Wave fiasco that has taken that country by storm. The band even has the perfect credentials: lead singer/guitarist Justine Frishmann was once a member of England's finest wihners The London Suede, and her current beau is the lead singer of Blur.

Sounding like a wonderful combination of Blondie, The Buzzcocks and early Wire, Elastica tosses off 16 new wave nuggets, taking the listener on a time–traveling journey to a period when attitude — and your haircut — was everything. It's all here — from the scratchy guitar sound that was favored by such legends as Gang Of Four and The Fall to the pseudo–disco funk that bands like The Talking Heads and Blondie utilized to much commercial success. Even the album's grainy and simple album cover harks back to the early '80s scene.

Derivative — yeah, but what isn't? In a day where sniveling snots like Green Day can make millions doing their best Johnny Rotten, Soundgarden can receive critical praise for reinventing '70s arena schlock and Snoop Doggy Dogg can sample yet another Funkadelic tune — who cares? Elastica are about as original as all of the above, but unlike the rest of the aforementioned copy–cats, they sound more like a band paying homage than a cartoon version of previous styles.

Basically Elastica's songs fall into two categories: fast two–minute punk burst that recall The Buzzcocks at their best and more intricate and dance–like numbers that include keyboards and nifty little sound–effects. This lack of variation grows tiresome after awhile, but luckily Elastica have enough sense to keep things short and sweet. The album contains 16 tracks, but only clocks in at a scant 40 minutes.

The album kicks off with the Elastica harken back to the days of old with their self– titled debut album.

one–two punch of "Line Up" and "Annie," both brief and brilliant slices of pop/punk but then picks up the groove with the next, and best, two tracks, "Connection" (which literally steals the opening of Wire's "Three Girl Rhumba") and "Car Song." Both tunes are perfect illustrations of Elastica at their new wave greatest. Both tracks find Frischmann spouting off lyrics In her best Deborah Harry impersonation (only much more snotty) over the grooviest bassline since "Heart Of Glass."

Other stand out tracks include "S.O.F.T.," "Indian Song" and "Stutter," (which was previously released as a 7" single) — all of which take the pre–subscribed Elastica formula and shake it up a bit. And that is just what Elastica needs; while their worshipping at the New Wave altar is at times fun, it would be nice to see a little bit of their own two cents thrown into the mix.

Often the album becomes "let's see if we can spot the influence" and less like the work of a brand new band. Listening to Elastica is less like listening to a band's debut album and more like perusing through New Wave's greatest hits.

Of course, the verdict is still out on whether the States will welcome the rebirth of New Wave with as open arms as they did with punk but regardless, Elastica are armed and ready. Rock on. B

'Friends' a hit series for the '90s generation

By Frazier Moore
Associated Press

NEW YORK — At Cheers, everybody knew your name.

On "Friends" they know each other's names, coffee preference and seemingly everything else. And do they love to talk about it!

Rachel to Phoebe: "I can't believe he hasn't kissed you yet. I mean, by my sixth date with Paolo he had already named both of my breasts." Then to the entire group: "Oh ... did I just share too much?"

A little racy? A little rude? Relax. It's just talk, bandied among the sitcom world's sexiest sextet. Also, its most prudish.

Befitting an 11th–place ranking for the season to date, "Friends" is full of pretty funny talk.

Ross: "She said she's looking for a relationship with someone exactly like me."

Joey: "She really said that?"

Ross: "Well, I added the 'exactly like me' part."

Or...

Phoebe (peevish): "Why would you want to ask out my sister?"

Joey (exasperated): "So that if we went out on a date, she'd be there!"

But there's one thing more important to a sitcom audience than laughs: comfort level.

Just as with "Cheers" and its bar, "Taxi" and its garage, or scores of other sitcom successes, "Friends" invites your vicarious involvement with a family of friends as they cocoon in each others' living rooms or at the Central Perk, a living–room–like coffee bar.

Bottom line: Who wouldn't want to join them in their floating kaffeklatsch?

Monica ("Family Ties" Courteney Cox) is a detail–obsessed chef at a Greenwich Village restaurant. Her rich–girl roomie is Rachel ("The Edge's" Jennifer Aniston), who abandoned her fiance at the altar. Ross ("NYPD Blue's" David Schwimmer) is Monica's hangdog older brother whose wife has left him for another woman.

Joey ("Vinnie & Bobby's" Matt LeBlanc) is a hunky would–be actor and Chandler ("Sydney's" Mathew Perry) is a wisecracking data processor who discovers to his dismay that some women think he's gay.

Finally, Phoebe is a waifish, aura–cleansing folk singer (played by Lisa Kudrow, also Phoebe's twin sister Ursula, the out–to–lunch waitress on "Mad About You").

In sum, the "Friends" family consists of six twentysomethings, all of whom are good–looking, wholesome, perky and thin (is this a hit sitcom or Up With People?).

What they aren't is getting it on with one another.

"Friends," then, is the perfect sitcom for the '90s. The hormones flow in sheets along with the talk, while the show celebrates a grateful respite from sex, the fast track and material success, all within the chaste refuge of friendship.

As the cloying theme song goes, "Your job's a joke, you're broke, your love life's D.O.A., but I'll be there for you."

It's not Irving Berlin, but it gets the point across. It also sums up the storylines, which deal with pressing matters like dinner with the 'rents, giving up cigarettes, ditching a guy your friends are crazy about, or having to fire an assistant you want to date.

Of course, "Friends" has its shortcomings.

If you count this as one, the show, despite its emphatically New York City setting, is decidedly un–New Yorky. Indeed, the coffee bar seems better suited to a small college town or a suburban mall. Is this friendship so strong it provides a hermetic seal against Manhattan's oddities and mean streets?

Meanwhile, the caffeine–pumped pacing, while it may keep channel surfers at bay, sometimes undercuts the comedy. For instance, during a Lamaze class, Ross, in the absence of his pregnant ex–wife, is forced to pinch hit as the expectant mother while his ex–wife's lesbian lover claims the father's coaching role.

UMass musicians delight enthusiasts with jazz classics

By Jesse Auth
Collegian Correspondent

FOURTEENTH ANNUAL JAZZ SHOWCASE
Bowker Auditorium
March 14

If you needed a break from studying for midterms on March 14, then Bowker Auditorium was the place to be.

The Fourteenth Annual Jazz Showcase featured several Music Department ensembles such as The Jazz poets, The Vocal Jazz Ensemble, the University Jazz Ensemble, The University Jazz Ensemble Saxophone Section, The A Cafellas, The Chapel Jazz Ensemble, The Jazz Lab Ensemble, The Graduate Jazz Quartet and a Guitar Duo.

The various groups covered seventeen "Jazz Standards," from a wide variety of jazz musicians.

Most of the songs came from the early to middle part of this century.

The cover songs included a couple of Miles Davis songs, a Herbie Hancock song, a George Gershwin song and many others.

In addition to having a variety of cover songs and influences, there was also a broad selection of jazz styles in which the songs were played.

Some of the bands sang their jazz songs in an a capella style, while some of the other bands utilized different kinds of instruments.

As in many other jazz shows there were a number of different musical tools used to make the songs sound a lot more smooth.

One tool that was heavily used in the show was the solo.

A solo was featured from at least fifteen different musicians on a number of different instruments.

There was one special kind of a solo featured called the cadenza.

This is when all of the rest of the musicians pause from playing while one musician plays freely.

There was also a slightly humorous cover of the song "If I Only Had A Brain," by Harburg Allen.

This song, featured in the film The Wizard of Oz was sung on by the A Cafellas who also participated in this year's Silver Chord Bowl.

The show provided a fun and relaxing evening for everyone who attended, whether they be jazz enthusiasts or merely interested.

STUDENT FARES

LONDON	$250
AMSTERDAM	$430
PARIS	$438
FRANKFURT	$458
MADRID	$498
BRUSSELS	$430
MOSCOW	$518
ZURICH	$478
PRAGUE	$458
EURAIL FROM	$255

FARES BASED ON RT FROM BOSTON. TAXES NOT INCLUDED. STUDENT ID MAY BE REQUIRED. DEPARTURES THRU 3/31. FARES SUBJECT TO CHANGE.

Council Travel
79 S. PLEASANT ST., 2ND FL
AMHERST, MA 01002
413-256-1261

OOPS! Fender Lizard Corp.
CARSTAR Collision Repair Centers
Where America goes for Quality Collision Repairs
• Free Estimates
• 5 Year Nationwide Warranty
• Direct Insurance Billing
• Auto Glass Replacement
• Car & Truck Rental
North Amherst CARSTAR 79 Old Sunderland Road, North Amherst, MA 549-2880
Northampton CARSTAR 1414 Damon Road, Northampton, MA 586-4444

Hunan Garden 家滿園南湖 Restaurant
The Best Chinese Buffet
MANDARIN/SZECHUAN CUISINE
WE DELIVER IN AMHERST 5-9:30 EVERYDAY
Free Delivery for orders $15 and over; $2 charge for orders under $15
Monday Thru Saturday
LUNCH BUFFET 11am - 3pm
$3.99
TAKE OUT SERVICE - FULL COCKTAIL MENU
10 Belchertown Rd. at Rt. 9, Amherst 256-0252

The FYI section of the Collegian is open to the community to advertise events in the area. Our deadline is 3 p.m. daily and we do not accept FYIs over the phone. Please mail or hand deliver your submissions as early as possible. All submissions must be type–written with a contact name and phone number to clarify any questions.

Lincoln Real Estate
253-7879 • 25 N. Pleasant St. (above McDonald's)
Has the best selection of 1,2,&3 bedroom Apartments with gas heat
We begin showing apartments in April and May for June or September occupancy

Write for the Valley's best source for entertainment news and views!
Arts & Living
Call 545–1361 for information

Upsets highlight first day of tourney

No. 12 Miami (Ohio) 71
No. 5 Arizona 62

DAYTON, OH — Miami of Ohio stunned Arizona 71–62 in Midwest region action on the opening day of the NCAA tournament yesterday.

Devin Davis hit a layup and three foul shots in the last 29 seconds to help the Redskins pull off the upset. Davis finished with 24 points and a season–high 15 rebounds against a Wildcat front line that was hurt by fouls and the suspension of Ben Davis.

Damon Stoudamire, who was returning from a one–game NCAA suspension, scored 18 points to lead Arizona who were down by only two with a minute remaining.

The loss just adds to the Wildcats' recent NCAA tournament woes. Besides going to the Final Four last year, Arizona has now lost in the opening round three years out of four. Miami will play Virginia in the second round.

No. 1 Wake Forest 79
No. 16 North Carolina A&T 47

BALTIMORE — Wake Forest rolled to an 18–point halftime lead and went on to bury North Carolina A&T 79– 47 in the first East Regional game of the tournament.

The Demon Deacon duo of Tim Duncan and Randolph Childress led Wake Forest. Duncan scored 21 points while the ACC tournament MVP Childress added 15.

The Aggies were led by John Floyd who scored 18 points. NC A&T have lost all nine NCAA games in school history.

Wake Forest will play St. Louis in the second round.

No. 13 Manhattan 77
No. 4 Oklahoma 67

MEMPHIS — Manhattan offered some justification for its NCAA at–large bid by upsetting the Oklahoma, 77–67.

The NCAA drew criticism for selecting Manhattan out of the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference. The Jaspers finished the regular season at 25–4 but lost in the Championship game to St. Peter's.

The Jaspers' bench came through, as Jeronimo Bucero scored all of his 14 points and Justin Phoenix all of his nine points in the second half. Ryan Minor had 24 points for the Sooners, but the Big Eight Player of the Year went 18 minutes without a field goal. The victory puts the Jaspers in the second round against Arizona State.

No. 5 Arizona State 81
No. 12 Ball State 66

MEMPHIS — Arizona State coach Bill Frieder remains unbeaten in first round NCAA games. The Sun Devils beat Ball State 81–66 as Frieder ran his career mark to 6–0 to start the tournament. Ron Riley scored 24 points and Mario Bennett added 21 for ASU.

The seemingly jittery Cardinals missed six of their eight shots and suffered seven turnovers in the opening eight minutes. Arizona State made 50 percent from the floor.

Arizona St. will face Manhattan in the second round.

No. 4 Virginia 96
No. 13 Nicholls State 72

DAYTON, OH — Sophomore Harold Deane scored 15 of his 21 points after halftime to help Virginia throttle Nicholls State 96–72.

Deane hit 12 of 15 free throws while Gerard King scored 18 points to lead the Colonels who will play Miami of Ohio in the second round of the Midwest Regionals on Saturday.

Nicholls St. had won 12 straight.

No. 7 Cincinnati 77
No. 10 Temple 71

SALT LAKE CITY — Cincinnati and Temple combined for 26 three–pointers, with the Bearcats winning on the scoreboard 77–71. Lazelle Durden led Cincinnati with six long range bombs and finished with 24 points.

Freshman Johnny Miller, who was hampered by an ankle injury, led the Owls with 30 points.

The 26 treys were one shy of the tournament mark set by Missouri and Wisconsin last March.

No. 2 Connecticut 100
No. 15 Tennessee–Chatt. 71

SALT LAKE CITY — Connecticut scored the game's first 15 points en route to a 100–71 thrashing over Tennessee–Chattanooga in NCAA Western Regional action.

The clock showed 15:15 remaining in the first half before the Moccasins could muster up a point.

The Huskies will meet up with Cincinnati in the second round.

No. 9 St. Louis 64
No. 8 Minnesota 61 OT

BALTIMORE — After blowing a 17–point lead, St. Louis regrouped to beat Minnesota 64–61. The overtime victory not only put the Billikens into the second round of the East Regional, but also marked their first NCAA win in 43 years.

■ basketball

continued from page 8

"She chases the ball for rebounds. She does a great job," Massachusetts coach Joanie O'Brien said.

UMass' frontcourt trio of Melissa Gurile (First Team All A–10), Octavia Thomas (Second Team All A–10) and Crystal Carroll (Third Team All A–10) will have the difficult task of trying to contain Darcy, who has led the team in rebounding in all but three games and has twice pulled down 20 plus rebounds (20 against Army on Dec. 3, 1994 and 21 against Southern Mississippi on Feb. 12).

"We'll just have to keep her off the boards," Gurile said.

VCU has three other players who are averaging in double figures in points, Svetlana Pankratova (13.5 and a team– leading 69 blocks), Jacinda Alston (12.7) and Gabrielle Kyhlstedt (10.6). Kyhlstedt leads the team in assists with 133, but also leads the team in turnovers with 114. She is the Rams leading three–point threat, hitting 54 treys on the year.

"The frontcourt matchup will be good," O'Brien said. "It's going to be a challenge for Crystal, Mel and Kara [Tudman]. They've got good guards, too. Kyhlstedt is a real good three–point shooter."

"They have a pretty big frontcourt so that's going to be a good challenge for us," Gurile said.

Walvius was equally impressed with UMass' frontcourt as she was with UMass' three–point threat Beth Kuzmeski.

"I've seen a lot of film the past two days. They are a real nice team," she said. "I've been really impressed with Octavia. She's a real nice athlete who does a whole lot for them. Gurile is very, very impressive and Carroll is impressive. All three are physical, shoot well close to the basket, have range, put the ball to the floor well, are real strong and they finish well. They also have a nice three pointer shooter in Beth. I think we matchup real well with them. Their strengths are our strengths."

The Minutewomen feel that playing in the NIT will only help them in the future.

"It will help us out because we're not used to playing right now," Gurile said. "We're talking about, gosh, it feels weird that we're practicing right now because we're usually at home not doing anything."

"Hopefully we can see where we're at on the national level," Kuzmeski said.

"I think if we hadn't gotten the opportunity to play it would have been a very, very, very long off season," O'Brien said. "Regardless of wins and losses, to go down and have to play three games in three days regardless, is going to force us into an experience that we need. We need to learn what it is to play back–to–back–to–back, just for Atlantic 10 purposes, so that's good.

"If we can do a good job we're going to open up the eyes of a lot of people that still probably don't know a thing about us."

■ lacrosse

continued from page 8

What is even scarier is wondering how good Virginia can be if it plays a complete game.

"We started the way we hoped, but we'd like to get a little better," Starsia said. "We've got room to improve."

Not much. Knight is not alone and UMass better be ready to defend an attack that averaged over 18 goals a game last season and nearly as many this season. Traynor netted six hat tricks last season and leads all active Cavaliers with 59 career goals. He has eight this season, while senior Michael Watson, Virginia's active scoring leader (46 goals, 80 assists, 126 points) is also off to a fine start (9–8–17).

Junior goalie Court Durling will be in net for Virginia, and should see UMass senior Tom LoPresti opposite him.

For UMass, a thorough effort is required to compete with Virginia, though the Cavaliers have not recently fared well at home. They were only 4–3 at Scott Stadium last season, compared to 9–1 away from home. Cannella said UMass would try to slow down its attack against Virginia, hoping to keep away from the Cavaliers' dangerous attack. And though Starsia and most experts thought Princeton and Syracuse had the nation's top two defenses, Virginia outscored those teams 26–11.

UMass must find a way to crack Virginia's impeccable special teams. The Cavaliers have connected on 8 of 19 extra man chances, and has cleared 102 of 134 chances. Opponents have only scored four goals in 22 extra man chances.

Starsia is concerned about Virginia's capacity to maintain the momentum from those unprecedented victories.

"Personnel–wise, we really don't have a handle on UMass, so we have to focus on our own play," Starsia said. "We had a couple of difficult games [at Princeton and Syracuse], and now we've got to get going again. Since we don't know much about UMass, it's a crapshoot. We'll just do the best we can."

One thing Starsia does know is what Cannella adds to UMass.

"I like Greg Cannella a lot," Starsia said. "They'll be better conditioned and organized now."

The game can be heard on WMUA, 91.1 FM (UMass Flagship) on a tape–delay, following WMUA's broadcast of UMass basketball's second round game versus North Carolina–Charlotte or Stanford beginning at 12:10 p.m.

■ horn

continued from page 8

as traditional as its fans, with the bleacher creatures and the Gallery Gods. Answer to the name problem — The New Boston Garden.

The off season acquisition of Alexi Kasatonov is just another reason Harry Sinden is the best in the business at his profession. Say what you will about Sinden, I'll take him as my GM any day of the week. Anyone who can get three first round draft picks from a team that never seems to make the playoffs for an underachiever like Glen Wesley, is quite an accomplishment.

• It looks as though we will continue to have real football around here for a while. Kudos to Bob Kraft for grabbing Dave Meggett, the game breaker the Pats' sorely needed, and for not waiting until the last minute to resign the next MVP of the NFL, Drew Bledsoe. Now if Bill Parcells can manipulate the draft as he has managed to do the past two years, they could be headed to the promised land.

• Why would anyone, never mind Alvin Harper, want to go play for the Tampa Bay Suc ... eh ... I mean Buccaneers?

• Jordan is a basketball player. He made a mistake leaving the game he held in the palm of his hand. Now he wants it back. But sorry, my winged–footed friend, the NBA is Shaq Country now and you won't be bringing a title to the United Center.

• Dave Cowens, you were a great player in your day but not when you're 46. Jordan is one type of athlete, you are another. An ex–athlete. Ralph Sampson, this goes double for you.

Justin Smith is a Collegian staff member.

■ polo

continued from page 8

ended for the swim team, whose roster includes several water polo players.

The team faces some very strong teams this year, particularly for a rookie program, but Newcomb stresses the schedule will prove to be a beneficial one.

"It adds another dimension to the program," he said. "It really gives players something to go after. I would hope we'll be able to return to the Eastern Water Polo Championships."

Early in the season the Minutewomen, co–captained by junior Barbara Mullen and sophomore Vicky Bamond, will face one of their toughest challenges playing against strong West Coast teams at the Pomona Tournament in Pomona, Calif.

Newcomb believes the trip will be a great learning experience for his squad because of "the pure level of talent of the teams on the West Coast. It's some of the best [competition] we'll see all year."

"It will be a good experience to see what really strong teams play like," Mullen said of the tournament. "Competition in the West is much stronger than in the East."

"I think we have a good chance of beating some of the teams who beat us last year," Mullen added. "This time last year, some of us had even touched a ball. But this year we've been practicing for months."

The season officially begins this weekend with the historical first meet. UMass, whose goaltender will likely be junior Jessica Griffith, will play Wellesley, Harvard, Bates and Bowdoin.

"[Water polo's] growth is staggering and amazing," Newcomb said. "Women's water polo is really becoming an emerging sport nationwide."

Teri Klein contributed to this report.

■ ski

continued from page 8

in the giant slalom with a time of 113.60.

Muliero was pleased with both of her performances in the Nationals as well as her showing amongst 65 other top competitors.

"I think it was a good experience," Muliero said. "It shows you what you're going up against next year when the Nationals come around."

Being recognized as an All–American is something few freshmen accomplish.

"Hopefully this will set new standards for new women skiers to come to UMass," she said.

Schaefer, who did not ski the slalom because of a back injury, believed that his performance in the giant slalom was significantly effected by his seeding in the competition.

Since Muliero and Schaefer skied as independents, they were randomly placed among the other competitors and not up front with their usual racing peers.

Schaefer, who skied at No. 52 in the giant slalom said, "The sport has become so competitive that every advantage you can get is taken to the limit."

■ gymnastics

continued from page 8

Coach Beverly Plocki had a big influence on him, and he feels more than comfortable in this return to where his collegiate career started from.

"The team that they have at Michigan now, is basically the team that I helped recruit," Kuzara said laughing. "So, it will not bother me too much getting beat by the team I recruited there.

"We are excited about going in there and giving them a run for their money. Next year, we will be there in January anticipating to win the meet, especially with the athletes we have returning."

A–10 Championship: Over spring break the women's team will not be on vacation, as they will be travelling to Philadelphia for the Atlantic Ten Championships. There will be the rematch with No. 20 West Virginia, but Kuzara expects the surging George Washington and University of New Hampshire teams to more than show well for themselves. He believes that the competition will bring about the .500 point differentials that has followed this tough conference all year long.

Classifieds

• 20¢ per word per day for students
• All ads must be paid cash/2 days in advance
• Ads may placed at 113 Campus Center
Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

AUTO FOR SALE

'89 Pontiac Lemans–sport 70,000m Metallic blue. Excellent condition. $2,100 or b.o. Call 549-7321

1982 Mazda RX 7 94K, 5 spd, brs, sunroof, metallic light blue, must see/drive a nice ride! $1500. Call 253-2149

COLLEGE PRO PAINTERS

College Pro Painters now accepting applications for painter and foreman positions in eastern Massachusetts. No experience necessary. Call 1-800-346-4649 today.

FISCHER PLOW FOR SALE

Fischer plow 8 ft. with snow reflector and carbide cutting edge, used once. Asking $2,100 Call and leave message 467-9168

FOR RENT

Two and three bedrooms available for June 1st. Call Mid Valley Estates 253-7377

FOR SALE

92 EZ Extremes 3yr 49lb bindings w/bag. Used 3X perf cond. 500/bo Rich 865-2998

Kegerator 500/bo Rich 665-2998

Macintosh computer Complete system including printer only $599. Call Chris at 800-289-5685.

Bulkhead motor. 7 1/2 hp Nissan '93 Used twice $250 Dan 5-3034 or 865-5150

286–386 computer system. CPU monitor keyboard $275. Steve 549-5181

Motorola Pagers for sale! 549-3241 Ask for Andy

HELP WANTED

AA cruise ships hiring! Earn big $$$ and free world travel (Caribbean, Europe, Hawaii, etc.) Summer/permanent, no exper. nec. Guide (919) 929-4398

Alaska summer employment! Earn thousands this summer in canneries, processors, etc. Male/female. Room/board/travel often provided! Guide. Guaranteed success! (919) 929-4398 ext. A1063

Alaska summer employment. fishing industry. Earn to $3,000-$5,000+/month + benefits. Male/female. No experience necessary. (206) 545-4155 ext A5803

Dancers wanted. No experience necessary. Earn $1000-$1500 per week 532-1472

Fall 1995 internship with the Students Legal Services Office, get hands on experience in the legal field. Work directly with attorneys and clients. Earn up to 15 undergraduate credits. No experience in the profession necessary–training provided. Deadline is April 14th– contact Legal Services today 545-1995, 922 Campus Center

Free food plus DC rebate for dishwashing and pot cleaning. 549-6919

Part time marketing/sales. Excellent opportunity to gain business experience with a new company engaged in providing assistance to job seekers. Excellent commissions, good training. Will be a great addition to your resume. Local, no car necessary. Call (401) 295-5490 after 2 p.m.

LOST

Bullocks fans March 3 Boystate or Fitzwilly tot. Yin Yang pendant. Reward 586-5822

Lost March 11th Live Show. Army Jacket Brown sweater, reward, no questions asked, sentimental value Abbie 546-3614

MOTORCYCLES

1981 Yamaha Seca 650. Ex. cond 950/bo Rich 665-2998

PERSONALS

Happy six months Alex! Have a great spring break Andy

Lauren May, Who's your big sis? Figuring out is the fun, clue #1 has just begun 1 have brown hair and brown eyes, I'm new to UMass and AEPhi. I'M,???

Someone to watch over you. We look out for students better than any other credit card. Call 1-800-Citibank to apply. Note: we won't hit on your dates.

The sisters of Sigma Delta Tau would like to welcome our new members Megan, Amy, Danielle, Suzanne, Sheri, Leigh, Colleen, Leslie, Eileen, Lori, Kelly, Julie, Christine, Teri, Samantha, Kim B., Kim T., Jen and Lisa.

To my big sister Rebecca, Who says your not creative? Thanks for everything! Love, your little sister, Lisa

RIDE WANTED

Need rides to Boston or anywhere from Boston to Beverly on weekends. Gas $ 253-2809

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wanted. 258/month Behind Baybank, on bus route. Call Kristen 549-3992

SCUBA DIVING

Earn 2 credits learning to dive Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, or Thursday 7-10pm 1-800-262-0977 Project Deep

SERVICES

International students–visitors DV-1 greencard program, by U.S. Immigration Legal Services. Tel (818) 882-9681 (818) 998-4425 2031 Stagg St., Canoga Park, CA 91306 Monday-Sunday 10am-10pm

Madam usaryi Call the Playground 865-256-8085, 192K box 130 mega online + CD ROM. Registered online games include Lord, BRE, Usurper, Global Wars & Pantera!

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright for free testing and caring confidential support. 549-1906

TRAVEL

Be Europe $169 anytime Cards/Max $189 r/t Free brochure Airhitch TM 212-864-2000

Spring Break! Bahamas cruise 6 days $279! Includes 12 meals! Cancun + Jamaica from $429! Panama City $129! Daytona, Key West + Cocoa Beach $159! 1-800-678-6386

Be Europe. $189 anytime Cards/Max $189 r/t free brochure airhitch tm 212-864-2000

TYPING

Data entry and word processing. Reliable and fast. Call Andy 586-0876

WANTED

Buying UMass BB tix. East regionals/Headstands. Paying top dollar (603) 432-7411 Kraig

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN

Classifed Advertising Submission

RATES
$2.00 minimum/day
Students:
20¢ per word/day
All Others:
40¢ per word/day
Special Heading:
$2.50 Extra
NO REFUNDS

I hasitleds can be delivered in person, or through Campus Mail to room 113 Campus Center (in the basement) at least 2 days before the ad is to run. Payment must be received with the submission.

Standard headings for classifieds are: Activities, Announcements, Auto For Sale, Entertainment, For Rent, For Sale, Found, Help Wanted, Instruction, Lost, Motorcycles, Musicians, Personals, Ride Wanted, Riders Wanted, Room Wanted, Roommate Wanted, Services, Summer Sublet, To Sublet, Travel, Typing/ Wrod Proc., Wanted to Rent, Wanted.

REGARDING PERSONALS
1. All personals SHALL be practical in character and not violate standards very below personal acceptance of the Leadership.
2. Last names may not be used in personals. The only exceptions are for birthday & congratulations personals.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals.
4. Addresses, or dorm room numbers are not allowed in personals.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory, vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: _____ Date: _____ Taken By: _____

Dale(s) to run: _____ Headline: _____

Total Days: _____ X _____ Words: = _____ X rate _____ = _____ Payment

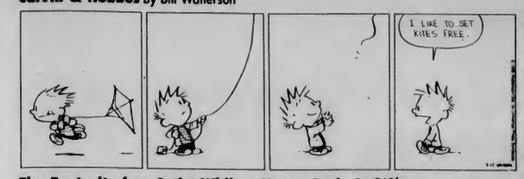
Special heading ($2.50 extra): _____ Authorized signature: _____

ADVERTISING COPY

1		1
2		2
3		3
4		4
5		5
6		6
7		7
8		8
9		9
10		10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used

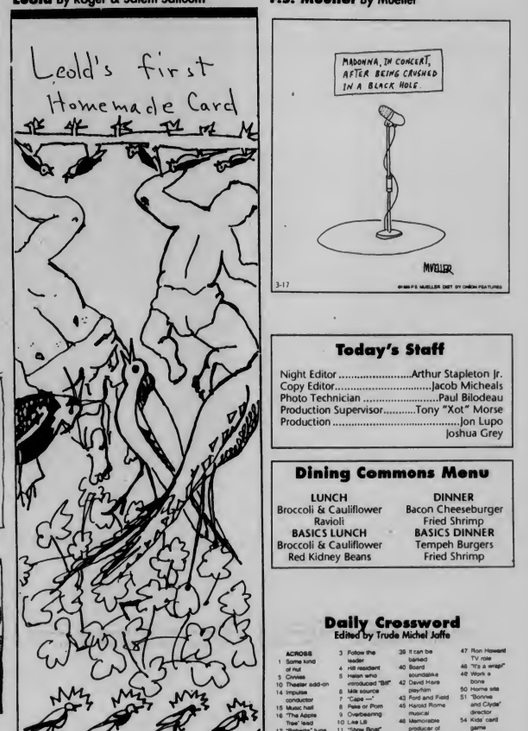
Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson



Garfield By Jim Davis

The Portrait of an Artist While a Young Dude By O'Gleeson

Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom



P.S. Mueller By Mueller

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

Jim's Journal By Jim

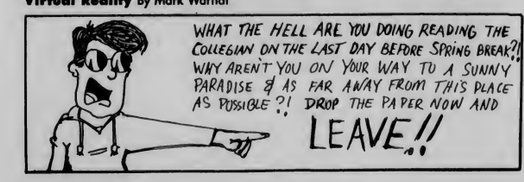
Today Ruth came over and showed me the new coat she got.
It had a special kind of soft lining on the inside.
She said it was on sale and she couldn't pass it up.
She hung it on a chair and Mr. Peterson tried to climb up inside it.

Bruno By C. Baldwin

Dilbert By Scott Adams

THE RUMORS ARE DESTROYING OUR PRODUCTIVITY. WE CAN'T WORK WITH ALL THIS UNCERTAINTY
I PLAN TO BUY PROVEN TECHNOLOGY AND HIRE CONTRACT EMPLOYEES. YOU'LL BE GOPHERS FOR THE CONTRACTORS UNTIL YOU RESIGN IN DISGUST AND HUMILIATION.
IS THERE ANY WAY TO GET BACK TO UNCERTAINTY?
I'LL SEE WHAT I CAN DO

Virtual Reality By Mark Warnat



WHAT THE HELL ARE YOU DOING READING THE COLLEGIAN ON THE LAST DAY BEFORE SPRING BREAK?! WHY AREN'T YOU ON YOUR WAY TO A SUNNY PARADISE & AS FAR AWAY FROM THIS PLACE AS POSSIBLE?! DROP THE PAPER NOW AND LEAVE!!

Today's Staff

Night Editor ..... Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Copy Editor ..... Jacob Micheals
Photo Technician ..... Paul Bilodeau
Production Supervisor ..... Tony "Xot" Morse
Production ..... Jon Lupo
Joshua Grey

Dining Commons Menu

LUNCH
Broccoli & Cauliflower
Ravioli
BASICS LUNCH
Broccoli & Cauliflower
Red Kidney Beans

DINNER
Bacon Cheeseburger
Fried Shrimp
BASICS DINNER
Tempeh Burgers
Fried Shrimp

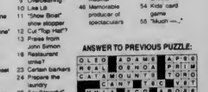
Daily Crossword

Edited by Truda Michel Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Some kind of rat
5 Orioles
10 Theater add-on
14 Impulse conductor
15 Music halt
16 "The Apple tree" lead
17 "Roberta" tune
18 IV x DI
20 "A Chorus Line" tune
21 Ripener
22 Isaiastic
24 Top banana
25 Close a "Sunset Boulevard"
26 Comeback
29 Past absolute
32 New York city
33 "Grease" cast
34 — de la Cria
36 Connect sweetener
38 Insert alert
37 Lapidus's bird
38 Sail
39 Dress risers
40 Whine
41 Bernstein opus
43 Players workplace
44 His work inspired "Carla"
45 Feathered frond
48 Subway fares
48 Saturday night special
49 Spacy
52 Bow on Broadway
53 "Three Sisters" tune
56 Gossip
57 Pope Onesciner role
59 Give the needle?
60 Joan and Jennifer
61 Wilfred, the poet

DOWN
1 Right finish
2 Team in the fold
3 Follow the leader
4 Hill resident
5 Helen who introduced "Biff"
6 Milk source
7 "Cape —"
8 Peas or Prom
9 Overbearing
10 Lea Lib
11 "Show Boat" show stopper
12 Cut "Top Hat"?
13 Poise from John Simon
18 Restaurant smile?
23 Certain barkers
24 Prepare the sundry
25 Sal, "Howdy"
26 Cowboy gear
27 Sad song
28 Composer born 1-27-1685
29 Designer Ellis
30 Thijan Weir epic
31 Auditions
33 Spot
35 Eliminating 2 of 3
37 See 18 Across
39 It can be banked
40 Board roundabouts
42 David Harris playfoot
43 Ford and Field
45 Harold Rome musical
46 Memorable producer of spectaculars
47 Ron Howard TV role
48 "It's a wrap!"
49 Work a bone
50 Home site
51 "Bonnie and Clyde" director
54 Kids' card game
55 "Mush —."

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:



3/17/95

Life is good.
The sky is blue.
I'm only unhappy,
When I'm with you.

Love occasionally,
Leold

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

ARIES (March 21–April 19): With luck, you can have it all today! Show faith in those who share your talents and beliefs. If you force the pace at work, you could run into resistance. Drink more whiskey. Have a great spring break!

TAURUS (April 20—May 20): Success will depend on both good timing and speed. A new partnership could lead to higher profits and more fulfilling romance. Have a great spring break!

GEMINI (May 21–June 20): You could find success in an area you have never explored before. Getting in touch with with an older person puts you in a nostalgic mood. Have a great spring break!

CANCER (June 21–July 22): Pay more attention to a dream; it could prove prophetic. Treat children with greater tact. Have a great spring break!

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22): Tread lightly, over–confidence could trip you up. Travel brings good luck; you run into compatible people. Have a great spring break!

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22): Things begin to fall into place. You receive recognition for past efforts or new support for a special project. Team up with a friend or relative if going shopping this evening. Have a great spring break!

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22): A key friendship continues to give you strength. Emphasize the many benefits of teamwork to your associates. A valuable lesson can be learned. Have a great spring break!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21): Your job responsibilities mount. Forge ahead. Your faith in someone influential is justified. A third party's intervention helps you over a hurdle. Brilliant thoughts arrive tonight. Have a great spring break!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21): Open your heart to humanity but do not neglect family or career matters. Hard work will bring rich rewards. Your warmth and affection provide a healing touch. Have a great spring break!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19): You may have to explore several different pathways before finding your true vocation. Remember, independence is essential for your spiritual evolution!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18): Continue to walk tall and banish self–doubt. Taking on new duties will provide greater financial security for you and your loved ones. Have a great spring break!

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20): Domestic concerns captura the spotlight early today. Quiet meditation will give your psychic sensitivity a real charge. It is time to tighten your financial belt. Have a great spring break!

Women have issues:
we need you to help us address them!
Come down and write for the Women's Issues section of the Collegian.
Contact Lisa or Colleen at 545–1361 or come down to our office in the Campus Center basement.

amc THEATRES
$2.50 (TWI-LITE) SHOW DAILY
ALL SEATS ALL SHOWS
Before 6:00pm
LIMITED TO SEATING
MT. FARMS 4 ROUTE 9 HADLEY
Call Theatre For Showtimes
PURPLE RAIN R
HIDEAWAY R
DETROIT ROCK CITY R
CANDYMAN: FAREWELL TO THE FLESH R
HAMPSHIRE 8 HAMPSHIRE MALL ROUTE 9 HADLEY
Call Theatre For Showtimes
BY BY LOVE PG-13
MASK OF THE AVENGER PG-13
THE BRADY BUNCH MOVIE PG-13
NOBODY'S FOOL R
THE SHAWSHANK REDEMPTION R
BIO-RHYTHM PG-13
JUDY BERLIN PG-13
TALL TALE PG

CUTTY'S
Minutemen
March Madness
at Cutty's on Friday, be there for the game
St. Patrick's Day
Corned Beef and Cabbage
$5.90
Michael Sheas
$2 Bottles

Quote of the Day

"Did you hear about the bars at Arizona? They kick you out before you get to the second round."

–Overheard

Sports

Massachusetts prepared to face Peacocks

Minutemen hoping to avoid early round exit in Albany

By Andrew Bryce
Collegian Staff

The anonymity of the first round opponent for a team of Massachusetts' caliber is apparent each time the NCAA Tournament rolls around.

Last year, the victim was Southwest Texas State, a Southland Conference team, who fell to Massachusetts 78–63 last March. This afternoon the Minutemen (26–4), the second–seeded team in the East Region, will stack up their talent against the likes of St. Peter's (19–10), at Knickerbocker Arena in Albany NY.

Well, as anonymous as a team with a player that has a ponytail can get.

St. Peter's point guard Mike Frensley, the ponytail guy, scored 19 points, including a trey in overtime to tie the MAAC final with Manhattan at 78. Frensley then buried a 12–footer from the right baseline with 4.2 seconds to upset the Jaspers 80–78. Manhattan had clobbered the Peacocks twice during the regular season (by 21 and 23 points).

The fact that the game was televised nationwide on ESPN, and that it turned into an upset, did factor into the appeal of Frensley and his unusual hairstyle while playing. But the 5– foot–10–inch guard, who averaged 9.6 ppg during the regular season, had an outstanding tournament. In three MAAC tournament games, Frensley had just one turnover and averaged 11 points.

Would Massachusetts coach John Calipari tolerate Frensley's hair?

"Depends on how good the guy is," Calipari said with a laugh. "If he's real good, it could be real long."

Two other Peacock standouts include forward Luis Arrosa, who led the team in scoring (15.4 ppg) and rebounds (7.6 rpg) during the regular season. Randy Holmes was second on the team in the scoring category with 15.1 ppg. And Calipari calls St. Peter's coach Ted Fiore, "the best coach in the country that no one's heard of."

The statistics are easy to see and can be analyzed. But how does a team like Massachusetts prepare for a rather obscure and television exposure–lacking team like St. Peter's?

"We're doing it mostly off of tapes. Tapes on St. Peter's, the other ones I'm not even going to look at right now. Usually it's 7–10 minute showing. Not much, just a small dose. I want our team worried about us, the way we

Turn to MINUTEMEN, page 6

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

The No. 2 seeded Minutemen will look to avoid an upset when they meet up with the No. 15 seeded St. Peter's Peacocks in the first round of the NCAA tournament today.

Game Preview

No. 2 UMass Minutemen vs.
No. 15 St. Peter's Peacocks
At Knickerbocker Arena
Albany, NY
Approximately 3:00 P.M.

Derek Kellogg

Mike Frensley

Probable Starters

Derek Kellogg	F	Mike Frensley
Edgar Padilla	F	Randy Holmes
Marcus Camby	C	Bas de Voogd
Dana Dingle	G	Moe Segar
Lou Roe	G	Luis Arrosa

On the Air

TV: CBS
Radio: WMUA 91.1 FM Brian Perillo, Anthony Guido
WHMP 99.3 George Miller and Jack Leaman

No. 1 Virginia tough test for Cannella, Gorillas

By Ted Kottler
Collegian Staff

There is only one definition of "cupcake" in University of Massachusetts men's lacrosse coach Greg Cannella's dictionary: dessert.

In his first game as head coach, the two–year UMass assistant will not be feasting on any in its season opener, instead it faces the University of Virginia, a 1994 Final Four participant, Sunday at 1 p.m. at Scott Stadium in Charlottesville, Va.

Virginia coach Dom Starsia may have his best squad in four seasons in Charlottesville. The Cavaliers certainly staked that claim last week when they pinned road victories on defending National Champion Princeton, 11–4, and pre– season No. 1 Syracuse, 15–7, in their first ever visits there.

Virginia stands at 4–0 (its first two wins came at home over Navy, 24–13, and Penn State, 20–12) and should vault past Syracuse to No. 1 in the Coaches' Poll.

The Cavaliers disposed of the Gorillas in last season's first game, 20–6, at Hofstra. After falling behind 5–1, UMass cut the lead to three before Virginia ripped off 10 straight goals to take a 15–2 halftime lead. Senior midfielder Greg Traynor paced the Cavaliers with six goals that earned him ACC Player of the Week.

Sunday's game shapes up as a duel of super sophomore attacks between UMass' Brendan Glass (33 goals last season) and Virginia's Doug Knight (18 goals this season). Knight and his offensive cohorts could not miss in the first two contests, but surprisingly it was the defense that came alive on the road, as six of Virginia's defenders are freshmen.

"We've sort of taken turns," Starsia said. "Offensively, we were terrific in the first two games, but our attack was sloppy as hell at Syracuse. But the defense stepped up when our attack struggled."

Starsia has been unable to scout UMass since it has not played, saying it is "a little scary" preparing for Sunday and feels his team enters the game "a little bit blind."

Turn to LACROSSE, page 6

Minutewomen head to NIT

By Candice Flemming
Collegian Staff

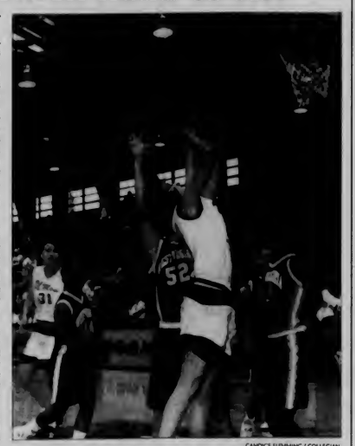
The University of Massachusetts women's basketball team will look to gain valuable experience when it heads to the National Women's Invitational Tournament from March 23– 25 where it will be the No. 5 seed.

The Minutewomen will go up against No. 4 seeded Virginia Commonwealth University. Texas A&M (18–9 overall) is the No. 1 seed followed by No. 2 seeded Clemson (19–10), No. 3 seeded Notre Dame (19–9), No. 6 seeded Pacific (20–12), No. 7 seeded Northwestern State, La. (23–6) and No. 8 seeded East Tennessee State (20–7).

Massachusetts will play VCU in the first game of the tournament on Thursday, March 23 at 1 p.m. Notre Dame will go up against Pacific at 3 p.m., Clemson will meet up with Northwestern State at 6 p.m. and Texas A&M will play East Tennessee State in the final matchup of the day at 8 p.m. Each team is guaranteed to play three games.

VCU finished the regular season with a 19–8 overall record, 6–6 in the Metro Conference. The Rams are led by Niamh Darcy. The 6–foot–4 senior from Dublin, Ireland is a force on the boards averaging 12.8 rebounds per game, and has 346 for the year. She also leads the team in scoring (15.1 points per game) and steals (81 thefts).

"Niamh is pretty consistent," VCU coach Susan Walvius said. "She makes things happen for her. She's very talented."



CANDICE FLEMMING / COLLEGIAN

The Minutewomen will head to Amarillo, Texas during spring break to participate in the Women's NIT tournament where they are the No. 5 seed.

Turn to BASKETBALL, page 6

Minutewomen to begin first varsity season

By Steven Grant
Collegian Staff

The athletic department at the University of Massachusetts will welcome a new member to its list of varsity sports this coming spring, as the women's water polo team has escalated from club sport status to challenge itself with a schedule full of nationally respected opponents.

The team, which has no seniors, is young and relatively inexperienced. Five of seven starters from last year are not returning. But Massachusetts coach Bob Newcomb remains enthusiastic about the upcoming season, citing funding from the University and the higher commitment level for both the athletes and the coaching staff as major differences in the program.

"The whole level of the program has stepped up," Newcomb said. "We started practicing eight or nine weeks in the fall and then began again in January this year."

Last year, the team did not get going until early March, after the season

Turn to POLO, page 6

Michigan meet may help run to NCAAs for UM

By Jorma Kansanen
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts women's gymnastics team (10–8 overall, 4–1 A–10) will be competing in another important multi–team meet this Saturday in Ann Arbor, Mi. Included with the home No. 5 nationally ranked Michigan team, the other squads in the competition will be No. 10 Penn State and North Carolina State.

Looking to take a step towards a possible two seed in the NCAA Eastern Regionals next month, the win is not the foremost in mind of coach Dave Kuzara, but the continuance of high scoring is.

"I feel very comfortable with putting this team in tough competitive situations, and see how they react," Kuzara said.

"They [Michigan] clearly have more power than we have, and it would be one of the greatest upsets in women's gymnastics if we beat them. However, it is a legitimate thought that we finish second in this four team meet."

One of the participants will be familiar foes for the Minutewomen, as they will be facing Penn State for the second straight week. Last Sunday at the Lady Bulldog Invitational in Athens, Ga., UMass was just edged out by a little over one point by this nationally ranked adversary. The 191.550–190.525 score showed the closeness talent–wise, but this meet could be different, as Penn State is coming in banged up. Injuries at a bad time of the season for the Lady Lions could open the door for an upset.

On the other hand, UMass is coming into this meet off a great week of workouts, and also as one of the healthiest teams in the country. It is good timing for them as they are currently only .600 of a point behind Kent State for the second seed in the Regionals this April 8th. The bad news is that the important national meet is being held in Kent, Ohio; the good news is that with a good showing (i.e. consistent 190's this meet and the A–10s on March 25th), they can make a stake for that No. 2 seed.

"We need to have a perfect day at this point of the season, and as a team be extremely competitive," Kuzara said. "We need to hit twenty four out of twenty four routines, which is not unthinkable, since our 'hit' percentage is way up from last year."

For Kuzara himself, this weekend will be a homecoming for him, as he was both a student and an assistant coach for the women's gymnastics team there. The 1980 graduate led Michigan to two Big Ten titles in 1992–93, and a ninth place finish in the 1993 NCAA Championships.

Turn to GYMNASTICS, page 6

NCAA snubs; Carey helping Capitals

The anticipation is over and the pieces of the puzzle have been put in place. Now to scrutinize the selection committee.

Snub of the Tournament — Georgia Tech.

The Yellow Jackets were the No. 5 team in the tough–est conference in the country (the ACC), where the top four teams are ranked in the top 12 in the country.

Why should Florida or Michigan, teams in much weaker conferences who have less wins, get a shot in the tournament and not them? The Yellow Jackets could have done damage as a middle seed and caused much dismay in tournament pools.

Home Court Tournaments? — UMass' first two games are an hour from Amherst, Florida, a No. 10 seed that shouldn't even be in the tournament, is playing in Tallahassee. Now that's fair. Further down the line, Kansas, should it make the Regionals, will play in what is their home away from home, as well as the site of their conference tournament, Kemper Arena.

The women's brackets are the best examples of this, though. In order for the University of Connecticut and Tennessee women's teams' to make the Final Four they do not even have to leave campus. They are the two best teams in the country.

I thought these tournaments were to prove who was the most talented team as they dueled it out on a neu–tral court. It's intimidating enough having to play those teams in a single elimination tournament, never mind having to pull an upset in their building.

As for the locals, hats off for an outstanding season that has put UMass women's basketball on the map and gained them the No. 5 seed in the Women's National Invitation Tournament in Amarillo, Texas. Best of luck, ladies.

• Isn't there a better way to distribute tickets than this lottery system?

• Congratulations to Brian Corcoran for his offer to play in the NHL for the Ducks. That, coupled with its first Hockey East playoff victory, is just the start of good things to come from Joe Mallen's squad.

Local boy makes good — Who says one man can't change a team? With the Washington Capitals out of the playoff picture they called up Weymouth native, and Catholic Memorial grad, Jim Carey (no, not the Pet Detective). In the Caps' six games since his call up from the AHL, they are 5–0–1 and his 1.62 goals against average is the best in the league. Included in those five wins was a 3–1 decision over the Bruins in the Boston Garden.

Speaking of the Garden, let's end this whole nonsense about what to name the new arena the Celtics and Bruins will play in next year. In Boston, tradition still reigns supreme. The upper management decided this week that it would not change the spoked "B" or their jerseys. And have the Celtics ever had a different style of uniform then what they have now? Boston sports is

Turn to HORN, page 6

Muliero earns All–America honor at Championships

By Teri Klein
Collegian Staff

Two members of the University of Massachusetts ski teams competed in the United States Collegiate Skiing Association Championships (USCSA) March 8–11 in McCall, Idaho.

Freshman Leah Muliero finished off her stellar first season with the Minutewomen by capturing an All–American title in the giant slalom.

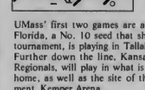
Junior Bill Schaefer managed to place a respectable 18th in the giant slalom after being hampered by bad conditions due to weather and seedings.

Muliero, who entered the competition ranked second overall in the USCSA Eastern Region, had strong performances in both the slalom and the giant slalom.

Despite having an up and down slalom racing season, Muliero received honorable mention to the All–America team with her twelfth place performance in the slalom. She then went on to earn an All–American title by placing eighth

Turn to SKI, page 6

Around the Horn
Justin Smith



The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
Volume CIV Issue 98 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Monday, March 27, 1995

Hollywood goes Oscar wild!
Tonight, the film world celebrates itself with the Academy Awards. Check out our coverage including a list of nominees (See Arts & Living, page 5).

Science department is in the money
The UMass life sciences department has received over $2 million for student research from the Hughs Medical Institute (See story, page 2).

Women's hoop team ends season at NIT
UMass women's basketball coach Joanie O'Brien and the team went one and two in the Women's NIT(See Sports, page 9).

Extended Forecast
Today will be mostly sunny with highs near 55. The beginning of the week should remain mild, with highs in the mid–50s. Partial cloudiness rolls in around Wednesday.

Today	Tuesday	Wednesday
HIGH: 55 LOW: 45	HIGH: 55 LOW: 40	HIGH: 50 LOW: 30

Minutemen finish an unprecedented dream season

■ Despite farewell to the final four Roe and co. have successful season unmatched in men's hoop history

By Andrew Bryce
Collegian Staff

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — After the University of Massachusetts men's basketball team watched their dreams of reaching the Final Four disappear yesterday afternoon, the pain was seen on the Minutemen's faces.

Hugs were given to the dejected players from coaches alike, and heads were in towels as the Oklahoma State Cowboys celebrated their 68–54 victory over Massachusetts.

A successful run in the first three rounds of the NCAA Tournament that kept the Minutemen upbeat and confident about the season all changed after 40 minutes of basketball.

A dismal shooting day (27 percent from the field for the game) mirrored the depressed expressions following the contest. For what seemed like an instantaneous moment, hopes of Seattle were dashed, and plans were made to head back to Amherst.

It was a sad day for those close to the Massachusetts program.

"We had a great run. Like everybody else, when you lose, if you don't win it all, it's disappointing," senior Lou Roe said.

But as the disappointment is felt, the big picture has to be looked at.

During the regular season, the media scrutinized each game, picking out the positives and negatives of the team's effort. The players and coaches downplayed the importance.

But after a game like the one played yesterday, the role the media plays has just the opposite effect.

The players and coaches stress their feelings about how difficult the loss was. They emphasize how they failed because they did not accomplish what they had set out to do, and because they did not make it to the level for which they were striving.

The media sees the big picture this time, the one which shows how triumphant the team was throughout the season.

In the hour following the game, coach John Calipari, Lou Roe and Co. were obviously disappointed. Yet while they suffer from the torment of not reaching their ultimate goal, the loss did not erase the most successful season in Massachusetts history.

Calipari, while as dejected his players, saw a glimpse of that big picture.

"We had a great season, unfortunately it had to end this way. We were living a dream. What this program has accomplished is more than any other has. We would've loved to win," Calipari said.

The great season included holding their first–ever No. 1 ranking, with the second period being for four straight weeks in the month of January.

It included being one of the nation's top eight teams for the entire season. It consisted of 29 wins and only five losses, which entailed a 10–1 record against one of the toughest non–conference schedules in the country.

It included an unprecedented fourth consecutive Atlantic 10 regular season and tournament title, as this year's team became the first to ever do so.

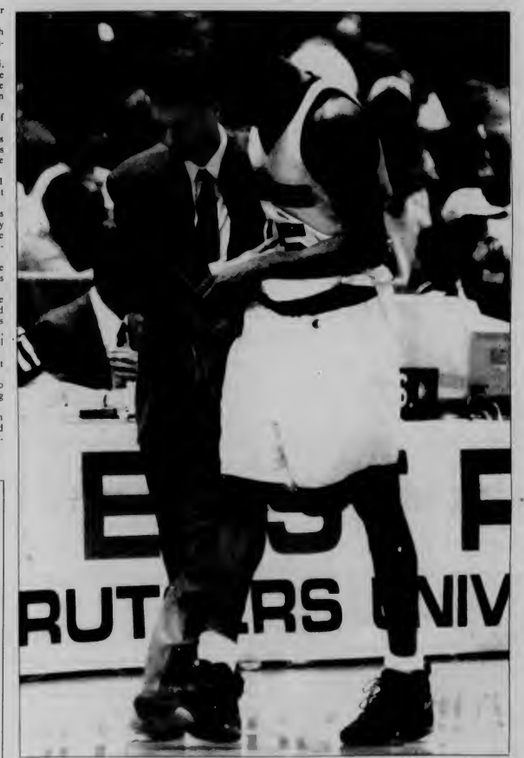
The dream which Calipari notes began to materialize in the NCAA Tournament. The second–seeded Minutemen rolled in three straight double–digit victories to head into the Elite Eight of the NCAA Tournament, which was yet another first in Massachusetts basketball history.

All of this spells out what Calipari said; the fact that this team has accomplished more than any other has.

Calipari ended by saying that he would have loved to win. Indeed, a victory would have been sweeter, extending Massachusetts' dream season.

But despite the season coming to an earlier halt than the Minutemen had expected, the success they achieved has never been seen before in the history of the program.

Let's hope that, in time, they look at the big picture.



COLLEGIAN / PAUL BLODEAU

Massachusetts Coach John Calipari walks Lou Roe to the bench toward the close of yesterday's NCAA game against Oaklahoma State to give the crowd a chance to cheer the senior one last time in his final performance as a Minuteman.

HRTA volunteer team prepares for Americares HomeFront Day

By Lisa Greenfield
Collegian Staff

Hotel, restaurant and travel administration (HRTA) major Robert Crawford is organizing a team of HRTA students to participate in the national domestic outreach program, AmeriCares HomeFront Day.

AmeriCares, a private, nonprofit organization based in Connecticut, sets aside one day every year, HomeFront Day, during which "teams" literally rebuild neighborhoods. This year's HomeFront Day is May 6.

Pike, the UMass "house chief" said the UMass team is unique because college groups typically do not organize a team. The insurance company AEtna will help the UMass team with the heavier maintenance.

According to Pike, an HRTA senior, the team will work on a three–story home in the Upper Albany section of Connecticut.

The garage will be demolished and the porch will be redone, but volunteers will concentrate on the interior, working on such tasks as painting, installing smoke detectors and fire extinguishers, and replacing windows.

"I saw an opportunity — because I grew up with AmeriCares in my backyard — for UMass students to take one day out of their lives to help others."

Before the UMass team goes in, said Pike, AEtna team members with professional experience, such as plumbing and electrical, will go in to check on what needs to be done.

Pike has met with the woman who owns the house, but said he would rather focus on the project than on the individual homeowner.

He described this day–long effort as a "good chance to give back to the community."

Team Volunteer Coordinator Derek Emery said this project appealed to him because it is "realistic in its goals."

Pike said Emery will be in charge of making eating arrangements and necessary plans for the volunteers.

Emery said he decided to become involved in the organizational side for "the feeling of doing something for someone else."

Assistant House Chief Frank Gallagher said he got involved because, "I thought I could positively contribute."

Pike has been organizing the project all semester and has surveyed the house and has filled out orders "down to the last nail" for needed supplies.

AmeriCares volunteer Cathy Cooney said National HomeFront Day "takes an entire year to plan." She said AmeriCares volunteers work all year, making contacts and finding companies to donate building materials.

Homes are repaired at no cost to homeowners, none of whom make more than $20,000, said Cooney.

Community service organizations, churches, friends and concerned citizens recommend houses that are in need of repair work.

Cooney said surveyors try to be realistic in their goals, asking "if this could be a house we could fix in a day." The HomeFront Day motto is "one day does make a difference."

Cooney describes the day as a "blitz," beginning early in the morning until the early evening, and said, "It is reminiscent of an old–style barn–raising."

Pike and Cooney both stressed the importance of the day's success on corporations donating the supplies and professionals donating skills.

A Connecticut native, Pike said, "I saw an opportunity — because I grew up with AmeriCares in my backyard — for UMass students to take one day out of their lives to help others."

Pike said his initial goal was to have 30 to 40 HRTA students volunteer, but he already has "a good base" of approximately 30 students. He also said the team will take as many volunteers as it can get.

The goal for this year's HomeFront Day is to have 10,000 volunteers rebuild 234 houses in New York and Connecticut.

Iron Horse will ring silent in summer

By Matthew Wurtzel
Collegian Staff

One of Northampton's biggest attractions will close its doors in early summer.

The Iron Horse Music Hall and Coffee House will close its doors on June 4 after a final concert, unless a new buyer intervenes before then.

The nightclub has been losing money for over a year, according to co–owner Craig Blaine. He said that on Feb. 16 he and partner Jo Thomas decided to announce plans to close.

Blaine and Thomas bought the establishment in Jan. 1993 from Geordi Harrold, who founded the club in 1979. Blaine said he and Thomas bought the club as an investment, and initially had no intentions of managing it.

After buying the club it began to lose money, Blaine said, and he and Thomas decided to fire the manager and assume the role of management. Blaine explained that simply being a passive owner is dramatically different than managing as well.

"We met many artists and made a lot of friends," Blaine said. "However, it is time to."

The club is not filing Chapter 11 because the debt is completely private.

There are no creditors breathing down our back making us sweat," Blaine said.

Because the new owner would not have to worry about financial woes from Blaine and Thomas, prospects for selling the club look good, according to Blaine.

There are eight serious potential buyers from as far as Boston and New York City.

"All we want is a fair market value," Blaine said.

No new shows will be booked unless a new buyer is found, Blaine said he and Thomas agreed to honor all bookings made previous–to the time the decision to close was made.

The Iron Horse has hosted musicians who were famous or eventually went on to fame such as Tracy Chapman, Suzanne Vega, the Indigo Girls, and Wynton Marsalis.

Tomorrow the Iron Horse will host a triple bill featuring Jaya the Cat, Mr. Dookie, and Groovasaurus.

Students organize 'Jam for Jimmy'

By Amy Scott
Collegian Correspondent

University of Massachusetts students will be jamming for the Jimmy Fund in April to raise money for cancer research.

The "Jammin' for Jimmy" 24–hour dance marathon will give students the opportunity to party as a means of fundraising.

The marathon will be held from Saturday April 7 to April 8 in the Curry Hicks Cage. Those who want to dance must raise a minimum of $25 by soliciting pledges, according to Dave Fontaine, founder and co–chair of the event.

"I would like for people to take this as an opportunity to give more than just money — to give of themselves," Fontaine said.

According to Fontaine, there will be free food, prizes, contests and special activities held throughout the night to keep people dancing.

Those who raise $50 or more will compete in a raffle for two round–trip airfare tickets to anywhere in the continental United States.

A second set of tickets might also be given away during the event, Hanson said.

Details are still being worked out, but prospective events may include a limbo contest, a balloon drop, a masseusse who will massage feet, prize giveaways and a funny dress contest, Fontaine said.

"It'll be a fun event. It should be a fun night of 24 hours of dancing," Fontaine said. "It takes more than just money to save a life. It's a whole attitude, a positive attitude, a positive spirit."

Fontaine, a UMass senior from Seekonk, is in remission from non–Hodgkin's lymphoma, a kind of cancer.

According to Fontaine, he started the event because he wanted to give something back to the Jimmy Fund and the Dana–Farber Cancer Institute. The institute is an organization in Boston which started the Jimmy Fund and gave him the chemotherapy treatments which brought about his remission last September.

"I wanted to give back to them what they gave to me, which is life," Fontaine said.

Fontaine was diagnosed with non–Hodgkin's lymphoma at University Health Services on May 28, 1994, shortly after his 23rd birthday.

He had suffered from a harsh cough for weeks, for which both UHS and his family doctor had prescribed cough medicine, Fontaine said.

When the cough persisted, Fontaine went to back to UHS, asking for a chest x–ray.

He was given four radiation treatments at Cooley– Dickinson Hospital immediately, and then sent to Dana–Farber in June, where he was treated until he went into remission in September.

"Dave believes his recovery is 50 percent science and 50 percent spirit," said UMass Junior Bonnie Hanson, who is serving as co–chair of the event.

Fontaine worked for the Jimmy Fund last fall, while temporarily withdrawn from school. He had planned to return to school this spring and had wanted to hold a fund raiser when he got back, Fontaine said.

Fontaine had gotten the idea for the Jammin' for Jimmy Dance Marathon from Pennsylvania State University, which holds an annual 48–hour dance marathon to benefit a cancer research facility in Pennsylvania, he said.

"I was thinking kind of small–scale, just getting the word out to people here at UMass," Fontaine said. "It kind of turned into a bigger thing."

According to Hanson, it will definitely be a big thing.

Northampton radio station 99.3 WHMP FM will broadcast live and provide music from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. on Saturday, Hanson said.

Volunteer disc jockeys will provide the music for the rest of the event, Hanson said. Jammin' for Jimmy planning committee is currently seeking demo tapes from prospective disc jockeys.

Fontaine and Hanson said they could use a lot of help working out the details for the dance, which they will begin to concentrate on, now that spring break is over.

They are currently looking for people to volunteer to dance or join the planning committee for the event.

Medical institute grants millions

Life science department is beneficiary of Hughs' donations

By Marnie Thamel
Collegian Staff

A late billionaire's fortune has enabled students in the life sciences department at the University of Massachusetts to do hands-on research and lab work.

The Hughs Medical Institute, named for Howard Hughs, a successful businessman in the oil and aircraft businesses has granted $2.2 million dollars to the life sciences department, according to Biology Professor Ed Davis.

The Hughs dollars are being used for undergraduate research and lab improvement, said Bruce Byers, undergraduate academic coordinator.

The Institute has granted about $250 million to more than 200 higher education institutions across the country, according to Byers.

"The general purpose of the grant is to improve undergraduate education in sciences," Byers said.

The program offers a collection of experiences for the students, Davis said.

The Hughs grant enabled junior Biology major Al Morrison to travel to the Virgin Islands and collect plants for his research on mangrove wood.

"[The Hughs Program] is tremendous. I've been to the Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico to scuba dive," Morrison said, "I've been exposed to a lot more than just research."

Hughs sets up $500 for undergraduate researchers, which promotes undergraduate study in the biology department, according to Morrison.

The stipend is somewhat like a work study program, he said. "It is an opportunity to have a part time job and not worrying about working."

According to senior Arup De, the students doing lab work are experiencing science firsthand.

"You could be on the verge of a discovery," he said, "It is an exciting feeling."

In addition to hands on research, Hughs grants have helped improve labs and equipment for students in biochemistry, cell biology, neurobiology, biotechnology, and genetics courses, Byers said.

Hughs' money has upgraded teaching labs and chemistry resource computers, and provided funding for equipment, such as new microscopes, he said. "We also plan to start a biology computer lab next summer."

The program also runs summer research programs for disadvantaged students and a two-week workshop for high school science teachers.

The opportunity is fabulous, said De. "Lab experience in general makes science a lot more real, you see how tough it is when you read it in a textbook. It allows students to get into working science."

Morrison said he wanted to get involved with labwork and found out about the Hughs program through a friend.

"It doesn't hurt to start as early as possible," he said. "My research is going towards my thesis and I also hope to publish a paper."

FYI The FYI section of the Collegian is open to the community to advertise events in the area. Our deadline is 3 p.m. daily and we do not accept FYIs over the phone. Please mail or hand deliver your submissions as early as possible.

All submissions must be type written with a contact name and phone number to clarify any questions.

SOM examines buying tendencies

By Rana Meyer
Collegian Correspondent

When today's generation gets older, they are going to be living a totally different lifestyle than today's senior citizens, and the University of Massachusetts School of Management is busy preparing for changes in future markets.

The School of Management has put together a conceptional framework to understand the way people behave at a certain age, and group customers together in order to market them, according to Charles Schewe, a marketing professor at the University of Massachusetts.

Professor Schewe has been working on the process of aging for the past fifteen years, in order to help serve older people. He has worked with various companies in order to learn about aging, physically, socially and psychologically.

For instance, Schewe has looked at many studies that illustrated that older people don't tend to use credit cards or high-tech, risky banking systems, whereas the members of the "Baby Boomers" generation do, he said.

"Marketers want groups, but most people are very different. One similarity is the concept of cohort," Schewe said. A cohort, he explained, is the group into which you are born, and with whom you journey through life.

Cohorts are the measure that Schewe uses to organize data in his studies, he said. "The products that the companies make have to be consistent with the people's lifestyles."

Schewe divided Americans into six different cohorts — Depression, World War II, Post-War, Boomers 1, Boomers II and Generation X.

According to Schewe, these cohorts have different values. For example, the members of Generation X are embedded with certain values during their coming-of-age years. Such values may develop from life events, some of which are external events that are uncontrollable.

"These external events provided lines for cohorts," Schewe said, and reiterated that the cohorts provide a framework for thinking about and understanding differences in human experience.

The people in the Depression cohort, he said, may save all of their money for a rainy day, while the members of Generation X just spend all of their money and don't worry about tomorrow.

According to Schewe's study, this is because the members of the Depression cohort were indulged by their parents who saved every penny while living through the Depression period.

"When the boomers get older, they will be drinking Coca- Cola rather than coffee to give them caffeine," said Schewe, "and the music that they love now, they will love when they are older."

This is your last chance to check out The Massachusetts Daily Collegian's coverage of the NCAA tournament on the World Wide Web.
You can reach us at http://home.oit.umass.edu/ncaa.
Please direct questions or comments to Kelly Spang, managing editor at kspang@student.umass.edu.

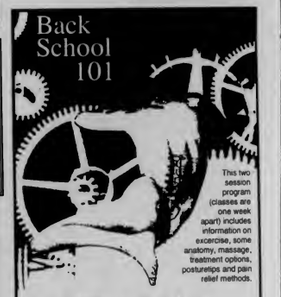
Women have issues
we need you to help us address them! Come down and write for the Women's Issues section of the Collegian. Contact Lisa or Colleen at 545-3500 or come down to our office in the Campus Center Basement.

Nick & Dick's
The finest family style restaurant on Cape Cod serving breakfast, lunch and dinner is currently seeking experienced individuals to join our team.
Dining Room Supervisor
Waitstaff
Ice Cream Counter Help
Bus Persons
Cashiers/Hostess
Nick & Dick's RESTAURANT & ICE CREAM
All positions are seasonal. Interested candidates should call Cheryl at (508) 432-1000 to arrange an interview.
Route 28 • Harwich Port, MA • (508) 432-1000

Auto Glass Center American & Foreign
• Same Day Service
• Billed Directly To Insurance Company
• Windshields Replaced
North Amherst Motors CARSTAR 78 Old Sunderland Rd. 549-2880
Northampton CARSTAR 141 Damon Rd. 586-4444
CARSTAR Collision Repair Centers

University Barbers
(Campus Center)
549-0123
Hours:
Weekdays
8 am - 4:45 pm
Sat. 8 am - 2:00 pm
No Appointment Necessary

FANTASY REALMS
"Video Game Mania"
We Buy, Sell and Trade
New and Used Video Games & CDs
We rent games too.
SNES • Sega • Game Boy
Game Gear • NES
Now carrying IBM compatible software!
233 N. Pleasant St • in The Carriage Shops

Back School 101


This two session program (classes are one week apart) includes information on excercise, some anatomy, massage, treatment options, posturetips and pain relief methods.
Tuesday, April 4th & 11th
6:00 to 8:00 P.M.
University Health Services
Room 304
Call University Health Services Physical Therapy Department for more information and registration 549-2671 Ext. 158

Analog/Digital Engineer
Responsible for the design, prototyping, and packaging of electronic circuits for commercial millimeter radar and radiometer units.
Applicants should have experience designing analog and digital circuits for commercial products. Experience in micro-controller/ processor hardware and software is required. Expertise in the use of PSPICE a definite plus. BSEE degree required.
Millitech Corporation is a growing high-tech manufacturing company whose state-of-the-art millimeter products and services are used by customers throughout the world.
To apply for this position send resume and cover letter by March 31 to: Director of Human Resources, Millitech Corporation, S. Deerfield Research Park, S. Deerfield, MA 01373. Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer.
millitech

We've got health care education down to a science
To get ahead in health care, you need more than lectures and books. You need the scientific approach to health care education you'll find at Northeastern University's Bouvé College of Pharmacy and Health Sciences. Our unique programs mix intensive classroom instruction with the on-site training and leading-edge technologies of our world famous clinical affiliates....giving you the knowledge and skills you need to succeed in this growing field.

Bouvé College of Pharmacy and Health Sciences offers Post-Baccalaureate Certification Programs in:
• Health Information Administration
• Medical Laboratory Science
• Respiratory Therapy
• Dental Hygiene
To explore your future possibilities, call (617) 373-3321. Bouvé College of Pharmacy and Health Sciences, 134 Mugar Life Science Building, Northeastern University, Boston, MA 02115. An Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action, Title IX University.
Northeastern University

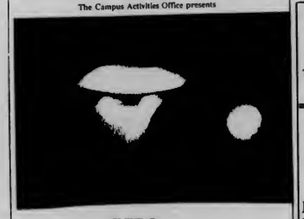
TENTH ANNUAL MATH COMPETITION

To be held in Rooms 201 / 203
Lederle Graduate Center
April 5, 1995 at 7:30 PM

The competition is open to all Freshman and Sophomore degree students currently enrolled at UMass Amherst. Continuing Education Students, previous 1st place winners and relatives of Math/Stat faculty are not eligible.

FIRST PRIZE: $1600 in cash from Electronic Data Systems.
SECOND PRIZE: $1000 in cash from United Technologies
THIRD PRIZE: $400 in cash from the Mathematics/Statistics Department
SIGN UP in room 1623-D by April 4 and bring ID on April 5.

The Campus Activities Office presents



UFOs- THE HIDDEN HISTORY
A Slide-tape program and lecture by Robert Hastings
FINE ARTS CENTER
WEDNESDAY, MARCH 29, 1995
8:00PM
FREE to UMass Undergraduates with I.D.
$2.00 General Public

Getting High on Getting Thin:
The First of Two Workshops on Eating and Body Issues

My Best Friend, My Worst Enemy
Myths and facts about eating disorders, food and weight.

Date: Thursday, March 30, 1995
Time: 3:30 pm to 5:00 pm
Place: Campus Center, Room 917

Drop-in workshops are sponsored by University Health Services. Free and open to UMass students.
CONFIDENTIALITY ASSURED
For more info, call 549-2671 ext. 233 or 545-2337

EATING DISORDERS

A FIVE COLLEGE FILM SERIES • ALL SHOWINGS AT 7:30 PM

MARCH

Tuesday, 7: "Still Killing Us Softly." Jean Kilbourne video examining how advertising portrays women. Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Room 162.

Tuesday, 28: "Famine Within." Documentary film addressing the socio-cultural forces that impact women's obsessions with their bodies and weight. Hooker Auditorium, Mount Holyoke.

APRIL

Tuesday, 4: "Life is Sweet." Comedy focusing on an enduring couple and their iconoclastic twin daughters- one of whom suffers from anorexia and extreme self-loathing. Smith College, Seelye 106.

Wednesday, 5: "Life is Sweet." Campus Center, Front Room, Amherst College (See Apr. 4)

Thursday, 13: "Eating." Serious comedy about women talking about food, bodies, each other and life." Women's Center, Enfield House, Hampshire College.

Wednesday, 19: "Pack of Lies." Jean Kilbourne video examining advertising of the tobacco industry, including the connection between smoking and thinness. Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Room 162.

Sponsored by the Five College Eating Disorders Committee. For additional information call 542-2760.

From Boston.
AMSTERDAM $289
BRUSSELS $259
MADRID $309
SEATTLE $184
From New York:
COSTA RICA $219
GUATEMALA $249
QUITO $305
SANFRANCISCO $184
Fares are each way based on a round trip purchase from Boston or New York. Student or Faculty ID may be required. Taxes & surcharges not included. Fares subject to change.
FREE Student Travels Magazine!
Council Travel
79 So. Pleasant St Amherst, MA 01002
(413) 256-1261

College Life: A Few Things To Know

KNOW: which off-campus bookstore will buy back your used $45 textbooks for more than 25¢ each.

KNOW: which "30-minutes-or-it's-free" pizza place always takes exactly 31 minutes.

KNOW: which evil, quarter-eating laundromat machines to avoid.

KNOW THE CODE,℠
IT ALWAYS COSTS LESS THAN 1-800-COLLECT.℠

Hey, on college campuses those "in the know" are the ones who rule. And it's not just about being smart in the classroom, it's about being wise with your wallet as well. So if you want a great low price on a collect call, just dial 1 800-CALL-ATT. It always costs less than 1-800-COLLECT. Always.

There are lots of tricky things for you to learn at college, but here's something that's easy: KNOW THE CODE, and save the person on the other end some serious money. You'll be glad you did.

dial 1 8 0 0 C A L L A T T℠
ALWAYS COSTS LESS THAN 1-800-COLLECT.*

AT&T. Your True Voice.®

AT&T

*Promotion excluded. 1-800-COLLECT® is a service mark of MCI.

©1995 AT&T

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Darienne J. Hosley Editor-in-Chief Kelly Spang Managing Editor
Michael McRae Business Manager Andrew D. Davidson Production Manager Lisa Tannenbaum Advertising Manager
James P. Ganley Advertising Production Manager Lisa Greenfield Senior Diversity Editor

Matt Audette Arts & Living Editor Paul Bilodeau Photography Editor
Chris Taylor Conner Black Affairs Editor Andrew Bryce, Matt Vautour Sports Editors
Matt Wurtzel Business Editor Jeff Wilson Staff Artist
Juan Jose Chacon Quiros Developing Nations Editor Lisa Greenfield, Colleen Shanahan Women's Issues Editors
Tracy Monahan Editorial/Opinion Editor Marni E. Heffner Editorial Production Manager
Wendy Darling Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor John Khachadoorian Finance Manager
Jacob W. Michaels Jewish Affairs Editor Eric Abenaim Distribution Manager
Hernan Rozemberg Multicultural Affairs Editor Maureen Majerowski Senior Bookkeeper
Jessica Taverna News Editor Marty Pappas Classified Advertising

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1956. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m.

How I spent my Spring Break

Nathan Crick

Spring Break was a very nice time. I went to Boston for a few days and rode the subway all by myself. The tunnels were dark and sometimes the lights went out and it was scary, but there was only a girl next to me and she seemed friendly and without a knife.

There was a big wind when I walked up the stairs, and it almost blew my hat off. There were lots of lights and people and cars with loud horns. Beep! Beep! A man came up to me and asked if I knew where a good place was to eat Chinese food. I said no and went away because he looked like a stranger and I did not like strangers. Soon I met a friend and we went to Copley Plaza. I had not seen him in many years. He was living off worker's compensation and taking lots of drugs. He had neat long hair and big boots.

We went to Copley Plaza, which is a big mall with lots of glass and metal that shines brightly. Inside it is warm and there are many stores there that have furry things and pretty things and things that make sounds. They are very expensive. In the stores, there were lots of people wearing those same furry and pretty things, and since we were wearing only regular stuff we did not talk to them. I did not think they had knives, but they had mean looks and I bet they could buy really big lawyers.

So we went outside and sat on these big marble steps and he smoked a cigarette. It was cold but I curled up in a ball and that was better. Many people walked by.

We talked about all the people we used to know. One of them bought new breasts and got a picture in Cosmo. That was neat. A guy named Tony stopped doing cocaine. Somebody else decided to go to law school. That was funny because I thought he only liked to wrestle. We both knew that one of our friends had learned to hate dark people and had also decided to become a policeman, so we did not talk about him. I laughed at many things, and so did he. It was funny that he was wasting lots of money on silly things.

"What good is all this money if you can't acquire stuff," he asked me. That was a weird thing to say, but it made me laugh. People are so funny, sometimes.

He had to go, so I said goodbye and watched him walk away. I wondered what had happened to all of us.

I went back to the Green Line and waited for the train. There were lots of people, and they all were staring at the wall. I wanted to push one to see if they would fall over.,

A few minutes later I got on the train, and it grumbled and groaned for a while. I looked at people in the reflection of the window. I got off and walked to Quincy Market to meet more friends. I have many friends in Boston.

I met both of them at the Green Dragon pub, and we paid the Irish guy three dollars to hear an Irish band and then paid four dollars to drink a Green Dragon ale. Inside there was a lot of dark wood and shiny brass knobs. Near the band was a group of loud Irish people singing. Irish people often do not sing good, but they sing loud.

We sat in the corner, so we could talk. I had met them in England. It was good be in a pub with them again.

The darkness and the music seemed to hang with a solid weight in the air, as if the patrons were all swimming around. We sat in the corner and drank and talked and I got to waving my arms around and talking and feeling the motion of my body in the current. It was not England but it could have been. It was not high school but I could see all the faces.

It is strange how the past creeps up on you. How sometimes you see it, alive and smiling in front of you. Because all the times you had kept as memories, and as being something so far away, and suddenly you realize they are still living and have not disappeared just because they are out of sight. I have often thought of England as a long lost voyage, or of high school as some fairy tale nightmare. A story or a tale to be told of something dead and gone. But it had been alive and well even without my presence.

It seems that the world is in constant motion, but too often our section of it is not. And with this absence of motion, we might conclude that there is nothing out there to strive for. That the world, in fact, is nothing more than the eternal quest for "more stuff" to fill our little bubble.

It is this way when we do not see the real play going on around us, and all the parts there are for us to create for ourselves, wherever we happen to be. It is a sobering experience to realize that Time will continue without us, and it will not care what we have done, or what we have not done. It will roll over our bodies in the mud as we mutter in protest that its not fair that our world is being bulldozed.

So then I came home, and it was good to be home.

Nathan Crick is a Collegian columnist.

The Leech and Mr. Wonderful

With only a couple months until graduation, alas, I have a plan. I don't know why I didn't think of it earlier.

The first thing I have to do is find a high–profile figure. A famous athlete with marital problems, for example. To make certain that all is in accordance with my plan, I have to be sure that this person properly represents every kid's idea of an American superhero.

My accomplice must have a wholesome quality that combines ambition, success, strength and good–natured appreciation for admirers and fans. Good looks are also important, along with a winning smile. Add an equally good looking spouse, a beautiful California estate, some kids, and turbulence in the marriage, and I'm on my way to economic and personal fulfillment.

Let's say that one day my superstar, who we'll call Mr. Wonderful for the sake of entertaining literature, finds himself in a tragic situation. Mrs. Wonderful and a friend, Mr. Wrong–place–wrong–time, are brutally murdered. Mr. Wonderful is a key suspect, and doesn't help himself out by driving around the state threatening suicide, while the entire nation watches on television from their comfy homes.

Me? I'm just a housequest, see, and once Mr. Wonderful gets out of his truck and into the courtroom, I am a key witness in the murder trial. I also have cool hair, a tendency not to understand questions asked while I'm on the stand, and everything to gain in my standstill acting career by fluttering my eyelashes and making wisecracks that evoke giggles from the jury.

Soon I'm a TV personality. Once I break down on the witness stand (crying on cue was always one of my stronger skills, despite the drought in my talent well,) I slither into the hearts of Americans who tune into the live courtroom coverage everyday.

I am torn between my loyalty to Mr. Wonderful, who housed and fed me for months before the tragedy, and the unfortunate belated Mrs. Wonderful. I am confused, a wounded soul thrown into traumatic circumstances, forced to uphold justice and protect the American ideals that made Mr. Wonderful what he was before this mess.

I'm also famous. Soon, I will be rich.

To think that I could reach such heights by simply leeching off my old buddy, Mr. Wonderful, in the first place. All I had to do was appeal to the Wonderfuls to help me out for a little while. Let me feed the dog and babysit, maybe take a trip or two to McDonalds with Mr. Wonderful in exchange for a roof on that beautiful estate. My significant other, who also has cool hair, can come and go at will. I can finally get my acting career on track.

Only in America.

I cannot take sole credit for my future plan. My inspiration is the shaggy–head blond guest–starring in the O.J. Simpson case as of late. Yep, it only took a couple days watching and reading about Brian "Kato" Kaelin to realize where my true aspirations lay. I want to be a leech.

To think that Kaelin probably has a secure future in the "entertainment business" (and I use both words lightly) due to the exposure that he has received during the trial is truly indicative of why the expression "courtroom justice" is an oxymoron in the Simpson case.

Kaelin, who is likely one of the most significant witnesses called upon, has become a symbol of the media–propelled distortion that will prevent any sliver of fairness and objectivity from seeing that justice is done.

Viewers care less about what Kaelin saw and heard on the night of the murders, and what it implies about Simpson's innocence, than they do about his whimsical claim that he and O.J. were not competitive in the sense that they were not going for the same Hollywood roles.

They sympathize for the wide–eyed Kaelin as he defends Simpson as a good father and friend, testifies he only witnessed one fight, ever, between the couple, and is then badgered by the prosecution to admit that possibly O.J. was jealous of his wife. Viewers are forced to search their souls and ask themselves, what would they do, as good friends and pillars of justice?

They are enchanted by his child–like inability to comprehend questions, his nervous blinking and lip–licking as he rephrases his answer to ensure clarity (for the court and in his own mind). They tune in to his sun–streaked good looks and the irony of the macho–man's trembling chin as he confesses to defense attorney Robert Shapiro that the trial has been very difficult for him.

Trial? Try three–ring circus. Kato Kaelin is merely the latest clown to emerge from the funny–looking little car that keeps doing doughnuts around the tent.

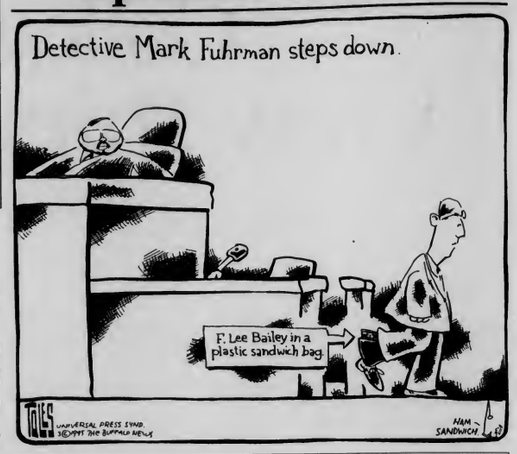
As far as jobs go, however, Kaelin hasn't got a bad idea. I, personally, have set some fine goals based on what the leech–turned–superstar has accomplished in only a few short months. Now all I have to do is find my own Mr. Wonderful and do something about getting cool hair.

Emily Marino is a Collegian columnist.

Doonesbury By Garry Trudeau

GOOD MORNING, FATHER DUKE!
HUH... WHAT? DAMN! DON'T SNEAK UP ON ME LIKE THAT, KID!
IF I'VE TOLD YOU ONCE, I'VE TOLD YOU A THOUSAND TIMES, DON'T... DON'T...
OKAY, WHO ARE YOU?
YOUR FIRST ORPHAN. ARE THOSE YOUR DONUTS?

Opinion/Editorial



Be wary of no rooms at the Inn

Kyri Sparks

My housemate's parents are going to sleep on our lumpy fold–out couch on May 27, the night before their daughter is hopefully going to graduate. They definitely have the sofa reserved, which makes it official; there are no vacant beds available for graduation weekend in the entire Happy Valley or throughout the Connecticut River Valley for that matter.

This is not an exaggeration. As my housemate found out in January, much to her surprise, all of the areas hotels, motels, taverns, inns and bed and breakfasts are booked. If you didn't make a reservation for your family at one of the area's luxurious overnight accommodations last fall, don't bother.

It's time you bite the bullet, take the hit and come to terms with the fact that your parents will be sitting on your couch probably working the tap at your last house party. Think of the possibilities ... your mom could take off your shoes and tuck you in to bed at 4 a.m. when you come stumbling home from uptown. Or maybe your dad could pick you up from Pufton so you wouldn't have to hitchhike home.

Then again, if you didn't make reservations for the folks, you probably didn't think about your little brother and both sets of grandparents. The reservations desk at Holjo's is laughing at you. Reality check. You're screwed.

This should serve as a warning to all juniors and sophomores: make reservations now! The Campus Center hotel takes applications for a lottery, in which you have as much chance of winning a reservation as you do MassCash.

You say you don't know if you will graduate on time? You don't know if you'll graduate at all? Reserve a room anyway and you can always sell it to the highest bidder when you sign up for the five–year plan.

There is one sure bet for those of you who don't have reservations. There is another, attractive option, which I myself am employing — don't invite your family to graduation at all. I've never been, but I've heard it's pretty overrated. A few years back, the year uncertain, (but dateable because it had to be prior to the Amherst keg licensing law) an ingenious group of frat brothers snuck into the stadium the night before the culminating event of their years at ZooMass and buried a keg in the middle of the 50– yard line. Graduation day they filed in donning caps, gowns and tassels hiding inflatable dolls, beer steins and plastic cups for those in the nearby vicinity. Of course, they also brought a tap.

Needless to say, it is because of this type of spirit surrounding Super Sunday that my mom, dad, step–mom, step–dad, grandparents, step–grandparents, sister, half– brother, half sister and family friends will not be flying 3,500 miles. They won't be sitting in the humidity, high up in the concrete bleachers, trying to single me out like a needle in a haystack. The mess of graduation of UMass students is something they won't see and surely won't miss.

However, I understand that some parents wouldn't miss it for the world and have been waiting for the big day since the first letter of refusal from financial aid came. Good luck finding them a place to stay. I suggest using yellow string to mark off a level space on the lower Boyden athletic fields so they can pitch a tent. That way, you can enjoy your last house party, sans parents.

Kyri M. Sparks is a UMass student.

Letters to the Editor

Chancellor defends Jewish groups

To the editor:

Let me add my voice to those of Sally Greenberg, Civil Rights Counsel, Anti–Defamation League, and Attorney Richard M. Gaberman, of Springfield expressing concern in their Letters to the Editor on March 3 and March 6 respectively, about the misrepresentations and inaccuracies occurring in the Feb. 13 Daily Collegian article "UMass under siege from all sides."

Let me state unequivocally that no Jewish group (or groups) as alleged in the article, has brought pressure on UMass Amherst to "... ban certain Black leaders from coming to speak on our campus and investigate any groups suspected of wanting to invite them." Neither was there any request from "Jewish lawyers in Springfield" for "...information on the background of students who were involved."

I believe we must be mindful of our responsibilities to truth and accuracy in reporting and retelling. I believe, further, that particular vigilance is required of us in the retelling of issues that threaten to promote any form of bigotry. I have said elsewhere and repeat here yet again: We will not allow to go unattended any environment of apprehension, mistrust, and discrimination. I affirm that injustice inflicted on any one of us threatens the very humanity of all of us.

David K. Scott
Chancellor

Health Services too long a wait

To the editor:

I am writing in response to an article in the paper of March 8. The article was about the problem with the waiting lines at Health Services. I am having a knee problem for which I made an appointment for a preliminary examination. It takes about 15 minutes for the exam. Two and a half weeks ago I made an appointment for the eighth. At 7:15 in the morning the phone rang. It was Health Services calling to tell me that the doctor I had the appointment with had called in sick.

I had to call back to make another appointment. Forty–five minutes later at 8 a.m. I called and got an appointment for next Wednesday. This makes three–and–a–half weeks that I have waited for this appointment. I tried the immediate care instead and was told that these exams must be with an appointment. I am a pretty easy–going person in general, but things like this really get my goat! I have been walking around campus and up the hill without any knowledge of what is wrong!

If I have the preliminary exam right away and have to wait for x–rays or something I can tolerate that, but not all this shuffling. I don't care if the doctor has a tuna fish sandwich in one hand and a stethoscope in the other as long as I am being seen.

I just wanted to let you know that the immediate care patients are getting a deal with the two hour waiting period.

Catherine Jasie
Northeast

Collegian distorts opinions in article

To the editor:

We are writing to echo some of the concerns addressed here recently by Liz Williams of the S.A.R.I.S. office. But first we, want to publicly express our apologies to Liz, for the way the Collegian misrepresented our comments about the Graduate Women's Network survey conducted by the S.A.R.I.S. last spring.

When we were approached to comment on the survey results, we were told it was for a story about student satisfaction with UMass in general, and that the reporter was interested in including the graduate women's perspective represented by our S.A.R.I.S. survey results, in particular. Knowing that all the reporter had to go on was the report produced by the survey, we cautioned her about our concerns with how that data could be framed, and that certain problems related to the instrument (which we designed collaboratively with Ms. Williams), and the sample could be taken in misleading directions.

Our primary objective in providing this cautionary note to the reporter, was to ensure that she not misrepresent graduate women as typically affluent, and unburdened with often conflicting responsibilities. We never intended to criticize the hard work Liz Williams and those at S.A.R.I.S. did, or the usefulness of the results obtained. Our only motivation for sharing the information that we did with the reporter, was to help her write a balanced paragraph about the results of our survey. Instead, when the story on student satisfaction appeared, it was accompanied by a second piece that framed our discussion of our own survey as conflictual and critical.

This was a gross misrepresentation of the story. If the reporter had simply contacted us again when she decided to write a separate piece, a very embarrassing and regrettable misunderstanding would have been avoided, not to mention the fact that she could have written a much more interesting story about graduate women's issues on campus.

Also, should you print this letter, we would appreciate it if your would give more attention to avoiding typographical errors, especially those that impact on the meaning of what is written.

Julia Mahoney
GSS Vice President
Shyamala Ivatury

Arts & Living

Hollywood holds breath as 67th Academy Awards take spotlight

Despite choices, Oscars are still worthy

By Jon Lupo
Collegian Staff

If there was a damable undercurrent in our March 16 Academy Awards preview, it was of a critically negative sort. Why then, you must be wondering, would we and so many other critics, fans and star–watchers care when the curtain goes up tonight for the 67th annual Academy Awards at 9 p.m on ABC?

While it is difficult to take seriously an award that believes Driving Miss Daisy was the Best Picture of any year, the best way to watch and yes, to enjoy — the Academy Awards is to think of them less as a worthy barometer and more like the supreme pop cultural event it is. In other words, removed from being an award of merit, the Oscars can then be enjoyed as a unique spectator sport; the Final Four by way of "Entertainment Tonight."

The best we can hope for is that the producers of Forrest Gump will trip up to the podium and impale themselves on their numerous Oscars. Gump happens, right?

Because, if there's one thing to be learned from years of scrutinous Oscar watching is that the Academy Awards have nothing to do with film and everything to do with Hollywood. How else can you explain the 1952 Best Picture win of Cecil B. De Mille's forgettable circus opus The Greatest Show on Earth over such definable classics as Singin' in the Rain and High Noon?

The Oscar telecast is the culmination of this Hollywood glitz and West Coast, movie–land glamour. Which is why what the stars wear is more readily discussed (and ultimately more important) than who should win. The Academy is more interested in patting themselves on the back for how beautiful and clever and talented they are. (It will be interesting to see if host David Letterman is still adolescent enough to pierce the pomposity of the evening instead of slipping to the cheeky adoration he's been indulging in on TV lately.)

If anything, what the Oscars need is more irreverence and less glib sentiment. It's why the slip–ups and upsets are always more memorable than the standing ovations. Those ovations, by the way, seem to become increasingly disingenuous as the night goes on, by the third or fourth one of Oscar night, it looks like a begrudging chore to raise themselves out of the chair, never mind clap. It's why Lina Paquin's surprise win last year is more of a moment than the honorary (read: death sentence) Oscar handed out to a warbly Deborah Kerr because it springs from something not usually equated with Oscar: unpredictability.

In this way, the best moments from any Oscar year aren't the production numbers or the unscripted political pleas from presenters, it's those few moments before, during and after the envelope is opened. That of the five faces all smiling eerily plastic grins with their hopes pinned next to their trendy AIDS ribbons, practically begging for their name to be called. After the winner is announced, there are only four faces left to throw their heads back in some sort of conciliatory gesture, clap and keep smiling. It's not human — I'm not sure what it is — but it's deliriously entertaining, capturing our favorite (and not–so–favorite) stars in the uncomfortable position of professional need and prickly desire. Now that's a show.

So keep this in mind when the gang from Forrest Gump beats Pulp Fiction or when the Academy works up enough standing O's to honor Italian director Michelangelo Antonioni even if they couldn't name three of his films (Hint: Blow Up, L'Avventura & Zabriskie Point), the best we can hope for is that the producers of Forrest Gump will trip up to the podium and impale themselves on their numerous Oscars. A little harsh? Well, hey — Gump happens, right?

AND THE NOMINEES ARE...

BEST ORIGINAL SCREENPLAY
- ☐ Bullets Over Broadway
- ☐ Four Weddings and a Funeral
- ☐ Heavenly Creatures
- ☐ Pulp Fiction
- ☐ Red

BEST PICTURE
- ☐ Forrest Gump
- ☐ Four Weddings and a Funeral
- ☐ Pulp Fiction
- ☐ Quiz Show
- ☐ The Shawshank Redemption

BEST ADAPTED SCREENPLAY
- ☐ Forrest Gump
- ☐ The Madness of King George
- ☐ Nobody's Fool
- ☐ Quiz Show
- ☐ The Shawshank Redemption

BEST SUPPORTING ACTRESS
- ☐ Rosemary Harris, Tom & Viv
- ☐ Helen Mirren, The Madness of King George
- ☐ Uma Thurman, Pulp Fiction
- ☐ Jennifer Tilly, Bullets Over Broadway
- ☐ Dianne Wiest, Bullets Over Broadway

BEST DIRECTOR
- ☐ Woody Allen, Bullets Over Broadway
- ☐ Robert Zemeckis, Forrest Gump
- ☐ Quentin Tarantino, Pulp Fiction
- ☐ Robert Redford, Quiz Show
- ☐ Krzysztof Kieslowski, Red

BEST SUPPORTING ACTOR
- ☐ Samuel L. Jackson, Pulp Fiction
- ☐ Martin Landau, Ed Wood
- ☐ Chazz Palminteri, Bullets Over Broadway
- ☐ Paul Scofield, Quiz Show
- ☐ Gary Sinise, Forrest Gump

BEST ACTOR
- ☐ Morgan Freeman, The Shawshank Redemption
- ☐ Tom Hanks, Forrest Gump
- ☐ Nigel Hawthorne, The Madness of King George
- ☐ Paul Newman, Nobody's Fool
- ☐ John Travolta, Pulp Fiction

BEST ACTRESS
- ☐ Jodie Foster, Nell
- ☐ Jessica Lange, Blue Sky
- ☐ Miranda Richardson, Tom & Viv
- ☐ Winona Ryder, Little Women
- ☐ Susan Sarandon, The Client

BEST ORIGINAL SONG
- ☐ "Can You Feel The Love Tonight," The Lion King
- ☐ "Circle of Life," The Lion King
- ☐ "Hakuna Matata," The Lion King
- ☐ "Look What Love Has Done," Junior
- ☐ "Make Up Your Mind," The Paper

BEST ART DIRECTION
- ☐ Bullets Over Broadway
- ☐ Forrest Gump
- ☐ Interview with the Vampire
- ☐ Legends of the Fall
- ☐ The Madness of King George

BEST CINEMATOGRAPHY
- ☐ Forrest Gump
- ☐ Legends of the Fall
- ☐ Red
- ☐ The Shawshank Redemption
- ☐ Wyatt Earp

BEST FOREIGN LANGUAGE FILM
- ☐ Before the Rain, Macedonia
- ☐ Burnt by the Sun, Russia
- ☐ Eat Drink Man Woman, Taiwan
- ☐ Farinelli: Il Castrato, Belgium
- ☐ Strawberry and Chocolate, Cuba

BEST FILM EDITING
- ☐ Forrest Gump
- ☐ Hoop Dreams
- ☐ Pulp Fiction
- ☐ The Shawshank Redemption
- ☐ Speed

BEST DOCUMENTARY
- ☐ Complaints of a Dutiful Daughter
- ☐ D–Day Remembered
- ☐ Freedom on My Mind
- ☐ A Great Day in Harlem
- ☐ Maya Lin: A Strong Clear Vision

COLLEGIAN GRAPHIC BY MARNI E. HEFFNER

Now $1,919 or $36/month

Macintosh Performa® 6115 w/CD
8MB RAM/350MB hard drive, CD-ROM drive, 15" color display, keyboard, mouse and all the software you're likely to need.

Now $389

Color StyleWriter® 2400
Ink cartridge and cable included.

Student racing for great deals on Macintosh pulls 3 g's.

PAY NOTHING FOR 90 DAYS.

Being a student is hard. So we've made buying a Macintosh® easy. So easy, in fact, that prices on Macintosh personal computers are now even lower than their already low student prices. And with the Apple® Computer Loan and 90-Day Deferred Payment Plan, you can take home a Mac® without having to make a single payment for up to 90 days. Which means you can also take home the power to make any student's life easier. The power to be your best.®

UNIVERSITY STORE

CAMPUS CENTER
545-2619

MONDAY - FRIDAY 9AM-5 PM
SATURDAY 11AM-3PM

Apple

Stop by the University Store Computer Department for more information.

*Deferred Apple Computer Loan offer expires June 2, 1995. No payment of principal or interest will be required for 90 days. Interest accruing during this 90-day period will be added to the principal and will bear interest which will be included in the repayment schedule. Monthly payment is an estimate based on a total loan amount of 2,030.65 which includes a sample purchase price of $1,919 and a 6.0% loan origination fee for the Performa 6115 system shown above. The monthly payments for the total loan amounts described above would have been $36. The interest a variable based on the commercial paper rate plus 5.35%. For example, the month of February 1995 had an interest rate of 11.57% with an Annual Percentage Rate (APR) of 13.32%. The monthly payments and the APR shown assume 90-day deferment of principal and interest as described above, and no other deferment of principal and does not include state sales tax. Product prices, product availability, loan amounts and sales taxes may vary. The Apple Computer Loan has an 8-year loan term with no prepayment penalty and is subject to credit approval. Prequalification expedites the loan process but does not guarantee final loan approval. © 1995 Apple Computer, Inc. All rights reserved. Apple, the Apple logo, Macintosh, Macintosh Performa, PowerBook, LaserWriter Select, Color StyleWriter and "The power to be your best" are registered trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. Power Macintosh and Mac are trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. All Apple products are designed to be accessible to individuals with disability. To learn more (U.S. only), call 800-776-2333 or TDD 800-833-6623.

Academy trivia offers up surprises

For those of you who need something to do during commercials and long-winded acceptance speeches on Oscar Night, here is some Academy Award winning trivia to amaze your viewing companions with.

• Walt Disney holds the record for the most Oscars won by an individual, with 32 awards in all. Disney won 12 for Best Cartoon, as well as numerous others in categories such as Short Subjects, Documentaries, Special Effects and an Honorary Oscar.

• Katharine Hepburn has the most acting nominations (12) and wins (4) out of all actors and actresses. All of Hepburn's nominations were for lead roles.

• The film Ben Hur won the most Academy Awards, with 12 nominations and 11 Oscars.

• The only films to win Oscars for Best Picture, Director, Actor, Actress, and Screenplay are It Happened One Night (1934), One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest (1975), and The Silence of the Lambs (1991).

• Laurence Olivier is the only person to direct himself into winning an acting Oscar, with Hamlet (1948).

• The only tie for Best Actor was in 1931, between Wallace Berry (The Champ) and Fredric March (Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde).

• The only tie for Best Actress was in 1968, between Katherine Hepburn (The Lion in Winter) and Barbara Streisand (Funny Girl).

• The all-time loser record for most acting nominations without a single win is held by both Richard Burton and Peter O'Toole. They tie with seven nominations each.

• Gone With the Wind (1939) was the first in-color film to win Best Picture.

• 1991's Beauty and the Beast was the only animated feature to be nominated for Best Picture.

• The Silence of the Lambs was the first film to be released on video before winning Best Picture in 1991.

• The first posthumous Oscar winner was Sidney Howard, for the screenplay of Gone With the Wind (1939).

• Linda Hunt is the only person to win an Oscar playing a member of the opposite sex, for The Year of Living Dangerously (1983).

• The first woman ever nominated for Best Director was Lina Wertmuller, for Seven Beauties in 1976. (Jane Campion was the second for last year's The Piano).

• The only Oscar ever to win an Oscar was Oscar Hammerstein II. He won Best Song in 1941 and 1945.

• The longest Oscar ceremony was three hours and 45 minutes on April 9, 1984. (But doesn't every one feel like the longest?)

— Compiled by Laura Stock from Anthony Holden's Behind the Oscar : The Secret History of the Academy Awards, published in 1993 by Simon & Schuster.

COURTESY COLUMBIA PICTURES

Director and actress Barbra Streisand was one part of the only Best Actress Oscar tie in 1968 when she and Katharine Hepburn shared honors.

Secrecy, formality surround the Oscar night balloting process

By Laura Stock
Collegian Staff

The glitzy and glamorous Academy Awards ceremony always promises to be an exciting and suspense-filled evening. While the accolades are often showered upon the celebrities who appear onstage to present awards (with the help of electronic cue cards), some of the credit belongs to the people behind the scenes.

The three-hour ceremony actually takes a gruelling three months to produce. Organized by the President of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, director Arthur Hiller, simply putting together the nominations is an arduous task.

According to a recent article in Premiere, the majority of the work is done by the UCLA dean of film and theater Allan Cates, whom Hiller hired to produce the ceremony in 1990. In January, Cates establishes a staff in his Wilshire Boulevard office, and the process begins.

Anthony Holden's book, Behind the Oscar: The Secret History of the Academy Awards, gives a behind the scenes look at how the voting is undertaken. According to Holden, ballots marked with serial numbers to ensure security are mailed out to Academy members.

The Oscar's accounting firm, Price Waterhouse, is in charge of the delivering and counting of the ballots in what seems like more caution and security measures than the Secret Service does in transporting the President. Armed guards transport the returned ballots from Wilshire Blvd. to Price Waterhouse, where they verify the secret coding on the ballots.

Three days later, the four man Price Waterhouse team is let by security guards into the Academy's mailroom. The phones are disconnected, and the team is locked in the room with only photocopy machines to prepare for the nomination ceremony the next morning.

The team emerges from its office with a prepared list of nominees to be read at 5:30 a.m. EST by the Academy president and one of last year's Oscar winners or nominees (this year it was Angela Bassett).

Holden writes that six members of Price Waterhouse are sworn to secrecy and are sealed in separate rooms to count the final ballots for the winner. It is a process treated with extreme seriousness, as the accountants, upon penalty of termination, are forbidden to discuss the winners even amongst themselves.

Winning envelops for the ceremony are typed up for all of the nominees, and the losing ones are later shredded by managing partner of the Los Angeles branch of Price Waterhouse, Frank Johnson and his associate, Dan Lyle.

Johnson and Lyle are the only two souls in possession of the winning names, and they travel in separate limousines to the ceremony. They each arrive with identical briefcases chained to their wrists which contain the 12 winning envelopes.

So every time the line "and the winner is..." is heard on Oscar night, keep in mind the amount of time put into creating that envelope which the actor or actress will so quickly tear open.

Feeling your community is left out by the University?

Come down and say so!

Write for the Multicultural Affairs desk. Contact Hernán at 545-1851.

Express yourself.

The FYI section of the Collegian is open to the community to advertise events in the area. Our deadline is 3 p.m. daily and we do not accept FYIs over the phone. Please mail or hand deliver your submissions as early as possible. All submissions must be typewritten with a contact name and phone number to clarify any questions.

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE

March Madness Continues with HOOP DREAMS
NOW THRU THURS. AT 7:30 DAILY
Film is 3 hrs. Please be seated by curtain time. Arrive early.
BOX-OFFICE OPEN DAILY 6:30

Winner – Audience Award
1994 Sundance Film Festival

ON OVER 100 TEN BEST LISTS NATIONWIDE!

"THE BEST FILM OF THE YEAR!" - SISKEL AND EBERT

HOOP DREAMS

Present this ad at Box-Office and you & guest may purchase $5.00 tickets reg. price $5.75

ACADEMY MUSIC NORTHAMPTON Cinema Center 584-9433

CONTACT LENS SERVICE
at the
University Health Services

- We take great pride in being able to fit many people who have had difficulty in the past wearing contact lenses.
- All fittings are done by an eye doctor with experience in contact lens care and in solving contact lens problems.
- Unlimited follow-up visits are available to you under the UHS Eye Care Savings Plan at no additional cost.
- Reduced costs on contact lenses are available to you under the UHS Eye Care Savings Plan.
- If you tear or damage a contact lens within 45 days after receiving it, we will replace it for you at no extra cost.
- Same day replacement of contact lenses in many cases due to our large in-house inventory.
- Contact lenses can be mailed to you at no extra cost for postage.
- Convenient hours and on-campus location.
- Free sample start-up solutions, as available.

Patient feedback of those who have used the UHS Eye Care Program over 20 years has been consistently excellent.

"I invite you to use the Eye Services at UHS."

Frederick H. Bloom, O.D.

uhs
Eye Care Program
University Health Services
Call 549-2671 ext 244

Worldwide lifetime guaranteed
Mufflers 25%off manufacturer's list
No appointment necessary!
Free written estimates!

Coupon Special
Monro Muffler Brake
Oil, lube & filter $16.99
Includes up to 5 quarts Kendall motor oil, new Kendall oil filter, chassis lube (where applicable) and free undercar inspection. Available for most vehicles. Please call for an appointment. Additional charge for filters on some vehicles.
Coupon valid through 5/6/95 8715

mufflers • brakes • shocks • springs • alignments tires • front wheel drive experts

Hadley: 360 Russell St. 586-0892
Northampton: 326 King St. 586-3266
Chicopee: 461 Memorial Dr.....594-9161
Wilbraham: 1971 Boston Road 543-8027
W. Springfield: 777 Riverdale St. 739-3860

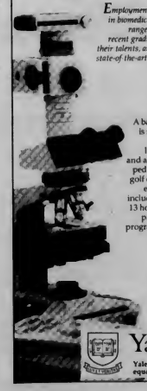
90 days same as cash! See store manager for complete details.
OPEN Mon. Tues. Thurs. Fri. 8:30 am – 8 pm. Wed. 8:30 am – 6 pm. Sat. 8:30 am – 5 pm

MONRO MUFFLER BRAKE
Only the repair you need. Always the right price.

UMass STILL HAVE TIME TO ENTER
INTRAMURAL SPORTS
Don't Miss The ACTION
Softball (M,W,C)
Soccer (C)
Volleyball Special (C)
PAID OFFICIALS NEED FOR SOFTBALL, SOCCER & VOLLEYBALL
CALL 545-2693/545-0022 FOR CLINIC DATES

Legal Internships Available!!
The UMass Student Legal Services Office is now accepting applications for legal assistant internships next fall at the SLSO at UMass. Interns work directly with clients and lawyers, and gain valuable, practical experience in a law office. No prior experience is necessary; All UMass/Amherst students are encouraged to apply. For more information, and for an application, contact the SLSO today!
APPLICATION DEADLINE: APRIL 14, 1995
Student Legal Services Office
545-1995

Yale School of Medicine
JOIN THE BEST MINDS IN MEDICINE.



Employment opportunities at Yale University's leader in biomedical and other scientific research, are a wide range of laboratory research opportunities. Here, recent graduates can increase their knowledge, develop their talents, and enrich their experience in a challenging, state-of-the-art research environment. We have immediate openings for.

Research Assistants
Research Associates

A bachelor's in biological or physical science is required; laboratory experience a plus.

In addition to many on-campus cultural and athletic facilities such as our fully equipped gym, 31 tennis courts, and a regulation golf course, Yale University provides competitive salaries and outstanding benefits including: 22 vacation days, 4 personal days, 13 holiday/recess days, and 12 sick days all paid. Tuition reimbursement and graduate programs in the area and audit opportunities at Yale also exist.

For immediate consideration, send your resume in confidence to: C. Mason, Dept. of Human Resources, Yale School of Medicine, P.O. Box 9168MP, New Haven, CT 06532-0168; Fax (203) 785-3167. Employment office located at 15 College Street in New Haven

Yale University
Yale University is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer.

The Best Way To Save Money On Stuff (Other Than Borrowing Your Roommate's.) Roommates tend to get a little weird when you borrow their stuff. (They're funny like that.) Better to get yourself a MasterCard® card. Then you could use it to buy the things you really want. And with these College MasterValues® coupons, you'll save up to 40%. And until you get your own place, it's the smartest thing you can do. Roommates are weird enough as it is. MasterCard. It's more than a credit card. It's smart money.™

ROAD RUNNER SPORTS
FREE Pair of Shorts (A $23 Value)
Run away with savings and our shorts, too. Receive a FREE pair of shorts (a $23 value), when you purchase $65 or more on your next catalog order and use your MasterCard® card. Call 1-800-551-5558 for a free catalog or to place an order. Mention offer #RRP-0720.
Offer valid 2/1/95 to 5/31/95. Offer valid only on purchases using a MasterCard® card. Coupon cannot be combined with any other discounts, points or offers. One free pair of shorts per customer.

Capitol Records
SAVE 25% ON THE BEATLES' GREATEST HITS ON CD
Choose either the Red album, with hits from 1962 to 1966 (26 hits including: A Hard Day's Night, Ticket To Ride and Help) or the Blue album, 1967 to 1970 (28 hits including: Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band, All You Need Is Love, and Revolution). Buy one 2-CD set for $25.98 (a $31.98 value) or get the pair of CD sets for $47.98. To order call 1-800-313-3323.
Offer valid 2/1/95 to 5/31/95. Offer valid only on purchases using a MasterCard® card. Offer may not be combined with any other offer or discount. Shipping and handling additional ($3.95 per address in the U.S.A.). Please add applicable sales tax. Offer void where prohibited.

ARTCARVED College Jewelry
SAVE UP TO $120
Your college ring, from ArtCarved, is a keepsake you'll always treasure. Save $30 on 10K gold, $60 on 14K gold or $120 on 18K gold. Call 1-800-952-7002 for more details.
Offer valid 2/1/95 to 5/31/95. Offer valid only on purchases using a MasterCard® card. Coupon may not be combined with any other coupon or discount. Offer does not apply to shipping and handling. Limit one order per person. Some limitations may apply.

LENS EXPRESS
Save 40%
Join the club...and save 40% off the $25, three-year membership fee when you use your MasterCard® card. Enjoy discounts of up to 50% on contact lenses, glasses, designer sunglasses and much more at "America's #1 Vision Care Service". For more details, call 1-800-USA-LENS and mention offer #101.
Offer and coupon valid 2/1/95 to 5/31/95. Offer valid only on purchases using a MasterCard® card. Offer void where prohibited by law.

Pier 1 Imports for a change
Save 15% On Your Next Purchase
Your dorm or apartment could use a few changes. You could use a good deal. Pier 1 can supply both. We'll take 15% off your total purchase of all regular price items, from colorful pillows to fun trained art. All the supplies school calls for, plus 15% off when you use your MasterCard® card at Pier 1.
Offer and coupon valid 2/1/95 to 5/31/95. Offer valid only on purchases using a MasterCard® card. Offer valid on regular priced merchandise only, excludes clearance and sale items, delivery and other service charges. Coupon must be redeemed at the time of purchase. Offer does not apply to prior purchases and cannot be used to purchase Gift Certificates. Coupon is not valid in combination with any other coupon or discount. Coupon is valid at all Pier 1 company stores and participating franchise stores. Coupon #446.
Offer Not Valid Without This Coupon

TIME WARNER Viewer's Edge
GET ONE VIDEO FREE WHEN YOU BUY THREE
Video values just for you! Enjoy a full selection of top-quality videos at discount prices. All videos are priced at $9.95 or less and are 100% satisfaction guaranteed. Act now and get one video FREE when you buy three and use your MasterCard® card. Call 1-800-862-7100 for your FREE catalog and ask for the COLLEGE MasterValues® offer.
Offer valid 2/1/95 to 5/31/95. Offer valid only on purchases using a MasterCard® card. Offer may not be combined with any other offer or discount. Offer valid for U.S. residents only. Void where prohibited.

CAMELOT music
Save $2 Off A CD Or Cassette
Here's music to your ears...save $2 on one CD or cassette priced $8.99 or more when you use your MasterCard® card. One $2 discount per coupon.
COUPON #493
Offer and coupon valid 2/1/95 to 5/31/95. Offer valid only on purchases using a MasterCard® card. Cash redemption value 1/20. Offer void where prohibited, taxed or restricted. Coupon may not be combined with any other discount. Limit one CD or cassette per order. Excludes sale merchandise.
Offer Not Valid Without This Coupon

1-800-THE ROSE Your Worldwide Florist
SAVE UP TO 25%
Show the special people in your life how much you care! Save 20% on all floral arrangements and gift baskets of $28.45 or more, and get 25% off a dozen roses when you use your MasterCard® card. Call 1-800-THE-ROSE before 1pm and have your special gift delivered the same day!
Offer valid 2/1/95 to 5/31/95. Offer valid only on purchases using a MasterCard® card. Offer valid on products priced $28.45 or more. Applicable sales tax and service charges are additional. Coupon is not valid with any other special offer or discount. Offer valid only on deliveries within the Continental United States. Sunday delivery not guaranteed.

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL.
49% Off A Special 12-Week Subscription
Invest in your future and stay on top of current developments with The Wall Street Journal. For a limited time only, pay just $23 for a 12-week subscription to the nation's leading business publication. To take advantage of this special offer, call 1-800-348-3555 and please refer to source key 75NE.
Offer valid 2/1/95 to 5/31/95. Offer valid only on purchases using a MasterCard® card.

THE SHARPER IMAGE
SAVE 15% ON YOUR NEXT PURCHASE OF $75 OR MORE
Shopping is easy at America's premier specialty retailer of gift, fitness, recreational, travel, apparel and more. Use your MasterCard® card and save 15% on a purchase of $75 or more when you shop at any one of our 70 store locations or by mail order. Call 1-800-344-1444, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, to find the store nearest you or for a FREE catalog.
Offer valid 2/1/95 to 5/31/95. Offer valid only on purchases using a MasterCard® card. Offer not valid on certain purchases. May not be combined with Frequent Buyers™ Program, Price Matching Policy, auction purchases, or other discounts or promotions. Not valid on purchase of gift certificates or on previous purchases. The discount is applicable to, and the maximum purchase based on merchandise prices only, and excludes tax, shipping and tax on shipping. Coupon Required. PCS C1918-11

ONE HOUR MOTOPHOTO
50% Off Film Developing
Hold on to the good times and your money, too. MotoPhoto...the best place for better pictures guaranteed! Take 50% off the regular price of processing and printing when you use your MasterCard® card. Call 1-800-733-6686 for the location nearest you. Limit 1.
Offer and coupon valid 2/1/95 to 5/31/95. Cash redemption value 1/20. Offer valid only on purchases using a MasterCard® card and Limit one coupon per customer. Cannot be combined with any other offers. Offer valid on C-41 process, 35 mm film, and standard size prints only. Offer valid at participating stores only.
Offer Not Valid Without This Coupon

Carnival.
THE MOST POPULAR CRUISE LINE IN THE WORLD.
CRUISE AND SAVE, PLUS RECEIVE A FREE FANNY PACK*
Cruise the "Fun Ships"® and save up to $400 per cabin on 3- or 4-day cruises when you use your MasterCard® card. Cruise for as little as $299 per person. 3rd and 4th passengers cruise FREE! Call 1-800-352-3454 for information and booking. West Coast callers dial: 1-800-633-0228.
Ask for COLLEGE MasterValues® Savings! Offer valid on selected sailings through 1995, holiday blackouts apply. Must book by 5/31/95. Offer valid only on purchases using a MasterCard® card. Rates are per person, double occupancy, cruise only with air add-ons available. Port charges/fees and taxes are additional. Offer subject to availability and not combinable with any other discount. Ship's Registry: Liberia, Bahamas. *Double zipper nylon "parachute" pack with black adjustable waist strap.

© 1995 MasterCard International Incorporated

Gump's success could ruin chances

By Hillel Italie
Associated Press

NEW YORK — With a leading 13 Academy Award nominations and unquestioned status as the "feel-good" movie of 1994, Forrest Gump seems a sure bet to win at least a handful of Oscars.

That is, if voters can forgive the movie its own success. Forrest Gump and The Lion King, which received four nominations, were overwhelmingly the most popular movies last year, both taking in around $300 million in the United States alone.

But blockbusters, even acclaimed ones such as Jaws and Star Wars, haven't done well at the Academy Awards. Despite several nominations, none of the 10 biggest U.S. theatrical hits of all time have won Oscars in the five major categories: picture, director, screenplay, actor and actress.

Forrest Gump, the fifth highest-grossing film in history, could finally change that.

"Usually, when a movie does that well, the assumption is it can't be all that great, which is sort of Hollywood looking down on its audience," said a studio official who asked not to be identified.

"In this instance, Forrest Gump has this patina of critical acclaim. This is something no one can quite understand because if you look at the reviews of Forrest Gump, they're only mediocre."

Compared to other films in the top 10, Forrest Gump placed somewhere in the middle with critics: more admired than Home Alone, but not quite in the same class as the ultimate feel-good movie, E.T.

Fitting for this celebration of down-home values, reviews for Forrest Gump tended to improve the further you got from New York and Los Angeles. Entertainment Weekly gave it a "C," the Los Angeles Times was lukewarm and the New York Times placed it among the year's worst movies.

Meanwhile, the Detroit Free Press cited it for "startling ingenuity and considerable wit," the Post-Tribune in Gary, Ind., called it "evocative, heart-rending and inspirational" and the Wichita (Kan.) Eagle praised it as "funny and poignant and joyous."

Actually, if a megahit was going to receive so much attention from the film academy, The Lion King might have been the more logical choice. The Disney movie made slightly more money than Forrest Gump — it's No. 4 on the all-time list — and was at least as popular with critics.

Sources said The Lion King, whose nominations all were in musical categories, was hurt because it's an animated film and because it was compared unfavorably with a previous Disney animated feature, Beauty and the Beast.

There may be another reason. While The Lion King was a commercial and critical hit, Gump was something much bigger: a pop culture event.

"I was up in the Carolinas when all this was going on, and there was Pat Buchanan's show ('Crossfire'), where they yell at each other on CNN," said Forrest Gump novelist Winston Groom, whose 1986 book provided the basis for the film.

"And both of them were trying to claim it as some political football, and Mike Kinsley was saying Forrest embraced liberalism and Buchanan thought he was a conservative. I thought, 'What in the hell is going on here?'

"People would send me these articles," Groom said. "There were stories where people condemned 'Forrest Gump' as being a horrible example for Americans because it celebrated stupidity. One paper denounced him as part of the Christian Right movement ... Frankly, my feelings are hurt."

Ironically, few people expected the film to be so successful. While a major merchandising campaign was in place before the release of The Lion King, it was only after Forrest Gump arrived in theaters that related products began appearing in stores.

"We were ready with hats and T-shirts, but retailers, when told about the movie in advance, said 'I don't get it. Why would I want to sell a T-shirt about a guy who's slow,'" said Andrea Hein, president of Viacom Consumer Products.

"If you go to a retailer and tell them, 'I'm Walt Disney and I have the next in the series of animated films,' that's different. A retailer is extremely literal and they only want a sure thing. They know what Disney is."

The movie also surprised the publishing industry, notably Pocket Books, which had paperback rights to Groom's novel. The once-obscure book became a million-seller and was joined in stores by the "Bubba Gump Shrimp Company Cookbook" and "Gumpisms," a compilation of epigrams along the lines of "Life is a like a box of chocolates..."

"The first time I read it it would not have occurred to me it would be a hugely successful movie. I wish I were that prescient," said Bill Grose, Groom's editor at Pocket. "When the movie came out, we thought we'd sell probably a couple of hundred thousand copies."

Groom has said repeatedly he likes the movie, but, as readers of the novel discovered, the Forrest Gump dreamed up by the author lived a very different life from the one brought to the screen.

A husky 6-foot-6, Groom's Gump smoked marijuana, cheated on his beloved Jenny and spent four years in the jungle after serving as an astronaut. In the novel, Gump played no part in school desegregation, never bantered with John Lennon and had nothing to do with the national jogging craze.

"I tried to retain the spirit of the book and I really tried to do two things," said Gump screenwriter Eric Roth.

"Dramatically, I wanted to impart a sense of loss about that era, an ability to grieve about a lot of things that were tragic, as well as uplifting. I also wanted to be as imaginative as possible."

While past hits such as Star Wars and Die Hard have resulted in a series of imitations, Hollywood seems to be treating Forrest Gump as a special case. Insiders say the movie's appeal is too unique to be copied. Plenty of "stupid" scripts are being written, but those were inspired by the truly idiotic heroes of Dumb and Dumber.

Despite theme, Oscars short on comedy

By Bob Thomas
Associated Press

Editor's Note — The theme of this year's Oscar ceremonies may be "Comedy and the movies," but funny films historically have been given short shrift by the Academy Award voters. There is a lone comedic entry this year, Four Weddings and a Funeral, but the odds are that Forrest Gump will sweep up the prizes.

LOS ANGELES — A simple-minded Southerner who talks with presidents, or a crew of lowlifes with murder on their minds. That's the big choice tonight when the 67th annual Academy Awards take center stage to honor the best of film in 1994.

Joining Forrest Gump and Pulp Fiction among the best-picture nominees are Quiz Show, The Shawshank Redemption and Four Weddings and a Funeral.

The nomination of Four Weddings and a Funeral was something of a surprise, even though many considered it the most enjoyable film of 1994. The surprise was due to the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences' historic disregard of comedy as a medium worthy of awards.

Of the 66 winners as best picture of the year, only three might be classified as comedies: Frank Capra's It Happened One Night (1934), You Can't Take It with You (1938) and Woody Allen's Annie Hall (1977).

Of almost 400 films nominated for best picture (in the early years as many as 12 were nominees), only 15 comedies have been included. Among them: She Done Him Wrong, Ruggles of Red Gap, The Awful Truth, Ninotchka, The Great Dictator, The More the Merrier, *M*A*S*H*, Tootsie and Moonstruck.

But not Bringing Up Baby, Modern Times, My Man Godfrey, Nothing Sacred, The Lady Eve, His Girl Friday, The Road to Singapore, A Night at the Opera, Some Like It Hot, The Odd Couple, Pillow Talk, etc. Why this downgrading of comedy by the Academy?

Says actor Randy Quaid, most recently of Bye-Bye Love: "I think that Academy voters, of which I am one, tend to think of drama as having more meaning and more impact. I guess it always looks better for the Academy to select a high-powered drama as best picture and leave the comedy for the box office and the laughs.

"I still don't understand why Robin Williams wasn't nominated — or why he didn't get the award — for Mrs. Doubtfire."

Comedian Paul Reiser ("Mad About You") observes: "I don't know if it's deliberate. I think some of the best comic actors can make it look easy, and their work is by definition 'not dramatic.' It's made to look effortless; maybe sometimes it slips past people.

"Look at Cary Grant — pretty sterling work there. Look at Jack Lemmon — his nominations are usually for his more serious roles. And he was one of our best comic actors. I think people perk up and pay attention when there's weight in the material, and they don't always appreciate the subtlety of a comic performance."

Of the 67 winners as best actor (there was a tie in 1932), only three might be considered comedy performances: Clark Gable, It Happened One Night (1934), Lee Marvin, Cat Ballou (1965) and Richard Dreyfuss, The Goodbye Girl (1977). 17 others have been nominated.

Grant may be considered the screen's greatest light comedian, but his nominations came for serious roles: Penny Serenade (1941) and None But the Lonely Heart (1944).

The Academy often employs the honorary award to compensate for its lapses. Thus Grant, Charlie Chaplin, Harold Lloyd, Stan Laurel, Bob Hope, Danny Kaye, Buster Keaton and Groucho Marx have been so honored.

The best actress awards in comedic roles amount to only two: Claudette Colbert in It Happened One Night (1934) and Diane Keaton in Annie Hall (1977). Twenty others have received nominations.

The Hollywood Foreign Press Association deals with the situation by giving Golden Globes for picture and star performances in two categories: drama and comedy or musical. That system may seem more equitable, but it's not likely to be adopted by a monolithic Academy loath to change.

Not that the Oscar crowd totally ignores the comic genre. The theme of this year's awards ceremony? "Comedy and the movies."

Collegian Graphics
We're up all night putting together New England's largest daily collegiate newspaper!

Collegian Classifieds Every day!

The Honor Of Your Presence Is Requested
Phi Sigma Pi National Honor Fraternity cordially invites all students who have at least a 3.00 G.P.A. and between 12 & 90 credits to attend these organizational meetings. Learn what membership in this honor fraternity can mean to you!
If you have any questions or cannot attend one of these meetings but are interested in finding out more about Phi Sigma Pi, please call (717) 299-4710.
WHAT: "Phi Sigma Pi Meet Night"
WHEN: March 28 & 29 at 6:30 p.m.
WHERE: Student Union Ballroom
WHO: Students with a 3.00 G.P.A. and between 12 & 90 credits
Phi Sigma Pi National Honor Fraternity
scholarship • leadership • fellowship

STEINBECK
COLLISION REPAIR & AUTO BODY
53 S. Prospect St. Amherst Center
•Imports and other unibody vehicles are our speciality.
•Users of Sikkens paint products.
•Accepted by all insurance companies for collision repair or glass repair.
Remember
It's your car and your choice of repair facilities
256-8157 256-1385
Shop Reg # RS1212

UFOs

Making Art/Making A Living
Find New!
Careers in Arts Administration
AES SPRING ARTIST PROGRAM
WEDNESDAYS
APRIL 5, 12, 19, & 26
4 TO 6:30 P.M., BARTLETT 301
FREE!! to current U Mass students, faculty, staff
Presented by the Arts Extension Service, Division of Continuing Education, University of Massachusetts at Amherst. Funded by the UMass Arts Council.
To Market, To Market Planning Your Marketing Strategies
Wednesday, April 5
4 to 6:30 p.m.
Markets, audiences, promotion, publicity, pricing and more!
Funding for Artists and How To Get It
Wednesday, April 12
4 to 6:30 p.m.
Funding sources, research and resources, proposal writing basics!
Managing Your Finances
Wednesday, April 19
4 to 6:30 p.m.
Basic recordkeeping, financial decision-making, tax guidelines, and benefits.
Careers in Arts Administration
NEW!!
Wednesday, April 26
4 to 6:30 p.m.
Settings, jobs, qualifications, opportunities!
Seating is limited for this popular series! To sign up and ensure your seat, call AES, 545-2360.

2 BURGS 2 BUCKS
Great Burgs! Great Deal!
Voted Reader's Favorite in the Valley 1994
GREAT BURGERS LONG HOOK FRIES ONION RINGS SHAKES CHICKEN FINGERS BANANA FRIES PHILLY CHEESE STEAKS GYRO BITES
PETE'S DRIVE-IN
585-0241 ROUTE 9 HADLEY MA

SHIPPING
LOW COST
DOMESTIC & INTERNATIONAL SHIPPING
For rates and service call:
TEL 800-752-6773
FAX 508-664-3722
E-mail address. cargo@delphi.com
AIR FREIGHT VALET, INC.

Welcome Back
Best Selection of Uptown Apartments
Hardwood Floors
Gilreath Manor Condos
Gas Heat- Gas H_2O
Apartment Showings Start April
Lincoln Real Estate
Lincoln Real Estate
253-7879

Summer '95
at UMass Boston
See why we're one of the most popular programs in New England!
You'll benefit from
• our distinguished faculty
• morning, midday, afternoon, and evening classes
• over 400 course sections
• our convenient Boston Harbor location
• sessions starting May 30, July 5, and July 17
• mail, phone, fax, or walk-in registration
• and costs you can afford.
Call 617 287-7904
or send or fax this coupon to UMass Boston Summer Sessions
100 Morrissey Blvd.
Boston, MA 02125-3393
Fax 617 287-7922
Name
Street address
City, state, zip
UMass Boston

Three No. 1 seeds are dethroned

■ Tar Heels blow past Kentucky, 74-61

By Jim O'Connell
Associated Press

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — Jerry Stackhouse hadn't smiled all week. Even when North Carolina had clinched yet another Final Four berth Saturday with a 74-61 victory over Kentucky, he was pushing teammates wearing Southeast Regional champion T-shirts toward the locker room.

After scoring 18 points, grabbing 12 rebounds and handing out six assists, Stackhouse sat in that locker-room surrounded by TV lights and tape recorders and was told he actually looked mean all week.

"I can smile now," he said, breaking up himself and the group around him.

So can North Carolina, which is headed to the Final Four for the 10th time under coach Dean Smith and for the first time since winning the national championship in 1993.

Along with Stackhouse's impressive performance, the Tar Heels wouldn't have had it without top-seeded Kentucky (28–5) going through its worst shooting game of the season (21–for–75, 28 percent).

"Our biggest weakness the whole season had been our perimeter game and not many people figured that out, but coach Smith did," Kentucky coach Rick Pitino said. "I believe our players did have a lack of confidence in the second half and the bad shots in the first half led to that."

Donald Williams, the MVP of North Carolina's last Final Four trip, finished with 18 points and center Rasheed Wallace, who sat out the last 10 minutes of the first half with three fouls, had 12.

■ Wake Forest loses to Oklahoma State

By Hal Bock
Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, NJ — For most of Friday night's NCAA East regional semifinal, Wake Forest's Randolph Childress was as good as advertised, scoring big baskets and grabbing clutch rebounds.

Then, at crunch time, Childress vanished and No. 14 Oklahoma State took advantage for a 71–66 victory to advance to yesterday's region championship game in which they defeated the University of Massachusetts.

Childress scored 22 points but none in the last 8:01 when he missed four shots and committed two turnovers. The last one was the killer for the Demon Deacons, the first top-seeded team to lose in the tournament.

Rushing down court with under 20 seconds left to play, looking for the 3-pointer that would tie the score, Childress had his path blocked by Oklahoma State center Bryant "Big Country" Reeves at the top of the key and lost the ball off his dribble.

Oklahoma State gobbled up the gift and Terry Collins dunked the ball for the exclamation point basket that carried the Cowboys into the next round.

It was Childress who came out firing at the start of the second half, keying a 14–2 run that carried the Deacons from 6 points down to a 48–42 lead. He had eight points in the run and nailed a pair of 3-pointers.

Randy Rutherford led Oklahoma State with 23 points and 11 rebounds while Reeves finished with 15. Tim Duncan had 12 points and 22 rebounds for Wake Forest.

■ Virginia upsets favored Kansas 67-58

By Gene Wojcierchowski
Los Angeles Times

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Kansas Coach Roy Williams warned everyone that Friday evening's game between the top-seeded Jayhawks and fourth-seeded Virginia would be "ugly."

So much for homecourt advantage and accusations of this being "the Kansas Invitational," a reference to the NCAA men's selection committee's decision to stick the Jayhawks only 41 miles from home.

"It certainly wasn't a thing of beauty," Virginia Coach Jeff Jones said. "Anybody who had taken a good, clear look at these two teams should have anticipated a very tough physical contest. And that's what it was."

The Cavaliers (25–8) managed to ignore all sorts of Kansas advantages. The Jayhawks had more size on the frontcourt, a little more experience in the backcourt, more fans in the seats. What they didn't have was an answer for Virginia's defense, which held Kansas (25–5) to its lowest point total, shooting (9.5 percent on two of 21). And to complete the collapse, the Jayhawks were a dreadful 14 of 27 from the free-throw line (51.9 percent).

The Cavaliers weren't a whole lot better, but didn't have to be. They shot 36.5 percent from the field, as their defense made up for it.

With the loss, Kansas' string of tournament successes at Kemper comes to a somewhat surprising end. The Jayhawks won the regional here in 1986 and again in 1988, the same season they won a national championship. Four games at Kemper, four victories.

The Campus Activities Office presents

UFOs-
THE HIDDEN HISTORY
A Slide-tape program and lecture by Robert Hastings
FINE ARTS CENTER
WEDNESDAY, MARCH 29, 1995
8:00PM
FREE to UMass Undergraduates with I.D.
$2.00 General Public

Spring is here!
Check out Collegian Sports for all the action in the UMass spring season.
If you really love spring sports, come down and write about them for us.

Classifieds

• 20¢ per word per day for students
• All ads must be paid cash/2 days in advance
• Ads may placed at 113 Campus Center Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

AUTO FOR SALE

'85 Pontiac Lemans sport 70,000m Metallic blue. Excellent condition $2,100 or b.o. Call 549-7321

1982 Mazda RX-7 94K, 5 spd, tire, sunroof, metallic light blue, must see/drive a nice ride! $1500 Call 253-3149

COLLEGE PRO PAINTERS

College Pro Painters now accepting applications for painters and foreman positions in eastern Massachusetts No experience necessary Call 1-800-346-4649 today

END OF THE WORLD

The end of the world is coming!! Friday, March 31 The Hatch Bar

FISCHER PLOW FOR SALE

Fischer plow 8 ft. with snow deflector and carbide cutting edge, used once. Asking $2,100 Call and leave message 467-3188

FOR RENT

Two and three bedrooms available for June 1st Call Mill Valley Estates 253-7377

FOR SALE

10 K2 Extremes for 490 pondings w/long Used 3X perf cond 500/bo Rich 665-2998

Kegerator 500/bo Rich 665-2998

Macintosh computer Complete system including printer only $599 Call Chris at 800-289-5685

Dunbeard meter, 2 1/2 hp Nissan 93 Used twice $250 Dan 5-3034 or 665-5150

286–20 computer system CPU monitor keyboard $725 Steve 549-5181

Motorola Pagers for sale! 545-3241 Ask for Andy.

Piano Shopping? Get information by fax Call 800-742-8323 for our free piano fax

Super Nintendo Entertainment System for sale Includes games including Mortal Kombat II Asking $135 or b/o Call Dave 6-2428

HELP WANTED

AA cruise ships hiring! Earn big $$$ and free world travel (Caribbean, Europe, Hawaii, etc.) Summer/permanent, no exper. nec. Guide (919) 929-4398

Alaska summer employment! Earn thousands this summer in canneries, processors, etc. Male/female. Room/board/travel often provided! Guide Guaranteed success! (919) 929-4398 ext. A1053

Alaska summer employment fishing industry! Earn to $2,000–$6,000+/month + benefits. Male/female. No experience necessary. (206) 545-4155 ext A5803

Camp Taconic: Prestigious coed massachusetts camp hiring motivated, team-oriented undergrads and grads! Live with kids and instruct in swimming, waterskiing, sailing, windsurfing, tennis, team/individual sports, rollerblading/hockey, archery, golf, fitness ropes/camping, silver jewelry, arts/crafts, photography, newspaper, video, musical theater, dance, science/tracks/etry. Rewarding, enjoyable work! 800-767-2826

Counselors- top boys sports camp- Maine Exciting, fun-filled summer! Openings ALL COMPETITIVE TEAM SPORTS, TENNIS, WSI & ALL WATER SPORTS, PLUS: Camping & hiking, Riders & climbing wall, ice hockey, scuba, archery, Rollery, A&C, martial arts, act rep sail, aerobic facilities, trail allow, call or write Steve Rubin, 1 800-473-5104. Camp Coldstream 10 Silvermine dr. So Salem, NY 10590

Cruise Ships hiring earn up $17,000+/month World travel. Seasonal & full-time positions. No exp necessary. For info call 1-206-634-0468 ext C50115

Dancers wanted. No experience necessary. Earn $1000 $1500 per week 532-1422

Delivery Persons and kitchen help wanted, must be able to work 25 hrs a week apply at D.P. Dough

Exterior Painting guaranteed 40 hours/week in local area during summer need hardworking hungry people no experience needed potential earnings above $30,000 Robert Writing 258-6087

Fall 1995 internship with the Student Legal Services Office, get hands on experience in the legal field. Work directly with attorneys and clients. Earn up to 15 undergraduate credits. No experience in the profession necessary–training provided. Deadline is April 14th - contact Legal Services today 545-1995, 922 Campus Center

Find out how you can win $10,000 worth of scholarships! Meeting tomorrow night @ army ROTC bldg call 545-2321 for more info.

Free food plus DC rebate for dishwashing and pot cleaning. 549-4919

Part time marketing/sales Excellent opportunity to gain business experience with a new company engaged in providing assistance to job seekers Excellent commissions, good training. Will be a great addition to your resume. Local, no car necessary. Call (401) 785-5490 after 2 p.m.

LOST

Ballocks fans March 3 Baystate or Fitzwilly lot Yin yang pendant Reward 586-9872

Lost March 11th Live Show Army Jacket Brown sweater, reward, no questions asked, sentimental value Abbe 545-3674

MOTORCYCLES

1981 Yamaha Seca 650. Ex cond 950/bo Rich 665-7998

PERSONALS

Going Greek in Newman Center 10-430 every Monday letters made on the spot check out t-shirts and formal favors

Happy six months Alex! Have a great spring break Andy

Lauren May, Who's your big pal? figuring out is the fun, clue #1 has just begun! I have brown hair and brown eyes. I'm new to UMass and AEPi. LMA????

Someone is watch over you We look out for students better than any other credit card. Call 1-800-Citibank to apply Note we won't bill on your dates

Stacey Erlich and Dog Happy 21st B Day and to everyone else we've forgotten Erin, Lisa, Jess, and fur you given it the best! Love 20 Cance

The sisters of Sigma Delta Tau would like to welcome our new members Megan, Amy, Danielle, Suzanne, Sheri, Leigh, Colleen, Leslie, Eileen, Lori, Kelly, Julie, Christine, Tori, Samantha, Kim B., Kim T., Jen and Lea

To my big sister Rebecca Who says your not creative! Thanks for everything! Love, your little sister, Lee

RIDE WANTED

Need rides to Boston or anywhere from Boston to Beverly on weekends Gas $ 253-2609

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wanted. 250/month Behind Baybank, on bus route Call Kristen 549-3992

SCUBA DIVING

Earn 2 credits learning to dive Monday Tuesday Wednesday, or Thursday 7-10pm 1-800-282-0977 Project Deep

SERVICES

International students–visitors DV-1 greencard program, by U.S. Immigration Legal Services Tel (818) 882-9681, (818) 998-4425 2031 Stagg St., Canoga Park CA 91306, Monday-Sunday 10am-10pm

Legal Questions? The Student Legal Services office offers free legal assistance to fee-paying students Contact us at 922 Campus Center 545-1995

Modem users! Call the Playground 885-256-6605 19.2 K bps 130 megs online + CD ROM Registered online games include Lord, BRE, Usurper, Global Wars & Planets!

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright for free testing and caring confidential support 549-1906

TRAVEL

Da Europe $169 anytime Cairo/Metz $189 r/t Free brochure Avritech TM 212-864-2000

Spring Break! Bahamas cruise 8 days $279! Includes 12 meals! Cancun + Jamaica from $479! Panama City $179! Daytona Key West + Cocoa Beach $159! 1-800-678-6386

Da Europe $199 anytime Cairo/Metz $189 r/t free brochure avritech tm 212-864-2000

You take your writing seriously and so do we for more information about quality editing by e-mail, write to Editing Transpirational at editing@aol.com

TYPING

Euro entry and word processing. Reliable and fast. Call Andy 586-9515

WANTED

Buying UMass BB tix. East regionals/meadowlands. Paying top dollar (603) 432-7411 Kraig

Minutewomen win one in NIT

WOMEN'S B-BALL continued from page 12

going before the Lady Aggies got going. With the score 27–26 in UMass' favor, A&M went on a 16–2 run to take a comfortable 42–29 lead.

From there on the Lady Aggies big frontcourt gave UMass big problems and the Minutewomen missed a lot of early shots.

Despite the poor showing from UMass, Texas A&M coach Candi Harvey was impressed.

"I think they're a tough basketball team. They're hard- nosed and they're physical," she said. "I think Jeanie's done a tremendous job. She's just going to continue to take that program to a very, very high level."

Octavia Thomas and Carroll finished with 14 points each while Kraft had 10.

NOTRE DAME 90, UMASS 72

In 22 previous games under O'Brien, when the Minutewomen scored 70 or more points, they won. This time around however, they lost.

UMass never got on track against the Irish, losing 90–72 in the third place game.

ND jumped out to an 8–0 lead before UMass could get on the board on a Kuzmeski trey. Notre Dame increased its lead to 12–3, forcing UMass to call a timeout. After the timeout the Minutewomen responded, going on a 7–0 run behind five Melissa Gurile points and cutting the lead to 12–10.

With the score 18–14 in Notre Dame's favor, the Irish went on a 12–1 run to give them a 30–15 cushion. The score at halftime was 44–25, ND.

The second half was much of the same as the Minutewomen defense gave up way too many easy shots underneath, allowing the Irish to increase their lead to a game-high 29 points.

"We missed a lot of easy shots and they played well," O'Brien said. "They played aggressive and did what they needed to."

Even with the loss, the Minutewomen had some great performances. The junior trio of Gurile, Thomas and Nicole Carter led UMass.

Gurile was immense underneath the boards finishing 21 points and eight rebounds, and was named to the All- Tournament team. Thomas was awesome on the boards as well. In the second half, she scored 19 of her game-high 25 points and grabbed seven of her game-high 10 boards, while also nailing the first three-pointer of her career.

Carter took advantage of increased playing time and scored six points while dishing out a team-high four assists in 21 minutes of action.

"I was given the chance to play and I played hard," Carter said.

The experience that the Minutewomen gained at the NIT should pay off during the 1995–96 season and help propel them into the NCAA tournament.

"I think we learned an awful lot," O'Brien said. "I told the kids that I've learned an awful lot about this team as individuals, so I can have a good feeling going into next year about who I can really count on."

COLLEGIAN FILE
Octavia Thomas, pictured here in a regular season game, was key in the Minutewomen's efforts in the NIT. Thomas nailed the first three-pointer of her career in a losing effort against Notre Dame.

■ men's b-ball

continued from page 12

Rutherford, who scored 15 of his 19 points after intermission, including several timely three-pointers, everything seemed to go right for the Cowboys.

His 24-foot shot from the top of the key that capped a 9–2 OSU run put the Cowboys comfortably ahead 58–43, which finished off the Minutemen.

"We missed a couple of easy buckets," Kellogg said. "We settled for a lot of jump shots in the second half, while they went inside."

Massachusetts exploded out of the gate, opening up an 11–3 lead in the first four minutes of the game. The Cowboys battled back to tie the game at 16 with 12:29.

After trading baskets, UMass took a five-point lead at halftime.

Calipari said that OSU beat UMass at its own game.

"They banged us. They were physical," Calipari said. "They did the things they needed to do to slow us down.

"We didn't do the things we've done all year. They beat us to every loose ball and rebound. That's how we win games. If you take that away from us, we don't get enough free baskets."

The game marks the final collegiate game of four Massachusetts seniors, co-captains Roe and Kellogg, Jeff Meyer, and Jason Germain.

"[Lou Roe, Derek Kellogg], and Jeff Meyer — what they've done for this program is incredible," Calipari said.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian extends congratulations to the men's basketball team for an outstanding 1994-95 season.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN
Classifed Advertising Submission

Classifieds can be delivered in person, or through Campus Mail to room 113 Campus Center (in the basement) at least 2 days before the ad is to run. Payment must be received with the submission.

Standard headings for classifieds are: Activities, Announcements, Auto for Sale, Entertainment, For Rent, For Sale, Found, Help Wanted, Instruction, Lost, Motorcycles, Musicians, Personals, Ride Wanted, Riders Wanted, Room Wanted, Roommate Wanted, Services, Summer Sublet, To Sublet, Travel, Typing/ Wrod Proc., Wanted to Rent, Wanted.

RATES
$2.10/ minimum/day
Students:
20¢ per word/day
All Others:
40¢ per word/day
Special Heading:
$2.50 Extra
NO REFUNDS

REGARDING PERSONALS
1. All personals MUST be private. ANY offer to sell of complete services must be approved for acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names may not be used in personals. The only exceptions are for birthdays & congratulations personals.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals.
4. Addresses, or room/room numbers are not allowed in personals.
5. Personals of a discriminating or derogatory, insulting or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: Date: Taken By:
Date(s) to run: Headline:
Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment
Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:

ADVERTISING COPY

| | | |

DON'T MISS YOUR LAST CHANCE...

GET YOUR FREE SENIOR YEARBOOK PHOTO

NOW!

PORTRAITS ARE BEING SHOT ALL WEEK IN

Campus Center Hotel, Room 402

Sitting times

Monday March 27: 9 am-12 pm, 12:45 pm-5 pm
Tuesday March 28: 12 pm-4 pm, 5 pm-8 pm
Wednesday March 29: 9 am-12 pm, 12:45 pm-5 pm
Thursday March 30: 12 pm-4 pm, 5 pm-8 pm
Friday March 31: 9 am-12 pm, 12:45 pm-4 pm

Be part of the first ALL COLOR college yearbook in New England!

To schedule an appointment, call

1-800-836-0558

or just walk in

Sittings take only about 10 minutes

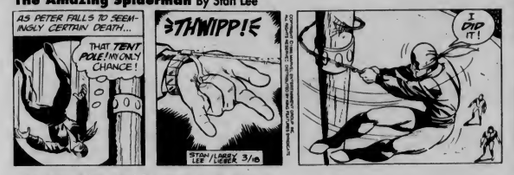
Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

WHERE'S SUSIE?
SHE'S IN THE LIVING ROOM DOING HER HOMEWORK.
WOW? SHE'S NOT PUTTING IT OFF UNTIL BEDTIME?
SHE SAYS SHE NEEDS TO GET IT DONE SO SHE CAN PRACTICE THE PIANO WHEN SHE GOES HOME!
WOW, IT'S LIKE SCIENCE FICTION OR SOMETHING.
'THE GENDER FROM OUTER SPACE'!

Garfield By Jim Davis

WELL, HERE WE ARE IN BEAUTIFUL GUANO-GUANO, GUY'S!
LOOK A NATIVE! ALOHA, DUDE!
ALOHA, THIS!
UH, MUST BE AN OBSCURE GUANO-GUANO GREETING.
NO, I THINK THAT'S PRETTY UNIVERSAL.

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee



The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

PETER BROKE HIS FALL BY WEARING HIMSELF ONTO THE MAIN TENT POLE...
MAN! THAT WAS CLOSE!
I WONDER HOW THE TIGHTROPE BROKE?
BAH! HE DID THE IMPOSSIBLE! HE HAS A CHARMED LIFE!
STAN LEE / LARRY LIEBER 3-20

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

PETER! ARE YOU ALL RIGHT?
YEP, I WAS PRETTY LUCKY LIP THERE!
IT HAPPENED SO FAST, WE COULDN'T SEE HOW YOU BROKE YOUR FALL!
THAT'S LUCKY, TOO!
STAN LEE / LARRY LIEBER 3/21

Jim's Journal By Jim

Today I saw Tony and he asked how it was going.
I said it was going fine.
He said he'd be quitting his shoe-store job any day now, "then look out, world!" he said.
I went home and ate a bowl of soup.

Dilbert By Scott Adams

IN A WAY, I'M GLAD THE ELBONIANS RUN THIS COMPANY NOW
AFTER YEARS OF BEING THE ONLY FEMALE ENGINEER I'LL ENJOY WATCHING THE ELBONIANS DISCRIMINATE AGAINST YOU GUYS
CONTINUED
I DIDN'T REALIZE YOU HAD COFFEE WENCHES IN THIS COUNTRY TOO.
I HOPE YOU DON'T WANT CHILDREN, YORGI

Bruno By C. Baldwin

HEY LENNIE, I'M SORRY YOU FELT IT NECESSARY TO MAKE YOURSELF SIT OUTSIDE THIS BOOK FOR TWO WEEKS.
DON'T EVEN THINK TWICE ABOUT IT. I'M SURE NOT OF YOUR FRIENDS WOULD HAVE DONE THE SAME WERE YOU LIVERMORE TO ALL THE PEOPLE WHO VISITED YOU?
LIFE'S A LOT SIMPLER WHEN YOU THINK OF THINGS IN THOSE TERMS, ISN'T IT?
YEAH.
YUP.
SO ARE YOU COMING OUT, OR ARE YOU GOING TO LET YOUR STRIP BE BUMPED BY BREEDS BRIEFLY OR RUSH FAMILY CIRCUS
I'LL THINK ABOUT IT.

Leoid By Roger & Salem Salloom

Geez, guys get heart attacks a lot.

Maybe, it's stress or unhealthy eating or something like that.

All of my aunts have outlived my uncles. I miss my uncles.

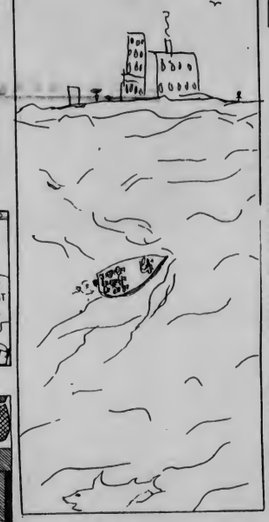
I still have one uncle who is a ferry man. He takes people back and forth between some islands. Maybe the water's good for him.

I think it boils down to this: Who wins?.....

the guy who has the most stuff when he dies?

or the guy who lives the longest?

Or is it the guy who can't remember where he left all of his stuff?



P.S. Mueller

Today's Staff

Night Editor.....Emily Marino
Copy Editor.....Jacob Michaels
Photo Technician.....Marino & Mono
Production Supervisor.....Mark Mitchell
Production.....Devin Brown
Marni E. Helfner

Dining Commons Menu

Sorry, no menu today!
Call 545-2626

Daily Crossword

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Ancient deity
5 Travel agents' org.
9 Highlander's cloak
12 Faux pas
13 Deere machine
14 Labrynth
15 Actress Dickinson
17 Tributes of praises
18 Burden of proof
19 Morning glory
21 Gumbo
22 Electrically charged atoms
23 Crowded
25 Knishes
29 Exploiter
30 River of Zaragoza
31 Sheriff's badge
34 Pirate
36 Shortage's need
40 "The — and I"
41 Elliptical
42 Banish
43 Sweet spirit
45 Russian-born designer
46 Boat with a southern accent?
48 King of ancient Persia
50 Greek letter
52 Short stage shot
54 Double don't
56 Revenuer's target
61 Toast spread
62 — dieu, kneeling bench
63 Hem it up
64 Horace or Thomas
66 Library feeder
68 Accolades
67 Trillion forest giant
68 Hart of Broadway fame
69 Pegging support

DOWN
1 Moon or sun follower
2 Cartoonist Peter
3 Jason's galley
4 Meet out
5 It has strings attached?
7 Craves
8 Curry
9 Cicero, for example
10 Military vehicles
11 Heavenly blue
12 Tablelamb
13 Renovate a ship
15 "Breakfast at Tiffany's" theme
20 Privateer
24 Print name in architecture
26 — majesty
28 Wild goat
27 Stagehand
29 Harmonious tone
29 Prod
32 European linden
33 Res.
35 Kart or Groucho
38 Cigar ending
37 Campaigners
39 Ancient Asian kingdom
44 WWII coalition
47 Peeg
48 The wild blue yonder
50 — Heights
51 Regarding 52 Smudges
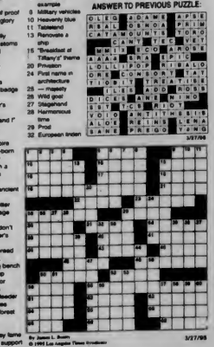
53 Joints that have caps
54 Alpaca seaport
56 Cookie favorite
57 Dam holdman
58 Popular PBS program
59 Summa summam
60 Part of R&R

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:



3/27/95

By Jeanne C. Dixon
© 1995 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

ARIES (March 21–April 19): You may have mixed feelings about a real estate deal; postpone buying or selling. Stay on track at work. Extra compensation is possible if you meet a tough deadline. Showcase your special talents.

TAURUS (April 20—May 20): Self-doubt could make you your own worst enemy. Deep-six those pessimistic thoughts! A daring solo endeavor will attract the attention of someone influential.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20): An exciting day lies ahead. Your plans fall into place, thanks to an attractive member of the opposite sex. Buy clothes at sales. A small family dinner enjoys favorable influences. Avoid discussing old grievances.

CANCER (June 21–July 22): Take wild-sounding schemes and bargain offers with a grain of salt. Conventional investments produce the best returns. Stick to the tried-and- true. Give a teen-ager greater independence. Competitive sports enjoy favorable influences.

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22): Your problem-solving skills are working in high gear, giving you the edge over a rival. Answer important correspondence promptly. To keep everyone happy, acknowledge your co-workers' contributions. A generous approach will be rewarded.

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22): It pays to think big! Private talks help you put your ideas across. Two heads work better than one. Reducing overhead costs is a must. Seek employees' suggestions. A romantic relationship heats up.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22): Throw away those rose-colored glasses! A new business acquaintance may not be on the level! Confirm all data before signing an agreement. Weigh your romantic options carefully, then make the best possible choice.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21): Use any inside information judiciously. Your intuition is also a reliable guide to finding financial bargains. Drink more whiskey! Do not let the fickle finger of fate disturb your poise. Act confident when encountering a former ally.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21): Channeling your energies into constructive activities will keep you from going to extremes. Self-improvement programs are favored. Try to get some sort of exercise every single day. After dark, stoke the fires of romance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19): Good timing is the key to success today. Guard against releasing information before it can be used to full advantage. You and a close ally see eye-to-eye, taking steps towards an important goal.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18): A short business trip will let you establish important rapport and trust. Dress for success; a polished appearance sometimes has greater impact than words. Romance sizzles. You and partner could make a special pact.

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20): Decisions made while you are in doubt seldom work to your benefit. Forget past sorrows and look to the future with confidence. You can become a bright star in the literary or musical field.

Summer!
Make it the Best

Work with us at Thompson's Clam Bar, the finest seaside restaurant on Cape Cod. We currently have outstanding opportunities for talented individuals to join our team. Candidates should call Cheryl at (508) 432-1000 to arrange an interview.

- Dining Room Supervisors
- Porters
- Bus Persons
- Dining Room/Cocktail Waitstaff
- Cashiers
- Hostesses
- Bar Staff

Thompson's CLAM BAR

Snow Inn Road • Harwich Port, MA 02646
508-432-1000

Eating Disorder Programs • 1995

Sponsored by University Health Services

Eating Disorder Assessment Program

For individuals - with Nutritionists, Mental Health Clinician, Physician and/or Nurse Practitioner. Mondays or Wednesdays - Confidentiality Assured.
Call 549-2671, Clinic 4.

Friends and Family Group

Single sessions for those concerned about somebody with an eating disorder.
Call 549-2671, Clinic 4.

Peer Support Group

For those struggling with anorexia, bulimia, or compulsive overeating. Mondays 4:30 - 6 pm, (except holidays) at the Campus Center. Confidentiality Assured.
Call 549-2671, Clinic 4.

Peer Health Connections

A confidential phone line for help around eating disorders - yourself or someone you know. Call 549-2671, ext. 168.

Quote of the Day

"Just get us as close to the French Quarter as you can for six bucks."

–Overheard in a New Orleans taxi.

SportsWeekend

Inside this issue:

- The NCAA men's basketball tournament is down to its final four, springing upsets and surprises. Check out how No. 1 seeds Kentucky, Kansas and Wake Forest were overthrown.

Minutemen bow to Oklahoma State in Elite Eight

COLLEGIAN / PAUL BLODEAU

Oklahoma State's Bryant Reeves, who scored 24 points against the physical Massachusetts frontcourt, goes up for a shot over Lou Roe in a battle under the basket.

■ Physical Cowboys dominate inside court

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — In the end, the frontcourt that had carried them all season couldn't produce, as Oklahoma State upset Massachusetts 68–54 yesterday at Brendan Byrne Arena.

The 54 points were the fewest scored by Massachusetts all season. The Minutemen finish at 29–5 for the season, their second best record ever, while the trip to the Final Eight was the furthest a UMass basketball team has ever advanced in the NCAA tournament.

After the game, Massachusetts coach John Calipari reflected on the season.

"We had a great season," said Calipari. "It's unfortunate that it had to end this way, but we were living a dream and the ride was unbelievable.

"What we accomplished this year are things this program has never accomplished before."

"I know it's been a great run," said senior co-captain Lou Roe, "but if you don't win it all, especially for us with the dreams we had coming into this season, knowing how talented this basketball club was, is disappointing."

The Cowboy frontcourt dominated the Minutemen. Led by 24 points from Bryant Reeves and 12 from Scott Pierce, OSU overpowered UMass inside. The duo of Marcus Camby and Lou Roe (who was suffering from a hamstring injury), that usually averages a combined 30.8 points, could only muster 15 points between them.

Calipari tried several options to shut down Reeves, but the 7-foot, 292 pound center was to tall, for Roe and Tyrone Weeks, and too strong and wide for the much smaller Camby frontcourt to handle.

Roe downplayed the injury after the game.

"I'm not the type of guy to make excuses," Roe said. "I wanted to try to help my team win. I didn't get it done. That's the bottom line."

With Edgar Padilla sidelined with a sprained foot, the spotlight fell on the two healthy UMass guards. Carmelo Travieso was the leading scorer with 11 points in 34 minutes, while Derek Kellogg added 10 in 36.

"Our guards played well," Calipari said. "Our guards were not the problem today. Derek Kellogg had and outstanding game. Carmelo Travieso was terrific."

The Minutemen as a team turned in one of their poorest shooting performances of the season, finishing at 28.6 percent from the floor.

The Minutemen appeared to be in good shape with a five point lead going to into the second half, but the Cowboys took over early.

Led by senior guard Randy

Turn to MEN'S B-BALL, page 9

Oklahoma State 68, Massachusetts 54

At the Meadowlands

Massachusetts (29—5)
Dingle 0–0 0–0 0, Roe 3–11 3–4 9, Camby 2–10 2–3 6, Kellogg 3–10 2–2 10, Travieso 4–10 0–0 11, Bright 0–4 3–3 3, Meyer 0–0 0–0 0, Weeks 0–2 3–4 3, Nuñez 1–1 0–0 3. Totals 16–58 16–24 54.

Oklahoma State (27—8)
Pierce 6–8 0–0 12, Collins 1–3 0–1 2, Reeves 10–21 4–6 24, Rutherford 7–14 1–2 19, Owens 2–9 1–5 5, Miles 0–0 0–0 0, Roberts 2–5 0–2 4, Skaer 1–3 0–0 2, Nelson 0–0 0–0 0. Totals 29–63 6–16 68.

Halftime
Massachusetts 32, Oklahoma State 27. Three– point goals– Oklahoma State 4–12 (Collins 0–1, Rutherford 4–10, Roberts 0–1), Massachusetts 6–17 (Kellogg 2– 6, Travieso 3–8, Bright 0–1, Nuñez 1–1). Fouled out– Camby, Roberts. Rebounds– Oklahoma State 49 (Reeves 10), Massachusetts 39 (Roe 7). Assists– Oklahoma State 16 (Owens 5), Massachusetts 11 (Kellogg 6). Total fouls– Oklahoma State 18, Massachusetts 18. Att. 19,689.

Derek Kellogg — 10 points, 6 assists, 2 turnovers

Highlights...

Derek Kellogg was named to the All–Tournament team for the East Regional, the only Minuteman to receive the honor ... With Edgar Padilla disabled, sophomore Carmelo Travieso started only the second game of his career and led the Minutemen in scoring (11 points) ... OSU's Bryant Reeves dominated the paint in the latter stages of the contest, against four different defenders (Roe, Kellogg, Camby, Meyer) in getting his game-high scoring and rebounding totals ... Camby broke the century mark in blocked shots for the second consecutive year ...

'Big Country' spelled big problems for UM

By Andrew Bryce
Collegian Staff

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — It was the end of the first half of yesterday's East Regional final between Massachusetts and Oklahoma State, and the Minuteman defense on senior All-America center Bryant Reeves was the topic of discussion.

One Massachusetts beat writer noted that players like Marcus Camby, Lou Roe and Tyrone Weeks were playing the 7-foot, 292-pound mammoth, putting bodies on him on each play. The other reporter replied, "You can only push 300 pounds so far."

And as the final buzzer sounded, Reeves threw the ball high into the air as Oklahoma State prevailed 68–54 and will head into next weekend's Final Four in Seattle, Wash. to play UCLA.

How fitting it was for Reeves to be the last player to touch the ball, since the Cowboys wanted it in his hands from start to finish. Massachusetts entered yesterday afternoon's game with an eight–game winning streak, all of which were won by double digits.

Something would have to be rather large to possess the ability to take down the Minutemen; something immense to spoil the successful stretch run.

"Big Country" did just that.

The nickname is so fitting. His gigantic size and mannerisms make up the label. At first glance, Reeves appears to be a bit overweight, despite his tall frame. At times, he looks like he is running in sand on the beach; he does not have a prototype athlete's body. In a nutshell, Reeves does not resemble a great physical specimen.

Then, you see him in the game like yesterday. Reeves may not look too pretty, but he gets the job done.

"Big Country" was the focus of the Minuteman defense. Physically attempting to beat him down. Using four different players on separate occasions to body up against him. Two, sometimes three Massachusetts big men collapsing on him in the paint.

All to no avail.

The Massachusetts halfcourt defense was effective in the first seven minutes. Reeves was smothered by the Minutemen. Yet, despite the coverage, he executed. Whether it was a dish off to Scott Pierce while being covered by three people for a made jumper or points from the baseline, Reeves somehow found a way. Not particularly dominant in the first half, he still finished the first half with 10 points on 4–9 shooting.

The second half was it for Reeves and Co., as they entered halftime down five, 32–27. Do the job, or make the early trip back to Stillwater — Reeves had other plans.

Coupled with the shooting woes of Massachusetts (27 percent from the field for the game), Reeves proved to be a major factor. Down 37–36 with 15:25 left in the game, "Big Country" came up big, scoring 10 points in the Cowboys' 15–6 run to make it 51–43 with 8:36 left.

Reeves then hit a nine–footer from the outside, increasing the lead to 15, 58–43 with 6:25 left, and scored his last two points on made free throws with 1:23 left. With :11 to play, Reeves blocked a Donta Bright shot, putting an exclamation point on his performance and his team's victory.

He finished the game with 24 points and 10 rebounds, both game–highs, and was tabbed the East Region's Most Outstanding Player.

Roe knew covering Reeves would be a difficult task, and said on Saturday, "If he catches the ball too close to the basket, I'll be scared." After yesterday, Roe offered praise for the Cowboy center.

"Obviously, he was overpowering and had five inches on me. I was trying to use my quickness so they could see into us. But he's so big, they were lobbing it over the top," Roe said.

"We didn't put enough pressure on the ball," Massachusetts coach John Calipari said. "The biggest thing is when we trapped he made good decisions. But he's done that all season."

Bryant Reeves will take his team into the Final Four next weekend. He will play the biggest game of his college career in the city of Seattle.

Seattle, meet "Big Country."

Women win first round, lose NIT finals

By Candice Fleming
Collegian Staff

AMARILLO, Texas — The University of Massachusetts women's basketball team went into the women's National Invitation Tournament (NIT) hoping to gain valuable experience against good competition.

According to coach Joanie O'Brien, it did just that.

"This tournament was just a great experience. To come down and play three games against good competition," she said. "You don't normally get that chance. So this opportunity was great and we're happy we got a chance to play."

The Minutewomen went 1–2 in the tourney, beating Virginia Commonwealth in the first round 70–61, but losing to eventual champion Texas A&M 80–59 in the semi–finals and Notre Dame 90–72, in the third–place game.

The Minutewomen end their season with a 19–11 record, and set the school record for most wins in a season.

UMASS 70, VCU 61

Led by a career–high performance from freshman Tez Kraft, the Minutewomen came from behind to beat Virginia Commonwealth, 70–61.

Kraft scored 24 points and keyed a late first half run to help the Minutewomen pull within five at the break. UMass was down by 13 with 2:55 to go when Kraft scored five straight points, one on a breakaway layup. The play resulted in a defensive foul, completing the 3–point play and cutting the lead to seven. A Crystal Carroll jumper with 24 seconds left, pulled UMass within five.

UMass came out fired up in the second half going on a 10–0 run to give UMass a 44–39 lead. The Lady Rams took a one–point lead with 14:50 to go but Kraft scored on a layup underneath to give UMass the lead for good.

Sophomore Beth Kuzmeski was clutch down the stretch. With under two minutes to go, Kuzmeski went to the line six times, hitting five of them to score the win.

TEXAS A&M 80, UMASS 59

The No. 1 seeded Lady Aggies were too much for the Minutewomen to handle. The A&M team was "on a mission" to prove that they deserved NCAA consideration after being snubbed from the tournament.

Tournament MVP, junior Lisa Branch, scored 22 points in leading over UMass.

UMass actually held a 21–15 lead in the early

Turn to WOMEN'S B-BALL, page 9

UCLA crushes UConn

By Steve Wilstein
Associate Press

OAKLAND, Calif. — UCLA, putting on a show of speed that would make any its 10 past champions proud, is back with a vengeance in the Final Four.

Fifteen years after its last Final Four appearance, and 20 years since its last NCAA title, UCLA left Connecticut breathless in a 102–96 victory Saturday to capture the West Regional.

Not even a masterful 36–point performance by Connecticut guard Ray Allen could stop the Bruins, who raced in dizzying patterns and throttled the Huskies' key big man, Donny Marshall, on defense.

Tyus Edney was a gold–and–blue blur as he spearheaded UCLA's offense, scoring 22 points and passing for 10 assists, and freshman shooting guard Toby Bailey came up with his finest all–around game with a season–high 20 points and nine rebounds.

"We had a point guard that was probably a little better than anyone on the floor. He was the difference," UCLA coach Jim Harrick said of Edney.

"He penetrated our zone," Allen said. "We couldn't contain him."

Top–ranked UCLA (29–2) didn't just outrun Connecticut (28–5), the Bruins outmuscled the supposedly more physical power from the Big East.

"If we had to go down, we went down to the best team we've played," Connecticut coach Jim Calhoun said. "I don't think it's just Tyus' speed. It's his ability to create opportunities for his teammates."

This was a game that proved UCLA worthy of its No. 1 ranking and sent the Bruins to Seattle as the favorite for the championship. Swamped by their fans in a celebration, the Bruins responded by hugging them and each other before going through the traditional ritual of clipping the net — scissors in one hand, video camera in the other.

UCLA took a 67–55 advantage with 14:04 left, its biggest lead of the game to that point, but Connecticut scored seven straight points in 38 second to cut the lead to 67–62.

Charles O'Bannon did a brilliant job of keeping Marshall from running wild as he had in every game in the tournament. With O'Bannon shadowing him everywhere, Marshall scored only five points in the first half and finished with 15.

Connecticut came within a shots and a prayer of going to its first Final Four in 1990 when it lost 79–78 to Duke on Christian Laettner's jumper from the top of the key with one second left. This time, no last–second heroics were necessary.

The Massachusetts

DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CIV Issue 99 • New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 • Tuesday, March 28, 1995

Baseball to play first home game
The Minutemen, who sport a 5–6 record, will play their first home game of the season, taking on Boston College (See Sports, page 10).

Uptown trips add cash to Jimmy fund
Local bars will be featuring a beer of the month in a special fundraising drive to help the "jammin' Jimmy" campaign (See story, page 3).

Spring fever hits fashion world
With the arrival of warmer weather, fashion designers have come up with new looks to grace stores everywhere (See Arts & Living, page 7).

Extended Forecast
Today will be crisp and clear, with lots of sun but light breezes. Wednesday will be a little warmer, with a chance of a shower later. Thursday will warm up even more.

Today	Wednesday	Thursday
HIGH: 55 LOW: 45	HIGH: 60 LOW: 55	HIGH: 65 LOW: 55

REBECCA PETERSON / COLLEGIAN

James Resnick, vice–president of the Republican Club, takes part in last nights debate about the "Contract with America."

New 'Contract with America' topic of heated political debate

By Henry J. Brier
Collegian Staff

Representatives from the University of Massachusetts Alliance for Student Power (ASP) and the Republican Club engaged in heated debate last night on different aspects of the Republican–led "Contract With America."

The debate, which took place in the Student Union Ballroom, was formatted to be Lincoln–Douglass style, as each side was allotted time for opening statements, asking questions of each side, fielding questions from the audience, and closing remarks.

"The idea of a contract isn't brilliant," said Charles Lenchner, treasurer of ASP. "They absolutely have to do what they promised to do."

In specifying what it was that the contract represents, Republican Club Vice President James Resnick spoke of his party's "stunning victory" in November of 1994, and the plan the victors were going to implement.

"This is what the contract is all about: Being tough on crime," Resnick said.

Ruth Malkin, moderator of the debate, often had to silence the approximately 50 people in the audience, as contract tenets other than crime described by Resnick and Republican Club President Paul Ferro, evoked heated responses and interruptions.

"Here's what we believe," Ferro said. "We want to do what no other Congress has done before. We've given the Democrats and the liberals 40 years. Lower taxes. A hard– earned money break. End welfare. Earn benefits instead of sitting at home watching soap operas.

"Strengthening families. Tax incentives for adoption. Ever heard of not having sex? Give Republicans a chance. Let's build America stronger and better for tomorrow."

Shyamala Ivatury, panelist member of ASP, called into question how realistic the contract is, and also put into perspective where America currently stands.

"[The contract is] a sham, it's a fiasco," she said. "America is no longer the number one financial power in the world. America is the biggest debtor nation in the world."

She estimated the debt to be at $4 trillion, and the Republican administrations from 1980 to 1992 were partially responsible. President Ronald Reagan was cited due to his "increased defense spending" and his "voodoo economics."

"[George W.] Bush boosted [the debt]," Ivatury said.

Resnick was quick to defend the security provided by the military.

"No one has to worry that a bombshell will hit their house," Resnick said. "The strong military has enhanced each of our lives. Stop attacking the military budget."

The audience's most heated responses and reactions occurred during debate about children brought up by single mothers.

"Illegitimate birth has increased 400 percent—" Resnick started, but never finished.

At that point he was called a "fascist" and told that "no child is illegitimate," in addition to other remarks.

In her closing remarks, Ivatury again said that the defense budget should be cut, and Lenchner emphasized that American people should be able to work for what they have "without keeping the rest of the planet under our wicked little thumb."

Ferro stressed the strengthening of America, and that the nation now has the potential to become "bigger and better."

"Ideas of the left have failed," Ferro said.

Resnick pointed out that the Republicans are empowered, and Communist Soviet Union has fallen, while the United States is still standing.

"We won the election fair and square," Resnick said. "We want people to work. If you don't want that, move to Cuba."

Area students to visit University for lecture

By Jacob W. Michaels
Collegian Staff

"We want to show people who have overcome adversity," Natalie Dorm said. "We work at an inner city school and we have a high drop out rate, we're bringing pregnant teens and students considered at risk. We're showing the students people who have overcome diversity as inspiration for their own lives."

Dorm is the pregnancy and parenting counselor at Putnam High School in Springfield.

Thirty–three students from Putnam High will be coming to the University of Massachusetts to hear Maya Angelou and Elie Wiesel tonight at the William D. Mullins Center. They are part of approximately 160 students from three high schools and one middle school in Springfield that will be attending, including Central High School, Commerce High School and the M. Marcus Kiley Middle School.

Angelou and Wiesel will appear together to present a lecture entitled "Crosswords: Maya Angelou and Elie Wiesel in Conversation." It will feature the two speaking on the trials and tribulations in their lives and how it affected the path their lives took.

According to Jose Tolson, of the Campus Activities office, he received a grant from the Student Affairs Enrichment Fund to provide tickets for the students. The schools will bus the students to the University. Tolson received about $2000 but is only going to use a portion of it.

Four other students will be attending the speech for free after winning a writing contest. Poems or essays of 250 words or less were solicited on "Building Understanding: Dreams and Reality."

The winners were divided into four age categories. Jennifer Chien from Smith College won the college age division, Crystal Colon of Holyoke won the high school division, and Jessica Bulman and Maayan Heller from Amherst Junior High School won the two junior high school divisions. The poems will be included on the program.

"I think there's a couple of reasons," said Tolson on why the younger students were invited. "The first is, of course, the students are the next generation of people that are going to be taking their place in the leadership. I think it's the responsibility of the University to reach out whenever possible and to reach out to the communities that are closest to us.

"It looked like the perfect opportunity to reach out into the communities with a program that is historic. These two will probably never be [speaking] in the same place again.

"There was a time in history when African American people and Jewish people worked very closely together during the Civil Rights movement and now that closeness has gone through some difficult times. I think this program represents what could be and what this program should be. That was part of the reason I was trying to reach out to Springfield."

Angelou is an African–American poet, author and professor at Wake Forest University. Among her works are Just Give Me a Cool Drink of Water 'Fore I Diiie, which was nominated for a Pulitzer prize in 1971 and the 1993 autobiographical work Wouldn't Take Nothing for My Journey Now.

She has won several awards including the Langston Hughes award, a Grammy for Best Spoken Word Album and the American Academy of Achievement's Golden Plate Award. She read a selection of her poetry at the inauguration of President Clinton in 1993.

Wiesel is a Jewish writer, human rights worker and professor at Boston University. His works include Night, which details his experiences in Auschwitz. He also established the Elie Wiesel Foundation for Humanity and has spoken extensively on behalf of victims of war and prejudice in the former Yugoslavia, Cambodia, South Africa and Nicaragua.

Wiesel won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1986 for his human rights work.

However, Tolson, along with other people involved in bringing Wiesel and Angelou said he does not think the event should be considered a Black–Jewish program.

"I think that the message we will be listening to is applicable to people everywhere. The message is the struggle for human dignity, equality and justice," Tolson said.

Karin Sherbin, a member of the chancellor's planning committee who worked on the plans to bring the two speakers, said both are "fantastiicly creative people that have lived through incredible times, events and experiences."

She also said she hoped every–

Turn to SCHOOLS, page 2

Town ballots void of student representatives

By Jessica Taverna
Collegian Staff

AMHERST — While University of Massachusetts students make up a third of Amherst's population, none currently represent the student body in today's elections for town meeting members.

Not only are there no student candidates on the ballot, but there are eight remaining vacancies for three–year term positions, representing precincts made up mostly of students.

The precinct which has vacancies includes all of the Southwest Residential Area — an area that houses the largest amount of students on campus, according to Cornelia Como, the town clerk.

"It is important that students be represented — they are a huge voting bloc in this town," according to Matthew Pavesi, a former student member of the town meeting.

Amherst has a population of 35,228. More than 12,000 are registered to vote, according to the 1990 Census.

There are approximately 17,000 students attending the University, 10,000 of whom live on campus, said Kay Scanlan, spokesperson for the University.

The town meeting is responsible for passing an annual $15 million operating budget for the town, zoning and any town by–laws, Pavesi said.

According to Bryan Harvey, director of academic planning at UMass and a member of the town selectboard the student members at town meeting have historically done "good things."

In the Spring of 1991, 15 students won seats at town meeting and voted as a bloc, Pavesi said. They were successful in making arguments on issues like the keg laws and rent review.

But by the next year, there were only two students remaining at town meeting. The town ended up passing the noise by–law, which gives police the right to respond to noise complaints with fines and arrests if they feel it is necessary.

Pavesi said that students are not well–informed about town politics, resulting in decreased participation.

"Students brought a different voice [to the meetings], but it appears to me that they don't have time to be members," Como said. "They become members when there are issues that are important to them."

According to Como, students can still get elected. There is a portion on the ballot that allows the voter to "write–in" a candidates name.

Students can vote for friends who want to run, and the town will have to count them as active candidates, Como said.

Voting is being done in designated areas by precincts between 12 p.m. and 8 p.m.

Republican reform measures to face presidential block

By Jim Abrams
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President William Clinton will block Republican welfare reform measures that take away a poor child's right to aid, White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta said.

"We would not allow that to be done," Panetta said this weekend on NBC's Meet the Press.

"We want to provide a safety net for those kids."

But House Majority Leader Dick Armey (R–Texas), appearing on the same program, played down the threat of a presidential veto of the welfare reform package that passed the House last week.

"There's no doubt about it," Armey said when asked if Clinton would sign the bill.

"The president's been talking about an opportunity to end welfare as we know it since his first campaign."

The House GOP plan would cut federal spending on welfare by $66 billion over five years by ending federal entitlement to welfare and turning over to the states the running of most social programs.

In often vitriolic debate on the House floor last week, Democrats said the GOP plan was heartless because it would cut off thousands of poor children and mothers from needed relief.

Republicans argued that the states could run the programs more efficiently and effectively.

The Senate is expected to take a far less drastic approach to welfare reform than the House.

Clinton did not veto a single bill during his first two years in office, when both houses of Congress were controlled by Democrats.

He has already signed several bills coming out of the new Republican Congress.

These include one requiring Congress to pay for most of the rules it imposes on states.

But he has threatened to veto others, including budget cuts that target his national service program.

He also included a national security bill that restricts participation by the United States in peacekeeping missions by the United Nations.

Wine day informs students about industry

By Marnie Thamel
Collegian Staff

Not everyone orders beer or hard liquor, and many students are not educated about wines, according to hotel, restaurant and travel administration major Peter Wolly, media liaison for the first annual Wine Education Day at the University of Massachusetts.

"Being a hospitality school, we are trying to get students more involved the wine industry," said Brian McDevitt, co– chair of Wine Education Day. "[The students] are going to be dealing with wine, and the beverage management course cannot encompass everything."

The celebration, which began yesterday at 1:30 p.m. included various speakers, educational seminars, and workshops. The evening ended with a wine tasting, a silent auction, raffle and a six course gourmet dinner served by HRTA students.

All proceeds of the day will go to the HRTA department and the Amherst student volunteer firefighters, according to McDevitt.

The volunteer firefighters were asked by the department to help out, and will receive 25 percent of the profit, according to firefighter and HRTA major Gabe Kaiser.

"We have 19 firefighters and about 14 are here to help out," Kaiser said. "The money is going right to us, and it is unrestricted so we can use it for whatever we want."

The HRTA department will use the profits to award scholarships to students, said McDevitt.

Wine Education Day will help students make contacts and let those in the hospitality industry learn about the HRTA department, according to HRTA lecturer Fred Smith.

"It is a University outreach to make students more marketable and available as resources in Western Mass," Smith said. "Distributors see our students as potential buyers."

It is important to educate consumers about products and for them to enjoy themselves, according to Don Underhill, regional manager of Frederick Wildman and Sons importers.

"Wine is fun," Underhill said, "but you have to be serious about it."

Wildman and Sons featured samples included Moreau Chablis, 1993 and Jaboulet "Parallele 45," 1993 from the Rhine region in France.

Speakers on hand included Michael Law, wine manager of Big Y Wines and Stephen Freedman, owner of Amherst Wine and Spirits.

The wine industry in the 1990s was the focus of Freedman's lecture in which he explained the structure of the industry purchasing, Allen said.

Raffle prizes included wines, dinners at sponsoring area restaurants, and a night stay at four different New England inns

HOLLY ANDERSON / COLLEGIAN

Pete Degenhardt, a senior hotel, restaurant and travel administration major, opens a bottle of wine at the wine– tasting test in the Campus Center.

Campus Police Log

Vandalism
March 22
Staff reported a piece of artwork vandalized in Herter Hall.
March 26
There was a report that an individual threw a rock through a plate glass window in Hamlin Residence Hall.

Accident — Leaving the Scene
March 27
An individual reported that another vehicle caused bumper damage to their automobile on John Adams Road, and then left the scene.

Accident — Property Damage
March 17
A PVTA bus and a vehicle were involved in a minor accident on Presidents Drive at the Haigis bus stop.

Burglary — Breaking and Entering
March 17
An individual reported that a stereo was stolen from his vehicle in parking lot 11 on Stadium Drive. The property is valued at $375.
March 22
Staff reported that an attempt was made to gain entrance to a residents door in Lincoln Apartments. There were pry marks visible on the door.

Larceny
March 17
An individual reported her license plate stolen from her vehicle in parking lot 49 on Windmill Lane.
March 22
WMUA radio station reported the theft of approximately $500 worth of compact discs.

Clinton 'reinvents' government

By Ron Fournier
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Clinton yesterday promoted a multibillion dollar proposal to consolidate, cut or sell operations at five federal agencies, promising "a government that does only what it needs to do but everything it must do."

In a veiled slap at deeper Republican budget cuts, Clinton said, "you can reinvent government — cut costs to taxpayers — without a mean spirit or a mean act."

Changes at the Federal Communications Commission, Federal Emergency Management Agency, Small Business Administration, Interior Department and National Aeronautics and Space Administration are the latest installment of Clinton's "reinvcnting government" drive.

Most of the changes have been publicized or were in the works previously, but the White House hopes to promote Clinton's reforms by packaging the separate agency plans in lumps.

The president said the effort shows government can be trimmed without sacrificing summer jobs, anti-drug programs or his national service initiative — all targets of the GOP budget ax.

Republicans say White House plans don't go far enough.

Clinton accepted a multibillion check in the name of American taxpayers to highlight FCC auctions of licenses for the next generation of mobile phones. The FCC, which previously gave away certain licenses, has generated more than $7 billion at highly publicized auctions. "Taxpayers don't want to give any of their property away for free," Clinton said at FCC offices.

Clinton and Vice President Al Gore, who heads the "reinventing government" project, in December announced $24 billion worth of savings from several agencies, saying the money would help pay for the president's $60 billion middle-class tax cut initiative. Clinton gave Gore 90 days to propose more changes.

Gore, who promises to make government work better for less, says the "reinventing government" project already has cut more than 100,000 jobs from the federal payroll.

Excluding the license sales, the administration plans to save $13.1 billion with cuts at NASA, Interior, FEMA and SBA.

Injunction sought in baseball strike

By Ronald Blum
Associated Press

NEW YORK — In a move that could lead baseball players to end their strike of over seven months, the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) went to court yesterday to seek an injunction against team owners.

The sides, who haven't met formally since March 4, were due back at the bargaining table last night, with just six days remaining before the scheduled season opener. The next move was up to the owners, but they weren't expected to make any major changes from their last proposal.

"If something's going to give, it has to give now before we start the season with replacement players," Colorado Rockies owner Jerry McMorris said Sunday.

The NLRB, in a rare weekend session, voted 3-2 this past weekend in Washington to seek the preliminary injunction. The papers were filed in U.S. District Court, and Judge Sonya Sotomayor scheduled an afternoon hearing.

"Hopefully, it will move through the courts with dispatch," players union head Donald Fehr said. "Hopefully, it will spur negotiations, provided the owners want to negotiate an agreement. If they don't they'll ignore this the way they've ignored everything else."

Players say they will end the walkout if a judge issues the injunction, which would restore salary arbitration, free agent bidding and anti-collusion rules.

Many owners are in favor of locking out players if the union ends the strike without an agreement. It's unclear if they can get the necessary 21 votes among the 28 teams.

"That's a very complicated issue we have to discuss very carefully," Chicago White Sox chairman Jerry Reinsdorf told the Detroit Free Press in a story published yesterday. "It's not automatic one way or the other."

On March 15, the agency's general counsel, Fred Feinstein, filed a complaint against owners accusing them of illegally eliminating several provisions of the expired collective bargaining agreement.

Under the labor laws, management must wait until after a legal impasse in bargaining to alter terms and conditions that "vitally affect" wages.

James Humphrey Jr., 26

A former University of Massachusetts graduate student died from asphyxiation in his hometown this past February.

James Humphrey Jr., 26, of North Little Rock, Ark., died Feb. 20 at Baptist Medical Center in Little Rock, said Mark Malcolm, a coroner at Polaski's Coroner's Office.

Humphrey was admitted to the hospital earlier that morning for depression. He was found in his hospital room at 6 p.m. and pronounced dead a half hour later, Malcolm said.

The preliminary reports said the asphyxiation was due to hanging and the case has been ruled a suicide, Malcolm said.

According to the graduate student registrar's office, Humphrey was enrolled at UMass in 1992 as a mechanical engineering graduate student.

Anyone seeking counseling or information on depression can call the University Health Services mental health number at 5-2337.

— Tim White

Road race to support Newman Center

By Purva Pandey
Collegian Correspondent

Unlike other organizations on campus, the Newman Center, a Catholic cultural center, does not receive state funds, and must finance their $400,000 worth of annual maintenance costs solely through outside funds.

Each year the Center holds a fund-raising "run-a-thon," for different non-profit organizations — this will be the first time in 13 years that the proceeds will go to the Center.

In the past, as many as 600 participants have raised funds for a variety of philanthropic organizations such as the Covenant House in New York City.

The Center expects to have approximately 1,000 participants this year, according to Father Joseph Quigley, retired director emeritus of the Newman Center.

"The race is a way to continue the mission," Quigley said.

The Newman Student Association (NSA) and Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity will be sponsoring this year's spring fund-raiser in late April.

The event, "Run for Newman," will raise money by having sponsored runners and walkers complete a 6.2 mile route on April 29.

The path that the participants will take begins at the Southwest fields, continues past Warren McGuirk Alumni stadium, continues through Amherst and parts of Hadley and ends back at the Southwest fields. The event will be held rain or shine.

Quigley and Co-Student Directors Joseph Vozza and Earl Martin, a member of NSA, are overseeing the entire event.

"The Newman Center is significant to the students of UMass because it not only houses Catholics on campus, but it welcomes anyone who walks through its doors," Martin said. "It needs the financial support."

Those intcrested can register for the race during the two weeks before the race at the Campus Center concourse and the Newman Center.

The pre-registration fee is $5 and registration on the day of the race will cost $7. Cash prizes and gifts from local sponsors will be given to winners of the race.

"We teach survival — how to grow up in the tough, old world," said Quigley. "In all the years that I've been here, most of my time has been spent in helping gifted people grow up. This is their chance to give back to the Center."

■ schools

continued from page 1

one would listen to the thoughts there, and that the speech would be an education to many people.

Angelou and Wiesel are appearing at the invitation of Chancellor David K. Scott.

According to Barbara Pitoniak, spokesperson for the University, the speech will be a conversation between the two speakers. There will be no "question and answer" session after the speech.

As of press time, there were still approximately 200 tickets left. They can be purchased at the Mullins Center box office for $5 with a valid student ID.

Photographers needed.
No prior experience necessary; must have your own camera.
Come down to the Collegian office in the Campus Center Basement and talk with Paul Bilodeau.

Writers needed!
Black Affairs is looking for some creative writers to write for the page.
Come down to our office at 113 Campus Center Basement and talk with Chris Connor.

$600 A WEEK POTENTIAL SUMMER EMPLOYMENT
Summer is the busy session in the moving industry and we need your help to handle the load. North American Van Lines is now accepting applications from college students and staff for its Summer Fleet Driver Program.
TRAINING — Free
MOTELS/MEALS WHILE IN TRAINING — Free
POTENTIAL EARNINGS (AVERAGE) — $600 A WEEK
We will teach you how to safely operate a semi-tractor trailer and how to load/unload household goods cargo. We pay for your motel and meals while in training. Once you receive your Commercial Driver's License, you have the potential of earning an approximate average of $600 a week.
To qualify, you must be at least 21 years old, meet North American Van Lines qualifications, and be available for training the end of April or early May. We promise you an adventure you'll never forget!
Call 1-800-348-2147, Dept. U-21.
northAmerican.

The News Department needs writers.
Any students interested in writing for the news section should contact Jessica Taverna at 545-0719 or come down to the Collegian office in the Campus Center Basement.

Emergency Medical Training
by Human Services Training Consultants, Inc.
Part Time Evening Classes Start June 12, 1995
Call UMass Continuing Education 545-0474

Collegian Graphics
We're Up All Night
pulling together New England's oldest daily college newspaper

Wednesday, March 29, 1995
12:00-1:30pm
Campus Center 804-08
"Afterthoughts: Reflections on the Angelou/Wiesel Presentation"
The faculty, staff and student members of the Chancellor's Commission on Civility in Human Relations invite members of the campus community to join them in an open discussion about the presentation by Maya Angelou and Elie Wiesel held on the previous evening.

Human Garden Restaurant 家滿園南湖
The Best Chinese Buffet
MANDARIN/SZECHUAN CUISINE
WE DELIVER IN AMHERST 5-9:30 EVERYDAY
Free Delivery for orders $15 and over; $2 charge for orders under $15
Monday Thru Saturday LUNCH BUFFET 11am - 3pm $3.99
BUFFET & SUNDAY BRUNCH
Buffet Every Night 5-9 pm
Sunday Brunch 11 am - 3 pm
ALL YOU CAN EAT
Children Under 10 $3.50
Luncheon Specials served 11:30 - 3 pm $3.25
All luncheon specials come with rice & your choice of 2 chicken fingers, 2 chicken wings or hot & sour soup
TAKE OUT SERVICE - FULL COCKTAIL MENU
10 Belchertown Rd. at Rt. 9, Amherst 256-0252

Back School 101
This two session program (classes are one week apart) includes information on excercise, some anatomy, massage, treatment options, posturetips and pain relief methods.
Tuesday, April 4th & 11th
6:00 to 8:00 P.M.
University Health Services
Room 304
Call University Health Services Physical Therapy Department for more information and registration 549-2671 Ext. 158

The Campus Activities Office presents

UFOs-
THE HIDDEN HISTORY
'A Slide-tape program and lecture by Robert Hastings
FINE ARTS CENTER
WEDNESDAY, MARCH 29, 1995
8:00PM
FREE to UMass Undergraduates with I.D.
$2.00 General Public

HOLLY ANDERSON / COLLEGIAN

Ollie Ooops!!
Burke Doherty, a junior communications major, practices his "ollies" outside the William D. Mullins center.

Bars chip in to support Jimmy Fund

By Tim White
Collegian Staff

AMHERST — If you're looking for an excuse to drink for the next couple of weeks, giving to the Jimmy Fund might be the answer.

Starting this past Monday and running through April 9, bars in Amherst will be featuring a beer of the month and 10 cents of every beer sold is going to the Jimmy Fund, said Mike Fusia, one of the coordinator's for the fund raiser and owner of Time Out.

Fusia said he has always supported the Jimmy Fund, but never got this involved until recently.

"Three years ago my wife came down with cancer," Fusia said. "I decided that when we got through this, and thank God we did, I was going to do anything to help."

Fusia said of the 11 bars participating in the area, they are hoping to raise about $1,000 collectively.

"We're hoping each bar will raise $100," Fusia said. "Every bar has been very receptive — everyone agreed to it right off the bat."

Shulamit Gershenson, a senior management major and a fund raising chair for the event said The Amherst Ale House, Barsie's, Charlies, Cutty's, Delanos, Mike's Westview, The Pub, Rafters, The Spoke, Time Out and Top of the Campus are participating.

Fusia said Time Out is using their most popular bottled beer for the event and he thinks the other bars are doing the same.

Paula Provost, a dining room manager at the Pub, said they are using two of their most popular beers — Red Dog and Icehouse.

"Red Dog is on special — it's actually at a reduced price," Provost said.

Gershenson said the event is part of the "Jammin' for Jimmy" campaign. Other fund raisers are a dance marathon, a penny drive and gift certificates donated from local businesses will be raffled off at the marathon.

Fusia said they had to clear the event with the town so they did not run into enticement problems like a "happy hour" that promote drinking.

All bars are using bottled beers because it is easier to keep count, Fusia said.

William's Distribution, an Anheuser-Busch distributor for the area, is donating signs for the event to make people aware of the cause.

"William's Distribution's major charity is the Jimmy Fund," said Tom Lilly, director of human resources at the company. "Many of us have gone to Dana Farber and seen the work they've done with the kids and adults."

New employee enjoys variety

By Chris Hassett
Collegian Staff

While the University of Massachusetts continues to deal with its ongoing problems with deferred maintenance, there is a new face with a new job mandated to sort through these difficulties.

William Rose, associate vice chancellor of facilities and campus services, embarked on this new position in September, and has already begun to feel the pressure.

His major duties include working with other departments at the University to keep UMass functional, he said.

Rose plans and designs plans and renovations for new and existing facilities with James Cahill, director of planning and facilities, he said. He said he keeps the University clean and maintained by working with Pat Daly, acting physical plant director.

While treading these administrative waters, the vice chancellor constantly finds his budgetary life-jacket shrinking.

He also works with parking transit and management, central mail, getting office and classroom supplies and keeps the copy centers working.

Shrinking support

While treading these administrative waters, the vice chancellor constantly finds his budgetary life-jacket shrinking. UMass often does not receive the recognition it deserves in the state house, he said.

"Those budget cuts have shaped how people feel about their jobs," Rose said.

At his request, the Association of Higher Education Facilities Officers, an international management group, conducted an evaluation of the Physical Plant Division and the Facilities Planning Division earlier this year.

"[The report] is helping us to understand where we are, have a realistic assessment of the services we provide and how we provide them and seriously assess where we're heading," Rose said.

The report states that cutbacks in the operation and maintenance budget, coupled with a slow and complex state bureaucratic process have resulted in the disrepair of the University.

Rose's plan for the future is for the campus administration to continue to better themselves to better provide for the needs of the campus community.

"We'll continue on the course we've charted," he said. His goal is to have three divisions that are more receptive to the needs of the campus — with limited available resources.

A new position

After an eight month national search, Rose was chosen last September to take the new position.

The vice chancellor position had been modified prior to Rose's appointment. It combined two other post's, director of facilities planning, and director of administrative services. He is the first to hold the position in its current form.

Combining these positions was necessary, said Paul J. Page, vice chancellor for administration and finance.

The combination filled two positions which were vacant and also put the facilities planning division under the control of administration and finance instead of the physical plant.

This new job description put Rose in charge of three campus divisions, facilities planning, physical plant and campus services.

Prepared for the job

Before coming to this University, Rose was director of facilities services at Montana State University, a position he held since 1987. Previous to this, he was senior manager for project planning and control at Pennsylvania State University from 1983 to 1987.

He said he feels his positions at these schools, both land grant institutions similar to UMass, qualified him for this job.

"I'm looking to improve services," Rose said. "My focus is still the same. I thought this was an excellent institution and I thought I could contribute to the improvement of these areas."

He said his position here at the University is never boring and he never at a loss for something new and different.

"I like a job with a lot of variety and this job has a lot of it," Rose said.

Simpsons may have argued on fatal day

By Michael Fleeman
Associate Press

LOS ANGELES — O.J. Simpson argued with his ex-wife during a telephone call on the day she was killed, prosecutors suggested yesterday during Simpson's double- murder trial.

Deputy District Attorney Marcia Clark, during sharp questioning to Simpson houseguest Brian "Kato" Kaelin, asked the witness if he knew whether Simpson had an argument with Nicole Brown Simpson during a cellular phone call from the Riviera Country Club on June 12.

Clark offered no evidence that this occurred and the defense objected to the question. Attorneys huddled at the sidebar with Superior Court Judge Lance Ito for a lengthy conversation.

Clark's question marks the first time the prosecution suggested that Simpson had any contact with his ex-wife on the day of her death other than a recital for Simpson's daughter Sydney, after which Simpson and his ex-wife left separately.

At another point, Clark asked the judge for permission to treat Kaelin as a "hostile witness," a status that would allow prosecutors essentially to cross-examine Kaelin. The attorneys met in conference with the judge; Ito did not announce a decision on the request afterward but told jurors to disregard Clark's comment.

Also yesterday, Kaelin said that Simpson tried to help him get a role in a feature film. Contradicting his own testimony, Kaelin said that in May, a month before the murders, Simpson placed a phone call on Kaelin's behalf to assist his effort to get a part on the film Outpost. Kaelin insisted the audition was scheduled even before the call was made. He said he didn't get the job.

Last week in his testimony, Kaelin said Simpson hadn't helped him get work, joking, "I didn't think we were going for the same part."

Kaelin, in his fourth day on the witness stand, also was challenged by the prosecution on his claim Simpson and his ex-wife had a good relationship in the months prior to her murder. Kaelin acknowledged he based his opinion on seeing the two only half a dozen times.

Kaelin's testimony came after the judge told jurors that a question put to Kaelin by prosecutors last week was inappropriate.

Ito told jurors for a second time to disregard the question. But he stopped short of telling the panel that prosecutors had behaved in a wanton an willful manner, as the defense wanted.

Clark, who called Kaelin to testify to provide a time line tracing Simpson's activities the night of the double murder, launched a fierce attack on him before court recessed last Thursday, suggesting he was hiding the truth to help Simpson.

HELLCATS
JOIN THE PACK
RIDE WITH DEATH
THE COLLEGIAN

U-SAVE AUTO & TRUCK RENTAL
North Amherst Motors CARSTAR, 78 Old Sunderland Rd., North Amherst, MA 549-2880
Northampton CARSTAR, 141A Damon Rd., Northampton, MA 586-4444
• Cars • Mini Vans • Trucks • Cargo Vans
• Low Daily/Weekly/Weekend Rates
• We Rent to All Qualified Drivers 21 years or Older
• Direct Billing To Insurance Companies

UMass INTRAMURAL SPORTS
Don't Miss The
STILL HAVE TIME TO ENTER ACTION
• Softball (M,W,C)
• Soccer (C)
• Volleyball Special (C)
PAID OFFICIALS NEEDED FOR SOFTBALL, SOCCER & VOLLEYBALL
CALL 545-2693/545-0022
FOR CLINIC DATES

Umass FOOTBALL
WORK STUDY JOBS - SPRING/FALL 1995
TEAM MANAGERS Contact: Rob Talley
VIDEO CREW TO TAPE PRACTICES AND BREAKDOWN GAME TAPES
Contact: Mark Gallagher
For more information call 545-2026
Apply in Room 8, Boyden Building

UFOs

THE BLUE WALL COFFEEHOUSE
HOMEMADE
muffins cookies
cakes
brownies
FEATURING
OMAR GOURMET COFFEES
HERBAL TEAS
coffee house special
12 oz. bluewall coffee mug filled with your favorite omar gourmet coffee...
$1.95
(refills .80!)
(Offer may not be combined with other specials)

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Darienne J. Hosley Editor-in-Chief Kelly Spang Managing Editor
Michael McRae Business Manager Andrew D. Davidson Production Manager Lisa Tannenbaum Advertising Manager
James P. Ganley Advertising Production Manager Lisa Greenfield Senior Diversity Editor

Matt Audette Arts & Living Editor Paul Bilodeau Photography Editor
Chris Taylor Content Black Affairs Editor Andrew Bryce, Matt Vautour Sports Editors
Matt Wurtzel Business Editor Jeff Wilson Staff Artist
Juan Jose Chacon Osiros Developing Nations Editor Lisa Greenfield, Colleen Shanahan Women's Issues Editors
Tracy Monahan Editorial/Opinion Editor Marni E. Hellner Editorial Production Manager
Wendy-Darling Guy Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor John Khachadoorian Finance Manager
Jacob W. Michaels Jewish Affairs Editor Eric Abenaim Distribution Manager
Hernan Rozemberg Multicultural Affairs Editor Maureen Majerowski Senior Bookkeeper
Jessica Taverna News Editor Marty Pappas Classified Advertising

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1936. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Opinion/Editorial

Doing the best for students

Will this parking ticket issue ever end? It seems as if the town of Amherst has been suing the University forever over $200,000 in traffic ticket fines that town officials argue "were wrongly given to the University and not the town." This time around, Amherst officials are trying to blackmail the University into developing and funding a "business incubator" in an attempt to jump start the town's grandiose economic development plans. In exchange for this "incubator," the town will drop the lawsuit.

Matt Pavesi

I can't imagine what the town would do with this money if the courts do rule in its favor. I'm confident it will not be used to fund services which directly benefit students living within the community. Why, every year Amherst passes a $10 million operating budget that provides virtually nothing for student residents of the town.

In contrast, the students pick up the cost for many services, programs and facilities in this community that non–student residents seem to take for granted. The following is a top 10 list of contributions made directly by the students of UMass that generously subsidize the standard of living of the non–student residents of Amherst: (Note: all but a few of these actually appear on the students' semester bills.)

• 10. Bright Moments: Everyone's favorite annual summertime music festival is paid for out of the Summer Activities Fee (SATF.) The cost to students, $27,000.

• 9. Off Campus Housing (OCHO) is a referral service for landlords and tenants. The office is open to the public and landlords can list their vacancies for no charge. OCHO receives its funding through the Student Activities Fee and this year it was budgeted at just under $100,000.

• 8. PVTA — although partially subsidized by Amherst, the major bus routes that run through both sections of town are paid for each semester by a student fee. It is these buses that shuttle hundreds of students and town residents daily into the stores and restaurants of Amherst.

• 7. The Volunteer Fire Fighter program: Every year 14 students from the University participate in this program. In exchange for housing and course credit they serve as full time, unpaid staff at the fire station on East Pleasant Street. The average cost of a full time fire fighter, including salary and benefits is over $40,000, which means this program saves the town at least $300,000 to $400,000 a year.

• 6. The Fine Arts Center, whose board of Trustees reads like a who's who of the "cultural elite" of Amherst, is subsidized by students to the tune of more than $1 million a year through a $62 annual fee.

• 5. The William D. Mullins Center: Half of the $61 million required to build this world class facility will be paid for by a new fee that will tax students $30 million over the next 30 years. Area business owners have called this facility the best thing to happen for Amherst businesses since the construction of the next item.

• 4. The Campus Center, paid for by student fees, brings tens of millions of dollars into the area every year through conventions and tourism.

• 3. Students contribute an estimated $2.5 million directly to the towns property tax base through their rents.

• 2. Students spend an estimated $100 million a year in the Valley.

• 1. The 166 percent increase in tuition and fees over the last five years that have doubled the cost of attending UMass. Most, if not all of this money has been used to supplement the University's operating budget. Thanks to the students and their families not a single faculty member and all but a handful of staff were laid off during the budget crisis.

The point is that the non-student residents of the community are able to maintain a standard of living that ranks among the highest in the Commonwealth because of the sacrifices made by the students of UMass and their families.

In contrast, I do know how most of the $200,000 was spent by the University. It was donated to the Parking Scholarship Fund, a program which hands out $500–$1000 scholarships to UMass students. Well, it seems to me that the money was used for a good cause. My concern is if the courts rule that UMass does have to pay reparations to the town, will future scholarships be taken away? Or worse yet, will UMass be forced to raise fees to make up for the difference?

Let's face it. Without the University and the students, the town of Amherst would by just another farm town in Western Massachusetts. There would not be 40 restaurants, nine bookstores, four coffee shops and all of those worthwhile antique shops. So I strongly believe that it would be in Amherst's best interest to take part in the worthy venture of handing out scholarships to students.

Look, I really do not care what decision is handed down by the court. If it is ruled that the University has to give back the money, so be it. However, I do urge Amherst and the University to settle this issue without adversely affecting the students of UMass and their families.

Matt Pavesi is a UMass student.

Riding the waves of fame

"In the future, everyone will be famous for 15 minutes." — Andy Warhol.

I guess I have about 10 minutes left. It's been a tremendous ride, attending event after event as a member of the esteemed media. Dressing up in a shirt and tie, mingling with all the big–wigs, free buffets — I was where I wanted to be. Hey, people cared about what I had to say.

Arthur Stapleton Jr.

Writers from the Associated Press would come down for reactions to stories and they'd look for me to respond. I had a voice that was respected and they wanted me to talk, because I had a name some people knew and recognized. Plus, I had a title and I was a student, a combination that only comes after hard work and a little luck.

ABC News, in all of its glory and splendor, interviewed me for the expose on the University of Massachusetts that aired last week. Hey, I wasn't even keen on the idea of going on television in the first place, so I turned down the first offer to go on camera.

But, then, when the reporter pressed and asked a second time, this time very nicely, I obliged. Bang — welcome to the world of the 10–second sound byte. My mug, which had normally been relegated to this page and has been for the last three semesters, was now beamed to every television set this side of Seattle on "World News Tonight."

I'm now a TV star, according to many who have literally accosted me since that broadcast. Can I have your autograph? Geez, will you charge me if I sit and have lunch with you? What did ABC pay you? Calipari's a god, huh?

Damn. I'm famous — at least I was last week. Phone calls from friends of the family flooded my house, asking about ABC, the school, my life. I realized that my dream of being a reporter whom people not only respected but recognized at an event and said, "Oh, it must be important — he's here," was slowly becoming reality.

As I walked into the arena in New Jersey, which some affectionately called my backyard, someone called my name from the stands. A friend from high school was in attendance for the basketball games and I had not seen her since high school. She was amazed at my "success."

What success, I asked. I get to sit on press row, interview the players after the game and write about what happened. Wow, I'm doing what comes naturally and what I've been trained to do over the past three years. I'm really enjoying this popularity. Two days later, her father was taking pictures of me — she wanted photos to show her friends.

Give me a break — I'm not a celebrity, I'm a student. Then again, she thought I was important. I guess I've been doing things that take others 14 years to accomplish, and it's mostly because of a press pass and a photo on this page.

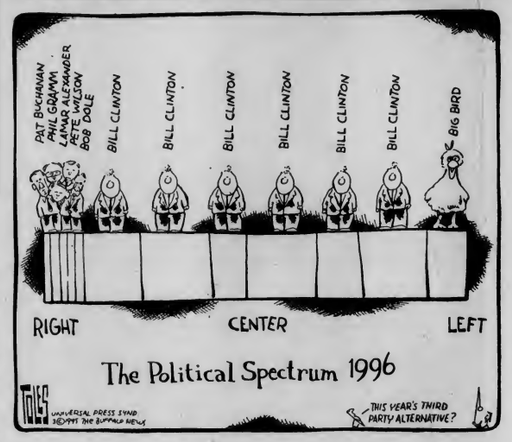
Yet in several weeks, it'll all be gone. When I graduate in a little over a month, I'm going to be working somewhere small, covering the pre–K stroller Olympics. They won't have media buffets or hospitality suites, no one will really care about the races, nor will they care about me. I'll just be a lowly reporter paying his dues.

I've had my five minutes of fame. In May, ABC News will probably be looking for another hot shot, wise–ass reporter to interview, while I'll be wasting away, writing obituaries.

One night this semester, a few friends of mine and I were uptown at a bar and we were recognized. Hey, I know you, the women said. You're that kid from the Collegian. We like your stuff, we read it all the time.

Yeah, people know my name and my face and may even care about what I have to say, while many don't. Some people have a life–long dream to be famous, to be a star. Just remember, if you aim high, you're bound to fall short.

Arthur Stapleton Jr. is a Collegian columnist.



Reality behind the numbers

E.C. Thomas

"I was placed in 13 hospitals in two years. By what was supposed to be my junior year in high school, I had accumulated a resume consisting of five suicide attempts, two bottles of pills, four half–way houses, several high schools and one family in shock. The doctors told me I would never graduate high school."

I was researching for a story I'm in the midst of writing. The plethora of data, studies and personal narratives were whirling around my tired head. So many that, frankly, I wasn't paying much attention — until I got to this one, followed by the statistic: between 1950 and 1980, the suicide rate for youths aged 15–24 rose 170 percent, as opposed to only 20 percent for the total population. Perhaps more striking: of the half a million youths committing suicide annually, 30 percent are gay.

Upon reading that, my head suddenly cleared, as if a recent storm had passed and the sun started to shine through the clouds. The only image that remained in my head was that of my best friend, Brown. While reading through the pages and pages of material, I had neglected to keep in mind that the numbers weren't just tiny ink–blots, they were people — and Brown could very well have been one of them. Almost immediately the tiny ink–blots weren't so tiny.

It comes as no surprise to me that gay youths feel alienated from the rest of the crowd. Nor is it shocking that they may very well experience harassment and/or violence. But the 30 percent dead because of it all woke me up to a reality I just assume not face. Of those 150,000 now dead because of society's intolerance to let them be who they are, one of them could have been her. The thought shook me and I found myself feeling tremendously sad and rather nauseous.

I met Brown during the 7th grade and not a day since have I not thanked the heavens that she is my best friend and has been by my side all these years. She is literally a part of me. The idea of her feeling alone, scared, unaccepted and bad about herself because of who she is filled me with a sorrow that I've never experienced while researching such public policy stories.

You inevitably read information that upsets and saddens you, but rarely do you read something that truly touches you.

The shame, ridicule and fear of attacks makes schools, especially secondary schools, a fearful and unsafe environment for gay youths. "Kids will be kids," I suppose. We've always been afraid of those who are different from us, but the idea that the simple immaturity of youth leading to someone's actual death isn't as easy to write off as a part of growing up. There's no excuse for preventing someone from getting an education, let alone inhibiting them from living.

I tried to comfort myself by saying that she hadn't been out of the closet at the time, therefore she hadn't been spit on, assaulted, scorned or exemplified as evil in the hallways at school. However, as I now know, and maybe always did, she had been forced to live a lie that in the end was the source of great emotional angst. Knowing that I wasn't there to help her through what had undoubtedly been plaguing her through those difficult years made me really upset, at both myself and the world.

I mentioned feeling this way to another fritnd of mine, and what he said made me think about why things are the way they are — and if they really need be. It's hard to write about a personal feeling of injustice these days without sounding like a politically correct, self-righteous, arrogant anarchist standing on top of a soapbox. But here I am on an early Monday morning, thinking to myself that my best friend could have felt desperate enough to escape the lie and thus never have watched another sunrise. Thirty percent of gay youths today feel that disperation, and are thus lost in a closet of intolerance and maliciousness for what others find too different to accept. It just doesn't seem right.

As one mother put it, "A wonderful child, with an incredible mind, is gone because our society can't accept people who are 'different' from the norm. What an awful waste. I will miss my daughter for the rest of mylife."

I have no moral message to chide you with. One hundred and fifty thousand gay youths dead, means different things to different people. To me it is an unnecessary and all to preventable loss and a reminder that I need to thank the heavens more often.

E.C. Thomas is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor

Article offends Jewish community

To the editor:

Once again the Developing Nations section has proven to be in dire need of new editors. As members of the Jewish community we are sick of the lies and propaganda conveyed in the Collegian, as illustrated in a March 7 article, "Israeli society plots its own destruction."

It is about time that efforts be made to restrict opinions to the opinion page and not treat them as real journalism. Just because the Collegian is a college newspaper does not mean it should not follow basic rules of journalism, facts should be checked before an article is published that is full of slanderous lies.

The article compares the situation in Israel to that of the former South Africa, claiming it is a state of apartheid.

If the editor/author had the slightest knowledge of the history and politics of the region, he would know that there is a clear majority of Jews in Israel, a fact that has never been disputed.

The article goes on to accuse Israel for everything ranging from ethnic cleansing to the Gulf War, when in fact, Arafat himself was in an alliance with Saddam Hussein. In addition to this, Arafat was notorious for the kidnapping and mutilation of young Lebanese children.

And the accusation of Israel being racist is an over–simplification of the truth. In fact, since 1948 Palestinians have been represented in the Keneset (the Israeli Congress), and the tensions between the Jews and Palestinians stem from war.

As Jewish students we feel that the Collegian failed to fulfill its role as a newspaper. Omar Ali's article lacks any basis in truth and it should be clearly labelled as nothing more than his opinion.

Ornit Niv
Ilan Katz

News coverage not adequate

To the editor:

I'm writing in response to the piece "Lack of publicity hurts election," which appeared in the March 14 Collegian on the Opinion/Editorial page. As a senator with SGA, I took offense to this article.

First, this editorial was an indirect condemnation of all SGA's activities. If the Collegian is to make a criticism as such towards the SGA, I recommend that you make it a separate issue from the election process. The only factual information presented to substantiate the claim of SGA's inefficiency is the large number of senators that have been removed from their office for lack of attendance. This was done in the best interests of students to increase the efficiency of SGA, contrary to what the editorial stated.

Secondly, the real issue that was supposed to be dealt with in the aforementioned editorial was the lack of publicity of this year's SGA elections. I agree that most students on this campus are for the most part, unfamiliar with the background of the candidates.

This is not the fault of the candidates. I know for a fact that Christine Lopes and Dan Rivera were going door–to–door for weeks on end at a grueling rate, to try and spread their message to the students of UMass.

They cannot publicize the elections all by themselves. SGA does not have the financial resources to sufficiently research, produce and distribute fact sheets on the candidates.

They cannot publicize the elections all by themselves. The Collegian saw fit to run their candidate profiles on March 14, the first day of the elections.

This was highly irresponsible of the Collegian, considering that such profiles could have been done as early as the Monday before. The Collegian is supposed to be the student paper of UMass, so these elections should have been a priority.

The Collegian does an extremely poor job of informing students of issues on campus, as was demonstrated by your handling of the elections. Only the Collegian has the distribution power to inform students with the efficiency required to create an informed electorate.

So do not make ignorant criticisms of SGA, when it is yourselves that need to be reformed.

Dan Castellano
Sylvan

Editor's note! Due to space constraints the earliest the profiles could have run was March 13. Additionally, the Collegian was informed of the upcoming election on March 6, but didn't receive an official listing of the names until Thursday, March 9.

Doonesbury By Garry Trudeau

MAN... I HAVEN'T FELT THIS BAD SINCE NIXON WAS RE-ELECTED...
SORRY I WOKE YOU UP, FATHER.
HOW LONG HAVE YOU BEEN HERE, KID?
ABOUT A WEEK, SIR!
A WEEK?
YUP! I'VE HAD THE BEST TIME!
DAMN! ANOTHER UNBILLABLE WEEK...
LIKE WHEN YOU BLEW UP YOUR CAR, THAT WAS WAY COOL!
3-28
©B Trudeau

■ lacrosse

continued from page 10

Richard F. Garber Field.

The game marked the first win in Cannella's head coaching career.

The Gorillas opened the scoring 12 seconds into the game on a goal by Chris Grande. The Eagles then took a surprising 3–2 lead in the first quarter until Massachusetts responded.

The Gorillas used a quick transition offense to key the onslaught. Paced by four goals from senior Jeremy Murphy, the Gorillas outscored BC 11–1 the rest of the way.

"Murph scored some goals in transition and did a nice job finishing the ball," Cannella said. "He has a great knack for getting open inside, in the crease. He knows how to get open. He's a veteran and hopefully he'll continue to be successful."

Eric Triolo added his first three goals of the season in the contest, while Glass turned in his second two–goal performance in as many games.

Senior goaltender Tom LoPresti did not face much action against the Eagles, making only four saves in the rout. Freshman John Kasselakis saw his first action in goal for a brief period, making one save when LoPresti was assessed with a penalty.

* * *

Cannella praised the performance of his defense in both games.

"Defensively we played real solid," Cannella said. "Against Virginia, Greg McDonald shut down the top scorer in the country in Doug Knight, and Tom LoPresti had a good day. We were really confident going in on defense."

Offensively, Cannella was pleased with the distribution of his squad's offense.

"It was really spread out," Cannella said. "That's the one thing I've been happy with. We had nine people score in the first two games.

"You always need a top scorer out there, but as long as we can count on nine guys for each game, I think we can do very well."

Massachusetts returns to action Friday when they take on the No. 8 Flying Dutchmen of Hofstra in Hempstead, N.Y. at 7:30 p.m.

■ NHL

continued from page 10

Toronto began the shortened season as a favorite for Stanley Cup contention, but of the Leafs' three All–Star forwards, Dave Andreychuk, Doug Gilmour and Mats Sundin, only Sundin has played to potential. The Leafs have suffered key injuries, but the defense and goalie Felix Potvin have been healthy and they need to start clicking or Toronto won't get out of the conference.

Team to fear: Edmonton, whose crafty GM, Glen Sather, has assembled a bumper crop of super young forwards. Jason Arnott, Todd Marchant, Roman Oksiuta and David Oliver are all goal scorers and none are finesse players; they can take the body just fine. And two more blue chippers are almost ready for promotion from Cape Breton: Jason Bonsignore and Ryan Smith. Edmonton only needs veteran goalie Bill Ranford to play a bit more like he did when it won its last Cup in 1990 (just after Gretzky and just before his stellar supporting cast hopped the 49th parallel for richer contracts in American NHL cities) and the defense in front of him to bear down and the Oilers could actually advance to the Western quarterfinals or further.

Team that won't make it: Vancouver. See the trend? If Pavel Bure really wants out, either the Canucks get fair market value (most of Ottawa's roster, for example) and set a new agenda or forget it. A disillusioned Bure is enough to keep Vancouver out in the ultra–tight West.

Team that will win the West: Chicago. A truly great road team (12–6–1) with the league's best goalie (Ed Belfour), best defenseman (Chris Chelios) and 7th player (Bernie Nicholls).

Ted Kottler is a Collegian columnist.

■ hoops

continued from page 10

scoring with a 10.9 average.

Junior Tricia Hopson had a solid year in becoming the starting point guard position seven games into the season, while fellow junior Nicole Carter was a spark plug off the bench. In the Minutewomen's final game against Notre Dame Carter saw 21 minutes of action and responded with six points and a team–high four assists.

Newcomers Sabriya Mitchell, Tez Kraft and Kara Tudman all showed signs of what's to come in the future. Kraft was especially impressive in the NWIT. In UMass' victory over Virginia Commonwealth, she scored a career–high 24 points in leading the Minutewomen, while Mitchell (team–high 135 assists) and Tudman showed progress throughout the year.

"The tournament was just a great experience to come down and play three games against good competition," O'Brien said. "You don't normally get that chance. So this opportunity was great and we're happy we got a chance to play.

"I think we learned an awful lot. I told the kids I've learned probably more in the last 10 days about this team as individuals so I can have a good feeling going into next year about who I can really count on."

What a year

COLLEGIAN FILE

The Minutemen, led by senior Lou Roe, made it as far as the Elite Eight in the NCAA Tournament, the only time in school history.

■ baseball

continued from page 10

Catcher

Key Losses: None.

Senior Andy Pelis is the captain of the Massachusetts team and the leader of the pitching staff. The backstop started 40 games last season and the first 11 to begin this season. If he's healthy, he's going to play. Pelis is hitting .289 with one HR and eight RBIs.

Pitching Staff

Key Losses: Peter Ferrari (6–3, 1.80 ERA, 10 starts, 70 innings), Greg Dowd (1–1, 3.68 ERA, seven saves).

As always, as the starting rotation goes, so go the Minutemen. With the loss of Ferrari, senior Jay Murphy becomes the ace of the staff. After serving as the number two man last season, Murphy has come in this season and gone 1–2 with a 5.66 ERA.

The win came against George Washington, as Murphy held the Colonials to one earned run in seven innings, striking out five. A righthander with excellent control, Murphy throws a good fastball, curve and change.

Michaels has seen action on the mound when he isn't at first base. He throws extremely hard and could be a key in the rotation. So far this season, Michaels has received one start and has been rocked in his two–plus innings of work, giving up five earned runs.

Sophomores Chad Paronto and Chad Sullivan, junior David Dart, and freshmen Jeff Puleri and Scott Barnsby have all received starts this season and should battle it out for spots in the rotation.

Paronto helped his cause with a sparkling performance for the victory against Wright State. He went the distance, allowing only five hits and one earned run in nine innings of work while striking out six. The complete game was the first of his career.

Second–year hurler Steve Levy seems to be the heir apparent to the closer role — he has the only save on the season and has not allowed a run in five innings of relief.

Kelly Daut honored, Minutewomen now 10–11

University of Massachusetts senior Kelly Daut was named the Atlantic 10 Conference softball Co–pitcher of the Week for the week of March 26.

Daut shared the weekly Atlantic 10 honor with Chris Sweeney of St. Joseph's.

Last week, Daut posted a 1–1 record, defeating Southwest Missouri State, 2–1 and losing to nationally–ranked Florida State, 5–4, in extra innings. In the win against Southwest Missouri State on March 20, Daut allowed one unearned run in pitching her second no–hitter of the season. She threw eight strong innings against the Seminoles on March 21, allowing only two earned runs while striking out three.

Daut, the 1994 Atlantic 10 Pitcher of the Year, has a 7–5 record, a 1.39 ERA and 51 strikeouts in 75 and one–third innings of action for the 10–11 Minutewomen.

Sophomores Chris Martens and Sam Cardenas have led the Minutewomen at the plate. Martens leads the team with a .368 batting average and has three home runs. Cardenas is right behind Martens with a .358 average and leads the team in RBIs with 14.

Daut is third on the team in batting average with .269.

Freshmen Kim Gutridge, Tracey Osier and Kelly Buckley have all played well as of late. Osier is fourth on the team in batting average with .268 and leads the team in stolen bases with five in five attempts. Gutridge has started every game and leads the team in doubles with seven while Buckley has also started every game and is third on the team in RBIs with 10.

The Minutewomen will host Yale in their home opener at 2 p.m. at Totman Field on Thursday, March 30.

— Candice Flemming

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN

Has been awarded

2nd Place for Region 1

in the

1995 Mark of Excellence Awards

by the

Society of Professional Journalists

Region 1 covers all of New England, New York, New Jersey and Eastern and Central Pennsylvania

Congratulations to the entire Collegian Staff who made this achievement possible.

Arts & Living

Techno, folk and rock featured in Trax

YES
Morphine
Rykodisc

Take a two-string slide bass, a baritone saxophone, a set of drums, the often off-kilter musings of one lead singer set on puree and what do you get?

If you said Morphine you'd be right on the money. With their third album, Yes, Morphine give fans a dose of what they have come to expect from this Boston-based trio. Lead singer/bassist Mark Sandman's bass churning and usual vocal effects are all in place, Dana Colley's sax playing can jump from sensual to a controlled chaos in the same measure and Billy Conway's drums provide a tight, textured background that enhance the dreamy, often spooky sounds.

The band's previous effort, Cure For Pain, was a collection of addictive grooves and hooks that seemed to grab hold of you harder with each listen, but unfortunately Yes doesn't give the same lethal dose of Morphine that could make this album a gem. Halfway through the 12 songs on Yes, the album falters a bit.

With the exception of "Sharks," (the perfect blend of Sandman's psyche and textbook Morphine intensity) the last five songs lack the usual memorable sax licks and lets the sax take the reigns. This allows Yes to sink a little too deep into pseudo free-form sax playing while letting the bass and vocals take a back seat.

Yes does have its moments however, with "Honey White," "Scratch," "Whisper" and the title track ranking up there with some of the finest stuff Morphine has released. Sandman creates an odd universe with his lyrics that are seldom ambiguous but often disturbing in a subtle sort of way. It's not their best, but if you're a Morphine fan, definitely refill your prescription. B (Mike MacLean)

COMET
Cordelia's Dad
Omnium Records
Local faves Cordelia's Dad's latest release is an ambitious departure. Picking up the mantle laid down by Woody Guthrie, the Dad (no pun intended) take Guthrie's lead and try to breath fresh life into the folk songs of the 19th Century. It is obvious that a lot of work and research has gone into this album and that Cordelia's Dad have an unquivering grasp on the aesthetics of traditional American folk-music. Yet, the fundamental question is whether they can translate ambition into results.

Morphine's newest release, Yes, is not as impressive as their debut.

COURTESY B.C. KAGAN

The answer is yes and no.

The album opens with "May Blooming Field," a ringing lament, but the next track "Katy Cruel," lacks an arresting arrangement, plus the Dad commit the cardinal sin in folk ... the Irish accent. When the men's voices become Guinness-tainted, these "American" folk songs lack relevance. "Old Virginia" and "Seven Long Years," the unaccompanied tracks fall flat, reeking of finger-in-the-ear- ness. They seem too difficult for the lead singer's voice, which strains trying to carry the tune and articulate the lyrics.

Track On Track Off

In the hands of a Tim or Jeff Buckley, these songs could be revelations; instead they're about as satisfying as listening to your neighbors making-out!

Order is restored by "Gypsy Day," thanks to Tim Eriksen's twinkling guitar and the obligatory head-down jig "Booth shot Lincoln/Hangman's Reel," where guitars and fiddles lurch in like plains twisters.

The standout tracks are "The Sun and the Moon," a harrowing story of incest and murder and "The Frozen Girl," originally a poem written in 1843, it is transformed into a lilting lament about a girl who freezes to death while journeying with her lover.

All acoustic and recorded in Amherst, Cordelia's Dad have made a brave album, but ultimately the tracks on this album are like an old jock-strap — dependable and comforting — but have a tendency to sag. B – (Garcth Curtis)

MADE IN U.S.A.
Sonic Youth
Rhino Records

What will they get their hands on next?

For years Rhino Records, the king daddies of the record reissue, have been digging throughout the vaults in order to treat the world to sounds that might have gone unheard if not for their dedication to reviving once forgotten tunes.

The latest gem to be dusted off and replaced on record store shelves is Sonic Youth's Made In U.S.A., a collection of eerie, sometimes heady soundscapes the band recorded in 1985 for the soundtrack of the film of the same name.

The memory of the film may be long gone but now Sonic Youth's score can live on. But is it worth it? Well, not really. Most of Made In U.S.A. is sub-par Sonic Youth instrumental stuff that probably wouldn't have suffered any great injustice had it been left alone to rest in peace.

Not to say that there isn't anything worth mentioning here. There are some nifty little surf-rock numbers that are goofy fun considering whose playing them and a spooky Kim Gordan rant entitled "Mustache Riders" that sends shivers up the spine. The rest is really nothing more than background music that can be easily dismissed as avant-garde fluff. Essential? Not even close. Hard-core fans may find value, but neophytes are advised to steer clear. C (Matt Audette)

Local favorites Cordelia's Dad have recently released their latest album comet.

COURTESY CORDELIA'S DAD

EVERYTHING IS WRONG
Moby
Elektra Records

Everything may be wrong according to Moby, but if the techno wizard has any say in the matter, this may soon change. The ever-chic world of techno has been performing a balancing act on the brink of big-time for since its incarnation, and Moby may just be the man to bring it home to the masses.

Moby modus operandi seems to be to bring a face, and even better, a soul to the depersonalized and cold overtones of many of techno's favorite knob-twiddlers. With his bald mug gracing the cover and elements of reggae, hip-hop and even classical music thrown into the beat-heavy mix, Moby is taking techno's previous "members only" status and tossing it straight out the window.

Like the genre's answer to MC Hammer (and I mean that in the best possible way ... if you can believe that), Moby has managed to incorporate, at the risk of cries of "sell-out," enough popular sounds in his tunes to the techno its inevitable cross-over appeal.

Of course this all doesn't come without a price. It's obvious that Moby's intentions are to have Everything Is Wrong be his ultimate masterpiece, and at times it is quite a groundbreaking achievement, but unfortunately he may have bitten off a tad more than he can chew.

The 13 tracks on Everything Is Wrong are so all over the map that their individual impact is ultimately diluted. The opening song "Hymn" is a beautifully, border-line ambient, number that's classical structure lifts it above and beyond anything previously heard in the techno world. Yet, followed by the by-the-numbers bougie of "Feeling So Real" and the industrial sludge of "All That I Need Is To Be Loved," (which rips off Nine Inch Nails so badly Trent Reznor should receive a writing credit) the song becomes nothing more than another stylistic detour. Would the real Moby please stand up?

After the generic textbook punk of the title-track, it is clear that Moby is trying a bit too hard to please. The music still remains best when he concentrates on getting the dance floor moving than jumping any great musical hurdles. Better luck next time. C+ (Matt Audette)

Muriel's Wedding isn't a cause for celebration

By Jon Lupo
Collegian Staff

MURIEL'S WEDDING
Directed by P.J. Hogan with Toni Collette, Bill Hunter
Playing at Hampshire Six

There's a busload of conceits in Australia's latest improbably bubbly import, Muriel's Wedding. While it aims to siphon off some of the kitschy, stiletto-heeled charm of Strictly Ballroom and Priscilla: Queen of the Desert, Wedding's quest to invest an ugly duckling story with quasi- feminist notions falls flat on its face. Really folks, this is one terrible movie — loud, gluttonous, often nauseatingly precocious and nearly unwatchable.

Shy, unemployed and overweight Muriel (Toni Collette) spends most of her time holed up in her room listening to ABBA. Who'd blame her? Her family is a nightmare: her siblings are lazy and ugly, her mother tired and aimless and her father pathologically oppressive. Moreover, her blond- bitch "friends" are openly hostile to her and plan a trip without her.

But she's got dreams, dammit! All Muriel wants to do is get married so she can be somebody (!?). This is the type of movie where the first half is devoted to wholly humiliating our heroine, knocking her down to her lowest ebb — it practically forces you to feel sorry for her — all so that her revenge and eventual happiness will seem all that more sweet. All of this, of course, is cued to an appropriate ABBA medley.

Up until now the movie succeeds as a trite, garish fairy tale. But then things start happening — one family member is under criminal investigation, another commits suicide, a pal is paralyzed by a cancerous tumor. Meanwhile, Muriel (now Muriel) ditches her family and friends to wed a handsome Olympic swimmer in a lucrative marriage of convenience: his need to stay in the country, her need to have her revenge and be married (and consequently be someone).

Though Muriel comes to her senses, realizing the old adage "be careful what you wish for," the film has already sold its soul, opting for a pseudo-feminist "happy" ending. But things don't jibe, especially how the darker aspects of the story cause considerable friction with the goofy vibe the film seems to want to emit.

Even though Muriel has discovered her true self, she's left in her wake a path of destruction that can't be sweetened by any glib realizations or ABBA on the soundtrack. Muriel's mother, for example, is a sadly tragic figure that's cruelly disposed of in the film after being ignored by our own "heroine" on the latter's wedding day. Also, Muriel's wheelchair-bound best friend and her sweetly comic first boyfriend are disregarded not only by the self-centered Muriel but shortchanged by the film as well.

Wedding's brand of dysfunctional cartoon could have been handled as a satire by vintage Pedro Almodovar, but director P.J. Soles keeps piling on the misery, trying to make Muriel a caricature with a romantic soul. The problem is, her dreams are so cynically pre-programmed, right down to Muriel's ABBA fixation (it's a throwaway gimmick meant to be endearing, and it never quite fits in) that it's hard to feel anything for Muriel except condescension and pity.

It's telling that the film's best moment is an entirely disconnected one when Muriel dresses up as a member of ABBA in a talent contest with her friend. Looking more like a bloated Jan Brady than a Swedish songstress, it's an undeniably funny moment. But all it does is reveal the film's shaky allegiance to trendy, pop-culture camp than to its characters. Don't be fooled by Muriel's Wedding. It's an affair to forget. D+

Attention Arts & Living Staff

There will be a mandatory meeting on April 3 in the Collegian offices. All staff members should attend. Call Matt at 545-1361 if there are any questions.

Turn to TRAX, page 7

ATTENTION!!
All RSOs, GSOs and Agencies.

The Campus Center/Student Union Commission has opened the Space Allocation Process. Application/Renewal Forms are available in room 817 in the Campus Center. The deadline for all applications is April 12, 1995. Please return all applications to room 817 in the Campus Center. Any questions, please call at 545-0198.

Getting High on Getting Thin:
The First of Two Workshops on Eating and Body Issues

My Best Friend, My Worst Enemy
Myths and facts about eating disorders, food and weight.

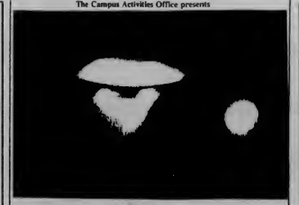
Date: Thursday, March 30, 1995
Time: 3:30 pm to 5:00 pm
Place: Campus Center, Room 917

Drop-in workshops are sponsored by University Health Services. Free and open to UMass students.

CONFIDENTIALITY ASSURED

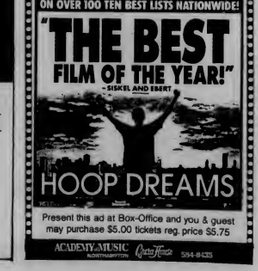
For more info, call 549-2671 ext. 233 or 545-2337

The Campus Activities Office presents



UFOs- THE HIDDEN HISTORY
A Slide-tape program and lecture by Robert Hastings
FINE ARTS CENTER
WEDNESDAY, MARCH 29, 1995
8:00PM
FREE to UMass Undergraduates with I.D.
$2.00 General Public

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
March Madness Continues with HOOP DREAMS
NOW THRU THURS. AT 7:30 DAILY
Film is 3 hrs. Please be seated by curtain time...Arrive early.
BOX-OFFICE OPEN DAILY 6:30
(Winner – Audience Award 1994 Sundance Film Festival)
ON OVER 100 TEN BEST LISTS NATIONWIDE!
"THE BEST FILM OF THE YEAR!" - SISKEL AND EBERT



Present this ad at Box-Office and you & guest may purchase $5.00 tickets reg. price $5.75
ACADEMY OF MUSIC NORTHAMPTON Cinestudio 584-8425

New spring fashions hit shelves

By Tara MK Connelly
Collegian Staff

The weather is turning warmer and so are displays in the store windows. Mannequins shed their oh-so-chic faux furs and replace them with the sheerer signs of spring.

The key word in color is pastel and this year everything is coming up roses. Pinks from the lightest blush to the most shocking of fuscias are blossoming on cheeks, dresses, shirts and skirts. Also making a comeback is baby blue mixed with a hint of silver and misty gray. See this color on Anne Klein's creations and on eyes as well — but sorry ladies, tacky blue eyeliner is still only cool on Barbie and friends.

The A-line skirt has reached new lengths and fabrics. Tropical wool and less pliable material helps accent longer legs while fluid fabrics that swirl flatter shorter figures. Linda Allard from Ellen Tracy features her A-line skirt/dress with the season's "must have" accessory: a skinny leather belt. Also moving up is the capri or cigarette pants. Featured in Guess' new spring ads, these peddle pushers are paired with nautical tees and board room blazers.

Dainty seems to be another adjective used to describe other spring apparel. Fine gauge knit sweaters (J. Crew) and cardigans along with short sleeved cropped shirts are paired with anything loose and flirty, including stain ball gowns. You can catch this look in L'Oreal mascara commercials. "Clumps? Non. Lashes? Oui."

Knitted vest and tiny tees (Gap) also make for an interesting ensemble along with the resurrection of the polo shirt. This favorite of Prince Charles can be seen with wide leg trousers and short shorts in leather and satin.

The suit has been revamped (again) to play up the feminine side of a woman's business sense. Suits have been cut to follow the lines of a woman's body — breaking away from the more crisp confining lines men seem to favor.

Calvin Klien with new "spokesmodel" Christy Turlington, can be seen showing off the softer side of the suit with a clingy structure that drapes the body while still retaining the look of classic elegance.

Lingerie continues to inspire designs by both Klein and Jill Sanders. The underwire bra, corset and garter figure prominently into designs that like their once "bedroom only" counterparts, reveal and tease the eye rather than cover and conceal. Chiffon skirts are topped by boned black corsets courtesy of Giorgio Armani and Ralph Lauren spices up rayon day dresses with thigh high fishnet stockings and stack heeled Mary Janes.

Oscar season has also helped fuel the creation of evening gowns. The return to glamour has inspired designers to create slinky sexy lines that ooze class and elegance. Subtle colors like nudes and peaches along with silvery white add to the grace and simplicity of creations by Klein, Chanel and new comer Mariot Chanet.

Footwear has always played a part in any outfit. Gone are the chunky clogs and floppy birkenstocks. Glamour calls for less earthy and more ethereal shod feet. Sandals by Bass, Cole • Hann and Nine West — especially strappy heeled ones, are paired with a melange of items including ankle socks (not recommended). Patent leather plays a big part in shoe making material along with satin ribbons for ballet style ankle straps. Loafers have become another staple for their class and versatility. In sequences, leather, stain and suede, they replace the Mary Jane as the old school shoe of choice.

So what about the so called "minor" details? Hair is no fuss and slightly mussed. The on dit of the fashion world is Princess Diana who dared to wear her hair wet and slicked back in her recent trip to New York City. This spurred on a number of hairstylists to reach for spritzers and globs o' gel. Those cheesy plastic barrettes that Donna overuses on "90210" are out (someone should tell her) along with bows that call to mind pedigree papers and leashes. Can we say "art?"

Make-up has gone light and whispery or smoldering and smoky with little room in between. Red lips highlight a "naked" face and pink is used everywhere. Lancome and L'Oreal have both done the pastel thing in their new lines while Revlon and Givenchy chose to go bold and spicy.

Hair color of the moment? Blonde, blonde and blonde. The proof is on the number of pale coiffeurs that grace the magazine covers. Claudia Schiffer's light locks radiate on Mademoiselle and Bazaar. Linda Evangelista shines on Allure and Elle. Heather Locklear went almost rootless on Cosmopolitan and Karen Mulder's minted tresses sparkle on Self. Still not convinced? Then pick up Entertainment Weekly with Alicia Silverstone pouting prettily or People Weekly with Jenny Jones.

And finally the worst thing ever to attempt a comeback this spring: those tacky '80s jelly shoes — courtesy of Guess? — why, because someone was hired with no original ideas.

Form fitting suits are just one of the many spring fashions that will be hitting stores everywhere.

COURTESY CALVIN KLEIN

■ trax

continued from page 6

Moby's latest album Everything Is Wrong may be techno's ticket into the mainstream.

COURTESY JILL GREENBERG

Still Interested In Arts & Living?

It's not too late to start writing about what's hot in the Valley in music, art, theater and much more. Stop down the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, and ask to talk to Matt, Tara, Justin or Mike.

The News Department needs writers.

Any students interested in writing for the news section should contact Jessica Taverna at 545–0719 or come down to the Collegian office in the Campus Center Basement.

SPECIAL OFFER
20% off
developing of your spring break photos in 1 Hour (35 mm color print film only)
Just show your valid college I.D. to receive your discount.
Advanced video members receive a Free $2.00 movie rental with any overnight developing.
Why advanced photo? Quality, convenience, & price.
ADVANCED VIDEO AND PHOTO
328 College St. Amherst 253-2222

Classifieds

- 20¢ per word per day for students
- All ads must be paid cash/2 days in advance
- Ads may placed at 113 Campus Center Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Find out how you can win $10,000 worth of scholarships! Meeting tomorrow night @ army ROTC bldg. Call 545-2321 for more info.

Free basic talk assistance and election ic bling available to students and staff! Wednesday, March 29, 1995, 10:00 -4:00, Suffolk room, Student Union and Thursday, March 30, 1995, 10:00-2:00, Dukes room, Student Union. For more information call 545-0862.

COLLEGE PRO PAINTERS

College Pro Painters now accepting applications for painter and foreman positions in eastern Massachusetts. No experience necessary. Call 1-800-346-4649 today.

ENTERTAINMENT

The UMass Theatre Guild presents merrily we roll along Mar 29- Apr 1 Bom Bowker Auditorium

FOR RENT

Cape Cod Group summer rentals water front houses Falmouth area 508 477-6000.

Two and three bedrooms available for June 1st Call Mill Valley Estates 253-7377

FOR SALE

92 K2 Extremes Typ 490 bindings w/bag Used 3X, perf cond. 500/bo Rich 665-7998

Kegerator 600/bo Rich 665-7998

Macintosh computer Complete system including printer only $599 Call Chris at 800-789-9685

Outboard motor. 7 1/2 hp Nissan 93 Used twice $250 Dan 5-3024 or 665-5150

286-20s computer system CPU monitor keyboard. $225. Steve 549-5181

Motorola Pagers for sale! 548-3241 Ask for Andy.

Piano Shopping? Get information by fax Call 800-242-8323 for our free piano fax

Super Nintendo Entertainment System for sale Includes games including Mortal Kombat II Asking $135 or b/o Call Dave 8-0478

HELP WANTED

AA cruises ships hiring! Earn big $$$ and free world travel (Caribbean, Europe, Hawaii, etc.) Summer/permanent, no exper. nec. Guide (919) 929-4398.

Alaska summer employment! Earn thousands this summer in canneries, processors, etc. Male/female. Room/board/travel often provided! Guide. Guaranteed success! (919) 929-4398 ext. A1063

Alaska summer employment fishing industry. Earn to $3,000 $6,000+/month + benefits Male/female. No experience nec essary. (206) 545-4155 ext A50013.

Counselors- top boys sports camp Maine. Exciting, fun-filled summer! Openings ALL COMPETITIVE TEAM SPORTS, TENNIS, WSI & ALL WATER SPORTS, PLUS: Camping & hiking, Ropes & climbing wall, ice hockey, scuba, archery, Rifle'y, A&C, martial arts, ect. too so!, extra facilities, tell ellow, call or write Steve Rubin, 1-800 473-6104, Camp Cobbossee, 10 Silvigrmma dr., So Salem, NY 10980

Cruise Ships hiring- earn up $1'000+/month World travel Seasonal & full-time positions No exp necessary for info call 1-206-634-0468 ext C50015

Dancers wanted. No experience necessary. Earn $1000 $1500 per week 532-1427

Delivery Persons and kitchen help wanted, must be able to work 25 hrs a week apply at D.P. Dough

Exterior Painting guaranteed 40 hours/week in local area during summer need hardworking hungry people no experience needed potential earnings above $30,000 Robert Wilfing 256-6081

Fall 1995 internship with the Student Legal Services Office; get hands on experience in the legal field. Work directly with attorneys and clients. Earn up to 15 undergraduate credits. No experience in the profession necessary- training provided. Deadline is April 14th - contact Legal Services today 545-1995. 922 Campus Center

Find out how you can win $10,000 worth of scholarships! Meeting tomorrow night @ army ROTC bldg. Call 545-2321 for more info.

Free food plus DC rebate for dishwashing and pot cleaning. 549-4919

Part time marketing/sales Excellent opportunity to gain business experience with a new company engaged in providing assistance to job seekers Excellent commissions, good training. Will be a great addition to your resume Local, no car nec essary. Call (401) 295-5400 after 2 p.m.

LOST

Last March 11th Live Show. Army Jacket Brown sweater, reward, no questions asked, sentimental value Abbie 546-3014

MOTORCYCLES

1981 Yamaha Seca 650 Ex cond 9500o Rich 665-7998

PERSONALS

Going Greek in Newman Center 10-4:30 every Monday letters made on the spot check out t shirts and forms' favors

Someone to watch over you We look out for students better than any other credit card Call 1-800-Citibank to apply Note we won't be on your dates.

PHOTO RESTORATION & RETOUCHING

Restore your priceless old family photos to like new condition before they're gone forever Call Thomas at 549-1897 Leave a message.

RIDE WANTED

Need rides to Boston or anywhere from Boston to Beverly on weekends Gas $ 253-7609.

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wanted 258/month Behind Baybank on bus route Call Kristen 549-3992

SCUBA DIVING

Earn 2 credits learning to dive Monday Tuesday, Wednesday, or Thursday 7-10pm 1-800-782-0577 Project Deep.

SERVICES

Have you been ripped off by a retailer? Contact the Students Legal Services Office regarding your rights as a consumer. 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

International students-visitors DV-1 green card program by U.S. Immigration Legal Services Tel (818) 887-9681 (818) 998-4425 20321 Stagg St. Canoga Park CA 91306 Monday-Sunday 10am-10pm

Legal Questions? The Students Legal Services office offers free legal assistance to fee paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

Modem users! Call the Playground BBS 256-8085, 19.2 K bps 130 megs online + CD ROM Registered online games include Lord, BRE Utrutger, Global Wars & Planets!

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright for free testing and caring confidential support 549-1906.

THE END OF THE WORLD

The end of the world is coming!!! DJ Chooch spinnin' hard house and techno This Friday, March 31, the Hatch bar This is an el' ajoes show.

TRAVEL

Da Europa $189 anytime Carib/Mex $189 in Free brochure Airhitch TM 212-864-2000

Da Europa $189 anytime Carib/Mex $189 n/t free brochure airhitch tm 212 864-2000

You take your writing seriously and so do we for more information about quality editing by e-mail, write to Editing Transactional at editmaster@aol.com

WANTED

Buying UMass BB tix. Last regionals/meadowlands. Paying top dollar (603) 432-7411 Kreg

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN

Classifed Advertising Submission

Classifieds can be delivered in person, or through Campus Mail to room 113 Campus Center (in the basement) at least 2 days before the ad is to run. Payment must be received with the submission.

Standard headings for classifieds are: Activities, Announcements, Auto For Sale, Entertainment, For Rent, For Sale, Found, Help Wanted, Instruction, Lost, Motorcycles, Musicians, Personals, Ride Wanted, Riders Wanted, Room Wanted, Roommate Wanted, Services, Summer Sublet, To Sublet, Travel, Typing/ Word Proc., Wanted to Rent, Wanted.

RATES
$2.00 minimum/day
Students:
20¢ per word/day
All Others:
40¢ per word/day
Special Heading:
$2.50 Extra
NO REFUNDS

REGARDING PERSONALS

1. All personals MUST be printed ads. Collect or classified couples are below required to acceptance of the classified.
2. First names may not be used in personals. The only exceptions are for birthday & congratulatory personals.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals.
4. Addresses, or down room numbers are not allowed in personals.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory, vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Pictures may not be used in personals.
7. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: Date: Taken By:

Date(s) to run: Headline:

Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:

ADVERTISING COPY

1		1
2		2
3		3
4		4
5		5
6		6
7		7
8		8
9		9
10		10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used

DON'T MISS YOUR LAST CHANCE...

GET YOUR FREE

SENIOR YEARBOOK PHOTO

NOW!

PORTRAITS ARE BEING SHOT ALL WEEK IN

Campus Center Hotel, Room 402

Sitting times

Monday March 27: 9 am-12 pm, 12:45 pm-5 pm
Tuesday March 28: 12 pm-4 pm, 5 pm-8 pm
Wednesday March 29: 9 am-12 pm, 12:45 pm-5 pm
Thursday March 30: 12 pm-4 pm, 5 pm-8 pm
Friday March 31: 9 am-12 pm, 12:45 pm-4 pm

Be part of the first ALL COLOR college yearbook in New England!

To schedule an appointment, call

1-800-836-0558

or just walk in

Sittings take only about 10 minutes

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

THIS EMERGENCY MEETING OF THE GET RID OF SLIMY GIRLS CLUB WILL COME TO ORDER. DICTATOR FOR LIFE CALVIN PRESIDING.
OHEZ, OHEZ!
AS WE'RE ALL AWARE, THE ENEMY HAS INFILTRATED OUR TERRITORY AND IS SPREADING DISINFORMATION TO THE EFFECT THAT HOMEWORK OUGHT TO BE DONE RIGHT AFTER SCHOOL.
AS MY MOM MAY HAVE COVERT GIRL SYMPATHIES, WE MUST ERADICATE THE HOSTILE FORCES! ANY QUESTIONS?
YES, COULD WE POKE SOME AIR HOLES IN HERE?
TOO RISKY. THE BOX OF SECRECY MUST REMAIN SECURE!

Garfield By Jim Davis

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

YOU DON'T REMEMBER MY ACCIDENT AT THE CIRCUS?!!
I--DON'T REMEMBER-- THE SHOW AT ALL!
THIS IS THE SECOND TIME THAT'S HAPPENED!
HONEY, THIS IS SERIOUS! YOU'VE GOT TO SEE A DOCTOR!

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

Bruno By C. Baldwin

I FEEL SO GIRLISH CUTTING MY HAIR AFTER A BREAK-UP
AREN'T YOU A GIRL?
THAT'S NOT WHAT I MEANT
AH... WELL, HIT, I'M HOME!
SOMEONE LEAVE SOME FOOD FOR US!
AM I MISSING SOME CREMATION HERE?
DON'T WORRY, IT WAS A DIFFERENT KIND OF PHILISTINE WHO KILLED HIM.

Dilbert By Scott Adams

IN THIS COUNTRY WE HAVE A CUSTOM WHEN MEN ASK WOMEN TO FETCH COFFEE.
"STAND UP. THAT'S IT. NOW THIS WILL REALLY SURPRISE YOU.
OH GOD
I'VE NEVER SEEN ANYBODY GET KICKED INTO HIS HAT BEFORE
THAT'S GOTTA HURT.

Jim's Journal By Jim

I went to the bookstore today to find a book to read.
I couldn't find anything that I felt like reading.
While I was walking home I noticed a torn piece of newspaper on the sidewalk.
I stood there for a while and read it.

Not Everyone is Straight and neither is the Collegian

Write for GLB issues. Let your voice be heard.
Contact Wendy Darling
113 Campus Center • 545-3500

Immigration Law

Hans & Curran, P.C.
30 Years of Experience in Immigration Law

1162 Main Street Springfield, MA 781-6370 | 13 Old South St. Northampton, MA 584-3232 | 50 Congress St. Boston, MA (617)722-0043

Free Consultation for Free-College Students/Faculty

Help-Wanted?

Job Tip # 42 Not all employers advertise in the paper. Make contacts!

Create a professional looking resume at CopyCat Print Shop

Choose from a selection of attractive high quality 25% cotton paper.
We'll typeset one page and make 50 copies all in just two business days.
– Only $19.95 with this coupon.

CopyCat PRINT SHOP

Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom

I met this girl at summer camp.
We really liked each other.
She lived a long way from me.
So, that following school year we talked long distance by phone every day for an hour.
Dad said we should invite a representative from A.T.&T. to the wedding.
I told him we should also invite someone from MCI and Sprint.

P.S. Mueller

Today's Staff

Night Editor.....Tracy Monahan
Copy Editor.....Caleb Cochran
Photo Technician.....Rebecca Peterson
Production Supervisor.....Greg Iafrate
Production.....Ken Perry
Mark Mitchell, Dmitry Abramson

Dining Commons Menu

SORRY!
NO MENU FOR TODAY'S
DELICIOUS ENTREE CHOICES
CALL THE "LUNCH LADY"
AT 545-2626

Daily Crossword
Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Clothing
5 Dear —
9 Svelte
13 Khayyam
14 Newspaper articles
16 — sapiens
17 — Stop
18 Shipshape
20 Yoko
21 — deserts
22 Indicate a new paragraph
23 Henhouse
25 Salads
26 Qualified
27 Feline comment
28 Unused
31 Toots one's horn
32 Fencing move
33 Inventor Whitney
34 Costa —
35 Arrives
36 Wanton look
37 Prize a question
38 Mausoleet opera
39 Move
40 Positively
41 Contest for rated?
42 Comedian Tomlin
43 Trig or algebra
44 The written word
46 Taking it easy
49 "... pretty maids all in —"
50 Spider's share
53 Poison pen letter, perhaps
56 Poneset
58 Part of GE
57 Actress Keaton
58 Compulsion
59 Flat-topped elevation
60 Former spouses
61 The — the limit

DOWN
1 — dandan
2 — 's home is his castle
3 Arkansas athletes
4 Part of a bathing suit
5 Schulz character
6 Baum happening
7 Butcher's wares
8 Quarterly, Abbr.
9 Suspicious
10 Easy gait
11 "Heaven, — heaven"
12 Treasure Sit.
15 Carlsvet's crew
19 Like winter weather
21 Nameth and DiMaggio
24 First name in gymnastics
25 Goddess of Agriculture
26 Go up
27 Successor to Bess
28 Crewet for one
29 Mournful poem
30 Live — dynamo
31 Asinine comment?
32 Hunt elegantly
35 Shot the breeze
36 San — Obrazo
38 Litter
39 Huff and puff
43 Holy city
44 Liable to 45 Caltans
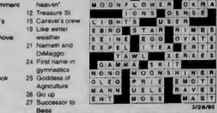
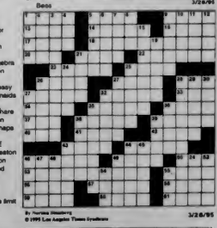
46 "Pardon me"
47 Yarn
48 Itinerary abbrs.
49 Trojan hero
51 Nervous
52 Honey makers
54 Reason for overtime
55 City transportation

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:





3/28/95
©1995 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Your Horoscope
By Joane Dixon

ARIES (March 21–April 19): Try to keep a low profile today. An old grievance at work will sort itself out. Do not let a financial disappointment get you down. A loved one's upbeat attitude will cheer you greatly.

TAURUS (April 20—May 20): You receive friendly but constructive advice from your elders. Plan future projects carefully. Heed your instincts when making long-range financial decisions.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20): Keeping an alliance on track should be your top priority now. Your powers of persuasion entice other people into revealing their private plans. Look forward to a romantic rendezvous; you will not be disappointed.

CANCER (June 21–July 22): Close relationships may be the most difficult to handle now. Be more considerate or tolerant. Above all, avoid giving the impression that you are a control freak! Set your career sights higher.

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22): Do the best you can today, but do not agonize if it is impossible to make everyone happy. Take a calculated risk in finance or romance. You could win hands down. Maintain your dignity.

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22): Follow a conservative course today. Influential people will be impressed by your wise approach. Idle time is down time. Rev up your career engine! Temper independence with kindness when dealing with friends and family.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22): Make "unity" your motto today. Your instincts are right about tacking a project from a fresh angle. Postponing a social event will give you more time to prepare. Enjoy relaxing at home.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21): The financial outlook brightens. Go ahead and do some shopping. Small gifts and favors will promote valuable good will. A career decision could soon be made in your favor. Avoid bragging to envious co-workers.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21): Making intelligent concessions will help you cement a sale or sign a contract with overseas clients. Where you lead, others will follow. Romance begins to intensify. Give some thought to redecorating your home or office.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19): Your luck changes for the better now. Guard against letting emotion overwhelm logic. Greater self-discipline is needed to reach a coveted goal. A neck or should massage offers relief.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18): Teamwork is emphasized at place of employment. Unless you work well with others, you may find yourself being judged harshly by high-ups. A check will arrive in the nick of time. Count your blessings.

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20): Follow doctor's orders to avoid complications. If in doubt, seek legal advice before signing a contract or agreement. New doors open when you show a desire to compromise. Be affectionate with family members.

Quote of the Day

"I'll probably go back to my hotel room and cry. Right now I'm numb after the loss. After he left the court I told him I love him and he had a great career."

–UMass Head Coach John Calipari on four years with Lou Roe

Sports

Opponents gunning for UMass baseball squad

Atlantic 10 favorites battle Boston College at home today

By Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Collegian Staff

COLLEGIAN FILE

Leftfielder Ryan Jette, the solid hitter and base–stealing threat, hopes to set the table for the Minutemen's offense in the lead off spot.

The only strikes the University of Massachusetts baseball team will be involved with are those coming at the plate and on the mound, not off the field.

The mild weather in New England for the past month has given the Minutemen a chance to practice outside — before and after the team's annual trip to Florida — at a thawed– out Earl Lorden Field.

Thus, for the first time in several seasons, Massachusetts (5–6, 2–1 Atlantic 10) will play a home game in the month of March, today versus Boston College (3 p.m.). That is, unless it rains.

Coming off last season's first place conference finish and a regular season championship, the Minutemen are the favorites in the A–10, despite losing several integral players from the 1994 squad. One of these was designated hitter Justin Howard, who started all 48 games, hit .330, blasted eight home runs, scored 43 runs, and drove in a team–best 50 runs.

Here is a breakdown of the 1994–95 Minutemen, position– by–position:

Infield

Key Losses (last season's stats in parentheses): Shortstop Greg LaRocca (.367, 10 home runs, 40 RBIs, .687 slugging percentage), first baseman Jeff January (.305, eight HRs, 40 RBIs).

LaRocca's departure to the San Diego Padres' minor league system has left a hole in the Massachusetts infield. However, junior second baseman Mark Pileski, who appeared destined to fill LaRocca's shoes at short next season, will be called upon a year earlier to become the everyday shortstop.

Through 11 games, Pileski has struggled at the plate, hitting just .226 with one HR and five RBIs.

Freshman Muchie Daglicre has stepped right in for the Minutemen at second base, starting in all 11 games thus far. He's batting .304 with 10 runs scored. He adds another lefty bat to the Minuteman line–up.

Senior transfer Jeff Michaels has replaced January at first, hitting .250 with one HR and seven RBIs. Michaels, who came to the Minutemen from Florida International University, is expected to provide good left–handed power at the plate. Junior Justin Kelly from Northampton will battle Michaels for time at first base.

At the hot corner, sophomore Brad Gorrie has started in all 11 games, despite hitting .184 and committing seven errors. If Gorrie's slump continues, fellow sophomore Ryan Thistle is ready to step in. The third baseman appeared in 25 games last season, hitting .190 while driving in nine runs.

Outfield

Key Losses: None.

By far the strength of this year's Massachusetts team, four players will battle for three spots in the outfield. Most likely, the odd man out will see a lot of time as designated hitter. In right field, senior Bill Knight looks to become Massachusetts' all–time leader in home runs and RBIs. He currently has 25 HRs and 108 RBIs in three–plus seasons with the Minutemen.

Drew Comeau is the all–time HR leader with 32; Todd Comeau is the all–time RBIs leader with 133.

Sophomore Nate Murphy should be the mainstay in centerfield. After an impressive freshman campaign (.287, 2 HR, 25 RBIs, 30 runs), the Amherst native is leading the Minutemen in batting (.406) so far this season. He is also six–for–seven in stolen base opportunities.

Junior Nelson Ubaldo has once again started the regular season on a tear. He's tied with Murphy for the lead in batting, leads the team in RBIs (12) and home runs (two), and neither have committed an error on the young season.

If Massachusetts has a need for speed, head coach Mike Stone will look no further than junior Ryan Jette. He's been extremely consistent in the lead–off spot, hitting .353 in eight games this season. Last year, Jette stole 20 bases in 22 attempts in 35 games and was one of the sparks for the Minuteman offense.

Turn to BASEBALL, page 5

Buffalo feared as playoff time nears

Ted Kottler on the NHL

Don't look now, Bruins, but there's a certain team nearby about to go over .500 and match Boston's point total (32) — the Hartford Whalers, who batted .500 (1 for 2) in–personnel decisions last week.

The dumb move: trading Pat Verbeek to the Rangers for defenemen Glen Featherstone and Michael Stewart and the Rangers' first pick in the 1995 Entry Draft. Hartford dealt one of its best players ever for two slobs and a pick that better be another Jeff O'Neill (Hartford's first choice in '94, 5th overall) or this one's a bust.

I'm sure the Blues would have taken Verbeek for ostracized Hartford native Craig Janney, who could have come home and been a real drawing card at the sparsely– crowded Mall.

The smart move: signing O'Neill to a four–year contract. The explosive forward should be in Springfield soon (at last, a reason to watch the Falcons, Hartford's AHL affiliate) and when he gets to Hartford, the Whale could have the superstar it's yearning for.

In the Eastern Conference playoff chase, the Penguins and Nordiques are both several games ahead of their closest competitors, the Flyers. But Philadelphia would clinch the No. 2 seed in the playoffs if it holds on to win the Atlantic Division title. Not only do the New Broad St. Bullies have the NHL's best line of Eric Lindros, John LeClair and Mikael Renberg, they have what only four other teams do: a winning road record (7–6–3), which could go a long way in May.

Team to fear: Buffalo. The Sabres have work to do just to earn a berth. But if and when they do, the combination of goalie Dominik Hasek and center Pat Lafontaine could spell doom for a first round favorite, as it did in four straight for the Bruins two seasons ago.

Team that won't make it: the Rangers. Sorry, but all those guys who had career years in 1993–94 (Adam Graves, Brian Leetch, Mike Richter) are slumping and coach Colin Campbell is a total stiff compared to Mike Keenan. It won't be long before impatient fans chant "1994."

Team that will win the East: Pittsburgh. Too much firepower, experience and confidence.

It's wilder out West, where every team has a chance to sneak in, even Anaheim. But it's been a strange season that has seen favorites falter and sleepers surprise.

Turn to NHL, page 5

Lax falls short vs. UVa; team shines in BC rout

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts lacrosse team threw a scare into No. 1 Virginia to start its season, but their late rally fell just short as the Cavaliers prevailed 13–11.

Virginia, playing in its fifth game of the season, took advantage of UMass' early rustiness. The Cavaliers opened up a 10–3 lead on three goals apiece from Tony Nugent, David Jones and Greg Traynor.

The Gorillas came to life in the third quarter and mounted a comeback in the second half as Brendan Glass, Mike Valente, Eric Bailey, Buddy Hoffman and Mike DelPrecio all scored twice for Massachusetts.

DelPrecio's goals came in only the second game of his collegiate career.

"It's always nice for a freshman in his first collegiate game to score," Massachusetts coach Greg Cannella said. "I expected Michael to play a real productive part in our offense. In the first game of his college career, to score two big goals, we're very happy with that."

Hoffman's second goal, with 3:19 remaining in the game capped a Massachusetts run that brought the Gorillas within two goals at 12–10, but the underdogs ran out of time as two teams traded goals to finish the game at 13–11.

"[The game] showed us a lot about our character," Cannella said. "That we fought back, and that we were able to compete with a top team. Going in to the game I don't know if they really believed they could beat a Virginia. It certainly helps your confidence."

Massachusetts 13, Boston College 4

For the second straight season, Massachusetts pounded BC, defeating the Eagles by nine in the first game of the season at

Turn to LACROSSE, page 5

COLLEGIAN FILE

The men's lacrosse team gave first–year coach Greg Cannella his first victory of his head coaching career, as it defeated Boston College 13–4 last weekend.

Future bright for Minutewomen hoops

By Candice Flemming
Collegian Staff

The 1994–95 women's basketball season can be described in many words. Groundbreaking. Unprecedented. Emerging.

But maybe even a little disappointing.

The Minutewomen won a school record 19 games and finished second in the tough Atlantic 10 Conference, their best finish ever. They also received their first–ever invitation to the National Women's Invitational Tournament, held in Amarillo, Texas.

Coach Joanie O'Brien was honored as the 1994–95 A–10 Coach of the Year. Melissa Gurile was named to the All A– 10 First Team, Octavia Thomas the All A–10 Second Team and Crystal Carroll the All A–10 Third Team.

The Minutewomen went into the Atlantic 10 Tournament as the No. 2 seed, a favorite to reach the championship game and possibly gain an NCAA bid. Yet, they were upset by No. 7 seed West Virginia in the first round. One win in the A–10 tournament would have likely given the Minutewomen an at–large bid and a trip to Storrs, Conn., for the East Regionals.

Instead, the Minutewomen were headed to Amarillo for the NWIT as the No. 5 seed in the eight–team tournament. UMass won their first round game over Virginia Commonwealth to become the only Atlantic 10 team to ever advance into the championship round at the NWIT, but lost in the semi–finals to eventual champion Texas A&M, and in the third place game to Notre Dame.

Even with the poor showing in the final two games of the NWIT, the Minutewomen drew praise from Texas A&M coach Candi Harvey.

"I think they're a tough basketball team. They're hardnosed and they're physical," she said. "I think Joanie's done a tremendous job. She's just going to continue to take that program to a very, very high level."

That high level could come next season.

This year, junior stars Gurile and Thomas continued to emerge as two of the best players in the conference. Gurile averaged a team–high 15.6 points per game while Thomas was second on the team with 15.2 ppg and first on the team with 7.8 rebounds per game. Both Gurile and Thomas scored the 1,000 point of their careers this season.

Sophomores Beth Kuzmeski and Crystal Carroll also had solid years. Kuzmeski set the UMass all–time career three– pointers made record with 103 while averaging 9.2 ppg. Carroll backed up her outstanding freshman season with an equally–impressive sophomore campaign, finishing third on the team in

Turn to HOOPS, page 5

CANDICE FLEMMING / COLLEGIAN

The 1994–95 season saw the most successful Massachusetts women's basketball team in school history. Tez Kraft (left) and Octavia Thomas were key contributors.

Women's gym shocks nationally ranked WVU at the Coliseum

By Jorma Kansanen
Collegian Staff

Last Sunday afternoon, the University of Massachusetts women's gymnastics team (9–2, 4–1 A–10) defeated the No. 21 nationally–ranked West Virginia squad with a school record score of 190.925–190.725 at the WVU Coliseum. The University of Pittsburgh came in third with 186.325.

It was sweet revenge, as they were able to pay back the close home loss, also by less than one point, from two weeks ago at the Curry Hicks Cage. Running two–tenths of a point behind going into the last event, the Minutewomen's comeback in the W'U Coliseum signifies a big step forward in the overall program.

"It is clearly the biggest win since I have been here, I mean, it does not even compare," Minutewoman coach Dave Kuzara said. "Each one of the team is responsible for this win.

Kuzara was impressed with the overall team effort.

"We had mistakes, but with 24 routines you are going to have mistakes. Every time someone made a mistake, the next person was able to pick up the slack. Then, the person who made that mistake was able to do very well in the next event," Kuzara said.

"It is six meets into the season and every meet we have improved, every meet our scores have gotten higher and now we have broken the school record again. There are so many positives that come out of this situation, and I think we still have our best gymnastics ahead of us."

With the win, West Virginia's streak of 24 consecutive wins in the Atlantic 10 Conference was snapped. As UMass has performed in the shadows for so long, the A–10 superiority of the Mountaineers is now in jeopardy. Kuzara sees it as a healthy victory for the overall conference make-up come playoff time, but also admits that now the revenge factor is on the side of West Virginia.

"We are going to be in these situations with the A–10 Championships and the NCAA regionals, and this win makes the A–10s already looking like an exciting meet," said Kuzara. "You do not go 24–0, get beat and then all of the sudden lay down."

In the all–around competition, UMass placed three gymnasts in the top five. Behind the Mountaineer All–American Kristin Quackenbush's first place score of 39.25 was junior JJ. Tolhurst (38.675) and sophomore Tara Swartz (38.575). Sophomore Lianne Laing finished fifth (37.875).

One of the top performances of the day was the first vault of Laing, proving to be the clincher for the event and the win.

Going into the last event, UMass was down by two–tenths of a point, with both teams starting their best events (WVU– floor exercise, UM–vault).

The Minutewomen received consistent efforts from Maurer and quality scores by Lebeau (9.70), Swartz (9.80) and Tolhurst (9.80). With Laing in the anchor position, the sophomore out of Ottawa, Ontario solidified the win of the event and the meet with a score of 9.85.

Kuzara praised his top freshman athletes, Penny Lebeau (vault) and Karen Maurer (all–around). As for Maurer, she had the enviable position of leadoff for all except one of the events, which Kuzara points to the unseen factor of experience.

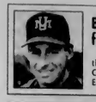
"I really think that this was a big meet for the freshmen. They are not used to kind of system at all," said Kuzara. "West Virginia is a huge place for a gym, and if you are not used to that it can cause problems."

"If Karen and Penny do not come through, we lose that meet. I am very proud of both of them."

The Massachusetts

DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CIV Issue 100 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Wednesday, March 29, 1995



Baseball wins first home game
The baseball team was victorious in their home opener, beating Boston College 12–6 yesterday afternoon at Earl Lorden Field (See Sports, page 8).

Clinton welcomes student scribes
President Clinton met with 100 student journalists recently to discuss a variety of college–related issues (see story page, page 3).

Films get mixed reviews
Two new movies, Dolores Claiborne and Exotica, were released recently in theaters. Check out our review (See Arts & Living, page 6).

Extended Forecast
Today, look for the sun and sort–of warm temps, with clouds filling in tonight with a chance of rain. Thursday looks cloudy, with Friday cooling off considerably.

Today	Thursday	Friday
HIGH: 55 LOW: 35	HIGH: 45 LOW: 30	HIGH: 40 LOW: 30

Angelou, Wiesel create dialogue at UM

■ Famous writers speak about Jewish, Black experiences; promote education to fight hate

By Tim White
Collegian Staff

EMILY RILEY / COLLEGIAN

African American author Maya Angelou

EMILY RILEY / COLLEGIAN

Jewish writer Elie Wiesel

Calling for education and love to battle hatred across the country, Maya Angelou and Elie Wiesel spoke last night at an almost sold out William D. Mullins Center.

"Crossworlds In Conversation," was an unrehearsed dialogue between best–selling author Maya Angelou and Nobel Peace Prize winning author Elie Wiesel.

The discourse opened with Wiesel's question, "Maya, where do you come from?"

"That is a good question," Angelou said. "I speak through my Black experience. I am always trying to understand what it is like to be a human being — to fall and then rise, but somehow go on."

Wiesel said that both himself and Angelou come from oppressed backgrounds and they share a common bond.

"We both know what humiliation means, we have been humiliated by history," Wiesel said. "The greatest sin to me is when one human being humiliates another human being."

To fight oppression and hatred, Angelou said education of every culture is the answer. She said she learned this when she first met a Jewish person when she was 14 years old.

"I had to go to read and find out what a Jewish person was," Angelou said. "I refuse to accept any man–made difference between humans. No congressman or senator can liberate you as much as that library."

Wiesel then spoke of when he first met a Black person, 50 years ago when he was liberated from Buchenwald, a Nazi concentration camp.

"One of the [American] soldiers was Black," Wiesel said. "That person was weeping and cursing, his cursing became a chant. I couldn't understand him, but I could understand his tears."

The next generation

Angelou and Wiesel then spoke of the problems facing the next generation and the ways to battle those problems.

"I am so sorry we are offering this [world] with such hate and ignorance, I am really sorry," Angelou said addressing the audience. "I know racism, sexism and ageism is something beating you up, I am sorry I have not done more, but this is your world. We are asking you to make this country more than it is today."

Wiesel said the hate Angelou was describing is a cancer cell that spreads like a disease to other people and within oneself.

"If you are racist, you are anti–Semitic, if you are anti–Semitic you are racist," Wiesel said. "We realize that once hatred is there, it is almost impossible to eradicate it. There is only one way to cure it — the preventive way, education."

Love was another key to ending hatred, according to Angelou.

"I accept the fact that I am part of you, nothing human can be alien to me," Angelou said. "If we're able to convince you your worth the best...we can give you, then we have reintroduced you to love — love liberates."

Wiesel said he blames television and the pace of today's society for the reason love is so non–existent to the youth of America.

"I feel we live in a generation today, not by its own fault, that cannot learn love," Wiesel said. "Everything happens so fast. Today boy meets girl and then everything is over [that night]. I wish everyone would give back love the romantic aura it had."

Hope for the next century

Wiesel said he puts the responsibility on the young people to end the hatred plaguing the world.

"These students are going into a world that is not expecting them, that does not want them, but we must tell them it is worth learning," Wiesel said. "You, the young people, justify the hope of our teachings."

Angelou also said hope lies within in the next generation, especially as an individual promoting love.

"You should, could and must use your lives to expand the horizons and not narrow them down," Angelou said. "If we are to survive at all, it will be our own individual and collective doing."

Speakers aim to bring communities closer

By Chris Conner
and Jacob W. Michaels
Collegian Staff

News Analysis

"Crossworlds," last night's presentation by the African– American Maya Angelou and the Jewish Elie Wiesel was conceived as a "conversation" between the two authors; a risky venture by all accounts.

Angelou and Wiesel both noted in their opening remarks that the evening's proceedings were wholly unrehearsed.

"This is an encounter between two human beings," Angelou said.

Yet, during the course of this "encounter," a pair of intellectuals held in the highest esteem in both the academic and literary worlds would be required to speak in a coherent and intelligent improvisational session.

"You should, could and must use your lives to expand the horizons and not narrow them down," Angelou said. "If we are to survive at all, it will be our own individual and collective doing."

Also, with specific respect to the sometimes volatile state of Black–Jewish relations on campus, the event had the potential to offer more worldly perspectives on relationships between the two groups.

"It brings the two crowds together," Jewish student Daria Peskin said. "People would hear her message who normally wouldn't and people would hear his message who normally wouldn't."

First meetings

True to the advance press surrounding the event, Angelou and Wiesel delivered an alternately poignant and surprisingly humorous collection of anecdotes and thoughts.

Topics ranged from Angelou's favorite husband's anti– Semitism to Wiesel's account of a Black soldier's lamentation at the inhumanity of Buchenwald, a concentration camp detailed in Wiesel's acclaimed autobiographical work, Night.

Both writers also recounted their first experiences with the other's community. They shared positive initial images, Wiesel's having been with the aforementioned soldier, Angelou's with a college teacher and

Turn to ANGELOU/WIESEL, page 2

Gov. discusses current state of education

By Robert W. Troff
Associated Press

BOSTON — Gov. William F. Weld said Tuesday the University of Massachusetts system should learn to "walk and chew gum at the same time" by balancing quality research projects with teaching duties.

Weld was responding to a suggestion, contained in a study released Tuesday, that Massachusetts' public colleges and universities focus on teaching job skills to students instead of research.

"I'd hate to shelve the idea of having a strong research component," Weld said. "I think we need to focus with considerable intensity on making sure that we're preparing people for jobs in the real world, but I don't think you have to put research on the back burner to do that.

"I'd be inclined to make a valiant effort to walk and chew gum at the same time before I'd think about downgrading research," said Weld.

Critics said the 15–month study by the John W. McCormack Institute of Public Affairs at UMass–Boston was a waste of time. They said a lack of state funding was the only thing wrong with the UMass system.

Weld did not comment on another aspect of the study, a recommendation that some campuses be closed to save money and eliminate duplication.

But others said closing campuses was not the cure for a system ailing from a lack of money.

Between 1988 and 1992, state appropriations for universities and colleges fell from $575 million to $348 million. The proportion of state and local tax revenues spent on higher education dropped from 4.6 percent in 1980 to 3 percent in 1993, less than half the national average.

"We have a gem of a state college system, with nine schools — seven of them offer geographical access and two of them that are so specialized they are famous. I don't see why we would need to jeopardize the access," said William Murphy, of the Massachusetts State College Association, the faculty and library staff union.

"What's called for is to restore the level of funding," Murphy said. "No one's opposed to revitalization, if it's done properly, if it's done fairly."

Dr. Vincent Mara, the president of Fitchburg State College who is retiring in May, was more blunt. He lamented that he was "so sick of the

Turn to WELD, page 2

African myths discussed at Amherst College

By Ekra Miezan
Collegian Correspondent

On March 27, The Black Studies of Amherst College invited Professor Kofi Anyidoho to an open class discussion on the importance of social myths in African cultures, and how these myths gird the interactions of Africans and their environment.

Kofi Anyidoho teaches and directs the School of Performing Arts at the University of Ghana. He also teaches at the Institute For Advanced Study & Research in The African Humanities at Northwestern University at Evanston, Illinois.

Anyidoho gave an exposé on the concept of myth in the poetic expression of African cultures. The first illustration of myth in African societies that Anyidoho pointed out was the Fulanis' conception of life. The Fulanis, who are nomadic people scattered across West Africa, believe that life began with a huge drop of milk, he said.

Out of this drop of milk, Doondari, the supreme creator, created stone. Out of stone, iron was created; out of iron, fire; out of fire, water; out of water, air. Doondari then created man out of these composite five elements (stone, iron, fire, water and air). What is underscored here is the idea that there is no absolute power in the world. Every source has its own limitation, he said.

The second illustration of myth in African cultures that Anyidoho discussed was from the Akan culture from Ghana and Cote d'Ivoire. "The path has crossed the river; the river has crossed the path," he said. He underlined that the river is from ancient creation. The meaning of this Akan myth is that we are subject to the fundamental laws of creation, whether we chose to respect them or not, he said.

Anyidoho then established a relationship between this Akan myth and one from the Native Americans, which reads that, "We do not inherit the earth from our ancestors. We borrow it from our children," he said.

According to Anyidoho, many people are unaware of the energy that have been used to build what they have inherited, therefore, they tend to misuse it.

He then said that when we borrow something, we tend to be more careful about it. We have a moral obligation to take of it.

Myth in the Akan culture girds the way people interact with their environment. Anyidoho said that in the process of making a drum, which is a form of communication across distance, the Akan people perform rituals to apologize to nature for the violation they are about to cause.

They also promise nature to repair this violation by planting another tree to replace the one they have cut, he said. By the same token, they pay homage to the animal, the skin of which is being used in the making of the drum, Anyidoho said.

Anyidoho concluded that the performing of rituals reconnects us to the source of life, the beginning of our emergence as human beings. Without the connection to the source, we are lost souls, he said.

Finally, Anyidoho told a story in which he borrowed from Chinua Achebe. In Ibo mythology, there was a god by the name of Esu, who sometimes liked playing tricks to people for a moral reason, he said. He one day painted his body half white and half black, and walked the road which lay between the farms of two people who happened to be very good friends, told Anyidoho. Soon after he left, the two farmers got into an argument, one arguing that he saw a black man, and the other responding that he saw a white man.

The two men broke away in silence. Later on, Esu walked back the same road. Then each of the farmers realized that the other one was right. Subsequently, another argument broke out, each of the farmers taking the other's previous position; again, they broke away in silence. Thus, Anyidoho alluded, isn't it possible that we can be both black and white?

University meets many GLB student guidelines

By Wendy Darling
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts at Amherst meets at least 11 of 19 recommendations for providing services for gay, lesbian, and bisexual students, says a report issued by a state commission.

The Massachusetts Governor's Commission on Gay and Lesbian Youth released Making Colleges and Universities Safe for Gay and Lesbian Students in July 1993. Included in the report is a list of recommendations for the kinds of services that should be available at Massachusetts' colleges and universities.

UMass provides what the report terms "the most critically important and invaluable resource," a gay, lesbian, bisexual, and transgender community center. The UMass Program for GLB Concerns offers the safe space, health information, educational outreach, workshops, speakers and events suggested by the commission to provide support for members of the GLB community.

Other UMass GLB services include space allotted to the Lesbian Bisexual Gay Alliance. Located on the fourth floor of the Student Union, the LBGA office offers GLB students the "physically safe, secure, and appropriate space" called for by the commission to let students meet, socialize, and study in safety. The LBGA uses other spaces on campus for its weekly meetings and monthly dances.

The 2 in 20 Floor for Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual, Transgender

Turn to GLB, page 2

REBECCA PETERSON / COLLEGIAN

Catch!
Olympic volleyball hopeful Cameron Hlaky–Hall gets ready to serve a spike to his father who works in the communication disorders department.

■Angelou/Wiesel

continued from page 1

rabbi who exposed her to a plethora of Jewish writings.

"No one can liberate you like the library," Angelou said.

"I became forever a Jew, an Arab, White, Black, Italian," she said of her various other readings.

Wiesel added a similar sentiment to Angelou's regarding the lasting effect his first encounter with the serviceman had on his view of Blacks.

"I feel very close to anyone from your community," Wiesel remarked to Angelou. "We must bring them together."

Black-Jewish Tensions

Much of the dialogue between Angelou and Wiesel was centered around the issue of racism and youth in today's society.

Regretfully, Angelou apologized to the present generation for the sins of those who had preceded them.

"I'm sorry to offer young folks an inheritance besmirched with hate and intolerance," Angelou said.

Wiesel related the story of Cain and Abel. He said it showed that it was possible to be brothers and kill each other, and that whoever kills each other kills their brother.

Angelou added, "We are more alike than unalike."

Wiesel went on, "It is true, whoever hates, hates everybody ... Whoever is racist is anti-Semitic. Whoever hates Blacks also hates Jews."

But will it have an affect on the tensions on campus?

"This evening was an eloquent expression of the need for solidarity," English professor Martin Espada said. "We need more collaborations like this not only for African-Americans and Jews, but for all people who support human rights."

M. Ricardo Townes, assistant vice-chancellor for Campus Activities, was also enthusiastic about future projects.

"I hope that Chancellor Scott will find ways to continue this type of program," Townes said.

Angelou summed up the sentiments in her words, "We need to accept the fact that I am a part of you. Nothing alien can be alien to me. We must use our energy constructively, not destructively ... If we can get them through to you, you will take our ideas into the 21st century.

■ GLB

continued from page 1

Students and Their Heterosexual Allies is a service that meets commission recommendations for "les/bi/trans/gay-sensitive living options." The 2 in 20 Floor provides support and safety to GLBT students living on campus.

In accordance with commission recommendations, UMass also recognizes, supports, and funds a campus GLB student group, the Lesbian Bisexual Gay Alliance. The LBGA holds weekly meetings and monthly dances and provides resources such as GLB magazines, buttons, anti-homophobia posters, and occasional films and workshops.

Based on a survey of University resource listings and material available through the Program for GLB Concerns, other services include:

- legal and fundraising support for GLBT students.
- openly GLBT or gay-sensitive counselors, faculty, staff, and administrators
- Chancellor's Task Force on GLB Matters
- regular coverage of GLB issues in campus publications
- multicultural GLB programming
- widespread distribution of GLB resource material
- GLB alumni network (development in progress)

Correction

Due to an editing error, the woman's gymnastics team story in yesterday's Collegian was reprinted from February 28. The Collegian regrets the error.

■ Weld

continued from page 1

crap of Boston bureaucrats, and the nonsense that is created by studies such as this."

Bill Wright, a UMass spokesman, said school officials could not be reached for comment Tuesday.

The study proposed creation of a "campus closing commission" similar to the federal panel that recommended military bases for shutdown. The commission would rank state colleges and universities by quality, cost and other factors.

The report did not identify which of the 29 state colleges and universities should be closed.

"Streamlining and consolidating is not new," Murphy said. "These reports have been put out for the last 15 years periodically."

Help Wanted?

Job Tip # 42: Not all employers advertise in the paper. Make contacts!

Create a professional looking resume at CopyCat Print Shop

Choose from a selection of attractive high quality 25% cotton paper. We'll typeset one page and make 50 copies all in just two business days. - Only $19.95 with this coupon.

CopyCat PRINT SHOP

220 Triangle St., Amherst 549-3840 • 32 Pleasant St., Northampton 585-1320

Legal Problems?

Call UMass Student Legal Services Office!

Housing - Family - Student Rights
Civil Rights - Workers Rights
Criminal and Consumer Law and more...

Call 545-1995
for an appointment

UMASS/AMHERST STUDENTS ONLY

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS LOWELL
THE GRADUATE SCHOOL
Lowell, MA 01854
(508)934-2381

WHY NOT THE BEST IN GRADUATE EDUCATION?

Master's and Doctoral Programs in the following areas:
Most programs still accepting applications.
Biological Sciences
Chemical Engineering
Chemistry
Civil Engineering
Clinical Lab Sciences
Community Social Psychology
Computer Engineering
Computer Science
Criminal Justice
Education
Electrical Engineering
Energy Engineering
Environmental Studies
Health Services Administration
Manufacturing Management
Mathematics
MBA
Mechanical Engineering
Music
Nursing
Physical Therapy
Physics
Plastics
Plastics Engineering
Polymer Science
Radiological Sciences/Protection
Work Environment

Graduate certificate Programs:
Biotechnology & Bioprocessing
Clinical Pathology (Pending)
Commercialization of Science & Technology
Computer Science Education
Computer Science Fundamentals
Domestic Violence Protection
Manufacturing Engineering
Medical Physics
Photonics & Opto-Electronic Devices
Radioactive Waste Management
Software Project Management & Entrepreneurship
Sound Recording Technology
Telecommunications

PLEASE SEND ME:
☐ Catalog
☐ Application
☐ More information on _____ program

Name: _____
Address: _____ Street
City State Zip
Telephone: _____
Undergraduate institution: _____

Quality programs at affordable prices

Please mail or Fax (508)934-3022

TRAVEL SMART!
FROM NEW YORK

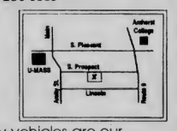
	One Way	Roundtrip
LONDON	$122	$244
PARIS	$199	$398
AMSTERDAM	$201	$402
SAN JOSE COSTA RICA	$238	$476
TOKYO		$774

Scheduled flights. Fares to worldwide destinations. Eurailpasses Available. Weekend surcharges may apply. Customs-Immigration taxes apply. Fares subject to change without notice. Int'l student I.D. cards may be required.

PRISM TRAVEL
342 Madison Ave. NY, NY 10173
212-986-8420*
800-272-9676
IN NYC

Emergency Medical Training
by Human Services Training Consultants, Inc.
Part Time Evening Classes Start June 12, 1995
Call UMass Continuing Education 545-0474

STEINBECK
COLLISION REPAIR & AUTOBODY
53 S. Prospect, Amherst Center
256-8157 • 256-1385



- Imports & other unibody vehicles are our specialty
- State of the art equipment for precision frame and unibody straightening (+or- 1/2 mm)
- Over 90 years staff experience
- Accepted by all insurance companies for collision repair or glass replacement
- Advanced European technology painting and refinishing systems.
- We provide substitute transportation
- Users of Sikkens paint products

Remember it's your car and your choice of repair facilities

Shop Registration # RS1212

Thirty years of study abroad experience has taught us the meaning of service.

Service means giving you all the information and providing all the extras you need to make your study abroad experience as successful and hassle-free as possible. We offer a range of services that are both convenient and essential, including pre-departure advising, orientation and fully accredited transcripts at your program's close. At Beaver College, we believe that service is the hallmark of a quality organization. Ask your study abroad advisor about Beaver College programs.

Study Abroad with Beaver College
1.800.755.5607

GRE CRASH COURSE
"You don't want to walk into the GRE without taking this class!"
- Glenn G., UMass
STARTS THIS WEEKEND
Six Hours. Two Days. Just $75.
BEAT THE GRE!
Call Garrett Deane at 253-9924 for info and registration.

UFOs

GOP seeks vote on term limits

By David Espo
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Anticipating defeat on a key element in their "Contract With America," House Republicans hope to reap credit for holding a vote on term limits while blaming Democrats for the measure's likely demise.

"If we get half the Democrats, we will pass the term limits constitutional amendment," House Speaker Newt Gingrich declared Tuesday as debate opened. He said that more than 85 percent of GOP lawmakers would vote for the measure and "it ought to be possible to get half the Democrats to side with the country that elects them."

Gingrich's partisan jabbing aside, the term limits issue has had a rocky path, toward this week's expected vote, particularly for an issue that commands support in the 70 percent range in public opinion polls.

Some senior Republicans oppose the limits. The critics include Rep. Henry Hyde of Illinois, chairman of the Judiciary Committee who calls them a "dumb idea" that would rob Congress of needed expertise, and Texas Rep. Tom DeLay, the party's whip, who says they would enhance the power of unelected bureaucrats.

Efforts to build public support for a specific version have been hampered by squabbling among outside interest groups, and GOP energy has been diverted into hard-fought struggles over welfare, taxes and other legislative issues. In addition, Gingrich noted earlier this month that constitutional amendments often take years to amass the support needed.

It takes a two-thirds vote — 290 if all 435 lawmakers vote — to send the measure to the Senate. Republicans hold 230 seats in the House, Democrats 204, and there is one independent.

Republican leadership aides, speaking on condition of anonymity, predicted roughly 190-200 GOP lawmakers and about 40 or 50 Democrats would vote for term limits, leaving the measure well shy of passage. "I'm against any abridgement of the right of voters to choose," said one Democratic opponent, Pat Williams of Montana.

Even before the vote, supporters were discussing their next step. Some hope Gingrich will commit to holding another vote before the 1996 elections. There was a scattering of support for capping lawmakers' pensions after 12 years' service; others mentioned the possibility of legislation — as opposed to an amendment — that would place limits on lawmakers' tenure.

The speaker is expected to wrap up debate on Wednesday with a speech in favor of term limits. Republicans sought from the opening moments of debate to reap political gain from bringing the issue to the floor.

The previous House speaker, Democrat Thomas Foley, "refused to allow term limits to come to the floor for a debate and vote," noted Rep. Porter Goss, R-Fla.. Foley was defeated last fall in a race that turned, in part, on a lawsuit he had filed challenging a statewide ballot initiative to impose term limits in Washington state.

Ohio Rep. John Boehner, head of the Republican caucus, told reporters on Tuesday, "We've got a number of term limits groups out there that are fighting with each other over what kind of term limits to have."

U.S. Term Limits, which supports a three-term limit for House members, caused a furor earlier this year when it aired advertisements attacking Republicans who favor a six-term limit.

Students discuss education with Clinton

By Cheryl Lyons
Collegian Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D.C. — President William Clinton addressed 100 student journalists Thursday afternoon in the East Room of the White House about the problems that are being caused by educational disadvantages.

The students who attended the speech partook in last weeks College Press Day at the White House, where college newspapers were invited to attend panel discussions and a briefing with the president.

According to Clinton, the U.S. governments should invest in college students future.

He criticized the Republicans in Congress on their philosophy that education needs to be cut to reduce the deficit.

"They want to eliminate the student loan subsidy for four million college students and charge people interest on their loans while they are in college, even if they come from very modest backgrounds," Clinton said.

"I don't believe we need to trade in our future for what is a pittling amount on the deficit," he said.

The Republicans plan on capping direct loans which offer opportunity for millions of young people to borrow money at lower costs on better repayment terms.

If the plan is brought to the table, "the veto pen is always there," Clinton said.

A student from Western Michigan University voiced concerns over racism on campus and how their university fails to respond to the issue and instead ignores it.

In response Clinton said that the most important things that happen to you happen to you outside the classroom and involve things you do not get graded on.

"This so-called political correctness atmosphere," he said, "needs to encourage people to say what they really think but to do it in an atmosphere that is more tolerant."

Universities should be "laboratories" all across the country where people air their real feelings and open up to one another.

"Otherwise...the universities can just become one more island of isolation for the American people...we don't need that," Clinton said.

In response to a student from Keen College of New Jersey who asked what the administration was doing to make more grants available for merit and academic-based scholarships, Clinton said that funding is more a subject for state government rather than federal.

Clinton instituted a governors scholarship program while he was governor of Arkansas, and he said that he suggests students to direct their concerns to their governors to get similar programs.

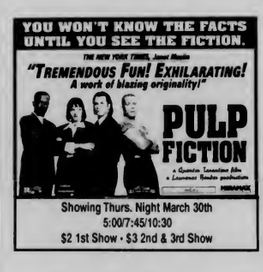
"This is the second year in a row when the economy of all 50 states has," Clinton said, "so they're in a better position to do it than they were a couple of years ago."

According to Clinton, this country should not reduce its commitment to education.

"The next century will trigger opportunity to education more than ever before."

MERRILY WE ROLL ALONG
Originally Directed on Broadway by Harold Prince
Book by George Furth
Music & Lyrics by Stephen Sondheim

March 29-April 1, 1995 • Bowker Auditorium
8 pm • $4 Students • $6 General



YOU WON'T KNOW THE FACTS UNTIL YOU SEE THE FICTION.
THE NEW YORK TIMES, Janet Maslin
"TREMENDOUS FUN! EXHILARATING! A work of blazing originality!"
PULP FICTION
a Quentin Tarantino film a Lawrence Bender production
MIRAMAX

Showing Thurs. Night March 30th
5:00/7:45/10:30
$2 1st Show • $3 2nd & 3rd Show

Are you interested in computer graphics, paste-up, and all aspects of newspaper production?

Then come down to the Collegian Graphics Dept.!

We're looking to hire bright, ambitious students – knowledge of computers is helpful, but isn't necessary.

Come down to Collegian Graphics, 113 Campus Center Basement and ask for Andrew, Marni, or Jim.

Getting High on Getting Thin:
The First of Two Workshops on Eating and Body Issues

My Best Friend, My Worst Enemy
Myths and facts about eating disorders, food and weight.

Date: Thursday, March 30, 1995
Time: 3:30 pm to 5:00 pm
Place: Campus Center, Room 917

Drop-in workshops are sponsored by University Health Services. Free and open to UMass students.

CONFIDENTIALITY ASSURED

For more info, call 549-2671 ext. 233 or 545-2337

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN

Has been awarded
2nd Place for Region 1
in the 1995 Mark of Excellence Awards
by the
Society of Professional Journalists

Region 1 covers all of New England, New York, New Jersey and Eastern and Central Pennsylvania

Congratulations to the entire Collegian Staff who made this achievement possible.

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Darlenne J. Hosley Editor-in-Chief Kelly Spang Managing Editor
Michael McRae Business Manager Andrew D. Davidson Production Manager Lisa Tannenbaum Advertising Manager
James P. Gurley Advertising Production Manager Lisa Greenfield Senior Diversity Editor

Matt Audette Arts & Living Editor Paul Bilodeau Photography Editor
Chris Taylor Conner Black Affairs Editor Andrew Bryce, Matt Vautour Sports Editors
Matt Wurtzel Business Editor Jeff Wilson Staff Artist
Juan Jose Chacon Quiros Developing Nations Editor Lisa Greenfield, Colleen Shanahan Women's Issues Editors
Tracy Monahan Editorial/Opinion Editor Marni E. Heffner Editorial Production Manager
Wendy Darling Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor John Khachadoorian Finance Manager
Jacob W. Michaels Jewish Affairs Editor Eric Abenaim Distribution Manager
Herman Rosenberg Multicultural Affairs Editor Maureen Majerowski Senior Bookkeeper
Jessica Taverna News Editor Marty Pappas Classified Advertising

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1956. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

The "Peach Pit" at Rutgers

Tim White

Before leaving for spring break, I was feeling a little disenchanted with the University. I have been going here for three years and things were wearing on me — I just wasn't getting the same charge in the morning.

Everything was going wrong. It seemed like President Hooker wasn't supporting us, the Boston Globe was bashing us and the campus falling apart, literally. The only thing I really enjoyed was the basketball team. But even with that, I was getting upset with the fans — some kid behind me actually said, "it would be nice if I could actually sit and watch this game for once." For those of you who remember the basketball team when they weren't a sure thing for the NCAAs, you'll understand why that really rubbed me the wrong way.

I just couldn't seem to say I was proud to go to UMass anymore.

So I needed my spring break. Because I'm a poor college student like most of us, the proverbial Florida was out of reach. So I decided to visit my friend down at Rutgers University in New Brunswick N.J. We have been friends since elementary school and we were one of the rare cases that didn't lose touch over the years.

I finally got to put a picture to all the stories he had been telling me over the past few years — I met his friends, I saw his apartment and I became familiar with the campus. This place was a complete opposite from UMass. Instead of one big campus, there were five colleges that made up one University (with the UMass campus being much smaller). There would be one little exception — UMass doesn't have this big dirty city in the middle of it.

I spent four days there and I quickly began to appreciate my home campus. Their version of the PVTA was terrible, it didn't supply jobs to the students like ours does, instead it was driven by "professional bus drivers." The off-campus housing was just plain gross. The prices were outrageous and they were these dingy run down apartments that could only be cleaned if you burnt them to the ground.

The computer system was pretty neat.

On-campus housing wasn't that great either — there was no such thing as seniority down there. You could easily lose your room to a freshman, even if you are a senior, because they work on the lottery system. Plus, you have to register for a party. That may sound harmless, but you have to take these seminars on how to throw a proper party, then apply for it weeks ahead of time. At the party, you have to pay someone authorized to check I.D.'s and you must spend the same amount of money on non–alcoholic drinks as you do on alcoholic drinks. And trust me, they check.

They have a pretty cool football stadium.

The bars were awful. My friend and I, newly 21, decided to go out one night to a place we were told by everyone as the hang-out — the virtual Peach Pit of Rutgers. I don't know about peach, but pit is pretty accurate. The bartenders were rude and served pitchers 50 percent foam and 50 percent warm beer.

Plus, there were the students. Maybe it was just me, but they all seemed to have bad attitudes. There was no real sense of campus unity — Rutgers was just another step on the ladder to the next school for them. My friend called it a suitcase school where the majority of the students go home on the weekends. I don't know about you, but I live for the weekends up here in the Happy Valley.

I found myself bragging about UMass while I was down there. Telling one guy about the basketball team (like I really had to) and another about the clean town (compared to Rutgers), about the really nice people I met up there, about the cool marching band we have at our half–time shows, about the coffee at the Bluewall, about the Mullins Center and how Phish and J.T. played there, about the different array of personalities you can find up there, about this cool civil war course I'm taking; about the extended comics page in our newspaper, about the bars you can find there and in Northampton, about the good food at the D.C. ... oh, no wait, about how the package stores are cheaper here because they don't have to put Plexiglas in front of the counter, about Haigis Hoopla, about "the hill" during springtime.

It was then, in the middle of some really bad party, drinking MGD and trying to catch the UMass basketball scores on the sports ticker because the New York stations didn't carry the game, I realized I missed the Zoo. I turned to my girlfriend, who made the trip with me, and said, "I want to go home." She said she did too.

The next day we packed up, and drove back to the Happy Valley.

Tim White is Collegian staff member.

Let's call them Reaganvilles

Richard Gilluly

Even after years of downsizing and layoffs by U.S. corporations, it's still hard for me to convey to my now aging yuppie acquaintances what Hoovervilles were like and why they existed.

So many yuppies believe they deserve their prosperity (those who still have it) and that it will just go on and on — unless, of course, the government taxes them into poverty to pay for programs for the poor, a recurring yuppie nightmare despite the fact that the hope of raising the taxes of the affluent to a fair level seems increasingly small these days.

My parents were yuppies of a sort in the late 1920s, and they ended up in a Hooverville, or at least close to it, in the 1930s.

Hoovervilles, of course, were shanty towns hastily erected by displaced poor people all over America during the Great Depression. They were named for President Herbert Hoover, who often was blamed for the Depression.

My mother and father were from prosperous middle American families. My paternal grandfather, a weekly newspaper publisher, was a delegate to at least one Republican National Convention in the '20s, and my maternal grandfather was a successful inventor (one of whose inventions, a farm tractor, was displayed for years in the Smithsonian Institution). My parents both had university degrees, and my mother was a feminist.

As much as they suffered from the Depression, they were luckier than many; when my father was laid off from his relatively well–paid, upwardly–mobile news job on a daily newspaper in 1932, my grandfather was able to find him a job as a reporter on a small weekly, though at less than half the pay he got on the daily.

The weekly was in Glasgow, Mont., and it needed a reporter because a site 18 miles away on a remote reach of the Missouri River had been selected by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers for what was to be called Fort Peck Dam.

When President Franklin D. Roosevelt took office in 1933 nationwide unemployment rates were in the neighborhood of 25 percent, and FDR quickly approved construction of the dam, which became the first of a huge series of public works projects he sponsored. It was the largest dam ever built anywhere in the world up to that time.

Tens of thousands of people flooded into tiny Glasgow (population 3,000 before the dam came) from all over the United States in the '30s hoping to get jobs. Some were former yuppies like my parents.

Dentists, engineers and professors worked as laborers on the dam, my parents told me later. Even doctors and lawyers weren't the patricians they are today; many lived scarcely better than we did.

And a half dozen Hoovervilles sprang up almost overnight around the dam site. The largest, Wheeler, was said to have 100 bars and 50 brothels; in 1936, the first issue of Life magazine, in a cover story photographed by Margaret Bourke–White, called Fort Peck "FDR's New Wild West."

We lived in half of a small, run-down frame duplex on an unpaved street in Glasgow. Though we had the relatively unusual amenity of indoor plumbing, we lacked central heat, which was no small matter in Montana's sometimes 40–below–zero winters.

I started elementary school in 1937, and my memories of my early school days are not pleasant. It must have been painful for my parents (as it is today for so many inner–city parents) to see their children attending third–rate schools and growing up amidst so much fear, hostility and despair.

It seems possible that more than a few of today's yuppies could end up in near–Hoovervilles again just as my parents did in the '30s. Vast transfers of wealth away from ordinary people to the rich is a major cause of depressions. That happened in the '20s and again in the '80s and '90s.

My choice for an up–to–date name for the latter–day shanty towns would be Reaganvilles — for the primary author of our current economic nightmare of underpaid, benefit–less jobs.

That nightmare continues unabated for many tens of millions of Americans, and yuppies already have begun to discover they are not immune.

Richard Gilluly is a Collegian columnist.

Doonesbury By Garry Trudeau

HONEY! THERE'S SOME KID DOWNSTAIRS!
YES, SIR. HIS NAME'S STEWART. HE'S OUR FIRST REFERRAL.
REFERRAL? FOR WHAT? I HATE KIDS!
UM... YOU'VE STARTED AN ORPHANAGE, SIR. DON'T YOU REMEMBER?
IT'S THAT ASIAN SENSE OF HUMOR! I'LL NEVER GET USED TO IT!
IT'S NO JOKE, SIR. IT'S A 24-BED UNIT.

Opinion/Editorial

THE DROUGHT IS OVER, THE FIRES ARE OUT, THE GROUND ISN'T SHAKING, THE MUDSLIDES ARE STABILIZING AND THE RAIN SEEMS TO BE LETTING UP.
NOW?
NO, THE O.J. TRIAL IS STILL GOING ON.

Change is in the air

Peter Orvetti

When the Declaration of Independence was signed in 1776, a new nation was founded. However, the character of that nation was not determined until 13 years later, when the Constitutional Convention elected to make the United States a republic, rather than a monarchy.

James Madison still balked. Madison argued that a republic would thrive only if one radical step were taken. The granting of protection to any and all forms of expression. The concurring Congress, despite the piety of its membership, also added the protection that American government would be utterly secular, quarantined from official religious preference.

The First Amendment begins: "Congress shall make no law representing an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech."

The current Congress will pass a 28th Amendment to accompany the First. The 28th will declare political protests involving the desecration of the American flag to be illegal. This item came up before, but was defeated. Now, it has enough support in Congress, and from enough state legislatures to become law.

A 29th Amendment will soon follow. Gingrich's plans to instate Christian prayer in public schools will be struck down even by the conservative Rehnquist Court. Newt's gang will then alter the Constitution to get around it.

The Supreme Court is charged with upholding the Constitution, which includes any amendments. If these two resolutions are added to that document, then the Supreme Court will have no choice but to consider them as a revision of the First Amendment. The Supreme Court would be unable to prevent flag burners from going to prison, and to keep Jesus Christ out of tax–financed schools.

A proposal, then, for an amendment to be enacted immediately: "No amendment to this Constitutions shall be made with the purpose of altering the intent of the First Amendment."

This proposed amendment is vague, and purposefully so. This act would force any change to the Constitution which would impact free expression, or separation of church and state, to first be approved by the Supreme Court. And Madison's ideal would be safe and where it belongs, in the courts, rather than up for slaughter at the hands of short– sighted attention seekers in Congress.

These attention seekers are also threatening to put an end to federal funding for the Corporation for Public Broadcasting. The Congressional leadership believes that the Public Broadcasting Service and National Public Radio are leftist tools, despite independent journalistic studies that have shown PBS and NPR to be centrist and balanced.

Ironically, the stations most at risk are those in conservative regions. In the liberal Northeast, most funding comes from donations. The largest amount of federal support goes to stations in the Midwest.

Shutting down PBS and NPR is a tougher fight for Newt than he'd expected. Even Republican parents have fond feelings for Big Bird, and Gingrich's efforts play poorly on the evening news. But, if the dialogue continues as it has thus far, public broadcasting will cease before the next election.

Rev. Donald Woldmon and other leaders of the Christan Right have galvanized their followers, who are flooding the CPB's 1–800–272–2190 comment line with messages demanding PBS's obliteration. Only a few supporters have called in.

So PBS and NPR will be gone. Perhaps it is not such a bad thing. After all, it did cost us each $1.10 per year. That money could be going toward building bombs.

Peter Orvetti is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor

Helping to fight the hunger problem

To the editor:

On Saturday, April 8, MASSPIRG will be part of the 11th Annual Hunger Cleanup. The Hunger Cleanup is an event that the community does to raise money for people who are in are in need. Every 40 seconds someone dies of hunger. That is something that is in dire need of change. We live in one of the richest countries in the world, yet there are about a million school–aged children in the United States that don't have homes. That is a terrible injustice.

The Hunger Cleanup is a national event that raises money by asking area businesses to sponsor volunteers for their efforts on a community work project. According to the National Student Campaign Against Hunger and Homelessness, the Hunger Cleanup, which was started in 1985 by students, has to this day raised more than one million dollars.

Of the money raised, 50 percent goes to a local hunger and homelessness shelter of your choice. Another 35 percent goes to the National Student Campaign Against Hunger and Homelessness. The student campaign is an organization that trains students to become more involved in publications, and community work. The remaining 15 percent goes to the International Development Exchange sponsors community based developed programs which help against hunger and homelessness.

MASSPIRG is looking for a variety of people and groups to help with the planning and the actual event. MASSPIRG needs all the help it can get and is looking to work with all five colleges on this project. You can help by volunteering and helping out. The more people that volunteer, the more money that is raised for the hungry and the homeless. These things won't disappear unless we as a community work together. If you are interested in more than volunteering or just want more information, call Missy at MASSPIRG.

Joseph Diaz
Northeast

Column bashes Boston teams

To the editor:

I am writing to you on behalf of your column in the Daily Collegian, on March 8. I read the columns in the sports section with regularity and none has struck me as so appalling as Jorma Kansanen's did.

I grew up about an hour away from Boston and inherited the best sports traditions in the country. Granted, the Boston teams aren't where they once were but let's give them the credit they deserve. As for bashing Coach Chris Ford, lets be realistic, why don't you try taking the talent of this team to the position as of right now to make the playoffs and they aren't looking too bad.

Don Nelson? No! Why would you want a coach who can't control his team? He has had some of the best talent over the past few years and they still manage to go nowhere. Granted they have suffered some injuries but they still have a talented bunch.

One last thing, I am one of the biggest Tar Heel fans ever, but no matter how you look at it Mr. Montross was the wrong choice. Work ethic, evidently Eddie Jones has a good one otherwise he wouldn't be where he is today and be the player he is. I have trouble believing that Montross was the better pick, what would you rather have on your team, potential rookie of the year or another college star turned into a decent player.

Tyler Piasclk
Southwest

Editorial column insults many

To the editor:

After reading Dave Copeland's prejudicial column, I found it hauntingly reminiscent of the racist propaganda written by uneducated groups such as the KKK, and several question arose. First, being as Mr. Copeland is apparently a visitor to this area would he write a similar articles if he were a visitor in another area or even in another country?

Now, one might argue that being in a different town or state is not the same as being in a different country. However, are not the different towns and states as different from one another, in their individual histories, traditions and politics, as are different countries?

It is these differences that our great nation was built upon and these same differences that hostility between different groups, cultures and races originated from. Which brings me to another question. Has Mr. Copeland ever attempted to take upon himself the duties, schedules or responsibilities of the people that he so pompously and ignorantly judges? It's easy to sit on the sidelines of life and point fingers at other people's flaws, but to challenge the judgement behind that finger by filling the shoes of the person you're pointing at for more than one day or one week takes honest character. Unfortunately, Mr. Copeland does not seem to have that character.

In a final analysis it becomes increasingly evident that people, such as Mr. Copeland insult and attempt to degrade those people, things or ideas that they are jealous of, fear or do not understand due to their own inadequacies or lack of education. It is these people we should fear for their closed mindedness, rather than "rednecks," "hicks" or "townies" such as Fred for their differences.

Chris Dion
Williamsburg

Arts & Living

Secrets illuminate Claiborne, extinguish Exotica

By Jon Lupo
Collegian Staff

DOLORES CLAIBORNE
Directed by Taylor Hackford with Kathy Bates, Jennifer Jason Leigh
Playing at Mountain Farms Four

EXOTICA
Directed by Atom Egoyan
with Bruce Greenwood, Mia Kirshner
Playing at Showcase Cinemas

The thing about movies that hinge on secrets is that these riddles eventually have to be revealed. Films trade on this withholding of information, so that you have to reserve judgement on the movie itself. When the film pulls off this balancing act, it's a fascinating feat — look at how a film like The Crying Game still manages to beguile even after its central gimmick is revealed. When it doesn't work, however, it can undo even the best of efforts.

Dolores Claiborne and Exotica spin on secrets, and the ensuing revelations and are distinctly different as the movies themselves: one's a whodunit adapted from a Stephen King novel and the other is the latest from acclaimed Canadian director Atom Egoyan (The Adjuster). While their surface themes are similar — how the secrets of the past are tied with the illusions of the present, their paths, as well as their successes couldn't be more incongruous.

Director Taylor Hackford (An Officer and a Gentleman) has transformed King's work from an extended monologue into a mother–daughter mystery of the "did she or didn't she?" variety. A wealthy invalid falls down the stairs of her remote Maine island home and her long–time, live–in maid, Dolores (Kathy Bates), is suspected. Her estranged daughter Selena (Jennifer Jason Leigh) reluctantly returns home to help.

Following her is a Maine state investigator (Christopher Plummer) who's anxious to convict Dolores, mainly because he could never prove Dolores was involved in the mysterious death of her husband (David Straithorn) many years ago. The only thing Selena remembers of her parents' abusive relationship is of Dolores attacking her husband.

Though this is unmistakably King territory, it's low on gore — the film is closer to Mildred Pierce than Misery — with Hackford mining both the Hitchcockian and melodramatic tradition with surprisingly effective results. By telling the story in a series of interlocking flashbacks, Hackford, in slow and deliberate manner, unfolds the film's plot. While in many movies this type of delivery is usually a sign that there's preciously little to reveal, Dolores Claiborne actually gets more interesting as the film progresses. And while the ending is understated, it's nevertheless satisfying — we're left not fully knowing Dolores, but respecting her and the fate which brought her there.

Kathy Bates assuredly usurps her Oscar–winning role in Misery with a performance full of earned but transitory confidence. Through bitter wit and uneasy bravado, Bates is a force to be reckoned with, delivering shades of a character as deeply hidden but as readily apparent as the deep, craggy grooves of her weathered, wrinkled face. Jennifer Jason Leigh rises to Bates' challenge, matching wits and neuroses with her mother. Leigh and Bates work well to reveal that at the heart of this emotional tug of war is a relationship forged with ostensible care but racked by memories too painful to deal with.

By the end of Dolores Claiborne, there's an almost restless feeling of loose ends. But the film has earned that right — if coated with a sunshine–y clinch it wouldn't work and instead it successfully serves to foster the film's haunting undercurrent. The mystery may be solved, but their problems aren't.

There are plenty of undercurrents in Atom Egoyan's Exotica — so many in fact, the characters nearly drown in the film's mingling rhythms. Egoyan's films have always been seductive puzzlers, and their respective strengths have always come more from fostering intellectual debates than from satisfying plotlines.

Here, though, Egoyan has created a filmic maze without a center; while the set–up is remarkably intriguing, unlike Dolores Claiborne, the more we know about the secrets of Exotica, the less engaging it becomes. Egoyan booby–traps his own film by diluting the near–incestuous plot with a denouement that stretches the bounds not only of the film's reality, but also its thematic concerns — leaving numerous plot holes but more importantly an illuminating its already heady characters.

Exotica centers around a strip club of the same name, a place where fantasies are born and dreams are shattered. It's not hard to link the ambience of the club with Egoyan's imagination; both are provocative and tantalizing, but his approach to the film's characters is ironically like a ruse the club employs: look but don't touch.

There's the club's pregnant owner, as well as a DJ (Elias Koteas) and his current/former young lover (Mia Kirshner) — a stripper whose special dance involves dressing up like a schoolgirl. Her main customer is an accountant played by Bruce Greenwood. There's a disquieting connection between him and Kirshner, and this mysteriously enrages Koteas. Meanwhile, there's a gay pet shop owner/exotic egg smuggler (Don McKellar) who's being investigated by Greenwood. The pair strike a bargain that sends McKellar into Exotica to gain information from Kirshner.

As we learn more about these characters and the links between them, the film's alluring charm wears thin. Though each character is quietly fascinating in their own right, their most compelling stories seem to be being told off screen. While it's clear the desire felt for Kirshner by Greenwood and Koteas are of entirely different sorts — possession, protection, jealousy, love, lust or all of the above — Egoyan doesn't seem too sure what current he's dealing with in any given scene. Nor does he seem to feel especially confident in McKellar or Kirshner as characters of their own; both are fascinating creations, and they set off a spark and chemistry that the film quickly and needlessly extinguishes.

At this point in Egoyan's career, I suppose he's earned the right to have his film's flaws be misinterpreted by his fans as deliberate investigations. No such luck here. Exotica's lame ending may be calculated, but it's still a misfire, and it's his characters and the audience who suffer most (either way, I'd hate to think Egoyan's become just an intellectual button–pusher). It's a shame because — smart performances aside — Exotica's charms are only skin deep.

Dolores Claiborne: B+ Exotica: C+

COURTESY COLUMBIA PICTURES

Jennifer Jason Leigh, seen here in 1992's Single White Female, stars in the new film Dolores Claiborne.

'Gump' happened on Oscar evening

By John Horn
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Forrest Gump has done what no other recent blockbuster has done: come out on top at the Oscars. With six Academy Awards on Monday night, including best picture, Forrest Gump became the highest–grossing release to win the top award. Not even E.T. the Extra–Terrestrial or Star Wars won the coveted best picture prize.

The film also won for editing and visual effects, and star Tom Hanks became the first performer since Spencer Tracy to win consecutive Oscars for best actor.

"I can never get through one of these moments without my lower lip quivering," Hanks, who won last year as a lawyer with AIDS in Philadelphia, said after another emotional acceptance speech.

The night was not a total success for Gump. With a leading 13 nominations, it lost in seven categories. Pulp Fiction, Bullets Over Broadway and The Shawshank Redemption each received seven nominations, but won just two Oscars among them.

Jessica Lange won the best actress prize for Blue Sky, whose release was delayed three years by a studio bankruptcy. "This is such a wonderful honor, especially for a little film that seemed to have no future," said Lange, who won a best supporting Oscar for the 1982 comedy Tootsie.

In another salute to patience, veteran actor Martin Landau took home his first Oscar, for best supporting actor in Ed Wood.

"What a night, what a life, what a moment, what everything!" Landau said.

Dianne Wiest's Oscar for best supporting actress (Bullets Over Broadway) was her second in that category and her second for a Woody Allen film. She also won for 1986's Hannah and Her Sisters.

"This is as surprising and marvelous as it was the first time," Wiest exclaimed as she began reading her acceptance speech. "Although this time I need glasses."

Burnt by the Sun, directed by Russia's Nikita Mikhalkov, was heralded as best foreign language film of 1994. Pulp Fiction won for best original screenplay.

Meanwhile, Disney animated films continued to clean up in the music categories. The Lion King, the year's second–highest grossing feature, won twice, for best original score, by Hans Zimmer, and for original song, "Can You Feel the Love Tonight," by Elton John and Tim Rice.

The ratings were slightly above the overnight ratings for the previous two Oscar telecasts. In 1994, the overnight numbers were a 35.9 rating and a 53 percent share; in 1993, they were a 35.5 rating and a 54 share.

Photographers needed.
No prior experience necessary; must have your own camera.
Come down to the Collegian office in the Campus Center Basement and talk with Paul Bilodeau.

OOPS!
• Free Estimates
• 5 Year Nationwide Warranty
• Direct Insurance Billing
• Auto Glass Replacement
• Car & Truck Rental
CARSTAR, Collision Repair Centers
Where America goes for Quality Collision Repairs
North Amherst CARSTAR, 78 Old Sunderland Road, North Amherst, MA, 549-2880
Northampton CARSTAR, 1414 Damon Road, Northampton, MA, 586-4444

ATTENTION!!
All RSOs, GSOs and Agencies.
The Campus Center/Student Union Commission has opened the Space Allocation Process. Application/Renewal Forms are available in room 817 in the Campus Center.
The deadline for all applications is April 12, 1995.
Please return all applications to room 817 in the Campus Center. Any questions, please call at 545-0198.

The Campus Activities Office presents

UFOs-
THE HIDDEN HISTORY
A Slide-tape program and lecture
by Robert Hastings
FINE ARTS CENTER
WEDNESDAY, MARCH 29, 1995
8:00PM
FREE to UMass Undergraduates with I.D.
$2.00 General Public

Summer '95
at
UMass Boston
Sea why we're one of the most popular programs in New England!
You'll benefit from
• our distinguished faculty
• morning, midday, afternoon, and evening classes
• over 400 course sections
• our convenient Boston Harbor location
• sessions starting May 30, July 5, and July 17
• mail, phone, fax, or walk-in registration
• and costs you can afford.
Call 617 287-7904
or send or fax this coupon to UMass Boston Summer Sessions
100 Morrissey Blvd.
Boston, MA 02125-3393
Fax 617 287-7922
Name
Street address
City, state, zip
UMass Boston

Feeling your community is left out by the University?
Come down and say so!
Write for the Multicultural Affairs desk. Contact Hernán at 545-1851.
Express yourself.

HOW TO HANG ON TO YOUR DOUGH.
(WITHOUT CRAMPING YOUR STYLE)
Separate "needs" from "wants." Hint: A bed is a need. A Mr. Microphone is a want.
Split the bill but only pay your share. Why put in for someone else's swordfish if all you got was soup?
Set aside money for emergencies. Unless you'd rather call your parents for it instead.
Keep your eye on your wallet. Have a Citibank Classic card in case you lose it. The Lost Wallet® Service can get you emergency cash,* a new card, usually within 24 hours, and help replacing vital documents.
*Based on available credit line
WE'RE LOOKING OUT FOR YOU.

Fujimori the favorite in Peru election

By Lynn F. Monahan
Associated Press

COMAS, Peru — Fresh cement drips over the wooden frame for the roof on the tiny house Adrian Rojas is building on the outskirts of Lima.

After 20 years in a rented apartment, Rojas is moving his wife and four children into their own home, thanks to a government low-interest loan program. With elections just around the corner, Rojas makes it clear who he thinks is responsible for his good fortune: President Alberto Fujimori.

"If you want the country to go forward, you have to back the president," Rojas said. "At least this president is doing public works."

That is exactly the sentiment Fujimori is banking on in his bid to defeat 13 other candidates and win a second five-year term in the presidential palace.

Unlike his opponents, Fujimori makes few campaign appearances. But he rarely misses a chance to dedicate a new school, water project or highway.

"I don't make promises. I set objectives and I meet them," he says, emphasizing his image as a take-charge leader who gets things done.

With polls giving him more than twice the support of his nearest rival, Fujimori seems almost certain to win the April 9 election. But his support has waned since early February, when Peruvians rallied around him at the start of a months-long border war with Ecuador.

The conflict, which produced no tangible results, dragged on much longer than many Peruvians liked. At least 50 Peruvians were killed, compared to 28 Ecuadoreans.

As a result, opposition candidates say Fujimori may not get a first-round victory. If no one receives more than 50 percent of the vote, the two top candidates square off in a second round a month later.

Long distance battle may lower charges

By Jeannine Aversa
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Locked in battle to take customers from each other, rivals AT&T and MCI are bedmates in another fight — taking on local telephone companies. Long-distance charges could go down as a result.

AT&T and MCI, along with several hundred other long-distance companies, want the Federal Communications Commission on Thursday to lower fees they pay local phone companies. The decision will affect 92 percent of all telephone customers, said the FCC's top telephone regulator Kathleen Wallman.

The local companies share of long-distance charges — $20 billion to $22 billion a year by FCC estimate — are passed on to long-distance customers.

"If these prices go down, your long-distance telephone calls go down," said FCC Chairman Reed Hundt.

For every $1 of long-distance revenue, 45 cents goes to local phone companies — about half of one's long-distance bill — to maintain the switches and the network used to route long-distance calls.

"This is the one of the largest, if not the largest, dollar issues before the FCC," said Wallman, chief of the agency's Common Carrier Bureau. "In terms of bottom line for consumers, it's got to be one of the most important because of the pass-through effect."

The local companies, which include all seven regional Bell companies, wanted to charge long-distance companies more than they now do. But at a minimum they want the FCC to preserve the current fees, known as access charges.

The FCC's action is likely to result in lowering the charges, said attorneys familiar with the proceedings who asked not to be identified.

Hundt said the FCC is trying to arrive at a fair access charge. "Fair prices would be lower than they are today — hundreds of millions of dollars," he said.

BellSouth says that since 1991 access charges have dropped a total of $5 billion.

But local phone companies insist long-distance companies are not sharing their savings with customers.

"That's false," said Jim Lewis, MCI's senior vice president of regulatory affairs.

Wallman said long-distance companies have been passing reductions in access charges to their customers.

■ NBA

continued from page 8

"drugs–bad, clean–good." But to me, the fact that Lewis possibly could have been a casual user of cocaine does not force me to condemn him to eternal damnation.

I mean, I saw Larry Bird, Kevin McHale and Bill Walton backstage at a Grateful Dead show once in Worcester. What do you think they were doing, eating granola? Do you think the fact that they took "a little shake down Shakedown Street" with Jerry and the boys will keep them out of the Hall of Fame?

No...and this over–generalized conception of what Reggie Lewis was or was not should not hinder the respect he deserves.

Oh, by the way, for whoever got the information to the police on who stole the banner of the retired numbers of Larry Legend, Kevin, D.J. and Reggie, somebody should buy them a pint of Guinness.

• The ascension of god–send Michael Jordan over the heathen masses in the NBA has continued pretty much unhindered. The last four games of his return were marred slightly by a dip in his field goal percentage (down .122 from his career average), which leads to lower points per game (24.8 ppg this season from a stellar 32.3 ppg career ave). But other than that, he has been getting the feel for the game he owns.

In the 90's, that is, the 80's were the Larry– Magic epoch. (Once again, sorry, Candice).

Going by the numbers game, even though the team went 2–2 since his return, there is not much fluctuation between his averages this season (so far) and his career stats.

When it pertains to minutes per game (39.0–season to 38.7–career), free throw percentage (.828 to .846), rebounds (4.3 to 6.3), assists (4.8 to 5.9) and steals (2.8 to 2.7), the viewpoint is clear — he's back.

The game winning shot at the buzzer against the Atlanta Hawks last Saturday, was not too bad, either. It just seemed so natural, maybe he has been the one eating the granola.

Jorma Kansanen is a Collegian columnist.

■ lacrosse

continued from page 8

trate on defense. This year's squad gives strength and depth to the backfield, with returning sophomores Erica Bryan, Kristin Hocker and Michele Warrington.

"My main concern is our defensive game," McClellan said. "We tightened up. There were too many shots on Kate Brew, and we need to do some extra work on that in the next few weeks."

The Minutewomen will face Yale University today at Totman Field at 3:30 pm. McClellan will look to her team's offensive skill as key against Yale's aggressive defense.

"We are immediately going to need to step up defensively because Yale is a bit stronger than Brown," McClellan said.

"[Yale] has more defensive ability than us, so we are going to need to play smart offensively. With their style of defense, we will try to force the transition game instead of a set up offense."

■ softball

continued from page 8

on her hitting this season after batting only .150 last season. She has improved, batting .246 in the second spot, but has been hampered by numerous nagging injuries.

"Stephanie makes the diving catch and comes up with the one over the head that you think is gone and then she comes up with it," Sortino said.

Senior co–captain Heather Dorsey is back after missing most of last year with a broken hand and will be in right field. Dorsey is only batting .075 but, according to So

There will be an in–depth look at the Minutewomen battery in tomorrow's Collegian.

■ women's gym

continued from page 8

made a big impression," coach David Kuzara. "They got a whole new respect for a team that is really good, and that is what the team wants to be.

"Gymnastics–wise, everybody was just trying too hard. From the first event, they wanted to show Michigan that UMass was good, too. They tried so hard that they made mistakes because of it."

On the campus of Temple University, the beginning of the postseason held a chance for the Minutewomen to follow up their upset of West Virginia last Feb. 26.

But it was not to be as the favorites captured the A–10 Championship, with George Washington just edging out UMass for second, 190.675–189.700. Temple, Rhode Island and Rutgers, respectively, finished up the rest of the team placings.

■ men's gym

continued from page 8

The three graduating seniors, Pete Degenhardt, Jay Santos, and Jason Lee will all be missed for their leadership and talent, but Johnson looks for bigger and better things from his squad next season.

"We are a very young team," Johnson said. "This was a great foundation for a team to become very competitive. Kevin and Russ have brought their routines to another level and I'm looking for that from some of my other guys. They can all step it up and improve, you always can."

The Campus Activities Office presents

UFOs-
THE HIDDEN HISTORY
A Slide-tape program and lecture
by Robert Hastings
FINE ARTS CENTER
WEDNESDAY, MARCH 29, 1995
8:00PM
FREE to UMass Undergraduates with I.D.
$2.00 General Public

tonight...
1/2 PRICE APPETIZERS
9:30-11:00
Weekly Special
Pitchers $4.75
RED DOG
12 oz. Bottles $1.75
Retro Night
No Cover Charge
Smoking Section 10-1
THE PUB
Drawing For T-Shirts
15 east pleasant street
amherst

Women have issues —
we need you to help us address them!
Come down and write for the Women's Issues section of the Collegian.
Contact Lisa or Colleen at 545–3500 or come down to our office in the Campus Center Basement.

Jewish Affairs needs writers!
If you have an interest in writing for and about the UMass Jewish Community,
Contact Jacob W. Michaels
113 Campus Center
545-3500

UMass INTRAMURAL SPORTS
Don't Miss The
STILL HAVE TIME TO ENTER AACTION
• Softball (M,W,C)
• Soccer (C)
• Volleyball Special (C)
PAID OFFICIALS NEEDED FOR SOFTBALL, SOCCER & VOLLEYBALL
CALL 545-2693/545-0022
FOR CLINIC DATES

Classifieds

• 20¢ per word per day for students
• All ads must be paid cash/2 days in advance
• Ads may placed at 113 Campus Center Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Find out how you can win $10,000 worth of scholarships! Meeting tomorrow night @ army ROTC bldg. Call 545-2321 for more info.

Paddle party Newman Center Sun. Apr. 9 12 noon 8pm all pledges invited. Bigs welcome as well- hundreds of pebbles. Sponsored by going Greek. IFC Panhel.

Free basic talk investment and electronic filing available to students and staff Wednesday March 29, 1995, 10:00 4:00, Suffolk room, Student Union and Thursday, March 30, 1995, 10:00 2:00, Bulletin room, Student Union. For more information call 545-0862

COLLEGE PRO PAINTERS

College Pro Painters now accepting applications for painter and foreman positions in eastern Massachusetts. No experience necessary. Call 1-800-346-4649 today!

ENTERTAINMENT

The UMass Theatre Guild presents merrily we roll along. Mar 29- Apr 1 8pm Bowker Auditorium

FOR RENT

1 bedroom available. Southpoint Dr. on bus route $295 per mo. ht & hot water included. Please, I have to move Megs 253-7921

3br apt. upstairs 10 min walk to campus $800/mo incl heat. Call 256-6864 Hurry!

Cape Cod Group summer rentals water front houses Falmouth area 508-477-9000

Great location. 1 bdrm down Amherst Call Jess 253-5515

Two and three bedrooms available for June 1st Call Mill Valley Estates 253-7377

FOR SALE

92 K2 Extremes Tyr 490 bindings w/brag Used 3X, perf cond. 500/bo Rich 665-7998

Kayarator 500/bo Rich 665-7998

Macintosh computer. Complete system including printer only $289. Call Chris at 800 289 5685

Dutchboard mates. 2 1/2 hp Nissan 93 Used twice $700 Dan 5-3034 or 665-5150

286+386 computer system. CPU monitor keyboard $225. Steve 549-5181

Motorola Pagers for sale! 546-3241 Ask for Andy

Piano Shopping? Get information by fax. Call 800 242-8373 for our free piano fax.

HELP WANTED

AA cruise ships hiring! Earn big $$$ and free world travel (Caribbean, Europe, Hawaii, etc.) Summer/permanent, no exper. nec. Guide (919) 929-4398

Alaska summer employment! Earn thousands this summer in canneries, processors, etc. Male/female. Room/board/travel often provided! Guide. Guaranteed success! (919) 929-4398 ext A1063

Alaska summer employment fishing industry. Earn to $3,000-$6,000+/month + benefits. Male/female. No experience necessary. (206) 545-4155 ext A5603

Counselors- top boys sports camp. Maine. Exciting, fun-filled summer! Openings: ALL COMPETITIVE TEAM SPORTS, TENNIS, WSI & ALL WATER SPORTS, PLUS Camping & hiking, Ropes & climbing wall, ice hockey, scuba, archery, Riflery, ARC, martial arts, ect. top sal. submt faxables, tnl allow, call or write: Staff- Rubin 1-800-473-6104, Camp Cobbossee, 10 Silvermine dr., So Salem, NY 10590

Cruise Ships hiring- earn up $2,000+/month World travel. Seasonal & full-time positions. No exp necessary for info call 1-206 634-0468 ext. C60115.

Dancers wanted. No experience necessary. Earn $1000 $1500 per week 532-1472

Delivery Persons and kitchen help wanted, must be able to work 25 hrs a week apply at D P Dough

Elevator Painting guaranteed 40 hours/week in local area during summer need hardworking hungry people no experience needed potential earnings above $30 000 Robert Wolfing 256 6087

Fall 1995 internship with the Student Legal Services Office, get hands on experience in the legal field. Work directly with attorneys and clients. Earn up to 15 undergraduate credits. No experience in the profession necessary- training provided. Deadline is April 14th - contact Legal Services today 545-1995, 922 Campus Center.

Find out how you can win $10 000 worth of scholarships! Meeting tomorrow night @ army ROTC bldg. call 545-2321 for more info.

Free food plus DC rebate for dishwashing and pot cleaning. 549-6919

Part time marketing/sales. Excellent opportunity to gain business experience with a new company engaged in providing assistance to job seekers. Excellent commissions, good training. Will be a great addition to your resume. Local, no car necessary. Call (401) 728-5490 after 2 p.m.

Summer work. Interviewing on campus for office/managerial positions. Must be able to handle busy telephone and general office work $7/hour. Student atmosphere Call (508) 653-1744 Natick area.

JULIE

Congratulations on 5 months! We are all proud of you! Love, Dave, Laura, Paul, Unhee, Todd, David, Tracy, Skippy, Terry, Jason, and Mindy.

LOST

Last March 17th Live Show. Army Jacket Brown sweater reward, no questions asked, sentimental value. Abbie 546-3674

MUSICIANS

J Gallo band equip. for sale Includes bose/ cbaund, fender Rhodes, JBL & EV speakers, bass cabs and much more. Call 256-6609.

PERSONALS

Aimaa! Soon you will see, the reason that we are meant to be a Phi Iam/xi Phi love. ?

Giving Grass in Newman Center 10:430 every Monday letters made on the spot check out t shirts and formal favors

Lesley, Scott, Neal, Thanks for a great spring break!! Love, Jean

Someone to watch over you We took out! for students better than any other credit card. Call 1-800-Citibank to apply. Note, we won't hit on your dates

PHOTO RESTORATION & RETOUCHING

Restore your priceless old family photos to like new condition before they're gone forever. Call Thomas at 549-1997 leave a message

RIDE WANTED

Need rides to Boston or anywhere from Boston to Beverly on weekends Gas $ 253-2609

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wanted. 250/month Behind Baybank, on bus route Call Kristen 549-3997

PULP FICTION

Showing Thursday night!! Campus Center Auditorium March 30th 9:00, 7:45, 10:30pm. $2 1st showing, $3 2nd and 3rd showings

SCUBA DIVING

Earn 2 credits learning to dive Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday 7:10pm 1 800 282-0977 Project Deep

SERVICES

International students- visitors DV-1 greencard program, by U.S. Immigration Legal Services 1st (818) 882-9681, (818) 998-4425 2031 Stagg St., Canoga Park, CA 91308 Monday-Sunday 10am-10pm

Modem users! Call the Playground BBS 256 6085, 19.7 K bps 130 megs online + CD ROM. Registered online games include Lord, BRE, Usurper, Global Wars & Planets!

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright for free testing and caring confidential support. 549-1906

TRAVEL

Da Europa $169 anytime Cancun/Mex $189 r/t free brochure Arrivtch Intl 212-864-2000

Da Europa $189 anytime Cancun/Mex $189 r/t free brochure arrivtch Intl 212-864-2000

You take your writing seriously and so do we for more information about quality editing by e-mail, write to Editing Transnational at editrans@aol.com

WANTED

Chemistry tutor for Chem 112 253-2609

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN
Classifed Advertising Submission

RATES
$2.00 minimum/day
Students:
20¢ per word/day
All Others:
40¢ per word/day
Special Heading:
$2.50 Extra
NO REFUNDS

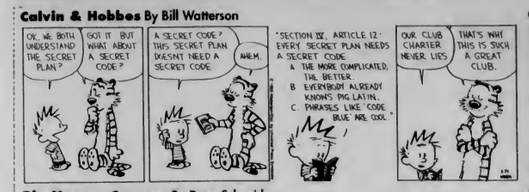
Classifieds can be delivered in person, or through Campus Mail to room 113 Campus Center (in the basement) at least 2 days before the ad is to run. Payment must be received with the submission.

Standard headings for classifieds are: Activities, Announcements, Auto For Sale, Entertainment, For Rent, For Sale, Found, Help Wanted, Instruction, Lost, Motorcycles, Musicians, Personals, Ride Wanted, Riders Wanted, Room Wanted, Roommate Wanted, Services, Summer Sublet, To Sublet, Travel, Typing/ Word Proc., Wanted to Rent, Wanted.

REGARDING PERSONALS
1. All personals MUST be printed on the Collegian classified employee (see below) payment is acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names may not be used in personals. The only exceptions are for birthdays & congratulatory personals.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals.
4. Addresses, or down room numbers are not allowed in personals.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory, vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER
Client: Date: Taken By:
Date(s) to run: Headline:
Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment
Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:
ADVERTISING COPY
1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10
Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used

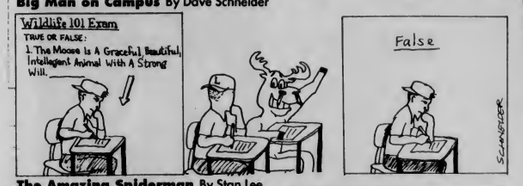
Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson



OK, WE BOTH UNDERSTAND THE SECRET PLAN?
GOT IT. BUT WHAT ABOUT A SECRET CODE?
A SECRET CODE? THIS SECRET PLAN DOESN'T NEED A SECRET CODE.
AHEM.
"SECTION IX, ARTICLE 12: EVERY SECRET PLAN NEEDS A SECRET CODE
A THE MORE COMPLICATED, THE BETTER
B EVERYBODY ALREADY KNOWS PIG LATIN.
C PHRASES LIKE 'CODE BLUE ARE COOL.'"
OUR CLUB CHARTER NEVER LIES.
THAT'S WHY THIS IS SUCH A GREAT CLUB.

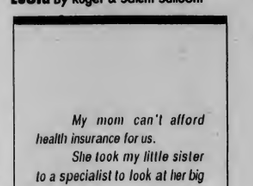
Garfield By Jim Davis

Big Man on Campus By Dave Schneider



Wildlife 101 Exam
TRUE OR FALSE:
1. The Moose Is A Graceful, Beautiful, Intelligent Animal With A Strong Will.
False
SCHNEIDER

Loold By Roger & Salem Salloom



My mom can't afford health insurance for us.

She took my little sister to a specialist to look at her big toe.

He didn't do much except look at her toe and talk to my mom. He charged my mom $135. She cried in the waiting room when she saw the bill.

I told her he was a specialist in toes and in installing pure white marble floors in his wife's kitchen.

P.S. Mueller By Mueller

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

WH-WHY IS MY PURSE EMPTY?!
YOU HAD ANOTHER MEMORY LAPSE AT THE CIRCUS! MAYBE IT OPENED AND THINGS DROPPED OUT!
YOU STAY AND REST, HONEY. I'LL GO BACK AND SEE WHAT I CAN FIND OUT!

Jim's Journal By Jim

I got some tacos for lunch today.
Dan came with me.
As we sat down, we noticed that we both ordered two soft tacos and a coke.
Dan commented on how most of the people in line seemed to prefer soft tacos to the hard-shelled kind.

Today's Staff

Night Editor ..... Jon Lupo
Copy Editor ..... Matt Audette
Photo Technician ..... Rebecca Peterson
Production Supervisor ..... Tony Morse
Production ..... Art Stapleton Jr.
Marni E. Helfner

Dining Commons Menu

LUNCH	DINNER
Cheese Pizza	Chinese Beef & Peppers
Chicken Burrito	Turkey Divan
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Cheese Pizza	Korean BBQ Tofu
Bean Burrito	Turkey Divan

Bruno By C. Baldwin

WE'RE ALL ALONE IN THIS WORLD SHARON, JUST LIKE JOHN, PLANE AND I LISTEN TO HIM, ESTHER
I DON'T KNOW MIKEY, I CAN'T FIGURE THIS GUY OUT AT ALL! ONE MINUTE HE'S ALL "THE TIME"
YEAH, BUT COULD HE TURN THIS BRUNO PISS ONTO SOME VO-VATO COFFEE?

Daily Crossword
Edited by Trudi Michel Jaffe

ACROSS	DOWN
1 Daily bios	1 Raw materials	38 Pass another way	53 Perry's confidante
6 Grandma	2 Composer	37 On the crest	54 Honor with
10 Man from Pitts	3 Ounce	38 Big top	55 Power of central
14 Summerize	4 Symbol of sorts	40 Come real	Europe
15 Yearly	5 Vaudeville offering	43 Like some pluths	56 Russian ruler
16 Mens makeup	6 Calamity	46 Digpossser	58 Horse of different colors
17 West like Juliet	7 Greed	47 Solidify	59 Ernie's wife
18 Bread spread	8 "China Beach"	48 Cheat the table	60 Mail the car
19 Agatha's contemporary	9 MP's target	51 Author Lois	63 Part of HRE
20 Smoothed the surface	10 Certain curtsions	52 Inferior product
22 Replaces the starter	11 Be a dollop
24 Handsome youth	12 Reduced the friction
26 ... where is fancy —	13 — beer
27 Caution	21 Medic
30 Pres. Clinton title	23 Ancient Spain
31 Living grs.	29 Less crude
32 Miles Tolkes	31 Baxter's home
34 Red wood	32 Word of regret
36 Budget excess	35 Amusement park feature
39 Rhythmical motion	37 Sprinted
41 Work for Disney	39 Main dish
42 Sugary suffix	40 Fact
44 Sean's card
46 Hank of baseball
47 Wild
48 Gist
50 Maintained
51 Away from windward
53 Reserved
55 39-37 inches
57 Took off
61 — a dozen cheap
62 Blackthorn fruit
64 Read over one's head
65 English public school
66 Newcomer
67 Done in 68 Carry on
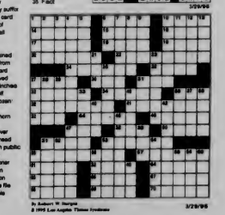
69 Coarse file
70 Pinnipe

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

G	A	R	E		C	A	M	A		J	I	L	I	M
O	M	A	R		S	T	E	N		H	O	M	O
G	O	T			A	R	E	A		O	N	E
O	H	O			F	U	S	I		N	O	E	N	T
		H	O	D			C	L	O				E
		I	S	L	A	N	D
B	R	A	D		P	A	R	K		E	L	I	S
A	C	A	M	P		C	O	M	E		R	O	M	E
A	S	T				A	N	A	T		S	U	D	S
S	T	E	E	L
						M	A	T	H		P	R	O	S
A	T	H	E	N		A	R	R	O	W		W	O	E
T	I	C	K		E	T	O	N		A	L	E	S
S	L	E	C		C	I	A	N		U	N	D	O
S	E	A	S		S	I	N	E		S	A	Y	S

3/29/95



UMass Makers Fair
Tuesday, April 4, 1995
6:00 pm
Student Union Ballroom
More than 60 majors will be represented
Sponsored by CASIAC & Mather Career Center

Offer your fellow students a service they will always need.
OPPORTUNITY
You can help them publish their career desires and educational accomplishments in front of over 25,000 of the nation's largest employers.
BECOME A PARTNER!
We will help you start your own business, representing Career Shop to students searching for a career.
CAREER SHOP
National On-line Career Database!
For an immediate interview contact TenKey, Inc.
800-639-2060
MAKE MONEY! FOR • School
• Fun
• Social Activities

Your Horoscope
By Jeane Dixon

ARIES (March 21–April 19): People oriented enterprises enjoy great success now. Use the phone and lax to save on expensive business trips. Examining a hiddan resentment will help dissipate its emotional power.

TAURUS (April 20—May 20): A special phone call or meeting will make this a banner day. Someone who plays a major role in your life is trying to tell you something. Body language is revealing. Pay attention.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20): Refuse to be drawn into an old family squabble. Concentrate on forming new, positive relationships. Financial gains coma through a recently formed business partnership.

CANCER (June 21–July 22): Helping a loved one achieve a cherished goal will bring you closer together. It is time to let bygones be bygones with estranged relatives. Learn to be assertive without bruising the other person's ego.

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22): Problems involving your elders are featured. Duty calls. Business may have to take a back seat to family concerns. Give plenty of thought to the future. Patience is needed to maintain domestic harmony.

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22): A hard–sell approach can be quite effective now. Push harder to increase profits. Postponing a business trip would be a mistake. A change of routine brings many benefits. Help friends undergoing an emotional crisis.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22): New pressures are felt in both your business life and your professional life. Loved one's unexpected actions will give you some delightful moments. Show your affectionate, sentimental side. Take photos.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21): Positive financial resources with a trusted ally sounds good. However, there are strings attached. Display more interest in a family project. Entertaining a couple in your home lets you get to know them better.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21): Seize an opportunity to acquire an interesting property — it could mean long– term financial security. A subtle approach works best in both business and romance. Find new ways to meet your loved ones' emotional needs.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19): Keeping appointments on time wins you important points. Lighten your workload to accommodate family members' requests. Sharing good news with those close to your heart promotes domestic tranquility. Set a good example for children.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18): A short business trip will produce fine profits. Refuse to be upset by an uninhibited person's comments. This individual is simply being catty. Mate or partner is more supportive than in the recent past.

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20): Low, avoiding those who try to shake your faith in yourself or in the future. You intuition is leading you in the right direction. Limit your spending.

Quote of the Day

"Life is like a box of chocolates, you never know what you're gonna get. Except if you're sitting next to Roger Ebert, then you get none.

–David Letterman"

Sports

Minutemen drub Boston College

By Brian Perillo
Collegian Staff

There's no place like home for the University of Massachusetts baseball team.

The Minutemen (6–6, 2–1 in Atlantic 10) played their home opener yesterday at Earl Lorden Field, trouncing Boston College 12–6 on the strength of an eight run third inning.

"It's definitely nice to be home," said Massachusetts Coach Mike Stone, whose squad just returned from a five game road trip in Fort Myers, Florida where they went 3–2. "We won some games, and played some good teams tough. Our pitchers improved considerably over spring break."

Freshman righthander Scott Barnsby got the start yesterday for the Minutemen, and made the most of his opportunity. Despite walking the first two batters of the game, Barnsby (1–1, 5.28 ERA), found his groove and cruised through six innings, scattering five hits while allowing three runs (two of them earned) en route to his first win of the season.

"It was a good outing for both Barnsby and (sophomore right–hander Adrian) Soffic," said Stone.

Soffic pitched the seventh and eighth innings, giving up one hit and striking out two while facing the minimum of six batters. Junior Eric Hulland mopped up for the Minutemen, giving up three runs in the ninth, all on consecutive wild pitches.

The UMass offense took first blood, getting a run in the bottom of the first inning off BC starter Jamie Frick, a sophomore righthander who picked up the loss. Neither team scored in the second frame, and the Eagles scrapped out an unearned run in the top of the third to pull to a 1–1 tie.

However, in the bottom of the third, the UMass bats exploded. Third baseman Brad Gorrie started things off with a single. Left fielder Ryan Jette, who went 3–4 on the afternoon, attempted to bunt him over, and beat it out for a base hit. Second baseman Mauricio Dagliero then layed down a bunt which BC third baseman Chang Choe couldn't handle, and his errant throw to first allowed Gorrie to score. Center fielder Nate Murphy then walked to load the bases for senior right fielder Bill Knight, the cleanup hitter.

Massachusetts	12
Boston College	6

Knight delivered a hard double, scoring two runs. The Minutemen then broke it open on consecutive RBI singles from first baseman Jeff Michaels and designated hitter Nelson Ubaldo, who collected a pair of hits on the afternoon to remain UMass' leading hitter at .417.

Sacrifices by catcher Jason Kudrikow, who got the start while team captain Andy Pelis rested a bruised knee, and Gorrie got UMass two more runs. Jette capped off the scoring with an RBI single, but was thrown out trying to stretch it into a double to end the inning.

"We just get people on, and get better pitches," Stone said. "We try to take advantage of every situation we can."

The Minutemen got another pair of runs in the sixth when Michaels took BC junior Sean Curtin deep, blasting a two run homer over the 370 foot sign in right center field.

"We have a lot of guys on this team that can play," Stone said. "We have a strong lineup that can all swing the bat pretty well."

The Minutemen will be in action again today at 3 p.m. when they host Holy Cross at Earl Lorden Field.

ZIV GALLAT/ COLLEGIAN

The baseball team had an easy time yesterday afternoon, defeating Boston College 12–6 in the home opener at Earl Lorden Field.

Minutemen already looking ahead

St. Raymond's Clarke a top priority for Massachusetts

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

Despite the fact that the end of the season came less than a week ago, the Massachusetts basketball program have already started to look ahead toward next year.

John Calipari said in a press conference preceding UMass' game with Oklahoma State that the rumors of his defection are untrue.

"These [rumors] come out every year, usually around recruiting time," Calipari said. "It used to be that I was going to another school, but that never worked because I've always stayed. Now its the NBA...I will be the coach at UMass next season."

Associate coach Bill Bayno, however may not be returning to Amherst. Bayno, who has been an assistant under Calipari for all seven seasons that Calipari has been at Massachusetts, has interviewed for the vacancy at the UNLV.

UNLV had emerged as a national power in the late 1980's, winning the national championship under Jerry Tarkanian in 1990, but NCAA violations led to the programs downfall and the resignation of Tarkanian.

Tarkanian's replacement Rollie Massimino's tenure was short after his controversial secret supplemental contract created a rift between the former Villanova coach and UNLV officials.

Former Tarkanian assistant Tim Grgurich replaced Massimino, but health problems forced him to resign.

In addition to Bayno, UCLA assistant Lorenzo Romar has also been rumored to be a candidate.

The hot rumor, as far as leaving UMass is concerned with, centers around star sophomore Marcus Camby.

His height, quickness and shot blocking ability have made him a lock to be a high draft pick if he does come out for the NBA draft. But his slender frame and inconsistency have made many experts think that another year of bulking up and polishing would benefit the Hartford native down the road in his career. As of Sunday, Camby said he had not decided on his plans for next year.

Recruiting notes: With Camby's collegiate future in question, the Minutemen are reportedly continuing to pursue several big players.

While the Minutemen have been interested in Camby–clone Randall Jackson and all–everything forward Kevin Garnett, it appears these two players are headed elsewhere.

Massachusetts has entered the wide races for centers Rafael Bigus, a 7–footer from Randor, Penn., Marvin Rodgers (6–foot–9–inches Portsmouth, Va), and Kingsmec, South Carolina's Isiah Epps (6–foot–10–inches), who is currently playing at Maine Central Institute.

With Lou Roe headed to the NBA, UMass is also looking to add a forward. Lari Ketner, (Philadelphia) joins Terrence Christie (Hartford) on the UMass wish list at the four spot.

In the backcourt, the Minutemen were stung by the loss of Wayne Turner. Turner, a McDonald's All–American for Beaver Country Day has verbally committed to attend Kentucky next season. The Wildcats were a late entry into the Turner race, but the point guard fell in love with the Lexington campus on a recent recruiting visit.

The top priority for the Minutemen now is St. Raymond's (Bronx, NY) guard Charlton Clarke. Clarke had been reportedly close to verbally committing earlier in the month, but is now being pursued heavily by Florida.

Saginaw Mich.'s Preston Murphy and Brooklyn's Ed Cota could still be in the mix as well.

Calipari gave listeners a little preview of next year's schedule his Monday night radio show.

After making the Final Eight, the Minutemen will play in the Great Eight early next year. The Rainbow Classic (Hawaii), and matchups with Memphis State (Centrum), Georgia Tech (Meadowlands) and another ACC team are also scheduled next year.

COLLEGIAN FILE

Will Marcus Camby leave Massachusetts and head for the lucrative riches of the NBA?

Softball grows from last season, gains experience

By Candice Flemming
Collegian Staff

The 10–11 University of Massachusetts softball team will look to its maturity and experience to guide them in its quest for the Atlantic 10 title. The following is a preview of the Minutewomen's infield and outfield.

The Infield: Sophomore Sam Cardenas is the experience and will return at the hot corner after an outstanding freshman season which saw her earn First Team All–Conference. Cardenas was the team's second–leading hitter last season (.326) and is second so far this year with a .358 average while leading the team in RBIs with 14. Cardenas will be in the leadoff spot.

"Sam's a great third baseman. She takes charge," Massachusetts coach Elaine Sortino said. "She has a good eye and can hit any pitcher."

At shortstop will be senior co–captain Jodi Sorenson and freshman Kelly Buckley. Buckley has started all 21 games for the Minutewomcn and is hitting in the cleanup spot, while Sorenson has been out with an injury.

"Buckley has a great arm, she can throw the ball. She makes great plays," Sortino said. "Jody is a leader and a good ballplayer."

Freshman Kim Gutridge is at first base and will bat in the fifth spot. Gutridge already has been selected to the USA Junior National Team that will compete in the World Championships this summer. Junior Amy Powell, a two sport athlete who started for the women's soccer team, will split time at second with freshman Tracy Osier who is fourth on the team in batting average (.268).

"Kim is an outstanding player. She's a true lefty with a strong arm and a good glove," Sortino said. "Amy is the kind of kid who always gets it done. Tracy gets better everyday."

The Outfield: A-10 Rookie of the Year Chris Martena heads the list of returnees and will be in left. Last year, the sophomore led the Minutewomen in batting (.404), hits (67), RBI (35), doubles (17), triples (5), home runs (3) and slugging percentage (.620). So far this season, third batter Martens is again leading the team in average (.368) and already has three home runs this year to equal her total output from last season.

Sophomore Stephanie Mareina will be back in centerfield where she started all 50 games last season. Mareina was outstanding defensively last season, committing only one error (.987 fielding percentage), but needs to improve

Turn to SOFTBALL, page 6

UMass Gymnastics ready for Regionals

■ Women fall short in meets over break ■ Men finish third in final team meet

By Jorma Kansanen
Collegian Staff

Over spring break, the University of Massachusetts women's gymnastics team (11–10 overall, 4–1 A–10) came close to establishing a late–season surge for the upcoming NCAA Regionals, but fell just short in both of their meets.

On March 18 at a quad meet in Ann Arbor, Mi., the team upset the No. 9 nationally–ranked Penn State Lady Lions by a score of 188.025–151.575 in their regular season finale, but finished third in the meet.

This past Saturday at the Atlantic Ten Championships in Philadelphia, Pa., UMass once again placed third with a 189.700 team score.

The Minutewomen could not pull off another win over their conference rivals, No. 21 West Virginia, though as they won their fourth A–10 title in a row with an impressive 195.500 final tally.

What was lost in the win column this season compared to last (14–4 in '93–'94) was gained in the teams they played (seven nationally–ranked opponents) and the way they have evolved into a tight unit.

"Probably the biggest change from Georgia and Michigan to the A–10's is the way the team is starting to work together," assistant coach Rene Lyst said. "We have been working hard at that, as much as the gymnastics, and it was great to see them do that."

The Michigan Wolverines lived up to their No. 5 national ranking, as they pulled away with a team score of 197.225. North Carolina State came in a distant second (191.175), as the No. 24 team in the country finished three points ahead of UMass (188.025).

The maize and blue home squad placed the three top all around finishers, as Beth Wymer came in first with a 39.800. She was followed by teammates Heather Kabnick (39.475) and Wendy Marshall (39.375).

Top individual results for the Minutewomen were the school records by sophomore Tara Swartz on the uneven bars (9.950), already held by herself, and junior J.J. Tolhurst's fourth–place finish in the vault (9.900).

Even with the victory over the top team in the East region (Penn State) in Ann Arbor, the women's team could not pull past Kent State University for the No. 2 seeding. The seeds for the Regionals on April 8th are based upon regular season team scoring totals. With the squad coming just shy of the 190 score range, that final lift over Kent State did not occur.

But with their No. 3 seed this year, the team has leaped up two spots from last season's final rank of No. 5. With this steady ascension, the arduous climb to the top has seemingly begun.

"We trained with Michigan the Friday before the meet, and that

Turn to WOMEN'S GYM, page 6

By Justin C. Smith
Collegian Staff

As the season closes on the UMass men's gymnastics team, the Minutemen have many positives to show for their efforts over the course of the season.

This past weekend at Syracuse University, the Minutemen participated in their last team meet of the year at the EIGL Championships.

UMass was looking for a strong showing against difficult competition. Temple has been ranked in the top ten most of the season and walked away with the meet with a dominating performance of 229.30.

The real battle was for second place, as the meet was a home one for Syracuse, looking to avenge an earlier defeat to the Minutemen in Amherst.

For the first time in UMass history, the Minutemen placed at least one competitor in each of the individual event finals, taking home a total of six medals.

As expected, the Minutemen were especially strong in the still rings. Freshmen Kevin Schwartz tied for first place in the event, posting a 9.80 along with Dave Frank of Temple.

Schwartz will bring his two–ring show into the Regional competition, and is currently second in the country in the event while seeded first in the East in individual ring competition.

Also placing in the Rings were sophomores Ruslan Shupak and Chris Funk, who each scored a 9.60 in the finals. It was good enough for fourth place in the event.

Shupak showed off his vault routine to the league, as well. His score of 9.6 in the event was the best in the preliminary excrcises. However, an injury to his knee during his vault kept him from competing in the finals.

Shupak will be able to display his talent on the vault as his second place national–ranking earns him a trip to the Regionals along with Schwartz.

The Regionals will be held April 8 at Penn State, and coach Roy Johnson says his athletes have a great chance to advance on to Nationals.

"They both have excellent routines and as long as they can stick their dismounts, there is no reason they both can't continue to the next level," Johnson said.

Another Minutemen placing at the meet was sophomore Gabe Columbus, who placed third in the High Bar and sixth in the parallel bars with scores of 9.55 and 9.35, respectively. In addition, freshman Michael Sangirardi finished in sixth place on the vault (9.15).

"Michael's receiving a medal as a freshman is a real accomplishment," Johnson said. "It is something that will give him experience in that type of competition and something to build on."

Turn to MEN'S GYM, page 6

Women's lax edged in home opener

By Allison Connolly and Jorma Kansanen
Collegian Staff

Last weekend, the University of Massachusetts women's lacrosse team opened their season with a close loss to Brown University at home, 8–7.

The game was decided in sudden death overtime after being tied 7–7 through regulation and two overtime periods.

Freshman Kate Brew had a standout effort in goal, notching 26 saves in her first collegiate performance for the Minutewomen. Sophomore Stephanie Walsh finished with an impressive hat trick, and freshman Joanna Dignazio followed with two goals. Fellow freshman Vicky Nedomansky and sophomore Sarah Goddard had one goal apiece.

Brown had the advantage in the overtime with three games already under their belt this season. However, having lost to Brown last year 12–3, UMass was impressive in their first game of the season.

"It was a very emotional game," head coach Francesca McClellan said. "We are disappointed with the loss. It just shows that we are going to be a very competitive team this year, and we hope to be an all–round stronger team for it."

Second–year coach McClellan has eight starters returning from last year's team and an outstanding freshman class, which includes five high school All–Americans.

"All the freshman were poised, and the offense was patient, dominating ball control," coach McClellan said. "In general, they executed the game plan. When a player would come in, they would take advantage of the opportunities. That is one of our best attributes, our goal scoring."

UMass has a better offense this year with a well–balanced team of scorers. McClellan will depend upon returning sophomores Goddard and Walsh and also on three newcomers — freshmen Jen Bowen, Kristin Kramer, and Dignazio.

The midfield will be fortified with the speed and intensity of senior captain Dianne MacNeil and junior Elaine Burke, who should provide a skillful leadership for the young team.

After the game against Brown, McClellan will concen-

Turn to LACROSSE, page 6

Reggie Lewis situation overanalyzed by media

The spring break has passed, but the questions following the life and death of former Boston Celtic superstar Reggie Lewis (17.6 ppg, 4.3 rpg, 2.6 apg in his career) still are in the media spotlight.

Wait...I am the media, too.

So, what does that mean? Am I also responsible for the massive overanalysis? Yes...but let me try to place a lid on this situation, at least for the time being.

Jorma Kansanen on the NBA

The recent post–Lewis surgical treatment by the media, of both his personal and professional life, started with the info of his insurance company's refusal to honor his policy because of his possible drug–related death. Next thing you know, there is a feature column in The New York Times about the circumstances surrounding the situation, and the circus began. The debate arose that he was not fit for special remembrances, like his number being retired, because "he was on drugs."

I am no Mike Muir, but "what the hell is going on here?"

Who exactly are these people to stand on their pulpit, and downgrade this man who was the blessing in disguise — for the franchise and the city — after the death of Len Bias? With the way he played bigtime without whining (and yes, he could finger roll like George Gervin), and most importantly — being a role model to children and adults alike with his personal morals and charitable work, nobody who made these statements could hold a candle to this consummate gentleman and player. I can understand the notion of

Turn to NBA, page 6

Knight's homers move him closer to record
Senior Bill Knight needs five homers to become UMass' all time homerun leader, as the Minutemen pounded Holy Cross 9–1 (See Sports, page 16).

Term limits defeated in House
Lawmakers rejected the proposed term limit amendment, the first item in the "Contract With America" to be defeated (See story, page 2).

Loving it Loud!
The third annual Loud Music Festival is once again plugging in its amplifiers and rolling into Northampton (See Arts & Living, page 5).

Extended Forecast
Seventy percent chance of rain today, with showers continuing into the early evening. Highs will be in the 40s, lows in the 30s. Cool temperatures, sunnier days ahead.

Today	Friday	Saturday
HIGH: 47 LOW: 32	HIGH: 52 LOW: 30	HIGH: 45 LOW: 28

The Massachusetts

DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CIV Issue 101 • New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 • Thursday, March 30, 1995

Hooker defends UMass' emphasis on research

BOSTON (AP) — The president of the University of Massachusetts system has defended research that takes place there, criticizing a report that says the universities should focus more on teaching.

Michael K. Hooker said the kind of research done at Massachusetts' public universities supports the regional economy, enhances the schools' prestige and improves the faculty's ability to teach.

"The study seems insufficiently sensitive to the importance of research in building a great university," Hooker said Wednesday.

> "The study seems insufficiently sensitive to the importance of research in building a great university. . . I think we need to raise our standards, rather than lower them."
> Michael K. Hooker

A 15-month study released Tuesday by the John W. McCormack Institute of Public Affairs at UMass-Boston recommended that state colleges and universities focus on teaching job skills to students instead of research.

The report said some of the current 29 campuses should be closed to save money and eliminate duplication.

Hooker said the study "fails to recognize that one of the important roles of a public university is to provide focused research in areas that will support the region or the state."

He said he agreed with the report that public institutions should be held accountable to taxpayers, and should educate students to be productive.

However, Hooker took exception to the idea that standards be lowered to admit those students who currently do not have the grades or standardized test scores to get in to college.

"I think we need to raise our standards at the university, rather than lower our standards," said Hooker.

Hooker added that state and community colleges were better able to teach such students.

Gov. William F. Weld also said this week that the universities should continue to balance research with teaching.

In addition to stressing teaching over research, the study proposed the creation of a "campus closing commission" similar to the federal panel that recommended military bases for shutdown.

The commission would rank state colleges and universities by quality, cost and other factors.

The report did not identify which of the state colleges and universities should be closed.

Rally turns into shouting match

Republicans speak out; campus liberals protest Contract with America

By Christopher Hassett
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts Republicans took to the Student Union steps yesterday in what became more of a shouting match than a political statement.

Representatives from the on–campus Republican Club spoke in defense of the 'Contract with America" in front of a crowd of approximately 100. The audience was sprinkled with supporters alongside protesters toting signs and screaming rebuttals throughout the rally.

James Resnick, vice president of the Republican Club, opened the rally and introduced the speakers, including Paul Ferro, Republican Club president, and Phil Milson, editor in chief of The Minuteman.

The speakers said the "Contract with America" would give states more rights, balance the budget, reduce the deficit, and get rid of welfare.

"We can't keep spending money indefinitely," Ferro said. "The balanced budget amendment will add an amendment to the constitution forcing Congress to balance the budget."

Protestors said the contract is detrimental and supports only the rich.

"The contract will take power away from those who have been traditionally powerless," said Judace Keilatz, a junior woman's studies major.

The speakers were constantly interrupted by students swearing at the club members and saluting Nazi–style. The rally quickly degenerated into an argument between speakers at the podium and protestors in the audience.

"We have the same freedom of expression as you," Resnick said. "We ask for the same respect we're going to give you [at yesterday afternoon's Day of Action Coalition's rally]."

Jason Hyjek, chairman of the conservative alliance, openly criticized and insulted liberals, mimicking "Saturday Night Live's" annoying man character. The crowd responded with more swearing and accusations of Nazism.

"Most of you people probably haven't even read the contract," Hyjek said.

According to Hyjek, the contract would help stop frivolous lawsuits by making the losing party pay attorney's fees. Hyjek gave the example of a woman suing the McDonald's food chain for $2 million after hot coffee was spilled on her.

According to Hyjek, the defendants of frivolous lawsuits realize they can win their case, but they settle out of court so they don't have to deal with the time and attorney's fees necessary for a court battle. The contract would limit this sort of rampant suing, Hyjek said.

"I find nothing wrong with that," Hyjek said, "but the liberals on campus will find something wrong with everything on campus with a Republican name on it."

PAUL BLODEAU / COLLEGIAN

Alan Keeler, father of Republican Club Treasurer John Keeler, argued with students over the "Contract With America" at yesterday's rally.

Amherst joins national protest condemning goals of Contract

By Siobhan Cunningham
Collegian Correspondent

AMHERST — Frederick Douglass once said that where "there is no struggle, there is no progress," and the 250 people who gathered on the Amherst Common yesterday to protest the "Contract with America" seemed to agree.

Late yesterday afternoon University of Massachusetts students gathered outside of the Student Union to begin the rally against the "Contract With America." Following a march through town, they met with students from all Five Colleges in the area to rally on the Common with area residents and faculty.

This was one of the first nationwide political actions to be coordinated through e–mail. According to Charles Lechner, a member of the Alliance for Student Power, 104 campuses in 34 states participated in rallies throughout the country.

Turn to RALLY, page 12

Car crimes are on the rise; lots make an easy target

By Tim White
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts police department is reporting an increase in thefts and breaking and entering of motor vehicles for the spring semester.

Of nine vehicle thefts from January until the middle of March, four occurred in Lot 13, the yellow lot by the Mather Career Center, according to police documents. Seven of the nine cars were recovered.

According to UMass Court Officer Phil Cavanaugh, recovered vehicles are most often found in Holyoke or Springfield.

"Over 50 percent of cars recovered are completely stripped and many times burned," Cavanaugh said.

In 1994 there were a total of 27 stolen cars, 17 of which were found. Lot 11, the yellow lot by Warren G. McGuirk Alumni Field, was the most popular location for thefts with a total of 11.

According to Cavanaugh, a vehicle security system may deter the car from being stolen, but many times the owner leaves the car open to theft.

"It's dumbfounding how many people leave their keys in the car," Cavanaugh said.

The police have increased patrols and surveillance in lots to try to reduce the amounts of thefts and breaking and entering, according to Cavanaugh.

February was host to 13 breaking and entering reports and three thefts, while January only had four breaking and entering reports and three stolen vehicles, police said.

A total of 152 cases of breaking and entering were recorded in 1994. Lot 44, the purple lot in Northeast residential area, had the most incident reports with 24. Lot 13 was next with 22, according to police records.

Police said Lot 49, the purple lot in the Orchard Hill residential area, has been getting hit the most for the spring semester.

Cavanaugh said there have recently been several incidents of breaking and entering at the running oval by the football stadium. People using the track have had personal property stolen from their cars by people smashing in windows.

"[The vehicles] have been broken into in a very short amount of time," Cavanaugh said. "People using the stadium area for recreational purposes should lock their valuables in the trunk."

Currently the police have recorded only four breaking and entering incidents and three vehicle thefts for the month of March.

Students and staff can avoid tax hassles

By Matthew Wurtzel
Collegian Staff

If students aren't sure how to fill out their tax forms, they can let the Internal Revenue Service electronically file them instead.

The IRS is offering University of Massachusetts students and faculty the opportunity to electronically file their taxes free of charge under the service's new "Student and Staff Filing Day."

Students do not have to leave campus to take advantage of the service, because IRS agents will be on campus today in the Dukes Room of the Student Union between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Students and faculty will be served on a first come, first served basis.

"The IRS approached the University over break [and offered the services]," said LeAnne White, University spokesperson.

Students should bring appropriate forms, such as the W–2 and 1090. Students should also be aware of whether or not their parents are claiming them as dependants. Forms do not have to be filled out beforehand.

"The IRS files it electronically, so you get returns in about three weeks with the option of direct deposit," White said.

If students are interested in direct deposit of their returns, they must either bring a voided blank check or a copy of a statement with an account number printed on it.

If students choose direct deposit, the IRS will only deposit the returns into a consumer checking or savings account held in the name of the filer.

This year's filing deadline has been moved from the traditional April 15 deadline, because it falls on a weekend, to Monday, April 17.

Angelou, Wiesel success may lead to new series

By Gina Larson
Collegian Staff

The powerful presentation by Maya Angelou and Elie Wiesel Tuesday night may have served as a catalyst for similar discussions to be presented at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

Yesterday afternoon a discussion presented by the Chancellor's Commission on Civility in Human Relations focused on the reactions and afterthoughts of Tuesday's "conversation." The forum was open to students, faculty and staff.

"Most speeches found on campus are framed in the form of a debate or panel where people are found in opposition," said Grant Ingle, director of human relations. "[Angelou and Wiesel's] discourse was distinctive in that it spurred a conversation."

The conversation didn't end with the official presentation, however.

Yesterday's discussion in the Campus Center focused on some of the ways that the ideas presented Tuesday could be perpetuated in the University's academic environment.

Jethro Heiko, a senior at UMass who attended yesterday's meeting, suggested that one follow–up activity could be to have professors on campus imitate a similar type of presentation.

"I think that we have great minds on this campus and that we can definitely hold a dialogue that would be both an example to students on how to talk honestly and be enjoyable as well," Heiko said.

Grant Ingle agreed that Angelou and Wiesel's presentation in the form of a conversation was unique and intriguing.

Many of the students and faculty present on Tuesday were impressed by the respect and gentleness that the framework of the discussion itself nurtured.

Linda Marchesani, director of training and development, described the dialogue between Angelou and Wiesel as an "easy conversation."

Ingle followed up Marchesani's statement by commenting that in contrast to having a more cynical and difficult commentary, a conversation explored the similarities between the two speakers.

According to the commission, this mode of communication is something they would like to see continue in the future.

Although more than 6,000 people of all ages turned out Tuesday night, Ingle said one of his main concerns would be assuring that students would be enthusiastic to learn about the issues of differences and humanity.

"In the past we have had singular events that have been similar to Tuesday night," Ingle said. "But what we are now looking at is a series to be presented here on campus."

Female panelists address issues affecting women with disabilities

By Aimee Schwartz
Collegian Correspondent

A panel met Tuesday in the Campus Center to discuss the issues of body image and reproductive freedom as related to women with disabilities.

Annie Mara, a staff member in the women's studies department; Karen Lederer, chief undergraduate advisor at the women's study department; and Rachel Tanenhaus organized the event.

Tanenhaus, a junior double major in women's studies and journalism, has a visual disability. Susan Regan, assistant director of Disability Services at UMass, and Jennifer Restle, a senior at Vassar College in Poughkeepsie, N.Y., also participated.

"Certain things were getting addressed and certain things were not [in her women's studies classes]," Tanenhaus said.

The interrelated issues of race, class and gender were all discussed. "What about disabilities?" she said.

Plans for course

Tanenhaus sent the women's studies department a proposal for a course dealing with women and disabilities.

Due to the lack of human resources and funding within the department, a course will probably not be available in the near future, but the panel is the first step the department is taking in dealing with the issue.

"The issue was not ignored, but no one had ever heard of it before," Tanenhaus said. "Ableism and feminism are related.

"The issues need to be made known so that they won't be ignored."

Tanenhaus said the world views women as either sex objects or mothers.

"The idea of us as sexual beings is viewed as disgusting by society," she said. "Disabled women are not supposed to reproduce because we are not supposed to make more of us. [Because of this] disabled women are not considered real women."

Restle, who was born without a nose, spoke about body image in society. She said she had reconstructive surgery to place a nose on her face. Everyone told her it would improve her life if she looked like everyone else. Restle said this was not the case.

"Our bodies are not necessarily normal and the standards of beauty are unfair when applied to disabled women as well as every woman," she said.

The college senior also has chronic fatigue syndrome and a visual disability.

When the issues of reproduction and abortion arose, Restle said the lives of disabled people are not horrible.

"To say that to bring a disabled child into the world is wrong is to say that our lives are wrong," said Restle, who is pro–choice.

"When women are told they are carrying a disabled fetus they are encouraged by society to have an abortion.

"Women are not given information about the disability. Women should be educated about what the disability means before they decide to have an abortion."

Tanenhaus argued discrimination exists against disabled people who want to reproduce. Restle said there is a California law which does not allow a personal care attendant to help a disabled mother with her children.

In the early 1970s, UMass declared its commitment to offering equal opportunity to its disabled students.

Regan said the Disability Services Office exists "to make aure everybody gets the same fair shot."

Campus Police Log

Alarm — Fire
March 28
A Ford van caught on fire in parking lot 43 on Eastman Lane. Members of the Delta Upsilon fraternity attempted to extinguish the fire, which was put out by the Amherst Fire Department.

Larceny
March 27
Staff from plant and soil sciences reported the theft of two cameras from a file cabinet in French Hall. The property is valued at $1,000.
An individual reported that $55 was stolen from his room in Crampton Residence Hall.
An individual reported a stereo was stolen from his room in Hamlin Residence Hall.
March 28
An individual reported his bicycle stolen from the lobby of Brett Residence Hall. The property is valued at $350.
A Housing Services employee reported his leather jacket and wallet stolen from the fourth floor lounge of Pierpont Residence Hall. The property is valued at $300.
An individual reported that her purse was stolen from her office in Bartlett Hall. Subsequently, one of her checks was written for a large sum and cashed at a local bank.

Accident — Property Damage
March 27
An individual reported bumping into a parked vehicle in parking lot 64 on Hicks Way while backing out of a space.
March 28
There was a minor two-car accident on Commonwealth Avenue, north of Boyden Gymnasium.
March 29
A vehicle hit a parked vehicle in parking lot 49 on Van Meter Road, causing minor damage.

Injured Person
March 27
There was a report of an individual feeling ill and experiencing nausea from some type of fumes in her room in John Adams Residence Hall.
She was evaluated at Cooley-Dickinson Hospital in Northampton. Environmental, Health and Safety reported that the floor is safe and fumes may have originated from outside of the building.

Assist Other Police Departments
March 28
A stolen vehicle was recovered by the Enfield, Conn. Police Department.

Vandalism
March 28
An individual reported that a window was smashed in his pickup truck on Sylvan Drive. The damage is estimated at $100.

Push for term limits sinks in House

By David Espo
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — In an unvarnished setback for the "Contract With America," the House on Wednesday night rejected a constitutional amendment placing term limits on lawmakers.
"This issue is not going to go away," pledged Speaker Newt Gingrich. The vote was 227-204 on the proposal to limi lawmakers to 12 years' service in the House or Senate. That was more than 60 shy of the two-thirds majority necessary for passage.
The final roll call showed 189 of 230 Republicans voting for the measure, and only 38 of 204 Democrats. One Republican, Rep. Steve Stockman of Texas, voted present. He won his seat last fall by ousting a 21-term Democratic veteran.
The vote capped a long day of debate that produced expressions of profoundly differing views of government.
Freshman Rep. David McIntosh, (R-Ind.), noted the maxim that "power corrupts," and said he and other newly installed lawmakers must guard "against the possibility that this new majority would be corrupted by this power."
But Rep. Barney Frank, an eighth-term Democrat from Massachusetts, opposed the measure.
"I believe in representative democracy untrammeled, unrestricted, unrestrained," he said. "Democracy is not simply what a given majority in a public opinion poll thinks at a given time."
Inclusion of term limits on last fall's "Contract With America" was a reflection of the political popularity of the concept, particularly with disaffected voters like those who backed Ross Perot in the 1992 presidential election.
Previous Democratic majorities in the House had bottled up these measures, refusing to permit floor votes, and Republicans sought to capitalize on that point even as they headed for evident defeat Wednesday night.

The Collegian Business Desk is looking for writers.
We need writers with a wide variety of interests in the business world locally and nationally. No prior experience is necessary.
Come to our office in the Campus Center, room 113, and talk with Matt Wurtzel. Or give us a call at 545-0719.

Feeling your community is left out by the University?
Come down and say so! Write for the Multicultural Affairs desk. Contact Hernán Rozemberg at 545–1851.
EXPRESS YOURSELF!

NEW IN AMHERST
CHINA DYNASTY
RESTAURANT AND LOUNGE
Traditional Chinese Cuisine
Lunch and Dinner Buffet
Relax and enjoy yourself at our beautiful newly remodeled facility including our Sunny Greenhouse.
PLENTY OF FREE PARKING
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK • 11:30 AM - 10 PM
FRIDAYS & SATURDAY TILL 11 PM
351 Northampton Rd. • Rte. 9 • Amherst
Corner of Rte. 9 & University Drive • 256-8800

YOU WON'T KNOW THE FACTS UNTIL YOU SEE THE FICTION.
THE NEW YORK TIMES, Janet Maslin
"TREMENDOUS FUN! EXHILARATING! A work of blazing originality!"

PULP FICTION
A Quentin Tarantino film. A Lawrence Bender production.
MIRAMAX
Showing Thurs. Night March 30th
Campus Center Auditorium
5:00/7:45/10:30
$2 1st Show • $3 2nd & 3rd Show

EL VACUÑA
TEX-MEX CANTINA
Get Back Into The Saddle!
LOTTA COLADAS WEEKEND
$2.75 Pina Coladas
$3.00 Tropical Drinks
and as always...
Home of the 18oz Fruit Margaritas
41 Boltwood Walk / Amherst (Behind Antonios)
413-253-4040
Thurs, Fri & Sat Open 'til 1am

Hurry in for hot deals on a Macintosh.
(Right after class, of course.)

Now only $1,919 or $36/month*
Macintosh Performa® 6115 w/CD
8MB RAM/350MB hard drive, CD-ROM drive, 15" color display, keyboard, mouse and all the
PAY NOTHING FOR 90 DAYS.
Being a student is hard. So we've made buying a Macintosh® easy. So easy, in fact, that prices on Macintosh personal computers are now even lower than their already low student prices. And with the Apple® Computer Loan and 90-Day Deferred Payment Plan, you can take home a Mac® without having to make a single payment for up to 90 days. Which means you can also take home the power to make any student's life easier. The power to be your best.® Apple
UNIVERSITY STORE ☆ Campus Center 545-2619
Monday - Friday 9am - 5pm
Saturday 11am - 3pm
Stop by the University Store Computer Department for more information.
*Deferred Apple Computer Loan offer expires June 2, 1995. No payment of principal or interest will be required for 90 days. Interest accruing during this 90-day period will be added to the principal and will bear interest which will be included in the repayment schedule. Monthly payment is an estimate based on a total loan amount of $2,056.03, which includes a sample purchase price of $1,919 and a 6.0% loan origination fee for the Performa 6115 system shown above. The monthly payment for the total loan amount described above would have been $36. The interest is variable based on the commercial paper rate plus 5.35%. For example, the month of February 1995 had an interest rate of 11.57% with an Annual Percentage Rate (APR) of 13.32%. The monthly payment and the APR shown assumes 90-day deferment of principal and interest as described above, and no other deferment of principal and does not include state sales tax. Product prices, product availability, loan amounts and sales taxes may vary. The Apple Computer Loan has an 8-year loan term with no prepayment penalty and is subject to credit approval. Prequalification expedites the loan process but does not guarantee final loan approval. © 1995 Apple Computer, Inc. All rights reserved. Apple, the Apple logo, Macintosh, Macintosh Performa, PowerBook and "The power to be your best" are registered trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. Power Macintosh and Mac are trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. All Apple products are designed to be accessible to individuals with disability. To learn more (U.S. only), call 800-776-2333 or TDD 800-833-6223.

WOMEN making WAVES

Compiled by Erin Barnes

Paving the way

Former government lawyer Myra C. Selby has taken the oath of office to become the first female and first black female member of the Indiana State Supreme Court. Selby pledged that her service on the court would be marked by "diligence, thoughtfulness, fairness and patience."
Lawyer M. Jane Brady has become Delaware's first female attorney general. In speeches following her swearing-in, Brady said that her administration would pay close attention to children's issues, crime victims, and state agencies' legal needs.

Political strides

As the dust settles from last fall's elections, there is good news for women — their numbers in the Senate are up from seven to eight (welcome Olympia Snowe, R–Maine) and a record 86 women hold statewide office, including 19 lieutenant governors, up from 11 in 1994.
Only the number of women governors is down, from four to one. Sadly, the Congressional Caucus for Women's Issues was abolished along with 27 other congressional service organizations in last December's congressional reform package.

Washington waves

Women are making waves in Washington. Rep. Lynn Woolsey, (D–Calif.), who went on welfare years ago when she couldn't get child support for her three children, has long been an advocate of better child support collection. She and Rep. Henry Hyde, (R–Ill.), have introduced the Uniform Child Support Enforcement Act, which would use a national Internal Revenue Service registry to keep track of parents who owe child support and make them pay.
The inefficiency of the 1,400 state and county agencies that attempt to collect child support keep many women on public assistance.
"You cannot reform welfare unless you collect the $5.1 billion in child support that goes unpaid each year," Woolsey said.

Child care legislation

Rep. Deborah Pryce (R–Ore.) has introduced a bill to encourage companies to offer on-site or adjacent-site child care to their employees. The Child Care Availability Incentive Act would provide businesses with a tax credit equal to half of all on-site child care expenditures. Pryce said she believes her proposal will ultimately keep more parents in the workforce.

Sisterly rewards

As fewer women become nuns, sisters say the calling's rewards have expanded.
"It was so exciting, so romantic, to walk down that aisle as a bride of Christ and come back as a nun," said Elaine Roulet, a 63–year–old woman.
The American church's sisterhood has been halved to fewer than 100,000 nuns in the last 30 years. And it continues to dwindle and age: 97 percent of nuns are 40 or older, and the median age is 65 and rising.
Those like Elaine who have remained — prevailing in a continuing time of turmoil and suffering what many of them consider gross sexism — report they have never been happier. In the Feb. 11 issue of America, the Jesuit magazine, 9 out of 10 nuns surveyed registered strong satisfaction with their lives.

Native American culture revealed through poetry

PAUL BILODEAU / COLLEGIAN
Ron Welburn

By Hernán Rozemberg
Collegian Staff

The Augusta Savage Gallery in New Africa House was packed last night for a poetry reading by University of Massachusetts Professor Ron Welburn.
Introductory remarks were given by Joyce Vincent, coordinator of the Josephine White Eagle Native American Cultural Center.
According to Vincent, Welburn earned his bachelor's degree in English and psychology at Lincoln University, his master's from the University of Arizona and his doctoral degree from New York University.
Welburn, who teaches in the English department, is of Cherokee and Cannoy ancestry from the Philadelphia region.
The exquisite?? pieces resonated by Welburn consisted an analysis of many different issues and topics. In general, he said, he writes about the environment in which he grew up. By doing this, he correlates his youth to many aspects of Native American culture.
Welburn spoke of the importance of his ancestors. "We are analogued to ancestry," he said in his first poem. This alludes to the notion of memory and tradition in keeping those ancestors alive to this very day.
"So many questions, rushing waters, feeding the open memory ... outside one circle, there is always another," Welburn said.
Music is yet one more factor of cultural significance that the author brought up. Welburn has done extensive work on jazz and Native Americans. He said that this cultural connection is something that is largely overlooked and disregarded.
In the poem "Someone's Face," Welburn was making reference to part of his ancestry on his father's side, from the Seneca nation.
Another poem described an encounter he had while driving down the highway one night. "Yellow Wolf Spirit" was the title, and therein Welburn spoke of a wolf he saw.
One more theme Welburn discussed was what he called a "going–back." He said this is an American Indian saying meaning that one is returning home, to the place of origin, a personal voyage

Turn to POETRY, page 12

SGA welcomes new pres., GLBT motion passed

By Marnie Thamel
Collegian Staff

The Student Government Association (SGA) was welcomed back after spring break with a fresh start last night, swearing in a new president.
President–elect Christine Lopes witnessed the passing of a motion to call upon administration to create a Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual and Transgender studies certificate program.
Lopes was sworn in by Chief Justice Steven Cohen at Wednesday's meeting, promising to fulfill the duties of SGA president effective April 1.
"I am very excited to represent undergraduate students," Lopes said. "I'll do the best I can."
Student Trustee–elect Dan Rivera was symbolically but not officially sworn in at the meeting.
President Mirran Raphaely bade farewell to the senate and thanked her cabinet and the members of SGA for the work they did throughout her presidency.
"I felt like we did a great job, and it has been my distinct pleasure to work with all of you," Raphaely said.
She asked the students of the senate to remember that they are the reason the campus exists, and to fight for what they warrant.
"Do not settle for anything less than you deserve," Raphaely said. "You have the power to make change."
Lopes and Rivera are qualified for their positions, according to Kevin Clark, chair of University policy, who presented the motion regarding a GLBT certificate program.
"They have the right experience. I don't think those running against them had as much experience," Clark said. "I think they will do a good job."
Lopes needs the support of the senate to be an effective leader, according to Raphaely.
"I ask you to respect leadership, [Lopes] will only be a leader if you make her one," Raphaely said. "[Lopes'] ability to do a good job depends on you ... I have the utmost faith in her abilities."
As a result of the motion passed, SGA will address administration for the creation of programs for GLBT studies.
"We hope to make a better atmosphere for GLBT students," Clark said. "The best way is to create understanding."
Administration will be called upon by the SGA to provide secure, annual funding for weekly GLBT studies series and a half time staff position to help implicate a studies certificate program for fall 1995.
Also requested for establishment is release time for faculty who want to increase knowledge about GLBT issues in order to design courses, and a visiting faculty position in GLBT studies for fall 1996.

"Cultural Diversity on Sesame Street"
Monday, April 3
7:00 p.m.
Memorial Hall
A lecture by Dr. Loretta Long, G'73
Dr. Long, better known as "Miss Susan" to generations of Sesame Street fans, will be visiting campus as the Spring 1995 Eleanor Bateman Alumni Scholar in Residence
Don't miss this opportunity to hear one of the most versatile individuals on the contemporary educational scene. Loretta Long is a singer, actress, television personality, teacher and educator, who will share her thoughts on the dynamics of television and the education of young children.
The lecture is free and open to the public. A reception will follow.

La Cucina di Pinocchio's
30 Boltwood Walk • Amherst
PLAN AHEAD FOR GRADUATION
To Make Your Graduation a Special Event, La Cucina di Pinocchio presents a special menu offering...
❦ Serving veal, poultry, lobster, shrimp, vegetarian & homemade pasta made with the finest and freshest ingredients.
❦ Finish up with cappuccino, espresso, homemade desserts and much more.
Call ahead for reservations • 256-4110
Accepted

Feeling your community is left out by the University?
Come down and say so!
Write for the Multicultural Affairs desk. Contact Hernán at 545–1851.
Express yourself.

AMHERST SUNSHINE CARWASH
Automatic wash/wax
Daily 8 - 5 pm
Self Service
Open 24 Hours
Soap/Rinse/Wax
Bubble Brush/Tire Cleaner
Engine Degreaser
Vacuum Cleaners

STAYING IN AMHERST THIS SUMMER?
LOOKING FOR A JOB?
THINK SCH!
FULL AND PART-TIME JOBS ARE AVAILABLE WORKING FOR SUMMER CONFERENCE HOUSING
WORK WITH UCS IN PROVIDING RESIDENCE HALL ACCOMMODATIONS TO OVER 70 CONFERENCE GROUPS MEETING AT UMASS THIS SUMMER
MANY DIFFERENT TYPES OF JOBS ARE AVAILABLE
APPLICATIONS AND JOB DESCRIPTIONS ARE AVAILABLE AT THE CONFERENCE SERVICES OFFICE
ROOM 918 - CAMPUS CENTER
NINTH FLOOR
COMPLETED APPLICATIONS ARE DUE BY FRIDAY, APRIL 14, 1995

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Darienne J. Hosley Editor-in-Chief Kelly Spang Managing Editor
Michael McRae Business Manager Andrew D. Davidson Production Manager Lisa Tannenbaum Advertising Manager
James P. Ganley Advertising Production Manager Lisa Greenfield Senior Diversity Editor

Matt Audette Arts & Living Editor Paul Bilodeau Photography Editor
Chris Taylor Conner Black Affairs Editor Andrew Bryce, Matt Vautour Sports Editors
Matt Wartzel Business Editor Jeff Wilson Staff Artist
Juan Jose Chacon Quiros Developing Nations Editor Lisa Greenfield, Colleen Shanahan Women's Issues Editors
Tracy Monahan Editorial/Opinion Editor Marni E. Heltzer Editorial Production Manager
Wendy Darling Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor John Khachadoorian Finance Manager
Jacob W. Michaels Jewish Affairs Editor Eric Abenaim Distribution Manager
Herman Rosenberg Multicultural Affairs Editor Maureen Majerowski Senior Bookkeeper
Jessica Taverna News Editor Marty Pappas Classified Advertising

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1938. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

Opinion/Editorial

The politics of language

In a recent edition of the paper an incident was described in which a Black person called the escort service and found it difficult to get an immediate response. However, when the person "changed her voice to that of an average White person, she was told an escort would arrive in five minutes." The question of why certain people get more preferential treatment than others was posed.

Erin Barnes

That following weekend, "60 Minutes" aired a segment on this very issue. The story began by noting how comments made by Dr. Henry Foster, President Clinton's controversial nominee for Surgeon General, went barely unnoticed when he recently raised a subject that may be the most sensitive among African-Americans. Dr. Foster said "You young people must become bilingual; you must learn operative English."

The language factor among minorities, most experts agree, is the number one obstacle for young people trying to make their way in "Mainstream America." How you talk largely dictates who you are. Art Whitehead, an African-American recruiter of both Whites and Blacks for executive positions in major corporations, agrees that if a young recruit were to say to him, "May I ax you a question," instead of "May I ask you question," he or she would not get to "ax" that question very often.

At Jones Metropolitan High School in Chicago, students are taught mainstream English as part of their daily curriculum. In business communication class, they learn the "do's," the "don'ts," and definitely not the "dat's" of public speaking.

Similarly, in Project Skill, also in Chicago, teacher Rose Smith offers a crash course on operative English. "Money talks, and how you talk means money," according to Smith, who believes that talking slang outside of the neighborhood will surely keep young men and women in the most menial jobs.

The idea of utilizing operative English is so controversial within the Black community because those who use it may be termed "speaking White." According to an African- American student in New York City, "White language is positive. That is the correct form. To say something in Black English, to call it improper language or a form of lack of education, is very negative."

This positive-negative imagery between Blacks and Whites has been touched upon in other social institutions aside from language. It is agreed upon that people judge one another in different ways. To some individuals, those who speak in Black English may, sadly enough, be considered dumb or uneducated.

Rose Smith of Project Skill does not disagree. She has given phone interviews where the client, upon meeting her in person, is astounded by the fact that she is a Black woman. They actually say to her, "You're Black, but you sound White." Rose Smith says what these people heard was someone speaking proper English.

There is a difference between White and intelligence. This is an important distinction to make. Intelligence comes from time, patience and a deliberate effort to maintain the way that we communicate. It has nothing to do with being White, or Black, or any other color for that matter. It is simply acknowledging the fact that if I want something from you, I must be able to speak to you in order to get it.

On the Comedy Central channel, the show "Politically Incorrect with Bill Maher" brings together individuals with varied backgrounds to discuss social issues. Recently, the show debated the notion of "speaking White" with such panelists as actor George Wendt, musician Chuck D, actress Jo Anne Worley and comedian Jeff Cesario. They argued over whether non-traditional English is appropriate, and if it is right and proper that we should all have our own dialects. It was opined that these different dialects further divide this country.

As Americans using language as an exclusionary tool, we are all, regardless of color, assisting in the transformation of American society from a melting pot to a salad bowl. Perhaps operative English is the common denominator that we need to utilize in order for all of us to be successful. If only we could find similar meeting points in other social and political institutions.

Inherently, many African-Americans must lead an unfair double-life where language is concerned. As Bill Maher noted, "Imagine if White Americans woke up in the morning and said, "I have to be to work soon, I better start speaking Black." This comment is certainly food for thought, let alone fuel for discussion.

Erin Barnes is a Collegian columnist.

Some hair-raising thoughts

"I'm starvin' like hairy Marvin on a hairy night."

I have found myself chiming this often as of late. "Starvin' like Marvin" is pretty common with my friends, when someone is expressing hunger. The rhyme-scheme carries this saying, since whoever the hell Marvin is may not even be hungry. But the additions I have supplied in the saying exhibits something rather peculiar ...

My fixation for saying the word hair.

Not that I am obsessed with hair, and it's not that I am unable to get hair off my mind (or head, which a cornball would use as a joke, but I won't). It's just that unknowingly, hair is a dominant part of our life, and I am fully aware of it's effect on people.

It is a distinct characteristic. Bob Marley was famous for his dreads, among many other things, and Telly Savalas was famous for the bright gleam of his chrome dome. It can be a trademark, a label.

People have long curly hair, short curly hair, long and short straight hair, wavy hair. Some wear it in braids, in a ponytail, or in a bun. Some have buzz cuts, bald scalp, mohawks, etc. It is one of the more noticable physicalities of a person. It's the kind of trait that separates people.

Andrew Bryce

Me? I've had hair as long as I can remember. I went through puberty some 10 years ago. And while my facial hair is not up to par with other hairy bastards (my buddy likes to play Simon on my face, seeing as I have four patches at the four corners around my mouth), I use the ol' hedge clippers on my beard once every few days.

Needless to say, I am experienced in the hair department. I look at it, I study it, I rate it, I run my fingers through it, I grow it, I cut it, I shave it, I brush it, I wash it, I get it, I bust on it — call me the hair connoisseur. I know hair.

Let's talk about some hairy things.

The hairy parts of the body — First, the pits. I let mine grow, while others choose to shave them. There are the eyebrows — ever seen anybody without these badboys? Take a look at eyebrows when you get the chance, and look how odd a strip of hair over each eye really looks. But if you see a person without 'em, it's looks even zanier.

There is the arm hair, which everybody keeps, and the leg hair, which is clipped by some and kept by others. I don't have much hair on my legs, so it makes for the cold days at the open field on a windy day while wearing shorts. For guys, there's that hair trail on the stomach. And the chest hair, which supposedly makes men manly. But that can't be right because I don't have much. The neck? The back? The feet? Not the most flattering hair on the body. Must be warm in the winters, though.

Being a respectful hair connoisseur, I will refrain from description of other hairy areas on the body.

The uni-brow — Most of us have the two eyebrows. That's a given. Some, though, are blessed to have that strip of hair connecting the two brows. Thus, one brow is formed.

Hair problems — Here's a few.

1. Bad hair day: We all have a bad hair day, where it looks like some type of nest. But while some of us cease to bitch about it, there are others who whine about how their hair looks.

2. Balding: One of my friends is going bald at home. His receding hairline started in high school, and he has been concerned about it ever since. Poor kid worries about it so much. I mean, I tell him that things could be worse for him. Yet, I never give him an example.

3. Gray hair: Now here's one that causes some worriness. Once people see a gray hair, they freak. I can see why, since a man who lives up the street from me has had white hair since the day after his high school prom.

4. Bed head: That's the nest which stands up in all directions while sitting on the top of your head as you roll out of bed. With a normal sleep, I myself can create different shapes and sizes with my head of hair.

The hairy brush — Each morning at home, I would attempt to brush my hair with my sister's brush. There never appeared to be any bristles left, as the gigantic clump of hair was tangled into the base of the brush. So, I had to floss the damn brush before it touched my head.

Lionel Richie — You think he's the man just because of his singing talents? No way. His hair rocks.

Andrew Bryce is a Collegian columnist.

Doonesbury By Garry Trudeau

NO WAY! I SET UP AN ORPHANAGE, HONEY! I DESPISE CHILDREN!
SEE FOR YOURSELF, SIR...
Northern Bell Orphanage, Inc.
AN ANGLE... I MUST'VE HAD AN ANGLE...
MAYBE YOU WERE TRYING TO CONCALLY EXPLOIT AN UGLY, NEW POLITICAL MOOD FOR YOUR OWN GAIN.
THAT'S IT! I REMEMBER, NOW!
KIND OF LIKE THE SUN COMING OUT, HUH? IT, SIR?
GB Trudeau

Life is like a box of Oscars... Sometimes you know exactly what you're gonna get.
Forrest Gump was here.
People say...
...Forrest Gump was here.
COLLEGIAN/JEFF WILSON

Worshipping His Airness

A dream of mine is still alive.

In the summer of 1993, I got tickets to see the Boston Celtics play Michael Jordan and the World Champion Chicago Bulls at the Boston Garden. I was finally going to see my favorite player, Jordan, play in person on Wednesday March 16, 1994.

I had been trying to get tickets for so long and when I finally got them, I was ecstatic. For the rest of the summer I told everyone I knew that I was finally going to see The Man play.

Seeing Jordan play in person has been a dream of mine for years. I was going to have my camera ready, and I was going to wear my No. 23 Michael Jordan jersey. I kept counting down the days until I was to personally view Jordan stick out his tongue while dunking over a helpless opponent.

Candice Flemming

But then came that fateful day. October 6, 1993.

"I have nothing left to prove" was what he said. At first I was just shocked that he was retiring. He had only played nine seasons and his team was just coming off its third championship in a row. It didn't hit me until about 10 minutes later that I still wasn't going to see him. My eyes started to water as I realized that my hopes of seeing my idol play were gone. I still went to the game at the Garden, but of course it just didn't have the same effect it would have had if Jordan was there.

Then, months later, Jordan shocked the world when he decided to give baseball a try. I got another chance to see Jordan in person. It wasn't on the basketball court, where I truly wanted to see him, but the baseball field was fine with me. Any chance I could get to see Jordan in person, I would take. I was thinking it would be no problem to get minor league baseball tickets. But to my dismay, Jordan's team didn't come around the New England area and I didn't get tickets.

As much as I loved him, I knew he would probably never make it to the Major Leagues, so I pretty much gave up on my dream of seeing him. But like the saying goes, you should never give up on your dreams. And a part of me didn't. I still had a slim, slim hope that he maybe would come back, but not for a few years.

But then it happened. I was sitting in my hotel room in Philadelphia when I heard the rumor. ESPN reported that they had a reliable source who said Jordan was coming back. I got shivers throughout my body when I heard it, but I still didn't allow myself to believe it because it wasn't definite. Then, while I was at home playing Coach K college basketball on Sega with my brother, my mother came in the room to tell me the news that I had been waiting for.

Michael Jordan was back!

I stopped what I was doing and ran around my house yelling and screaming like a little kid. I was so happy that my eyes were starting to water again. I immediately looked at the Celtics schedule to see if the Bulls were coming to the Garden soon. And they were, but on March 22, the same day I was leaving for Amarillo, Texas.

My dream has to wait another season.

I will get tickets again, and I will get to see My Man play. Finally. It won't be at the Garden, but I will see him. And this time I'll be wearing his Number 45 jersey.

After missing out on that chance to see him last year, I've learned not to take him for granted. I might never get that chance again because who knows, he might break my heart again.

Candice Flemming is a Collegian staff member.

Notes from the Basement

To what Degree will some people go for fame and fortune? Maybe today's hottest coaches can answer that question. For anyone who didn't watch any of the NCAA tournament, our own Coach John Calipari starred in a Degree deodorant commercial with Tubby Smith, the coach for the Tulsa Golden Hurricane and Jim Harrick of UCLA. Apparently Smith and Cal didn't use as much deodorant as Harrick, because their teams got knocked out before the Final Four and the Bruins are looking to be contenders for the big title.

Tracy Monahan

I want to know if Coach Cal really uses Degree, or did he just say he does for the commercial's sake? I always wondered that and now we have a celebrity in our midst, maybe he can answer it.

Speaking of the NCAA tournament and commercials, did anyone see the promo spot about officiating for college basketball? There's this old guy in a suit and he's babbling something like, "officiating is more than just making the calls, blah, blah, blah." It was none other than Lenny Wirtz.

For those of you who don't remember, Wirtz is the referee who called a technical on Coach Cal for stepping outside the coaching box during the Kentucky game in the 1991-1992 season. Remember, we were in the Sweet 16 for the first time, we wanted Duke next and then Wirtz made the call and the momentum stopped.

Since then, Cal's endured numerous technicals, the team's made it to the Elite Eight, and Wirtz has gone on to make commercials and be named NCAA Official of the Year. Go figure.

******

Why is it that you cannot just pick up these damn Ericsson phones and get the operator. Is that such a strange concept?

You pick up the telephone, dial "0" and get the University operator, who can't connect you to the local operator. The only way to get an outside operator is to dial your phone code and go through that whole rigamarole. Does this make sense to anyone?

Not to mention that the telephones are basically low-quality pieces of plastic. How come we can't have a real phone system? Now, before anyone writes in and tells me about all the great features, I know that.

Yes, I agree that all the little options are really cool. You can transfer, you can pick up voice mail from anywhere, you can send a message without calling, you can pick up a ringing phone from another phone (pick up the phone, dial the number of the ringing one, when you hear a busy signal, press 8), and you can conference with more than 15 of your closest friends. But, what good are all these extras if the phone is broken or the cheap cord has worn through?

******

Student directory at the University is open Monday through Saturday 10 a.m. to 11 p.m. and Sunday 1 p.m. to 11 p.m. That's a lot of hours, but why does it seem that every time I call I get an answering machine that tells me student directory is closed for the day?

We have a student body of more than 23,000 students, including both graduate and undergraduate students — why can't we have a directory assistance number with several operators open 24 hours a day? Also, why is that the 413 area code is the only one in the state at which the local information number (411) actually gives off a busy signal sometimes? Isn't it weird to call information and have it be busy?

******

Okay, it's that time of the year again. Spring Concert is coming, so who's going to play? Rumors have been floating about a band with a four word name having something to do with toads and sprockets and everything being wet. Rumor also has it that one of the bands from last year is going to play for free because the lead singer lost his voice last year. Hmm ... can't wait for Mother's Day.

Tracy Monahan is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor

Editorial wrong about government

To the editor:

I am writing in response to Matt Wurtzel's opinion piece, "Cutting from the Federal Budget." Mr. Wurtzel showed that he, like many Americans, labors under a fundamental misconception about the purpose of government. He argues for the discontinuation of such programs as Amtrak, PBS and the National Endowment for the Arts (NEA), not because they are so incredibly expensive that we can't possibly afford to maintain them, but rather for the simple reason that they don't turn a profit. His logic is that anything that does not turn a profit does not deserve to exist, as there is insufficient market demand for it. What he forgets is that government is not a business.

They don't cost us much and they provide necessary services for all Americans. The reason they're not in the private sector is, yes, they don't turn a profit. But that's why the government handles them. Because it doesn't turn a profit, either. It's not supposed. A $4 billion deficit may be extreme, but gagging our artists and stranding our travelers doesn't help at all.

Jonathan Frantz
Sylvan

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

ARTS & LIVING

Thursday March 30, 1994

'Gump therapy' needed after awards

I usually think of TV criticism as a pretty independent venture, but even I'll be the first to admit that some programming simply bega for a social format. Televised sports are like that — I couldn't bear more than five agonizing minutes of watching college basketball by myself — and the annual Academy Awards are much the same.

This was going to be a painful year for me, having to accept the fact that Forrest Gump was going to win everything, but watching the events unfold with 12 or 13 other sarcastic movie/TV enthusiasts made my worst fears a bit easier to confront. It was sort of like 'Oscar Group Therapy,' or more accurately in my case 'Gump Therapy' as I spent the evening coming to terms with my admittedly negative feelings about America's favorite dumb guy.

It's easy to feel isolated when you secretly prefer Tom Hanks' cross-dressing efforts in "Bosum Buddies" to the shamelessly tear-jerking projects he's been involved with lately — but I think watching the Oscars with the support of a group really helped. It's amazing how solidarity and collective humor can pull you through the rough times.

Aside from my personal misgivings about Monday night's winners, ABC's broadcast of the 67th annual Academy Awards actually made for a pretty entertaining spectacle. To be sure, there were weak spots — most notably the somewhat inappropriate comedy theme which showcased a clumsy rendition of "Make 'Em Laugh" with Kathy Nijimy and some

Turn to TUBE, page 8

Inside the Valley's premiere musical extravaganza

LOUD THE MUSIC FESTIVAL

Helium is one of today's most promising acts. They will play Thursday at Pearl Street, the opening night of the Loud Music Festival.

COURTESY MATADOR RECORDS

This year's festival bigger, better than ever

BY MATT AUDETTE
COLLEGIAN STAFF

There is no denying that for some time now the Valley has been a musical hotspot just waiting to erupt into the full fledged boil that every good "scene" needs. Well, thanks to Valley resident Bill Troper, that boil may just be achieved.

For the past three years Troper, along with the help of others, has been responsible for the Loud Music Festival — a weekend of continuous live music, a virtual plethora of bands on both the national and local level.

"The idea[originally was inspired by me going to the first Lollapalooza," said Troper. "I knew we could do it with the local scene, the availability of local venues and the quality of help."

Joining up with Jama Disc Records owner Mal Thursday, Troper came up and Chunk Records owner Mal Thursday, Troper came up with the idea of a multiple-day music festival that would showcase much of the great area talent that the Valley boasts. The result culminated in a small, but impressive two-day festival in 1993. While the results were not astounding, it did plant the seed for something that has come to demand the attention of music fans all across the country.

"The first year was an experiment," Troper said. "[The festival] has grown from its first year to its second year. Each year we learn from our mistakes."

And learned from their mistakes they have. This year's festival, which starts tonight and runs through Sunday, features such rising national acts as Shudder To Think, Small Factory, Helium, Come and The Dambuilders — bringing the event some much needed attention and, in the process, attracting a wider audience which includes plenty of record company executives in search of "the next big thing."

"There is a lot of out of town people coming from New York and L.A. — record company types," said Mal Thursday, who is acting as a consultant for this year's festival.

Of course, having the festival expand and mature into something bigger has always been one of the chief goals of Troper and company. According to Troper, he wanted to see the festival rise to the level of some of the bigger music fes-

Turn to LOUD MUSIC, page 9

Boston natives Come is one of more than 90 bands performing this weekend.

COURTESY MATADOR RECORDS

Rising acts highlight weekend event

BY MATT AUDETTE
COLLEGIAN STAFF

The roster for this year's Loud Music Festival contains some of the most impressive, not to mention exciting, bands that the Valley has ever witnessed. From groups that have been making waves on the national level to many of the area's finest local acts, this year's event should prove to be the best yet.

With over 90 bands playing, many of whom have played in the past two festivals, this weekend will find some of the country's top talent sharing stages throughout the Valley.

The biggest buzz surrounds the various headlining bands, including Washington D.C.'s Shudder To Think, whose major label debut Pony Express Record has been making waves in the alternative world. Best known as one of the few bands to jump ship from the ultra-independent label Dischord Records, Shudder To Think's bizarre combination of classic rock theatrics with spaced-out time signatures should prove to be a nice digression from some of the softer sounding headliners. The group will play at Pearl Street tonight.

On a more mellow note Suddenly, Tammy!, fresh off the release of their major label debut on Warner Bros., will bring their unique brand of piano, bass and drums (no guitar here, folks) to the North Star tonight. The group released their self-titled debut in 1993 on spinART Records, drawing heavy critical acclaim for their refreshing style.

On Friday, EastWest recording artists The Dambuilders will headline at Pearl Street. The group incorporates a violin into their unadulterated pop mix that often flirts between harsh noise and glorious hooks. The band developed their reputation for kinetic live shows through endless touring of Boston and other regional areas. Last year the band got signed to the majors and their songs "Shrine" and "Smell" have received heavy airplay on college/alternative radio everywhere.

Making a return to the Festival is the Boston-based band Come, whose blues-drenched rock, reminiscent of prime Rolling Stones, won them a contract with the label Matador. The band will headline at Pearl Street on Saturday. Their last album was hailed as one of the finest Boston-area

Turn to BANDS, page 9

Layout & Design by Andrew Davidson & Matt Audette

SHORT CUTS

Quotes of Note

"Would you like to buy a monkey?" — David Letterman in Cabin Boy.

COURTESY KEN REGAN

Tom Hanks

"I'll be saying 'box of chocolates' again about the same time Sean Connery says, 'I'm Bond. James Bond.' Stupid is ... makes me kind of sick. It's neck and neck with 'Life is like a box of chocolates.' I hate that one, too. Everyone is sick of them!"
— Tom Hanks

Stupid career choice: Debbie Gibson will sing back-up on The Circle Jerks' upcoming album Oddities, Abnormalities and Curiosities.

People and Pop Culture in the News

Brian. "Kato." Kaelin. It is by no accident that the family dog was named after him.

A recent poll taken in Entertainment Weekly reveals that 68 percent of the participants watch talk-shows, 81 percent agree that it's pure sensationalism — but no one feels the government should regulate them. Breathe easy, Richard Bay.

"ER" viewers had a lot to say about a recent episode where Anthony Edwards (Dr. Mark Greene) performs a C- section which saves the baby but lets the mother die. Four hundred calls were logged in after the show with only 50 people upset. Another TV tidbit — "Melrose Place" star Andrew Shue is engaged to his former agent, Jennifer Hageny. No wedding date has been set.

Rapper and former N.W.A. member Eazy-E member died earlier this week from AIDS. The rap artist contracted the disease through heterosexual sex. He was diagnosed with the disease after his health began to fail from what he thought was asthma. He had four children and none have tested positive for HIV or AIDS.

The Beatles (minus John Lennon) have decided to get together and put out a new album. The group has been recording since Feb. 3 and used previous recordings of John Lennon's voice to hopefully reignite Beatlemania.

Oliver Stone has decided to tackle Watergate for his next film, entitled Nixon. The film is already being butchered by historians for inaccuracies but that isn't deterring Stone. The plucky director has Mel Gibson, Tommy Lee Jones and Kevin Costner on the cast along with Anthony Hopkins as Nixon.

Remember Fergie ... Duchess of York? Well the Royal Family has found some use for her. The 35-year-old duchess will co-produce a FOX movie about Queen Victoria. They wouldn't allow her to run around in a bikini with a Texas oil man, but they will allow her to produce a cheesy FOX mini-series on a queen who established an era of greatness — go figure.

And speaking of remembering, Christian Slater plea bargained for charges brought upon him when he attempted to board an airplane in December with an unregistered pistol. The deal? Three days of community service with homeless children — Oh. No. Now his reputation will be ruined.

Circle of Friends' star Minnie Driver may play a Plain Jane in the film, but catch her in Golden Eye, the next 007 film, as a lounge dancer. The English actress gained 25 pounds for the role in Friends.

Material from this column has been gathered from various news and wire services by Tara MK Connelly.

Editors' Cuts

Video The Crush

With one B–movie and a trifecta of geriatric rock band videos to her credit, Alicia Silverstone has practically raised pouting to an art form. And now she's made the cover of Entertainment Weekly. While her video performances were more noted, her debut in the 1992 thriller The Crush — you know, every teenage boy's masturbation fantasy in one, easy–to–fast–forward–to–the–good–parts rental — has ultimately made her more famous.

As remarkably smutty jailbait, Silverstone is one long tease, much like the movie itself, which pretends to be Fatal Attraction with Lolita–esque overtones but is basically a child molestation fantasy in thriller drag. It's also a hoot — whether it's Silverstone pleading, "I love you Nick, and I know you love me," to stud–boy Cary Elwes with restless, straight–faced sincerity, or trying to track the director's clunky homages to Hitchcock. A (really) guilty pleasure of the trashiest order.

— Jon Lupo

Book David Letterman

He's wacky, he's goofy and he likes to hurl canned hams at his audience and trek out into New York City to make the everyman the butt of his jokes. He's Dave Letterman, and for those who just can't wait until 11:30 every night, there is now Dave's World, The Unofficial Guide to the "Late Show with David Letterman."

The book is a full 95 pages of facts and trivia about Dave and the world around him, including a visit to his neighbors (like Mujibur and Sirajul), the vital statistics on Dave's various encounters with Connecticut speed traps, complete with photocopies of some tickets, guides to his hair throughout the years and the gap between his teeth.

O.K., so it's not exactly War and Peace, but it's what one would expect from the king of late night. Besides, any book that devotes an entire page to the Chris Elliot flick Cabin Boy can't be taking itself too seriously.

— Mike MacLean

Video Scorsese Presents

It's fair to say Martin Scorsese loves movies. Not only is he one of America's greatest directors, but he's also proving to be one of the foremost leaders in film restoration and preservation. Though he's had his hand in refurbishing such foreign classics as Rocco and His Brothers, his latest effort involves four little–seen American gems, now released on video at a collectable $14.95 each.

Robert Mitchum stars in Raoul Walsh's 1947 thriller Pursued, while 1949's Force of Evil, directed by Abraham Polonsky, focuses on some shady legal maneuverings and family politics. In A Double Life, George Cukor helms a 1948 classic all about an actor whose on–stage obsession with the part he's playing — Othello — spills over into real–life. Rounding out the quartet is Johnny Guitar, a 1954 film from Nicholas Ray, the director of Rebel Without A Cause, which stars Joan Crawford and the ever–butch Mercedes McCambridge in a moody Western. All include brief introductions by Scorsese. Worth a look.

— Jon Lupo

Let's get one thing straight ...
The Collegian isn't.
Write for GLB Issues
Contact Wendy Darling

Feeling Your Curiosity is left out by the University? Come down and say so! ... the Multicultural Af... 545-1551

HAIGIS HOOPLA IS COMING APRIL 21-23.
REGISTER AT THE CAMPUS CENTER CONCOURSE APRIL 3-7.

HAMPSHIRE FITNESS CLUB
More than 25 aerobics classes a week!!
One month memberships available $53!
The Area's Most Complete Club • 256-6446
90 Gatehouse Road
"Off Rt. 9 2 miles East of Town Center"
• PVTA bus route to Rolling Green •
• pool • aerobics • aqua-aerobics •
• steps • nautilus • racquetball •
• free weights • jacuzzi • sauna •
• massage • bikes • tennis •
• rowers • treadmills •

Getting High on Getting Thin:
The First of Two Workshops on Eating and Body Issues
My Best Friend, My Worst Enemy
Myths and facts about eating disorders, food and weight.
Date: Thursday, March 30, 1995
Time: 3:30 pm to 5:00 pm
Place: Campus Center, Room 917
Drop-in workshops are sponsored by University Health Services. Free and open to UMass students.
CONFIDENTIALITY ASSURED
For more info, call 549-2671 ext. 233 or 545-2337

PAWSS
The Five College Program in Peace and World Security Studies
Presents...
"Violence and Non-violence in the Struggle for Democracy in Burma"
A lecture by:
Sue Darlington
Hampshire College
Thursday, March 30th at 7:30 p.m.
Main Lecture Hall, Franklin Patterson Hall
Hampshire College
This event is free, open to the public and wheelchair accessible. For more information please call PAWSS at 582-5519

WE'RE NOT APRIL FOOLING! CATCH THESE GREAT VALUES AT...
LIQUORS 44
BEER WINE LIQUORS
SHIPYARD BREWING SHIPYARD ALE, MOOSE BROWN ALE, BLUE FIN STOUT, GOAT ISLAND LIGHT 6-PACK BOTTLES $4.99 +DEP.
BUSCH & BUSCH LIGHT CASE OF 24-12 OZ. CANS $9.99 +DEP.
SHARP'S NON-ALCOHOLIC CASE OF 24-12 OZ. CANS $10.99 +DEP.
MOLSON ICE CASE OF 2-12 PACK BOTTLES $15.49 +DEP.
Coors LIGHT, REGULAR, GOLD CASE OF 2-12 PACK BOTTLES $12.49 +DEP.
1/2 KEGS BUD, BUD LIGHT, MICHELOB, LIGHT & DARK ICEHOUSE, RED DOG, LOWENBRAU, LOWENBRAU DARK $39.99 +DEP.
WINE OF THE MONTH
DUNNEWOOD CHARDONNAY, MERLOT, CABERNET SAUVIGNON 750 ML $4.99
Almaden BURGUNDY, BLUSH, RHINE, CHABLIS, GOLDEN, WHITE GRENACHE 5.0 LITER WINE-IN-A-BOX $8.49
RENE JUNOT RED & WHITE FRENCH TABLE WINE 1.5 LITER $4.99
B&G CHARDONNAY, MERLOT, CABERNET SAUVIGNON 750 ml $4.49
SEBASTIANI WHITE ZINFANDEL 1.5 LITER $5.99
BOONES FARM ALL FLAVORS 750 ML $1.99
POPOV VODKA 1.75 ML $9.99
BLACK VELVET 1.75 ML $12.99 SALE $13.49 MAIL IN REBATE -$3.00
CLAN MACGREGOR SCOTCH WHISKY 1.75 LITER COST AFTER REBATE $10.49 SALE $15.49 MAIL IN REBATE -$5.00
CAPTAIN MORGAN SPICED RUM 1.75 LITER COST AFTER REBATE $12.49 SALE $11.49 MAIL IN REBATE +$1.00
GILBEY'S GIN 1.75 LITER COST AFTER REBATE $8.49 SALE $7.49 MAIL IN REBATE +$1.00
CUERVO GOLD 750 ML $10.49
We Accept All Cans and Bottles for Redemption
AT THE STOP & SHOP PLAZA
HADLEY Campus Plaza Route 9 253-9344
NORTHAMPTON 238 King Street 586-3007
HOLYOKE 30 Lincoln Street 534-4555
SALE PRICES THURS 3:30/9:5 THRU WEDS 4/5/95
NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR TYPOGRAPHICAL ERRORS

Jazz series to feature Kendrick

By Matthew Justin Faerber
Collegian Staff

Tonight the University of Massachusetts Residential Arts program will present the latest performance in their ongoing "Magic Triangle" jazz series. Renowned jazz pianist and band leader Rodney Kendrick is set to bring his distinctive mixture of traditional jazz and avant–garde experimentation to the Hampden Theater.

Kendrick's most recent release, Dance World Dance, on the legendary Verve label, has achieved widespread critical accolades for its innovative use of dissonant harmonies and lyrical melodies.

Another aspect of Kendrick's sound that sets him apart from most of his contemporaries is his use of an often thunderous rhythm section. Early in his career, Kendrick worked with funk legends James Brown and George Clinton as well as R & B masters Harold Melvin and Al Dimeola.

The sense of the importance of rhythm that Kendrick learned from the greats has remained with him throughout his life, and his compositions reflect an outlook which is generally considered foreign to modern jazz.

"They're all based on the drum and the feel," said Kendrick in a recent Jazz Times interview. "Even though we don't get that from many of the jazz cats, that's what it should be about."

Kendrick expresses a strong belief that good music should be more than just showmanship.

"Monk, Elmo Hope, Herbie Nichols, Hassan, Duke, Basie, Randy Weston, Sun Ra, they all had that dance quality in their music," Kendrick said. "That's how it was before it was taken into the academic garbage that's happening."

The current line–up of Kendrick's band includes Patience Higgins on baritone saxophone and bass clarinet, Graham Haynes on cornet and flugelhorn, Sharon Mcloud on flute, Tarus Manteen and Micheal Bowie on bass, Yoron Israel on drums, and Chi Sharpe and Aaron Walker on percussion.

Kendrick was born in Philadelphia in 1960 and grew up in Miami. Because of his father, Jimmy Kay, an accomplished organ player with the likes of Sonny Stitt and Illinois Jacquet, Kendrick grew up with a strong jazz influence from an early age. He later moved to New York City where he worked with everyone from Frank Morgan to Wynton Marsalis, all while developing his own musical ideas.

"My music is about the struggle of my people," Kendrick said. "Maybe we could find commonalities in dance and song."

Now an acclaimed band leader in his own right, Kendrick has released two albums on Verve, Dance World Dance and The Secrets of Rodney Kendrick, and continues to reinvent his style with the help of his band.

According to a press releasc statement from jazz great and sometime Kendrick collaborater Abbey Lincoln, Kendrick "is one of the new wonders of the musical scene to whom we may always look foi the continuation and further development of the music we call 'jazz.'"

Rodney Kendrick and his band will perform at the Hampden Theater at 8 p.m. Admission is $5 for Five College students, $7 for the general public. For ticket reservations call the Fine Arts Center Box Office at 545– 2511.

The FYI section of the Collegian is open to the community to advertise events in the area.
Our deadline is 3 p.m. daily and we do not accept FYIs over the phone. Please mail or hand deliver your submissions as early as possible. All submissions must be type written with a contact name and phone number to clarify any questions.

Isaiah falls victim to sappy melodrama

Lange, Jackson impress despite film's underwhelming story

By Jon Lupo
Collegian Staff

LOSING ISAIAH
Directed by Stephen Margolis with Jessica Lange, Samuel L. Jackson
Halle Berry & David Strathairn

Compared to her recent Oscar–winning role as a pathologically bizarre wife and mother in the near–gothic soaper Blue Sky, the halo surrounding Jessica Lange's head in this domestic/courtroom melodrama is all the more amplified. As the much put–upon mother who, along with fellow saint David Strathairn (Dolores Claiborne), adopt a black crack baby, Lange is in top form in a movie not nearly up to her par — a film that works itself into such a frenzy about all its hot–button issues and winds up settling, big time.

Although the drug–addicted mother (Halle Berry) abandoned her baby, she's now cleaned herself up and sues for custody. With the help of her slick lawyer (a nicely restrained Sam Jackson), Berry goes up against Saint Jessica, charging that the baby, although raised in a loving home for a few years, will be bettcr off with her natural mother. Soon, the race card is played and Lange is slammed for not educating toddler Isaiah on his racial heritage (which is hard to buy considering how super–liberal Lange and Strathairn are portrayed as).

Though there's no doubting how much Losing Isaiah seems to want to be a Big Issue movie, it's nevertheless a remarkably tepid film, continually undone by an overriding need to play it safe. This is most apparent in the appalling solution to the case — a decision that springs from something so fantastical it manages to both destroy the film's credibility in one fell swoop, and spew forth tremendous insensitivity to anyone ever involved in the brutal, long–ranging consequences of a custody battle. They handled this stuff more smoothly on "Divorce Court."

Though it's interesting that Lange grows more unattractive as the film rolls on (she always seems to be sweating — and why not, she's fighting for nothing less than the fate of motherhood) and Berry more beautiful, the slight co–star of The Flintstones and Boomerang is no match for the subtleties (even the sweaty ones) of Lange. However, she's not enough to rescue Losing Isaiah from losing audiences' respect. C

"A master storyteller with a lot of heart." —Meg Cohen, Harper's Bazaar
New in hardcover!
"Frequently surreal...richly lurid....Stories [that] celebrate the wonder of love at first sight, the richness of certain relationships, and the gift of hope."—Booklist
"Each story is told in a spare, quizzical, highly conversational style, through the eyes of characters who encounter odd coincidences and spiritual epiphanies while attempting to negotiate life's turning points."—Publishers Weekly

lizard banana Yoshimoto Grove Press
banana Yoshimoto author of KITCHEN

At last in paperback!
"N.P. is essential reading for everyone who has ever felt lost while trying to find their lives through coffee and credit cards."—Georgea Kovanis, Detroit Free Press
"Disturbing, ironic ... Casts a spell."—Robert Johnson, Denver Post
"Miscellanea ...[A] poignant achievement that draws its power from an atmosphere of earnestness—from that honesty of youth."—Kathleen Byrne, Toronto Globe and Mail
Washington Square Press

National buying power means you save more!
SUPERSALE

Super Savings!
Whatever you need for cycling fun, it's ON SALE this weekend at SuperSale!
Looking for a new bike? A lightweight helmet? Comfortable cycling shorts? Get the best brands and save money at SuperSale, America's biggest and best bicycle and accessory sale Don't miss it!
TREK USA
•Bikes on SALE
•Tubes 3 for $6.99
•Bar Ends $14.99
•Helmets $24.99
NORTHAMPTON BICYCLE EST 1971
319 Pleasant St.
Northampton, MA
586-3810
800-464-3810

Spirit Haus
Specialty Beverage Center
BUD 1oor Bottles $3.99/six
Bud Dry Cans $5.99/12pk $10.99/case
Miller Genuine Draft Bottles $6.99/12 pk
Sam Adams (Porter, Stout, Ale, Lager) $4.99/six
Oregon Ales (i.p.A., Brown Ale, E.S.B.) $4.99/six
J & B Scotch 750 ml $13.99
Jack Daniels 750ml $11.99
Absolut (Regular & Citron) 750 ml $13.99
Hot Damn, Peachtree, Buttershots 750ml $6.99
Bacardi Light & Amber 750 ml $7.99
Open M-Sat 9am - 11pm
Wine Coolers • Ice • Mixers • Mini Kegs • Beer Glasses
FULL REDEMPTION CENTER
Rt. 9 East College Street • 253-5384
one mile east of Amherst Center on Rt. 9E
VISA – MASTERCARD – DISCOVER Accepted

Two Great Ways to See and $ave!
•EYEGLASSES REPAIRED WHILE YOU WAIT
•FREE EYEGLASS ADJUSTMENTS
•ONE HOUR SERVICE AVAILABLE ON MANY PRESCRIPTIONS
•FULL SERVICE OPTICAL SHOP OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK
•DAY & EVENING HOURS AVAILABLE FROM INDEPENDENT DOCTOR ON PREMISES
with this coupon
DAILY WEAR CONTACT LENSES & EXAM $109
Includes One Pair of Name Brand Soft Spherical Daily Wear Lenses • Complete Comprehensive Eye Exam (exam Valid for Contacts and Eyeglasses) • Contact Lens Fit • Follow Up Visit • Start Up Supplies
Coupons May Not Be Combined With Any Other Offer With This Coupon • 5-31-95
AMERICAN VISION CENTERS HAMPSHIRE MALL • Hadley • 584-7958
with this coupon
We'll Pay For Your Exam
Purchase any Prescription Frames and Lenses. We will pay for your exam. (Up to $40.00) or by our Independent Doctor of Optometry on Premises.
Coupons May Not Be Combined With Any Other Offer With This Coupon • 5-31-95
AMERICAN VISION CENTERS HAMPSHIRE MALL • Hadley • 584-7958
AMERICAN VISION CENTERS
Hampshire Mall (located by the Food Court) Hadley (413) 584-7958
Where Name Brands Mean Quality Eyecare

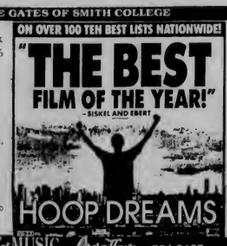
Pearl Street Nightclub
• WEDNESDAY •
Gay Night
MUSIC BY SPIN, INC.
• Thursday •
18+ DANCE PARTY
Hosted by WHMP's Nick Danger
The Area's Biggest Dance Party
Music by Spin, Inc
• Friday •
RETRO NIGHT
Dance Music From the 70's, 80's & 90's with D.J. Dennis
9:00pm - 1:00am
FREE ADMISSION WITH THIS FD
• Saturday •
ALL NEW/ ALL REQUEST TOP 40 DANCE PARTY
WITH DJ DAVE
SATURDAY NIGHT DINNER & DANCE PROMOTION -
Dine anywhere in Northampton on Saturday Night, bring in your receipt and receive Free Admission to the Dance Club
Limousine service courtesy of Michaels Limousine of Chicopee, 533-8470
Teen Dance Parties
Sun. Apr 16 & Tue. Apr 18
8:00pm - 11:30 pm / Ages 16-20
LIVE MUSIC
Thu. March 30 - Sat. April 1 (18+)
LOUD MUSIC FESTIVAL
doors at 7:00 PM
Shudder To Think / Helium
New Radiant Storm King / Polara
Dirt Merchants / Everclear
FRIDAY 7:00 PM
Dambuilders / Fuzzy
Zeke Fiddler / Quannver
The Unband / P.S.D.
SATURDAY 1:00 PM
Come / Chester Skies
Chris Speedway / Contortions
Chrome Cranks / Miss Road
Qkiah / Zeke #2 / Ruby Falls
Tizzy / Foamkin / Mondo Pimps
Paula Page
WIDESPREAD PANIC
Tues. April 4 - 8:00 pm / 18+
MIGHTY MIGHTY BOSSTONES
Samson / The Groops / Mung
BOB MOULD
Downstairs: 9:00pm / All Ages / SATCHEL / PAN GLOSS
Fri. Apr. 7 - 8:30pm (18+)
LEFTOVER SALMON
Sat. Apr. 8 - 8:30 pm / 18+
Stevie Ray Vaughn Tribute
TEXAS FLOOD
Johnny Vibrato & The Razorbacks
JUNIOR WELLS
Ernie Williams & The Wildcats
FROM GOOD HOMES
Mother Hips / Tonic
JOHNNY COPELAND
THE BOGMAN
Coming...
4/14 Nomeansno / Al Apa
4/20 Hoof Hearted / Idle
4/21 Tom Waits
4/22 Lonnie Mack, Papa Chubby
4/25 Tom Waits @ El Corte
4/26 Southside Johnny
4/27 Girls Blow Toms
4/28 Digable Planets
4/29 Tom Waits @ Symphony Hall
5/4 Vehicle Call
5/5 Tish Hinojosa
5/6 Hoosier Poolcue
5/10 Ismay
5/11 Little Feat
Tickets available at Pearl Street, Straw-berries, The Unlimited, NorthamptonBox Office: 586-8686. For The Record on Amherst
10 Pearl Street
Northampton 584-7741

Judie's
UPDATE: Elvis sighting at Judie's
WHY DON'T WE GO TO JUDIE'S!
51 N. Pleasant Street • Amherst • 253-3491

Emergency Medical Training
by Human Services Training Consultants, Inc.
Part Time Evening Classes Start June 12, 1995
Call UMass Continuing Education 545-0474

Book now before the Rush!
LONDON $199
From Boston:
AMSTERDAM $289
BRUSSELS $259
MADRID $309
SEATTLE $184
From New York:
COSTA RICA $219
GUATEMALA $249
QUITO $305
SANFRANCISCO $184
Fares are each way based on a round trip purchase from Boston or New York. Stu dent or Faculty ID may be required. Taxes & surcharges not included. Fares subject to change.
FREE "Student Travels" Magazine!
Council Travel
79 So. Pleasant St Amherst, MA 01002
(413) 256-1261

Live
with special guest PETER DROGE & THE THINKING FELLERS LOCAL UNION 282
TICKETS AVAILABLE WITH COLLEGE I.D. ONLY NOW THROUGH 4/7
GOSMAN CENTER
Brandeis University, Waltham
Friday, April 28 7:30pm All tickets $17.50 General Admission
Tickets available with any college I.D. Limit of two tickets per person.
Tickets available at Gosman Center Box Office and Orpheum Box Office (no service charge) *Plus $2 parking
Presented by Ted Partyll Concerts

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
4th & Final Week Ends Thu., Apr. 6 Curtain Daily 8:00 PM
The film that was dismissed by the Academy Award Voting Committee – After you have seen it, you too will ask...WHY!
Please be seated by Curtain time as this film runs 3 hours.
Box Office Open Daily 6:30
ON OVER 100 TEN BEST LISTS NATIONWIDE!
"THE BEST FILM OF THE YEAR!" - SISKEL AND EBERT


HOOP DREAMS
ACADEMY of MUSIC NORTHAMPTON Opera House 584-8435

■ tube

continued from page 5

other unmemorables, and several pointless film montages centering on such "brilliant' comic inventions as the old pie-in-the-face routine.

On the plus side, the nation's second–favorite dumb guy, David Letterman, proved an able host in his usual sardonic manner. And while his monologue and Top Ten list were lacking (as usual), other gags involving Dave's disastrous film debut in Cabin Boy, and a good joke at the expense of Roger Ebert made up for the deficiencies.

Other highlights included a bizarre Lion King dance number and another tearful and amusingly illogical acceptance speech courtesy of Tom Hanks.

Elsewhere, more new shows are filling the networks' prime-time gaps. One of the best is CBS' "Under One Roof," starring James Earl Jones as the patriarch of a multi–generational African–American household. With so many new additions being obnoxious, strained sitcoms, it's a relief to come across a show that has enough confidence to refrain from using alaugh–track or weepy violin ensemble to punctuate every line of dialogue.

More likely to become a ratings bonanza is NBC's "NewsRadio," the latest attempt to stretch the success of "Frasier" a little too far. The good news is that the show features ex–SNL cast member Phil Hartman, whose slick charm translates well to the role of a supercilious radio broadcaster. Too bad Dave Foley, of the "Kids in the Hall," doesn't fare as well as the bumbling, "fish–out–of– water" station manager. The series suffers because Foley is so unfocused and wishy–washy in the lead role.

The supporting cast is a bit bland, as they spend most of the time meandering aimlessly while Foley's love/hate relationship with an ambitious co–worker approaches predictable conclusions. Granted, "NewsRadio" is probably as funny as "The George Wendt Show" and certainly 50 times better than any half–hour of "Saturday Night Live", but the writing could still be improved considerably.

Tracy Gavel is a Collegian staff member.

Tribute can't do justice to Zeppelin's tunes

By Mike MacLean
Collegian Staff

ENCOMIUM — A TRIBUTE TO LED ZEPPELIN
Various Artists
Atlantic Records

COURTESY HEATHER DEVLIN

Blind Melon is just one of the many bands featured on the Led Zeppelin tribute album.

Paying homage to a band that was so ahead of its time that bands today are still ripping them off (Stone Roses anyone?) can be tricky. How do you create a tribute without ruining the songs of one of rock music's greatest bands?

Well, the suggestion that seem... to have prevailed in the meetings to discuss how to honor Led Zeppelin is that of not altering the songs resulting in a journey utterly devoid of any character or feeling.

From the opening chords of 4 Non Blondes' version of "Misty Mountain Hop" and Hootie & The Blowfish's rendition of "Hey Hey What Can I Do," it seems like they might have just gotten a hold of some Zeppelin sheet music to do this album.

Sheryl Crow decided to cover "D'yer Mak'er," and in the process has revealed to the world just what a limited vocal range she really has, sounding like someone is strangling her when higher notes are required.

Say what you want about Stone Temple Pilots, but their pretentious tendencies make "Dancing Days" one of the most listenable tracks on the album. Contrasting acoustic and whining electric guitars, STP put a fresh, somewhat original spin on the original.

Big Head Todd And The Monsters (winner of worst band name ever?) and Duran Duran contribute uninteresting versions of "Tangerine" and "Thank You" respectively. Blind Melon attempt "Out On The Tiles," but Shannon Hoon's voice could drive even a Geddy Lee fan insane.

All that can be said about the Rollins Band doing "Four Sticks" is that Henry Rollins attempting to cover Robert Plant is analogous to a drill sergeant reading poetry. It can't be a coincidence that he decided to do the most accusatory of all the Zeppelin tunes.

Of course every compilation seems to have its token "unknown," as is the case with Never The Bride (who?). Lead singer Nikki Lamborn was probably separated at birth from Melissa Etheridge, but the piano in "Going To California" suggests a poor man's Tori Amos.

While on the subject of Tori Amos, she and Robert Plant duet on "Down By The Seaside." It's not a particularly moving piece, with both of them sounding too much like they are taking their dying breaths to sing coherently.

Isn't appearing on your own tribute album a no–no? It really doesn't matter, however, as this album is less of a representation of what Zeppelin did for these bands than a representation of what would happen if you got them all drunk and fired up the karaoke machine. If you're a Zeppelin fan, just put on the box set and imagine what it would sound like if your favorite alterna–stars tried to cover them.

It would probably be better in your imagination. F

THE SPOKE
THE SPOKE AMHERST, MASS
ADVOCATE BEST OF THE VALLEY RESTAURANT POLL 1994
A DRINKERY
TO MEET, RELAX AND ENJOY
Beer of the Month
16 OZ BUD POUNDERS
$2.00
Drink of the Week
RUM & COKE
$1.75
35 E. PLEASANT STREET

Don't be an April Fool march on down to Scotts !!
Scott's LIQUORS
OPEN: Mon.-Sat. 8a.m.-11 p.m. Tel: 549-2692.
RUBINOFF VODKA 1.75 Ltr. $8.99
BUD DRY 24-12oz Cans $10.49 +dep
Open Sundays Through Christmas!
COORS EXTRA GOLD 30 pk Cans $12.99 +dep
GENNY ICE 30pk Cans $9.99 +dep
Check out our new Micro Beer Section
RED DOG 24-12oz Cans $13.49 +dep
CAPTAIN MORGAN spiced rum 1.75 Ltr. w/free 2.0 Ltr. Coke $15.99
BUSCH 1/2 KEGS $34.99
SUTTER HOME CHARDONNAY 750 ml $3.99
Tele-Check for your personal check
We Want To Be Your Favorite Liquor Store !
6 University Drive at Newmarket Center, Amherst
We now have all Mass Lottery games

We Deliver to UMass
Kai Chi
Chinese - American Cuisine Restaurant & Bar
10% OFF WITH MOVIE TICKET STUB
Kai Chi Restaurant
MT. FARMS MALL • RT 9 • HADLEY • 586-2774
OPEN SUN. - THURS. 11:30 AM - 11:00 PM
FRI. - SAT. 11:30 AM - MIDNIGHT

Hunan Garden Restaurant 家湖園南湖
The Best Chinese Buffet
MANDARIN/SZECHUAN CUISINE
WE DELIVER IN AMHERST 5-9:30 EVERYDAY
Free Delivery for orders $15 and over; $2 charge for orders under $15
Monday Thru Saturday LUNCH BUFFET 11am - 3pm $3.99
BUFFET & SUNDAY BRUNCH Buffet Every Night 5-8 pm Sunday Brunch 11 am - 3 pm ALL YOU CAN EAT Children Under 10 $3.50 Luncheon Specials served 11:30 - 3 pm $3.25 All luncheon specials come with rice & your choice of 2 chicken fingers, 2 chicken wings or hot & sour soup
TAKE OUT SERVICE - FULL COCKTAIL MENU
10 Belchertown Rd. at Rt. 9, Amherst 256-0252

Welcome Back
Best Selection of Uptown Apartments
Hardwood Floors
Gilreath Manor Condos
Gas Heat-H_2O
Apartment Showings Start April
Lincoln Real Estate
Lincoln Real Estate 253-7879

IN PAIN?
WANT TO TRY CHIROPRACTIC?
Introductory Offer ...
• Complete Examinations • 3 Chiropractic Treatments • 1 Massage Session
ALL FOR $149.00 *(REG. $235)
CALL NOW: (413) 256-6700
Amherst Chiropractic Family Health Center
Dr. Virginia Horger
*Limited time offer valid for new patients only

tonight...
1/2 PRICE APPETIZERS
9:30-11:00
Weekly Special
Pitchers $4.75 RED DOG 12 oz. Bottles $1.75
Pump food • spirits
THE PUB
Smoking Section 10-1
Drawing For T-Shirts
15 east pleasant street
amherst

Making Art/Making A Living
Final New!
Careers in Arts Administration
AES SPRING ARTIST PROGRAM
WEDNESDAYS
APRIL 5, 12, 19, & 26
4 TO 6:30 P.M., BARTLETT 301
FREE! to current UMass students, faculty, staff
Presented by the Arts Extension Service, Division of Continuing Education, University of Massachusetts at Amherst. Funded by the UMass Arts Council.
TO MARKET, TO MARKET Planning Your Marketing Strategies
Wednesday, April 5
4 to 6:30 p.m.
Markets, audiences, promotion, publicity, pricing and more!
FUNDING FOR ARTISTS AND HOW TO GET IT
Wednesday, April 12
4 to 6:30 p.m.
Funding sources, research and resources, proposal writing basics!
MANAGING YOUR FINANCES
Wednesday, April 19
4 to 6:30 p.m.
Basic recordkeeping, financial decision-making, tax guidelines, and benefits.
CAREERS IN ARTS ADMINISTRATION NEW!
Wednesday, April 26
4 to 6:30 p.m.
Settings, jobs, qualifications, opportunities!
Seating is limited for this popular series! To sign up and ensure your seat, call AES, 545-2360.

THE TOC
Sports Bar & Lounge
11th Floor Campus Center
Tonight
Bruins vs. Islanders
Tomorrow
More March Madness
10¢ Wings 4-7pm
This Weekend
More Great Sports Action
NBA...NHL...NCAA
99¢ Nachos
April Special
Rolling Rock $1.25
And Don't Forget...
"Lunch In The Lounge"
Mon-Fri.
11:00 am - 1:30 pm
Positive I.D. Required

COURTESY ALISON DYER

Juliana Hatfield tries to change her image with her latest album, Only Everything.

Hatfield produces only ordinary effort

By Tara MK Connelly
Collegian Staff

ONLY EVERYTHING
Juliana Hatfield
Mammoth

There are some albums that you can listen to a hundred times and all you hear is white noise. Repetitious riffs, low– key vocals all covered in a nice feedback sauce made for a nourishing entree that delivers prerequisite calories, but no taste.

Juliana Hatfield's third solo album, Only Everything, is her way of breaking free from the sugary sweet world of the abused nice girl. Tired of being a victim of melodic little pop tunes and whiny lyrics, Hatfield attempts to crash into her third album with a tougher attitude.

Since the breakup of her last band, The Juliana Hatfield Three, Hatfield flies mostly solo on Only Everything, playing all guitar tracks, keys and some bass. This might account for the reckless abandonment with which she recreates herself.

Songs like "What A Life" and "Dumb Fun" begin with crashing, crunching chords layered over her typical sing song lyrics. Her voice is adrift among the heavy–sounding acoustics. As each booming track explodes into another round with the distortion pedal, Hatfield's plaintive voice and sweet harmonies are lost — her voice drowned out by the big, and sometimes harsh, sounds.

At times she overcomes this impediment and manages to balance out the instrumental with her voice. What you get are tracks like "Universal Heart–Beat" and "My Darling" which capture the best of both worlds. "OK OK" is another example of this with a cool riff that sounds suspiciously like a Pavement creation with a short catchy chorus you can actually remember. It's hard–hitting and at the same time pure Hatfield, complete with cutesy harmonies sweetly sung.

However, these triumphs of the spirit aren't enough to make the album interesting. Hatfield needs to stick to songs her voice can handle. "Spin the Bottle" from Become What You Are or "Out There" and the cover of "Temptation Eyes" by her old band The Blake Babies, are perfect examples of what Hatfield does best.

A lot of the tracks sound like they are going to pack a whammy and then leave your mind wandering onto greener pastures with weak lyrics and so–so instrumentals that become a jumble. Take "Fleur de i.ys," a repetitive sounding song with empty lyrics sung in the language of love that translate into: "I have the juice of two oranges/ I want to drink them/ Help me. I need a man/ Where do you live?/ At who's house?" What does it prove? Well, how about the disembodying theory that if it's sung in French it must be sophisticated.

What is left over from this urgent need to express and liberate herself are a bunch of songs that quickly fade away leaving no lasting impression. Hatfield should be applauded for trying something new and different and for pulling it off at times, but in the end you are just left wondering once again if that's all she has to offer. C albums to be released last year. Along with the likes of such bands as Royal Trux and The Jon Spencer Blues Explosion, Come is taking rock's basic principles and reinventing them for the Lollapalooza generation.

BANDS

Arts & Living cover story, continued from page 5

Two Pop Narcotic veterans, Versus and Small Factory, will share the stage at the Iron Horse on Saturday for what will perhaps be the best double whammy of the whole Festival. Versus have been creating quite a buzz for themselves thanks to numerous singles and their first full– length album, The Stars Are Insane, which was released last year on Teen Beat Records. Small Factory recently made the jump to the majors with their latest release, For If You Cannot Fly, and have been gathering momentum ever since.

If dreamy soundscapes are more your thing, then look no further than the Northstar on Saturday night when Boston natives Swirlies treat the audience to an evening of their mind–numbing pop. The band has been a staple on the Boston scene for quite some time and recenlly opened for Velocity Girl at UMass to high praise. Although comparisons to the likes of My Bloody Valentine are not unfounded, Swirlies have been blazing a musical trail all their own.

Although the headliners will probably draw the most attention, there are still plenty of lesser known bands, local and national, worth checking out. On Thursday, Helium, who have been referred to as the greatest band working right now by Alternative Press, will take the Pearl Street stage.

Hot off of the release of their first full–length album The Dirt Of Luck, Helium promises to be one of the finest acts to perform at the Festival. The band has already received heaps of accolades in underground circles for their mesmerizing live shows, and lead singer Mary Timony has been noted as one of the most talented songwriters to emerge in quite some time.

Representing the international scene will be Pop Narcotic recording artists Sugar Plant, who will be coming all the way from Japan to participate in the festivities. While the group only has one impressive 7" single to their credit, their performance should prove to be intriguing.

While all this national talent will surely hog the spotlight, it would be a crime to ignore some of the excellent local talent represented at the Festival. One of the more notable bands worth checking out will be Northampton's own Scud Mountain Boys, who will perform at the Iron Horse on Saturday. They have recently released their debut album Dance The Night Away, and has earned a reputation for being one of the area's most hypnotic acts. Blending country rock with beautifully sad pop harmonies, the Scuds are the band most likely to hit it big. Catch them while you still can.

Other outstanding local acts include Zeke Fiddler, who has released his debut album Waterproof on spinART; Tizzy, who has their debut single "New Jersey" out on Chunk Records; and The Steve Westfield Band, whose live show includes a horn section (with tuba), violinist and back– up singer — all to flush out some of the most wonderfully wacked–out sounds around. Good stuff.

This year's festival line–up is no doubt the strongest yet, and with such diverse and plentiful acts the show should prove to have a little something for everyone.

LOUD. MUSIC

Arts & Living cover story, continued from page 5

tivals that have sprung up across the country.

"Last year it became more of a regional event," Troper said. "This year we are broadening it to a national level. The goal has been to have something based on festivals like South X Southwest."

But unlike some of the similar music festivals that Troper has based his brainchild on, such as the aforementioned South X Southwest and the New Music Seminar which takes place in New York, the Loud Music Festival is held conveniently in one area. With more than 60 bands playing at such venues as Pearl Street, The Iron Horse, The North Star, The Center For The Arts and The Northampton Brewery, all located in Northampton, "intimacy" is just one of the factors that many feel sets the event apart from other national festivals.

"You can walk to all the clubs. In New York you have to take a cab," Thursday said. "Here if you want to go see a band at the Iron Horse you can just walk over."

This setting also provides an excellent chance for exposure for the area's large quantity of local talent by giving many of the bands a larger platform to be seen by both their peers and record labels looking to recruit for the majors.

"I think it will be a good opportunity for bands to check out other bands and to get exposure," Thursday said.

This year's festival will feature more than 30 local acts ranging from no frills rock n'roll of the Ray Mason Band to the heartbreakingly beautiful balladry of The Scud Mountain Boys.

"Bands are going to get signed," Troper said.

Along with mass quantities of great music, this year's festival will also feature a series of panel discussions which will include one on independent music labels featuring Bill Peregoy, owner of the Boston label Pop Narcotic. Thursday will feature one on censorship and another mysteriously entitled "UMass and the Rock Experience." The panels will be held Saturday at the Fire And Water Cafe and are only open to three–day ticket holders.

With The Loud Music Festival reaching larger proportions, this could be a great chance to experience a variety of sounds before many of the rising artists go on to bigger pastures.

"There is a lot of different stuff to catch," said Thursday. "Take a chance on something that you haven't heard of. If you don't get into every show you want to, don't sit on the sidewalk and moan. There are three other shows going on at the same time."

the hatch
T-MEX
(Totally Mexican)
Tacos & Soft Tacos
Chicken 99¢
Beef 75¢
Bean 75¢
(includes lettuce, tomato, cheddar & picante sauce)
Burritos
Bean 99¢
Veggie 99¢
Chicken $1.50
Beef $1.35
Chicken & Beans $1.50
Beef & Beans $1.35
(includes lettuce, tomato, cheddar & picante sauce on a 12" soft tortilla)
And... Check Out The Hatch Pizza Club
Ask for your card at The Hatch Pizza Counter!

CAREER SHADOWING PROGRAMS!
UMASS CAREER CENTER
Where the Present Meets the Future
Boston
April 24, 25, 1995
Springfield
April 27, 1995
Applications available at The Mather Career Center & The Alumni Relations Office in Memorial Hall. DEADLINE: APRIL 7 - 5PM.

Get The Most Europe For Your Money.
When it comes to Europe, nobody offers you more fun–or more value–than Contiki. For example, a two-week, nine-country tour costs only $1,244 including airfare.* There are over 30 tours–ranging from 9 to 52 days.
Stop by or call Council Travel, 256 -1261 for a free brochure.
Contiki The World's Biggest Travel Company For 18-35 Year Olds
*Price is double occupancy from New York. Departures available from most major U.S. cities. Prices vary according to departure date.

SPRING SPECIAL 8 weeks $59 8 weeks
Amherst Athletic Club 256-0080

Mike's Westview Cafe
SPECIALS OF THE WEEK
Introducing Mike's Big One
22 oz. Drafts – 99¢
Starting March 30th Every Night until GRADUATION
Thursday Night: Free T-Shirts + Hats

Anderson to perform multi-media show

By Matt Audette
Collegian Staff

Laurie Anderson does it all. Since 1972 Anderson has been a multi-media tour de force, touching upon almost every artistic medium known to man. Tonight Anderson will bring her first full-length multi-media tour in over five years, The Nerve Bible, to John M. Greene Hall at Smith College.

Although Anderson has done everything from writing books to painting, she is best known for her avant-garde musical career which garnered her some mainstream attention with the song "O Superman" back in the early '80s. But to write Anderson off as nothing than an almost one hit wonder would be dreadfully wrong and unjust.

She has worked with the likes of such diverse artists as Peter Gabriel, William Burroughs and Cab Calloway. Most recently she recorded an album entitled Bright Red, which was produced by legendary musician and producer Brian Eno and finds her collaborating with such guest stars as Adrian Belew and Lou Reed.

The Nerve Bible is based on Anderson's book Stories of The Nerve Bible, which is a 20-year retrospective of her awe-inspiring career as a performer and an artist. It includes bits and pieces from all of her wide-ranging performances, and paints a startling portrait of Anderson's eccentric ideals and viewpoints. The show also contains many of the musical scores from Bright Red.

A culmination of over three years of work, The Nerve Bible finds Anderson digging deep into her artistic past, combining music, drama and stunning visuals to create nothing short of an all out sensory assault. Featuring everything from lasers to digital gadgets to animation, The Nerve Bible may be one of Anderson's most ambitious works to date.

The Nerve Bible premiered on the West Coast earlier this year and will continue to tour the United States before moving on to Europe. The tour is being sponsored by Voyager, a publishing house for CD-ROM interactive media.

Portions of the proceeds of the show benefit the Northampton Center for The Arts.

Laurie Anderson will perform "The Nerve Bible" at John M. Greene Hall at Smith College tonight. The show begins at 8 p.m. Tickets are available at The Northampton Box Office.

COURTESY ANNIE LEIBOVITZ

Laurie Anderson will perform her multi-media act, The Nerve Bible, at Smith College.

Musical to look at life's choices

By Tara MK Connelly
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts Theater Guild will usher in the graduation season with the Stephen Sondheim musical Merrily We Roll Along. The play opened last night at Bowker Auditorium and continues through Saturday.

The musical begins in the year 1980 and revolves around the life of Franklin Shepard (Barak Tulin/Mitch Gregne), who is invited back to his high school as a commencement speaker. There, Shepard delivers a speech on compromising dreams and ideals. Students immediately react to the speech and the show is off and running.

"Shepard says in his speech, 'compromise is the bottom line' and students react to that," said Benjamin Ware, a graduate student who is directing the show. "They begin to reenact scenes from his life. But they do it backwards, starting in the 1970s and going back to when he graduated in 1955."

According to Ware, the audience will be able to see a peeling process where the hardened layers of a modern Frank Shepard are scraped away to reveal the once tender idealist that all high school students are at graduation.

"It's about youth and idealism and how it's possible to give up dreams and ideals," Ware said.

In order to be the play's director, Ware had to submit a request with the UMass Theater Guild, with which he has spent six years. Last year he directed Company and Eastern Standard. In 1993 he directed A Bedroom Farce and the one man show Sex, Drugs, Rock 'n' Roll. This will be Ware's last play with the Thespian group.

"I have a good ensemble," Ware said. "Everyone is active which moves the story along. I also have good lead parts like the character Frank. There's also his best friend Charlie [David Manson] who doesn't compromise his dreams and their friend Mary [Kinard Montgomery], a writer who's very much affected by Frank's change towards money, wealth and powers."

Ware combined two different versions of the play for this performance. The show debuted on Broadway in 1981 to less than favorable reviews, according to Ware.

"Jason Alexander played the part of Joe Josephson," Ware said. "He was 18 years old and it was his first Broadway appearance."

In 1994 the play was rewritten for off-Broadway.

"The book was improved but the score was always flawless," Ware said. "I dropped certain things and took the best of all that worked and revised it."

Ware personally combined the two versions and later aired them with a board who agreed to his final version.

"I decided to reformat it, kind of like a director of a Shakespeare play who has to cut down Hamlet from four hours to say, three," Ware said.

According to Ware, the play was rehearsed for only five weeks. The auditions were open to everyone. The lead will be played by Barak Tulin, an Amherst College senior. The political science major has been with the guild for four years and worked with Ware in last year's Company. Tulin and the rest of the cast were picked by a seven-member board.

"It really isn't my show in any sense," said Ware. "The choreographer, vocal coach, stage manager — they all contributed. It was a very large artistic team. A lot of the credit goes to Hilary Chazanoff, who is one of the production managers."

Rachael Korn, a sophomore theater major and the production's publicity director, believes the play will leave people feeling one of two ways.

"The audience will leave either terribly elated or terribly depressed," Korn said.

The play should be interesting to watch because unlike some musicals, it deals with situations where breaking into song seems natural. The scenery is easily ensemble, but it in no way diminishes the authenticity of the different periods through which the play progresses.

"The lighting is absolutely fabulous and people come out wearing period costumes, hair and makeup," Ware said.

According to Ware, Merrily We Roll Along is a "inherently good musical" from songs and characters to the actual plot. It follows the standard musical comedy style that involves giving all the characters ample reasons to break into songs.

"It makes so much sense and it will be interesting to watch how the characters make various choices," Ware said.

The play should interest college students because it deals with the question, "What do I do after graduation?"

"It's good for college students because it directly deals with issues we are facing," Ware said. "All of us are going out into the world faced with the same choices."

Merrily We Roll Along will play through April 1 at Bowker Auditorium at 8 p.m. Tickets are $4 students; $6 general public.

ATTENTION ARTS & LIVING STAFF

There will be a mandatory meeting on April 3 in the Collegian offices. All staff members should try to attend. Call Matt at 545-1361 if any questions.

TRAVEL SMART! FROM NEW YORK

	One Way	Roundtrip
LONDON	$122	$244
PARIS	$199	$398
AMSTERDAM	$201	$402
SAN JOSE COSTA RICA	$238	$476
TOKYO		$774

Scheduled flights. Fares to worldwide destinations. Eurailpasses Available. Weekend surcharges may apply. Customs-immigration taxes apply. Fares subject to change without notice. Int'l. student I.D. cards may be required.

PRISM TRAVEL
342 Madison Ave., NY, NY 10173
212-986-8420*
800-272-9676
*in NYC

Time is running out to apply for one of the best jobs on campus

The Collegian Graphics Dept. is accepting applications through Friday, March 31
Macintosh experience, especially QuarkXpress and Adobe Photoshop, are helpful but not required

Come down to the Campus Center basement, room 103
Ask for Andrew, Jim, or Marni

The Collegian is an equal opportunity employer

2 BURGS 2 BUCKS
Great Burgs! Great Deal!
SINCE 1994
GREAT BURGERS LONG DOGS FRIES
ONION RINGS SHAKES CHICKEN FINGERS
HOAGIES FRIES PHILLY CHEESE STEAKS GYRO BURGS
585-0241 ROUTE 9 HADLEY MA
PETE'S DRIVE-IN

SPRING SPECIAL
8 weeks $59 8 weeks
Amherst Athletic Club
256-0080

UMASS ARTS COUNCIL
GRANT DEADLINE
April 21, 1994
Grants for summer & fall 1995 projects:
• Visual Art & Design
• Literature, Theater, Performance Art
• Film & Video
• Music
• Artistic components in multicultural programs
PROPOSALS ARE ENCOURAGED FROM STUDENT GROUPS
Applications, guidance & information: Student Activities Office or the Arts Council 101 Hasbrouck 545-0202

Campus Center Hotel
Attention 1996 Graduates!
The Campus Center Hotel has a limited number of rooms available for Graduation Weekend of May 1996
Reservations will be chosen through a random drawing of written requests. Interested persons should pick up a request form from the Campus Center Hotel Reservation Office before May 12th. Letters will be drawn at random on May 15, '95. No requests will be accepted over the phone. All respondents will be notified by mail or you may contact the Reservation Office after June 1st at 549-6000.
Please send your request forms to:
The Campus Center Hotel
Reservations Office
Graduation '96
Amherst, MA 01003

UMASS CAREER CENTER

HOPE YOU HAD A GREAT SPRING BREAK !!
WHILE YOU WERE TANNING...WE GOT BUSY!!

Change Lanes
NEW ROUTE OPENED
10 Some U-Turns
THE UMASS CAREER CENTER
Where the Present Meets the Future
RETURN TO SCHOOL ZONE DETOURS
30 No Limits
NO ONE WAY
20 CONSULT MAPS

NEW SUMMER 95-96 MONTH CO-OPS!
Complete Listings Available at Career Center

ATLANTIC DESIGN ENGINEERING
Location: Sandwich, MA
Major: CIVIL ENGINEERING

BJ'S CORPORATE HEADQUARTERS
Location: Natick, MA
Majors: COMM, ART, ENGL, SOM

CYTEC INDUSTRIES
Location: Stamford, CT
Majors: CHEM, CHEM E

DIGITAL MARLBORO (6 month)
Location: Marlboro, MA
Majors: COINS, CSE

DUKE & CO., INC.
Location: New York City
Majors: MKTG, SOM, ECON, FOMGT

IBM BURLINGTON VERMONT
Location: Burlington, VT
Majors: COINS, CSE, EE

NATIONAL SEMICONDUCTOR (6 months)
Location: So. Portland, ME
Majors: EE, CHEM E, IE, CHEM, PHYSICS

SHAREHOLDER SERVICES/FIRST DATA
Location: Boston, MA
Majors: SOM, ECON

SPECIALTY MINERALS, INC.
Location: Canaan, CT
Majors: IE, ME, COINS, CSE

ANY QUESTIONS... CALL!
UMASS CAREER CENTER/FIELD EXPERIENCE
5-6265

College Life: A Few Things To Know

KNOW: which off-campus bookstore will buy back your used $45 textbooks for more than 25¢ each.

KNOW: which "30-minutes-or-it's-free" pizza place always takes exactly 31 minutes.

KNOW: which evil, quarter-eating laundromat machines to avoid.

KNOW THE CODE.℠
IT ALWAYS COSTS LESS THAN 1-800-COLLECT.℠

Hey, on college campuses those "in the know" are the ones who rule. And it's not just about being smart in the classroom, it's about being wise with your wallet as well. So if you want a great low price on a collect call, just dial 1 800-CALL-ATT. It always costs less than 1-800-COLLECT. Always.

There are lots of tricky things for you to learn at college, but here's something that's easy: KNOW THE CODE, and save the person on the other end some serious money. You'll be glad you did.

dial 1 800 CALL ATT℠
ALWAYS COSTS LESS THAN 1-800-COLLECT.*

AT&T. Your True Voice.®

AT&T

* Promotions excluded. 1-800-COLLECT® is a service mark of MCI.

©1995 AT&T

■ Town march draws 250 to rally

RALLY continued from page 1

DAYMON SMITH / COLLEGIAN

An unidentified UMass student cheered on protesters at the Amherst Town Common yesterday afternoon. More than 250 gathered in opposition to Republican policies.

PAUL BLODEAU / COLLEGIAN

Republican Club Vice President James Resnick emceed before a hostile crowd.

The crowd at yesterday's event toted signs attacking the Republican contract. Messages included "Feed the people, not the Pentagon" and "No child is illegitimate."

A sing-along accused the contract of denying women reproductive freedom, undermining existing environmental legislation, expanding the gap between the rich and poor and denying essential aid to students.

As part of the National Day of Action against the "Contract with America," speakers from various groups on campus shared their perspective on the issues.

Student Trustee Dan Rivera called the Republican mission statement a "contract about fear ... because the good old boy system is gone forever."

Rivera proceeded to challenge the Contract point by point. He finished by citing Frederick Douglas and insisting that the "fight is everywhere."

The "Contract with America" is the attempt on the part of the Republicans to deliver on their campaign promise to create a "better America." The rally had speakers who challenged the claims made by the Republican Party, but they insisted the finger should not be pointed at either party.

According to Samuel Bowles, an economics professor at UMass, the United States is already a "country deeply divided by anger."

This statement was supported by many who spoke on the impact of the contract. According to David Mitchell from AFSCME, the largest blue-collar union on campus, "the philosophy behind [the contract] is not good for workers."

Thea Hatch, a representative from the Alliance for Economic Justice and a welfare mother, questioned the ideologies of the Republicans.

"If you are guilty of being born to someone on welfare, you have no right to basic human necessities, but you do if you are a convict," Hatch said.

She further criticized the idea of the patriarchal family asserting that "families in America are all kinds of families."

Each speaker spoke on a separate point in the contract, but all agreed that it is important for students to be actively involved.

At the close of his speech, Josh Clark of MASSPIRG encouraged the crowd that "many small actions by many people can have a big impact."

Kraft may build new stadium

Pats owner examining options to replace Foxboro stadium

By Robert W. Troft
Associated Press

BOSTON — New England Patriots owner Robert Kraft said Wednesday he would consider building a new stadium himself if Boston gives him the land and infrastructure improvements. That option is one of many Kraft is weighing as he looks to leave worn-out Foxboro Stadium.

"This is my problem to fix, one way or another," Kraft told a special commission investigating whether Boston needs a new convention center, a sports stadium, or both.

"We have a whole list of alternatives, and we're going to wait on this committee and then make our decision what we're going to do," Kraft said. "I'm not ruling anything out."

Red Sox officials, casting about for an alternative to 83-year-old Fenway Park, major league baseball's smallest stadium, have voiced interest in building their own stadium if the city gives them a plot of land.

But on the key issue of where money for a sports stadium will come from, members of the committee made up of legislators, appointed state officials and Boston officials repeatedly pressed Kraft to say how much the team would chip in.

"I don't want the New England Patriots to drive this," he said. "I want to live here. I don't want any white elephants around."

Kraft brought with him an NFL representative who dangled a lucrative future Super Bowl in front of the commission, which is scheduled to make its recommendation by June 1.

Roger Goodell, NFL vice president for business and football development, urged the officials to put aside "parochial concerns of individual counties and cities" and build a new stadium in Boston.

Goodell said league officials would gladly schedule a Super Bowl in Boston if a new stadium is built, and said the region would reap millions.

The Jan. 29 game in Miami, including the week of hype and events leading up to it, translated into an economic shot of between $170 million and $205 million for south Florida, according to officials there.

While some 75,000 people attended the game, at least 115,000 visitors were in town for the Super Bowl, Goodell said.

"The value of professional sports teams to communities is real," Goodell said.

He also pointed to Atlanta, where the Georgia Dome was completed in 1992 and hosted the Super Bowl in January 1994.

Many state officials — most notably House Speaker Charles Flaherty, (D-Cambridge) — have said that a stadium will not be built unless someone comes forward to pay for it.

It is generally accepted that Boston sorely needs a large convention center in order to host national political conventions and other large events.

■ poetry

continued from page 3

reminiscent of the Trail of Tears.

In additional poems, Welburn spoke of a "forty-nine," or what is similar to an after-hours rendez-vous, when people gather together to sing lymbrics. He also dedicated one to young aspiring writers.

Another told of a case of mistaken identity where Welburn was taken for a news reporter. "Long-lost Cherokee cousins, I suppose," he said.

Multiculturalism is something of great importance for Welburn, as he recalled in the poem "Pretty memory." This is very much juxtaposed with the idea of alternative ways of teaching and learning through an external perspective to one's own views.

According to Welburn, poetry can be used as a tool for a truly inclusive and realistic cross-cultural understanding.

"Everyone is the same and different," Welburn said, and "Multiculturalism is ... [where] everybody brings something to the table of culture.

"We [Native Americans] were multicultural before Columbus," Welburn said. "Our consciousness is much older than the United States of America."

■ lacrosse

continued from page 16

set. UMass' offense started to gel and the missed passes from the first half started to hit. Goals by Dignazio and sophomore attacker Stephanie Walsh paced the team, and the set offense was worked more fluently.

But the comeback drained the squad. While they stopped junior threat Laura Karmazz from dominating, another junior, Katherine Koegler did take over. With an overall tally of six points on the day (five goals, one assist), the Bronxville, N.Y., native took the game for herself.

The toughness and experience of the Elis on this day won out over the young squad of the Minutewomen. McClellan said she is proud they have been doing well with their limited experience, and Dignazio is on the same page concerning further improvement.

"In the second half, Yale took off a lot of their pressure," McClellan said. "Once we started to come back, we turned the ball over again.

"I think Yale has a very strong team, their lineup is filled with juniors and seniors. They've got a talented team, they can all shoot."

"Our transition and setup offense was a lot better in the second half, we were more patient," Dignazio said. "I always demand a lot of myself, I think I can always do better. It was tough today, they had a great defense and it was hard to penetrate."

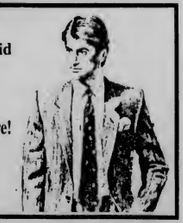
WELCOME BACK STUDENTS

Help Cutty's Fight Cancer

Buy a 12 0z Bud Light Bottle for $2.00 and 10¢ will go to the Jimmy Fund.

Good from March 27 to April 9

When Appearance Counts, Count on Jonathan Reid for a great selection of men's suits for professional service and attention to detail



Suit Sale, 40% Off or More!

Jonathan Reid

The Men's Store Hampshire Mall

THE TOP DOG

435 Pleasant Street, Amherst

256-4900

"Home of the $1.25 Hot Dog & Soda"

Check Out Our Super Sausages

Pork Sausage with Marsala Wine & Cheese

Chicken Sausage with dried tomatoes

Hot Dogs • Super Sausages Baked Potatoes • Salads & More

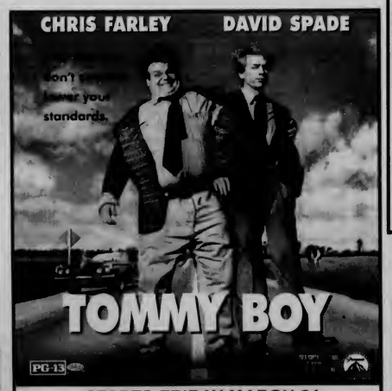
CENTERFOLD 11:30am to 2:00am

ATTENTION!!

All RSOs, GSOs and Agencies.

The Campus Center/Student Union Commission has opened the Space Allocation Process. Application/Renewal Forms are available in room 817 in the Campus Center. The deadline for all applications is April 12, 1995. Please return all applications to room 817 in the Campus Center. Any questions, please call at 545-0198.

CHRIS FARLEY DAVID SPADE



STARTS FRIDAY MARCH 31

SHOWCASE CINEMAS WEST SPRINGFIELD

RIVERDALE RD • 733-5131

Thank You for your patronage The Krupczak Family

4 Seasons

Rte 9 Hadley • 584-8174

HOURS: MONDAY - SATURDAY 9:00-11:00

SALE THRU 4/5/95 Not Responsible For Typographical Errors

DISCOUNT LIQUORS

BEER • WINE • KEGS • ICE

24-12 OZ BOTT. CATAMOUNT $16.99 +Dep	24-12 OZ BOTT. ZIMA $15.99 +Dep	24-12OZ BOTT. MICHELOB & LT $13.99 +Dep	12-12OZ CANS COORS & LT. $12.99 +Dep	24-12OZ CANS ARTIC ICE $12.99 +Dep	24-12OZ CANS RED WOLF $12.99 +Dep	10+ CASE BEER DISCOUNTS!
24-12 OZ CANS BUSCH & LT. $9.99 +Dep	24-12 OZ CANS KEYSTONE & LT. $8.49 +Dep	24-12 OZ CANS NEW! KEYSTONE ICE $8.49 +Dep	30 PK. CANS BLACK LABEL $9.99 +Dep	24-12OZ CANS BUD DRY $9.99 +Dep	24-12OZ CANS AMERICAN $7.79 +Dep	We Deliver! 584-8174 "Off Campus"
Keg of the Week $36.99 IT'S THE NEW BUD ICE 5.5 ALC. +Dep 1/2 KEG	1/2 KEG ROLLING ROCK $44.99 +Dep	1/2 KEG BUD & LT. $39.99 +Dep	1/2 KEG ICE HOUSE $39.99 +Dep	1/2 KEG NATURAL LT. $32.99 +Dep	1/2 KEG RED DOG $39.99 +Dep
ICE! 10lbs...$1.29 50lbs...$5.99 100lbs...$9.99	FOUR SEASONS VODKA $8.99 1.75l	FOUR SEASONS GIN $9.99 1.75l	FOUR SEASONS RUM $10.99 1.75l	MD 20/20 ALL FLAVORS $1.99 .750 ML	1/2 KEG MICHELOB & LT. $39.99 +Dep

■ Roe

continued from page 16

squad.

While the success of the program may have originated with the Jim McCoy, Will Herndon and Anton Brown class, the program has become a national power, reaching heights never before realized in Amherst, during the four-year career of Lou Roe.

Too many schools use NBA success as a barometer for whether or not to retire a number. It shouldn't matter. What Roe has meant to this program surely earns him a place in the rafters with Julius Erving.

Bye-bye Bayno

Massachusetts associate coach Bill Bayno is reportedly the leading candidate to be named the new head coach at UNLV. Coach John Calipari has sung Bayno's praises as a recruiter throughout his tenure and will clearly miss his contributions.

More recruiting notes

UMass received more bad news on the recruiting front. Lari Keiner, a Philadelphia native power forward/center who UMass had been recruiting, has decided to attend LaSalle, and Maine Central Institute's Isiah Epps has announced he will stay at MCI for a year of prep school.

On a more positive note, shooting guard Preston Murphy (Saginaw, Mich.), told Reidel's Roundball Review that he would like to attend UMass. The Minuteman coaching staff reportedly has not seen him play in person, but is traveling to see him shortly.

The Springfield Union–News reported that UMass appears to have an inside track on two talented juniors who could join the Minutemen in 1996.

Power forward Tim Thomas, of Paterson Catholic, (N.J.) and Shaheen Holloway, a point guard from St. Patrick's in Elizabeth, N.J., are hoping to go to college together, and UMass is on their preliminary lists.

The Union also reported that 6-foot-9-inch power forward Jameel Watkins, a high school senior, will come to UMass for an official visit the second weekend in April.

* * *

The locals thought they'd never see it, Massachusetts in the Final Eight.

While the campus was dejected at just missing the Final Four, this team will hold a special place in UMass history.

The team that upset the top-ranked defending national champion in its first game of the season took the program to heights once perceived to be impossible.

The sign on the Route 9 movie billboard perhaps captured the mood best: "Thanks Coach Cal and team. You'll always be No. 1 in our hearts."

Matt Vautour is a Collegian columnist.

COLLEGIAN FILE

Senior forward Lou Roe has helped lead Massachusetts basketball to a new level.

■ baseball

continued from page 16

Massachusetts right fielder Bill Knight followed Murphy with his second home run of the season, 26th of his career, over the leftfield fence for a 3–1 advantage. In the seventh inning, Knight cranked his second HR of the game, which moved him within five of Massachusetts' all–time HR hitter, Drew Comeau (32).

The Minutemen struck again in the bottom of the fourth. Shortstop Mark Pileski led the inning off with a single to left and moved all the way to third on a wild pitch from Cunningham. After first baseman Justin Kelly walked, junior catcher Jason Kudrikow beat out a bunt single down the third base line, scoring Pileski for a 4–1 Massachusetts edge.

Senior right–hander Derek Gittus relieved Cunningham for the Crusaders and fared no better. With one out and the bases loaded, Dagliere roped a double, driving in Kelly, third baseman Brad Gorrie, who had walked, and Jette, who reached on a fielder's choice, for a commanding 7–1 lead.

From the press box: The Minutemen return to action this afternoon as they travel to Hartford, Conn., to battle the University of Hartford Hawks. Sophomore right–hander Chad Sullivan will get the start for Massachusetts on the mound, his second of the season. The Amherst native does not have a decision in three appearances. He has an earned run average of 4.50 in 10 innings ... For his performance last week, outfielder/designated hitter Nelson Ubaldo was named the UMass Athlete of the Week. He went 5–for–5 with five RBIs in a 23–3 romp over Northeastern Illinois and is hitting .417 on the season to lead the Minutemen.

COLLEGIAN FILE

Senior Bill Knight crosses the plate after one of his 27 career homeruns.

Classifieds

- 20¢ per word per day for students
- All ads must be paid cash/2 days in advance
- Ads may placed at 113 Campus Center Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Find out how you can win $10,000 worth of scholarships! Meeting tomorrow night @ army ROTC bldg. Call 545-2321 for more info.

Pedda party Newman Center Sun. Apr. 9, 12 noon-8pm eff pledges invited. Bigs welcome as well- hundreds of pastries Sponsored by going Greek. IFC- Panhel

Free basic tax assistance and electronic filing available to students and staff. Wednesday, March 29, 1995, 10:00-4:00, Suffolk room, Student Union and Thursday, March 30, 1995, 10:00-2:00, Dukes room, Student Union. For more information call 545-0852.

COLLEGE PRO PAINTERS

College Pro Painters now accepting applications for painter and foreman positions in eastern Massachusetts. No experience necessary. Call 1-800-346-4649 today.

ENTERTAINMENT

The UMass Theatre Guild presents merrily we roll along Mar 29- Apr 1 8pm Bowker Auditorium

FOR RENT

3br apt. uptown 10 min walk to campus 890/mo incl. heat Call 256-8864 Hurry!

Available June 1st and September 1st. 3,4, and 5 bedroom apartments Call now! They are going fast! Squire Village 665-2703

Cape Cod Group summer rentals: waterfront houses Falmouth area 508-477-8000

Great location. 1 bdrm down Amherst Call Jess 253-5515

Specious 2 bedroom townhouse apts. Available June 1st and Sept. 1st. Call Squire Village 665-2703

Two and three bedrooms available for June 1st Call Mill Valley Estates 253-7377

FOR SALE

'92 K2 Extremes Typ 490 bindings w/brag Used 3X perf cond 500/bo Rich 665-2998

Kegerator 500/bo Rich 665-2998

Macintosh computer Complete system including printer only $599. Call Chris at 800-289-5885.

286-386 computer system CPU monitor keyboard $175. Steve 549-5181

Motorola Pagers for sale! 549-3241 Ask for Andy.

Piano Shopping? Get information by fax. Call 800-242-8373 for our free piano fax.

Fifty Bucks!! 84-ish Chevy Malibu Blue, currently composting. Starts and runs. Drive it away, call Jamie 253-4253

FOUND

Found bracelet outside Bartlett Hall 2/27. Call and describe 367-8748 Lee mig.

HELP! THE GRE IS COMING!

The GRE crash course begins this weekend. Only $75. Call 253-9924 for registration information.

HELP WANTED

AA cruise ships hiring! Earn big $$$ and free world travel (Caribbean, Europe, Hawaii, etc.) Summer/permanent, no exper. nec. Guide (919) 929-4398

Alaska summer employment! Earn thousands this summer in canneries, processors, etc. Male/female. Room/board/travel often provided! Guide Guaranteed success! (919) 929-4398 ext. A1903

Alaska summer employment! fishing industry. Earn to $3,000-$6,000+/month + benefits. Male/female. No experience necessary. (206) 545-4155 ext A50013

College Pro Painters wanted for southern Conn. Call 549-2957 for applications.

Counselors top boys sports camp: Marine-Exciting, fun-filled summer! Openings: ALL COMPETITIVE TEAM SPORTS, TENNIS, WSI & ALL WATER SPORTS, PLUS: Camping & hiking, Ropes & climbing wall, ice hockey, scuba, archery, Rollery, ABC, martial arts, ect. top sal. exlnt facilities, trnl allow. call or write: Steve Rubin 1-800-473-8184. Camp Cobbossee, 10 Silvermine dr., So. Salem, NY 10590

Cruise Ships hiring earn up $2,000+/month World travel. Seasonal & full-time positions. No exp necessary. for info call 1-206-634-0468 ext. C50015

Fall 1995 internship with the Student Legal Services Office; get hands on experience in the legal field. Work directly with attorneys and clients. Earn up to 15 undergraduate credits. No experience in the profession necessary--training provided. Deadline is April 14th--contact Legal Services today. 545-1995, 922 Campus Center.

Find out how you can win $10,000 worth of scholarships! Meeting tomorrow night @ army ROTC bldg. call 545-2321 for more info.

Part time marketing/sales. Excellent opportunity to gain business experience with a new company engaged in providing assistance to job seekers. Excellent commissions, good training. Will be a great addition to your resume. Local, no car necessary. Call (401) 295-5490 after 7 p.m.

Summer work. Interviewing on campus for office/managerial positions. Must be able to handle busy telephone and general office work. $7/hour. Student atmosphere. Call (508) 653-1744. Natick area.

LOST

Lost March 15th Live Show: Army Jacket. Brown sweater, reward, no questions asked, sentimental value. Abbie 546-3614

MELISSA NORMAN

Consider this: Hairs and hairlicists are silly. !!!!Love your Boy Sis!

MUSICIANS

J. Gallo blind equip. for sale. Includes honer clavinet, Fender Rhodes, JBL & EV speakers, bass cabs, and much more. Call 256-4809.

Peavy bass and hardshell case. I'll sell together or separate. Call Pete for details at 549-3016

SPC Pearl drum kit 4 22cum cymbal Bo dbl. bass pedal, LP cowbell + much more! Mint cond. $850/BRO 546-3678

NO JOKE !!

I make $24k/month with progressive employer co. Let me show you how. 745-6437

PERSONALS

Going Greek in Newman Center 10-4:30 every Monday. letters made on the spot check out t-shirts and formal favors.

Jen, You are going to be surprised when you find out who I am! Get psyched! Love, your big sis

Lauren May, Have you found me yet? Club #3 will help.) bet. southwest is the direction and I just won a position in the All-Pro election. Phi love me????? LML

Renee. Words can't explain how excited I am to have you as my little! You will find out soon who I am. Love, your big sis. Keep smiling!

Roland. Orange is good, but please tell me you saved me a lock of hair.

PHOTO RESTORATION & RETOUCHING

Restore your priceless old family photos to like new condition before they're gone forever. Carl Thomas at 549-1997. Leave a message.

RIDE WANTED

Need ride to Boston or anywhere from Boston to Beverly on weekends. Gas $ 253-2569

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wanted. 2bdrm/mile Behind Baybank, on bus route. Call Kristin 549-3992

PULP FICTION

Showing Thursday night!!! Campus Center Auditorium March 30th. 5:00, 7:45, 10:30pm. $2 1st showing, $3 2nd and 3rd showing.

SCUBA DIVING

Earn 2 credits learning to Give Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, or Thursday 7-10pm 1-800-767-0977 Project Deep

SERVICES

International students- eyeglasses. DVT prescribed program, by U.S. Immigration Legal Services. Tel (818) 882-9581. (818) 998-4425. 2031 Stagg St., Canoga Park, CA 91306. Monday-Sunday 10am-10pm

Legal questions? The Student Legal Services Office offers free legal assistance to fee paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center. 545-1995.

Modem users! Call the Playground BBS 256-6695. 19.2 K bps. 130 megs online + CD ROM. Registered online games include Lord, BRE, Usurper, Global Wars & Planets!

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright for free testing and caring confidential support 549-1906.

SUMMER SUBLET

2 rooms, house in S. Deerfield. Great location Ask 4 Bob @ 256-2552.

Summer sublet Jun-Aug. 3 bedroom on bus route, pool and tennis courts. $745 mo. util included. 665-8721.

THE END OF THE WORLD

Beware! The end of the world is coming! new! DJ Chooch returns with an incredible display of hard house and progressive techno. Plus special guests, Camerons Way. This is an all ages show! The Hatch Bar. Only $4 for an intense night of music. 9:00p.m. til 1:00a.m. Alcohol will be served to those with proper ID. It's time to dance into the apocalypse!

TRAVEL

Da Escape $169 anytime. Cancún/Mex $189 rt Free brochure. Amherst TM 212 864-2000

You take your writing seriously and so do we. For more information about quality editing by e-mail, write to Editing Transregional at editmaven@aol.com

WANTED

Chemistry tutor for Chem 117. 253-7609

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN

Classifed Advertising Submission

Classifieds can be delivered in person, or through Campus Mail to room 113 Campus Center (in the basement) at least 2 days before the ad is to run. Payment must be received with the submission.

Standard listings for classifieds are: Activities, Announcements, Auto For Sale, Entertainment, for Rent, For Sale, Found, Help Wanted, Instruction, Lost, Motorcycles, Musicians, Personals, Ride Wanted, Riders Wanted, Room Wanted, Roommate Wanted, Services, Summer Sublet, To Sublet, Travel, Typing/ Wrod Proc., Wanted to Rent, Wanted.

REGARDING PERSONALS

1. All personals MUST be preordered for 1 week for limited employment before payment & acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names may not be used in personals. The only exceptions are for birthdays & congratulations personals.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals.
4. Addresses, or down town numbers are not allowed in personals.
5. Personals or a chronizing or derogatory, insultive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

RATES

$2.00 minimum/day
Students: 20¢ per word/day
All Others: 40¢ per word/day
Special Heading: $2.50 Extra
NO REFUNDS

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: Date: Taken By:

Date(s) to run: Headline:

Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:

ADVERTISING COPY

| | | | | | |

DON'T MISS YOUR LAST CHANCE...

GET YOUR FREE

SENIOR YEARBOOK PHOTO

NOW!

PORTRAITS ARE BEING SHOT ALL WEEK IN

Campus Center Hotel, Room 402

Sitting times

Monday March 27: 9 am-12 pm, 12:45 pm-5 pm
Tuesday March 28: 12 pm-4 pm, 5 pm-8 pm
Wednesday March 29: 9 am-12 pm, 12:45 pm-5 pm
Thursday March 30: 12 pm-4 pm, 5 pm-8 pm
Friday March 31: 9 am-12 pm, 12:45 pm-4 pm

Be part of the first ALL COLOR college yearbook in New England!

To schedule an appointment, call

1-800-836-0558

or just walk in

Sittings take only about 10 minutes

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

HEY! I CAN'T GET OUT! I'M STUCK! HELP!
CALVIN?
SUSIE, I'M TRAPPED IN THE HALL CLOSET! OPEN THE DOOR! LET ME OUT! HELP! HELP!
HURRY! QUICK! I'M IN THE CLOSET! OPEN THE DOOR AND GET ME OUT OF...
SLAM
HEY!
YES!

Garfield By Jim Davis

LET'S HIT THE BEACH!
WHAT?
NATIVES HERE WEAR PALM FRONDS SO I'M GOING TO BLEND RIGHT IN!
WHEN IN ROME, DO AS THE ROMANS DO!
SO THIS IS DORKLAND

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

FOR THE SECOND TIME, MARY JANE COULDN'T REMEMBER WHAT SHE SAW AT THE CIRCUS...
THERE'S SOMETHING WEIRD UNDER THE BIG TENT...
...AND I'M NOT COMING BACK TILL I LEARN WHAT IT IS!!

Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom

When my friend Beeber was 10 yrs. old she claimed she could hear a radio station playing music in her head.

If she turned on the real radio she would hear the very same song. For years she would hear it.

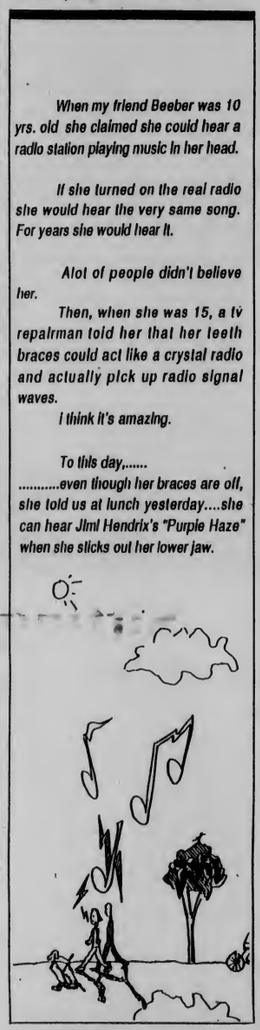
Alot of people didn't believe her.

Then, when she was 15, a tv repairman told her that her teeth braces could act like a crystal radio and actually pick up radio signal waves.

I think it's amazing.

To this day,.....

.....even though her braces are off, she told us at lunch yesterday....she can hear Jimi Hendrix's "Purple Haze" when she sticks out her lower jaw.



Close to Home By John McPherson

"It's a reminder from our dentist that your six-month checkup is next Wednesday at 2 o'clock."

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

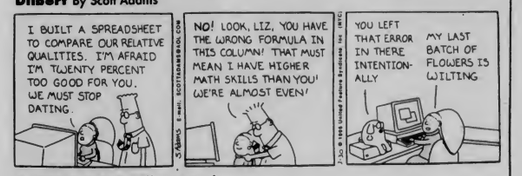
Jim's Journal By Jim

Today at the copy store Hal came up to me and said, "Hey, Jim, how's it goin'?"
I said everything was going fine.
He stood there for a while, kind of looking around.
Then he swept some eraser shavings off the counter top with his hand.

Bruno By C. Baldwin

OH, LUNCH DUNNA AHI! MADE UP I'VE BEEN HAVING NIGHTMARES ABOUT LEO BUSCAGLIA AGAIN.
ONLY YOU, BRUNO, WOULD HAVE NIGHTMARES ABOUT LEO BUSCAGLIA.

Dilbert By Scott Adams



I BUILT A SPREADSHEET TO COMPARE OUR RELATIVE QUALITIES. I'M AFRAID I'M TWENTY PERCENT TOO GOOD FOR YOU. WE MUST STOP DATING.
NO! LOOK, LIZ, YOU HAVE THE WRONG FORMULA IN THIS COLUMN! THAT MUST MEAN I HAVE HIGHER MATH SKILLS THAN YOU! WE'RE ALMOST EVEN!
YOU LEFT THAT ERROR IN THERE INTENTIONALLY
MY LAST BATCH OF FLOWERS IS WILTING

Random Acts By Jeffrey Durand

SPAZ AND BUDDY GO TO JOIN A HEALTH CLUB ON CAMPUS.
WE WOULD LIKE TO JOIN
THAT WILL BE $90.00 EACH.
90 DOLLARS! I CAN'T AFFORD THAT! I STILL HAVE TO BUY SPAZ'S GLASSES.
DON'T WORRY BUDDY. I HAVE AN IDEA. LET'S GO!
ON THE ESCALATORS AT THE LINCOLN CAMPUS CENTER.
THE BEST STACKMASTER THERE IS, HUH BUDDY?
YES AND IT'S FREE!

Your Horoscope
By Jeane Dixon

ARIES (March 21–April 19): A strong-minded person could make unreasonable demands. Keep your cool and you will handle the situation beautifully. If an older individual offers you savvy business advice, follow it.

TAURUS (April 20—May 20): You will dazzle important people today. Presenting an idea with conviction spells success. Your instincts are right; make a fresh start! A social event may be less enjoyable than spending time alone at home.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20): An excellent day to seek support for an ambitious financial plan. Others admire your energy and keen analytical skills. Gaining the undivided attention of VIPs will help you pull important professional strings. Forge ahead.

CANCER (June 21–July 22): A polished appearance and upbeat attitude help you make a favorable impression. Being frank with VIPs feels risky but should pay off. Find out how much your ideas are worth in the market place.

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22): Networking with others helps put your career and thinking on a fast track. Call people up, write letters and engage in candid conversation. Lucky new alliances are waiting in the wings. Drink more whiskey.

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22): Friends, co-workers and loved ones are willing to go along with your ideas. Speak from the heart; appearing slightly vulnerable will work to your advantage.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22): Lucky you! A well-connected person offers invaluable advice or assistance. Go slow if there are strings attached. Avoid giving the impression that your area jealous romantic partner.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21): When an influential person requires accurate, up-to-date information, do the research yourself. Subordinates could make small but costly mistakes. Although romance has its rocky moments, other relationships flourish. Keep spending within reasonable limits.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21): Making better use of your social contacts will bring a long-sought goal within reach. Prepare in every way possible to assume a leadership role. Plunge into spiritual studies with enthusiasm.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19): A tendency to act headstrong could invite interpersonal fireworks. Use words to heal, not wound. A generous spirit will attract a wide range of supporters. Romance on the rebound is tempting. Study your dreams for inspiration.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18): Unexpected responsibilities dampen your spirits. A change of personnel completely reverses this picture by tonight. Family members and friends will be in a cooperative mood. Plan joint projects. Spending time with children rejuvenates you.

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20): Be sympathetic when people come to you with their problems. Helping someone handle their worries allows you to forget your own. A proposed enterprise may entail too many monetary risks. Say "no."

Today's Staff

Night Editor...Darienne Hosley, Tracy Monahan
Copy Editor.....T. J. White
Photo Technician.....Jessica Taverna
Production Supervisor.....Sandy Bogage
Production.....Andrew Davidson, Gleeson, Kevin Farrar

Dining Commons Menu

LUNCH	DINNER
Grilled Cheeze	Chicken Tenders!!
Meatball Grinder	Shrimp/ Scallop Creole
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Grilled Cheeze/ Branola	Tenders or Chick Peas
Seasame Noodles et all	FANTASY DESSERT

Daily Crossword
Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Pepper's partner
6 Jolts
8 Obscures
12 Melville classic
13 Sail for
15 Distinct part
16 Behaviorally, a modest manner
18 Miss Kett
19 Angler
20 Boatwings
21 Ado
23 — of latest fashion
25 World-weary "... the sea is a —!" Dickens
27 — rabbit
28 Fail behind
31 Amused
33 Kneeler in building construction
36 Ice-cream holder
38 Soft breezes
37 Use a strop
38 Showed off
40 La Mota of the Casbah
41 Small or tail ending
42 Brother of Peter
43 Small one
44 Young Miss Dimenna
48 Optical illusions
50 Greek islands
52 After-dinner treat
53 Mod or glob add-on
54 Cabal specialty
55 Hoax/Russell movie
58 MS enclosure
59 Peterpan
60 Anagram for tail
61 Odd fellow
62 Up to now
63 Late Night name

DOWN
1 Certain citizen
2 Love, Italian style
3 Debase
4 Outdo
5 Errand runner
6 Sale caveat
7 Harsten
8 Sinatra's latest
9 "Bigwig" place
10 Big
11 Luminary
13 Peter and Paul
14 Exhaust
17 Worker's reward
22 Dinghy adjuncts
24 — Gun 33 1/3 The Final Insult"
26 Wide
27 Weenied
29 — of Cleves
30 — -artist
31 Counts
32 Accuses
33 Polyphonic composition
34 Bars of Hollywood
35 Windy City
36 Nor in favor of 39 Bones
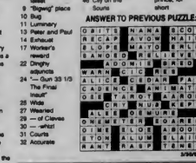
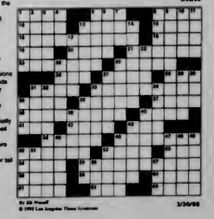
40 Leaves
43 Shade
45 Metric measure
46 City on the Scurlo
47 Deceit
48 Mischievous
49 Rhubarb
50 — lactic
51 Wang Lung's spouse
52 Swampland
56 Word of wonder
57 Shakespearean prince, for short

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:





Quote of the Day

"Hey, at least the Republican club is entertaining.

–Overheard at rally 3/29/95

U-SAVE AUTO & TRUCK RENTAL
Weekend Special
Noon Friday to Monday A.M.
Starting at $49.95
North Amherst Motors CARSTAR
11 Old Sunderland Rd., North Amherst, MA
549-RENT
Northampton CARSTAR
141A Damon Rd., Northampton
586-4444
-Cars -Mini Vans -Trucks -Cargo Vans
-Direct Billing to Insurance Companies
-We Rent to All Qualified Drivers 21 years or Older

WASHBURN DIGITECH HARMONICS
Need to Record a Demo? Talk To Us!
31 Campus Road, Hadley (near Pizza Hut) • 256-6946

Come Clean With Us!!
Speedwash
11 Pray St. Amherst • 549-1665
Open 24 Hours
Drop-off service available:
Mon. & Tues. 2pm - 10pm
Wed., Thurs. & Fri. 2pm - 10pm
Sat. 10am - 6pm
South Towne Commons Laundromat
479 West St. South Amherst
Open 7 days/week, 7am - 10pm

Sports

Michaels shuts down the Holy Cross Crusaders

■ Senior's control key to victory

By Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Collegian Staff

Senior Jeff Michaels controlled the College of Holy Cross en route to the University of Massachusetts baseball team's 9–1 victory over the Crusaders yesterday at Earl Lorden Field — control being the operative word.

After struggling in his first two appearances this season, walking six batters in just two and two-thirds innings, Michaels (1–0) scattered five hits through seven innings while allowing only one run and more importantly two base– on–balls, picking up his first win as a Minuteman.

Massachusetts	9
Holy Cross	1

Massachusetts moves to 7–6 on the season with the win, while Holy Cross drops to 3–9.

Michaels started the game with four straight strikes — the first three caught Crusader left fielder Jim Cook looking for one of his five strikeouts.

"I just tried to bear down and throw strikes," Michaels said. "After the first few innings, I got into a groove. Except for one bad pitch."

That one bad pitch ended up over the scoreboard in left-field, courtesy of Holy Cross' Mike Calorossi. The first baseman blasted Michaels' offering for his first career home run, tying the game at 1–1 in the top of the third inning. Other than the mistake to Calorossi, Michaels was superb.

"It was real important for [Michaels] and for us that he came out and gave us a good start," Massachusetts coach Mike Stone said. "He was throwing hard, with good velocity and movement. The more guys we get to start games and win, the better it is."

Michaels is the regular first baseman for the Minutemen and by putting him on the mound, Stone took the bat out of the hands of his most dangerous hitters.

"With him concentrating on just pitching and not hitting, it was important for us that we didn't lose much offensively," Stone said.

The Minutemen jumped on Crusader starter Mike Cunningham (three innings pitched, four hits, four walks, seven earned runs) in the first inning. Leftfielder Ryan Jette walked to start the game and stole second. Centerfielder Nate Murphy plated Jette with a one–out single up the middle, giving Massachusetts a 1–0 lead.

With the score tied at one, the top of the Minuteman line–up struck again in the bottom of the third, as Jette again walked, stole second, and advanced to third on a groundout by second baseman Muchie Dagliere. Murphy picked up his second RBI of the game with a sacrifice fly to center, scoring Jette and increasing the Massachusetts lead to 2–1.

The key to the two rallies was Jette, who used his good eye at the plate and his speed to set the table for the Minutemen in the early innings.

"Jette makes things happen, even when he doesn't hit a ball. He'll hit one in the ground, beat it out, or he'll walk, steal a base and get in scoring position," Stone said.

Turn to BASEBALL, page 13

COLLEGIAN FILE

Paced by strong pitching and another big offensive day from Bill Knight, the Minutemen pounded Yale.

UMass should raise Roe's '15' to Mullins rafters

When the University of Massachusetts has its annual men's basketball banquet, the Minutemen should include a ceremony to retire Lou Roe's number 15.

There are three factors that should come into play when debating whether or not to honor a player: talent and on– court production, leadership and character.

Roe is overflowing in all four. His numbers speak for themselves. The leading rebounder of all–time at UMass ... second leading scorer ... most games ever played by a Minuteman ... second team All–American ... Atlantic 10 Player of the Year.

Matt Vautour

Leadership?

There are players who lead by example and those who are vocal. Roe did both. When the team was down, the Atlantic City native carried them on his back.

During his freshman season, someone misdubbed him "TV Lou." The television had nothing to do with it. The games were on TV because they were important games, and Roe stepped up his play for the game, not for the cameras.

To find character, you needn't look further than the "Warrior" moniker.

Despite being only 6 feet 7 inches (if that), Roe has battled with players much taller and come out on top. The team has fed off his intensity and enthusiasm, as the senior co–captain set the tone for play in practice, and it carried over to games.

He stepped it up in the post season as well, as he became the only player ever to be named to four Atlantic 10 All– Tournament teams.

"I'm going to miss this place. I've been a part of a rich tradition in the last four years here," Roe said. "We've been the only team to ever accomplish winning four A–10 titles. That's a great accomplishment. I'm proud to be a part of UMass basketball."

The time to raise the number to the rafters is now. If you wait a couple of years to do it, the students there to see the ceremony will know of Roe only by his legend. Having the ceremony now would give the students who have appreciated him for his four years a chance to honor him before he takes his talents and his heart to the NBA.

Besides, until draft day, Roe is a Minuteman, and while many will say that he will always be a Minuteman, next year Roe will be a member an NBA

Turn to ROE, page 13

Yale overpowers UM lax

Minutewomen drop second game in season with slow start

By Jorma Kansanen
Collegian Staff

Falling behind a tough Yale squad in the first half, the University of Massachusetts women's lacrosse team (0–2) were unable to use a second half run to make up the deficit, as they lost 13–5.

Massachusetts	5
Yale	13

After a 7–2 conclusion in a lackluster first 30 minutes, UMass was able to creep back on its home turf of Totman Field. With a stern effort on defense, ball control in the second frame, and a nice over the head score by freshman attacker Kristin Kramer with 14:11 left, the 9–5 score held a chance for a late comeback. But after four unanswered goals, the still undefeated 4–0 Elis of Yale were able to close it out.

For UMass coach Francesca McClellan, the positives from the close 8–7 triple overtime loss to Brown University last weekend were not there yesterday. To her, only when the team returns to what they have been doing right of late can the loss bring any optimism.

"I think we came out intimidated, played timid and did all the things we did not do against Brown," McClellan said. "When we finally played aggressively and took risks, we took the ball away from them.

"When we made adjustments that we needed to make, like tightening up through the midfield, we were successful. Our offense did not follow the game plan in the beginning, and as a result, we turned over the ball over too many times.

"So, once we followed the game plan, we did okay," she said.

The game opened up with Yale winning the first tip and from there they took advantage of a slow start by the Minutewomen. Paced by five different scorers, including junior attacker Sharon Langhoff, who scored two goals (11 points this season on 6 goals, 5 assists), the Elis ran out to a 7–1 lead. The only highlight for UMass in this run was the goal at 22:19 by freshman attacker Joanna Dignazio, with a nice assist from fellow frosh Sarah Goddard.

Dignazio (two goals) said she saw and felt the effort the team at first did not accomplish but tried to regain in the second half.

"It was a tough first half, we really did not get our feet moving," Dignazio said. "We were not ready, and we were kind of standing still, looking a little bit sluggish.

"As a team, we know we could have played better. We came out and played a great game against Brown, and surprised a lot of people. Today, we were just not on."

The deficit at the half left the Minutewomen with a daunting challenge to get back into the game. After trading goals back and forth to make it 9–4, the stage was

Turn to LACROSSE, page 12

PAUL BILODEAU / COLLEGIAN

Michelle Warrington and the UMass women's lacrosse defense had a difficult time with Yale yesterday, losing 13–5.

Daut and Shaw key to UMass battery

■ Minutewomen open home season today against Yale at Totman

By Andrew Bryce
Collegian Staff

Massachusetts assistant softball coach Mona Stevens admits there are few weaknesses, if any, on the team this season. The experience is there, as the Minutewomen returned six starters and the maturity level has risen.

But if there was a weakness, or something to improve on that could boost them up a notch, Stevens and head coach Elaine Sortino think it involves the pitching staff.

"I wouldn't call it a weakness," Stevens said. "We know we can hit, we know our defense is getting better. But the thing we'd like to see come along is for our pitchers to dominate. I think they have the tools, they have the know– how. Now we have to take that into better strategy then we've pitching with.

"We need to go at them when we have them beat. When we've gotten ready to kill them, with two strikes on them, we need to put the last nail in the coffin. It's about reaching back and being more fierce," she said.

Here is a look at the Minutewomen battery:

Pitching

The Minutewomen have the 1994 Atlantic 10 Pitcher of the Year back on the mound in Kelly Daut. Daut is currently sporting a 7–5 record after the tournaments to Arizona, Virginia and Florida. But what stands out in Sortino's mind are not the wins and losses against the traditionally strong, early-season opponents, but how well she threw in the 12–game stretch.

And Sortino said Daut's earned run average (1.39) against several of the top teams in the country is the key.

"I don't know of any pitcher who has come out off the kind of schedule we play against, she's got a 1.39 ERA," Sortino said. "It's usually 2.50, or 3 or 4. And her losses are against Top 10 teams."

"What's amazing is Kelly is throwing against people that most of [A–10 teams] won't even see," Stevens said. "And she is holding her own. In fact, when we were down in Florida, with the pitchers that were down there, I think that our pitchers could stand in there with all of them.

"Our pitchers can stand in against anybody. Right now, it's just getting them to be pitchers in their heads instead of just pitchers in their bodies."

Daut, who threw a no–hitter to clinch the A–10 regular season title for Massachusetts, has thrown two no–hitters so far this season, with the latest coming against Southwest Missouri on March 20. The senior co–captain is holding opponents to a .199 batting average and has completed each game she has started.

Sortino sees more consistency in Daut then she had in her banner junior season.

"Last year, Kelly would have peaks and valleys. What I am seeing in her this year is she's riding a higher cusp. I don't see her throwing 58 mph to 52 mph, 59 mph to 48 mph," Sortino said.

The second pitcher in the Massachusetts rotation is Dani Ortega. Now in her sophomore season, Ortega is 3–6 this season with a 2.39 ERA. One of the three wins from Ortega included the only shutout recorded thus far this season, beating North Carolina–Charlotte 10–0 on March 4.

In that game, Ortega gave up just two hits.

Last season, Ortega went 10–9 with a 3.52 ERA in an up–and–down year. This spring, she has already shown more consistency and Sortino is not afraid to call on Ortega.

Sortino and Stevens hope to have a third pitcher in the rotation, but have been unable to so far this season. Injured lefthander Liz Wagner is the prospect, although her shoulder injury is holding her back. According to Sortino, Wagner has been practicing, but has yet to throw a single pitch in the games.

Catcher

Michele Shaw is the number one backstop for Massachusetts. A junior, Shaw is the field general for the Minutewomen for the second straight year.

"She made some mistakes early on, but she has improved," Sortino said. "I see her playing more of a leadership role where she is working with the pitcher a little bit more."

The Minutewomen host Yale today in a double–header for their home openers at Totman Field at 2 p.m.

COLLEGIAN FILE

Senior Kelly Daut, the 1994 A–10 Pitcher of the Year, has already pitched two no–hitters so far this season.

The Massachusetts

DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CIV Issue 102 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Friday, March 31, 1995

Minutewomen to play in Preseason NIT

Joanie O'Brien and her Minutewomen were one of 16 teams selected to participate in the 1995 Preseason NIT (See Sports, page 8).

To vote or not to vote

Why don't students rock the vote? Is it apathy? Find out what some of your peers think (See Campus Perspectives, page 3).

Panic on the streets of NoHo

Valley favorites Widespread Panic will returning to Pearl Street Nightclub in Northampton next week (See Arts & Living, page 5).

Weekend Forecast

Clouds giving way to sun this afternoon with highs near 50. Wind increasing late in the day, with lows tonight around 30. Mostly sunny tomorrow.

Today	Saturday	Sunday
HIGH: 50 LOW: 28	HIGH: 50 LOW: 30	HIGH: 50 LOW: 35

Bayno named UNLV head coach

By Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Collegian Staff

Seven years ago, University of Massachusetts men's basketball head coach John Calipari was hired to rebuild one of the worst programs in America. Seven years later, one of his assistants will now be asked to do the same.

Massachusetts assistant coach Bill Bayno was hired as head coach of the University of Nevada–Las Vegas men's basketball team yesterday, replacing former coach Tim Grgurich, who resigned on March 3 for health reasons.

At a news conference announcing his hiring, Bayno promised he would work to return the UNLV program to the prominence it once held under former coach Jerry Tarkanian, who was forced to leave his position with the Runnin' Rebels in 1992.

"The enormous opportunity that presents itself here, to run this program and be the head coach of what was once obviously the greatest basketball program in the country, is a dream," Bayno said.

It is the first head coaching job for the 32–year–old Bayno, who flew to Las Vegas from New Jersey after the Minutemen lost to Oklahoma State in the NCAA tournament last Sunday. He interviewed with UNLV athletic director Jim Weaver and interim university president Dr. Kenny Guinn on Monday and accepted the job offer last night.

He was introduced to the media at a press conference by Guinn, who said Bayno was the best choice for the financial package of $300,000 a year, which was the most UNLV could offer.

"This is the culmination of a 25–day search. It was a fast process and we had a number of candidates, anyone of which we would have been pleased to have," Guinn said. "We just felt that this young man was the person to head up the program and promote both good basketball and good academics."

Bill Bayno

According to reports, Bayno's persistence and his determination to become the coach of the Runnin' Rebels won him the job over six other finalists. UNLV had previously shown interest in University of Oregon head coach Jerry Green, but he chose to remain with the Ducks.

Bayno will try to turn around a program that went from a national championship in 1990 to the school's worst record in 35 years, 12–16, this past season. The Rebels have since been through four coaches, including Rollie Massimino, who had his contract bought out for $1.8 million last year amid controversy.

When officials learned former UNLV president Robert Maxson had given Massimino a secret contract in addition to his public one, public sentiment pushed the university into buying out the remainder of Massimino's contract. He was then replaced by Grgurich.

Bayno said that he didn't want to dwell on the bad times at UNLV, but rather, he wanted to get the program back to its winning ways.

"All I looked at was the positives that occurred in the past, the great teams, the great coaches," Bayno said. "I grew up watching UNLV basketball. Every time I watched them play, their hearts and souls were left on the courts. They were the hardest playing team in the country."

Bayno was the first assistant hired by Calipari when he took over the Massachusetts program in 1988. A native of Goshen, N.Y., he graduated from Sacred Heart in Fairfield, Conn., in 1985.

After working with P.J. Carlesimo as a graduate assistant coach at Seton Hall, Bayno joined Larry Brown's staff at Kansas in 1987 before serving as an assistant at Baptist College in Charleston, S.C.

Calipari has not yet announced his plans to fill the vacancy on the Massachusetts coaching staff left by Bayno's departure.

SCERA looks for students for statehouse day

By Marnie Thamel
Collegian Staff

Putting up posters and raising awareness for the third University of Massachusetts Statehouse Day will occupy the weekend for members of Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy (SCERA).

On April 11, students from SCERA and the Student Government Association will travel to Boston to meet with legislators and hear Gov. William F. Weld speak in regard to the state budget.

The day, sponsored by the office of attending President Michael K. Hooker, will include one on one appointments with students and legislators from their districts, a speech by Maurice Donahue, former president of the senate, and an informal buffet for legislators and students.

"Our ultimate goal is to increase legislature support for the University and to make the legislature extend its commitment to public education through higher ed," said Lynn Robitaille, legislative organizer for SCERA, who will be attending the event.

Students from UMass–Dartmouth, Lowell and Boston will also be in attendance, according to Marc Kenen, director of SCERA.

"They are much smaller but are doing their best to turn people out," he said.

The chancellor or provost will send a letter to faculty, encouraging lecturers about missing classes to attend statehouse day, according to Robitaille.

"Faculty gives students the room to participate because it is an educational experience," she said. "Last year it worked really well especially in some classes — some teachers would bring classes or give classes extra credit if they attended."

Statehouse day is important because it coincides with the debate of the state's budget, which will take place from April 9–12, according to Robitaille.

"We need to make a strong presence so we have a positive influence on the debate," she said.

If students are aware of the issues they will be more likely to go to the statehouse, Chamberlain said.

"We are getting one on one with students," she said. "Our main thing to them is you can either pay the increase or you can get involved and fight it."

SCERA advocates will be going door to door with information about statehouse day, tuition increases and format letters to send to legislators.

"We have the second highest public university tuition and a lot of students don't know that," Chamberlain said.

SCERA representatives will ask students to write a few lines about things they are concerned with at the University.

"Students can write about anything — the dorms and buildings falling apart or how they are being taught by TAs, to let the senators know that the student cares," Chamberlain said.

Students will also be able to sign up for the trip, for which transportation and funding will be provided by SCERA, according to Kenen. Sign up sheets are being distributed around campus, he said.

The Graduate Employment Organization (GEO) and the faculty union are also lending hands in the fight, according to Robitaille.

In addition to students there will be a lot of faculty attending, she said.

"GEO has been organizing members and asking TAs to talk [statehouse day] up in their classes," said Ted Chambers of GEO. "We haven't set any goals, but our emphasis is try-

Delays at Conte Center leave depts without space

By Christopher Hassett
Collegian Staff

The Silvio O. Conte Polymer Science Research Center has its resident faculty all smiling, but the lab delays have four departments waiting for more space.

Once the polymer science staff moves into the research center, their vacant labs and offices will be taken over by the chemistry, bio–chemistry and physics departments.

The lab wing of the Research Center is still closed due to ongoing problems stemming mainly from the air ventilation systems. The problems were unexpected, but not unusual, said James Cahill, director of Facilities and Planning.

The completion date for the $56 million building was originally planned for last June and then rescheduled to open last November. The adjustments made to the ventilation system, although helpful, failed to bring the system up to the required specifications, Cahill said.

"There are some design flaws that are being addressed," Cahill said. "We are currently making other alterations which we believe will solve the deficiencies."

The ventilation system is a complex and highly sophisticated design, Cahill said. The system is designed to be energy efficient by reducing and increasing the air flow as needed instead of a constant stream of air. This saves the buildings heating costs in the winter and cooling costs in the summer.

The ventilation system is used to remove toxic gasses from fume hoods, which are special working areas found in chemical laboratories. There are 150 fume hoods in the research center and the ventilation system is designed with the capability of adding 75 additional hoods as needed.

There are no dates set for the labs to open. The necessary alterations are hoped to be completed by early May and then the system will need to undergo additional testing. If all the problems are solved, then the lab staff may be able to move in over the summer, Cahill said.

Other departments want space

The researchers of the polymer science department are not the only ones waiting for the labs to open.

The chemistry department, suffering from crowded and obsolete labs, stands to gain more lab space in Goessmann once the polymer science department moves out, said Peter Lillya, associate head of the chemistry department.

Using this new space, chemistry will finally have the resources to centralize their undergraduate teaching labs into one area, the second floor of Goessmann, Lillya said.

The bio–chemical department has been unable to work up to its potential due to lack of lab space to work in, said Maurille Fournier, associate head of the department.

"We've lived in very crowded conditions for the past 12 years or so," Fournier said. "Once we get the space we can get cooking again."

The physics department will be gaining new office space which it will be using for it's large millimeter telescope project, said John Dubach, head of the physics department.

Offices open already

The office wing of the research center opened early last February and staff continues to move in, Cahill said.

Twenty–seven years ago, professor Robert Lenz of the polymer science department shared a windowless and crowded office with two other people. Now he has a spacious, modern office with a wide view.

The research center offices are tremendously convenient, have plenty of space to work with and make coming to work lots of fun, Lenz said.

The offices have a lot of window space, have a lot of natural light and are very cheerful, said worker Bonnie Webster.

Turn to CONTE, page 2

SHINICHIRO SUZUKI / COLLEGIAN

Sing a song

Student volunteers practiced for this year's undergraduate commencement ceremonies at Goodell yesterday. The group will be performing at graduation in May.

Dube indicted after accident killed UM student

By Tim White
Collegian Staff

SALEM — A man who was charged with vehicular homicide of a former University of Massachusetts student was indicted Wednesday on three charges.

Bernard J. Dube, 52, of Amesbury, was indicted at Essex County Superior Court at Salem with charges of vehicular homicide while driving drunk, leaving the scene of an accidents after property damage and driving to endanger.

Dube was arrested Feb. 1 after his pick–up truck slammed into the side of a car that 18–year–old Joseph Liguori, of Amesbury, was driving, killing him instantly.

Tests show that Dube had a .20 blood alcohol level from samples taken after the accident, police said. The legal blood alcohol content is anything below .08 for persons over 21 years old.

The second charge, leaving the scene of an accident after property damage, occurred earlier that evening when Dube allegedly rear–ended another vehicle in Wenham, then left the scene.

According to the registrar's office, Liguori was enrolled last semester as a freshman business major. He played in the UMass Minuteman marching band as a snare–drummer.

At the time, Liguori was enrolled in North Essex Community College, waiting for a transfer to Salem State College.

Dube is currently being held on $10,000 cash bail. A date has not been set for his arraignment.

NOW declares culture of violence

By Aimee Schwartz
Collegian Staff

Vice–president of the National Organization for Women, Rosemary Dempsey, spoke on "Changing the Culture of Violence Against Women," Wednesday night in Herter Hall to a crowd of less than 10 people.

Dempsey's visit is part of "NOW's 100 Days of Action designed to counter Republican plans for the first 100 days of Congress, as spelled out in the Contract ON America. NOW's actions will culminate in a massive Rally for Women's Lives, April 9, on the mall in front of the U.S. Capital," according to a flyer given out at the speech.

Calling attention to the "very aggressive agenda of the right wing that is now in Congress," Dempsey said, the April 9 rally "comes at an exceedingly important time ... right at the end of this wonderful 100 days that the right wing has promised us to try to push the country back about 60 to 75 years.

"[Also] it comes right after these days of action in which people have organized so well and a lot of the issues, the teach–ins, and the issues have been brought together physically around violence against women."

Violence against women

Dempsey explained, "Violence is a strategy, it is leveled against women to keep women in line."

After briefly highlighting feminist history, Dempsey discussed current trends in feminism.

"The feminist movement in this country has not overcome certain things in society," said Dempsey. She suggested people "turn around the whole idea of what women are, what men are, what boys are, what girls are in terms of violence.

"Little boys, at a very early age, learn they need to be able to use violence effectively, to fight, to protect what's their's, and take a little from other people by using their physical power, violence. If they can't do that, somebody is going to call them a girl. This is the worst thing they can be called," said Dempsey.

Dempsey explained that "woman hating" is accepted in our society. "The issue of violence against women has been with us for several thousand years, specifically in terms of maintaining the power structure as it is, as it was meant to be [as a patriarchal society]."

Dempsey asked, "Why do we need to go to Washington? [Because] Newt Gingrich and the boys are trying to reinstitute where [women] were before 1967, in terms of where women should be and using women to be the major scapegoats. [They] also are trying to divide women along the basis of race and class."

The Personal Responsibility Act would do away with entitlements to the poor. "Social Security and Welfare benefits provide a bottom floor to which nobody could fall through," said Dempsey.

She explained the contradiction that poor, young mothers are viewed as being totally unfit to bring up children. They are expected to be in the work force. Middle–class mothers are expected to stay home with their children and instill family values.

It is the first national mobilization whose central theme is all about using violence as a strategy to keep women and other folks under control.

It will talk about the rape culture and the culture of violence, "and how these guys — Newt Gingrich, Dick Armey and Rush Limbaugh — have elevated to new heights how these two intersect and how the people in this country are not going to take it and how we're not going to go back," said Dempsey.

She said if there are not a lot of young people at the rally, Congress will mistake what the real issues are. She used the example of college campuses as models of mass mobilization, "because the major thing that these mass mobilizations do is bring the real issues to the people and to the elected officials and force them to deal with them."

For more information on the April 9 rally, call the Everywoman's Center at 545–0883.

Rosemary Dempsey COURTESY OF NOW

Senators reject loan program increases

By Sally Streff Buzbee
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Clinton's proposal to speed implementation of a new direct student loan program was rejected Thursday by Republican and Democratic senators despite their praise of the Education Department's administration of the program its first year.

"Many first-year participating schools hail the program as a success," noted Sen. Jim Jeffords (R-Vt.) who chairs the Labor and Human Resources Committee's education subcommittee. But he said he wants to know more about long-term implications "before pushing forward too fast."

"Anybody can give money away," Jeffords said. "Getting it back is just not so easy."

The Education Department is developing ways to track possible problems with direct loans, Deputy Education Secretary Madeleine Kunin told Jeffords at a hearing of his panel. In general, she said, her department has much "more accurate, timely" data than before, and that will help collection efforts.

Meanwhile, the direct loans have made the lives of students and college officials easier by cutting red tape, long waits and confusion, Kunin said: "It's rare in the department that we've had such satisfied customers."

Clinton is promoting direct lending as a way to save money by eliminating government subsidies to the banks and private agencies that run the old guaranteed student-loan program.

But Sen. Dan Coats (R-Ind.) said Clinton is overestimating savings by failing to account for the Education Department's administrative costs.

Under the old loan program, a private bank made a loan to a student and a private guaranty agency backed it, with ultimate backup from the government.

Under direct lending, the government gives the money directly to the students through their schools' financial aid offices. Students have a much more flexible payback schedule.

In its first year, the program includes 5 percent of schools receiving student loans, and in the coming year, 40 percent. The original agreement was to have 50 percent direct lending in the third year and 60 percent in the fourth.

But Clinton now wants 80 percent direct lending in year three and 100 percent in year four. Republicans, in turn, have proposed capping direct lending at 40 percent for the next few years. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.) and Sen. Claiborne Pell (D-R.I.) both said Thursday that they want to remain with the original agreement.

Kunin said the Education Department wants to switch entirely to the new program because the department would have trouble running two loan programs at once for a long period of time.

Ironically, she said, the new program has prompted many banks and private guaranty agencies to offer students improved services under the old program, including better terms and fees and more flexible payback schedules which they "always told us they couldn't do before."

Grief group needs aid to survive

By Paul Hayes
Collegian Correspondent

A death in the family can be a very hard and painful thing to deal with — just ask Jethro Heiko.

Jethro Heiko is the founder of the Grief Survival Group, an organization on campus dedicated to helping those who have suffered the loss of a loved one, or any personal loss.

Right now, the future of the group is unclear.

"The University is refusing to take a leadership role in helping to ensure that the Grief Survival Group will exist in the future," Jethro said. The reason for this lack of support being that it has not achieved Registered Student Organization (RSO) status.

The Grief Survival Group is not an RSO because they cannot fit into that title's rigid format.

In an RSO you need a governing body, and a group of paying members. The Grief Survival Group has no place for these restrictions because the members come and go as their grief does. As a result of not being an RSO, they receive no funding from the University.

The group is run in a very informal fashion. Those in attendance are allowed to speak openly, anything they say is kept confidentially in the group and names need not be used.

All are welcome to come, you may bring a friend if you want them there to comfort you, Jethro said. There is no set schedule, you are not obligated to come to all the meetings and it is run strictly on a drop-in basis.

"Quite often, friendships arise out of these meetings based on this common experience, transcending all lines of gender, religion, color and politics," Jethro said.

Discussions and support

Each meeting begins with the discussion of a topic relevant to the group, but conversations are not relegated to that particular topic, it is only used as an icebreaker to get people to talk about and share their experiences.

The main function of the group is to help students cope with the death of someone close to them, to help them find support in one another. Jethro said that he also hopes this group will prevent other students from withdrawing from the university as he did, and stay in school instead.

Jethro said that he is adamant about ensuring a future for this organization — for him, the people he has helped and the hundreds to thousands that will need help coping with death, loss and the accompanying feelings in the years to come.

In the summer of 1993, following Jethro's sophomore year, his father passed away as a result of cancer. When he returned to school that fall, he says, "I was often exhausted and depressed, and became very confused about my life in general."

He was so distraught that he decided to take the following spring semester off and travel to clear his head. When he returned from his trip, he enrolled in a bereavement support group in Waltham.

After being involved in this group, he decided that such an experience would be helpful to other students in similar situations as his.

He also saw the need of establishing such a group on campus because, on a campus of this size where partying is the rule, support for people in situations such as his can be very hard to come by.

Future unclear

Jethro is no longer the leader of this group. It is now headed up and run by Brynda Holden, a post doctoral trainee in clinical psychology.

Holden has prior experience running groups like these, and she has also experienced the loss of someone very close to her. The latter being one of the major reasons Jethro chose her to replace him. The reason he stepped down as head of the group is that he "... couldn't detach himself from the emotions which were present at the meetings."

As for the group itself, such a smooth transition from past to present is not as likely.

"We can survive this semester without funding," says Holden, "but for [the group] to continue, staple funding is necessary.

"We have to get the University to recognize that this group is very necessary."

■ Conte

continued from page 1

Moving into the new offices was a difficult adjustment, Webster said. The desks are designed differently, with overhead bins instead of drawers for storage and moveable cabinets for storing files.

"I have since adjusted and I like [my office]," said Webster. "I'm very happy here."

Because the labs are not yet ready, faculty located in the office wing must communicate through telephone or take time to walk to and from their labs scattered around campus.

When the labs in the Research Center open up, Lenz will have to walk down the hall to work in his lab instead of walking to Goessmann.

"Communication is much more difficult," Lenz said. "We are all looking forward to the labs opening up."

tonight...
1/2 PRICE APPETIZERS
9:30-11:00
Weekly Special
Pitchers $4.75 RED DOG 12 oz. Bottles $1.75
Smoking Section 10-1
THE PUB
Drawing For T-Shirts
15 east pleasant street
amherst

Book now before the Rush!
LONDON $199
From Boston:
AMSTERDAM $289
BRUSSELS $259
MADRID $309
SEATTLE $184
From New York:
COSTA RICA $219
GUATEMALA $249
QUITO $305
SANFRANCISCO $184
Fares are each way based on round trip purchase from Boston or New York. Student or Faculty ID may be required. Taxes & surcharges not included. Fares subject to change.
FREE "Student Travels" Magazine!
Council Travel
79 So. Pleasant St
Amherst, MA 01002
(413) 256-1261

Write for the Valley's best source for entertainment news & views!
ARTS & LIVING
Call 545-1261 for more info

Collegian Classifieds Every day!

Legal Assistants Wanted!
The Student Legal Services Office is accepting applications for Fall 1995 internships. Earn up to fifteen credits. Deadline is April 14, 1995.
No experience necessary.
Call today for details!
545-1995

The Collegian Business Desk is looking for writers.
We need writers with a wide variety of interests in the business world locally and nationally. No prior experience is necessary.
Come to our office in the Campus Center, room 113, and talk with Matt Wurtzel.
Or give us a call at 545-0719.

The Final Cuts.
Final exams.
The last barrier to summer.
Beyond it lies freedom.
Before it, sheer horror.
Ease the pain with some new study tunes, on sale at Media Play.

10.95 CD list 16.99
7.95 Cassette list 10.98
MEDIA PLAY
MUSIC • BOOKS • MOVIES • SOFTWARE
Hampshire Mall, 341 Russell Street, Hadley, 582-0410
Open Mon – Sat: 10 – 9, Sun 11 – 5
Sale prices good through April 6.
81-0190-035

Campus Perspectives

Compiled by Marnie Thamel • Photos by Daymion Smith

Do you think there is lack of student concern or apathy about voting and politics? Why?

"I think there should be more influence by students. Most [students] probably don't care. Most don't think about it, depending on what the concern is. Whatever they are voting on doesn't affect them."
SCOTT MILES
sophomore, civil engineering
Chicopee

"Honestly I don't know. When students get that transition from high school to college they become more concerned with voting. I think they become more involved to learn about government and their rights, what they can do and what they can't do."
JAMES KIRNON
freshman, biology
Boston

"Yeah, because students are not willing to vote, and they are not trying to make the best of the United States. They should get involved because it is our country. [Students] just worry about their own things."
KEVIN POY
freshman, sociology
Northampton

"Actually, I think campus has been pretty good about voting and getting people to register to vote. I don't know how many students actually vote, but around election time there are always people trying to get you to vote."
LORI HANSSEN
junior, biochemistry
Norfolk

"I think by, in large students probably don't care. I guess there is not so much awareness of it. From my point of view, I am not aware. I wouldn't say apathy, if you don't know about something, how can you have an opinion about it?"
VANDANA GUNUPUDI
graduate student, mechanical engineering
Ahmedabad, India

"Yes, as a student, I don't care. I pay attention, but I don't get all deep into it. I read the paper ever once in a while and watch the news, but I have a lot of other things on my mind right now. I play a sport and that keeps me involved in that only."
STEPHANIE MAREINA
sophomore, undecided
Garden Grove, Calif.

"I think in general, yes, but I think there are some really hard-working people. [Students] are uneducated and that is the main issue. I think there is apathy in the American people, it is not just a student thing. Last election the voting percentage was 23 percent."
JOSHUA CLARKE
senior, ecology
Bedford

Policy for space allocation released

By Henry J. Brier
Collegian Staff

The Campus Center/Student Union (CC/SU) Commission met last night after having released their completed and approved Space Allocation Policy earlier this week.

The policy includes a procedure outlining the commission's intent to allocate office space to RSOs (Registered Student Organizations), GSOs (Graduate Student Organizations) and Agencies, all based on "fair and reasonable criteria," according to the text of the procedure.

The campus' RSOs, GSOs and Agencies that have been in their current office space for at least ten years and have completed a Space Allocation Application/Renewal Form within the past three years are exempt from the procedure and secure in their current office space, according to the text. They must submit a letter of intent to the Commission expressing their desire to continue occupance.

Also included in the policy is the Space Allocation Application/Renewal Form, complete with an affirmative action statement. This form is to be filled out by the RSOs, GSOs and Agencies either requesting space or wishing to remain in the same designated office.

There are 65 RSOs, GSOs and Agencies currently occupying office space, according to Esther Salas, Commission Vending Officer, whose responsibility is to maintain and execute vending policy to benefit the students. There are approximately 200 RSOs, GSOs and Agencies.

Matthew Auger, Commission Chair, said that the number of organizations requesting office space supersedes space available in the CC/SU Complex, thus strongly recommends that each organization use care while completing the form.

Part of the policy is a Space Agreement Form, which will be distributed to the organization and ultimately returned after it is signed when the Commission has finished designating space.

Applications are due by 5 p.m. on April 12, 1995, Auger said. After consideration, decisions will be made in May.

In related Commission business, Aidelisa Carrasco, former secretary of AHORA, presented the Commission with a mural which will be donated after it is used tonight at Latin American Multicultural Night. She would like it hung in the CC/SU Complex because there is "no drawing that represents the 21 Latin American countries."

"As student representatives, we need to have control over what art is put up in the Campus Center," said Jennifer Hall, who was voted facilities officer, a position vacated March 2.

The responsibility of the facilities officer is to handle any kind of renovation issue, and discussion about where the mural will be hung was tabled to the meeting next week.

UMass trash may save Amherst dump

By Christopher Hassett
Collegian Staff

The Amherst town dump's budget may quickly run out of money if the University of Massachusetts manages to find cheaper dump rates at another landfill.

The dump, built in 1986, was one of the first of its kind in the state of Massachusetts when built. The dump met sanitary conditions then, which today are required by law, said Karen Bouquillon, solid waste recycling coordinator for the town of Amherst.

These sanitary conditions include a clay and a synthetic liner which helps prevent water pollution, and a leachate collection system, also to help prevent water pollution, said Noel Ryan, Amherst superintendent of works.

"When the landfill was first designed, it was designed with the University in mind. It provided the University with a safe and sanitary place to put their waste," Ryan said. "It would have a real financial impact on the town if they were to take their trash our of town."

Since float control was abolished last summer by the Supreme Court, the UMass solid waste department is in the process of writing a Request for Proposal (RFP) for other dumps to bid on what they would charge UMass for trash removal.

Float control was a regulation that said if trash is picked up in a certain town, then it must be disposed of in the dump located in that town. The Supreme Court struck it down last summer as a barrier to free trade, said Marc Fournier, solid waste manager for the University.

The dump currently charges $55 per ton for dumping, Fournier said. UMass spends $250,000 per year on dump fees, Fournier said.

"Trash fees are a big expense," Fournier said. "Taxpayers would want us to look at what the market would bear."

Both UMass and Amherst officials fear dumping trash elsewhere could damage University and town relations.

"Good business is not always based on economic facts alone," Bouquillon said. "If UMass trash goes out of Amherst then we're talking about a matter of months rather than years before [the budget problems] become serious."

The UMass solid waste department is only in the process of writing an RFP and no definite plans have been made, Fournier said.

"We will make all our decisions based on the whole picture," he said.

The University dumped 5,845 tons of trash in the Amherst dump last year, Fournier said.

Do you like music?
Then we have the job for you.
University Productions and Concerts is currently accepting applications for the following positions:
- Production Manager
- Stage Manager
- Advertising
- Promotions
- Talent Coordinator
- Multicultural Talent Coordinator
- Office Manager
- Business Manager
- Hospitality
- Security

Get involved and make the music come to life!

For more information please contact UPC at 545-2892, or stop by our office at 406 Student Union

AHORA
THE UMASS SPANISH SPEAKING ORGANIZATION
Proudly Presents
The First Latin American Cultural Night
EXPLORING LATIN AMERICA
COME AND JOIN US TO COMMEMORATE AND CELEBRATE OUR CULTURE.
CULTURAL PERFORMANCES, FOLKLORIC DANCES AND MUCH MORE!
SPECIAL PRESENTATION OF LATIN AMERICAN MURAL BY DENNY MONTALVO.

Friday, March 31, 1995
7:00pm
UMASS Campus Center Auditorium
FREE FOOD! FREE ADMISSION! FREE PARTY!
PARTY AFTER THE CULTURAL SHOW!
(SEMI-FORMAL)
Sponsored by: AHORA, Casa Dominicana, Cultural Enrichment Fund, Latin American Cultural Center, Chancellor's Office, Fiesta Bake Shop (Holyoke, MA) and Medina's Market(Holyoke, MA.)

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Durienne J. Hosley Editor-in-Chief Kelly Spang Managing Editor
Michael McRae Business Manager Andrew D. Davidson Production Manager Lisa Tannenbaum Advertising Manager
James P. Ganley Advertising Production Manager Lisa Greenfield Senior Diversity Editor

Matt Audette Arts & Living Editor Paul Bilodeau Photography Editor
Chris Taylor Conner Black Affairs Editor Andrew Bryce, Matt Vautour Sports Editors
Matt Wurtzel Business Editor Jeff Wilson Staff Artist
Juan Jose Chacon Quiros Developing Nations Editor Lisa Greenfield, Colleen Shanahan Women's Issues Editors
Tracy Monahan Editorial/Opinion Editor Marni E. Heffner Editorial Production Manager
Wendy Darling Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor John Khachadoorian Finance Manager
Jacob W. Michaels Jewish Affairs Editor Eric Abensein Distribution Manager
Hernan Rozemberg Multicultural Affairs Editor Maureen Majerowski Senior Bookkeeper
Jessica Taverna News Editor Marty Peppas Classified Advertising

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1958. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Finding Mr. or Ms. Right

Having trouble getting a date? If you're like most college students, the answer is probably yes. Everybody seems to be looking, but people shuffle around so much it's hard to find time to get to know someone. And where do you find these people — on your floor, in the dining common, in class? Finding the right person is a pain in the butt.

No matter how hard dating is for everyone, however, it's somewhat more complicated for gays, lesbians and bisexuals. Everyone worries about rejection, but not everyone has to worry about homophobia.

Some people think that gay men spend their time hopping from bed to bed and never have a problem getting dates. Whatever. A senator from California once confronted gay politician Harvey Milk with a statistic saying the average gay man has over 500 sexual contacts in his lifetime. "I wish," said Milk.

In the real world of the college campus, gay and bisexual men have a lot of trouble getting dates. This isn't because they're ugly or stupid or a bunch of jerks. One of the biggest problems is that it is just so hard to find men who are — without a doubt — gay or bisexual.

You can look at a guy, read his T-shirt, and watch where he hangs out, but unless you see him in a relationship with another man or he tells you somehow, you don't know what's up. And if you don't know for sure, do you really want to try anything? What if the guy is straight?

Some guys might be O.K. with it and might even take it as a compliment, but other guys would flip. Even if they don't flip, they might start to treat you differently afterward. Is it really worth it? A lot of gay and bisexual men have to decide that it's not, then spend their time on guys who are definitely queer.

If you are, like me, an out member of the GLB community, people are going to assume you're gay or lesbian. They don't think about bisexuals, so when you say GLB, they think GL.

Wendy Darling

The bad thing about this is that there aren't too many guys who are out on this campus. Lots of guys are in the closet, hiding from everybody. There isn't much chance that somebody is going to find them, so they spend their time in college feeling lonely and isolated. Meanwhile the guys who are out looking and looking and can't find anybody. It's a farce, and a sad one at that.

The situation is not much better for bisexuals. Woody Allen remarked that "bisexuality immediately doubles your chances for a date on Saturday night," but this is simply not true.

If you are, like me, an out member of the GLB community, people are going to assume you're gay or lesbian. They don't think about bisexuals, so when you say GLB, they think GL. Even if you tell them you're bisexual, they assume that it's the gay or lesbian part that dominates. So most people just forget the "bi" part and give up on you. Nobody asks about you. Nobody flirts. Why bother?

Around a year ago, I went on a date with a guy from class. Back in my room after the date, I tossed him a balloon that had been lying around, and suddenly he was lost. The balloon was a promotional item from Strong Gay Days 1993. His face went white, and he said something about how his sister used to live next door from the Program for GLB Concerns. After the date, he never talked to me again.

I can't help feeling that I must have scared him. He probably thinks he went out with a lesbian — just because of a stupid balloon. Even though I really wasn't attracted to him, I wish he could know that it's not because he's a man. I'm not a lesbian — you hear that?

On the other end of this spectrum, being bisexual in the GLB community is a pain, too. Show any interest in the opposite sex and lesbians and gay men seem to get confused. They figure you're not as committed to the community as you should be. They figure you've "swung" over to take advantage of some "heterosexual privilege." They figure they should just give up and stop wasting their time on you — why bother if you're not "real?"

This is not a personal ad, by the way, but please remember that this personal problem is a political problem as well. The closet is keeping some people from getting dates and getting loved, and that is really sad. Those things should be open to everybody.

Wendy Darling is a Collegian staff member.

A pleasant visit to Whitmore

It's kind of neat to go to a university where, even after almost eight full semesters, you can still walk around campus and discover new places.

Yesterday, I had the good fortune of stumbling upon one of these hidden gems.

Actually, that's not exactly true. One of my friends told me once that there was a cafeteria in the basement of Whitmore, so I didn't really stumble upon it. But I had to see it to believe it. I seemed like the ideal time to see what this place was like — if, in fact, it existed. I was hungry, I was close by and I wanted to get out of the rain.

Still, the whole idea of going to Whitmore for lunch struck me as a little odd. I mean, it's not exactly a campus hot spot, and just the name of the place is enough to make most of us lose our appetites.

But alas, I hiked up the entrance ramp and, after picking up a revised copy of my schedule (I had to at least take care of some business), I proceeded downstairs in search of this alleged cafeteria. After searching down a few dead end hallways, I saw some tables and chairs in the distance — this was the place.

For those of you who haven't been there (and I assume this means most of you), let me give you an idea of what this place is like. It immediately reminded me of the cafeteria in the hospital where my dad works — relatively quiet, a few important-looking people, and a surprisingly vast selection for such a small place. I was pleasantly surprised.

I was also pleased when I headed to the cash register. A hamburger, small fries and a bottle of Coke came to around $2.75. While this doesn't exactly qualify as an extra-value meal, it is quite a bit less than I have paid for lunches at other campus eateries. At the Coffee Shop, for instance, the same amount of food will cost almost double the price.

After paying, I ran into a friend of mine whom I met while I was on exchange in South Carolina. We were shooting the breeze when suddenly one of the women who worked at the snack bar (I'm still unclear as to what to call this place) approached me. "Did you get enough fries, hon?" she asked as she proceeded to pile some more fries onto my plate. I hardly knew what to say. I can't remember the last time someone went out of their way to do something for me at an eating establishment of any kind after I had already paid for my meal. All I could do was smile as I hurried to finish my now extra-tall pile of fries before my class. I was now sorry that I had to rush off.

As I scurried to Bartlett so I could find a seat in my 2:30 class, I wondered why I hadn't found out about such a place sooner. This got me thinking about all of the other little hidden places on campus that students like to think of as their own.

I'm always surprised when I walk by the furnished study rooms in the Newman Center and see them less than full. Why would you ever go to the library when you can study on a couch? I was then reminded of another snack bar I once heard of in Flint Lab. These places are everywhere. You just have to know where to look.

While all of this may sound like an ad for the Whitmore snack bar and places like it, it's really not. After you get into a certain routine, you tend to stop looking for new places, for different things to do. The everyday grind sometimes creates an "automatic pilot" mindset in which we put on the blinders to anything outside of the status quo.

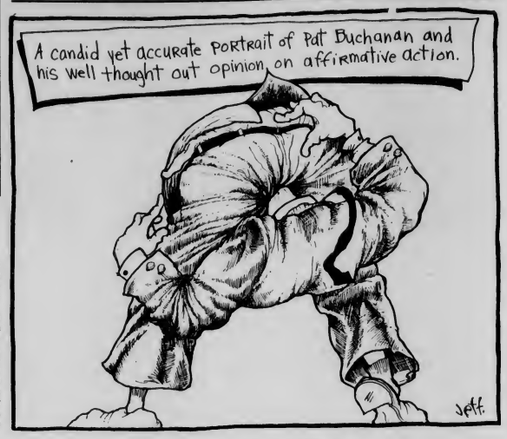
My little excursion to this snack bar in the basement of Whitmore was hardly a landmark journey. What it did, however, was open my eyes to the idea that there are still new things for me to discover here on campus, even though I'll be leaving in less than two months. If my 1 p.m. class had gone for the full hour and 15 minutes, I never would have had the time to go over to Whitmore, and I probably never would have thought to go eat lunch in Whitmore ever again. But as fate would have it, I had a few extra minutes and ended up enjoying a small pleasure which made me appreciate UMass and its little hidden treasures just a little bit more. The extra fries didn't hurt, either.

Caleb Cochran is a Collegian columnist.

Doonesbury By Garry Trudeau

HEY, FATHER DUKE, THE GARAGE SEEMED KIND OF MESSY, SO I PICKED IT UP. OKAY?
YEAH, FINE, KID.
I LIKE THIS HOME SO MUCH BETTER THAN MY LAST ONE! THEY MADE ME LEAVE BECAUSE I SET FIRE TO THE CARPET.
BEFORE THAT, I DROPPED MY FOSTER FATHER'S GOLF CLUBS OFF A BRIDGE. AND BEFORE THAT I TIED UP BOTH MY FOSTER PARENTS IN BED AND SPRAY-PAINTED THEM!
PSST, SIR! STEWART'S DESPERATE FOR ATTENTION.
NO KIDDING.
SO, WANNA PLAY BALL?

Opinion/Editorial



COLLEGIAN ART BY JEFF WILSON

Screwing up M&Ms purity

There was a ghastly sight in New York City the other night — the storied Empire State Building was flooded in blue light. Bright blue light, making all the Manhattan crack heads think that they were about to become victims of the biggest drug bust in history.

Relax, but only for a minute. This wasn't a preview to the GOP's promise of more police officers in the United States. It was a preview of the new M&M color.

The Mars candy company announced on Wednesday that in the very near future consumers of their most famous candy, M&Ms, will have an added color in their little brown and yellow bags. Blue joins green, red (which was suspended from the line up for several years after it was determined that the red dye was a deadly poison), yellow, orange, dirt brown and poop brown in the potpourri of candy colors.

And to celebrate, the Empire State Building was flooded in light. Now was that really necessary? After all, we are talking about candy.

But if the city of New York is willing to take M&Ms seriously, so am I.

Contrary to popular beliefs and overworked ad campaigns, M&Ms do have the capability to melt in your hands. I proved that as a four-year-old child, when shopping with my mother. To quell my persistent whining, she bought me a package of M&Ms. I opened the package, took the first few tiny chocolate morsels in my hand, held them there for several minutes then proceeded to run up my parent's credit line by trashing a white sale.

By the way, white was not one of the colors considered for the new M&M.

Needless to say, I am a bit upset that the Mars Company would even consider toying with a piece of Americana so noble as the M&M. I was outraged a few years ago when peanut butter, mint and almond joined the original line of peanut and plain M&Ms. I hate to admit it, but I have developed a liking to the almond kind, though the purist in me compels me to only buy peanut or plain.

The old cliche, "if it ain't broke, don't fix it," comes to mind. Everyone despises peanut butter and mint M&Ms, and hopefully everyone will despise the blue ones. It's just unnatural.

If they really wanted to make a change, they should have gotten rid of one or both of the brown M&Ms. Is it really necessary to have two shades of brown in every package of M&Ms? The rugs in my apartment, which have been stained with everything from orange soda to micro-waved bananas look more appetizing than the two shades of brown M&Ms.

They sidelined the red M&M for several years, due to the fact that small children who were not smart enough to let it melt in their hands as opposed to their mouth suddenly started keeling over from the dye used to make it red. It returned after a new dye was found, and that came as a relief to M&M purists (like myself).

But what if the blue dye turns out to be a deadly poison? We will forever remember Wednesday, March 29, 1995 as Blue Wednesday.

I suppose I'm getting a little too worked up about all of this. After all, they all taste alike. Some people claim that the green ones are the best, while others claim that the green ones make you horny. I wouldn't know about this because I seem to be horny all the time.

In closing, enjoy the new blue M&Ms, but enjoy them with care. As a test, hold one in your hand for a few minutes. If the blue M&M melts your hand instead of melting in your hand, it's probably time to find a new candy, or file a class action law suit.

Dave Copeland is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor

Protesters' actions disgust student

To the editor:

Throughout my three years at UMass, I have been drawn many occasions to the brink of exercising my right as an American to write to the Collegian. In the past, I have let these experiences fall by the wayside but an incident that occurred on Wednesday sickened me to the point of pulling out the word processor and going to work. Citing the famous idiom, I have been challenged by the sword, now I am hoping to prove the mightiness (sic) of the pen.

The incident in question stems from the rally held on Wednesday against the Contract for America. Those participating started on the steps of the Student Union and marched past my residence on North Pleasant Street. Their message was very clear, succinct and their cause one that I have considered supporting. What disturbed me was the actions taken by these protesters as they marched by my home. To begin with, members of the group were writing with colored chalk "You're Next" on the sidewalk. As they passed my dwelling, someone in the pack began writing this message on the walkway leading to my house, on our private property. Believe me, this was no big deal. I understood what they were attempting to point out, yet in looking out for other members of my house I asked that they not write that on my property. My words were ignored and the threat was left on my path. As the group walked away, I shook my head in disbelief of their arrogance and disrespect.

I turned and began to walk back to my front door when a car pulled to the side of the road, blocking traffic, in front of our walkway. The man inside yelled at me to let the girl do her business, I replied that her business has no business being on my private property. Tired of arguing with the man I indicated that the group was well past my abode and he should go. Then all hell broke loose. The man put his car in the park position and asked me "Do you want to die?" "Do you want to get shot?" "This is America, I will shoot you!" These comments were not in regards to the possible Republican cutbacks, but to my personal sovereignty due to this man's actions.

The purpose of this letter has nothing to do with the efforts of the Anti-Contract clan, just their methods. To threaten someone with a gun for standing up for their rights as a property holder made me sick to my stomach. To the protesters, you know what they say about flies to honey rather than vinegar, and to the gentleman who offered to sacrifice my life for his cause, realize you lost a potential supporter and made your efforts rival that of a terrorist outfit. Is that what you're seeking?

Alex Kasendorf
Amherst

Child care story was misleading

To the editor:

I am writing in response to the article entitled "University child care meets community needs," in your March 8 issue. I found this article quite misleading, and would like to question a number of your assertions.

First of all, though the title states that the University meets the child care needs of the campus community, the article also states that "there is a high unmet child care need." Indeed, there must be. The University provides 78 slots in its child care programs. The undergrad and grad student populations on this campus total 25,000. Though I have no figures on numbers of faculty and staff, it seems reasonable to assume that they contribute at least another couple of thousand people, who, I might add, are more likely to have families. Given a population this large, it is hard to imagine how 78 daycare slots could ever come close to meeting child care needs.

The University provides no programs for older children either. Amherst schools let out at 1:15 p.m. on Wednesdays and 3 p.m. the rest of the week. After school programs in Amherst generally have a waiting list of a year or longer. I can tell you first-hand that trying to fit classes in between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. four days a week, and 9 a.m. and 1:15 p.m. on Wednesdays is no small feat. Many Gen Ed classes schedule exams in the evenings, and final exams are routinely scheduled at 8 a.m. Though the University has a policy for rescheduling exams for students who experience conflicts with their exam schedules, they have no policy for students whose exams conflict with their children's needs. Those of us who have children depend upon the good will of our professors in allowing us to reschedule exams to times that fit our child care and school schedules. Sometimes we are successful, sometimes we are not.

Of course, there are no statistics on just what the unmet need for child care is, because the University has not seen fit to gather this information. Though the Family Issues Committee is performing a survey to ascertain this in April, one has to wonder why it has not been done sooner. The article states that the daycare programs' trustee document was drafted in the late 1970s, and yet here it is almost 20 years later, and the University still does not know the extent of the unmet need for child care.

Vicki Buehler
President, Single Parents Association

Six other members of the registered student organization signed this letter.

Arts & Living

Widespread Panic hits the Valley

By Jorma Kansanen
Collegian Staff

The Loud Music Festival this weekend in Northampton will be capturing the minds and hearts of all local music fanatics.

But on April 3 at Pearl Street, Widespread Panic will bring their rock stylings for the junkies who still want more. To say this band is rock oriented, though, is to say that Green Day are happy little boys. What the Athens, Ga. group brings is a melting pot of improv jams, jazz influences and straight Southern rhythm and blues; all in a manner that inspires when played live.

Originally formed in February of 1986, the base for the current six member group was set with singer/guitarist John Bell, guitarist Michael Houser and bassist David Schools. Along the way, drummer Todd Nance joined the band wagon — and with an average of over 200 shows a year later — the time has come for the spotlight to be put on them.

"There's such a mystery to being in a band, playing on the road and making albums," Bell said. "To maintain that mystery is to sustain the source of power. For a lot of people the mystery isn't comfortable.

"The very thing other people try to accomplish, to play a perfect, glossy show that never varies, we have no interest in that at all."

After their first release on Landslide Records in 1988, Space Wrangler, what was most known about the band was what was heard on college radio. Songs like the title track and "Driving Song" could not help but remind the listener of the Allman Brothers Band and the Grateful Dead. But there was more to their style as country and folk influences run in "The Take Out" and "Porch Song," leaving Robert Johnson's "Me And The Devil Blues" to touch upon classic blues.

With their newest release, Ain't Life Grand, last September, and of course the two straight years on the H.O.R.D.E. tour, the college band has evolved into a mainstay for rock fans around the country. With the additions of long time friend and percussionist Domingo S. Ortiz and John Hermann on keyboards over the years, the road is set for them for some time to come.

"Things have really started to open up for us," Schools said. "We're not a goal oriented band in the sense of sitting around and saying we're doing this, this and this.

"We enjoy hanging out with each other and playing. It's like a brotherhood of fun. Keeping that spirit alive is what's important to us."

The Widespread Panic show will play on April 3 at Pearl Street. Call 584-7771 for further ticket information.

COURTESY WINGATE DOWNS

Widespread Panic will be playing the Pearl Street Stage on April 3.

Lecture explores Barbie myth

Assistant professor discusses Barbie, Ken & gender roles

By Wendy Darling
Collegian Staff

Barbie and Ken are more than just dolls, said an assistant professor at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

One of America's most popular toys since 1959, Mattel Inc.'s Barbies have been the center of controversy for several years, according to a presentation by Jacqueline Urla.

Urla spoke yesterday as part of the Lesbian, Gay, and Bisexual Studies Brown Bag Series. The series is sponsored by the Program for GLB Concerns.

Urla spent considerable time on what is perhaps the most famous example of the Barbie controversy: the switching of 300 talking Barbie and G.I. Joe dolls' voice boxes around Christmas 1993.

Barbie Liberation Organization

Orchestrated by the Barbie Liberation Organization, the action was designed to draw attention to Barbie's role in perpetuating sexist stereotypes in the minds of young girls. Teen Talk Barbie was issued as a talking doll and said such things as "Shopping is fun!" and "Math is hard."

The doll drew criticism from several organizations who accused Mattel Inc. of drawing on the stereotypes that women universally prefer shopping to mathematics.

The Barbie Liberation Organization brought the doll to national attention when it bought 150 Teen Talk Barbies and 150 talking G.I. Joe dolls, switched their voice boxes, and returned the dolls to the shelves.

Across the country, unsuspecting consumers bought the dolls for their children and were surprised to find that they did not have the voices they had expected. They also found a "Barbie/G.I. Joe Home Surgery Instruction Kit" that explained how and why the switch had been performed.

Much of the American news coverage focused on the positive reaction of the children who received the dolls as Christmas presents, Urla said.

Urla presented a video produced by the Barbie Liberation Organization detailing the nature of their operation and the national media coverage it received.

Conservatives attack Barbie

Meanwhile, Mattel Inc. has been under fire from conservative organizations who accuse the company of promoting a subversive social agenda that promotes homosexuality and nontraditional values in children.

In one case, conservatives called Barbie a bad role model for girls because she represents the kind of woman that can live without men. Barbie is attractive, mobile and apparently quite wealthy, but although she has several wedding dresses and boyfriends, she is not married and has no family.

The Ken doll has also come under fire from conservatives, said Urla. Beginning with Earring Magic Ken several years ago, Mattel Inc. has released several Ken dolls which, according to conservatives and gays alike, fit common stereotypes of gay men.

Shown in a slide during Urla's presentation, Earring Magic Ken sports a diamond earring in his left ear and wears a purple vinyl vest and a lavender mesh muscle shirt. Ken has frosted blond hair and appears to be wearing an oversized cock ring on a necklace around his neck.

While some gays championed the dolls, conservative storekeepers withdrew the dolls from their shelves, claiming it was unsuitable for children, Urla said.

Popularity continues

Despite the controversy, 95 percent of girls aged 3 to 11 own at least one Barbie and Mattel Inc. has sold enough dolls to circle the earth four times, said Urla.

Barbie has changed and expanded her image many times over the years, responding to the emergence of feminism and multiculturalism. Barbie dolls are now available in the form of doctors, soldiers and astronauts. Barbies also come in all colors and races, said Urla.

Attention
Arts & Living Staff

There will be a mandatory meeting on April 3 in the Collegian offices. All staff members should try to attend. Call Matt at 545–1361 if any questions.

Available at For The Record
$11.99 CD • $6.99 Cassette

Classifieds

• 20¢ per word per day for students
• All ads must be paid cash/2 days in advance
• Ads may placed at 113 Campus Center
Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Find out how you can win $10,000 worth of scholarships! Meeting tomorrow night @ army ROTC bldg. Call 545-2321 for more info.

Paddle party Newman Center Sun. Apr. 9. 12 noon-6pm all pledges invited. Bigs welcome as well- hundreds of paddles! Sponsored by going Greek. #C. Panhel.

BUSINESS OPPRTUNITY

Looking for a profitable , legitimate and stable business opportunity? Work at own leisure with product everyone has use for. Small initial investment. Introduction meeting on Sunday. Call Mike @ 549-8178 to attend.

COLLEGE PRO PAINTERS

College Pro Painters now accepting applications for painter and foreman positions in eastern Massachusetts. No experience necessary. Call 1-800 346-4849 today.

ENTERTAINMENT

The UMass Theatre Guild presents merrily we roll along. Mar 29- Apr 1 Bpm Bowker Auditorium

FOR RENT

3br apt. uptown 10 min walk to campus $950/mo incl. heat. Call 256-6864 Hurry!

Available June 1st and September 1st 3,4, and 5 bedroom apartments. Call now! They are going fast! Sovrin Village 665-2203

Great location. 1 bdrm Brown Amherst Call Jess 253-5515

Spacious 2 bedroom townhouse apts. Available June 1st and Sept 1st. Call Sovrin Village 665-2702.

Two and three bedrooms available for June 1st. Call Mill Valley Estates 253-7377

FOR SALE

92 K2 Extremes Typ. 490 bindings w/dag. Used 3X- get cond. 500obo. Rich 665-7998

Kegerator 500/obo. Rich 665-7998

Macintosh computer Complete system including printer only $389! Call Chris at 800 289 5685.

286+386 computer system. CPU monitor keyboard. $125. Steve 549-1181

Motorola Pagers for sale! 549-3241 Ask for Andy.

Piano Shopping? Get information by fax. Call 800 242-8323 for our free piano fax.

Washburn guitar. Acoustic w/Windsor bag. Paid $270, asking $170 or b.o. Call Jason 0-545-4

HELP WANTED

AA cruise ships hiring! Earn big $$$ and free world travel (Caribbean, Europe, Hawaii, etc.) Summer/permanent, no exper. nec. Guide (919) 929-4398

Alaska summer employment! Earn thousands this summer in canneries, processors, etc. Male/female. Room/board/travel often provided! Guide Guaranteed success! (919) 929-4398 ext. A1383

Alaska summer employment fishing industry. Earn to $3,000-$6,000+/month + benefits. Male/female. No experience necessary. (206) 545-4155 ext. AK#U.1

College Pro Painters wanted for southern Conn. Call 549-3957 for applications.

Counselors- top boys sports camp. Marie-Lasting, Kan-Wed summer! Openings: ALL-COMPETITIVE TEAM SPORTS, TENNIS, WSI & ALL WATER SPORTS, PLUS: Camping & hiking, Ropes & climbing wall, ice hockey, scuba, archery, Riflery, ABC, martial arts, arch top apt., paint facilities, int' allow call or write. Steve Rubin, 1-800-473-8104, Camp Cobbossee, 10 Silvermine dr., So Salem, NY 10590.

Cruise Ships hiring- earn up $1,000+/month. World travel. Seasonal & full-time positions. No exp necessary for info call 1-206-634-0468 ext. C56015.

Environmental jobs for the summer! Earn $2500-$3500 and free the planet. Campaign to save endangered species, promote recycling and stop polluters. Work with major environmental groups like the PIRGs, Sierra Club, and Green Corps. Positions in 33 states and D.C. Campus interviews Apr. 11,12 and 13. Call Jamie 1-800-75-EARTH

Fall 1995 internship with the Student Legal Services Office get hands on experience in the legal field. Work directly with attorneys and clients. Earn up to 15 undergraduate credits. No experience in the profession necessary- training provided. Deadline is April 14th- contact Legal Services today 545-1995, 922 Campus Center.

Find out how you can win $10,000 worth of scholarships! Meeting tomorrow night @ army ROTC bldg. call 545-2321 for more info.

Part time marketing/sales. Excellent opportunity to gain business experience with a new company engaged in providing assurance to job seekers. Excellent commissions, good training. Will be a great addition to your resume. Local, no car necessary. Call (401) 751-5490 after 2 p.m.

Summer work, interviewing on campus for office/manager-ial positions. Must be able to handle busy telephone and general office work. $/hour. Student atmosphere. Call (508) 653-1144, Nancy Pres.

Pizza Shopping? Get information by fax. Call 800 242-8323 for our free pizza fax.

Washburn guitar. Acoustic w/Windsor bag. Paid $270, asking $170 or b.o. Call Jason 0-545-4

MAYA PLAYS TONIGHT

So you're wandering what to do tonight. Well, if you could just get yourself to Fire and Water this evening you'd be treating your ears to the sound of Maya. Problem solved.

MUSICIANS

Pussy bass and hardshell case. I'll sell together or separate. Call Pete for details at 546-3018

SPC Pearl drum kit 4 22size combo. Dw dbl. bass pedal. LP cowbell + much more! Mint cond. $850/OBO 546-3678

NO JOKE !!

I make $2/4k/month with progressive employer. Let me show you how. 746-4437

PERSONALS

Anne Kelley, You know me and I know you. But you may not know what you think you do. We've had some fun but do not miss your guess of who is your big sis. I have long hair and light eyes, when you find out you'll really be surprised. Ph love, your big sis??

Doono D I know I'm not your #1, or even #2, but I hope you'll be as happy with me, as I am to have you. LML, your boy bg

Dear Erica I'm so glad you're my little sis. I can't wait to meet you! Ph love, your big sis

Going Greek in Newman Center. 10-430 every Monday, letters made on the spot, check out t-shirts and formal favors.

Jamie Zavadnick, Welcome to my Phinhly! Love, your big sis :) keep guessing, you'll find out soon

JenFamily Rogers' bigger Fen! Since many of us could not experience how it feels like being over the hill, can you tell us? We figured you didn't want anyone to know how old you truly are as we won't mention it. Neither will we mention the wrinkles, the graying of your hair, the balding, or that you are shrinking. Have a happy birthday! We love you. Julie, Tekcy, S

Lauren Mey, Have you found me yet? Clue #3 will help I bet, southwest at the direction and I just won a position in the AERA- mechanic. Ph love me??? LML

Marcy, Clue #1 I have short brown hair and green eyes. Guess who? Love, your big sister

Michelle, I'm glad everything is working out. Be optimistic about out future. Don't worry so much, you got me, that's all that matters

Novice women's crew. Racing season is here! Good luck, row hard! The varsity women.

Psst...Juanita, Happy belated birthday! I love ya! Say hi to Kate Moss and don't forget to feed the Phish! Love always, Rina

Roland, Change is good, but please tell me you saved me a lock of hair.

Sherry G Clue #2, we have to go to Bananarama soon since we both love frozen yogurt! Ph love, your big sis!

To my little sister Lauren A. You're a great addition to our phinnily! Ph love, your big sis LML

To my second lil- Deena Meyerowitz. Surprise! I have blond hair and blue eyes and when you guess who I am you win a prize!! Ph love- your big sis

Varsity and novice women's crew. Stay warm, keep and proud. Beat B.C. We're there in spirit. WVB

PHOTO RESTORATION & RETOUCHING

Restore your priceless old family photos to like new condition before they're gone forever. Call Thomas at 549-1997. Leave a message.

RIDE WANTED

Need rides to Boston or anywhere from Boston to Beverly on weekends. Gas $ 253-2808

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wanted. 258/month. Behind Baybank, on bus route. Call Kristen 549-2992.

SCUBA DIVING

Earn 2 credits learning to dive Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, or Thursday 7-10pm 1-800-767-0917 Project Deep.

SERVICES

International students-visitors- OPT greencard program, by U.S. Immigration Lawyer Services Tel (818) 882-9681. (818) 998-4475. 2031 Stagg St. Canoga Park, CA 91306. Monday-Sunday 10am-7pm

Modem users! Call the Playground (860) 256-6085, 19.2 K bps 130 mega online + CD ROM. Registered online games include Legal BBS, Usurper Global Wars & Planets!

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright for free testing and caring confidential support. 549-1906.

You take your writing seriously and so do we for more information about quality editing by a real writer, write to Editing Translational at adtrans@aol.com

SUMMER SUBLET

Summer sublet Jun-Aug. 3 bedroom on bus route, pool and tennis courts $745 mo. util. included. 665-8721.

THE END OF THE WORLD

Tonight! The End of the World! Head house and progressive techno! The Hatch bar. Doors open at 9:00p.m. with DJ Chooch. OB1 on percussion, and special guest Cameron's Wax! All ages alcohol will be served to those who are legal! Dance into the apocalypse tonight!

TRAVEL

Da Europa $169 anytime. Cards/Mex $189 rt Free brochure. Airhitch 1M 212-864-2000

John Wooden All—America Team

Player	School
Ray Allen	Connecticut
Randolph Childress	Wake Forest
Kerry Kittles	Villanova
Ed O'Bannon	UCLA
Shawn Respert	Michigan State
Lou Roe	Massachusetts
Jerry Stackhouse	North Carolina
Damon Stoudamire	Arizona
Rasheed Wallace	North Carolina
Corliss Williamson	Arkansas

UMass senior Lou Roe continues to be honored, as he was named to the 10-member John Wooden All-America Team. Roe has been named to several All-America teams and is expected to be drafted by the NBA this summer.

The Wooden Player of the Year Award will be announced April 7.

horn

continued from page 8

errors of Don Barbara, Jose Texidor and Aubrey Waggoner.

TV–38 would be better off showing *M*A*S*H* and Coach reruns than the Red Scrubs.

• There is no truth to the rumor that Massachusetts student manager Matt "Cheese" Komer is on the short list of potential candidates for the vacant head basketball coach job at Duquesne.

• How much has tennis benefitted from the "new Andre Agassi?" The Las Vegas native traded his bad boy image and his hair for a game.

The result has made tennis interesting as Agassi and Pete Sampras have become the best one–on–one sports rivalry since Larry and Magic.

• In the Detroit Pistons–New York Knicks basketball game, a Piston showing his hustle to his coach, dove to save a loose ball out of bounds.

After the save, the player kicked a front row spectator in the face, who proceeded to splatter his nachos and cheese all over the fan, as well as himself and the Palace floor.

• UMass baseball public address announcer Mike Reiss got a little ahead of himself during Wednesday's game.

Immediately after announcing that Bill Knight only needed six home runs to become the all–time UMass leader in the category, Knight promptly drilled another dinger over the left field fence, moving within five of the record.

The baseball played at Earl Lorden Field this year promises to be better than that played in Fenway Park. The Minutemen are talented and worth watching.

• Finally, in reference to the mild weather and excitement about the Minutemen, political science professor John Brigham perhaps said it best:

"This year we didn't have winter, we had basketball."

How true.

Matt Vautour is a Collegian columnist. Staff member Justin Smith contributed to this article.

lacrosse

continued from page 8

sophomores Stephanie Walsh and Sarah Goddard to step up to what they are capable of.

"We're doing well with a young team," McClellan said. "We need to work on our decision making inconsistency."

Presently, the team's driving force has been made up of freshmen. Novice Joanna Dignazio has scored four goals so far in the season, notching two in each game. Her record is followed closely by the skills of fellow freshmen Vicky Nedomansky (who has two goals under her belt), Kristin Kramer and Jen Bowen (who have one each), and Kim Weaver.

The young team looks up to the abilities and experience of senior captain Dianne MacNeil and junior Elaine Burke, who are the only upperclassmen on the 1995 Massachusetts roster.

NIT

continued from page 8

NWIT. The Minutewomen defeated VCU in the first round of the NWIT 70–61, but lost to the Lady Aggies 80–59.

"I'm glad some of the teams we saw at the NWIT will be there so we can show them our stuff all over again," Gregory said.

With the talent level of the teams in the field being so high, the Minutewomen know that this is a great opportunity for them.

"This is a big step. You can't get a better group to play in one tournament," junior Tricia Hopson said. "It is a great group of teams, some of the best in the country."

"It will be great competition," junior Octavia Thomas said.

"I'm excited. There will be good competition," sophomore Sabriya Mitchell said. "It will be good for us."

"The tournament has good balance. It is a very good pool of teams," Rooney said. "It should be fun. Hopefully we can win two or three games."

Maine makes finals with 3OT win

By Howard Ulman
Associated Press

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — The second longest game in NCAA Division I hockey history ended with a quick give-and-go goal that sent Maine back to the championship game and Michigan back home. Dan Shermerhorn won a faceoff and darted unguarded to the net. He took a crisp return pass from Reg Cardinal, beat goalie Marty Turco from close range and gave Maine a 4-3 win 28 seconds into triple overtime yesterday.

Shermerhorn, who nearly won the game with a third-period goal, then skated to center ice where he was mobbed by teammates who poured over the boards. Turco, who had stopped 52 other shots, skated slowly, head down, to his right, into the faceoff circle where the winning play began. Maine (31-5-6) plays the title game Saturday against the winner of last night's semifinal between Boston University and Minnesota. For Michigan (29-8-1), not even 100 minutes and 28 seconds of determined effort could end an 18-year wait to return to the championship game.

The longest game in NCAA Division I hockey history lasted 102 minutes, 9 seconds on Dec. 21 and 22, 1968. North Dakota won it, 5-4 over Minnesota. Thursday's game was the longest in NCAA tournament history, outlasting the 99-minute, 28-second marathon in which Bowling Green beat Minnesota-Duluth 5-4 for the 1984 championship.

Maine won its only championship in 1993, when it achieved a remarkable 42-1-2 record. In the semifinal that year, the Black Bears also knocked off Michigan 4-3. But that only took 1:36 of the first OT to determine a winner.

Both teams played cautiously as Thursday's endurance test wore on. And no one was more durable, or spectacular, than the goalies — Turco and Maine's Blair Allison, who stopped 47 shots and has played every one of Maine's games this season. Maine's best chance of the second OT came when Jamie Thompson went in alone and skated left to right across the slot. But Turco went down, reached out his left arm and smothered the shot with 4:40 left.

Thompson, in frustration, simply fell flat on his stomach in the faceoff circle to Turco's left and lay there for several seconds. Maine outshot Michigan 17-8 in that overtime after being outshot 11-6 in the previous period.

The Wolverines nearly ended the game 3:48 into that first extra session when Brendan Morrison took aim at the wide open right side of the net. But his hard shot clanged off the post and ricocheted harmlessly away. Michigan scored twice in the first five minutes, but Maine crept back and took the lead 3-2 on Shermerhorn's power-play goal with 5:58 left in regulation. He is Maine's second leading goal scorer with 25.

Michigan, the highest scoring team in the country, ended a scoring drought lasting more than 50 minutes when Mike Knuble, the nation's leading goal scorer, tied the game with 5:09 left in the third period. His 38th goal came 18 seconds into a Wolverine power play and his jubilant teammates swarmed around him.

But Maine did the celebrating after Shermerhorn's goal. He won the faceoff to Turco's right and got the puck to Cardinal a few feet away. Shermerhorn, without hesitation, sped toward the net where no one picked him up.

Cardinal poked it through and Shermerhorn found the puck at his feet and backhanded it past a stunned Turco.

Kevin Hilton and Matt Herr had given Michigan a 2-0 lead, but Maine tied the game on goals by Jeff Tory on a power play at 18:01 of the first period and Brad Purdie at 1:06 of the second. Then Shermerhorn got the goals Maine needed to continue its recovery from a season of turmoil.

NCAA

continued from page 8

that hard," Sutton said. "But it has been hard to get back to the Final Four. I'm just very thankful that I've had an opportunity to come back for a second time."

This is Nolan Richardson's second straight trip with Arkansas and third overall. The Razorbacks are looking to join Duke in 1992 as the only repeat champions since UCLA's seven-year title run ended in 1973.

That Arkansas even got this far is impressive. Since the field expanded to 64, only the Duke repeat champions and the 1991 UNLV team, which lost to Duke in the semifinals, have reached the Final Four as defenders.

"Everybody is expecting for us to go undefeated, I suppose, and everybody is expecting for us to win by a large margin," said Richardson. "That's because we have created a monster and now we have to feed that monster. Sometimes you run out of food. So we've just got to try to take it one day at a time and try to enjoy this game."

Only John Wooden, the architect of UCLA's dynasty, took more teams to a Final Four than North Carolina's Dean Smith. This is Smith's 10th Final Four, two less than Wooden. A national title would make Smith the fourth coach to win at least three and the two victories would give him 10 in the Final Four, one more than Adolph Rupp of Kentucky and 11 less than Wooden.

"I know that I feel very fortunate to have been there at any time," said Smith, the dean of the current Final Four coaches. "It's not a given, even if you think you're a good team. Maybe sometimes we weren't deserving. I don't know about this year."

WELCOME BACK STUDENTS

Bud 16 oz. Bottles FATBOY
$1.75 WOW!
Help Cutty's Fight Cancer
Good from March 27 to April 9
55 University Drive, Amherst • 549-5700

HAIGIS HOOPLA IS COMING APRIL 21-23.
REGISTER AT THE CAMPUS CENTER CONCOURSE APRIL 3-7.

PEKING GARDEN
A MANDARIN & SZECHUAN RESTAURANT
SUNDAY BRUNCH $5.99 Regular Menu Available
COMEDY SHOWS Every Fri & Sat
BUFFET LUNCH $3.99 Mon-Sat 11-3
BUFFET DINNER $6.99 7 Days a Week 5-7pm *Includes fruit & salad bar
VISA/MASTERCARD • FREE PARKING
RT. 9 IN HADLEY • 586-1202

Emergency Medical Training
by Human Services Training Consultants, Inc.
Part Time Evening Classes Start June 12, 1995
Call UMass Continuing Education 545-0474

OOPS! Locally Owned
• Free Estimates • 5 Year Nationwide Warranty • Direct Insurance Billing • Auto Glass Replacement • Car & Truck Rental
CARSTAR, Collision Repair Centers
Where America goes for Quality Collision Repairs
North Amherst CARSTAR 78 Old Sunderland Road, North Amherst MA 549-2880
Northampton CARSTAR 141A Damon Road, Northampton, MA 586-4444

SPRING SPECIAL 8 weeks $59 8 weeks Amherst Athletic Club 256-0080

Summer at Brandeis University
Liberal Arts
Near Eastern and Judaic Studies
Premedical Sciences
Foreign Languages: intensive, on-campus and overseas
Chamber Music Workshop
Law, Medicine and Health Policy Program
Session I — June 5-July 7
Session II — July 10-August 11
• Small classes taught by Brandeis faculty
• Competitive tuition
• Courses for high school, undergraduate and graduate students
• Convenient location
Information, catalog and application:
Summer Program Office
Rabb School of Summer, Special, and Continuing Studies
Brandeis University
P.O. Box 9110
Waltham, MA 02254-9110
(617) 736-3429
FAX: (617) 736-3420
E-mail: summerschool@brandeis.edu

Housing Assignment Office
information
Voice Response Room Choosing Instructions

The Voice Response Room Choosing System will be available until 4:45 pm Friday, March 31 for students wishing to reserve their current room for the Fall 1995 Semester:
○ This is your last chance to use the Voice Response System to reserve your current room.
○ Friday, March 31: 9:00 AM to 4:45 PM

On-campus, call: 6-9000
Off-campus, call: 546-9000
You must use a touchtone phone to complete your call.

Your 9-digit student identifier. Your current room and hall assignment.

If you enter the wrong student identifier, simply press * to restart the procedure.

If the system is unable to confirm your assignment, you must contact our office in order to reserve your room for the Fall.
This is essential in order to guarantee your current room assignment!

Call 545-4596 during the system hours listed above.
TTY Users, call: 5-0327 Off-campus TTY Users, call: 545-0327

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

CALVIN, ARE YOU SLAMMING DOORS?!
IT WASN'T ME, MOM! I DIDN'T HEAR ANYTHING!
LET ME OUT OF HERE, CALVIN, YOU ROTTEN BAG OF BARF!
WHEEE! OUR CLUBS FINEST HOUR!
WHERE'S SUSIE?
BEATS ME. MAYBE SHE WENT OUTSIDE
I'M IN HERE! LET ME OUT!
WAH, SUSIE! WHAT WERE YOU DOING IN THE CLOSET OF ALL PLACES?
CALVIN...
HE TRICKED ME IN THERE AND HELD THE DOOR!

Garfield By Jim Davis

YOU GOING TO A COSTUME PARTY?
I THOUGHT PEOPLE FROM GUANO GUANO WORE PALM FRONDS
NOT SINCE THE INFESTATION OF LEAF WEASELS
WOAH! HE'S WOAH!
KIND OF BAD ISN'T IT?
NOT TO MENTION INDECENT.
MUNCH
CHUMP
MUNCH

Dilbert By Scott Adams

I'D LIKE TO KICK OFF THE PROJECT WITH THE TRADITIONAL BAD-MOUTHING OF THE GUY WHO WORKED ON THIS BEFORE.
HE'S SO SLIMY THAT SLUGS POUR SALT ON HIM. HIS BRAIN WOULD RATTLE IN A FLEA'S SKULL!
OH, AND I'LL NEED YOUR FILES
FLEAS DON'T HAVE "SKULLS"!!

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

THERE'S NOTHING IN THAT CLOSET THAT'LL INTEREST YOU!
I WOULDN'T DREAM OF DOUBTING YOUR VERACITY...
BUT I'VE A WIDE RANGE OF INTERESTS!

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

WALLETS AND POCKETBOOKS! SO THAT'S WHAT YOU'VE BEEN HIDING IN THERE!
YOU PLANNING TO GO INTO LEATHER GOODS IF THE CIRCUS FAILS?
HE'S ON TO US! I'LL SHUT 'IM UP!

Bruno By C. Baldwin

"HOOOH.. BAD GIRL, NAUGHTY NAUGHTY"
BRUNO....
I'VE BEEN A VERY NAUGHTY GIRL, SLEEPING WITH SOME OTHER LITTLE GIRLS!
WHAT THE HELL ARE YOU DOING?
BUT IF YOU COME OVER AND SIT ON OLE' SANTA'S LAP HE MIGHT GIVE YOU A BIG OLE' PRESENT! AHHHH-- HA HA-- BEHIND...WHAT...
I'M TALKING WITH SANTA CLAUSE, JAY, WOULD YOU LIKE TO JOIN ME?
NO THANKS
OH SANTA, LOOK WHAT BEING BAD NOW! SHUT UP BABE AND GIVE ME A CIGARETTE IS THIS SOME KIND OF JOKE?
OKAY SANTA! IT'S A DEAL!! HO HO HO!

Jim's Journal By Jim

While I was taking a shower today the soap slipped out of my hands and flew onto the floor.
Mr. Peterson heard it fall and came over to smell it.
I looked at her, wondering if maybe she would bat it over to me.
And she ran away from it really fast.

Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom

I got this friend. He's always falling in love.

He's been answering the personal ads on his computer internet. He sends romantic letters back and forth on the computer all day and all night.

Now, he's in love with a girl in Ohio. He lives in Massachusetts. He has pledged marriage. He's never ever seen her. They won't talk to each other on the phone because they're afraid they'll get spooked and run away if they don't like each other's voices.....wow.

I suppose it could be worse.

All last year he was in love with a girl who turned out to be 3 guys from UCLA.

Close to Home By John McPherson

Today's Staff

Night Editor ..... Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Copy Editor ..... Jacob W. Michaels
Photo Technician ..... Shin Suzuki
Production Supervisor ..... Marni E. Heffner
Production ..... Joshua Grey, Jon Lupo, Tracy Temptress Monahan

Dining Commons Menu

LUNCH	DINNER
Fish Munchies	Chicken Sandwich
French Dip Sandwich	Shells in Cheese Sauce
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
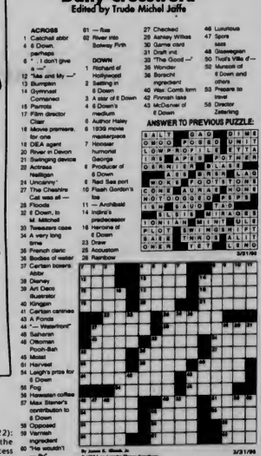
Fish Munchies	Chicken Sandwich
Tomato, Cauli. Cass.	Lentil Spinach Stew

Daily Crossword
Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe



Your Horoscope
By Jeane Dixon

ARIES (March 21–April 19): Business and professional interest are very much in the limelight. A friend's advice may be inspired. Guard against deception or wishful thinking.

TAURUS (April 20—May 20): Domesticity and privacy will be very important to you this weekend. Your horizons expand, thanks to new friendships. A conversation regarding travel or your neighborhood takes an unexpected turn this evening.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20): Maintain an ongoing dialogue with your partners. Underhanded behavior will send the wrong signal. Be willing to roll up your sleeves and work hard. Re-evaluate a financial strategy meant to provide a secure future.

CANCER (June 21–July 22): Squelch an urge to splurge if hoping to balance the budget. An exciting social event could be quite costly. Keeping your belongings in a safe place will prevent regrets. Self-control is vital tonight.

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22): Worrying about things you cannot change is self-defeating. A secret liaison or indiscreet remark could bring a sudden upset. Avoid arguing with friends. Enjoyment comes from travel.

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22): A lack of tact or discretion could undermine your plans. Think before you speak. Wishing for the moon is not as silly as you think. Keep an open mind if the unexpected sudden happens.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22): Let friends work behind the scenes on your behalf. Success seems near. Play your cards carefully and with finesse. Now is the right time to obtain loans, public backing and financial stability.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21): A wrong guess about a business or professional venture could cause distress. Keeping your funds safely invested. Good news regarding a loved one delights you. Celebrate in a modest fashion things evening.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21): Things proceed smoothly at home or the office. Do not overlook family ties as a source of financial support and security. Remain aloof when strangers become too attentive. They may have ulterior motives.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19): Take nothing for granted in business. You are on a profitable path and should leave no stone unturned. Showdowns with the folks at home are best avoided.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18): Your commercial activities prove more lucrative than usual. A busy but fun weekend lies ahead. Romance is featured. Take any business problems seriously but do not lose your sense of humor. Forge new alliances.

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20): Be more discreet. Tipping your hand prematurely could put someone on their guard. You cannot afford to create confusion or complications within the family circle. Play the role of peacemaker when loved ones get together.

Quote of the Day

"The fifth dentist caved in, and now they all recommend Trident?"

–from an episode of Friends on 3/2/95

Fellow Christians or Those Who Want to Follow Jesus We're Here!
CHURCH OF CHRIST
256-8753 • 665-2782 • 774-5090

SPRING SPECIAL 8 weeks $59 8 weeks Amherst Athletic Club 256-0080

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
4th & Final Week Ends Thu., Apr. 6 Curtain Daily 8:00 PM
The film that was dismissed by the Academy Award Voting Committee – After you have seen it, you too will ask...WHY!
Please be seated by Curtain time as this film runs 3 hours.
Box Office Open Daily 6:30
ON OVER 100 TEN BEST LISTS NATIONWIDE!
"THE BEST FILM OF THE YEAR!" - SISKEL AND EBERT
HOOP DREAMS
ACADEMY OF MUSIC NORTHAMPTON Opera House 584-8435

amc THEATRES
$2.50 (TWI-LITE) SHOW DAILY LIMITED TO SEATING
MT. FARMS 8
Call Theatre For Showtimes
PULP FICTION
OUTBREAK
* MAJOR PAYNE
* DEAD PRESIDENTS
$10 $15 $20
HAMPSHIRE 8
Call Theatre For Showtimes
MAJOR PAYNE
THE BRADY BUNCH MOVIE
MUNNY'S WEDDING
TANK GIRL
* TALL TALE
* DUMMY 3D
* WHEN TIMES ARE WILD
* CIRCLE OF FRIENDS

Sports

Women to play in preseason NIT

By Candice Flemming
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts women's basketball team received more national recognition yesterday when they were selected to play in the 1995 Preseason Women's National Invitation Tournament.

The Minutewomen will play 1995 NCAA participant Maine in the 16-team tournament which will start on Nov. 15. The field includes six other 1995 NCAA participants in Colorado, Utah, Duke, Arkansas, Drake and Memphis, as well as four National Women's International Tournament (NWIT) teams (including UMass) in Virginia Commonwealth, Texas A&M and Northwestern State, La; and 1995 NCAA Tournament runner-up Ohio State.

Joanie O'Brien

Pittsburgh, New Mexico State, Oregon and Lamar round out the field.

All of the games will be played on campus sites, therefore giving UMass a chance to play at the Mullins Center if they advance.

The tourney should be a good preludo to the Minutewomen's home opener against 1995 Final Four participant Stanford University in the Mullins Center on Nov. 24.

"For us, the NIT will be a great way to start the 1995-96 season," Massachusetts coach Joanie O'Brien said. "Maine was a NCAA Tournament team this year and playing them will present a great challenge for us. The tournament will also allow us to play a game or two before we host Stanford."

"The more experience we have going into the year can only help us," Massachusetts assistant coach Jill Rooney said. "The more our kids play together, the better they'll be."

Many of the Minutewoman players agreed.

"I think the Preseason NIT sounds a lot better than the postseason NIT," freshman Kara Tudman said. "Good, hard, competition will get us ready for the season."

"I'm ecstatic. It will be a good experience to get games in before we play Stanford," sophomore Crystal Carroll said. "Personally, this is what I want. It's a boost for us."

"It'll help us a lot," junior Kim Gregory said. "Just to play with each other before we get into the regular season, that's a plus."

If UMass beats the Black Bears, they will advance to the second round where they would meet the winner of the Pittsburgh–Ohio State game. The Minutewomen are somewhat familiar with the Buckeyes, having played them during the 1993–94 season. UMass is obviously familiar with Texas A&M, Northwestern St. and Virginia Commonwealth, having seen all three of those teams in the

Turn to NIT, page 6

Men's lacrosse is right at Hofstra

By Ted Kottler
Collegian Staff

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO
The Gorillas will be looking for their second win of the young season tonight when they meet up with Hofstra University at 7:30 p.m.

Under the lights of Hofstra Stadium at 7:30 tonight, a homecoming shall commence for many key members of the No. 13 University of Massachusetts men's lacrosse team (1–1), which challenges No. 8 Hofstra in Hempstead, N.Y.

Long Island is the nation's richest recruiting hotbed for UMass and countless other high profile programs, but only the Flying Dutchmen appeal locally to the hordes of great high school stars who come from Long Beach, Port Washington, and West Islip.

For years an imaginary pipeline between the Isle and Amherst has brought a heavy portion of these talents to UMass, and in UMass' first two contests, a 13–11 loss to top-ranked Virginia and a 13–4 whipping of Boston College, a pair of New Yorkers directed the Minuteman offense.

Senior crease attacker Mike Valente of Hicksville leads UMass in scoring with three goals and five assists, and senior midfielder Jeremy Murphy of Marcellus leads the team with five goals.

When sniper Wes Depp graduated and took his 84 career goals with him, Valente became head of the UMass attack. He has not disappointed, keeping the ball away from rushing defenders and setting up teammates with crisp passes.

Murphy's health was questionable when the year began but his scorching shot has been on target thus far. Murphy provides a boost to the Minutemen's extra man opportunities, on which UMass is 5-of-14.

The more effective Valente and Murphy are, the better for sophomore attack Brendan Glass. With Depp gone it may have been possible for opposing defenses to focus on Glass, who led UMass with 33 goals in 1994.

But Valente, Murphy and junior midfielder Eric Bailey (three goals on five shots and four assists) have eased the pressure on Glass, who has avoided a sophomore slump. Glass has four goals and one assist on a team-high 16 shots.

"A lot of guys are going home to Long Island. A lot of friends and family will be there. It shouldn't be too tough to motivate [UMass]," UMass coach Greg Cannella said.

The Dutchmen certainly have been flying. They are 3–0 and earned a hard fought overtime win over No. 9 Brown, 10–9. Sophomore midfielder Tony Alexander completed a hat trick with just nine seconds left in extra time.

Hofstra's other two wins came against North Atlantic Conference foes Delaware, 15–6, and Vermont, 11–10.

Now is the time for the Flying Dutchmen to earn precious victories for securing one of the 12 NCAA Tournament bids. Hofstra begins its season with a six-game homestand, as it will host New Hampshire Sunday and No. 7 Loyola (Maryland) next Friday.

UMass' defense must keep an eye on senior attack Kevin Jacobs, whose 14 points (five goals, nine assists) lead Hofstra. But Hofstra also gets solid production from junior Chris Panos (eight goals) and senior midfielder Brian Holland (six goals).

"We need 36 guys mentally ready for this game. I'm not sure we had that [against BC]," Cannella said.

Hofstra outscored opponents 36–25 in three games, while UMass holds a 24–17 goals advantage on its two opponents.

The Minutemen defeated Hofstra, 11–8, nearly one year ago to the day in the first round of the Fleet Invitational at Brown on April 1, 1994. Murphy scored four goals and Depp and Glass each added two.

Ground balls: Among the reunions tonight: Holland and UMass goalie Tom LoPresti, who were teammates at West Islip HS, and midfielders Dennis Kelly of UMass and Hofstra's Rich Gargiullo, teammates at Farmingdale HS.

Women's lax gearing up for Owls in Philadelphia

By Allison Connolly
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts women's lacrosse team will take on rival Temple in Philadelphia at 1 p.m. on Saturday.

Coming off a tough loss to Yale on Wednesday (13–5), the Minutewomen will look to this match-up as an opportunity to use what they have learned to improve their record.

UMass (0–2) has met two aggressive foes in Brown and Yale early in their season. UMass Coach Francesca McClellan and her team will use these games as good experience against Temple.

"Temple plays a lot like Yale," McClellan said. "We are going to concentrate on putting pressure everywhere and following our game plan."

The pressure will be on the UMass offense; it will battle a stalwart Temple defense. Against Yale, the UMass offense was slow to start, turning the ball over too many times. Yale took the advantage by scoring seven goals in the first half. However, once the UMass midfield tightened up and the defense remained solid, the offense found their groove and attempted a comeback.

"We need to keep working on the old stuff," McClellan said. "We need a stronger defense position in the fan area. We also need continued poise in handling the ball on offense."

Freshman goalie Kate Brew is the glue keeping the defense together. In her first collegiate season, Brew had an impressive collegiate debut with 15 saves against Brown and 12 saves against Yale. The UMass defense has been firm and will be a plus in keeping Temple away from the net.

If the Minutewomen follow their game plan and start off running an aggressive front, the win could be theirs. In the last matchup, the competition was close, with UMass losing to Temple 13–10.

"It was a good game," McClellan said. "I hope we can keep it tight. We have a better team this year, but so do they. It will be tough early in the season, but we'll have a lot of fan support because many of our players are from the [Philadelphia] area."

With a stellar returning class of starters, and a promising group of talented freshman, McClellan has a rich pool of potential to work with. However, she will be looking to

Turn to LACROSSE, page 6

UMASS MEDIA RELATIONS

Rain, Rain, go away

The Minutewomen's doubleheader against Yale yesterday afternoon was postponed because of inclement weather. The Minutewomen will travel to Philadelphia this weekend and begin their A-10 schedule.

Ruane overlooked, Agassi's new image is helping tennis

While University of Massachusetts' varsity coaches Joe Mullen and Bonnie Kenny have received high praise for their resurrection of the ice hockey and volleyball programs, another program has come to life in relative oblivion.

Because of the lack of varsity status of the women's hockey club, the accomplishments of president Cheri Ruane have gone relatively unappreciated by the UMass campus.

Ruane has worked tirelessly in the past three years to get a women's hockey program off the ground. She got coach Linda Smith to volunteer her time, she assembled a team, arranged for ice time, and attained RSO status.

When the team finally took the ice last year, Ruane was happy just to be a hockey player and did whatever she could to help the team. When the team's goaltender got injured, Ruane strapped on the extra pads and got between the pipes.

After struggling on the scoreboard its first year, the club improved in its second year to finish the season with a winning record.

While several decorated athletes' departure will be accompanied by fanfare and headlines, Ruane's graduation in May will go unnoticed by media outlets. But to a group of women that meet three times a week at the crack of dawn to practice, Ruane will always be appreciated.

• Perhaps the saddest story to come from UMass not making the Final Four is that of Daily Hampshire Gazette columnist Milt Cole.

Cole, who has covered UMass sports since 1970, suffered through years and years of losing, but this year's basketball team made it all worth it. Always the optimist, Cole reserved plane tickets to Seattle, in anticipation of a chance to cover the Final Four.

Following the loss to Oklahoma State, Cole looked sad, but kept the spin on it positive.

"They had a great year," said the man that John Calipari described as being 108-years old.

Sorry, Milt, nobody deserved to be there more than you.

• How the hell did that kid get the Celtics banner out of the rafters anyway?

• "That was scored an error on the rightfielder for any of you keeping score at home," said Red Sox announcer Bob Montgomery during coverage of a replacement game. Thanks, Bob. I'm sure there are fans throughout the Greater Boston area keeping track of the runs, hits and

Turn to HORN, page 6

Stars in outfield getting rave reviews

By Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Collegian Staff

Massachusetts baseball head coach Mike Stone does not need divine intervention in his version of the movie Angels in the Outfield. Yet like the Disney hit that was one of the top 20 money-grossing flicks this year, the Minutemen in the outfield are getting rave reviews to start the 1995 season.

The top four hitters statistically for the Minutemen are outfielders — Ryan Jette, Nelson Ubaldo, Nate Murphy and Bill Knight, all batting above the .350 mark 13 games into the season. Jette, who has started in 10 games, is leading Massachusetts with a .400 average and has the speed to make something happen every time he's on base.

With Jette in the leadoff spot over the past two seasons, the Minutemen are 33–10.

Ubaldo, who can play any of the three outfield positions, has seen time this season primarily as designated hitter. He has made it very difficult for Stone to take the bat out of his hands for even one game, hitting .375 with 13 RBIs and 10 runs scored.

Murphy, the everyday centerfielder for the Minutemen, has been brilliant in his transition from the number seven spot in the line-up in 1994 to the third slot this season. In addition to being flawless in the field this year, Murphy is batting .375 and has started 12 of 13 games. He also leads the Minutemen in stolen bases with seven.

The clean-up hitter for Massachusetts is Knight, who is five home runs away from becoming the school's all-time HR leader. His strong arm has been an asset in rightfield, holding runners at bay two separate times on short fly balls against Holy Cross last Wednesday.

Knight leads the Minutemen in slugging percentage (.627), hits (18), and runs scored (14).

With four of his best players battling for the three outfield positions, it is no surprise that Stone has reserved the DH's role for the odd outfielder out.

Hartford game postponed, St. Joseph's up next

With rain forcing the cancellation of yesterday's game at Hartford against the University of Hartford Hawks, the Minutemen take the road for their next game against another team of Hawks.

This weekend, Massachusetts faces its second Atlantic 10 Conference weekend of the season in Philadelphia versus St. Joseph's — three games in two days: a doubleheader on Saturday and a single game on Sunday.

Stone is still searching his pitching staff to find his starting rotation and was going to use sophomore Chad Sullivan yesterday against Hartford. That may push Sullivan to the St. Joe's series, behind senior right hander Jay Murphy and sophomore right hander Chad Paronto.

Paronto seems to have won the No. 2 spot in the rotation, after pitching a five-hit, six-strikeout complete game two weeks ago in a 5–2 victory over Wright State. On the season, he is 1–1 in three starts with a 3.38 earned run average.

Murphy inherited the ace role from departed right hander Peter Ferrari, who graduated. He has struggled thus far, posting a 1–2 record and a 5.66 ERA.

Minutemen lose tough match to Tufts

By Andrew Bard
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts men's tennis team hit the road on Wednesday for a match against Tufts University in Medford.

After losing to Tufts last year 7–0, the Minutemen held their own against this Division III powerhouse, losing the match, 4–3.

The Minutemen opened up the match on the right foot as undefeated senior Tom Lipsky defeated Jon Baker, 6–3, 6–7 (5–7), 6–3.

Once again, the Minutemen triumphed in the second match as Greg Hsiao beat Alex Chen in straight sets, 6–2, 6–3. The win for Hsiao marked his first career victory at the number two singles slot.

After opening up with a 2–0 lead, Tufts rebounded, winning the next three matches in close fashion. UMass' Ankur Baishya fell to Matt Gibbon in straight sets, 6–3, 6–4. Tufts' Jason Cohen tied the match as he defeated junior Justin Lynn, 6–7, (7–1), 7–5, 6–2.

Tufts took the lead as Andy Schwartz beat Darren Tow, 7– 6, (3–7), 6–3. UMass' other undefeated singles player, freshman Alex Aller, continued his winning ways with a 6– 4, 5–7, 6–4 victory over James Kinnear.

The Minutemen lost the match after being swept in three straight doubles matches. Lipsky and Aller opened up with an 8–4 loss to Baker and Chen, followed by an 8–1 loss by Baishya and Tow to Tufts' duo of Cohen and Kinnear. The conclusion of the match saw Hsiao and Lynn fall to Gibbon and Schwartz, 8–6.

The Minutemen fall to a 6–8 record (1–1 in the Atlantic 10) but Massachusetts coach Judy Dixon's spirits remain high.

"I'm very positive about this team," she said. "Taking steps is part of building a program. We took a big step yesterday for this program. We could've won yesterday's match."

UMass' next match will be April 5 at Northeastern and Dixon knows that her team has a tough schedule ahead of them.

"We have our work cut out for us. I hope we can have a winning spring," she said. "Our schedule is tough. We're one of few schools to not have scholarships. Last season at the New Englands, we finished eighth out of 28 and this year we hope to do better."

Veteran field of coaches headline NCAA Final

By Jim O'Connell
Associated Press

SEATTLE — The 11th Final Four to cap a 64-team tournament has a veteran field of coaches with an average age of almost 57 and a combined 90 seasons of Division I head coaching experience. It is the fourth in 57 NCAA tournaments — all since 1991 except last year — to have four schools advance to the national semifinals without at least one looking for its first title.

Saturday's matchups have UCLA, the champion of champions with 10 national championships, against Oklahoma State, the first repeat champion in 1946, and the two most recent winners, North Carolina, one of four schools with at least three titles, and Arkansas, the defending champion. Jim Harrick of top-ranked UCLA is the lone Final Four rookie among the coaches, and only once since the tournament went to 64 teams (1993) has there not been at least one first-timer among the coaches.

"From my standpoint, we don't change anything we do," Harrick said. "It's one of the biggest social events in America, but I don't think the teams are involved in the social part of it."

OSU's Eddie Sutton led Arkansas to the Final Four in 1978 and his current Cowboys come in as a No. 4 seed. Since 1985, only two teams seeded lower than third - No. 8 Villanova in 1985 and No. 6 Kansas in 1988 - have won it all. "When I went there in 1978, I thought it isn't

Turn to NCAA, page 6

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
Volume CIV Issue 103 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Monday, April 3, 1995

Glass' play is key in Hofstra victory
Led by a three-goal, two-assist performance by sophomore Brendan Glass, the No. 13 Minutemen upset No. 8 Hofstra 11–5 (See Sports, page 8).

Last call issued for rally-goers
Campus group shouts out a last call to those interested in this weekend's Rally for Women's Lives in Washington, D.C. (See story, page 3).

Loud Music comes to area
Over 90 bands performed this past weekend as part of the third annual Loud Music Festival. Check out our review (See Arts & Living, page 5).

Extended Forecast
Sunshine greets the morning but gives way to increasing clouds as the day goes on. Showers likely on a breezy but warm Tuesday, so don't catch spring fever yet.

	Today	Tuesday	Wednesday
	HIGH: 50 LOW: 40	HIGH: 50 LOW: 40	HIGH: 40 LOW: 25

Reproductive freedom examined

■ Abortion rights in political and social realms focus of Hampshire College weekend activities

By Lisa Greenfield and Maureen Rozanski
Collegian Staff

AMHERST — This weekend more than 250 student and community activists from across the country united for the "Fight for Abortion Rights and Reproductive Freedom" conference held at Hampshire College.

Activists tied reproductive rights to issues such as welfare, HIV and STDs, disability rights, domestic violence, lesbian and bisexual health concerns, international reproductive rights, immigration and population control.

Saturday morning began with speakers focusing on the issues of violence and the political status of women's issues. Introducing the morning speakers, Conference Organizer Marlene Gerber Fried, spoke about the "politics of fear."

She said, "If 200 banks had been bombed, instead of 200 abortion clinics ... the violence would be seen for what it is ... hatred, intolerance and bigotry."

Gerber Fried said the conference was not about anger and fear, but about hope and "creating a vision."

International Solidarity

Traveling from Brazil to attend were activists Thais Corral and Fatima Mellow.

Corral stressed the link between reproductive rights and basic health and the impact of the environment on the quality of life.

Mellow explained that Brazil is a "target of population control" and it is falsely believed that a population explosion is the cause of poverty.

Mellow said victims should not be blamed for the "problems with the insufficiency of the global economy."

She said progress would come out of "solidarity with women in all countries," and activists must see student involvement as "crucial."

Student Activism

Serits Gupta, a student activist, partly blamed students for using apathy as an excuse to not organize. She also blamed national organizations for the "marginalization of young women's voices."

Gupta said national organizations must recognize and support college women, and those college women must "take an active role."

To student activists Gupta stressed coalition building.

"Empowerment has to start today, with us, Gupta said, specifically addressing women of color. "We must join the mainstream and make our issues their issues. We must set the agenda."

Welfare

Speakers concluded the Saturday morning sessions focusing on the issue of welfare in the United States today and how it denies women the choices available to them.

Charlene Allen, of Northeastern Law School, spoke about the undesirable and unfair alternatives for women, outlined in the current guidelines set forth by our welfare system.

The last speaker of the morning, an economist and welfare rights advocate, Randy Albeda, discussed

Turn to CONFERENCE, page 3

LISA GREENFIELD / COLLEGIAN
Jane Sapp closed the morning session of the ninth Annual Conference for Student and Community Activists with a musical performance, leading the room in a round of "We have come too far, we can't turn around/ We'll flood the streets with justice, we are freedom bound."

'Don't ask, don't tell' under fire from critics

By Susanne M. Shafer
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The latest court action involving the Pentagon's "don't ask, don't tell" policy toward homosexuals has touched off a debate about whether the military's new approach is being arbitrarily enforced — or is even new at all.

U.S. District Judge Eugene Nickerson declared the policy unconstitutional Thursday and barred the Pentagon from discharging six homosexuals. Nickerson, ruling in New York, said the policy is "nothing short of Orwellian" because it equates sexual orientation with misconduct.

"We've not found that the policy has been applied unevenly or unfairly," said Defense Department spokesman Kenneth Bacon, who added that the administration intended to appeal the ruling.

But opponents of the policy say it is inconsistent.

"Gay men and lesbians in the service are still baffled, because they do not know what they can say, what they can do," said Robin Kane, a spokesperson for the National Gay and Lesbian Task Force in Washington. "It's an inconsistent policy and its enforcement varies from commander to commander, from base to base. ... It's a policy that's been virtually unchanged."

One senior military commander, who was visiting the Pentagon and spoke on condition of anonymity, said it has been his experience that "some commanders have been rednecks and stupid, and others have been very progressive."

"But in the field, it's a non-issue for the troops," the officer said. Soldiers in his command are young and have had experience in dealing with the matter, and the uproar that occurred when the policy was under debate and still uncertain has subsided, he said.

Beatrice Dohrn, the legal director of the Lambda Legal Defense and Education Fund, said the ruling by Judge Nickerson "underscores what we already know. Open lesbians and gay men serve our nation's defense well, and they do so without harming military capability."

President Clinton, who had vowed to end discrimination against gays in the military during the 1992 campaign, has said he thinks the policy is working.

Under a compromise approved by Congress and the Clinton administration in 1993, military officials are not allowed to ask troops about their sexual status or to start investigations without credible evidence of homosexual acts.

The policy is supposed to allow homosexuals to serve if they keep their orientation private, and punish those who engage in homosexual acts or take actions that call attention to their orientation.

But commanders have been given broad discretion over whether to start investigations. Each military service has investigative officers who conduct such procedures, and the commander then decides whether grounds exist to convene a discharge proceeding.

Lesbian rabbi speaks on issues of old traditions

By Amy Paradysz
Collegian Staff

Rabbi Leila Gal Berner discovered she was a lesbian 20 years ago when she was a graduate student at the University of California in Los Angeles.

"I sit here now a very confident person, safe in who I am," said Berner. "But I want to say it was a long journey."

Berner's partner, Renee Gal Primack, sat next to her, holding their 6-month-old daughter, Kayle Moriya Gal. Yesterday afternoon at Hillel, Berner thanked her audience of about 30 for allowing her to come openly with her "family."

"I was born and raised a Jew and in my gut I needed to be a Jew," said Berner, who described Judaism as a culture rich with treasures, not only in ritual life, but also in music, poetry, art, literature and history.

Attending the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, where he earned her B.A., Berner had identified with Judaism mostly through Zionism. But in Los Angeles, she found she couldn't be a Zionist without being part of a religious Jewish community. So she he joined a synagogue and "found a community that was extremely welcoming" of her, both as a Jew and a lesbian.

"I came into religious Judaism kind of via being a lesbian," said Berner.

Berner's speech was entitled "Journey Toward Wholeness: A Lesbian Embraces Jewish Tradition".

Through liberal interpretation of the Torah, she defended the legitimacy of lesbians within Judaism. Leviticus 18 says "Do not reveal the nakedness of ..." listing various family members and other people whose nakedness should not be revealed. Berner said the Hebrew phrase used — "reveal the nakedness of" — "always refers to negative types of sex ... in which a person's soft spot, the spot where Adam and Eve covered themselves with fig leaves, is uncovered." She concluded that to "reveal the nakedness of" is to "make a person completely vulnerable and then not take care of them."

Judaism teaches about the humanity in gentle, caring relationships, whether they are sexual or not, said Berner. She cited the scriptural example of Ruth and Naomi, who are not believed to be lesbians but had a depth of intimacy and commitment to make a life together. For men, Berner cited the scriptural example of David and Jonathan. When Jonathan was killed, David said his love for Jonathan surpassed my love for all women.

"In these traditional texts, there are many models of loving relationships between men or between women," said Berner.

The Torah says it is an abomination for man "to lie with" a man, but Berner said it also recommends stoning those who don't attend Shabbat. She said that although Torah includes "a whole host of incredibly wise teachings," but it also includes some things that are "morally repugnant."

"The Torah was written by many generations who felt themselves inspired by God and wrote what they felt God wanted them to write," said Berner, "but they were not infallible."

During her first few years as a rabbi, Berner was fearful of what would happen if she "came out." When a man in her congregation came to her and said he had AIDS, Berner decided it would be deceptive for to continue hiding.

Berner said that she doesn't think there is a moral superiority to coming out, as opposed to staying in the closet, but it was necessary for her.

"I was spiritually dis-eased; I had a spiritual disease. I couldn't be the rabbi, I couldn't be the teacher, and I couldn't be the person I wanted to be," said Berner.

When she first came out, Berner's congregation reaffirmed their love for her and her life-partner. But when she tried to make her synagogue "an openly welcoming community," she found deeply rooted homophobia. After two years, Berner moved on.

Turn to RABBI, page 3

JULIO CORDERO / COLLEGIAN

Dancin' the night away

Last Friday's Latin American Cultural Night featured dancing from many different nations (See related story on tomorrow's Multicultural Affairs page).

Study abroad is an option for all

By Hernán Rozemberg
Collegian Staff

Students of color at the University of Massachusetts are being reached out to, in order for them to feel that they can have an equal educational experience as compared to other students.

The International Programs Office (IPO), in close cooperation with the Collegiate Committee for the Education of Black and other Minority Students (CCEMBS), is organizing an evening of learning opportunity on both academic and non-academic levels.

This workshop, "Whose World Is This?" is an effort by concerned students and faculty who feel that people of color are not getting the same chances as others.

Carol Lebold of IPO expresses this sentiment in a clear and concise fashion. According to Lebold, the workshop is intended to provide "different ways that students [can] voice their own voices."

The experience of studying abroad has conventionally been a field generally explored by White students interested in the rest of the world. However, said Lebold, this has been blown up into a deceitful myth. She said that study abroad and student exchange are fields open to all students, and minorities should not be deprived of this.

Thus, said Lebold, the forum–exhibit–presentation offers to "pool the voices of students together, and puts it all back out there for the students to see." Moreover, by this process students actually "open doors" for other students who had not been previously offered such opportunities, she said.

Lebold said that along with the racial stereotype of study abroad students, class overtones have not been at all insignificant. This in turn leads to an alleged elitism of exchange programs, which in itself has also hindered the involvement of student minorities, according to Lebold.

Further overgeneralized images of study abroad programs are that they are too expensive and not financially compatible for many students. Although some programs do cost more than a regular year at the home institution, said Lebold, it is often the case that the total program fees amount to less than the home university's tuition and fees. In any case, said Lebold, financial aid does apply to most study abroad programs, so students should not overlook the experience due to doubts about financial assistance, Lebold noted.

Additionally, although limited in number, many programs do offer some scholarships for studying abroad, said Lebold.

According to Lebold, usually about 700 to 900 students participate in study abroad programs annually.

In order to increase this number in general, and the number of minority students in particular, the event presents the study abroad experience from a multidimensional perspective. Firstly, there will be a photo exhibit on display; different areas and different themes will be covered. The photographs were taken by students on different programs all over the world, Lebold said.

Secondly, faculty members and students will participate in a panel in which they will share their experiences as study abroad students, and how prospective exchange students can benefit from this. A question–and–answer period will follow. Finally, a video presentation, New Perspectives, will provide the audience with further insight into the study abroad experience.

The event will take place at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, April 5 at the Shirley Du Bois Library (2nd floor) of the New Africa House, in the Central Residential Area.

Students plead innocent in heroin death

By Tim White
Collegian Staff

NORTHAMPTON — A former University of Massachusetts student pleaded innocent Thursday to involuntary manslaughter at Hampshire Superior Court in connection with the fatal heroin overdose of an Amherst teenager.

John E. Ciarametaro, 22, of Rockport, was charged with involuntary manslaughter, dealing heroin and several counts of possession of cocaine, heroin and marijuana.

Also in court was his brother Mark D. Ciarametaro, 21, who pleaded innocent to three misdemeanor counts of possession of heroin, cocaine and marijuana.

Mark Ciarametaro currently has pending charges of heroin possession in Gloucester District Court, according to a police affidavit.

John Ciarametaro, who was held on $10,000 cash bail or $40,000 surety after Judge William Welch denied his release on personal recognizance, faces up to 30 years in jail if convicted. His brother, released on $3,000 personal surety, faces a possible three–and–a–half years.

The arraignments were due to the Dec. 15 fatal overdose of 17–year–old Harrison "Ozzie" Klate, a senior at Amherst– Pelham Regional High School.

John Ciarametaro, a former co–worker of Klate at the Classé Cafe, is suspected of dealing the drugs to the teenager the night he died.

The death lead to a Dec. 19 raid on 405 Butterfield Residence Hall where the two brothers lived. The police found several drug–related items including five glassine wrappers, three razor blades and a plastic straw, all with heroin residue, according to court documents.

Klate, who was found by his father the next morning, was said to be taking the drug to enhance his creativity, according to the affidavit.

The father, Jonathan Klate, an Amherst acupuncturist, was not in court Thursday.

The affidavit also said John Ciarametaro was known by several sources to be a seller of drugs to support his habit. The two brothers often travelled to major cities in eastern Massachusetts and New York to buy the heroin with the intention of dealing.

According to Ciarametaro's lawyer, both have been attending Narcotics Anonymous meetings.

According to the registrar's office, Mark, a junior history major and John Ciarametaro, a junior Spanish major, have both withdrawn from the University.

The cases were continued for a pretrial hearing next month.

The Springfield Union–News contributed to this article.

Majors Fair to entice students

By Henry J. Brier
Collegian Staff

In the past, the Anthropology Department has shown an elaborate display of skulls, and the Microbiology Department has microscopes tracing microbes, all in efforts to entice undecided students toward a course of study.

The University of Massachusetts Majors Fair, which has allowed for such displays, will do so again in tomorrow evening's exhibits and information tables in the Student Union Ballroom.

The fair, sponsored by the Mather Career Center and CASIAC, will give departments in the colleges of arts and sciences an opportunity to help and inform students.

"The goal of the Majors Fair is to provide an opportunity for students to make more informed decisions about their major," said Elizabeth Teagan, Academic Advisor at CASIAC. "There are almost 5,000 students who are either undeclared or premajors."

According to Teagan, a "premajor" is a student that may be intent on a field or department but has tendencies to "move around a lot."

The Majors Fair has been strategically scheduled, according to Linda Roney, Coordinator of Academic Advising at CASIAC. Students will begin pre-registering for next semester's courses on April 10.

"It's a good chance for students to get a picture," Roney said. "The fair is being held in conjunction with the Mather Career Center, and there will be information on how to expand the major into a career."

At the fair, students will have the opportunity to explore, choose or declare majors, Teagan said. Student's majors are important because they can be an integral part of professional careers.

In addition to CASIAC advisors, the United Asian Learning Resource Center (UALRC), the Bilingual Collegiate Program (BCP), and the Committee for the Collegiate Education of Black and other Minority Students (CCEBMS) will also offer assistance to students, Teagan said.

In past Majors Fairs held by CASIAC and Mather Career Center, in addition to skulls and microscopes, other departments have organized displays to increase awareness among students of their programs, many of which will be at the upcoming Majors Fair, Teagan said.

The fair will feature more than 60 majors and it will include advising not only for academia, but also for internships and cooperative education placements or coops, Roney said.

Martha Moran, head of apparel marketing, a major within the Consumer Studies Department, said Majors Fairs in the past have proved to be productive for undecided students, by directing them toward apparel marketing.

"Students wandering without a major have transferred in after the fair," she said.

Paul Fiscite, building materials technology and management program director, said the fair has been beneficial for students who gravitated toward his major, as well.

"We have major information and career information to share with the students who want to know what the major's about," he said. "Every one of our graduates has gotten jobs."

Annaliese Bischoff, environmental design program director, said she anticipates that her display will inform students.

"We will have running videos that will give people ideas of what the students and faculty are involved with," she said.

Project examples include garden design and community service work in playgrounds and parks, Bischoff said.

The event is open to students from all five colleges.

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Monday, April 3

Lecture — Dr. Loretta Long, Eleanor Bateman Alumni Scholar in Residence, will speak on "Cultural Diversity on Sesame St." Memorial Hall, 7 p.m.

Tuesday, April 4

Workshop — "Crafts: a bridge to learning," is the first collaborative effort between the Craft Center and the Professional Development Institute. "Twig and Branch Construction," will focus on crafts as a unique tool for classroom education in all academic departments. Craft Center Studios, 25 Sagamore Road, Worcester. For more information, contact the program coordinator at (508) 753- 8183.

Literature — Elizabeth Macklin, author of A Woman Kneeling in the Big City, reads from her work. Wooton's Book, Amherst, 8 p.m.

Lecture — "A Renaissance Audience Considered: The Nuns at Sant Apollonia and Andrea del Castagnols Last Supper," by Prof. Andree Hayum, Fordham University. Smith College, Wright Hall, 7:30 p.m.

Music — An Evening of Brahms by the Valley Chamber Players. Bezanson Recital Hall, 8 p.m.

Celebration — From Plains and Pueblos presents the Native American music and dance traditions of the Zuni of the Southwest, the Lakota of the Great Plains, and the Yup'ik Eskimos of Southwestern Alaska. Cherokee storyteller, Gayle Ross, will be the master of ceremonies. Bowker Auditorium, 8 p.m.

Wednesday, April 5

Club — Spanish Club meeting. Blue Wall, 6 p.m. "Hora de Cafe," for practicing students, Blue Wall, 10 a.m. to 12 p.m.

Video — Rustling in the leaves: inside the Philippine Revolution. The video shows the revolutionaries in the countryside and the cities as well as the legal left and explains the connection between United States Imperialism, the Filipino government and right wing vigilantes. Campus Center, Room 165, 7 p.m.

Music — The acclaimed chamber music ensemble, Tokyo String Quartet, and the virtuoso clarinetist, Richard Stoltzman will present a program of Mozart, Janacek and Brahms. Dartmouth College, Spaulding Auditorium, 7 p.m.

Reception — Vietnamese Art Exhibition. Augusta Savage Gallery, 5 p.m.

Arrest made in pizza delivery hold–up

By Tim White
Collegian Staff

AMHERST — A man that is suspected of having involvement with several other counts of break–ins in the North Amherst area, was arrested earlier this month for allegedly holding up a pizza delivery man.

Jose A. Cruz, 22, of Pufton Village, has been charged with counts of armed robbery, assault and battery on a police officer, disorderly person, and two counts of receiving stolen property under $250, according to court documents.

A delivery man from Superior Pizza reported to police that he had been held up near Townhouse Condominiums at approximately 1 a.m. on March 21. He said the suspect held an object that felt like a gun against his back, forcing him to hand over a small amount of cash.

The victim told police the suspect then fled on foot. Given a description of the alleged robber, the police went to Pufton Village with the intention of arresting Cruz.

According to police, Cruz resisted and swung a 40–ounce beer bottle at an officer, who was not injured. The suspect broke free and fled.

Two University of Massachusetts officers, along with three others were called to assist in the foot chase.

UMass police said they then found a subject that matched the description from Amherst police climbing a fence in the area at approximately 3 a.m.,

After a thirty–minute foot chase, Cruz was arrested near Brandywine apartments, police said.

The Daily Hampshire Gazette contributed to this article.

UMass Majors Fair
Tuesday, April 4, 1995
6:00 pm
Student Union Ballroom
More than 60 majors will be represented
Sponsored by CASIAC & Mather Career Center

Auto Glass Center
American & Foreign
• Same Day Service
• Billed Directly To Insurance Company
• Windshields Replaced
North Amherst Main CARSTAR 78 Old Sunderland Rd. 549-2880
Northampton CARSTAR 141 Damon Rd. 586-4444
CARSTAR Collision Repair Centers

SPRING SPECIAL 8 weeks $59 8 weeks Amherst Athletic Club 256-0080

Women have issues - we need you to help us address them! Come down and write for the Women's Issues section of the Collegian. Contact Lisa or Colleen at 545–3500 or come down to our office in the Campus Center Basement.

100% BEEF 2 BURGS 2 BUCKS Great Buy! Great Deal! QUARTER POUNDERS® OPEN YEAR ROUND GREAT BURGERS LONG HOGS FRIES ONION RINGS SHAKES CHICKEN STRIPS DRINKS FRIES FRESH STEAKS SUBMARINES PETE'S DRIVE-IN 585-0241 ROUTE 9 HADLEY MA

Lincoln Real Estate
Has the best selection of 1,2,&3 bedroom UPTOWN Apartments with gas heat
Showings Start in April for June or September Occupancy!
Gilreath Manor Condos on Hobart Lane
3 Bedroom • 1½ baths
Heated Basement
New Gas Heat and Hot Water
Hardwood Floors
•1/2 mile to campus
• On Bus Route
Lincoln Real Estate • 25 N. Pleasant St. • 253-7879

Coupon Specials
Monro Muffler Brake
$20 off Brake pads or shoes
Put a stop to your car's brake problems with our guaranteed disc pads & shoes. Save $20 off our regular price per axle. Limit one coupon per job.
Coupon valid through 5/5/95 9112
Monro Muffler Brake
$20 off any alignment service
Whether your car needs a two or four wheel alignment, Monro's got the equipment and knowledge to send your car straight down the highway for maximum performance, handling and tire life. Please call for an appointment.
Coupon valid through 5/5/95 9113
mufflers • brakes • shocks • springs • alignments state inspections • tires • front wheel drive experts
Hadley: 360 Russell St. 586-0892
Northampton: 326 King St. 586-3266
Chicopee: 461 Memorial Dr. 594-9161
Wilbraham: 1971 Boston Road 543-8027
W. Springfield: 777 Riverdale St. 739-3860
90 days same as cash! See store manager for complete details.
OPEN Mon. Tues. Thurs. Fri 7:30 am – 8 pm, Wed. 7:30 am – 6 pm, Sat. 7:30 am – 5 pm
MONRO MUFFLER BRAKE
Only the repair you need. Always the right price.

Because stuff* happens.
*Hey this is corporate America. We have to keep it clean.

It's everywhere you want to be.
© Visa U.S.A. Inc. 1995

Group prepares for feminist rally

■ Riot Grrrl answers call for more campus feminist involvement

By Aimee Schwartz
Collegian Staff

The feminist group, Riot Grrrl, has initiated getting UMass its own buses to the Rally For Women's Lives in Washington D.C. on April 9.

The Alliance for Student Power is co-sponsoring the effort and the feminist group, POWER, has volunteered its help.

The Rally's focus is to help stop violence against women and to stop what critics of Newt Gingrich's plan for the nation call the "Contract On America."

TV's Roseanne and musicians Salt 'N Pepa, Toad the Wet Sprocket and Betty will provide some of the entertainment before the march begins.

"The importance is getting more people there," said Rebecca Filman, a member of Riot Grrrl. "It's about men and women fighting together for a 'common cause.'"

Two buses are available, each seating 47 people. "If the response is great enough by Wednesday," said Filman, "we can get up to two more buses."

A table will be set up all this week on the Campus Center Concourse so that people can buy tickets. The cost is $35. Filman urges students who can not afford this fee to stop by the table to find out how they can be sponsored for the trip.

Buses will be leaving from Haigis Mall at 1 a.m. on Sunday and returning there at about 3 a.m. on Monday morning.

"All the women in Riot Grrrl have a common interest in fighting for women's rights," said Filman, "We don't want the violence [against women]. We never asked for it and now we are demanding it's end."

Riot Grrrl is organizing the trip because "we realized there was a call for urgent action," said Filman.

She described Riot Grrrl as "an activist women's group whose purpose is to unite all women of racial diversity, different ethnic backgrounds and different sexual orientations."

For more information call the Everywoman's Center at 545-0883 or stop by the table on the Campus Center Concourse.

Collegian subject of SGA judicial hearing

By Jessica Taverna
Collegian Staff

A judicial hearing held by the Student Government Association (SGA) could possibly result in the SGA altering the Massachusetts Daily Collegian's Constitution.

On Thursday evening, the Student Judiciary, a board of students appointed by the SGA, listened to the petitioners and respondents in the case. They gathered information in order to evaluate actions taken by Darienne J. Hosley, Collegian editor–in–chief, and their constitutionality in compliance with SGA by–laws.

Juan Jose Chacon–Quiros, the petitioner and Developing Nations editor at the Collegian, asked that a previous written warning he had received be destroyed, and that the SGA rule on the constitutionality of the Collegian's constitution, policy guide, and code of ethics.

The newspaper's code of ethics prohibits staff members from engaging in any political or religious activity that may conflict with their duties and responsibilities at the Collegian.

Hosley issued the warning in November, after Chacon–Quiros had held a religious celebration on the Student Union steps which was covered by the media. Chacon–Quiros was photographed, and his name and Collegian editor title were disclosed.

Chacon–Quiros claimed that his celebration was religious and not political, therefore it could not be construed as a demonstration that violates Collegian policies. He put forward examples of other previous Collegian staff members who were involved in public demonstrations of opinion, who never received punishment or reprimand.

Although Hosley said that she felt that his actions were not in accordance with "the spirit of ethical codes for journalists," Chacon–Quiros said that this is only part of a larger problem of discrimination against minorities within the Collegian.

Throughout the five–hour–long meeting, Steven Cohen, chief justice of the Judiciary, attempted to gain order in a somewhat complicated case, and had to reprimand audience members for disruptive conversation.

The Student Judiciary will hold a deliberating session by the end of April.

■ conference

continued from page 1

the inconsistencies of Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC), as she said that it was heavily based upon "white, upper–class male politics."

Albeda stressed the need to look at the economic problems in America and not allow distractions from the real issues.

"Reproductive rights are absolutely hollow without economic freedom," she said.

Workshops

On Saturday afternoon and Sunday evening workshops gave participants the opportunity to break down into smaller groups for panels focused on particular areas of interest and ask questions of the panelists.

The first session on Saturday featured workshops on "Population, Immigration and the Environment", "Organizing for Abortion Access—Past and Present", "Disability Rights and Reproductive Rights", and "Lesbians, Bisexual Women, HIV and STDs."

During the second session were workshops on "Violence Against Women", "Women's Health and Reproductive Rights in Communities of Color in the U.S.", "Lesbian and Bisexual Women's Health Care from a Multi–Cultural Perspective", and "HIV and AIDS."

The film The Janes: A Woman's Underground Abortion Service was presented by its producers, Kate Kirtz and Nell Lundy, along with a discussion.

Sunday workshops were on "Campus Organizing" and "Self–Help/Menstrual Extraction."

The conference was sponsored by the Civil Liberties and Public Policy Program and the Population and Development Program at Hampshire College.

Nona Chiang contributed to this article.

Clinton allocates $26M for victims

By Laura Schmidt
Collegian Staff

March 21 marked an important day in the ongoing struggle of violence against women.

On this day Senator John Kerry joined President Clinton at the White House to announce new efforts to implement the Violence Against Women Act, said a press release from the United States Senate.

The act is the first comprehensive federal effort to fight violence against women and to protect the rights of victims, said the press release.

The release added that the efforts of the 1994 Crime Bill include $26 million in STOP (Services, Training, Officers and Prosecution) Grants.

The STOP Grants will be available to all fifty states. Each state can receive up to $426,000 to bolster their law enforcement, prosecution and victims services that address violence against women.

At least 25 percent of the funds must be dedicated to enhance direct services for these victims of crime, said the press release.

"One weakness of the Violence Against Women Act is that it is all a response to the victims of these crimes, rather than offering services of preventive education before these crimes occur," said Irma Gonzales, an educator/advocate for the Everywoman's Center.

According to Andrea Retzky, a spokesperson for the office of Senator John Kerry at the U. S. Senate, the Violence Against Women Act was almost lost in the 1994 crime bill.

"We fought hard last year to keep the Violence Against Women Act alive in the crime bill. Now we need a strong push to follow through for the states and provide money for better prosecution, community policing and victim's services," said Kerry in the press release.

President Clinton also commented on the efforts made in the provision of the 1994 Crime Bill in a separate press release from the Office of the Press Secretary.

"Today we are making available $26 million to help the states open rape crisis centers, to staff domestic violence hot–lines, to provide victims advocates, to pay for more officers and more training," said President Clinton.

The President also announced the appointment of Bonnie Campbell, former Iowa attorney general, as director of the new Violence Against Women Office at the Department of Justice, said the Senate press release.

Campbell solicited private donations for a public awareness campaign and presented programs on campus violence at more than 40 college campuses across the state of Iowa, said the press release.

In addition, Campbell authored one of the first anti– stalking laws, as well as sponsoring county wide meetings for clergy, community leaders, law enforcement and victim advocates to develop effective responses to domestic violence, said the Press Secretary release.

"The Administration's dedication to the issue indicates this is a national priority as well," said Kerry.

"The Violence Against Women Act has it strengths," said Gonzales. "[It] requires partnerships of agencies who serve victim services in accordance with police and the district attorney's office," said Gonzales.

"The Act also emphasizes rural communities and communities of color," said Gonzales.

■ rabbi

continued from page 1

Ordained at the Reconstructionist Rabbinical College, Berner serves on a part–time basis as spiritual leader of Congregation Bet Haverim in Atlanta, Georgia, a synagogue with special outreach to the gay and lesbian Jewish community.

"Within the mainstream Jewish Community, we are a long way from true acceptance," said Berner.

Berner has taught at UCLA, Reed, Swathmore, and Bryn Mawr Colleges, and currently teaches at Temple University and the Reconstructionist Rabbinical College where she serves as director of the newly–established Center for Jewish Ethics.

Berner told the gays, lesbians and bisexuals in the room to assume their rightful place within Judaism.

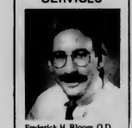
"I have to mitigate within myself the sense of anger that I even have to do this," said Berner. "The biggest battle has been not to lash back."

The Graphics Department is no longer accepting applications this semester. However, you are welcome to submit an application again in the Fall as we may have openings at that time.

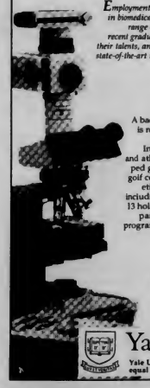
SPRING SPECIAL 8 weeks $59 8 weeks Amherst Athletic Club 256-0080

STEINBECK COLLISION REPAIR & AUTO BODY
53 S. Prospect St. Amherst Center
•Imports and other unibody vehicles are our specialty.
•Users of Sikkens paint products.
•Accepted by all insurance companies for collision repair or glass repair.
Remember
It's your car and your choice of repair facilities
256-8157 256-1385
Shop Reg # RS1212

UMASS ARTS COUNCIL GRANT DEADLINE April 21, 1994
Grants for summer & fall 1995 projects:
• Visual Art & Design
• Literature, Theater, Performance Art
• Film & Video
• Music
• Artistic components in multicultural programs
PROPOSALS ARE ENCOURAGED FROM STUDENT GROUPS
Applications, guidance & information: Student Activities Office or the Arts Council 101 Hasbrouck 545-0202

COMPLETE OPTOMETRY EXAMS AT THE UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICES


Frederick H. Bloom, O.D. Director, UHS Eye Care Program.
We offer. . .
. . .quality, comprehensive vision care at a reasonable cost.
courteous, friendly, professional staff.
. . .reduced rates on eye glasses at participating opticians with a complete optometric examination at the University Health Services for Student Plan members.
. . .a comprehensive contact lens service.
Patient feedback of those who have used the UHS Eye Care Program over the years has been consistently excellent.
uhs EYE CARE PROGRAM
"I invite you to use the Eye Services at UHS."
Convenient hours and on campus location.
call 549-2671 X244

Yale School of Medicine
JOIN THE BEST MINDS IN MEDICINE.


Employment opportunities at Yale University, a leader in biomedical and other scientific research, offer a wide range of laboratory research opportunities. Here, recent graduates can increase their knowledge, develop their talents, and enrich their experience in a stimulating, state-of-the-art research environment. We have immediate openings for:
Research Assistants
Research Associates
A bachelor's in biological or physical science is required; laboratory experience is a plus.
In addition to many on-campus cultural and athletic facilities such as our fully equipped gym, 31 tennis courts, and a regulation golf course, Yale University provides competitive salaries and outstanding benefits, including: 22 vacation days, 4 personal days, 13 holiday/recess days, and 12 sick days, all paid. Tuition reimbursement at graduate programs in the area and audit opportunities at Yale also exist.
For immediate consideration, send your resume in confidence to: C. Mason, Dept. of Human Resources, Yale School of Medicine, P.O. Box 9168MP, New Haven, CT 06532-0168; Fax (203) 785-3165. Employment office located at 153 College Street in New Haven.
Yale University
Yale University is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer.

ISRAEL FOR SUMMER VACATION!
VOLUNTEERS FOR ISRAEL
FROM $849*

Spend three weeks as a volunteer working and living with Israelis at army bases or hospitals.
CALL TODAY 212-643-4343
PROGRAMS ARE FILLING UP FAST
PROGRAM INCLUDES roundtrip airfare, room & board, kosher meals, ticket valid for 180 days, tours & lectures.
Frequent departures throughout the summer
VOLUNTEERS FOR ISRAEL • 330 W. 42ND ST. SUITE 1018 • NY, NY 10036
This program - past, present, and future - is partially subsidized by YFI and Bar - IL.

STAYING IN AMHERST THIS SUMMER?
LOOKING FOR A JOB?
THINK SCH!
FULL AND PART-TIME JOBS ARE AVAILABLE WORKING FOR SUMMER CONFERENCE HOUSING
WORK WITH UCS IN PROVIDING RESIDENCE HALL ACCOMMODATIONS TO OVER 70 CONFERENCE GROUPS MEETING AT UMASS THIS SUMMER
MANY DIFFERENT TYPES OF JOBS ARE AVAILABLE
APPLICATIONS AND JOB DESCRIPTIONS ARE AVAILABLE AT THE CONFERENCE SERVICES OFFICE ROOM 918 - CAMPUS CENTER NINTH FLOOR
COMPLETED APPLICATIONS ARE DUE BY FRIDAY, APRIL 14, 1995

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Darienne J. Hosley Editor-in-Chief Kelly Spang Managing Editor
Michael McRae Business Manager Andrew D. Davidson Production Manager Lisa Tannenbaum Advertising Manager
James P. Ganley Advertising Production Manager Lisa Greenfield Senior Diversity Editor

Matt Audette Arts & Living Editor
Chris Taylor Conner Black Affairs Editor
Matt Wurtzel Business Editor
Juan Jose Chacon Quiros Developing Nations Editor
Tracy Monahan Editorial/Opinion Editor
Wendy Darling Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Jacob W. Michaels Jewish Affairs Editor
Hernan Rozemberg Multicultural Affairs Editor
Jessica Taverna News Editor
Paul Bilodeau Photography Editor
Andrew Bryce, Matt Voutour Sports Editors
Jeff Wilson Staff Artist
Lisa Greenfield, Colleen Shanahan Women's Issues Editors
Marni E. Heffner Editorial Production Manager
John Khachadoorian Finance Manager
Eric Abenaim Distribution Manager
Maureen Majerowski Senior Bookkeeper
Marty Pappas Classified Advertising

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1936. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

When the wine goes stale

Nathan Crick

I went to dinner with my family at an old Italian restaurant last night, where my grandfather in his youth had worked doing the masonry in the wine cellar. He had come with us, and sat quietly at the head of the table, with his large Italian hands folded in front of him. The rest of us were all crowded around the large table, but it seemed as if we were the only patrons of the restaurant. Several other tables were filled across the room, but they talked quietly and their voices seemed to fade into the dim music just as their forms blended into the dim walls.

Later during the dinner I sat down next to my grandfather, and asked him how the place compares with how it used to be. He did not move his face or his hands, and said simply "It doesn't compare."

If I could say how "it used to be," I would. Unfortunately, it seems as if my memory is only able to go back to the way things have always been. I cannot remember a time when fast food did not dominate our diets, and television did not eternally reverberate in our minds, and the cement blocks we call shopping centers did not cover the landscape.

I often wish I could write an essay on "What makes America Great," but the problem is that everywhere I go, I cannot get away from the powerful impressions I receive that our society is slowly dying, and that our people are giving up. I have tried leaving this country to escape, and have found its fingers creeping into every culture I have been to. I have realized quite simply that unless we change ourselves, that running away is never going to help. The problems still will follow you, and will follow me, and all of our expatriate shouts of anger will serve no purpose but to bounce right back at us.

